STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1897.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under Native pastoral superintendence in connexion with the Society.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "Dub."; Durham, "Dur."; London, "Lond."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lond. Coll Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L." In the case of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, Clapham, or of ladies trained at The Willows, Stoke Newington, The Olives, South Hampstead, and at the Society's Highbury Training Home, "Clapham," or "The Willows," or "The Olives," or "Highbury," occurs after their names. The letter D after the names of ordained men, whether Europeans or Natives, indicates that they were Deacons at the above date.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, means that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations, or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose name it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society. The Native Ministers in New Zealand are supported partly by Subscriptions from Native Christians, and partly from the rents of lands belonging to the Society in the Colony.

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis; in the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured, and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies, the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good, in every practicable way, among the native women, such as cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality, sex, orders, or other difference; except that, the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed, in almost every instance, immediately after their husbands.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 4th, 1897, being the Society's Ninety-eighth Anniversary,

HIS GRACE THE LORD ARCHBISHOP of CANTERBURY, Vice-Patron, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

The General Review of the Year was read, followed by the CHAIRMAN'S address, after which, on a motion by the RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, Bart. M.P., President, seconded by the MOST REV. BISHOP OF SYDNEY, D.D., V.P., it was Resolved—

That the General Review which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Rt. Rev. the Lord Bishop of Ripon, D.D., for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill up vacancies; and that this Meeting, acknowledging with humble gratitude to Almighty God the supply of means and of living agents entrusted to the Society last year, has yet to confess that the calls and claims of the unevangelized Heathen, involving increasing responsibilities and presenting greater opportunities, require from all members of the Society further self-denial and more entire consecration of themselves, their families, and their means to God, so that during the yet remaining two years of the first Century of the Society, the opportunities afforded to it by the great Head of the Church for the evangelization of the world, may be more adequately met by the gifts of God's obedient people.

On a motion by the RIGHT REV. BISHOP OF WAIAPU, V.P., seconded by the REV. J. C. HOARE, of Mid-China, it was Resolved—

That this Meeting desires with heart and voice to offer up its thanksgivings to Almighty God for the priceless blessings bestowed by Him upon Great Britain, and the world at large, during the sixty years of the reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, marked as those years have been by remarkable material and social progress; and it would place on record its deep conviction that that reign of unprecedented length has not been more remarkable for the extension of England's imperial and commercial influence than, in the good Providence of God, for the growth (especially during the last ten years) of Missionary interest and enterprise, not only in the older Mission-fields, but very specially in Africa, China, and Japan, and other lands closed against the Gospel sixty years ago; and further, this Meeting devoutly prays that all God's richest blessings, for this world and the next, may rest upon the head of our beloved Sovereign. God Save the Queen!

On a motion by the RIGHT REV. BISHOP OF WESTERN-EQUATORIAL AFRICA, V.P., seconded by the REV. H. D. WILLIAMSON, of Bengal, it was Resolved—

That this Meeting takes this opportunity of expressing its heartfelt sympathy with the missionaries of their own and of other Societies, and with the Native Communities and Christian Churches in those parts of India grievously afflicted with pestilence and famine, and also with the Labourers and Converts in those Eastern Lands, where movements among the Mohammedan populations have placed them in circumstances of anxiety and of danger. But, while earnestly entreating the God of Mercy and of Peace to remember our brethren in their time of need, and to send them such health and plenty, such peace and quietness as He may deem to be fit, this Meeting, mindful of the Society's past experience, both of distress and persecution, is confident that still "all things are working together" for the good of Christ's Church and for the advancement of His Kingdom. And once more it prayerfully resolves to go forward in the accomplishing of the Master's great purpose and in the fulfilling of His plain command, rejoicing in the spread of a movement toward "the evangelization of the world in the present generation," and relying for guidance, and such success as God may vouchsafe, upon the unfailing Presence and Power of the Holy Ghost.

The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE may authorize any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the COMMITTEE. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The COMMITTEE shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The COMMITTEE shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The COMMITTEE shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the COMMITTEE, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the COMMITTEE), shall be appointed annually by the COMMITTEE for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the COMMITTEE once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence; and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the COMMITTEE, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the COMMITTEE shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the COMMITTEE for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the COMMITTEE.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the COMMITTEE; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the COMMITTEE, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the COMMITTEE is suitable. The COMMITTEE shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The COMMITTEE shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the COMMITTEE, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the COMMITTEE, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the COMMITTEE may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the COMMITTEE to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licenses in which are specified the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licenses will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connection with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O Most-merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

OUR Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name; Thy kingdom come; Thy will be done in earth, As it is in heaven: Give us this day our daily bread: And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us: And lead us not into temptation, But deliver us from evil: for Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

ALMIGHTY GOD, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a true knowledge of, and faith in Thee. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace, that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great name for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday Evening,

May 3rd, 1897,

BY THE

LORD BISHOP OF RIPON.

"BEHOLD, ALL SOULS ARE MINE."—Ezekiel xviii. 4.

THERE is a difference between the utterance of a man of science and the utterance of a prophet. When knowledge or science speaks, we demand that it shall prove its assertions; we ask for reasons. But when the prophet speaks, he speaks that which is beyond mere argument; he appeals to that within us which can approve his words without asking for evidence. There is another difference also between the utterance of the man of science and the man of prophecy. When the man of science speaks, what he speaks may be interesting, but it does not necessarily demand any action on our part. But wherever prophecy speaks, it commands responsive action; it carries the obligation of obedience.

Ezekiel was a prophet, differing, no doubt, from the other prophets whom we call the "greater" in many respects. He had not the sublime imagination or the freedom of utterance which characterized Isaiah. He had not the political comprehensiveness or the gift of lyrical sadness which belonged to Jeremiah. But he possessed a genius, which in its own way was calculated to leave its mark upon the history of its time and also upon the history of the world. If it may be said that his imagination was artificial, sometimes descending to allegory, he nevertheless was one who had the gift of uttering pregnant sentences of truths which, having been once spoken, are spoken for ever. You have an illustration of it in the words I have read. "Behold," says the prophet—and he speaks not for his own time only but for all time—"Behold," speaking in the name of God, "all souls are Mine."

It is to the principle which underlies those words, far reaching in the exhaustless range of its application to various departments of human life, that I ask your attention to-day. We are met, it might be said, upon no ordinary occasion; for the Anniversary of a Society like this, verging towards its hundredth year, cannot be regarded as an ordinary occasion; but we are met also while songs of gladness are sounding in our ears; we are rejoicing with a gladness of national life, for we are commemorating the sixtieth year of the reign of our Gracious Queen. At such times it always seems to me to be an affectation not to fall back upon the simplest and the truest principles of faith. For they are times in which one feels that the only utterance which is required of us is that we shall speak that which is the common persuasion of the common faith of the common Christianity of the world. And in the utterance of the prophet we reach a fundamental and essential principle.

I.—I have called it a principle. For a moment let us examine it. There is an enormous difference—I am sure you will allow me to say, and you will not misunderstand me when I say it—there is an enormous difference between an opinion and a principle. The difference I take to be this, that an opinion may be true or it may be false; it may be interesting or it may be uninteresting; but it belongs to the form rather than to the life of a subject; it is not, as a principle is, vitally related to the indispensable life of the question concerned. A principle touches the very root, the vital existence of that which is described or spoken of. Let me illustrate what I mean. There are opinions, there are doctrines, there are teachings, there are theories in the world which we can imagine passing away without in the least degree interfering with the essential conditions of human life or human society as we now know it. They do not touch the vital necessities of our physical or moral existence. Suppose for a moment, as has been threatened, that we are obliged to correct our views of the theory of gravitation; suppose we are told that there are certain climatic influences which are likely to change our theories here, yet we shall feel that there is nothing essentially touched; for, though the formula of the law should be changed, the great principle of the order under which the planets and the stars and the sun are related remains still unchanged. But suppose that some one were able to show us that the whole was not greater than the part, and that the equals of equals were not equal; then we should be thrown into the position of those who feel that a fundamental principle of our mental life has been affected, for the very laws of thought would be overturned.

And I take it that, in the words which I have read, the prophet uttered a principle of this vital order. It is indispensable to our conception of God that all souls should be His. For, suppose it were otherwise. Imagine for one moment that it could be shown that there were souls that did not belong to God, we should immediately feel that the whole conception which we had formed of God, the very fundamental idea which we attached to the word God, had been entirely destroyed. He would cease to be God to us if He were not God of all.

But if it is true, then, as belonging to the indispensable conception of the Divine, that all souls should be His, the power of the principle lies in this, that it gives its colour to all our opinions. For a principle lies, I venture to think, behind nearly all our opinions. The reason why it is important that we should be careful concerning our opinions is not so much in the fact that our opinions are of much importance, but that the basis-principle of our opinions may be of the very greatest importance. Most of that series of ideas which we are pleased to call our opinions may be derived from habit, or they may be the outcome of training and of caprice. The important matter is, that we should be able to pierce beneath this series of opinions, and should understand the principle upon which they are based. They are the expressions of something deeper than themselves, and the reason why opinion may be mischievous is because it may be the expression of that which has no true principle at its root.

Principles, then, are powerful because they serve to inform, correct, and vitalize opinions. They are powerful because they possess the capacity—and God calls them into life in the darkest days of human history—they possess the capacity of liberating the thought of man from the tyranny of opinions. Let me illustrate this. Opinion may be wholesome in its initial stage. It may owe its existence to some useful suggestion, arising from the habit of a man of piety; but it may by-and-by strive to extend its dominion beyond the range which the original author proposed. At the very moment it does so, opinion begins to be tyranny. You have illustrations of this in the history of the Christian Church. We see it in the earliest age. There were men with various opinions concerning the observance of days, and the abstaining or non-abstaining from meats. There were divergent opinions in the early Christian Church: how did St. Paul break down the possible tyrannies of these opinions? We can realize that if one set of opinions—excellent and perhaps pious in their initial stage—had been allowed to prevail in the Christian Church, it had meant tyranny to the rest of the members. But when the apostle is called upon to deal with it, he falls back upon a principle, because principles have the power of liberating men from the bondage of opinion. And the principle upon which he fell back was the one so familiar to us all—"None of us liveth to himself." Judge your custom, judge your habit, judge your walk in life, judge your opinion on these questions by the fundamental Christian principle that no man lives to himself. "But if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, . . . Destroy not him with thy meat, for whom Christ died." There is the principle. The same experience occurs, as you know, in the later history of the Church. Scholasticism had woven her mesh of opinions. They brought into bondage the lives and hearts of men. They caused needless sorrow and spiritual sadness. Men were bound by the tyranny of opinion. But once more the liberating principle was seen. There came an hour when Luther realized the principle which slept in the words of the Creed, "I believe in the forgiveness of sin," and he, and thousands with him, were at once set free from the tyranny of oppressive opinions.

Always, then, you will see that the value of a principle is this: that it possesses an enormous vital force. It is not only indispensable to the idea concerned, but it is also a powerful factor in the progress of good in the world. It has a liberating power against the tyranny of opinion. It was so in the prophet's day. Then a certain opinion, a strong opinion, a well-founded opinion prevailed. The opinion which prevailed amongst the people was an opinion concerning what would be called to-day heredity. "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." The words expressed an unquestionable truth when viewed from certain standpoints. Any person who has studied the history of the world will be ready to admit that disadvantages are transmitted in consequence of wrong-doing from generation to generation. But in the prophet's view this opinion, starting probably from a very wholesome conception of a true idea, had become a tyrannous opinion over the hearts of his contemporaries. And therefore he stood against it. But how did he deal with it? By bringing out the force of the old principle, the unquestionable principle, "All souls are Mine." Whatever may have happened in the progress of generations, whatever dark shadow may have descended from father to son, however much the sins of the fathers may have been visited upon the children, this can never be accepted as a token that such have ceased to be God's. Rather is it the token that the superintending and the providential hand of God is upon them still. In no case can the act of one man sunder God from the rights He has over another man. As no man can make agreement to God for his brother, so no man can drag his brother from the hand of the Almighty. The prophet, therefore, lays down this principle of sovereignty, "All souls are Mine." As God is the crowned King of Heaven, His are inalienable rights. No accident or wrong, no darkness or sin, can rob Him of these rights. There is no lapse against the Crown. Such is the principle which lives in the words, "Behold, all souls are Mine."

And shall we say that the principle has vital force as a liberating power amongst ourselves? I would not stand and speak to you in any sinister or cynical terms of the age in which we live. It is a cheap thing to abuse times past; perhaps it is cheaper still to abuse the times that now are. But, nevertheless, we live in the midst of an age in which, as we open a book of romance, or a study of history, or a speculation of so-called philosophy and science, we are struck by the sadness, by the inevitable tone of melancholy, that meets us everywhere. We seem to hear the whisper, "The children's teeth are set on edge," even amongst ourselves. We are told that all things are constructed after such a fashion that there is no hope of any real or radical remedy at all. It is the thought of the prophet's age brought before us in another dress. We as children of the past are inheriting evil. The present organization of life is the result of all previous organizations and of previous ages. "Our teeth are set on edge." Nothing can be ever palatable to us again. The bread of life is no longer wholesome, the sweets of life are no longer pleasant; for "Our teeth are set on edge."

Again we may see, perchance, that the principle which was laid down by the prophet may liberate us from this tyrant-teaching which hinders activity and destroys the possibilities of hope. For again, "All souls are Mine" is the cry over the whole broad world, over the thoughts of men, over the doleful expectations which some entertain, over the sorrowfulness which others are cherishing, or over the cares and anxieties which belong to us all. There is not a single heart that is near to breaking, nor a single mind that reels under the weight of painful perplexities and pressing problems, that is not still the heritage of God. Behold, this principle can liberate us. We are freed from despair if we can realize the truth of the prophet's words. "Behold," says the Almighty through the prophet, "all souls are Mine."

Here we have a principle—a principle which seems to me to be inevitable, because arising out of our initial conceptions of God; and powerful, because capable of liberating men from the tyranny of stagnant and narrow opinions.

II.—It is a principle of wide range and operation; for it is a principle which brings the message of love, which is the charter of human rights, which is the edict of toleration, which is the statute of service.

1. It is the message of love to humanity—"All souls are Mine." In its range it touches the relationship of God to men—"Behold, all souls are Mine." Shall we dismiss it, and say: "Of course that is the case; all souls are God's, by virtue of His own act of creation. He has made them, and they must be His.

It is but the technical statement of the right to property, and it is no more than that. It is a statement of a right to property. 'It is He that made us, and not we ourselves.' Therefore, all souls are His." But, my brothers and sisters, you who are having your hearts stirred with the thought of missionary labour, are you satisfied that that is the only significance of it? It is the declaration of Divine right arising out of creation, if you please—"And behold, all souls are Mine." But remember, that the annunciation of Divine rights is the annunciation of Divine character. You cannot separate the rights of God from the character of God. You cannot deal with the Divine from the standpoint of our ordinary narrow conceptions of law. When we speak of rights and property, we think of them in connexion with national law, agricultural depression, and absentee landlords. Our ideas narrow to earth. We think of human nature standing obstinately for its rights, and shirking its responsibility. We must rise higher; we must not imagine that we can dissociate the idea of God's rights from the idea of the Divine character. These wonderful words are not only the declaration of His claim over men by right of His creation of them, but they are the declaration of His nearness to them and His care over them.

God lays claim to the care of souls, because care for them arises out of His creation of them. This is what the prophet affirms. For, if you look for a moment you will see that it is no mere claim of His right to property over men. The prophet is anxious to blot out the darkness which a false and tyrannous opinion has brought over the souls of his brother men. There in exile he says to those beaten down by sorrow and humiliation, crushed by circumstances which seemed too strong for them, "Behold, your liberating God is near you. He has the right of charge over you; you belong to Him. I speak, for you are burdened by the idea that somehow or other the shadow of the past has put you outside the care of God. This never has been, and never can be the case. For whatever the man be, father or son, whether the past may have been brightened by goodness or darkened by ill, no matter what his condition, still He says, 'You are under My care, and in My keeping.'" This is His reply to the dark thought that any accidental circumstances or inherited misfortune can pluck men away from the care and love of God.

And was not the prophet right in his interpretation? See, the days go by. I unfold another Book. It tells me of the teaching of the Son of God. The message I read there endorses the view of the prophet. Property, in the Divine idea, means obligation. He who says so is our Master. In the world, He tells us, men show carelessness of responsibility, and carefulness for self. In the Divine order, responsibility goes with possession.

"The hireling, whose own the sheep are not, fleeth. The Good Shepherd lays down His life for the sheep." He does so, because the sheep are His own. The property creates the responsibility. Those who are His by the claim of possession have a claim upon His care.

I turn from the parable of the Good Shepherd to the great trilogy of parables in the 15th chapter of St. Luke, and I find the same. Here we stand in the Holy of holies of the Gospel, for here, whatever men's views may be, they agree in finding the real message of God to the souls of men. Here we have the stories of the sheep that went astray, and the coin that was lost, and the prodigal who wandered from home. Throughout all stories the same idea exists: the idea of possession. Is it the Shepherd? It is His own sheep that He goes after, until He finds it. Is it the house-wife? It is her own coin, given for domestic use, that she seeks for. Is it the prodigal? In his extremity, with worn frame and heart heavy with self-reproach, he still realizes the one to whom he belongs, and cries, "I will arise, and go to my father."

And, not only in His teaching, but in His emotions our Lord sanctioned the claim of men upon the care of their Father. His deepest feelings were stirred when people claimed the right to the Divine care; when they laid hold upon it, and said, "It is ours, because we know what the Divine character is." You anticipate the instance I have in mind. A poor woman crept to His side, and asked a boon for her daughter, and her faith gave gladness to Christ when she declared that the meanest in the house had some claim upon the Master's thought; the dogs eat of the crumbs which fall from their master's hand. He loved the confidence of reciprocal affection, because it was the acknowledgment of the one supreme principle—"They are God's, and they have the right to claim the protection of God."

This is the principle. We see how wide it is. And yet often this principle has been lost sight of. Opinions have risen up to tyrannize over us and to limit its range and power. The principle is accepted, but with a reserve which robs it of its fulness. The souls of men, we are told, "are God's, if——." If a certain experience has been theirs, if a certain ceremony has been performed, if a certain belief has been acknowledged, if a certain life has been lived—then they are God's, but not otherwise. You will not suppose for a moment that I would undervalue an experience, an ordinance, a faith, a life. The experience of an awakening soul is most precious, the ceremony which admits us to the Christian Church is the sweetest expression, as it were, of an all-claiming Divine love; the faith which is in us is a support of fainting spirits, and the Christian life is of supreme importance to all. But we must never confuse our personal realization of a principle with its original truth and existence. Our consciousness of a principle does not create it, but proves its existence prior to our consciousness. When the soul wakens up to the consciousness of God, it awakens to the thought that God had claimed it before. When the child is admitted into the Christian Church, you baptize it because you believe that the redeeming hand of the Christ has been stretched athwart the world. The faith that you teach to the simplest is that, before all, he belongs to God. You teach him to believe in "God as his Father." The life that he is to live you will tell him is the life of one who is not his own, but bought with a price. All the experiences, the joyous experiences of Christian life are the outcome of the realization of that which was true beforehand, that the soul belongs simply to God. It is "because ye are sons," that "God hath sent forth the spirit of His Son into your hearts, crying, 'Abba, Father!'"

Therefore, let us cling to this high and true principle of Christian life. My brothers, no matter what be the obstacles before us, this becomes a powerful principle for all work and for all hope in God's world. All classes, races, and conditions are God's. No matter with what colour the colder or warmer sun may have touched their faces, no matter in what tongue they express their sorrows, no matter what sad hereditary taint may have descended upon them, no matter what low and grovelling superstitions may be their intellectual inheritance, no matter in what squalid circumstances they may be living, no matter in what dark surroundings their character may be formed, no matter what degradation civilization, or the want of civilization, may have imposed upon them, all are God's, by right of the prophetic declaration, "All souls are Mine."

All are His. Whether Greek or Turk, German or Jew, Boer or Englishman, Armenian or Russian, Chinese or Japanese, Red Indian, Swazi, Hausa or Matabele, all are God's. Though in uncivilized countries they may be worshipping devils, they are not the devil's, but God's; though in semi-civilized lands they may be worshipping the flesh, they do not belong to the flesh, but to God; though in so-called civilized countries they are enslaved by the world and fall prostrate before the image of gold which fashion now worships, they are not the world's, but God's.

In this principle lies the justification and power of missionary effort. It is the justification of missionary effort. No member of our own communion will deny this, for it is expressed in the commission given to every man admitted to the Orders of the Church of England. He is to "go forth into the world." For what? To seek for those whom God has forgotten or disowned? No! but "To seek for Christ those that are dispersed abroad, and for Christ's children that are in the midst of this naughty world, that they may be saved through Christ for ever." It is the power of the missionary effort, because you will not win men to the side of Christ by saying to them, "You are not God's," but you will win them—their souls—into the freedom of the Gospel and the love of Christ if you say, "We seek you, because you are His." It is the invigoration of the missionary soul; for, in spite of the failures which discourage, and the slackened zeal which awakens the heart's reproach, there whispers ever the Divine voice, which says: "Go, My son, go and seek, seek all; for all are Mine. You are not working alone. My Spirit works in them and with you; for all are dear to Me. I pledged My life for them, I shed My blood for them. Bring them to My fold, for they are Mine."

Let this thought be ever in your mind. When you go forth to help men sunk in squalor and defaced by sin, remember that they are God's, lest you despise them and so fail in your work.

Such is the operation of the principle as an expression of Divine love.

2. It is the charter of human rights. Yes, it stands for ever written here that the world may remember, "All souls are Mine." We know that the history of the past has been a history which tells us the contempt of race for race, people for people, land for land. But contempt vanishes before this Divine fiat, "All souls are Mine." It stands as a perpetual witness against the selfish contempt of race for race, the cruelty of man towards man. It is the declaration, therefore, of human rights. It is a needful one; for the charter of human rights comes not from earth, but from Heaven. No philosophy can take the place of religion, and a tepid altruism is but a poor substitute for self-sacrificing Christian love. The best intentions in the world will not secure the objects at which men aim and of which they talk. The charter of human rights does not derive its force from the discussions of men, but from the declaration of God. Just as the City, the Ideal City, when it comes, will not arise from the earth but will come down from Heaven; so also that proclamation which declares the rights of citizenship of that great City must come from Heaven. The rights of men are enrolled and reverenced there, though not yet upon earth. For, unfortunately, it is only too true that civilization weaves within her bosom opinions and prejudices which tend to become organized cruelties against the rights of men; and thus men suffer from many cruelties—from cruelties of philosophy, cruelties of science, cruelties of commerce, and cruelties of diplomacy.

From cruelties of philosophy, for it is a cruel philosophy which teaches that it is impossible to raise out of savagery and sadness any races of the world. Cruelties of science, for it is cruelty to desire to leave in darkness and degradation tribes of our fellow-creatures, in order that science may have her undisturbed opportunity of studying their manners and customs. These nature peoples are to be preserved as a sort of museum for the benefits of unphilanthropic savants. Cruelties of commerce, for it is selfish cruelty when men are ready to condone the reckless slaughtering of thousands of helpless natives if thus they can secure a half per cent. more of dividend upon their investments. Cruelties of diplomacy, for it is cruelty when statecraft is so hampered by ambitious intrigues that it is heedless of the cries of humanity.

What power is available to drive out these evils which seem so inextricably woven into the web of our civilization? The answer of despair is ready: "The only power is destruction. The only remedy is to destroy the society which has suffered these evils to arise." Faith has a better answer in the prophet's words, "All souls are Mine." Faith in this Divine principle is a mighty resistant force against these evils; for it does not despair of humanity. He must believe in the possibilities of the race who believes that all souls are God's. Our religion has sometimes been reproached with the low views she takes of men; but she never sinks as low as fatalistic pessimism. She never drops anchor by the fog-bank of determinism. Her eyes are open to God, and, therefore, she sees the possibilities of man. Missionary enterprise illustrates this. The man of science, Charles Darwin, believed that it was perfectly hopeless to send missionaries to savages like the Fuegians. Admiral Sir James Sullivan maintained the opposite opinion, that the Gospel can reach the lowest races. The record of missionary success convinced Charles Darwin, and he became a contributor to the Mission. Similar evidence comes from New Zealand. Some of you are experiencing sorrow, because one venerable figure long associated with the labours of your Society has been taken away. And yet, within the record of her life, what changes have taken place to show the justification of faith that no souls are outside the reach of God! Mrs. Williams, who went forth into New Zealand, and dwelt amongst the aboriginal cannibal races of the Maoris, lived to see out of that race sixty-three ordained Christian ministers at work, labouring in the cause of Christ, as the answer to those who say that it is hopeless to raise degraded peoples.

We need not go further. We know well that the power which has animated the missionaries, the philanthropists, the reformers of the world has been faith in this one principle. They had hope for Heathen and savages—for the down-trodden, the enslaved, the ill-treated, and the degraded; for they believed that they were God's; and as they were God's, they would at some time respond to His call. This principle it was which animated Livingstone—the anniversary of whose death we celebrate to-morrow. This principle animated him who was a pre-eminent ornament of the Queen's reign—Lord Shaftesbury, who spent his life in snatching the poor out of their misery. Yes, it is faith—it has been faith—in the one living principle, that God's hand is over the whole race, and that all souls belong to Him, which has lifted up its voice on behalf of the fallen and the weak, and has thus proclaimed to the world the abiding charter of men's rights.

But we have greater witness still; for our Master claims all men; for over the whole world His love goes forth. The arms of His Cross stretch wide, bringing all races within His embrace. He tasted death for every man. And, seeing this, we realize that all races, with their several conditions, degraded or civilized, are all united in His love. They all belong to Him. They have a common origin, they have a common call, there is a common hope for them, and there is one hand of love stretched out over them all. As you contemplate this fundamental bond of union, all other differences sink into insignificance. Their hearts beat with the same blood as ours, their souls are called by the same God as ours. They are all His. So the less we speak of these minor differences the better, in the great realization of the profound love of God, which has become the charter of human rights.

3. It is an edict of toleration. We are less faithful than we know. At the moment of our greatest faith we fail to realize the greatness of God. We are commissioned to preach the Gospel, and in preaching it we forget the God Who sent us forth. We forget in the midst of our activity that all souls are His. We forget that He works with us and without us. This forgetfulness shows itself in many ways. We are put in trust with the religious training of others; but our wish to train them for God often dwindles into a desire to bring them up just after our own pattern. We want them to reflect the faith just as we know it; we want them to repeat the same words, and to echo the same thought as ourselves. We set ourselves to bring them up as reflexions of ourselves, no less, no more. God teaches us our mistake. Our people lay hold of truths which we have not taught them. They think thoughts of God, but not exactly after our pattern. God shows us His sovereign claim over souls. They are His—not ours. He has not ceased to work because He has sent us to work; he has not drawn His hand away because He has entrusted us with responsibility. All souls are His, and they are under His educating hand.

The histories of families illustrate the same. Do you not know it? Alas, what pain there is in it! And yet, what wholesome pain, perchance, if we believe in the providence of God. You thought this boy of yours would grow up just after that pattern that you dreamt of. In thought you fashioned his future, you imagined his career, you surrounded his life with all the happy dreams which your love and fancy created. How different was the reality! Your boy begins to think for himself; he chooses for himself; he develops on his own lines, not on yours. He holds different opinions, he adopts a different career. You are sad and disappointed; you say little, but your disappointment is within your breast, like a pain borne in silence. But herein God is teaching you that all souls are His, and therefore that, besides your care and labour, there is His Divine providence at work in their lives. He will not let them ripen just as you imagine. The seed that you sow is one thing, but the soil in which it is sown is another. Your work is not the only work, sower of the seed though you be. There is the sun that shines upon it. There are the subtle climatic changes that affect it. Under these it will spring up, and when it breaks into fruit it will not be identical with your wishes or the pale copy of your fancy.

And so with the Mission-field. We go forth in zeal, and we dream of founding Churches all on the same pattern and after the same way of thinking. And again God disappoints us. And we, if we believe that all souls are God's, must believe that the conditions which cause variety of development are of His appointment. He brings them up according to His good wisdom, and not according to our desire. And therefore this utterance of the prophet, "Behold, all souls are Mine," is the plea that we shall recognize the Divine Worker Who works not after our fashion, but after the good pleasure of His wise will. Who that lives now dreams that the pattern of Christianity in India will be exactly like the pattern of Christianity in England? Does the Christianity of America bear the same features as the Christianity of our own country? Can you expect African tribes to develop their Christianity after an English or American sort and fashion? We must be prepared for varieties of form. If you believe—and surely we do believe—that beyond all our thoughts, beyond all our poor little ideas, God is the supreme Ruler, the supreme Lover, the supreme Guide, God's Spirit the supreme Worker in the hearts of men, then we shall welcome these varieties. Whatever be the results, we shall rest assured that He has a good reason for them; we shall feel that there is a gain in every new aspect of the message of the Gospel; we shall rejoice when we hear truth uttered by fresh voices; we shall realize what a living charter of toleration of variety is contained in the declaration—"All souls are Mine."

4. It is a statute of service. "All souls are Mine." This is a missionary evening. And, if all souls are God's, then—humbly be it spoken—we too are His, and His claim over us is the same as the claim which we are seeking to extend the whole wide world over. His claim over us is the claim that we, being His, shall in some sort resemble Him in the standard of His service. He works ceaselessly, in the self-sacrifice of that love which loved us and gave itself for us. The obligation which springs out of that conception, "All souls are Mine," is the obligation of the whole life, and the whole soul, consecrated and dedicated to His service.

That is the rationale of Christian Missions. Are the signs of this Christian dedication evident? Are you satisfied with the results? We survey nearly a hundred years of this Society's life, sixty years' life of this Society since the Queen came to the throne: are we satisfied with the progress made? In one sense the progress is most encouraging. For a moment let us glance backwards. It has been calculated that in the days of Constantine the proportion of Christians to the inhabitants of the globe was 1 in 150; to-day it is reckoned that the Christian proportion is one-third of the population of the globe. Over the 1,500 years that have stretched between us and Constantine, there has been an increase at the rate of one per cent. in every five years. A change from 1 in 150 of the population to a third of the population is a magnificent change. It is the victory of the thought and the spirit of Christ in the world. And then men say: "Oh, but that belongs to ancient history. Modern times are different." Modern times are different! Is the progress less rapid? We sometimes think that Mission work is stationary. But over three decades of Indian history, I find the returns startling, because they tell us that the spread and progress there is far vaster than the progress of Christianity in the 1,500 years previous. While the population of India has risen seventeen per cent., the power of Christianity has increased fifty-eight per cent.—or, to translate it into the terms of the other calculation, where the increase was one per cent. in five years, it is ten per cent. in five years in the Indian returns. That is satisfactory.

Is it satisfactory so far as the opportunities of preaching are concerned? Sixty years ago, when the Queen came to the throne, there were certain vast districts of the world practically closed to Christian Missions. Africa was almost inaccessible, portions of North America were not open to us, certain provinces of India were closed, and the doors alike of Japan and China were fast barred. Now, thank God, those regions are open to us, and there is hardly a land where men are not free to go and where men have not had the Divinely inspired courage to go. That is satisfactory.

It is satisfactory also to discover that the number of men who have gone forth from the Native Churches has increased. Whereas at the beginning of the Queen's reign there were only four Native missionaries attached to the Church of England, there have during her reign been 540 such missionaries ordained belonging to your Society alone. That is satisfactory.

So far as the progress made by your own Society within the last few years is concerned, there is also much to be thankful for. When that devout, spiritually-minded, earnest, and true man, whose memory is dear to you, took the reins of guidance of your Society—when Mr. Wigram began his successful career as Secretary of this Society—there were financial difficulties around you. The financial difficulties have disappeared. The number of missionaries has been increased threefold, and the income of the Society has risen £100,000 per annum. That is satisfactory.

But when we ask the deeper questions: Is it satisfactory when viewed from a larger standpoint? Are we satisfied that the enthusiasm of Christ is sufficiently distributed in our land? Is the idea that all souls are His a realized idea—practically realized—throughout the length and breadth of the land, as it might be? I think we are bound to say that it is not satisfactory.

The total income contributed to the Missionary Societies connected with the Church of England is, I believe, £572,000 per annum. I will call it £600,000, if you please. A Budget of which we heard a few days ago gives our annual expenditure as £103,000,000. Our contributions to Foreign Missions meant ½ per cent. of the amount of our national revenue. If you include the missionary societies of other communions, the yield is a little over one per cent. of our national revenue. Mr. Gladstone calculated that England was laying by at the rate of £200,000,000 per annum. Your missionary contributions are one-third per cent., I believe, of that amount, or, including all missionary societies, about two-thirds per cent. The total income of England, according to Mr. Gladstone, was equal to the population of the world—viz., about £1,400,000,000. The total contributions to Foreign Missions equal one-tenth per cent. of the income of the country, or 2*s.* out of every £100 that we receive. That is not satisfactory.

What is wanted? It is to realize the principle which underlies that word of the prophet, "All souls are Mine." Whose is the wealth? and whose is the vigour? and whose is the opportunity? It is yours! Yet it is not yours. In the complexity of modern civilization, the temptations are many and subtle. It is argued that, considering the demands of modern life, it is impossible to spare much for philanthropy and for missionary enterprise. But, nevertheless, I ask you never to be satisfied till the consecrated life, which is the natural corollary of the idea that all souls are God's, be yours! Whose will you be in this world, where we spend the brief time called life? For the real question of life is—to whom do we belong? Whose will you be? Will you call yourself your own, and grow rotten under the rule of selfishness? Will you call yourself the world's, and spend your strength on the world's emptiness? Or will you call yourselves God's, and in ready consecration surrender all that you have to Him?

My brothers and sisters, I stand to speak to you to-night on this missionary occasion with many thoughts that might plead for utterance. I seem to have an hereditary right to speak of missionary work, for from both sides I can claim in home memories those examples of earnestness, those self-sacrificing labours, those unwearied journeys which express devotion to this missionary cause. Therefore, no other note would I strike but that which I have striven feebly to strike in your ears, that all souls are God's! A few short years will soon slip by us; and the question of life will be, not what we gained, but what we have done with our life, how we have consecrated it, by what principle it has been governed, to whom it has been surrendered.

The claim of God over us all is clear—we are His by a threefold claim: by the right of creation, by the love of His redemption, by the patience with which His Spirit has pursued us through the years! Let us consecrate ourselves anew. Let the principle of which I have spoken be the impulse of our ambition. Let our ambition, like the noble historic ambition of this Society, be never to rest from our labours till the whole world has heard the claim of God and the declaration of Divine love on which it is founded. Yea, the missionary spirit will lead us higher, never to rest till the response of the world's heart acknowledges that claim, and all men realize that their lives, their energy, their souls are God's. Then we shall understand the greatness of the aim, the invincible strength and the exhaustless application of the prophet's words, "Behold, all souls are Mine."

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY AT EXETER HALL, MAY 4, 1897.)

"The LORD shall reign for ever and ever."—EXOD. xv. 18.
"And they shall reign for ever and ever."—REV. xxii. 5.

THE whole British Empire is rejoicing in the long reign of Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, and counting up the events, political, social, scientific, religious, which have made the sixty years unique in the history of the nation. Every member of the Church Missionary Society will join with thankful heart in the general gladness; and all the more because the Victorian Era has seen the Church of Christ girding itself to its great task of evangelizing the world as it had not done in all previous generations. And the purpose of the Church's work is to usher in a Reign beside which the reign even of Queen Victoria sinks into insignificance—a Reign not for time, but for eternity—a Reign "for ever and ever."

A Reign for eternity.

And who is it that shall "reign for ever and ever"? The Lord Himself; yet not the Lord alone. "To him that overcometh will I give to sit with Me on My throne." "And they"—His servants—"shall reign for ever and ever." To gather out of the darkness of Heathendom the destined kings of the world to come, the companions of the King of kings on His eternal throne—this is the work of the Church of Christ, this the aim of the Church Missionary Society.

In presenting their Report, the Committee must begin by expressing deepest thankfulness to the Divine Head of the Church for His wondrous doings during the last sixty years, especially in opening up the world to missionary enterprise. Sixty years ago the Church of Christ could not have fully carried out its great commission. In China the door was shut; in Japan it was sealed; even in India important provinces could not be entered; the greater part of British North America was inaccessible; the greater part of Africa was unknown. When Queen Victoria ascended the throne the Society had just sent out a missionary to make an attempt, which proved a failure, to find an entrance into China; and had also sent out the two men, Krapf and Townsend, who were afterwards respectively the first to enter East Africa, and the first to enter the Yoruba country. The Queen had reigned four years when the first expedition went up the Niger, when Noble and Fox began the Telugu Mission, when Livingstone went to Africa and Bishop Selwyn to New Zealand. She had been Queen five years when the first five treaty ports were opened in China; eleven years when the first converts were baptized at Abeokuta; thirteen years when French and Stuart went out to open the Agra College; fourteen years when Robert Clark was able to cross the Sutlej and enter the Punjab, and when John Horden settled on the shores of Hudson's Bay; twenty years when Samuel Crowther started the Niger Mission. She had reigned twenty-two years when the gate into Japan began slowly to open; twenty-four years when Speke discovered Uganda, and when the first baptisms took place in Fuh-chow, and in what we now know as Bishop Ridley's diocese; thirty-one years when Ensor went to Japan, and Bruce to Persia; thirty-eight years when Frere Town was founded; exactly forty years when the Gospel was first preached in the capital of Uganda. When the Queen came to the throne, four Native converts had been ordained to the ministry of the Church of England (three C.M.S. and one S.P.G.). During her reign 540 have been ordained in connexion with C.M.S. alone.

Progress since the Queen's Jubilee.

Still more striking, in certain respects, is the retrospect of the past ten years, since the Queen's Jubilee was celebrated. It was in that year (1887) that the Committee, after earnest prayer, adopted the policy of refusing no candidates on financial grounds. In the previous fifty years, between the Queen's Accession and her Jubilee, the Society had sent out 900 missionaries; in the ten years since, it has added nearly 700 to the roll. Even after deducting deaths and retirements, the ordained missionaries have in the ten years increased from 247 to 376, the laymen from 40 to 110, the women (not including wives) from 22 to 244; total, from 309 to 730. The increase in particular fields in the ten years is still more noteworthy; in West Africa, from 11 to 44; in Eastern Equatorial Africa, from 26 to 83; in the Mohammedan lands, Egypt, Palestine, and Persia, from 17 to 77; in India, from 133 to 244; in China, from 30 to 111; in Japan, from 14 to 63. While we were celebrating the Queen's Jubilee Alexander Mackay was literally alone in Uganda; now the Uganda staff numbers thirty men and eight women. In 1887 there were four honorary missionaries; in 1897 there are 78 (including 19 partly honorary), besides 225 supported by special gifts from individuals, bands of friends, parishes, &c. Ought not the whole Society, at home and abroad, to join in the grateful exclamation, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad"?

Such is the retrospect suggested by the Queen's Diamond Jubilee. Not less striking are the comparisons suggested by some of the Society's losses during the past year of those who have gone into the King's immediate presence, and who, with Him, shall "reign for ever and ever." The most aged of its honorary officers has been removed in the person of the Rev. Carr John Glyn, who was born in June, 1799, just two months after the Society itself. Only two years younger was the venerable Mrs. Williams, widow of the first Bishop of Waiapu, and mother of the third Bishop, whom the Society welcomes this day at its Annual Meeting. She went to New Zealand as a married woman before a single convert had been baptized. Her infant son, the present Bishop, was himself received into the Church at the very first public baptismal service for Maoris, in 1829. She lived to see sixty-three of that once cannibal race ordained to the ministry of the Church of England, one of whom, Wiremu Turipona, taken to his rest in the past year, universally loved and honoured, was baptized in the year of Queen Victoria's accession. Fuh-chow has lost the Rev. Ting Sing-ki, the fifth to be ordained of the thirty-two Chinese clergymen who have been connected with the Society, after twenty years' faithful service. The three Tamil clergymen who have died in the past year are representatives of one hundred and thirty-six of that race ordained in C.M.S. connexion; and the two West Africans called away represent just one hundred of their brethren so ordained. Figures like these are eloquent as outward and visible signs of the blessing of the Lord. The early home-call of Mary Conway, of Eastern Africa, and Alice Entwistle, of Western China, is a reminder that it is only since the Queen's Jubilee ten years ago that the Society has sent out the bands of single women whose presence has lifted the Missions they have joined to a new level of completeness; while the loss of wives like Mrs. Ridley, of Metlakahtla, and Mrs. Brown, of Santalia, makes it impossible to forget what the work owes to the "mothers in Israel." Again and again have the workings of Divine grace among the Indians of the North Pacific coast stirred the sympathies of the Christian world; and never was a more touching scene witnessed than when for three days and nights, in one continuous prayer-meeting, the weeping Tsimsheans and Kitiksheans prayed the departing spirit of Jane Ridley into heaven. The time would fail to tell of other departed labourers, among them the veterans Davis, and Baumann, and Maundrell; or of many revered home workers called away, such as Archbishop Lord Plunket, Bishop Wynne, Archdeacons Cooper and Favell, Canon T. Green (a former Principal of Islington College), J. E.

Some recent deaths.

Sampson, W. E. Light, H. C. Milward, H. Bruce Boswell, J. C. Hornsby Wright. But to two departed friends a special reference is necessary: one who held the highest of the Society's official posts, that of Vice-Patron, and one who for nearly fifteen years was the leader of its Executive.

Mr. Wigram.

Around the honoured grave of Frederic Wigram the company of mourners raised songs of peace and praise. Of peace, "perfect peace," because, though "death shadows us and ours," "Jesus hath conquered death and all its powers." Of praise, because Divine grace had enabled the beloved friend laid to rest to set so bright an example of devotion to his Lord, and to render such essential service to the Missionary Enterprise. To it he gave his means, his children, his own life; and it is in no small degree, under God, to his large mind and loving heart that the Church Missionary Society has so moved forward from the position in which it stood when he entered office seventeen years ago.* Then, it was in a serious financial crisis, all the reserve funds and part of the capital fund having been used, and almost all the new missionaries ready to sail detained at home. In the seventeen years the number of missionaries in the field has increased just threefold, and the Society's income has risen by £100,000.

Archbishop Benson.

Turning to the other conspicuous loss of the year, the Committee recall that it was in the fourth year of Queen Victoria that the Society was first enabled to put at the head of its list of officers the Primate of All England. Archbishops Howley, Sumner, Longley, and Tait all gave the Society valuable help; and Archbishop Benson not less than any of them. His deep interest in its work was repeatedly and signally manifested; and his sympathy, counsel, and co-operation were most highly valued. It is interesting to remember that one of his first acts as Primate was to nominate a C.M.S. missionary, Arthur Poole, to be the first English Bishop in Japan; and one of his last acts was to nominate another C.M.S. missionary, P. K. Fyson, to be one of four bishops who now preside over the English "episcopal jurisdictions" in that empire.

The new Primate.

To-day the Society warmly welcomes, in Archbishop Temple, the sixth Primate to occupy the office of Vice-Patron. The son of a former Governor of Sierra Leone, his Grace has a hereditary link with the Society's oldest Mission; and again and again has he rendered powerful aid to the Missionary cause. Not only, as Bishop of London, has he ordained, and thus (in the ecclesiastical sense) "sent forth" the missionaries, but by his inspiring addresses at great public meetings, at his own ruri-decanal gatherings, and, in the past year, at the Church Congress, he has done much to arouse Christian men to their duty; while his impressive words at the last Valedictory Communion Service at St. Bride's will long be remembered by the missionaries present.

Dr. Temple has succeeded to the See of Canterbury during vacancies in two important dioceses abroad. Bishops Burdon and Ingham have retired after fulfilling respectively the longest episcopate in China, and the longest in Tropical Africa. The former was for forty-four years on the C.M.S. roll, and the latter, though never actually on it, has been almost as closely identified with the Society. His Grace, like his predecessor, has commenced his primacy by nominating a C.M.S. missionary to a bishopric. The Bishop-designate of Sierra Leone, Canon Taylor Smith, will be the thirty-sixth member of the Society's missionary staff raised to the Episcopate, including three Africans. Mr. Fyson was the thirty-fourth; the thirty-fifth was Dean Grisdale, of Rupert's Land, now Bishop of Qu'Appelle. New bishops.

Some of the most interesting incidents of the year belong to the work of Bishops connected with the Society. For example, Bishop Tugwell's visit to Hausaland; his recent stirring appeal for a great Mission in that country, now more fully opened to the Gospel by Sir George Goldie's deliverance of its people from their Fulah oppressors; his happy intercourse with the Delta Pastorate, resulting in the approval of a satisfactory constitution for its government, and in the reappearance of the names of its clergy on the C.M.S. roll; also his visit with Mr. Wilkinson to the West Indies, which the Committee trust will prove to be the means of calling forth recruits from those islands for the Mission-field: Bishop Tucker's visitation of the Uganda Mission, during which he confirmed two thousand candidates, ordained five deacons, and licensed twenty-two lay readers; his baptism of the King of Toro, and his visit to that distant outpost on the slopes of Stanley's great mountain, Ruwenzori, where the C.M.S. Mission nearly touches the Congo Free State, thus bringing Krapf's grand vision of a chain of Missions across Africa within range of early realization; also his ordination of the first of the Frere Town liberated slaves deemed worthy of the privilege: Bishop Stuart's journeys in Persia, and to Baghdad, and his resourceful readiness in seizing every opportunity to preach the Gospel to the Persians: Bishop Hodges' remarkable "T.Y.E." measures in Travancore, presently to be noticed: Bishop Burdon's farewell visitation of the Fuh-Kien Mission, in a year marked by the largest number of adult baptisms on record—no less than 753—and his confirmation of 629 Chinese Christians: Bishop Cassels' journeys in Si-chuan, and his confirming the first little band of converts in the Society's Mission there: the hearty welcome of Bishop Fyson by the Japanese Christians as one known to them for twenty years: and several interesting features in the year's work of Bishops Phillips and Work of bishops in the year.

Oluwole, especially the admission by the latter to priests' orders of three white brethren on the Niger.

Other events abroad.

Among other events of the year have been the Special Missions of Mr. Thwaites and Mr. Standen in the Telugu country and Bengal, and of Mr. Bacheler Russell in Ceylon and Travancore, concerning all which independent reports speak of unmistakable tokens of deep and real blessing; similar Missions conducted at Agra and Peshawar by a devoted Native clergyman, the Rev. Ihsan Ullah; the continuation of the remarkable tour round the world of Mr. Mott, of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, whose meetings at several of the Society's stations have made a deep impression, especially at Fuh-chow, where 570 Christian Chinese students attended; the intrepid journeys in all parts of Eastern Asia of Mrs. Isabella Bishop, whom the Committee rejoice to welcome in this Hall to-day, and whose voice is now again to be uplifted in behalf of the millions still without Christ; the important visit of Mr. Baylis to Sierra Leone, the first paid by a C.M.S. Secretary to Tropical Africa since that of Edward Bickersteth in 1816; the first journey of a missionary party on a small section of the Uganda railway; the successful placing of the Stanley and Record steamer on the Victoria Nyanza; the issue by the Bible Society of the entire Word of God in the language of Uganda, the fruit, in the main, of Mr. Pilkington's untiring labours; the resumption of women's work in the interior of the Fuh-Kien Province, and especially the return thither of Miss Codrington, of the C.E.Z.M.S., the one sister surviving of the band massacred at Hwa-sang; the death of the Bhoi Baba, the Gond chieftain who was the first-fruits of his nation to Christ twelve years ago; the baptism at Nasik of Professor Gopal Chandra Shastri, M.A., a distinguished Oriental scholar and Government official, who is now studying in the Madras Divinity School, and who is only the most conspicuous of many Indian converts, Brahmans, Moslems, and others, brought to Christ during the year; the growth of the Society's Medical Missions, forty-four qualified medical missionaries being now on the staff; the ordinations on Trinity Sunday, when at Lagos, at Onitsha, at Mengo, at Colombo, at Fuh-chow, Native Christian men were receiving deacons' or priests' orders simultaneously with the Society's students at home, one of whom—as has now been the case for some years in succession—read the Gospel at St. Paul's Cathedral. Lastly, among the events of the year, though of a sadly different character, must be mentioned the disastrous visitations of famine and plague in India. The missionary brethren, in their limited spheres, are labouring hard to relieve suffering, and especially to rescue the orphan children; and the Committee are thankful to have been able to remit, from the balance of a former famine fund, and from contributions sent to them in the last three or four months, about £13,000 for these purposes.

A needed warning.

Amid so much that calls for thanksgiving, it would be wrong to omit all reference to causes of anxiety. The year has been unusually free from alarming or disappointing incidents; but the Committee must remind their friends that it is the prosperous Missions that are most beset by the wiles of the great Enemy of souls. Wherever there is a large and increasing Christian population, as in Tinnevelly, in Fuh-Kien, in Uganda, there merely nominal Christianity is sure to abound, with its accompaniments of inconsistencies, scandals, apostacies, and continuance of heathenish habits of thought and life. All Church history teaches the same lesson, and modern Mission-fields are no exception. The Committee desire especially to warn those who rightly rejoice in the Lord's wonderful work in Uganda against ignoring the inevitable results of so rapid a national movement. When they hear, as they will hear, of falls and failures, let them not be discouraged, but resort with more earnestness than ever to the Throne of Grace, to obtain mercy for the African Christians, and grace to help them in their time of need.

Baptisms.

The number of adult baptisms in the year, 7,700, is the largest on record, and, for the first time since statistics were issued, they just exceed the baptisms of the children of Christian parents. This is due to a further great ingathering in Uganda, where 3,751 adults were admitted to the Church.

Events at home.

Among events of interest at home, the Committee would mention with especial pleasure the continued growth of missionary zeal in the Church of Ireland; the adoption by the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission Committee of the Fuh-ning District in the north-east of the Province as their own field, to be supplied by them with both ordained and medical men and ladies; the meeting of the Gleaners' Union at Manchester, and of the Younger Clergy Union Federation at Birmingham; many admirable measures by which the Women's Department, as yet only a year and a half old, is making its influence felt all over the country; the growth of the Medical Mission Auxiliary, and the issue of its new periodical, Mercy and Truth; fresh work among children, especially the striking children's gatherings at Exeter Hall; the Missionary Missions held in several towns and parishes with marked spiritual blessing; the great Missionary Exhibitions at Birmingham and Bristol, under the skilful generalship of Mr. Malaher, of the Missionary Leaves Association; and the opening of the Hannington Memorial Hall at Oxford. The Foreign Mission sessions at the Shrewsbury Church Congress, the endorsement of the Three Years' Enterprise by the Board of Missions of the Province of Canterbury, and the unanimous adoption by the Canterbury House of Laymen of strongly-worded resolutions on the duty of the Church to evangelize the world, are all signs that Churchmen are at last beginning to awake, as a body, to the claims upon them of their Divine Master; and the inclusion of the subject, for the first time, in the programme of the Lambeth Conference will, the Committee trust, evoke from the assembled Bishops a stirring call to the entire Anglican Communion.

The whole Society has been gratified by the appointment of its President to a seat on Her Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council. The honour is doubtless due to Sir John Kennaway's position in Parliament, and to the respect in which he is held by all parties there; but it is his own desire to regard it as also a recognition of the importance of the Missionary interests with which he is so closely connected.

The Three Years' Enterprise.

Fourteen months ago the Committee invited their friends to join in a Three Years' Enterprise, in view of the coming Centenary, with the express purpose, not of glorifying the Society, but of rousing its members, and Christian people generally, to the great work for which the Society is only one of many instruments—the work of extending His kingdom Who "shall reign for ever and ever." In connexion with this movement many papers have been issued, designed to bring the missionary cause before different sections of the community, young and old, rich and poor. A special Monthly Letter has been sent on application to the conductors of some 1,600 prayer-meetings, and circulated also in other ways. Conferences have been held in many of the chief centres, and gatherings of various kinds have been arranged. The most marked immediate result has been the adoption of the new missionaries of 1896 by individual friends or local unions or parishes, thus providing for their personal allowances by special additional contributions. Three months after the issue of the Committee's circular in which the extension of this plan of "substitutes for service," or "own missionaries," was suggested, the July C.M. Intelligencer announced that nine of the year's recruits had been adopted; and it was added, "Cannot all the rest be be taken up at once?" It was a bold question, and a full response seemed too much to hope for; yet within three months, and before the Valedictory Meetings, more than the whole number had been asked for, and three or four of the previous year's party had to be allotted. Moreover, there are already several allotments of missionaries going out next autumn; and the Committee trust that the system is as yet only at its commencement. It seems almost ungracious to remind friends that every new missionary involves the Society in future expense far beyond the amount of these special contributions, as his work and its needs grow, so that it will be as necessary as ever to sustain and to increase the general undesignated funds; and the Committee desire only to render unfeigned praise to God for the ready liberality manifested by so many of His people.

The T.Y.E. abroad.

But the response to the Three Years' Enterprise appeal has been still more encouraging abroad. Its reception by the Native Churches is an especial cause for thankfulness and hope. At various stations in West Africa it has been taken up heartily, with a view to more complete self-support and more active evangelization. At Devotional Conferences and Quiet Days in Japan and in Mauritius it has been the subject of special prayer. From China and from Ceylon come earnest letters on the subject. At the Maori College at Te Aute, in New Zealand, a young Maori tutor wrote of it in the college magazine. At various stations in India the Native congregations have made special collections. In the Ellore district new churches and prayer-houses are to be built, and named "Jubilee," "because that word is more easily rendered in the Telugu language than 'Centenary.'" In Travancore, Bishop Hodges brought the Enterprise before the Diocesan Conference, when several Native clergymen and laymen read papers or spoke on the subject, and two of the clergy were sent round the whole diocese to hold meetings and stir up the Christians to more active and self-sacrificing efforts for the spread of the Gospel. "The T.Y.E.," writes Mr. Richards, "has stirred the people up from the depths, quite beyond expectation." From the Christian villages of Tinnevelly the Native pastors write that "the T.Y.E. is the absorbing question of the day." Their letters are of deep interest. In some congregations every member has undertaken to go out preaching on one, two, three, or four Sundays in each month; in others it has been resolved, after the Centenary, to relieve the Society of all charge for the repairs of churches. But most striking of all has been the movement at Madras. On October 27th, one of the largest meetings ever known in the city was held, 2,000 Native Christians being present, and the Bishops of Calcutta, Madras, Tinnevelly, and Travancore. All four Bishops addressed the meeting in English, and an S.P.G. Native clergyman and a C.M.S. Native layman in Tamil. "Never before," writes a C.M.S. Native clergyman, "has Madras witnessed a sight like that. It was, as some English friends remarked, an Exeter Hall meeting in India." He significantly adds that an English lady who was present was totally unaware before that there were any Missions at all in Madras! What is the result? Voluntary preaching, visiting, tract-distributing, prayer-meetings, have all multiplied. Papers similar to those given out in Exeter Hall last year were distributed, but with a far larger response. Very few of the promises sent in are for less than a month's income for the C.M.S. Centenary Funds. Let it be borne in mind that these movements abroad, and others not now mentioned, are all spontaneous. The Committee sent out no instructions whatever. The people have read the Society's papers, and the Lord has touched their hearts. May He now give clergy and laity at home grace to follow their example!

T.Y.E. Review. The Three Years' Enterprise has a second purpose, viz., a comprehensive review of the Society's position and methods at home and abroad; and in this work, in its various departments, twelve small special Committees of Inquiry are engaged, upon which some friends of the Society who are not ordinarily able to take part in its administration are most kindly serving. It is confidently hoped that the extensive inquiries which they are prosecuting may supply such information as may either confirm the Committee in their existing policy and practice, or suggest such modifications as may be for the lasting benefit of the work. The Committee desire that all may be done in the spirit of one missionary's words, "I want the three years to be a time of both review and advance to my own soul and to my own work"; and in the spirit of another missionary's suggestion that, as the altar and the wood have been preparing for ninety-seven years, our united prayer, all round the world, should now be for the fire from Heaven, the power of the Holy Ghost.

Supply of men. For the supply, by the bounty of a gracious God, of the two great needs of the Society, men and money, the Committee again render unfeigned thanksgiving. The number of missionaries accepted for service (not including candidates for training, but including ten from the Colonies or engaged in the field) has been eighty-five, viz., forty-seven men and thirty-eight women. Of the former, twenty-five were clergymen and seven medical men. Twenty were University graduates. This total, indeed, is four less than that of last year; but the total of money gifts is very much larger than ever before. The financial accounts present, indeed, very notable features. (1) The Receipts of the year from all sources under the heads of General and Appropriated Funds, but excluding Special Funds not available for the Society's general purposes, amount to £297,626, thus not only exceeding those of any former year by £25,000, but actually exceeding the aggregate of General and Special Funds together in any former year, even the years of the William Charles Jones gifts. (2) The General Contributions under the old heads of Associations, Benefactions, Subscriptions, &c., but excluding Legacies, exceed all previous years by £13,668, thus just balancing a diminution in Legacies of £13,366. (3) The Associations have not only continued to increase their ordinary contributions steadily, sending £5,000 more than ever before, but have, in addition, sent up a large share of the Appropriated Contributions. (4) For these Appropriated Funds, including the Three Years' Enterprise, no less than £59,937 has been received, almost all of which is for purposes for which the General Funds would otherwise be responsible, although a large part is not applicable to the past year's expenditure, but consists virtually of gifts in advance towards the expenditure now being incurred. (5) Out of these Appropriated Funds,* and the balances on their account from preceding years, no less than £34,500 is still in hand and carried forward to the current year. (6) If to the year's receipts, as already stated, the receipts for Special Funds (£43,769) be added, which include an investment of £29,000, the gift of one warm friend, and £7,900 for the Indian Famine, the total amount contributed to the Society's administration within the year is no less than £341,400. (7) On the other hand, the expenditure has risen to £297,260. Yet even this large sum would have been covered by the available Income of the year but for the diminution in Legacies, which is more than equivalent to the excess of Expenditure over Income within the year. That excess was £12,681, which, added to the still outstanding excess of the two preceding years, made an adverse balance of £23,058. The Committee after full consideration of this position have felt able to appropriate towards meeting this balance about £14,000 from various reserve funds and accumulations, without in any way touching the Capital Fund; and they now ask their friends definitely for the remaining £9,000 in special contributions by June 30th next. The Society will then be able to go forward with thankfulness and hope in the prosecution of its great enterprise.

The adverse balance.

The Committee have thus reviewed the year in the briefest and most condensed sentences possible. In the year 1819, when the Society had thirty-seven missionaries in five countries, the Report prepared for the Annual Meeting was cut down so as not to occupy more than two hours in the reading. Nothing could more significantly show the hopelessness of now reporting a year's world-wide work in a short half-hour.

It is, however, less upon the work done than upon the work yet to be done that the Committee would desire the thoughts of the whole Society to be now concentrated. The Church of Christ has yet to awake to a realization of the immensity of the task before it, and also of the indisputable obligation to fulfil it, so far as the Lord shall permit. What is that task? Ideally it is this: to see that not one soul passes into eternity without hearing of the Son of God who came to save men from sin. No lower aim can be justified by anyone who realizes the force of the Lord's command. When the terrible Indian Famine was announced, the object to be aimed at, by general consent, was this: to save every life threatened with starvation, to let not one death occur for lack of strenuous effort to prevent it. That task, alas! has not been fulfilled; but all England feels that every death from famine involves in its measure a confession of failure. Does not, then, the death of every African, or Asiatic, or American, or Polynesian, who dies without hearing of Christ, involve, in a sense, a confession of failure on the part of the Church of Christ? And although the very fact that, during the three hours occupied by this meeting, eight thousand of them die, reminds us that to fulfil the ideal task is not now within our power, the more urgent on this account is the obligation to do all we can for the salvation of every soul yet within reach. It is to the honour of the ardent youthful leaders of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union that they have not shrunk from proclaiming, especially by their inspiring appeal to the Church of Christ in Britain, which the Archbishop of Canterbury has undertaken to present to the Lambeth Conference, the duty of the Church to aim at nothing less than "the Evangelization of the World in this Generation."

The S.V.M.U. Watch-word.

The Committee of the Church Missionary Society pray that the Lord Who has so richly blessed its poor and imperfect efforts during ninety-eight years may enable it, as its Centenary approaches, to gird itself to its own share in the work of speedy, strenuous, world-wide evangelization. This means doubled, trebled, quadrupled offers of service. Sorely are they needed now. More and more sorely will they be needed as the extension goes on which is our plain duty, and from which we cannot shrink without sin against God. And it means doubled, trebled, quadrupled contributions. These, most surely, God will give us when they are needed. We have rejoiced to see half-a-million of money raised in four months for the bodily needs of the population of one dependency of the Empire. Why, then, should a deficiency of a few thousand pounds frighten the servants of the living God, who are engaged in supplying what, in their heart of hearts, they know to be the far more urgent spiritual needs of half the population of the globe, from going forward in their work with unfaltering faith and courage? God in His mercy grant to every member of this Society, and to every member of every sister Society in the one grand work, open ears to hear the Divine Voice, and open eyes to see his personal obligation to his crucified and glorified Redeemer. Open doors, into all the world, God has in these latter days given us; and if the Church rise to the height of her great opportunity, she will soon see Heaven open too, and the Angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man. And then His servants who have simply done His bidding and gone on His errands, asking no questions, and seeking nothing but His glory, shall, according to His amazing promise, "sit with Him on His throne," and, with Him, "reign for ever and ever."

Open ears, open eyes, open doors, open Heaven.

Home Operations.

When, in 1796, the Eclectic Society, which met in the vestry of St. John's Chapel, Bedford Row (Mr. Cecil's), and discussed the question proposed by Mr. Simeon, "With what propriety, and in what mode, can a Mission be attempted to the Heathen from the Established Church," the majority of the seventeen members present were not prepared to recommend any immediate measures, for the following reasons: the sanction of the episcopate appeared problematical; it would look like an interference with the S.P.G. and the S.P.C.K.; zealous ministers were wanted at home; the bishops and the S.P.C.K. should be memorialized to take up the work. The apprehensions entertained on the score of episcopal sanction proved to be not unfounded. It was not until 1815 that a bishop accepted the office of Vice-President of the Society, and 1841 when an archbishop became a Vice-Patron. The Society now numbers 116 of the home bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland among its V.-P.'s, and for fifty-six years, since Archbishop Howley accepted the office of Vice-Patron, his successors in the Primacy have responded, and that not grudgingly or with cold and formal assent, but with marks of gracious cordiality, to the Committee's respectful invitation to do so in accordance with No. II. of the Society's fundamental Laws and Regulations.

Episcopal Patronage.

A more striking contrast would be difficult to conceive than the cautious and guarded answer made in 1800 by Archbishop Moore to Mr. Wilberforce's request that he would favourably regard the attempt being made by the newly-born Society to extend the benefits of Christianity to the Heathen, and the reply made in 1883 by Archbishop Benson to the deputation which waited upon him to tender the office of Vice-Patron. Archbishop Moore hesitated to express his concurrence, but promised to look on the Society's proceedings with candour. Archbishop Benson said:—

Archbishop Benson and the C.M.S.

I shall not take many words to express what is completely a feeling of thanksgiving to you, from the very bottom of my heart, for the great kindness and honour you have done me this day. If I had any difficulty or hesitation in promising to do my very utmost for the Society I might spend some time in responding; but I trust you will accept from me my humble pledge that I shall be glad to labour for the Society in any way that shall be found useful to it; and I thank you most earnestly for all you have said, and for the prayers you have promised; for if St. Paul said, "Who is sufficient for these things?" you will believe me when I say that it is my daily, hourly thought that nothing can be done by me at all, but that in me something may be done, and that if God has counted me worthy, and has put me in this place, He will find the way in which it can be done. One way in which He must mean me to be useful is by my being useful to this great Society. I thank you very much for all your kind words, and I can assure you that in all things it is my desire to have frank and free intercourse with you, and that it is my earnest hope that you will yourselves enable me to be of the service you desire.

And the promises thus made were most fully redeemed. Both in his public utterances, as preacher of the Society's Anniversary Sermon at St. Bride's Church in 1886, and from Exeter Hall platform in 1883 and 1891, and in his more confidential relations with the Society's executive on occasions when his counsel was sought or his co-operation desired, Archbishop Benson's friendliness never wavered and his sympathy never failed. When divergencies between his views and those of the Committee now and then occurred, his frank outspokenness was not more marked than his generous readiness to consider the arguments on the other side. The news of his sudden death on Sunday, October 11th, during the reading of the Absolution at morning prayers in Hawarden Church, was received with deep sorrow by the Committee. By their instructions the Honorary Clerical Secretary and the Editorial Secretary represented the Society at the funeral at Canterbury on October 16th; and the President, Sir John Kennaway, attended the memorial service at Westminster Abbey.

Archbishop Temple

Archbishop Temple, when Bishop of Exeter, and more especially while Bishop of London, expressed again and again, and proved it unmistakably, his interest in the cause of the evangelization of the world. It may, indeed, be doubted whether the great duty resting on the Church in this land has ever found an exponent at once so perspicuous, so simple, so direct, so penetrating, so convincing as it has in Dr. Temple. He has emphasized, and that not only on occasions when such opinions were expected, four great facts: (1) That Christ died for all mankind; (2) that it is the duty of all who know and believe this truth to tell those who do not know it; (3) that the Church's supineness in undertaking this duty is largely due to the negligence of the clergy to enforce it; (4) that the Church will not lose but will greatly gain by discharging this duty. The Committee, therefore, had no misgiving regarding the reception which awaited their deputation who on January 14th, 1897, waited upon his Grace at 51, Lennox Gardens, his temporary residence, to present an address, with sundry petitions, chiefly that he would do them the honour of accepting the office of Vice-Patron; and they were not mistaken. He reaffirmed his deep interest in missionary work—his "growing interest, becoming stronger the longer I live"—and in accepting the office offered to him he said:—

accepts office of Vice-Patron.

I shall always feel that the work of this Society in the conversion of the Heathen and in the spreading of the Truth over the whole world stands like a bright light in the midst of much else that we see going on around us, and it will be a very great joy to me if on my death-bed I could think that I had in any way furthered the progress of that work.

Between yourselves and me, in the office which I now hold under God, there ought to be very frank and frequent communication. There ought to be such an interest taken in each other's work that we can without any hesitation or difficulty speak openly our minds to one another; and you may be sure that I shall be rejoiced if I can maintain such relations between the Society and the Primate as you have sketched out in the address you have just presented to me. If at any time it is possible for me by advice, or anything more than advice—by action—to help forward your work, I think you will find that there is no lack of desire on my part really to do it. I trust (of course it cannot be for many years that I can stand in the position I hold now), but I trust in these years that remain to me I shall have opportunities of learning your hearts and purposes even better than I know them already; and that I shall have the opportunity of serving you in the discharge of the great duty you have undertaken. If it were possible for me to rouse the Church of England to a sense of the enormous importance of this one work, I should feel that I had done some real service, however small it might be, to the great cause and to the Lord our Master.

Explicit as these words are, the printed page most inadequately conveys the sense and sensations communicated by the human voice giving utterance to the deeper emotions of the heart. To those who heard the Archbishop it was clear that he was expressing, not a passing sentiment suited to the moment, but a desire which possessed his inmost soul.

It is the Society's practice to invite the new Archbishop to take the chair at the first Anniversary Meeting of the Society after his acceptance of the office, the President yielding his place for that occasion. The Archbishop had already booked this as an engagement—the first of the kind he had allowed himself to make—before he was formally requested by the deputation to do so. This engagement the Archbishop fulfilled on May 4th, when he was accorded an enthusiastic reception, and spoke with his accustomed power and earnestness.

Other Prelates and Foreign Missions.

And the attitude of the successive Archbishops of Canterbury may be said to be symptomatic of that of many of the other prelates towards the cause of Foreign Missions. At the Worcester Diocesan Conference the subject was ably discussed, and the Bishop subsequently sent a copy of the papers and speeches to all his clergy, pressing the matter also on their attention in a long letter in which he commented on "the paltry sum" given by English Christians to this object, and pointed out "the melancholy fact that in one quarter of the parishes in England and Wales no attempt is made to interest the people in the subject"; and urged a monthly missionary sermon in each parish by the incumbent without a collection. And he asked:—

Have we, who are appointed to teach and instruct the people committed to our charge, made their duty clear to them? Have we exhorted them as we ought to obey our Lord's command, "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature"? Is not that command as clear and as explicit as the command, "Do this in remembrance of Me"? Do those who insist on obedience to the one command insist on obedience to the other also? Must we not rather deplore the manifest failure here?

The Bishop of Salisbury sent to his clergy a list of Ember Intercessions which he recommended them to use "as a fitting prayer before the sermon, or to be read with other notices during Divine service, and that a copy be placed in the church porch"; the first in the list being: "For missionary efforts of the Church in all lands; that the hearts of God's servants may be moved to increased exertions in the advancement of Christ's Kingdom." The Bishop of Durham, in the course of his Trinity Ordination, asked for prayer on behalf of the Natives of Uganda who were being on that same day admitted to the sacred ministry by Bishop Tucker at Mengo. Very few, if any, of the Bishops but have taken part during the year in the Society's work, by preaching or by presiding at local anniversaries, and speaking in its behalf. The Bishop of Newcastle preached for the Society in Leeds parish church in February, 1897, shortly after an M.P. for a Yorkshire constituency had, on his return from a four months' tour in India, expressed opinions derogatory to missionaries and Mission converts in that country, and naturally his observations attracted much attention in Leeds and throughout the county. The Bishop used the opportunity to give a very different testimony. He was reported to have said:—

Bishop of Newcastle at Leeds.

> He was pleading that day for a great Missionary Society—a Society which was ever striving to maintain the two parallel truths to which he had alluded. It was ever striving to help men to realize that the great magnet of attraction was the personal Saviour, and that those who were to be the agents of that Master must be spiritually-minded men and women, whose hearts had been touched, and who understood what Christ had done for them. He had been privileged in former years to see something of the work of the C.M.S. and its sister Society in India, and he could only say that, having had some knowledge of these Missions, having had the opportunity of visiting most of the Missions in two-thirds of India, and having had the opportunity further of examining and questioning the leading men of that country, he had come back from India after making these most searching inquiries determined to do all he could to aid the work of these two great Societies.

An episcopal speaker at one of the large provincial meetings organized during the year by the S.P.G. Junior Clergy Union, speaking of the change observable in the minds of English people with regard to Foreign Missions, called it "one of the most marvellous transformations he had ever witnessed." The present attitude of the home Episcopate may be regarded as an evidence of such change, but still more as a cause tending powerfully to promote it. In the same light also must be viewed the position given to the subject in the programme of Ruri-decanal gatherings, Diocesan Conferences, and the Church Congress.

A marvellous transformation.

Two whole meetings of the Shrewsbury Church Congress of 1896 were devoted to the subject, and the tone of these meetings was unspeakably more fervent and spiritual than was the case a few years earlier. Formerly, as a frequenter of these annual gatherings remarked, the proceedings were perfunctory and frigid, while at Shrewsbury they had "a strong element of the same spirit of devotion which hallows C.M.S. valedictory meetings." There was a public breakfast on the morning of the day, promoted by the C.M.S. Younger Clergy Federation, at which Chancellor P. V. Smith presided. The *C.M. Intelligencer published papers read by the Bishop of Newcastle, Mr. Eugene Stock, and Mr. Douglas M. Thornton, Educational Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, on "The Necessity of Stirring the Heart and Conscience of the Church to Greater Earnestness in Foreign Missionary Work"; and by the Rev. H. E. Fox and Dr. Charles F. Harford-Battersby on "The Supply and Training of Missionaries."

House of Laymen of Province of Canterbury.

The House of Laymen for the Province of Canterbury supplied in January, 1897, a still more striking evidence than those just alluded to of the altered and improved sentiments of Churchmen towards missionary work. On the motion of the Right Hon. Sir John Kennaway, the Society's President, that House adopted the following resolutions:—

"1. That in view (1) of the Great Commission given to the Church by her Divine Head to evangelize the world; (2) of the long and serious neglect of this Great Commission by the Church; (3) of the fact that after the lapse of nearly nineteen centuries, one-half of the population of the globe is believed never to have heard of Christ; this House is of opinion that the whole Church needs rousing on this question."

"2. That this House observes with satisfaction that the Programme of the Lambeth Conference gives an opportunity for the consideration of this great subject, and respectfully expresses the earnest hope that the Archbishops and Bishops may be led to put forth such an appeal to the whole Anglican Communion as shall deepen in all its members the sense of their obligation to fulfil their Lord's commands."

It was feared that such resolutions would either be objected to as too abstract, or else would be passed sub silentio as a kind of proper thing to do, without any particular manifestation of interest. The event proved very different. They were not passed carelessly, but evidently with a very full understanding of their bearing, and yet unanimously, and with distinct manifestations of approval. They were seconded by Earl Nelson, who is a Vice-President of the S.P.G., and the succeeding speakers were Colonel R. Williams, M.P., Treasurer of the C.M.S.; Mr. Henry Thornton, Treasurer of the Nottingham C.M.S. Association; Mr. J. G. Talbot, M.P., a Vice-President of the S.P.G.; Mr. H. H. Bemrose, M.P., Vice-President of the C.M.S.; and

* C.M. Intelligencer, November, 1896; pages, 837–853.

Mr. Eugene Stock. This was the first time that any Church body had adopted resolutions of so fundamental a character on the Church's duty to evangelize the world. The Church Congress does not pass resolutions; the Convocations have not done so, nor has the Lambeth Conference; but the Archbishop of Canterbury has undertaken to commend the Watchword of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union to the forthcoming Pan-Anglican Conference.

S.V..M.U The Student Volunteer Missionary Union is one of the agencies which has been undoubtedly greatly used of God to stir the hearts and lead to a definite missionary purpose a large number of Christians of the rising generation. During the past five years 1,300 "volunteers" have been enrolled in 100 colleges of the British Isles, of whom over 300 have sailed to various Mission-fields. One feature in the movement is that the home officers from time to time are themselves consecrated to foreign missionary work. The Rev. L. B. Butcher, who was general secretary of the Union for 1895-6, sailed in the autumn to engage in work among the student classes of Bombay, under the C.M.S., and Mr. Frank Anderson, another secretary, went to Bombay with the same purpose, under the auspices of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. John R. Mott, one of the American officers of the Union, returned to the United States at the beginning of 1897 from a tour of some 60,000 miles, which had occupied twenty months, in the course of which he had visited 22 different countries, held meetings and conversed with students in 144 universities, colleges, and schools, held conventions and conferences attended by 5,500 delegates representing 308 institutions of higher learning, and met personally about 1,300 missionaries, representing over 80 different missionary agencies. Among the fruits of the tour 20 new Student Christian Associations or Unions were organized and others reorganized; 505 young men, nearly all students, were led to accept Jesus Christ as their Saviour as a result of evangelistic meetings and personal work, including Buddhists, Hindus, Mohammedans, Confucianists, sceptics, and agnostics; 2,222 students and Christian workers engaged to keep the "Morning Watch"; and 300 students dedicated their lives to Christian work. The remarkable blessing, both at home and abroad, which has marked the Union seemed to justify its leaders in Memorial to the Church of Christ in Great Britain. taking a bold step in the spring of 1897 by issuing "A Memorial to the Church of Christ in Britain," in which, with words of much wisdom, the watchword of the Union, "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation," was explained and commended for adoption by the leaders and members of the Church. The explanation makes it clear that the watchword is not intended as a prediction; on the contrary, it is frankly owned that "with Heathenism so vast and so strongly entrenched the evangelization of the world in this generation is an impossibility, unless the Church ceases to be so engrossed with things of time." It also makes it clear that by "evangelization" is not meant either conversion or "a mere hurried proclamation of the truth of Christ." It is understood as meaning "that the Gospel should be preached intelligibly and intelligently to every soul in such a manner that the responsibility for its acceptance shall no longer rest upon the Christian Church, but upon each man for himself." The memorial was presented to the Committee by the secretaries on April 13th—the day after the Society's 98th birthday—and the following resolution was adopted :—

"That this Committee, rejoicing in the Divine blessing vouchsafed to the S.V.M.U. in its efforts to influence the students of both sexes in Universities and Colleges all round the world, and thanking its leaders warmly for the Memorial now presented, desire to express their hearty concurrence with the Union in setting before themselves and the whole Christian Church the great aim embodied in the watchword of the Union, viz., The Evangelization of the World in this Generation. The policy of the Church Missionary Society has all along been based upon what has well been called the Command of commands, which makes any limitation of such an aim impossible ; and the Committee earnestly desire, by the help of God, so to direct all their plans that the Society may take its full share in the furtherance of the Lord's great purposes of mercy to the world."

Conventions.

The association of the missionary call with the call to personal holiness at the numerous conventions held in many parts of the country is increasingly the rule. At Cheltenham, for example, in October a "Three days' Conference" for mutual enlightenment and exhortation regarding Christian responsibility to the Heathen, and for prayer, was held under the presidency of General Hatt Noble, a member of the C.M.S. Committee; and at Manchester in the following month a "Missionary Day" was held in the Strangeways Conference Hall, commencing with a public breakfast, at which the Bishop of Manchester spoke. But the Keswick Convention, which was probably the first to recognize that "Consecration and the evangelization of the world should go together," holds undoubtedly the premier position among such gatherings in respect to direct helpfulness of the missionary cause. It was attended in July, 1896, by at least 250 missionaries at home on furlough or sick-leave, and accepted candidates shortly going forth to the field.

C.M.S. policy of faith and progress —a decade's experience.

It would not be difficult to trace a connexion between the Keswick Convention, through leading members of the C.M.S. Committee who frequent its gatherings, and some of the forward movements of the Society in recent years, and, in particular, the policy of accepting and sending forth all suitable candidates for missionary work. It is now ten years since this policy was adopted by the Committee, and a brief review of the salient facts is on that account opportune. The number of missionaries sent out by the Society between 1837 and 1887, during the first fifty years of Queen Victoria's reign, was 900, a yearly average of eighteen; the average during the last ten of those fifty years being twenty-three. The number sent out between 1887 and 1897, between Her Majesty's Jubilee and her Diamond Jubilee, was 666, a yearly average of sixty-six. On the 1st June, 1887, there were on the list 247 ordained missionaries, 40 laymen, and 22 women (not including wives). On the 1st June, 1897, there were 376 ordained missionaries, 110 laymen, and 244 women.* The advance in the aggregate number during the ten years has exceeded by 114 that of the first 88 years of the Society's history, a truly wonderful experience, for which the Committee have again and again rendered praise to God.

Annual expenditure increased by £90,000.

From the financial point of view also the review is not less marvellous. The ordinary expenditure to be met in the year 1886-7 amounted to £208,563; in the past year it amounted to £297,261. The year before 1886-7 there had been a deficit of over £7,000, and there were those who supposed that the high-water mark of giving for the cause by the Society's constituency had been attained. If it could then have been foreseen that the financial effect of the increase which was observed in the offers for service would be to send up the expenditure at an accelerating rate which would amount in ten years to an annual increase of £90,000, how many of the Society's friends would have had faith enough to believe the increased expenditure would or could be met? And what now are the facts? The financial year beginning April 1st, 1887, started with a balance of £10,000 in the Contingency Fund; the financial year commencing April 1st, 1897, has no balance in the Contingency Fund, but has on the contrary an adverse balance of £23,058, the accumulated deficits of the three years 1895, 6, and 7. Hence at a cursory glance it might seem that after ten years of unexampled progress in the work and in the number of agents and inquirers, and consequently in the expenditure, the Society is worse off in its cash balance by £33,000. But before such a conclusion is drawn four facts must be taken into account. The first is that during these ten years the Committee have been enabled, by means of a large legacy—that of the Rev. J. Spurrell—which it was open to them to use to meet current expenditure, to replace securities which had been temporarily used to the value of £20,000, and thus to save the interest in perpetuity. The second is that a balance of £16,500 remains in hand of a further sum of

* See Statistical View, pages xviii and xix, for exact figures. Those pages go to press at the latest possible date in order to have the figures and the list as nearly accurate as is attainable.

£20,000 bequeathed by the same friend to be applied to extension of missionary work in China. The third is that during the same period the Society has received a generous anonymous gift of valuable stock, worth close upon £30,000, which at the Committee's discretion may be realized upon the donor's decease, and which meantime produces an income of over £1,000 a year. And the fourth fact is that while in 1887 there was a sum of £18,000 in an "Extension Fund," that fund is now merged in Appropriated Contributions, in which a sum of £34,500 was in hand as balance on April 1st. It is on the whole, therefore, abundantly clear that the Society, after meeting all its enhanced liabilities, is not in a worse, but is relatively in a better—a much better—financial position than it was ten years ago.

Society in a better financial position.

The financial statement of the year under review affords abundant grounds for thankfulness. But before these are pointed out, it will be well to indicate the expenditure of the year and the funds available to meet it, and to explain the line of action which the Committee have adopted in dealing with the deficit above mentioned:—

The year began with a deficit of		£17,068
The Expenditure of the year was		297,261
Making a total to be met of		£314,329
The funds applicable to this Expenditure have been:—
(a) Contributions for the Deficit of 1895–6 ...	£6,691
(b) General Contributions	230,997
(c) Appropriated Contributions (including balances of previous years), applicable to this year's expenditure	53,499
(d) Drawn from Contingency Fund	84
Leaving an adverse balance on March 31st, 1897, of		£23,058

In view of the serious dimensions of the deficit, the Committee instituted a careful scrutiny into the reserve funds at their disposal in order to discover whether any of them could be rightly applied to reduce this incubus upon the present year's account. They found themselves able to apply £14,000 to this object, thus reducing the adverse balance to about £9,000. The £14,000 was obtained from four different funds within the Committee's control, £10,000 being taken from the balance of £16,500 (alluded to above) from the Spurrell Legacy of 1892. This was specially designated by the testator for extension work in China, and the Committee decided at the time to draw from it £2,500 a year towards meeting the expenditure in that country. But the yearly cost of the Society's Missions in China has increased during the last five years much beyond that sum, and therefore the Committee felt justified in taking from the balance an amount in some measure commensurate with that increase. The Committee thereupon made an appeal for special offerings to wipe off the remainder of the deficit before the end of June.

The year's accounts. In the year's accounts the following features must be noticed: (1) That the expenditure was nearly £18,000 in excess of that of the previous year. (2) That notwithstanding this large increase of expenditure, the deficit on the year's account was only £12,681, the remainder of the deficit being the balance of the previous two years' deficits. (3) That if legacies had maintained the average level of the previous three years, there would have been a small balance instead of a deficit on the year. Legacies, as a matter of fact, are £13,366 less than the previous year, and over £17,000 less than they stood in the years 1893–4 and 1894–5. In other words, the contributions of living friends are keeping up with the accelerated pace in the spending departments—a fact of real and strong encouragement. (4) The Associations have sent to the General Fund £164,486, an increase of over £5,000 on the previous year; and this besides £20,864 sent by the Associations as "Appropriated Contributions" (compared with £8,868 the previous year), and £4,500 for the Society's Indian Famine Fund. (5) Benefactions are £33,970, an increase of £6,500.

Appropriated contributions. It will be observed how large and how increasing a proportion of the funds applicable to meet the year's expenditure is derived from "Appropriated Contributions," viz., £53,499 out of £291,271, considerably over one-sixth. In 1893–4 it was about one-twentieth, in 1894–5 one-twelfth, in 1895–6 one-eighth. Moreover, balances are carried forward under this head amounting to £34,500, as compared with £24,912 carried forward on April 1st, 1896.

Year's receipts largest hitherto recorded. It remains to add a few words on the receipts of the year, which must be distinguished from the sum available to meet the year's expenditure. The latter is made up in part of former years' balances, and the former includes balances which are carried forward. The total sum which came to the Society's treasury during the year was £341,395, larger by £44,000 than was received in any previous year. This includes the gift referred to above of valuable stock approximating £30,000, which was presented by an anonymous friend through the Rev. R. B. Ransford, Vicar of St. Paul's, Penge. The donor stipulated that during his lifetime only the income from the stock should be spent. It is therefore included in the General Account of Receipts and Payments for the Year under "Special Funds not available for ordinary purposes." So also is a sum of £7,900 given for the Indian Famine Fund. These, with other receipts of a like character, make up a total under this head of £43,769. Subtracting this from the total receipts, there remains £297,625, the amount available for ordinary purposes (though not all available during the late financial year), a sum not only the largest ever received for ordinary purposes, but actually larger than the gross total ever before received in one year. The largest previous gross income was in 1882–3, when the gift of £72,000 from Mr. William Charles Jones made the total reach a sum of £297,424, exactly £200 less than the income now acknowledged for ordinary purposes. It need not be said that the monthly statements of receipts and expenditure made to the Committee by the Lay Secretary were scanned with the deepest interest, and gave frequent occasion for prayer. In February, after the statement of January 31st had been made, and a deficit of some £30,000 appeared, humanly speaking, probable, two members of Committee, a lay and a clerical, led the Committee in fervent prayer. Special prayer was offered daily during the month of March at the C.M. House both at 9.50–10 A.M., when the house is opened daily with prayer, and at all meetings of Committees and Sub-Committees. Naturally, therefore, the first impulse, when the main results of the year's finances were announced to the Committee on April 13th, was to unite in hearty thanksgivings. God had wonderfully answered prayer. There was a serious deficit, but there were also handsome balances, and the latter exceeded the former by £11,000.

Support of "Own Missionaries.'

A considerable proportion of these balances have to do with a feature of immense interest in the year's experiences. It will not escape observation that the total ordinary receipts of the year were in excess of the total payments by some £350. When in June, 1896, the Committee faced the Society's growing liabilities in the light of the joint report presented as usual at that period of the year by the Estimates and Funds Committees, a report which anticipated, from an actuarial point of view, a deficit at the year's close of at least £33,000, they passed a resolution from which the following sentences are quoted:—

> The Committee render humble and hearty thanks to Almighty God for His wonderful blessing to the Society during the past few years, and the progress made both at home and abroad; and the Committee pray that grace may be vouchsafed to them to place unbounded trust in the power and goodness of Him Who has done such great things for them.
> The Committee therefore earnestly appeal to all their friends to be instant in prayer, that the Society may be rightly guided in the measures, both of economy and of extension, necessary in dealing with such a position as this, and that, if it be the will of God, He will incline His people to come forward at once with large and liberal special offerings and increased regular subscriptions, both to equalize the present accounts and to maintain the missionaries going forth in the ensuing autumn; and in particular, if it be in accordance with His will, to cause special contributions to be given for the maintenance of every one of the new missionaries.

"Special contributions for the maintenance of every one of the new missionaries." When the Minute closing with these words was passed it was not known to the Committee that more than nine of the missionaries who were to sail in the forthcoming autumn had been provided for by special gifts.

Autumn reinforcements specially maintained.

The August C.M. Intelligencer gave a list of the year's reinforcements so far as was known on July 14th, in five sections: Seven honorary; thirty had been allotted to supporters; seven were under offer to supporters; five were being sent out by Colonial Associations; and twenty-eight had at the above date not been allotted. In the middle of August the twenty-eight were reduced to fifteen; and on the day of the Valedictory Meeting the Honorary Clerical Secretary had the joy of announcing that for "every one of the new missionaries"—as the Committee had diffidently ventured to suggest four months before—offers of support had been received, and there were in fact a few of such offers which had to be allocated to missionaries already on the staff. This fact rendered the Valedictory Dismissal of 1896 unique in the Society's past history. It was manifest that the idea had taken hold and was spreading—the idea that it is quite within the compass of what is possible and feasible for a parish to support a missionary as an extra thing without diminishing (on the contrary, while continuing to increase) the measure of its ordinary support by collections, subscriptions, boxes, and sales of work.

Associations, &c., supporting missionaries.

The following is a list of the Associations, Parishes, &c., supporting or partly supporting missionaries, as will be found mentioned in the list of missionaries on pages xx to xlv; in addition to these there are 76 individual or family supporters of a missionary; there are also 29 supported by the Colonial Associations; and 78 are honorary, or partly honorary:—

Cautions regarding Appropriated Contributions.

Two cautions have been expressed and need to be borne in mind regarding these and all other appropriated contributions. It is most desirable and important for the donors' sakes that these gifts should be over and above and not in lieu of those to the General Fund. It is not good for a parish to concentrate its sympathies on one man, for it tends to substitute interest in an individual for loyalty to Christ in obeying His last command. Then it is no less desirable and important for the Society's sake. It would be an error to suppose that the sum contributed for a missionary's support—£100 or any similar sum—covers the whole cost of such missionary. In many cases no more than the personal allowances made in rupees or dollars are thus covered, leaving the cost of training, outfit, passage expenses, house rent, medical and furlough charges to be borne by the General Fund.

Three Years' Enterprise.

The adoption on so extensive a scale of "Own Missionaries" is a fruit of the Three Years' Enterprise. At the Anniversary Meeting on May 5th, 1896, a paper containing the following questions was distributed:—

Committee's appeal in May, 1896.

Will you send out and maintain (so long as God enables you) one or more of this year's new missionaries? (Minimum £100 a year each.)
Or, if unable to do this, will you undertake to raise such a sum?
Will you subscribe £1 a month extra towards this object?
Or 1s. every Sunday?
Or what other definite sum weekly or monthly?
Would you prefer to give annually £ for three years?
Would you prefer to promise £ as a donation now?

The distribution was made at an early part of the proceedings. Immediately after the President's address, a brief statement was made to the meeting to the effect that the Committee had resolved, rather than make a special appeal to meet the deficit, to invite the Society's friends to contribute special subscriptions for the sending out of the new missionaries during the next three years, and the scope of a paper which would be distributed through the hall was explained. The Rev. G. K. Baskerville then led the meeting in solemn prayer, after which, during the singing of Bishop Wordsworth's familiar hymn, "O Lord of heaven, and earth, and sea," the paper in question was handed round by the stewards. Within a fortnight two hundred and fourteen of these papers were returned to the C.M. House. Thereon seven individuals undertook to support a missionary, 207 made promises of extra yearly, monthly, or weekly subscriptions, amounting to about £1,600 a year, and donations were promised amounting to £1,700. One clergyman, in returning his paper, stated that the ordinary C.M.S. collection at his church on the Sunday after the Society's Anniversary was £100 more than the preceding year, and that, although his congregation had already its own missionary in the field, it was hoped to send an additional £200 a year for three years. He added: "We must expect great things. There are tides in the Church as well as in the world, and we do well to cry, 'Roll on! roll on!' till the whole world is touched by God in His saving and sanctifying power." The same papers were widely distributed at local anniversary meetings. The sums received in cash during the year in direct connexion with the T.Y.E.—as the Three Years' Enterprise came to be called within a few days of its inception—was £20,572. Birthday offerings of one shilling were invited on the Society's birthday, April 12th, 1897, when the second year of the T.Y.E. commenced, and 2,254 responded with sums which amounted to £1,089 19*s.* 3*d.*

T.Y.E. Committees.

A large and influential T.Y.E. Committee was appointed, which resolved itself into four sub-committees. One of these is for Review, and has the Rev. J. E. Padfield as its secretary; a second is for Advance, with the Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard as secretary; a third for special literature in connexion with the "Enterprise," with Mr. E. M. Anderson as secretary; and the fourth for promoting new efforts to enlist the interest of the young, Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby being secretary.

The work of the Review Sub-committee during the past year was mainly that of collecting information. As many as twelve sub-sectional committees were formed to take up the several branches and departments of the work abroad and at home; numerous meetings were held, many missionaries and others were interviewed, papers of questions were drawn up and circulated among those capable of affording information or entitled to express their opinions.

The energies of the Advance Sub-committee were heartily thrown into all the existing channels and modes of creating and deepening a missionary spirit among all classes of the community. Scarcely any efforts of this nature throughout the year but have felt the influence and had the co-operation of Mr. Sheppard and the active members of his Committee. There were, however, some special features in their work, among which may be mentioned the following:—Some forty visiting commissions were held in different parts of the country, besides a number of conferences of a less formal character. One result of these has been the formation of local T.Y.E. Committees, which are in direct communication with Salisbury Square. There have been registered 1,623 missionary prayer-meetings, and to these 2,500 copies of a Monthly Letter from the secretaries of the Society are sent month by month. Numerous special publications, authorized by the T.Y.E. Literature Sub-committee, have been issued, and about one and a quarter million copies of these have been distributed. In one parish the result of distributing 500 copies of "Missionary Collects" was stated to be that family prayer was commenced in fifty-two households which had previously not engaged in daily united prayer. For the first time in the Society's history a central juvenile meeting on a large scale, organized from headquarters, was held on Saturday, October 24th, 1896, in Exeter Hall, for Sunday-school children in and around London. The proposal to hold it originated with the T.Y.E. Sub-committee for Juvenile Work, and the arrangements were jointly made by the Secretary of that Sub-committee, Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby, and by the secretary of the London Lay Workers' Union, Mr. T. G. Hughes. Bishop Tugwell, of Western Equatorial Africa, presided. The effort was attended with entire success. Hymn sheets with music had been circulated beforehand, giving opportunities for practising the hymns; printed instructions were sent to all adults responsible for conducting parties of children, explaining how to reach and leave the hall and giving details of the conduct of the meeting. To these and similar excellent arrangements it was doubtless due, under God, that children to the number of 3,000, from 140 parishes, assembled and dispersed without confusion and without mishap. The entire success of this experiment bore speedy fruit, inasmuch as similar meetings were held in other places, Manchester, Bristol, and Stratford. The Town Hall in the last-named place was filled, in March, 1897, with 1,200 children. On April 24th a meeting for children who do not attend National Elementary Schools was held at Exeter Hall.

Central Juvenile Meetings.

The London Lay Workers' Union maintains the interest of the members in its meetings at the C.M. House by a constantly varying and unfailingly attractive programme. In November, for example, two meetings were held, at one of which Sir Charles Elliott gave an account of the people, religions, and Mission-work in Bengal; and at the other there were given two "criticism addresses," one on "A Business Man's Missionary Duties," and the other on "Ceylon," suitable for children. A course of lectures on Hinduism was delivered by the Rev. J. E. Padfield. A "Quiet Day" for the members of the Union and for those of various Missionary Bands was conducted by the Rev. Evan Hopkins on November 28th in All Souls' Church, Langham Place, at which about 250 were present. This was an excellent preparation for the work of the following Sunday (Advent Sunday), when upwards of 360 Sunday-school addresses were delivered in various parishes of London and suburbs.

The Federation of the Younger Clergy Unions held a Conference of Clergy at Sion College on the afternoon of the Society's Anniversary, May 5th, 1896; and the first annual gathering of the Federation was held at Birmingham on June 18th, when it was reported that new branches of the Union had been formed in eight towns, and one had been revived chiefly through the influence of the Federation. One of these new branches is at Bath, and the Bishop of Bath and Wells is the President. It has been already mentioned above that the Federation held a public breakfast at Shrewsbury on October 8th, on the occasion of the Church Congress. At the annual meeting of the London Y.C.U. at the C.M. House, on October 19th, the address to the members was given by the Bishop of Ripon, and was subsequently published in the C.M. Intelligencer for February, 1897. In the same month, at a meeting of the Liverpool Y.C.U., one of the members, who sailed for Bengal shortly afterwards, gave an address on "Why I offered myself as a Candidate for Foreign Service," and it was announced that two other offers of service from members had been or were about to be made. The members of the Belfast Y.C.U. agreed to hold meetings at various seaside resorts during the summer months.

Younger Clergy Unions.

A number of delegates of Ladies' Unions, representing the Bradford, East Herts, Huddersfield, Liverpool, London, Norfolk, Manchester, Peterborough, Sheffield, and York Unions, met at the C.M. House on January 27th, 1897, to discuss and adopt a constitution and rules for a Federation of Ladies' Unions. Mrs. Faithfull, wife of the Rev. J. A. Faithfull, Vicar of St. Mary Magdalene, Holloway, was elected honorary secretary. The London L.U. invited Sunday-school teachers from several districts of London to tea, exhibition of missionary curios, and meeting at the C.M. House during the winter; and on one occasion 170 lady clerks employed at the General Post Office attended a missionary "At Home." A Girls' Central Band, consisting of representatives of thirteen Young Ladies' Missionary Bands in and near London, was formed in November, 1896, under the presidency of Mrs. H. Percy Grubb and in connexion with the Women's Department, and monthly meetings were held at the Ladies' Unions.

C.M. House. The Women's Department organized and sent deputations to 400 meetings in various parts of the country, and also conducted meetings in 150 schools, in the majority of which girl secretaries were appointed through whom 3,200 copies of a Terminal letter were circulated each term. The ladies co-operated in 26 of the T.Y.E. commissions, and T.Y.E. correspondents have been appointed in several counties. Women's Department.

The local officers and members of the above Unions, and in some instances the ladies of the Women's Department, gave much assistance at the Missionary Missions, in which the year 1896 saw a remarkable development. During the previous year only seven such Missions were held, whereas during 1896 that number was nearly quadrupled, no less than 24 taking place. Usually these Missions lasted a week, and the programme consisted of a daily prayer-meeting, Bible-reading, and evening service with after-meeting throughout the week, with special services on the Sundays. At Belfast, in October, twenty-one parishes joined in the movement; they were divided into ten sections, to each of which a Missioner was assigned, and on the two closing days all combined in large central meetings. Such crowds had only once before—when Bishop Tucker visited Belfast—been seen at missionary gatherings in the city. One wrote, "The opening-up of the Scriptures during the Mission was to many a subject of wonder and delight, and a means of great blessing." Some of the Missioners in this instance were local men. At St. Stephen's, Newcastle-on-Tyne, a prayer-meeting was held from 7.30 to 8 every morning for five weeks before the Mission, the average attendance being seventeen. The Vicar wrote afterwards:— Missionary Missions.

> Our expectations were more than fulfilled. It was a holy, blessed season; the Missioner most wisely going down to the foundation, and taking us back to the Bible and to God Himself. I cannot tell you how great has been the blessing that has been vouchsafed to us; many of us have been helped in spirit as we never have been before. I am sure that not a few will regard the Society henceforth as a Missionary Society in a double sense. Too often we think of it as a money-raising and missionary-supply Association at home, and a Gospel-heralding Society abroad; but in future many of us will recognize it as a true Missionary Society both at home and abroad. I am sure you will be pleased to know what is the honest testimony of a plain parish clergyman about Missionary Missions; ours has been used of God as a means of untold spiritual blessing, which must result in an ever-deepening interest in all the work of the Lord.

At Halifax twelve men and women at the close of the Mission signed a declaration of willingness to serve Christ in the Mission-field, should the way in due course be opened up for them to go. At Nottingham in February, 1897, the members of the local branch of the Y.C.U. gave 27 addresses during the Mission in the Church day-schools, and Miss Etches, of the Women's Department, visited a number of private girls' schools, while one of the Missioners addressed a meeting of lady students at the University College. One result of this Mission was the addition of seven candidates to a preparatory class which was started in Nottingham the previous October. In some parishes what is known as a "Missionary Week" was held, with a programme somewhat more varied than that of the Missionary Mission, and aiming chiefly at exciting a missionary interest where it did not previously exist. Open-air meetings in the streets and a missionary exhibition have sometimes been conspicuous features of these efforts. The Rev. C. D. Snell has been appointed a Missionary Missioner.

Loan Exhibitions.

Never in any previous year have Missionary Loan Exhibitions been conducted on so extensive a scale as they were at Birmingham in October and November, and at Bristol in November, 1896. In the former city, Bingley Hall, one of the largest in the Kingdom, was engaged for the occasion. It was calculated that over 100,000 people visited the Exhibition during the ten days it was open, besides some 20,000 children from the Voluntary and Board schools of the city, whose visit H.M. Inspector of Schools agreed to recognize as time spent in education. Each day the Exhibition was opened at noon, on one occasion by the Bishop of Worcester, and on others by the Bishop of Coventry, the Earl of Meath, Sir John Kennaway, and Colonel Robert Williams. One thousand workers cheerfully co-operated, including a number of women volunteers who gratuitously swept the hall each morning. After paying all expenses the sum of £1,595 was left for distribution among the Societies which rendered help in the effort. At Bristol the exhibition was held in the Colston Hall in November, but it was unfortunately limited to four days, and large numbers failed to get admission. It was estimated that 25,000 persons and 10,000 children from public elementary schools visited the exhibition. Sir John Kennaway, Bart., M.P., Mr. J. K. Wingfield Digby, M.P., Sir G. W. Edwards, and Mr. Lewis Fry, M.P., were the openers on the four successive days. A large Sale of Work was simultaneously held in the Lesser Colston Hall.

Local Associations.

At the Association Anniversaries it is manifest, from the reports received at the C.M. House, that the excellent practice of commencing with a devotional meeting is becoming more widely adopted. In one of the largest of the provincial Associations the executive committee have very wisely divided the work of organization into departments, appointing a secretary for each, viz., Missionary boxes, Private-schools, Day and Sunday Schools, Sermons and Lectures, C.M. Union, Younger Clergy Union, Lay Workers' Union, Gleaners' Union, Sowers' Band, Literature. In connexion with the last department there is a depôt for publications and the latest intelligence. Another town in the west of England has a Church Missionary Room situated in a central position, where all the publications of the Society are kept in stock, and also those of the C.E.Z.M.S., the Z.B.M.M., the C.I.M., and the S.V.M.U.; there is a lending library with 200 missionary volumes; tea is provided in a separate room at a moderate charge; and there is held every day at 12.30 P.M. a short missionary prayer-meeting.

Boxes and Sales of Work.

The Rev. C. D. Snell has again made a laborious inspection of the last Annual Report for 1895–6, and he finds that the total collected in boxes was £34,839, viz., £400 more than the previous year, the increase being mostly in the Province of Canterbury. Sales produced £24,122, as compared with £23,073 of the previous year. The largest sum obtained at a single sale was £451 raised at Manchester. Leicester (Holy Trinity and Christ Church) was close behind with £432; and Bournemouth not far off with £380. Strong expressions of opinion have been made against bazaars for Church purposes, and it is unhappily the case that these are often attended by accessories which are quite of this present world and unsuitable for a Christian enterprise. For this reason it is desirable that the term "bazaar" should not be applied to Missionary Sales of Work. These ought never to be open to the objections of worldly expedients being resorted to for raising money; on the contrary, as has been said, holiness should be stamped on everybody and everything connected with them; God's guidance and blessing should be claimed unceasingly from the beginning to the end. Such sales are not only an important means of raising money, but are extremely useful also both in giving an opportunity for the poor and young to work with their fingers on behalf of Christ's cause, and in forming a happy bond of union for all interested in it. An instance of how the old and commonplace methods of helping the missionary cause may be rendered specially solemn and sacred is reported by one who was present at a missionary-box service in a very poor and struggling parish in London:—

A missionary-box service.

This service is held half-yearly, and upon these occasions all holders of boxes, whether adults or children, are invited to attend and to present their boxes, just in the same manner as offertories are presented and are afterwards laid upon the Holy Table. After the customary prayers, hymns, and lesson, all holders of boxes are requested to leave their seats and to stand two and two at the west end of the church. Two children have been selected previously from each Sunday-school class to bring the box belonging to that class. The adults either hand in their own boxes or give them to one of the children to do so. When all were ready, the hymn, "O Lord of Heaven, and Earth, and Sea" was sung. After the first verse there was a pause, and while the organ played, a group of six or more children, walking two and two up the aisle, presented their boxes to the clergyman, who placed them on the Holy Table, and so on after each verse, until a pile of some fifty boxes stood in orderly rows. Then followed the address. During the week the box-secretary and her helpers will open the boxes, and will have them ready to return to their classes and owners by the following Sunday.

Examples of individual effort.

Striking examples of individual effort are constantly coming to the notice of the Committee, and most of them are mentioned in the publications. Two may be referred to here, both from Ireland: One member of the Royal Irish Constabulary collected on a collecting card £18 10*s.* for the Society; and one pound in pence was found in the work-box of a crippled girl of twenty after her death, the daughter of a widow occupying a very small farm in Ireland, and with it was found a letter stating her resolution to put by one penny a week to be given "to help to spread the Saviour's kingdom on earth."

Contributions from Ireland.

Some of the most striking examples of progress in the scale of missionary contributions on the part of districts and parishes are afforded by the Irish Church. For example, the sum raised in the city of Belfast rose from £560 in 1890 to £1,415 in 1895. And the advance was not confined to one or two parishes, as is so often the case; that one city affords at least eight instances of parochial increase exceeding one hundred per cent. in the five years, and one instance of one thousand per cent. increase. The receipts of the Hibernian Auxiliary for 1896, exclusive of legacies, showed an advance on 1895 of £2,000. Over and above this sum, the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission received during the year ending October 31st, 1896, £1,233, about £300 more than the year before. The D.U.F.-K.M. has four missionaries on the Society's list, viz., the Revs. T. McClelland, L. H. F. Star, and S. Synge (all graduates in arts, and the last also a bachelor of medicine), and Miss J. S. Clarke. The Rev. J. S. Collins, whose death by drowning on April 25th will be mentioned under the South China Mission, was also on the list.

Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission.

Hibernian Auxiliary.

The Committee have sanctioned arrangements for utilizing somewhat more than had been done in the past the kindly proffered assistance of the Dublin Committee of the Hibernian C.M. Auxiliary in interviewing candidates for missionary service offering to this Society from the sister isle. It has been usual to ask two or three Dublin clergy in their individual capacity to see and report to the Parent Committee before inviting Irish candidates to travel to London; in the future, however, the interviewers will be members of a small Candidates Sub-Committee appointed by the Hibernian Committee. Their reports will be sent direct to the C.M. House, and the responsibility for accepting or declining will remain, as hitherto, wholly with the Parent Committee. A Valedictory Dismissal was held by the Hibernian Auxiliary in Dublin on September 16th, 1896, under the presidency of the late Archbishop of Dublin, the Bishops of Meath and Derry also taking part in the meeting. Twenty-eight missionaries were taken leave of, five of the C.E.Z.M.S., one of the Z.B.M.M., one of the F.E.S., and the rest

(twenty-one) C.M.S. Fifteen of these were going out for the first time. The capacious Metropolitan Hall was crowded with the largest gathering that has ever assembled in Dublin for such a purpose. Indeed, the number present was greater than was the audience which two days later in the same hall welcomed the late Archbishop of Canterbury upon his arrival on Irish soil, in reference to which Archbishop Plunket said:—

> It will be a great source of satisfaction and of pride upon my part and upon the part of others to be able to tell the Archbishop of Canterbury what our Church has done in the way of the restoration and renovation of our churches and cathedrals; but it will be an even greater source of pride and of joy to me to be able to tell him that while we have been restoring our cathedrals we have been sending forth our missionaries as well.

Valedictory Meetings.

Public Valedictory Meetings were held on two occasions in 1896 by the Committee. The first was on July 23rd, in the Lower Exeter Hall, when sixteen missionaries were dismissed for the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission, five for the Coast and eleven (including two ladies) for Uganda. The Bishop of Exeter took the chair at the beginning of the meeting, and the President upon his arrival later; the Honorary Clerical Secretary introduced the missionaries, the Rev. F. Baylis read the Committee's instructions, and the Rev. H. W. Townsend gave the closing exhortation from Col. i. 12, 13. A few paragraphs from the "Instructions" on this occasion may be given here:—

Instructions to Uganda party.

> Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ,—The Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission, to which you are appointed, is, like the Missions in West Africa, a signal illustration of the great Divine principle, Death before life, humiliation before victory, the cross before the crown. "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit" . . . .

A Divine principle

> "It is enough for the disciple that he be as his master, and the servant as his lord." In West Africa, fifty-three missionaries, men and women, laid down their lives for Christ in the first twenty years. The first three Bishops of Sierra Leone were all laid to rest on that deadly coast within seven years. The "corn of wheat" fell into the ground and died. But dying, it brought forth "much fruit." However close the likeness of African Christianity to English Christianity in its imperfections and disappointments, the result, after all, has been a great ingathering of African souls, not only into the visible Church on earth, but into the heavenly garner above. We yet wait for the fruit to spring up from the more recent graves of Robinson and Wilmot Brooke, of Bishop and Mrs. Hill and their companions; but, on the same great principle, spring up it assuredly will.

illustrated in an historical survey,

> So in East Africa. Fifty-two years have elapsed since Johann Ludwig Krapf, the very first missionary, the very first explorer, in the lands to which you are going, began his work by laying in the grave, on the mainland opposite the little islet of Mombasa, the frail body of his young wife, and sent home that message which has often been quoted, but never can be quoted too often: "As the victories of the Church are always gained by stepping over the graves of her members, you may be sure now that you are called to the evangelization of East Africa." Forty-five years have elapsed since Krapf, after his first visit home, started on what he hoped would be a walk across Africa; but when comrade after comrade died or retired, he wrote again, "Our God bids us build a cemetery before we build a Church.

The resurrection of East Africa must be effected by our destruction. But the chain of Missions will yet be completed when the Lord's hour is come." Twenty-one years ago Mr. Salter Price purchased for the Society a piece of ground whereon to plant a settlement of liberated slaves; and when it was bought, it turned out to be the very place where Krapf had dug the first East African missionary grave.

Just twenty years ago, July, 1876, the first party for Uganda, including Lieut. Shergold Smith, C. T. Wilson, O'Neill, Dr. J. Smith, and Mackay, were starting from the coast. In the following year, Dr. Smith was buried on the banks of the Nyanza, and the headless bodies of Shergold Smith and O'Neill were thrown by the king of Ukerewe into the Lake. But Uganda had meanwhile been occupied, and (save for one year of exile) has been occupied ever since. Fourteen years ago the first converts were baptized, just as James Hannington was leaving England for Africa. Eleven years ago Hannington himself gave his life, as he said in his dying words, to open the direct route by which some of you, dear friends, are to travel. About the same time, martyr after martyr among the converts died fearlessly for Christ. Eight years ago the beloved Bishop Parker was laid to rest at Usambiro; six years ago the intrepid Mackay was buried by his side; and three other graves, making (with Dr. Smith's) six in all, remain to tell the dull Natives of the south end of the Lake that Englishmen will risk death to tell them that Jesus died for their sins. In Uganda itself not one missionary has died of all the forty-one missionaries who have actually reached the country. But death has met them en route or elsewhere. Out of the whole fifty-nine who have started from the coast, eighteen have been called away (including one who died afterwards in Japan). Of the remainder, twenty-nine are still in the ranks of the Mission; leaving only seven who, though alive, are no longer missionaries, and of these seven one hopes to go out again. That is a record to praise God for. But how much more for the "much fruit" that has sprung up from the "corns of wheat" that have "fallen into the ground and died"! As we think of such names as Shergold Smith and Hannington and Parker and Mackay, and of young recruits who fell on the threshold of Africa, like Cotter and Hill and Greaves, and then think of Uganda now, we see our Lord's great principle in action: Life after death, Victory following Humiliation, the Crown the issue of the Cross.

Now, dear brethren and sisters, the Committee call upon you to be encouraged by the wonderful history of the Mission to which you are to be attached. Consider how great things God has done for us, and go forward rejoicing that He is King, and that you are on His winning side. Take the grand Divine principle, thus so signally illustrated, to guide you both in your personal life and in your missionary career. The Committee would apply it to your own case in the three following ways:—

I. Let your message be the message of the Cross. Be not ashamed to confess, and to preach, the faith of Christ crucified . . . . To bring sinners to the Saviour, and then to lead them on to holy service in His Name—that is your mission. A death unto sin and a new birth unto righteousness—this is what every African as well as every Englishman needs. There is no true life without death and the new birth. Be not afraid to say to one and all, "Ye must be born again."

II. Be prepared for disappointments, for the death of many sanguine anticipations and even reasonable hopes. Your plans may fail, however wise they may seem, however carefully prepared . . . . Remember that humiliation must come before victory, the cross before the crown; that the life of your Mission may spring from the death of your own plans for it, from the death of your own confidences regarding it, from the death even of your own active share in it. Much the same paradox is embodied in those profound and pregnant words of St. Paul—the best of all mottoes for a missionary life—"When I am weak, then—then am I strong."

III. And this brings us to the third application of the principle. Not only in the work of Christ, not only in the work of His servants, but in the hearts and lives of His servants themselves, death must precede life . . . . Scarcely a difficulty arises in the Mission-field, other than the direct antagonism of the Evil One, but self is in one way or another at the bottom of it. Is there discord between brethren? Is there a peevish spirit, or a lack of acquiescence in God's appointments, or a failure to "look on the things of others," to "prefer one another in honour"? Is there a tendency to indolence, to needless indulgence, to undue satisfaction with one's own work, or share in the work? All can be traced to the power of self. And what is self but the "old man" of which the Apostle speaks as "crucified" with Christ? If crucified, it may not be literally and finally dead; but it is powerless. And yet the true Self, the Person, the "I," will be more alive than ever. "I am crucified with Christ; nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." The Lord grant that these marvellous words may become the true description of us all! Then what a promise, brothers and sisters, will be yours and ours!—"Ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, Who is our Life, shall be manifested, then shall ye also, with Him, be manifested in glory."

Autumn dismissals.

The other public dismissal was on September 29th and 30th, at the large Exeter Hall. On the former date the missionaries sailing for Egypt, Palestine, Persia, Ceylon, China, Japan, and British Columbia were taken leave of, and on the latter date those for Africa and India. The President, Sir John Kennaway, took the chair on the 29th, and the Treasurer, Colonel R. Williams, on the 30th. The Revs. Hubert Brooke and G. C. Martin delivered the addresses on the two occasions respectively. On the morning of the 30th there was a Communion Service at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, and the sermon, in every sense most striking and beautiful, was preached by the Bishop of London (now Archbishop of Canterbury) from 2 Peter iii. 8.*

Offers of service.

Eight-five were accepted during the year ending April 30th, 1897, for missionary service, 47 men and 38 women. Twenty-five of the men were ordained either at the time of their acceptance or between then and the date of their sailing; of the remaining twenty-two, six were medical men, and one of the ordained men was also fully qualified in medicine. Thirty-seven of the above (13 men and 24 women) were trained under the Committee's supervision; the remainder were judged already qualified for service at the time of their acceptance. Some 450 inquiries and offers of service were received during the year. Of some of these nothing further is known than the fact that they made inquiries; others were postponed as being too young, and others for various reasons did not proceed beyond the initial stages of investigation. Altogether, 200 cases (109 men and 91 women) were dealt with by one or other of the various Committees, the Committee of Correspondence dealing with offers for immediate service, the Clerical Sub-Committee and the Ladies' Candidates Committee dealing with male and female candidates for training respectively; and of these 200, the above-named 85 were accepted for service, and 71 (18 men and 53 women) were accepted for training and probation. Acceptance for training carries with it no certainty of being accepted for service. Probation is as definitely an object in view as training, and ten of the above 71 subsequently withdrew or were declined; others of them were among the 37 accepted for service after training; and others are still in the Training Institutions.

Missionaries accepted.

The total number who sailed between April 30th, 1896, and May 1st, 1897, was 164, of whom 83 returned and 81 went out for the first time. Some of these latter were accepted before May 1st, 1896; the rest will be found in the following list, as also the Missions to which they were located. This list gives the names of candidates accepted during the year, first the men, with their college or training institution, and the town or village from which they offered to the Society, or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted; then the women, with their place of residence or Colonial Association:—

Training Institutions.

The students in residence at Islington College during the whole or part of the year numbered seventy. Of these, twenty-seven left for the Mission-field, the highest number that has done so in any one year. As there is only accommodation in the College for 42 students, the Principal, the Rev. T. W. Drury, regards an extension of the buildings as likely to be a pressing necessity at an early date. He is also anxious to see a new chapel, the present building, formerly the hall of the College, proving pervious to the weather, and not being worth the expense of thorough renewal. Such a building Mr. Drury considers should be a gift, and not a burden on the Society's funds. He was much encouraged by a gift of another nature during the year, a new gymnasium, and one which for its size, the Principal remarks with pride, is the most completely fitted in London. It bears the inscription: "In Memoriam—George and Emma Arbuthnot, 1896. 'Their children arise up and call them blessed.'" The College was founded in 1825, and since the closing of St. Bees' it is the oldest Theological College in England. Islington well maintains in public examinations the dignity of its seniority in years. Of seven students who entered in 1897 for the "Oxford and Cambridge Preliminary," three were placed in the first, and four in the second class. One of the first-class men of 1896, Mr. W. J. Williamson, was appointed to read the Gospel at the Bishop of London's Trinity Ordination. Mr. J. B. Carpenter (B.A. Cantab.) went up after reading at Islington to the Lent (1897) Ordination of the Bishop of Worcester, and was appointed Gospeller on the occasion. The Rev. A. J. Tait, St. John's College, Cambridge, has been appointed tutor at the College in succession to the Rev. W. I. Moran, who was appointed Vice-Principal of the Elland Clergy Training School, Hull. The Probationary Institution at Clapham had seventeen students in residence in the course of the year, twelve of whom went forward to Islington College. Twenty-six women were in training at The Willows during the whole or part of the year; fifteen at The Olives; twenty at the Highbury Home; and twenty-three at Great Yarmouth and elsewhere.

Training of Medical Missionaries.

It was mentioned in last year's Report that the Committee had decided to render help when needed to well-attested candidates desirous of qualifying for the medical branch of the missionary service. The Committee only contemplated affording this help in exceptional cases and for male candidates. They have been led, however, to decide to extend the same privilege to women candidates, i.e., they will, where they are satisfied that the spiritual and other needed qualifications are possessed, and that the candidate's circumstances render the assistance necessary, defray the fees required for the medical training. Such candidates must have completed their nineteenth year and have passed the Matriculation of the London University. The Medical Mission Auxiliary held its Annual Meeting in Lower Exeter Hall on June 4th, 1896, Sir Douglas Fox presiding, and Mr. James Monro, C.B., being one of the appointed speakers. The Report presented by Dr. Herbert Lankester is of permanent interest, inasmuch as it gives, briefly but clearly, the history of the Society's connexion with Medical Mission work; doubt and hesitation, evidenced in the Committee's Minutes regarding the policy of sending out medical missionaries, gradually and perhaps slowly yielding to confidence and hearty conviction. The number of in-patients in the Society's hospitals increased from 4,846 in 1894 to 6,432 in the following year; and of this latter number 2,713 were in the Punjab and 2,700 in China. The out-patients increased from 373,000 to 417,000 in the same period. If these figures be compared with those of one of the large London hospitals, with a total income double that of the Medical Mission Fund, it will be found that in the 27 Mission hospitals four times as many in-patients and eighteen times as many out-patients were treated; moreover in the Mission Hospitals the Gospel was preached to every one of the 423,000 patients. At the beginning of 1897 a new monthly organ of the Cost of Society's Medical Missions.

Society's Medical Mission work appeared, entitled Mercy and Truth, in lieu of the Medical Mission Quarterly, which first appeared in 1893. It is stated in Medical Missions at Home and Abroad that whereas twelve years ago the London Medical Schools had scarcely any representatives in the Mission-field, now they have 74. The London School of Medicine for Women heads the list with 31, then follow London Hospital (17), St. Bartholomew's (10), St. Thomas' (5), University College (3), Guy's Hospital and King's College each 2, and Charing Cross, St. George's, St. Mary's, and Middlesex 1 each. The total number of medical missionaries holding British degrees is 239, and their distribution is as follows:—India, 84; China, 83; Africa (including Egypt, 2), 31; Palestine and Syria, 16; New Hebrides, 4; Persia, 3; Madagascar, 4; Constantinople, 3; Arabia, 2; Corea, 2; and Java, North-West Canada, Smyrna, and Baghdad claim one each. Presbyterian Churches sent out 94, Church of England Societies 63, the Congregationalists 23, Methodists 10, Baptists 7, the Brethren 4, the Society of Friends 3, and Undenominational Societies 22. Very valuable training of an elementary character in medicine and surgery, especially intended for missionaries (non-medical) going to dangerous and isolated spheres of labour, is provided, under Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby, at Livingstone College, Stratford, East London, and several of the Society's missionaries have thankfully availed themselves of it.

London Medical Schools and the Mission-field.

The chief new publications of the Society during the past year were the following:—The Early History of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East, to the end of A.D. 1814, by the Rev. Charles Hole, B.A., a volume of 720 pages, a work of deep interest and lasting value to the students of Church History, and more particularly so to those who love the C.M.S. and delight in tracing the movements of God's Hand in Providence and of God's Spirit in the minds and hearts of His people in the days when the C.M.S. and so many other great enterprises originated; The Story of the Year, 1895–6, and also for 1896–7, the third and fourth annual issues of the illustrated Report of the Society, written in popular style; two books for boys and girls entitled Boys and Boys and Girls and Girls, of which nearly 5,000 copies of each have been disposed of, necessitating the putting in hand of second editions; a book for young people, entitled Missionaries in the Witness Box, which took the place of the ordinary Christmas book for children; The Gospel in Uganda, a descriptive pamphlet of the state of the Uganda Mission in 1896; Central Africa for Christ: Possibilities and Aims, a series of diagrams, with explanatory letterpress; a 4th edition of the Gleaner's Atlas and Key to the Cycle of Prayer, the three previous editions of 5,000 copies each having been sold out. Other new publications are in preparation; also a 3rd edition of Japan and the Japan Mission. The Sheet Almanack for 1897 has shown a satisfactory increase of over 7,000 copies on the 1896 issue. The circulation of the monthly periodicals is still advancing, especially the Gleaner—mainly due to the localized editions. The average number of copies printed each month were as follows:—Intelligencer, 6,575; Gleaner (including 39,800 for localized editions), 78,800; Awake, 42,250; and Children's World (which has been localized for the first time in Melbourne), 56,000. The new monthly magazine entitled Mercy and Truth has been referred to above; the ordinary monthly circulation is about 5,000 copies. Of the Quarterly Paper, 20,000 copies were printed each quarter, and of the Quarterly Token an average each quarter of 218,500 copies in English, 5,000 in Welsh (for 3 quarters only), and 500 with pictures only for a Chinese edition. The total circulation of the Society's magazines and papers during the year was about 6,750,000, of which about 1,250,000 were T.Y.E. papers. The last ten years have witnessed a large increase in the circulation of the monthly magazines. In 1885 the number printed was 1,017,841; in 1895, not including the Lay Workers' Monthly Papers, it was 2,208,350. In the former year the loss on the magazines was £334; in the latter the profit was £183.

Anniversary Services.

Of the year's meetings in which the whole Society has a special interest, those for the dismissal of missionaries and the meeting for children at Exeter Hall have been already mentioned. It is worth noting that at the Anniversary Service on May 4th, 1896, one of the lessons was read for the first time by a layman, Mr. G. A. King, one of the hon. secretaries of the London Lay Workers' Union, and one of the Bishop of London's diocesan lay readers. This precedent was followed in 1897, when Mr. Eugene Stock, who is also a diocesan lay reader, read Daniel vii. 9–15. The Committee received in March, 1897, a petition signed by over fifty influential friends of the Society, including the names of eleven bishops and five deans, urging that the Anniversary Sermon should be preached "for the future" in St. Paul's Cathedral, with the permission of the Dean and Chapter. The Dean of Windsor moved the Committee to adopt the suggestion, but after some discussion he withdrew his motion in favour of the following, which was passed with unanimity:—

Proposal as to St. Paul's Cathedral.

> The Committee have received the Memorial with the respect due to the distinguished members of the Society whose names are appended to it, and while giving full weight to the strong reasons which have been given for asking the permission of the Dean and Chapter to hold the Annual Service in St. Paul's Cathedral instead of St. Bride's Church, and while deeply grateful to their friends who have expressed so lively an interest in the welfare of the Society, they have not at present sufficient evidence that it is the wish of the great body of their friends who are in the habit of attending the Annual Sermon to change the place of a service which is unique of its kind, and is bound up with the warmest sympathies and associations of very many of the Society's most earnest friends.

The Day of Intercession for Foreign Missions was observed by the Committee and their friends on December 3rd, 1896, by a meeting for prayer at Sion College, from 3 to 5 p.m.; on Tuesday, January 5th, 1897, the Rev. Canon Streatfeild, Vicar of Emmanuel, Streatham Common, preached the New Year's sermon before the Committee at St. Bride's Church; and on Monday, April 12th, the Society's 98th birthday, a prayer-meeting was held at the C.M. House from 3 till 4 p.m., in lieu of the weekly Thursday prayer-meeting at that hour.

Gleaners' Union Anniversary at Manchester.

The Tenth Anniversary of the Gleaners' Union was celebrated not in London, as each previous anniversary had been, but at Manchester. This was, indeed, the first occasion in the Society's history on which a large official meeting arranged from headquarters was held in the provinces. The programme was on a somewhat extensive scale. On Saturday, October 31st, a prayer-meeting was held under the presidency of Canon Keeling. On Sunday, November 1st, special sermons were preached in the Cathedral (by the Bishop of Derry) and in many of the other Manchester churches. In one church—St. John's, Broughton—a special afternoon service was held for Church workers, and was attended by several hundreds of them, the sermon being preached by the Rev. H. E. Fox. On Monday morning, at 9.30, a Communion Service was held in the Cathedral. At 11 a.m. the same day began a succession of conferences and meetings in the hall of the Y.M.C.A., which continued throughout Monday and until Tuesday afternoon, except that at 1.10 p.m. on each of these days there was a half-hour's address to men only in the Cathedral, by the Bishop of Derry and by Prebendary Webb-Peploe. The Monday and Tuesday morning conferences were for G.U. secretaries only; that on Monday afternoon was open. The evening meeting was of a strictly and exclusively spiritual character, its purpose being to set forth to the Gleaners and others present the claims of Christ to their whole-hearted service in behalf of the evangelization of the world, and His all-sufficient power to enable them to give themselves to it. A Bible-reading was given by Prebendary Webb-Peploe on Tuesday morning at 10.30, before the conference; on the same afternoon the speakers were all ladies. The largest of the meetings—the Annual Meeting of the G.U.—was held in the Free Trade Hall on Tuesday evening, at 7.30, Colonel R. Williams presiding, the speakers being the Bishop of Derry, the Rev. J. Roscoe, the Rev. E. A. Stuart, and the Rev. W. E. Burroughs; some 2,500 were present. A thanksgiving meeting was held on Wednesday evening. A supplementary meeting, in deference to the wishes of London Gleaners, was held in the Lower Exeter Hall on November 12th. A conference of country Gleaners and of London G.U. secretaries was, as usual, held at the C.M. House on the afternoon of May 4th, 1897, the day of the Society's Anniversary. During 1896 there were 12,099 new members of the Union enrolled, making a total during the ten years of its existence of 91,127. New branches to the number of 84 were formed during the year, making 730. Renewal fees (2*d.*) amounted to £455 11*s.* 6*d.*; gifts for Union expenses (£716), for "O.O.M. Fund" (£1,357), and for the Society's General Fund (£1,753) made the total remittances through the Union amount to £4,282 17*s.* 5*d.* The reports sent in by 483 branches showed that 63 of these have meetings for Bible study, 171 meeting for Missionary study, and 235 have devotional meetings. The Canadian G.U. nearly doubled its membership during the year, having 1,979 members and 30 branches, two of them composed of men only.

Missionaries' Children's Home.

A post of great importance and responsibility was rendered vacant by the resignation of the Rev. F. V. Knox, Director of the Missionaries' Children's Home at Limpsfield, in July, 1896. Mr. Knox was invited by the Committee to resign a chaplaincy in India in 1886, in order to take the post, and the ability and devotion with which he carried on the arduous and anxious duties attaching to the head of an institution which is not only a school but also a home, won for him the affectionate regard of the children and the confidence of their parents. The Committee appointed the Rev. A. F. Thornhill, Vicar of Temple Grafton, Warwickshire, to this onerous charge. At the annual prize-giving in October, 1896, the number of children reported as in the Home was 99, viz., 64 boys and 35 girls.

Association Secretaries.

The annual meetings of the Association Secretaries, at the Church Missionary House, in January, are occasions of peculiar importance. They always occur in the week in which the Islington Clerical Meeting falls, which many of the brethren make a point of attending. In 1897, only three (two of them honorary) of the 28 Association Secretaries were absent from the gathering; thus every part of the United Kingdom was represented. Veterans like Canon Tristram, whose terms of office have spanned a quarter of a century and more, and several recruits who had barely adjusted their armour, united in brotherly counsel on two successive days, and gave their reports of past attainments and future prospects in their several districts. The Rev. H. James, Rector of Livermere, read a most helpful paper,* combining in a high degree spiritual power with practical suggestiveness, on the Wednesday morning, after breakfast at the Salisbury Hotel, to which the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, the official head of the Home Organization, invited the Association Secretaries. Dr. Handley Moule gave a series of devotional addresses on the Friday morning, before the brethren dispersed once more, in the chapel of Islington College, after which the Holy Communion was administered. The new faces at these gatherings were those of the Rev. H. M. M. Hackett, who succeeded Archdeacon Collison as Secretary of the Hibernian Auxiliary, on the latter returning to his Mission work in British Columbia; the Rev. Sholto Douglas, Incumbent of St. Silas', Glasgow, appointed Honorary Association Secretary to represent the Society among certain English Episcopal congregations in Scotland; and the Rev. George Denyer, senior curate of Didsbury, Manchester, who succeeded the Rev. C. T. Horan as Secretary for the Dioceses of Manchester and Carlisle, except certain rural deaneries in and around Manchester, for which Canon Keeling is the Honorary Secretary.

Retirement of the Rev. H. P. Grubb.

The Metropolitan district is vacated by the Rev. H. Percy Grubb's retirement, on his appointment to the Vicarage of Oxton, Nottinghamshire, after twelve years of service in connexion with the Society. Mr. Grubb took up the onerous duties of the Metropolitan Secretaryship in 1889, adding them to the work for which he was already responsible as Assistant Organizing Secretary. On two occasions, for somewhat lengthened periods, he conducted the whole work of the Home Department at Salisbury Square during successive vacancies in the Secretaryship. He accompanied Mr. Eugene Stock to Canada in 1895, and took part in the important meetings which inaugurated the Canadian C.M. Association. Mr. Grubb's numerous devotional and practical papers have had an exceedingly wide circulation and been highly appreciated. The services of Mrs. Grubb also, as one of the most active of the earnest voluntary band of ladies who co-operate in the Women's Department, have been deeply appreciated by the Committee. Consequent upon Mr. Grubb's retirement the following further changes have been made: the North-Eastern District (Notts and Lincoln) has been rearranged, the Rev. H. Fuller remaining Association Secretary for Lincolnshire, and Mr. Grubb being appointed Association Secretary for Nottinghamshire; the Rev. F. Glanvill, Association Secretary of the Northern District, succeeds to the Metropolitan District; the Rev. H. Knott, Association Secretary for South Wales, succeeds Mr. Glanvill in the Northern District; and the Rev. A. H. Grey Edwards, M.A., Hertford College, Oxford, Chaplain of St. Martin's Welsh Chapel, Chester, succeeds Mr. Knott. The Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard has been temporarily appointed to succeed Mr. Grubb as Assistant Central Secretary.

A fear was entertained at one time that the Society might be called to lose the services of the head of the Home Department, as it was known that the Rev. W. E. Burroughs had been nominated to the Synod of Killaloe Diocese, to fill the vacancy caused by the lamented sudden death of Bishop Wynne.

The Secretaries of the Society.

Much self-congratulation was felt by the whole body of Association Secretaries and by the Committee in the announcement of the result of the voting, which took place during the week of the Association Secretaries' gatherings at the beginning of 1897, inasmuch as Mr. Burroughs' name was second, and not first, of the three nominated for the office. The Rev. P. Ireland Jones was obliged, in the autumn of 1896, on account of ill-health, to take a lengthened rest, and the Revs. E. S. Carr, of the South India Mission, and G. B. Durrant, of the North-West Provinces, successively took his place temporarily at Salisbury Square in the administration of the group of Indian Missions. In view of its approaching Centenary, the Committee, in the autumn of 1896, requested the Editorial Secretary, Mr. Eugene Stock, to undertake the preparation of a History of the Society, and made arrangements for relieving him temporarily of the charge of the monthly publications. Mr. Stock gave a course of lectures on the Early History of the Society, at the C.M. House, in February, 1897. The Rev. F. Baylis, the Secretary of the African Missions, was absent for several weeks in January and February, 1897, on a visit to Sierra Leone. The Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson was also absent from December till February, being sent on a deputation, together with Bishop Tugwell, to the West Indies. Both these deputations will be referred to under the "Sierra Leone Mission."

The President.

It gave the Committee very great pleasure, in January, 1897, to tender their congratulations to the Right Honourable Sir John H. Kennaway, Bart., M.P., for the distinguished honour conferred upon him by Her Gracious Majesty by his appointment as a member of the Most Honourable Privy Council. The President has identified himself so completely with the Society, both in the House of Commons and out of it, in his native county of Devon, and almost everywhere else, pleading in its behalf, and taking part in its councils, that it was not to be wondered at that the secular press, in noticing his promotion—and noticing it with general approbation—recorded his relation to the Society.

The obituary of the year is, as usual, a long one, but, on account of two names upon it, the sorrow of bereavement to the Society at large, and to the Committee in particular, is unusually heavy. The death of Archbishop Benson has been already adverted to in the opening paragraphs of this section. The death of Prebendary Frederic E. Wigram, late Honorary Clerical Secretary of the Society, occurred on March 10th, 1897. He was born in 1834, his father being Mr. Edward

Death of the Rev. Prebendary Wigram.

Wigram, for some years Treasurer of the S.P.C.K., and two of his uncles Bishop Wigram of Rochester, and Vice-Chancellor Wigram, the eminent Chancery Judge. He was educated at Harrow, and Trinity College, Cambridge, where he graduated in 1857. In the following year he was ordained to the curacy of St. Paul's, Cambridge. In 1880 he succeeded his brother-in-law, the Rev. Henry Wright, as Honorary Clerical Secretary of the Church Missionary Society. In the autumn of 1886 he was able to carry out a long-cherished hope by visiting the Society's Missions in India and China and Canada, accompanied by his eldest son, Mr. (now the Rev.) E. F. E. Wigram. He sailed on October 1st and returned the following September. In the autumn of 1892 Mr. Wigram's eldest daughter was among the missionaries who received their valedictory instructions when she went to the Punjab, where her brother was already at work, and Mrs. Wigram had the pleasure of escorting her, and seeing something of the work. It was about this time that Mr. Wigram's health began to show signs of failing, and during the two following years it was increasingly manifest to many who watched him with loving concern that his strength gradually diminished. After the Anniversary of 1895 he asked for six months' leave of absence and went to Germany, and two months later, as stated in last year's Report, the President read a letter to the Committee in which Mr. Wigram tendered his resignation, which took effect in August. For a few months he was able to attend the Committees. He took the deepest interest in the inauguration of the Three Years' Enterprise, and the adoption of the Report of the Special Centenary Committee which drafted the T.Y.E. Manifesto was moved by him on March 10th, 1896. He assisted at the Anniversary Service at St. Bride's on May 4th, and was present the following day at Exeter Hall, but a serious illness laid him prostrate shortly afterwards, and though he rallied for a time, disease resumed its inroads, and he fell asleep in Jesus, as already stated, on March 10th, 1897. His remains were laid in the family vault in the Kensal Green Cemetery on the 13th, the officiating clergy being Bishop Tucker, and the Revs. B. Baring-Gould, J. Barton, H. E. Fox, and J. B. Plumptre.

Testimonies regarding Mr. Wigram.

On the following Tuesday, March 16th, the President, Sir John Kennaway, moved the resolution which is given below, and referred in an affecting speech to the mutual friendship which had existed for more than forty years between himself and Mr. Wigram since the days when they were at Harrow together. The Honorary Clerical Secretary read letters and telegrams from numerous friends, among others from the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of Ripon, Bishop Alford, Bishop Tucker, Sir Douglas Fox, Mr. Henry Morris, Mr. Clarence Roberts, the Rev. E. C. Hawkins (Rector of St. Bride's), and the Rev. J. Sharp communicating a minute of the British and Foreign Bible Society. Here only the Archbishop's letter and the minute of the B. & F.B.S. can be quoted. The Archbishop wrote: "My heart is with you in lamenting the loss we have sustained in the death of that true servant of God, our dear friend Prebendary Wigram. He did good work in his day, and has gone to the Lord whom he loved and served. May our lives bear the same witness to the truth as it is in Christ." And the B. & F.B.S. Committee, at their meeting on March 15th, expressed "their heartfelt sympathy with the widow and family of the late Prebendary F. E. Wigram, and with the Church Missionary Society, on the death of one who, both in his private capacity and as Honorary Secretary of the C.M.S., manifested such unstinted zeal, generosity, and humble self-devotion in seeking to extend the Kingdom of Christ at home and abroad to the utmost of his power." And then, one after another, members of Committee rose and paid their tribute of affectionate and respectful admiration. Colonel Williams, Mr. Abel Smith, Mr. Sydney Gedge, Prebendary Webb-Peploe, General Hutchinson, Bishop Tugwell, the Rev. J. B. Whiting, Mr. Stock, the Rev. T. Richardson, the Rev. T. W. Drury, the Rev. G. Tonge, the Rev. B. Baring-Gould, the Rev. F. V. Knox, the Rev. J. I. Pickford, and the Rev. H. E. Fox, all bore testimony to Mr. Wigram's devotion to the service of his Divine Lord, his whole-hearted discharge of the varied duties of his office, his business qualities, his courage, his loyal self-effacement on occasions in Committee; while some made special mention of his loving comradeship towards his brother secretaries, his patient, sympathetic treatment of missionary candidates, his interest in the College and Preparatory Institutions and all their inmates, his fatherly and brotherly regard for the missionaries, his love for the missionaries' children in the Home which owes so much to his and Mrs. Wigram's munificence, his singular wisdom as a counsellor in any practical difficulties, and the never-failing patience and interest which all needing advice or help were assured of receiving, however numerous his engagements or absorbing his business, his large-heartedness, his liberality and that of Mrs. Wigram going forth to meet not only C.M.S. needs and those of the C.E.Z.M.S., but those of many home societies and parishes and of innumerable individuals both at home and abroad, and, perhaps above all else, the charm of his home life.

The Committee's Minute.

The following minute was passed by the Committee:—

In recording the removal from this earthly scene, to the immediate presence of his Lord, of their beloved and honoured friend, the Rev. F. E. Wigram, the Committee unfeignedly praise God for his noble life and peaceful death. If Mr. Wigram had never become Honorary Secretary of the Society, his services, and those of Mrs. Wigram, to the cause of Christ at home and abroad would have called for grateful appreciation. In the Diocese of Winchester, and particularly in his own parish near Southampton, he was the friend and supporter of every Christian enterprise; and repeatedly, while his brother-in-law, the Rev. Henry Wright, was Honorary Secretary, he rendered essential service to the Society, both by his local influence and by his generous gifts. But from the time when he came to Salisbury Square, after Mr. Wright's deeply lamented death, he consecrated all that he was and all that he had to the cause of the Evangelization of the World, and of this Society as one of the chief instruments in the Lord's hand for accomplishing that grand purpose. No Secretary ever worked harder, and none has ever been more beloved by his colleagues and by all who came in contact with him. The Committee do not dwell on his more conspicuous special services, such as his journey round the world in visitation of the Missions, or the munificence by which he and Mrs. Wigram encouraged them to establish the new Missionaries' Children's Home at Limpsfield. They rather recall with affectionate gratitude the assiduity with which he conducted the Society's ordinary business; his watchful care in seeing that no missionaries were sent forth except those who knew Christ as their personal Saviour, and were entirely loyal to the truth of the Gospel; and, above all, the loving-kindness and never-failing care which he extended to all the missionaries and their families. In this last respect he was quite unique, and for this he will long be gratefully remembered by hundreds all round the world. And the Committee rejoice in the noble example which he and Mrs. Wigram have set to Christian parents, and especially to parents who can give their children independent means, in so gladly surrendering their sons and their daughters to missionary service; counting it, indeed, not a sacrifice, but a privilege to be thus represented in the army of the Lord.

Other deaths.

Besides Mr. Wigram, six Vice-Presidents were removed by death, namely: Lord Plunket, Archbishop of Dublin, whose sympathies went forth both to reformation movements in Spain, in Portugal, and in Italy, and to every effort to send the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ to the dark places of the earth; Bishop Wynne, of Killaloe, who died under peculiarly solemn circumstances in the act of seeking medical assistance for Mrs. Wynne, together with whom, at the same hour, he went into his Lord's presence; Bishop Jones, of St. David's; Archdeacon Cooper, of Kendal, brother-in-law of the late Bishop Perry; Archdeacon Favell, of Sheffield; and the Earl of Darnley. Five Honorary Governors for Life were removed: the Rev. Carr J. Glyn, Rector of Witchampton, Dorset, for thirty years an Honorary Association Secretary, who died at the age of 97; the Rev. Canon Thomas Green, Vicar of Friezland, for twelve years, from 1858 to 1870, Principal of Islington College; the Rev. J. E. Sampson, who gave four daughters to the work of Christ in India; the Rev. W. E. Light, for many years a warm friend and supporter; and Sir George Johnson, for twenty-six years Honorary Consulting Physician of the Society. One Honorary Member for Life died in the person of Mrs. Young, of Brighton, at the age of 80, who collected large sums annually for the Fuh-Kien Mission. One Member of Committee died, Mr. Bruce Boswell, greatly esteemed; and among other home friends may be mentioned the Rev. A. W. Upcher, Rector of Wreningham and Ashwellthorpe, one of the earliest Honorary District Secretaries in Norfolk; the Rev. H. C. Milward, Vicar of Lyonshall; Deputy Surgeon-General J. C. Hornsby Wright, a member of the Society's Medical Board; and Miss Catharine Tucker, of Southborough, in her 99th year. There died also five Retired Missionaries: Archdeacon Maundrell (Japan), the Rev. R. J. Bell (Bengal), Mrs. Williams, widow of the first Bishop of Waiapu, New Zealand; Mrs. R. M. Lamb (North-West Provinces), and Mrs. C. Sandreczki (Mediterranean Mission); nineteen Missionaries on Active Service: the Rev. J. B. Wood and Mr. A. Smith, of the Yoruba Mission; Archdeacon Dobinson, of the Niger; Mr. J. P. Nickisson and Miss M. E. Conway, of East Africa; Mr. H. C. Tugwell and Mrs. J. Brown, of Bengal; the Rev. Dr. C. Baumann and the Rev. B. Davis, of the North-West Provinces; Mrs. Bateman, of the Punjab and Sindh; Mrs. A. H. Bowman, of Western India; the Rev. G. T. Fleming, of Ceylon; the Rev. J. S. Collins and Miss Alice Entwistle, of China; Mrs. D. Marshall Lang, of Japan; the Rev. F. T. Baker, of New Zealand; Mr. J. C. Parker and Mrs. Cowley, of North-West Canada; and Mrs. Ridley, of British Columbia; and nine Native clergy: the Revs. T. C. Nylander and E. S. Willoughby, of West Africa; the Rev. J. Richard, of the North-West Provinces; the Rev. J. Williams, of the Punjab; the Revs. A. Gurubadham, J. Simeon, J. Sargunam, of South India; the Rev. Ting Sing-ki, of Fuh-chow; and the Rev. Wiremu Turipona, of New Zealand. To these names must be added that of the Rev. H. T. Ormerod, of Selwyn College, Cambridge, Curate of Byker, Northumberland, an accepted missionary, who was drowned whilst bathing near Whitby on August 6th, 1896. A memorial window in his memory has been placed in Byker Parish Church.

Vice-Presidents, &c.

It has already been mentioned that the office of Vice-Patron of the Society has been accepted by the Archbishop of Canterbury (Dr. Temple). The office of Vice-President has been accepted by the Bishop of Hokkaido (Rt. Rev. P. K. Fyson), the Bishop of Peterborough (Dr. Carr Glyn), the Bishop of Killaloe (Dr. Mervyn Archdall), the Bishop of Crediton (Right Rev. R. E. Trefusis), and the Bishop of Qu'Appelle (Rt. Rev. J. Grisdale); and the Committee have appointed to the same office the Very Rev. the Dean of St. David's, the Rev. W. H. Barlow, D.D., the Rev. H. C. G. Moule, D.D., and Sir Charles Elliott, K.C.S.I. To six vacancies in the list of Honorary Life Governors they have elected the Rev. Canon Girdlestone, the Rev. J. T. Lang, the Rev. E. N. Thwaites, Richard Dart, Esq., T. G. Hughes, Esq., and J. W. Rundall, Esq.; and they have added the names of Mrs. Dyce Alexander, Mrs. Percy Grubb, Miss Lucy Bayley, Miss Leslie Melville, and Miss Winscombe to the list of Honorary Life Members.

The Colonial Associations.

A MEMORANDUM, prepared for the Board of Trade by Sir Courtenay Boyle, on some comparative statistics of the population and trade of the United Kingdom and those of foreign countries, which was published in January, 1897, drew conclusions from the figures by no means unfavourable to the enterprise and activity of the inhabitants of Great Britain and Ireland. But the writer of an article contributed to the Times of February 1st showed that a full estimate of the material progress made by the British people could not be made without taking the Colonies of the Empire into consideration, and that if the comparison was not unfavourable before, it becomes highly favourable after such an extension of its scope, inasmuch as none of the great countries of the world possess colonies whose growth in population and commercial activity make an appreciable difference to the statistics on these points of the mother-country. For example, during the 25 years from 1871 to 1895 the memorandum of the Board of Trade shows that the population of France increased two millions, the United Kingdom eight millions, and Germany eleven millions. But the United Kingdom sends many of its younger generation to the Colonies, and in the three great groups of self-governing Colonies there was an increase of the white population within the same period of four millions, viz., Australasia from 1,924,770 to 4,238,369, the Dominion of Canada from 3,635,024 to 5,083,424, and South Africa from 250,000 to 500,000; the effect of which is to place Great Britain well in advance of Germany as well as France. Statistics of trade are less easy to compare, inasmuch as a large portion of colonial trade is done with the United Kingdom. But, however the figures may bear upon the comparison, it is worth noting that while Germany during the fifteen years from 1880–1 to 1895 made a slight advance in the total value of its exports, largely due to the export of bounty-fed beet sugar, and France remained stationary, and the United Kingdom fell off by nineteen million pounds, the great British Colonies advanced by £27,000,000, so that taking the Empire as a whole there would seem to have been not a loss, but only a diversion of energy, with the ultimate result of placing the trade on a wider and more secure basis. The total exports and imports of Australasia increased from £101,710,727 in 1880–1 to £114,837,883 in 1895; those of the Canadian Dominion from £34,880,240 to £44,883,996; those of Material development of British Colonies.

Cape Colony from £15,373,049 to £24,995,183; and those of Natal from £2,680,894 to £3,514,207.

The above facts and the conclusions to which they point tend to enhance the importance of the confederacy which was established in 1892 and 1894, in the blessed cause of spreading the knowledge of Christ, between the Church Missionary Society and the Evangelical members of the Church of England in the Colonies. An increase of 50 per cent. in the population in twenty-five years and of 20 per cent. in the total trade in fifteen years amply evidences the presence of the chief elements of material prosperity. To have been instrumental in affording a channel through which the Christian Church in these thriving communities can consecrate of its sons and daughters and of its wealth to the Lord's service in the fields of heathen darkness, is matter for thankfulness as much for the sake of the Colonial Churches as for the cause of Missions.

Constitution of C.M.S. Colonial Associations.

The Constitution which defines the mutual relations and obligations of the Society and the Colonial Associations has not hitherto been printed in any of the Society's Annual Reports. The one for New South Wales was the first to be adopted, and it has been followed, with a few trifling modifications, by the others. It is as follows:—

CONSTITUTION OF THE NEW SOUTH WALES CHURCH MISSIONARY ASSOCIATION.

I.—Principles.

1. It is a primary duty of the Church of Christ upon earth to preach the Gospel to all nations, in fulfilment of the great commission given by the Risen and Ascending Saviour.

2. In the fulfilment of this duty it is the right and privilege of members of the Church of Christ to form societies for the purpose, based upon such distinctive principles as will unite them together in mutual sympathy.

3. This Association is a society of members of the Church of England, based upon the Evangelical and Protestant principles which have been universally recognized as the principles of the Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East from its foundation.

II.—Objects.

4. To correspond with the C.M.S., and generally to act on its behalf in the Colony of New South Wales, and in any neighbouring colony not possessing a similar organization.

5. To send Missionaries to the Mission-fields occupied by the C.M.S. in connexion with, and under the direction of the Committee of the Society, hereinafter called the Parent Committee.

6. To engage in Missionary work in such other fields, not occupied by the C.M.S., as the Providence of God may direct.

III.—Membership.

7. Persons willing to join an Association based upon the above principles, and formed for the above objects, are invited to become members by payment of an annual subscription.

IV.—Governing Body.

8. The Association shall be conducted by a President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, Secretaries, Trustees, and Committee.

9. The President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, and Secretaries shall be appointed by the Committee annually.

10. The Trustees shall be five in number, and shall, in the first instance, be the following gentlemen :—The Very Rev. William Macquarie Cowper, Dean of Sydney, the Reverends John Douse Langley and Mervyn Archdall, and Messieurs John Kent and Charles Richard Walsh. Any Trustee may be removed from his office by the unanimous vote of his Co-trustees. In case of this action being taken, a statement of the facts shall be immediately forwarded to the Parent Committee. Vacancies in the body of Trustees shall be filled up by the remaining Trustees as soon as possible, subject to the approval of the Parent Committee.

11. The Committee shall consist of not less than twelve members, clergymen and laymen, being communicant members of the Church of England, and shall be elected at each Annual General Meeting of members. In addition, the President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer, Secretaries, and Trustees shall be ex-officio members of the Committee, and of all Committees appointed under Clause 12.

12. The Committee shall have power to fill up vacancies, to act notwithstanding vacancies, and to appoint Committees, either from amongst themselves or from other members of the Society (being communicant members of the Church of England), for such purposes, and with such delegated powers, as they shall deem expedient.

13. Five members shall form a quorum of the Committee. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

14. The Committee shall have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Association. All property so acquired and other funds, save and except so much and such as shall, in the opinion of the Committee, be required to be in the hands of the Treasurer, shall be held and invested by the Trustees, under the direction of the Committee. Such investments may be varied and realized from time to time as may be deemed expedient.

V.—C.M.S. Missions.

15. Offers of service in the Mission-field shall be dealt with in the following manner :—

(a) The Committee, or a Committee appointed by them, shall examine every candidate, and make inquiries regarding him in reference to physical fitness, mental qualifications, spiritual and moral character, and soundness in the faith.

(b) Candidates may either be accepted for service forthwith or received for training. In the latter case, formal acceptance shall be deferred till the training has sufficiently advanced.

(c) The length and nature of the training of any candidate shall be determined by the Committee.

(d) On the acceptance of a candidate proposed to be sent to a C.M.S. Mission, the Committee shall inform the Parent Committee thereof, and shall correspond with them regarding his location. The decision regarding location shall rest with the Parent Committee, unless that Committee shall have authorized the Association to settle the matter.

(e) Accepted candidates, on the settlement of their location, shall be despatched to the Mission-field by the Committee.

(f) No candidate shall be sent forth without a resolution of the Committee declaring that they are satisfied regarding his spiritual character, doctrinal soundness and accord with the fundamental principles of the Association, and fitness in other respects, which resolution shall be communicated to the Parent Committee.

16. On arrival in the Mission-field, the Missionary shall place himself under the direction of the local governing body of the Mission representing and appointed by the Parent Committee, and shall so remain during the period of his service in that Mission.

17. Every Missionary shall be a probationer until he has passed his language examination (unless exempted therefrom by the Parent Committee), and until the local governing body has reported concerning him to the Parent Committee. If then finally accepted by the Parent Committee, he shall stand in the same relation to the C.M.S. as Missionaries sent out from England, except as to pecuniary support.

18. In all ordinary cases, Missionaries sent forth by the Association shall be supported by the Association, which shall make all arrangements regarding outfit, passages, allowances in the Mission and at home, and be entirely responsible for them; no pecuniary responsibility attaching to the Parent Committee, unless otherwise arranged between the Association and the Parent Committee. But if a Missionary sent out by the Association should be appointed by the Parent Committee to a recognized post for which that Committee is already responsible, the Parent Committee may, at their discretion, undertake his maintenance.

19. The Parent Committee shall have absolute power to disconnect any Missionary sent out by the Association.

20. This Section shall apply also to females, whether Candidates or Missionaries.

VI.—Missions other than those of the C.M.S.

21. The Association shall, in accordance with Clause 6, have power to undertake Missions in countries or districts not occupied by the C.M.S.

22. With this object the Association shall have power to combine with other Associations in the Australasian Colonies based on the same principles, and with the same objects, and to make arrangements for joint action.

23. For such Missions the C.M.S. shall not be responsible.

24. The Association shall also have power to aid other Missionary organizations in such ways as the Committee may think expedient, provided always that nothing be done inconsistent with the principles of the Association as above expressed.

VII.—Funds.

25. The Association shall receive contributions, either allocated by the donors, or to be applied by the Committee, to the following objects:—

(a) For the Funds of the Association generally.

(b) For the General or any Special Fund of the C.M.S.

(c) For any Special Fund or object approved of by the Committee.

26. All payments on account of the Association shall be passed by the Committee, and paid by cheques, signed by the Treasurer and one of the Secretaries. The accounts of the Association shall be closed on the 31st December in each year, and audited by one or more auditors appointed by the Committee.

VIII.—Meetings.

27. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Association shall be held about the first week in March, when the proceedings for the foregoing year shall be reported, the accounts presented, and the Committee chosen, and such other business transacted as may be arranged by the Committee.

28. The Committee may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Association, at which not less than twenty shall constitute a quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition, in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than fifteen members, and specifying the objects of the meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in two Sydney newspapers of any such intended meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called, which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

29. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Association shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, except at the Annual Meeting, or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose. All alterations or additions shall be subject to the approval of the Trustees of the Association.

IX.—Reference of Disputed Questions.

30. Any questions that may arise which, in the opinion of any five members of Committee, involve the fundamental principles or objects of the Association, as above expressed, shall be referred to the Trustees, who shall consult (when necessary) with the Parent Committee of the C.M.S., and the decision of the Trustees shall be final.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

The Primate of Australia on Foreign Missions.

The Primate of Australia, the Most Reverend Dr. W. Saumarez Smith, whom many of the Society's friends had the opportunity of hearing at the Anniversary in May, 1897, in opening the Quinquennial Synod of the Dioceses in Australia and Tasmania on September 29th, 1896, dwelt on the need of and the reason for a deeper and wider missionary spirit, as regards both work in the colonies and labours for the evangelization of the Heathen. He stated that since the previous meeting of the General Synod in 1891 the sum of £41,600 had been contributed by Church-people in Australia and Tasmania towards missionary work among the Heathen. Of this, £7,700 had been assigned for the Melanesian Mission, £16,500 to the work of the Australian Board of Missions, and the remainder, the Bishop is reported to have said, had been raised by the two Church Missionary Associations for New South Wales and Victoria. In the balance, however, some £17,400, he must probably have included the funds separately raised by Mr. Macartney for specific objects in India. The Primate repudiated the fallacy—the "often reiterated" fallacy, he called it—that it would be better to concentrate effort on reforming the whites within Australia before attempting the conversion of Kanakas, Chinese, Aboriginals, or the savages of New Guinea. "Missionary work," he said, "means the proclamation of the Gospel and the ministrations of the Church everywhere. It is one work, in different phases, to be promoted always by every Christian." He referred to a strange reason which had been advanced by three of the clergy, recently arrived from England, for withdrawing support from the Board of Missions. It was because the Primate and one or two of his clergy—one of whom was the Rev. A. Yarnold, the secretary of the Australian Mission Board—had attended a public meeting held to celebrate the Centenary of the London Missionary Society, the alleged fault being aggravated by the circumstance that the meeting was held in a Congregational church. The Primate expressed a hope that a broader and more catholic view might prevail, and that "sympathy with the missionary zeal and success of Christians of other communions than our own will give fresh stimulus to make the work of our own Church a more worthy contribution towards the evangelization of the world." The Primate also commended the "Three Years' Enterprise" and the papers issued in connexion with it, especially the Committee's "Manifesto," to the Synod.

It was mentioned in last year's Report that the Rev. J. D. Dathan, Chaplain of H.M.S. Endymion, was present and spoke at the Annual Meeting of the New South Wales Association in April, 1896. Mr. Dathan, after his return home, wrote the following letter to the C.M. House:—

> In Sydney I found out Mr. Walsh, and received a very hearty welcome from him. When he found I was interested in C.M.S. he invited me to a Gleaners' Conference in the Chapter House, and to the annual meeting of the C.M.A. Both these were real good meetings. The Conference was enthusiastic and business-like, questions bearing on the work being eagerly discussed, and many practical suggestions made. They were specially bent on finding some way to increase the circulation of the various papers, although, considering the number of Gleaners, a large number of magazines are already being circulated. The annual C.M.A. meeting was good; it was exactly like an overflow meeting from Exeter Hall, the spirit and enthusiasm being just what we are accustomed to find there. If only they go on as they are doing at present they ought to do great things for the missionary cause. They have a depôt for the sale of missionary literature and afternoon tea, and out of this by good management a good profit is made. Could not many of our English towns manage to have the same?

The Association sent out two ladies—Miss Sophia Newton and Miss Isabel Suttor, of the Marsden Training Home—both to the Fuh-Kien Mission. The N. S. Wales Sowers' Band celebrated its second Anniversary in October. The central secretary, Miss Minnie Hughes, reported 27 bands—an increase of 15 in the year—and about 800 members. The receipts from annual fees and cards, missionary boxes, sales of work, &c., in connexion with the Band were £64 12*s*., and the expenses £6 1*s*.

II. VICTORIA.

Victoria Association.

The Fifth Annual Report of the Victoria C.M. Association has for its watchword, "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," and truly the year's record affords abundant evidence of the Divine blessing. At the commencement of the year four missionaries' names were on the list of the Association, and one was removed before the year had far advanced by the death of Mr. H. C. Tugwell. At the year's close the three had multiplied five-fold. This exceptional increase was due in a large degree to the fact that the Australian Auxiliary of the C.E.Z.M.S. was amalgamated during the year with the Association, by which seven new missionaries were added to the staff. Then the Association sent five to recruit the C.M.S. Missions during the year, viz.:

Mr. W. Holloway and Mr. T. Law to the North-West Provinces, Miss E. E. Martin to Baghdad, and Miss Minna Searle and Miss M. E. Molloy to the Fuh-Kien Mission. The income of the year was £1,350, besides large gifts of outfit to individual missionaries. This represents an increase of almost a hundred per cent. on the income of the previous year. Nevertheless a deficit of £150 had to be carried forward.

A touching fact is mentioned in the Report. It is that Mrs. Saunders, mother of the late Misses H. E. and E. M. Saunders, who were killed at Hwa-sang in Fuh-Kien on August 1st, 1895, had started from Melbourne to go and labour in Fuh-Kien. The late Rev. J. S. Collins suggested Mrs. Saunders being invited to mother the ladies of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission in Fuh-Ning, and she immediately and gladly assented. The Ladies' Association of the D.U.F.-K.M. have undertaken to support Mrs. Saunders in the field.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

Anniversary of New Zealand Association.

The fourth Anniversary of the New Zealand Association was held at Nelson on February 10th, 1897. At 11 a.m. there was an administration of the Holy Communion in the Cathedral, and a sermon by the Rev. Allen Gardiner, Incumbent of Waipawa, from Matt. xiii. 31–33. In the afternoon a Gleaners' Conference, held in the Diocesan Library, was attended by a goodly number of Gleaners and friends, the Rev. J. P. Kempthorne, Incumbent of Christ Church Cathedral, Nelson, a member of the Executive Committee, presiding. The subject discussed was "The best way of making Gleaners' meetings successful." The Annual Meeting of the Association took place in the evening, under the presidency of Archdeacon Wright. The report stated that a deputation consisting of the Rev. F. W. Chatterton and Mr. J. Holloway, the clerical and lay secretaries, had visited the various scattered branches of the Gleaners' Union, and other places where no branch of the Union existed, with a view to arousing new interest. They devoted seven weeks to this tour, but were unable in that time to visit nearly all the places they wished to see. The Gleaners' Union received 347 new members, but for some reason not explained the total number at the end of 1896 was only 1,063, namely, 25 more than the previous year. Fourteen new branches were formed. The Sowers' Band has about 200 members, and several branches were formed during the year. Over 1,000 copies of the Gleaner were sold. The Report calls attention to the fact that a very large proportion of the funds is derived from missionary boxes, viz., £402 out of a total for the year of £819.

The statement of receipts and expenditure presented by the Hon. Treasurer, Dr. James Hudson, was as follows:—

IV. CANADA.

The Committee had the pleasure of meeting the Rev. T. R. O'Meara in November, 1896, while he was on a visit to this country. Just before he left Toronto, the second Anniversary of the Canadian Association was held in Wycliffe College, Toronto, on October 8th, 1896, when Mr. N. W. Hoyles, Q.C., presided. The year under review had been marked by the visit of the Deputation from England referred to in last year's Annual Report, and the report read by Mr. O'Meara acknowledged the impetus which the Association had received through their visit. The Rev. I. O Stringer, during a short season of furlough in Eastern Canada from his Arctic station in Mackenzie River Diocese, had also helped to stir up interest. The treasurer's statement was a satisfactory one; the receipts amounted to $9,678, and the disbursements to $7,193. The C.M. Gleaner has a circulation of 1,500, and the order for the third thousand missionary boxes had been given. As many as twenty-three offers of service—seventeen from men and six from women—had been received; three candidates had been accepted, four rejected, two had withdrawn, and fourteen were under consideration. The Association could report fifteen missionaries in the field—seven married men, six unmarried men, and two women. All these, however, are not in connexion with the C.M.S. Mr. Maconachie, a former member of the Punjab and Sindh Corresponding Committee, took part in the meeting. The Offers of service.

Canadian Gleaners' Union enrolled 900 new members during the year ending October 1st, 1896, making a total of 1,979. There are thirty branches, two of which are composed of men only. The Rev. W. C. White, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, was accepted for service during the year, and sailed for the Fuh-Kien Mission in February, 1897. Mr. White was born in England, and went to Canada with his parents in 1883. He wrote to the C.M. House in May, 1893, when he was Assistant-Secretary of the Ottawa Y.M.C.A., offering his services, but at that time no agency existed whereby the fitness of candidates could be examined into and tested. Mr. White's papers were forwarded to the C.C.M.A. immediately on its formation, and he was then accepted for training. After taking a course at Wycliffe College, he was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of Toronto on Trinity Sunday, 1896. He then for a few months assisted in the parish of Holy Trinity, Toronto. The Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, who with Mrs. Boyd joined the Fuh-Kien Mission in 1895, is a son of ex-Judge Boyd, of Toronto, and brother of Mrs. O'Meara; and Mrs. Boyd's father was the late Mr. R. Baldwin, for many years a leading Churchman in Toronto, and one of the founders of Wycliffe College.

Formation of a Diocesan Branch.

A branch of the C.C.M.A. has been formed in the Diocese of Huron. This is the first instance of a development of the Colonial Association scheme which was not foreseen when the Constitution was drawn up, but which, nevertheless, in no respect infringes the provisions of that Constitution, while it seems likely to meet the special conditions of the Colonial dioceses. The rules which have been drawn up as the basis of the relations between the C.C.M.A. and its Huron Branch are the following:—

DRAFT OF BYE-LAWS RELATING TO AUXILIARIES OF THE C.C.M.A.

1. In any diocese where there is a sufficient number of members of the Canadian Church Missionary Association to warrant it, an Auxiliary of this Association may be formed in the following manner:—

A meeting of such members of the C.C.M.A. shall be called for this purpose; and a committee shall be elected of not less than eight, including a President, a Secretary, and a Treasurer, all of whom shall be communicants of the Church of England, by whom the business of the Auxiliary shall be conducted in accordance with the general Constitution of the C.C.M.A. Five to constitute a quorum. Such Auxiliary shall be named after the diocese which is the field of its operations: "The Auxiliary of the Canadian Church Missionary Association in the Diocese of ———."

The Secretary shall after such meeting send a copy of the proceedings to the Secretary of the C.C.M.A.

2. The Executive Committee of the C.C.M.A. in its relation to its Auxiliaries shall be termed "The General Executive of the C.C.M.A."

3. Each Diocesan Auxiliary of the C.C.M.A. shall be entitled to five representatives on the General Executive, viz.: The President, the Secretary, and the Treasurer of the Auxiliary, ex-officio; and two others to be appointed by the Auxiliary Committee from among its members.

4. Offers of service in the Mission-field shall be dealt with in the manner provided by section 5, sub-sec. 1, of the Constitution of the C.C.M.A.

5. In order to keep the Association in touch with its Auxiliaries it shall be the duty of the Secretary of each Auxiliary to send quarterly to the General Executive a report of proceedings in time for the quarterly meetings of the General Executive.

6. Each Auxiliary Treasurer shall once every quarter make a full report to his Auxiliary Committee of all moneys received by him, and shall once a quarter forward all moneys received by him to the General Treasurer of the Association, with a full statement of donors' names, addresses, and the specific objects, if any, to which the donors have appropriated their contributions.

7. The name of each Auxiliary and its officers, together with a statement of amounts contributed by it, shall appear in the Annual Report of the Association, and in the event of a missionary being supported entirely by an Auxiliary, this fact shall be clearly indicated.

V. SOUTH AFRICA.

In the Annual Report for 1891–2, under "Foreign and Colonial Contributions," three parishes in Cape Colony were credited with sending up that year £58. For the year 1895–6 the same parishes sent little short of £600. The parishes in question are Holy Trinity, Capetown, of which the Rev. G. Litchfield, formerly C.M.S. Missionary in Eastern Equatorial Africa and the North-West Provinces of India, is Incumbent; St. Peter's, Mowbray, of which the Incumbent is the Rev. A. Daintree; and St. John's, Wynberg, under the Rev. C. W. R. Higham, formerly C.M.S. Association Secretary for Norfolk. The friends in these parishes have united to form a C.M. Association, with a Constitution similar in most respects to that given on pages 50–53 supra; only in lieu of selecting and sending out and supporting their own missionaries, the South Africa friends at present will content themselves with seeking for candidates and sifting them in behalf of the Parent Committee, and, after the Committee's approval has been expressed, sending them to this country at the Association's expense. The Committee passed the following resolution on the subject:—

New Association in Cape Colony.

That the Committee will gladly take into consideration offers of candidates for training with a view to missionary work which may come to them through the Committee of the South Africa Church Missionary Association, and, if satisfied with the testimony of the candidate's referees and of the interviewers appointed by that Committee, will accept them for training in one of the training institutions to which the Society's accepted candidates are sent. Provided, however: (a) that the Committee shall have first approved the persons forming, or to be appointed on, the South Africa Church Missionary Association Committee; (b) that in addition to the usual questions testing the candidates' views of doctrine and spiritual fitness for missionary work, candidates be also required to answer in writing questions calculated to discover their mental powers and the state of their education; (c) that the Society incurs no expense on account of the candidates' journey from the Cape to this country; and (d) that it be understood that all such candidates be accepted for probation as well as training, and be liable to their connexion with the Society being closed in the same way as are all other candidates. In the event of such closing of connexion for any cause, the Society will defray cost of passage back to Africa.

THE WORLD.

Evangelization of the World.

THE Evangelization of the World has been plain and unmistakable, in the New Testament, as the Lord's parting command for nearly nineteen centuries, but it has been little noticed by the Church at large, and still is very far from being recognized as a duty waiting to be done. The study of the measurements and demarcation of the earth's surface, and of the ethnological distinctions of its peoples, have more interest for the average Christian than considerations regarding men's relations to their Creator and Redeemer. So much is this the case, that scarcely any calculations appear more visionary and Utopian, more removed from the sphere of practical possibilities, than those which approach the problem of the world's evangelization seriously, and attempt to reduce to an intelligible statement the work to be done, and then to apportion it to the several bodies of which the Church of Christ is composed, with a view to showing that the work which the Lord has bidden His people to do is not beyond their powers to perform if only they are willing to set about it. As early as 1822 two American missionaries in Bombay—Hall and Newell—published a paper on the possibility of the world's evangelization in a brief specified time, and large extracts from it were reproduced in the Missionary Register, which Josiah Pratt, Secretary of the C.M.S., had started in 1813—the first missionary magazine ever published. Of the same character are the following calculations, which occur in a paper read by the Rev. H. McNeile at a Ruri-Decanal Conference at Stockport in July, 1896:—

Take the geographical and ethnical aspect of our work, the extent of the world and the distribution of nations upon it. The unevangelized portions of the world are (1) most of Asia and Africa; (2) portions of America and Australasia. In a rapid survey such as this it may suffice to equate the portions of America and Australasia still without the Gospel to the portions of Asia and Africa where it has been preached, and so to take Asia and Africa, the whole of them, as the world we have to evangelize. Asia contains about 825 million inhabitants, Africa about 205 millions; total, 1,030 millions. The area of the two together is about 30 million square miles, so that the average density of the population is about 34 to the square mile. This population is about thirty-four times as great as that of England and Wales; the area is about 520 times as great. Fancy England and Wales depopulated to such an extent that only one person in 15 was left, and take the country so depopulated as a standard unit; Asia and Africa present us with a field equal to 520 such standard units.

I propose that we reckon as assigned to the Church of England one-half of the non-Christian portion of the world: on this supposition we ought to occupy 260 such standard areas as I have imagined. If 13,000 labourers were sent out—that is, nearly one from each parish in England and Wales—and if the whole of these 260 standard areas were divided among them equally, each would have one-fiftieth of such an area as his portion; that is, a district rather larger than an average English county, a magnified parish of about 1,150 square miles, containing 80,000 inhabitants. This is, of course, a range far beyond the power of any man, or any twenty men, to cover in the way in which we endeavour actually to carry on our parochial work; but then our parochial work is not distinctively evangelization; it is for the most part pastoral, which is a very different thing.

One-third of home parishes give nothing.

When from such visions as the above of what might be, the eye falls upon what is, instead of every parish sending out one missionary, about one-third of the parishes contribute nothing whatever to any of the Missionary Societies of the Church, and of those which do assist, a very considerable proportion of parishes give less than £2. To the S.P.G., for example, in 1895, out of 9,227 contributing parishes, 2,060 contributed less than £2, and 2,224 above £2 but less than £5. To the C.M.S. for the same year the parishes remitting numbered 5,492, of which 1,058 sent less than £2, and 1,140 more than £2 but under £5.

Analysis of British contributions.

The late Canon Scott Robertson's analysis of British contributions to Foreign Missions—for his accurate and painstaking labours in which for many years he has laid all British Christians under a debt of gratitude to his memory—shows that for 1895 a total of £1,387,665 was given, an increase of some £12,000 only on the previous year, and less by some £84,000 than in the year 1891.

RTROPICAL AFRICA.

C.M.S. Report Pl. 2

AFRICA.

The chief events of the year affecting the opening of the African continent to more effective contact with the civilized world naturally group themselves under the colonies and spheres of influence appropriated by the several European States, and during the year under review these events have mainly occurred within the spheres of British influence. On the West Coast, it is thankworthy to note that the Ashanti Expedition, at the close of 1895, which cost the nation so dear in the death of H.R.H. Prince Henry of Battenberg, has effected changes of a most beneficial character for the native population. The veteran Ramseyer, of the Basle Missionary Society, who with his wife was a captive in Ashanti for four years, from 1870 to 1874, bears witness to the general rejoicing which the supersession of the former arbitrary and blood-thirsty régime by one which respects the rights and liberties of the people has occasioned. The mausoleum of the kings, the scene of countless human sacrifices, at Bentama has been given to the flames; the very roots of the fetish-trees at Kumassi, the places of so much bloodshed, have been removed; and the apete seni (vultures' haunt), near the market-place, is now marked by a row of trees alone. It is not less a matter for thanksgiving that the Queen's representatives in Ashanti have openly shown their appreciation of Missions by granting a site to the Basle Mission, whose connexion with the country dates back to 1837, and whose missionary, J. G. Christaller—who died in 1896—translated the Bible into Tschi, the language of Ashanti, and obtained the gold medal of the French Institute for his Tschi grammar.

Beneficial changes in Ashanti.

Results equally beneficial to the inhabitants as those which have followed the Ashanti occupation may with confidence be looked for in Benin (formerly one of the most powerful states in West Africa, and whose government, customs, and superstitions have continued similar to those in Ashanti), to which a punitive expedition was sent in January, 1897, to avenge the massacre of Acting-Consul General Phillips and several other Europeans. The Niger Coast Protectorate, which is separated from the colony of Lagos by the Benin River, conducted this expedition; and simultaneously the Royal Niger Company sent a force against the Nupes, the most influential of the dependencies of Sokoto. Proofs of the depredations of Nupe princes in the countries to the west and south of the Niger were seen by Bishops Tugwell and Phillips in the winter of 1894–5, when they journeyed from Lokoja to Ibadan through the Bunu and Akoko countries (see C. M. Intelligencer for April, 1895, page 291). The dispersion of the long-dreaded Nupe cavalry, and the occupation of Bida by the little force of Hausas, officered by Englishmen, under Sir George Taubman Goldie, on January 29th, 1897, is an event which bids fair to prove of incalculable importance in giving access to the populous states of Central Soudan. The Times newspaper compared it with the Battle of Plassy in respect of its probable importance to the future of the country. A few days after the entry into Bida and the signing of the treaty with the new Emir, Prince Markum, whom Sir George Goldie placed on the throne, a force was sent further up the river to treat with the little Mohammedan State of Ilorin. No fighting was expected, but a treacherous attack, made by some of the petty military chiefs, was repulsed, and the town was occupied after bombardment on February 18th. Messengers were dispatched to the principal towns of the State proclaiming that the Government would henceforth be conducted under British control.

It is a happy omen for the future of the vast region peopled by the Hausa-speaking tribes that the Royal Niger Company entirely prohibits the traffic in spirituous liquors above the seventh degree of north latitude. To this fact the Rev. C. H. Robinson, in his book Hausaland; or, Fifteen Hundred Miles in the Soudan, attributes the absence of European spirits in the country.

Spirituous liquors on the Niger.

It becomes of more pressing importance, as the obstacles to commercial intercourse with the interior are year by year overcome, that the Powers should agree upon a uniform tariff, with a view to discouraging the introduction of spirituous liquors. Unhappily, there has been hitherto a lack of harmonious co-operation in this respect between the British Colony of Lagos and the Niger Coast Protectorate on the one hand and the Royal Niger Company on the other, the comparatively high duties imposed on spirits by the last-named in the lower reaches of the river involving the Company in frequent disputes with the frontier tribes, and in a heavy annual loss through smuggling. Sir John Kirk's report on the disturbances at Brass in January, 1895, presented to Parliament in March, 1896, constitutes a strong indictment against the Protectorate on this account.

Slave-trade in Central Soudan.

If Hausaland escapes the scourge of imported spirits, it is by no means free from the other scourge, of which the wide domains of the vast Soudan seem not unlikely to prove the last lurking-places, and the scenes of its most desolating havoc. The slave-trade in an aggravated form flourishes there, and some regions are wholly depopulated, tribute being paid in flesh and blood. It is a cause of much thankfulness to observe that one of the first acts of Sir George Goldie, after successfully accomplishing the objects of his expedition, was to publish at Asaba, on March 6th, a decree, to come into force on June 22nd, the date of the celebration of Her Majesty the Queen's Diamond Jubilee, abolishing the legal status of slavery throughout the Niger territories.

In the Eastern Soudan, the triumphantly successful expedition of Sir H. Kitchener against the Dervishes, and the recovery of the province of Dongola to Egypt is one of the severest strokes which the tyrannical and ruin-spreading Mohammedan influence in Africa has experienced for many years. Writing from Sheikh Sheriff, a few miles south of Dongola, in September, 1896, just after that city was taken, the special correspondent of the Times described it—Dongola—as the scene of wanton destruction, the work of the Baggara slave-dealers, the ruling race in the country, who "disdain to do any work, are by profession robbers, and destruction is their pastime; they enslave where they do not kill, and in the place of what they destroy they create nothing; civilization is abhorrent to them." After plundering and destroying the city they left the bodies of the massacred and mutilated inhabitants to rot in the streets, and went out in the desert, content to live the life of savages in one of the squalid hovels of which a Dervish deym, or permanent camp, is composed. In one courtyard this correspondent found a veritable hill of dates, some sixty yards long, twenty yards broad, and nearly thirty feet in height, of which he says :— Expedition to Dongola.

> This was the accumulation of many years of raids. The dates had dried up into a sort of hard concrete, and were quite unfit for food. This gigantic waste of many thousands of pounds' worth of the chief food supply of the country had been deliberate. The Dervishes had taken forcibly and stored here the bulk of many harvests, not for use, but with the object of keeping the population in an impoverished condition. While the dates were brought here to rot the unfortunate people were decimated by famine. Cruelty and love of destruction and waste are rival passions with the Baggara.

Between civilization and such powers as the above contact almost necessarily involves conflict; the aims and the methods alike are so diametrically opposed that mutual toleration is well-nigh impossible. Some painful and sickening incidents met with in the attacks on the Yao chiefs and on other slave-raiders by the officials of the Nyassaland Protectorate confirm this conviction. In September, 1896, a Yao chief named Katuri, whose place was to the north of Fort Mangoche, sent a party of his men to raid in the gardens near the fort, and carried off a number of women, the wives of the native garrison. A Reuter despatch stated :— Incidents of the slave-trade in Nyassaland.

> One of these women eventually returned. Her story was that shortly before she was seized with the other women in the gardens she had given birth to a child. As soon as they were seized they were hurried along through the bush on the return journey to Katuri. On the second day, however, being very weak, she became exhausted and several times fell down, and was then beaten by her captors. At length, as she could not get along any further, the men left her lying almost insensible by the road, telling her that, since they could not get her to Katuri, they would not allow her to keep her baby. They then dashed its head against a rock several times and gave it back to her quite dead. The woman eventually got back to Fort Mangoche.

In consequence of this raid an expedition was sent, Katuri was made prisoner and his place burned to the ground, and 187 women prisoners were released and allowed to return to their homes.

Slavery in the Sultanate of Zanzibar.

Slave-raiding in the interior will be continued, it may safely be presumed, so long as there is a demand for slaves at the coast. From Central Soudan the traffic is mainly northward toward Morocco, where, despite the late Sultan's prohibition of the traffic, there is indisputable evidence of a great increase in the public sale of slaves in the seaport towns, excepting Tangier, but there also private demands are readily supplied. From the Eastern Soudan the Red Sea littoral is easily reached, and thence the Arabian coast. Until the spring of 1897 also the Sultanate of Zanzibar, which, though a British protectorate, is under Mohammedan law, has continued to employ slave labour on the clove plantations of Zanzibar and Pemba, as labourers in the ports, and for domestic purposes. The mortality among plantation slaves is extremely high and the birth-rate exceedingly low, and consequently there has been a steady demand year by year for fresh supplies of slaves, and these supplies have been forthcoming, notwithstanding the illegality of introducing new slaves into the Sultanate. The Sultan owes his position, not to any right of succession, but to his selection by Great Britain. On the sudden death of the late Sultan Hamed bin Thowayni, in August, 1896, Khalid, whose claims to the succession had been passed over in 1893, assumed the throne, and was immediately presented with an ultimatum by the British Admiral. Zanzibar was bombarded and the palace reduced to ruins, and the present Sultan, Said Hamud bin Mohamed, was proclaimed. Moreover, the executive and judicial functionaries are Englishmen. To all intents and purposes, therefore, the inhabitants of the Sultanate are British subjects, and the noble and generous terms of the Statute which was passed for British India in 1844 should be applied to them. That Statute consisted of four clauses, two of which were the following:—"(1) Every right possessed by a subject of Her Majesty is equally a right, though the subject is a reputed slave. (2) Every wrong inflicted is equally a wrong, though the subject is a reputed slave."

Abolition of legal status of slavery in Zanzibar and Pemba.

The Committee of the C.M.S. passed a resolution in December, 1896, and requested the President, Sir John Kennaway, to communicate it to Her Majesty's Government, expressing their opinion that the time had fully arrived to give effect to the long and definite promise of the Government to abolish the status of slavery in the Dominion of the Sultan of Zanzibar, including Mombasa and all the country within the ten-mile limit, and earnestly and respectfully pressing upon Her Majesty's Government the urgent necessity for prompt and resolute action in the matter. It was accordingly a source of special satisfaction to the Committee when they learned that in February, 1897, the Government had sent instructions to H.M. Consul-General at Zanzibar to proclaim the abolition of the legal status of slavery in the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba, and the Committee trust that at an early date the abolition will be extended to that part of the Sultanate which is on the mainland.

Natives of India in Africa.

It is to be expected that, in consequence of the long demoralization of the African by slavery and the slave-trade, it will take many generations of wise and just rule to infuse into him a moral fibre, and make him an intelligent and dependable factor in the labour problems of his country. Meanwhile, in each emergency the several British administrations resort to India. Whether it be to fight under English officers in Nyassaland or in the Soudan, or to develop the agricultural resources of Natal (where Indian coolies number over 50,000, more than the European population), or to organize a postal service at Zanzibar, or to construct a railway from the Coast to Uganda, Natives of India are summoned to the rescue. An Act of the Indian Legislature has included Uganda in its schedule of countries to which British Indians may be sent under contract, and upon advantageous conditions to themselves, and an advance-guard of fifty clerks, engineers and highly-skilled artizans sailed from Bombay on May 8th, 1896, followed later by large numbers of workmen and coolies. To obviate caste and religious difficulties these were all, or nearly all, Mohammedans.

Cruelties in Congo Free State.

In the equatorial region adjoining British East Africa, beyond the western boundary, the progress of development is somewhat tardy, and this is doubtless due in no small degree to the unhappy relations between the authorities and their native subjects. Several witnesses have brought to Europe reports of inhumanities of the most abhorrent character perpetrated on Natives in the Congo Free State territories, and connived at by the officials. Mr. Parmenter in particular, after ten years in the service of the State and of a Belgian Company trading in the Congo, gave to a representative of Reuter's Agency particulars of most barbarous cruelties—wholesale mutilations by the cutting off of hands and ears, in one instance hacking off a girl's feet for the sake of the brass anklets she wore, worth a few pence—committed by native troops without reprimand from the European officers in charge. It is believed that the necessity of securing a more effective supervision of the remoter stations is realized, and that steps have been taken with that end in view.

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the first field entered by the Society. Its first two Missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which had, since the abolition of the slave-trade in 1807, become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the Mission Schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1851 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen (the two latter C.M.S. Missionaries)—died within three years of their consecration. Since them the following have succeeded to the charge of the Diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–69), Cheetham (1870–81), Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897). In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh was occupied from 1840–50 and reoccupied in 1875.

In 1862 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, and has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom, and Quiah countries. One hundred African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them are Government chaplains.

Extension of the Colony and Protectorate of Sierra Leone.

SIERRA LEONE is no longer the small peninsula originally so called, but a country as large as the whole of Scotland. It has increased twenty-fold within the past twenty years, and is now 250 miles from north to south, and 180 miles from east to west, and has an area of 30,000 square miles. The map on page 74 shows clearly the extent of the Colony and Protectorate respectively, and the direction of the various trade routes. A railway, also shown on the map, is under construction, and the first train was run for a short distance in the summer of 1896. It has not been yet decided whether from Songo Town the line will proceed north-eastward to Bumba, or in a south-easterly direction through the Mende country. The Rev. W. J. Humphrey states that thirty-nine-fortieths of the Protectorate have not yet been approached by the agents of any Missionary Society. Parts of the country are very populous, and towns and villages are most numerous. Mr. Humphrey counted eighty which he passed in a ten-days' walk. The Natives are intensely ignorant and superstitious, and are nearly all devil-worshippers. The Committee's plans and tentative efforts for extending the work among the Temnes are referred to below.

Thirty-nine-fortieths unevangelized.

Retirement of Bishop Ingham.

Bishop Ingham, after an episcopate of nearly fifteen years, has resigned the See of Sierra Leone. With undaunted cheerfulness and devotion he has held a post of very special difficulties and discouragements—physical and spiritual—for a longer period than any of his predecessors; indeed, it may be said that no Bishop of the Church of England, Samuel Crowther alone excepted, has presided so long as he over a diocese in Tropical Africa. There have been so far six Bishops of Sierra Leone, five of the Niger and Yoruba territories (including the two Assistant-Bishops), seven of the East Africa dioceses attached to the Universities' Mission, and three of Eastern Equatorial Africa and Uganda; and of all the Englishmen who have there served, Bishop Ingham, so far, has done so for the longest period. Mrs. Ingham's state of health is the cause of his retirement. He has accepted the incumbency of Stoke-next-Guildford, in Surrey.

The Government having carried out a long-threatened step by cutting off its subsidy towards the Bishop's stipend, the effect has been to place the appointment of Bishop Ingham's successor in the hands of the Archbishop of Canterbury. The stipend is mainly derived from an endowment provided by the Colonial Bishoprics Endowment Fund, and the C.M.S. had no claim to nominate to his Grace. His selection—Archbishop Temple's first episcopal appointment—of Canon John Taylor Smith was therefore a cause of much thankfulness to the Committee. Mr. Taylor Smith was educated at the London College of Divinity, and was ordained to the curacy of St. Paul's, Norwood, in 1885. His remarkable work and influence in that parish were made known to the Committee, and led them in 1890 to invite him to go to East Africa as leader of a party which was then being organized to go up to Uganda. He did not see the Lord's call in that invitation, but when Bishop Ingham at the close of the same year offered to him the post of Diocesan Missioner in Sierra Leone, for which the Society had made a special grant for a term of years, he gladly responded and sailed in 1891. As mentioned last year, he accompanied the Ashanti expedition at the close of 1895 in the capacity of Chaplain to the Troops, and was entrusted with a message from the late lamented Prince Henry of Battenberg to Princess Beatrice, which he delivered at Nice in March, 1896, when he was favoured with several interviews with the Queen and Princess. In December, 1896, he was appointed Honorary Chaplain to the Queen. In one respect he will have the advantage over most of his six predecessors in taking up his work; with the exception of Bishop Weeks, none of them had had previous experience of life in the Colony. Mr. Taylor Smith, who returned to the Mission in September, 1896, came home in April, 1897, on learning that the Archbishop's choice had fallen upon him. His Consecration took place on May 27th (Ascension Day), at St. Paul's Cathedral. Bishop Oluwole was one of the Bishops who assisted in the laying-on of hands, and the preacher was the Rev. Dr. Waller, Principal of St. John's Hall, Highbury. Princess Beatrice showed her interest in the event by being present at the service.

visit to the West Indies in the summer of 1895, and to the hope he entertained that agents for work in the Hinterland of Sierra Leone would in due time be called forth from the West India Islands. The Bishop's favourable report of the prospect of there being young men of African descent desiring to labour for Christ in the Dark Continent from which their ancestors were stolen, led the Committee to devise plans for placing such an opportunity within their reach. A deputation, consisting of Bishop Tugwell and the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson, the latter Assistant-Secretary at the C.M. House, sailed on December 16th, 1896, and returned on February 17th, 1897. Their joint report to the Committee was published in the C.M. Intelligencer for April. It concludes with the expression of their belief "that the scheme is workable, and should be pushed forward at once."

Visit to Sierra Leone of the Rev. F. Baylis.

Bishop Ingham, in his fourth Triennial Charge, delivered in April, 1896, expressed very earnestly the hope that the Society would institute as part of its T.Y.E. review work an inquiry into the position and prospects of the oldest of its Missions. The same was also urged by the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, the Secretary of the Mission, while at home on furlough, and he particularly pressed that the Rev. F. Baylis, the Secretary of the Society specially charged with the administration of the Africa Missions, should be commissioned to make a brief visit to Sierra Leone, in order to see the work and make the personal acquaintance of the workers. Influenced by these proposals, and by the further consideration that in view of the new openings in the Hinterland of the colony and the plans for aggressive evangelistic efforts it seemed desirable to endeavour to gauge the spiritual forces available in the Native Church and to determine what steps might be taken on the Society's part to render them more effectual, the Committee deputed Mr. Baylis to visit Sierra Leone. Their instructions to him were: (1) To make a general inspection of, and to report upon, the condition of the Society's Mission there; and (2) in particular, to inquire and report concerning (a) the missionary work outside Sierra Leone, and (b) the educational institutions of the Society in Sierra Leone, and (c) matters bearing on the relation of the Society's Mission to the Native Church. Mr. Baylis sailed on January 2nd, and returned on March 1st.

Previous visit of a Secretary of the Society in 1816.

The last time that Sierra Leone was visited by an official from Salisbury Square was in 1816, when the Rev. E. Bickersteth, father of the present Bishop of Exeter, went to inquire and report on the prospects of the work. If, simultaneously with his visit to the West Coast, another deputation had proceeded to the West Indies, what would he have seen? The British slave-trade had ceased nine years before, so that England was no longer involved in the traffic which continued active across the Atlantic for many years. But slavery was in full vigour, and the degradation, physical, mental, and spiritual, of the negro was in painful evidence. It should be no cause of wonder that eighty years have not obliterated the marks which previous centuries of wrongs had branded on Africa's children. Rather, it is matter of wonder and praise that the Gospel has come in transforming power to some of them on either side of the Atlantic, and that hopes may be entertained of enlisting reinforcements from the far west to co-operate with their fellows who have remained in Africa in the campaign of light and spiritual freedom.

Reinforcements.

The year's reinforcements to this Mission consisted of a clergyman and a layman: the Rev. William Spiller Cox, B.A., Queen's College and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of St. Mary Magdalene, Peckham; and Mr. Thomas Caldwell, a "short-course" student of Islington College. Mr. Cox's first destination had been for India, with which country he has family associations, but he was eventually assigned to Sierra Leone in order to meet the pressing need of assistance to the Rev. W. J. Humphrey in his duties as Principal of Fourah Bay College and Secretary of the Mission, and with a view to an ultimate division of work. He had a short period of medical training at Livingstone College before going out. Mr. Caldwell sailed in July, 1896, and Mr. Cox in January, 1897. Miss A. J. Long sailed to return to the Mission in September, 1896; the Rev. J. A. and Mrs. Alley in October; and the Rev. W. J. Humphrey in January, 1897. Miss A. J. Edwards and Miss S. Hickmott came home in July, 1896, and Miss C. J. Elwin in March, 1897.

Death of Rev. T. C. Nyländer.

The Rev. T. C. Nyländer, native pastor of Wilberforce, who was admitted to deacon's orders by Bishop Beckles in 1864, and to priest's orders in 1866, died on June 19th, and Mrs. Robbin, wife of Archdeacon Robbin, the native incumbent of Holy Trinity church and parish, Freetown, died on November 17th, 1896. The latter was president, during the last few years of her life, of the Sierra Leone branch of the World's Women's Christian Temperance Union, a movement which was earnestly promoted by Mrs. Ingham.

SIERRA LEONE.

Fourah Bay College.

Mr. T. E. Alvarez was Acting-Secretary of the Mission during the Rev. W. J. Humphrey's absence in England. He was also Acting-Principal of Fourah Bay College. The Rev. E. H. Elwin, whose chief work was at the College, wrote:—

> To have some twenty young men to train for missionary work and for schoolmasters is an inspiration indeed, and it has been my happy work to seek to help them in their studies as well as to seek, above that, the deepening of their spiritual lives. And God has blessed us, especially in this latter respect. At the beginning of this term five men left us for work up-country, and they are an earnest band, and will, I have no doubt, be a great blessing where they are. And now we have a fresh band of thirteen especially for missionary work, and we ask for much prayer that they may go forth full of the Holy Ghost and of faith. We also have men reading for their Durham degree, and a great pleasure it has just been to go through the Durham L.Th. course, and to try to help these men through many difficulties which I myself met with.

Cline Town parish is worked by the staff of the College, and Mr. Elwin refers to the great need of the new church which is in course of erection as a memorial to the late Bishop Crowther. The present building is overcrowded, and when the heat is at 100° it is almost unbearable.

Grammar and Annie Walsh Schools.

The Grammar School passed five pupils, out of ten presented, in the Durham Proficiency Examination, and in a Government competitive Civil Service Examination held in October, out of the seven successful candidates five were Grammar School boys, two of whom headed the list. The pupils' Juvenile Association contributed £31 to the Sierra Leone Missions. Miss H. Bisset resumed charge of the Annie Walsh School in January, 1896, after her return from furlough, and was assisted by Miss C. J. Elwin. The number of girls has risen to 91, of whom 43 are boarders. Of the latter, five are from Fernando Po, and others from the Niger, Lagos, Gold Coast, Liberia, Sherbro, and Gambia, so that it may be said that the whole of the West Coast is represented in the school. One of the girls—the only one presented—obtained the certificate of proficiency in the Durham Examination, and is now a teacher in the school; another teacher taken on the staff during the year was formerly a pupil in the school. A difficulty is found in inducing suitable girls to take up the work of teaching, but it is satisfactory to notice that four of the present senior class are looking forward to such work. Deceit and falsehood are the prevalent and besetting sins with the girls, especially on their first entering the school. The habit of untruthfulness is so ingrained that "they seem scarcely to know what it is to be true or real." The senior pupils, however, and some also of the rest, are a cause of much encouragement. The girls take an interest in working and collecting and giving for the Sierra Leone Church Missions, the Cottage Hospital, and the Mission to the Temnes in the Hinterland.

Native Pastorates

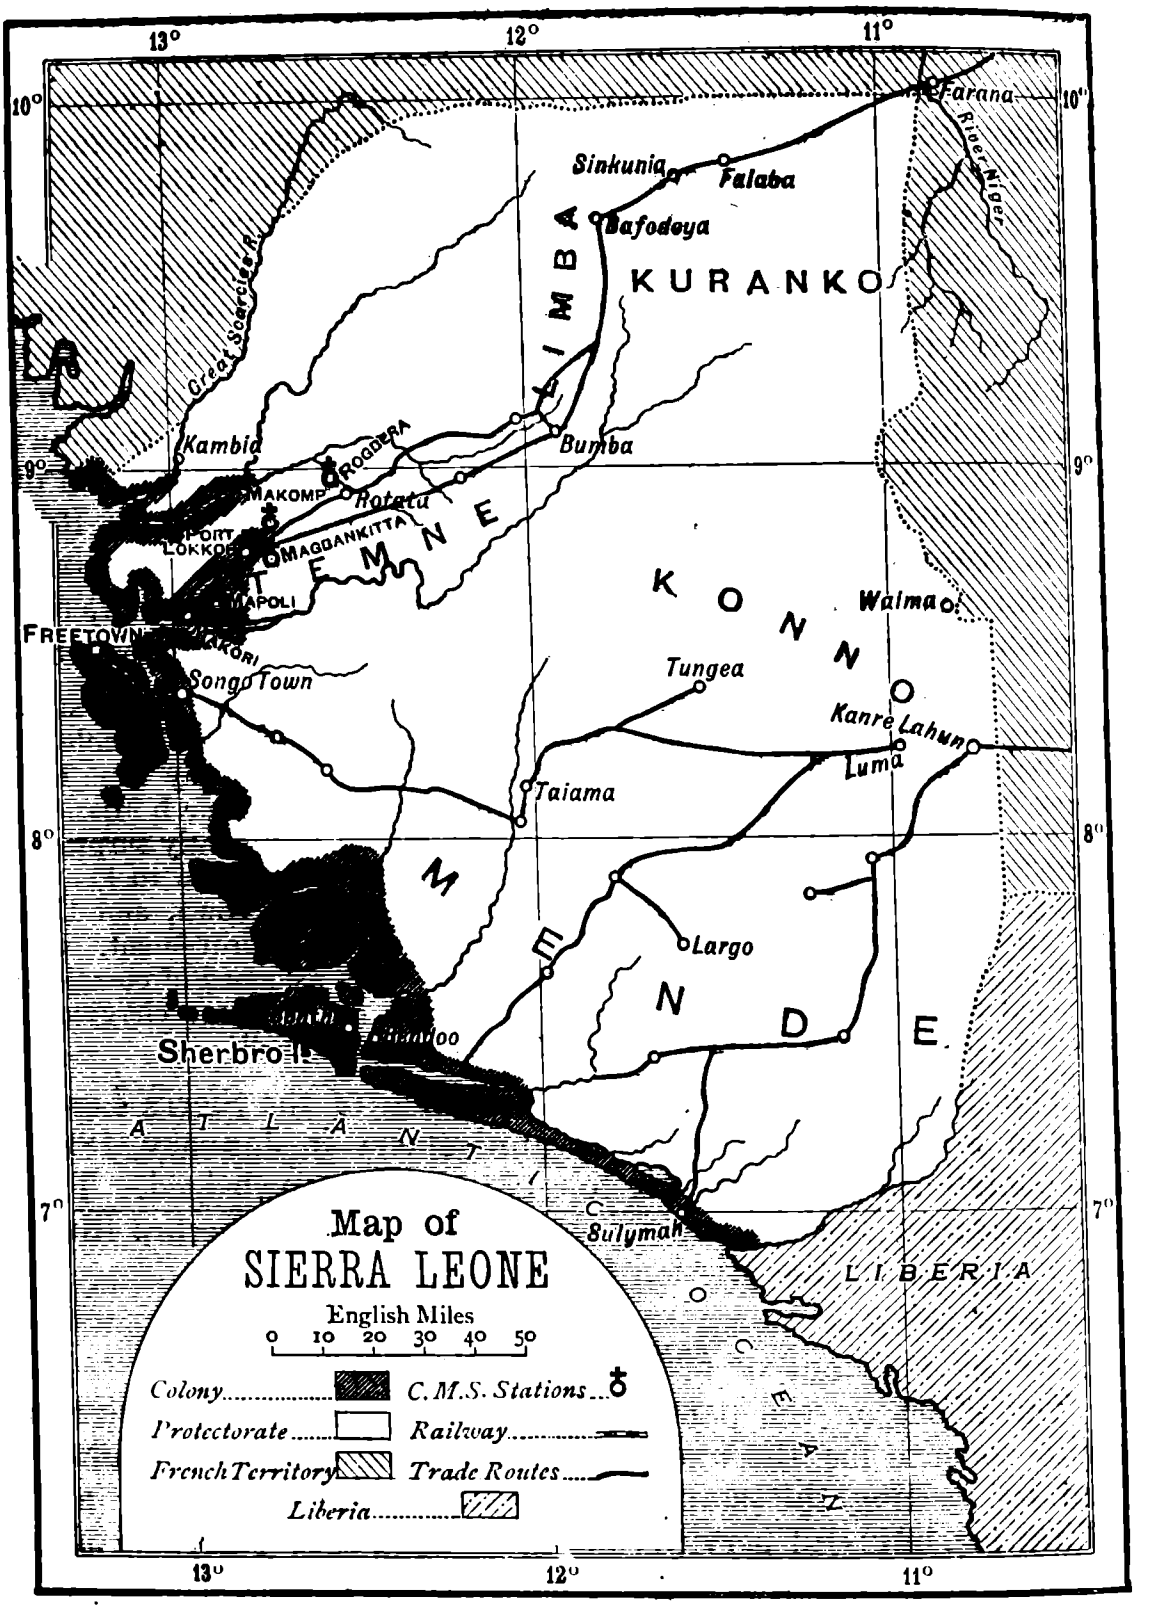
The thirty-fourth annual report of the Sierra Leone Native Pastorate Auxiliary Association, which was presented on April 29th, 1896, states that there were 12 clergy, 86 lay teachers (35 of whom were females), 10,420 Christians, 6,340 communicants, and 3,271 scholars in 34 schools. The sum of £2,100 was contributed, the expenditure amounting to £1,987. Bishop Ingham confirmed 613 candidates in the several pastorates during the year. The report makes mention of a visit paid by Prince Christian Victor to the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital when on his way to the Ashanti campaign. The churches of the Pastorate observe a Hospital Sunday and have collections for this institution, while a sale of work realized £84 for the same good object. On April 12th, 1896, special sermons were preached in the churches of Freetown and adjacent parishes inaugurating the Three Years' Enterprise. The reports from the several districts refer to day and night schools, Sunday-schools, school libraries, Dorcas meetings, cottage meetings, Bible-classes, temperance meetings, &c. One of them refers to Agoogooism, a kind of devil-worship, which receives encouragement, alas! from some who call themselves Christians. A new pastoral district was formed in 1896, named Bishop's Newton. It adjoins the parishes of Waterloo and Benguema, and extends for ten miles eastward. The Sierra Leone Church Missions had an income during the year 1894–5 (the latest report to hand) of £431. The treasurer had as a balance at the end of the year the sum of £346. The sermon was preached by the Rev. W. J. Humphrey, from Rom. vi. 22, and he spoke with much wisdom and courage on the backwardness of the Sierra Leone Church in evangelistic zeal. In the course of it he observed :—

Native Church Missions.

> One thing is very certain. We have for a long time stood still. Nothing has impressed me more than some words of Bishop Oluwole in the Wilberforce Hall fifteen months ago. He had been away from this colony for about fifteen years, and yet he told us that the Church Missions had not taken up a single new station since he left. I was greatly surprised at the time, yet I believe his words were correct. It is true we took over last year a very little place near Benguema, called Akeh Town, and that the state of our funds has latterly shown decided improvement, but practically we have stood still for sixteen years. How ashamed of ourselves we ought to be! I turn to the last report and find we have one clergyman and eight other agents and 216 communicants, and that is all.

Stationary for sixteen years.



The Sherbro Church Mission, a branch of the Sierra Leone Church Missions, celebrated its anniversary in January, 1896, and contributions amounting to £174 were acknowledged. Two native agents working among the Mendes of the Sherbro River are supported by the Mission funds.

TEMNE COUNTRY.

The effort on the part of the Sierra Leone missionaries to excite concern for the unevangelized inhabitants of the Hinterland by visiting the several pastorates of the peninsula and calling for offers of service was mentioned last year, and also the fact that, from the large number of candidates who offered, six were selected for a course of simple training at Fourah Bay College as C.M.S. scholars. In the autumn of 1896 five of these short-course students were sent forth to the work, and much enthusiasm was manifested in their several villages when valedictory meetings were held there to bid them God-speed.

Occupation of New Stations in Hinterland.

This "Forward Movement," as it has been called, was commenced at the beginning of 1896 by sending four African agents into the interior. The Committee's counsel to the Sierra Leone Finance Committee was to concentrate for the present their efforts on the Temne-speaking people, and to advance along the great trade routes through the Temne country. Magbankitta and Ro-Tata were the first stations to be occupied, but the latter was subsequently vacated in favour of Ro-Gbera, about thirty-three miles from Port Lokkoh. The Rev. A. A. Elba accompanied two of the native evangelists in February to introduce them to their work, and the Rev. F. S. Allen followed soon afterwards. The latter had an attack of dysentery in the summer which obliged him to pay a visit to the Canary Islands, but he returned in the autumn. Mr. Elwin, who went up with him and Mr. Caldwell to Ro-Gbera in October, wrote of the very hearty welcome they received, and of the crowded meetings.

During the Rev. J. A. Alley's furlough the Rev. A. A. Elba, of Makomp, where he has laboured for seven years, was in charge at PORT LOKKOH, with its English-speaking (Sierra Leonian) congregation of 100 souls and a smaller one of Temne Christians, besides a day-school of about 60 children. Two adults were baptized. An "enthusiastic Missionary meeting" was held there in October. A woman gave up her idol, or Krifi, declaring that she had worshipped it all her life and found it useless. Miss Edwards and Miss Hickmott were driven home by fever in the summer of 1896; and Mr. Alley returned to Port Lokkoh in November. Makori, on the Port Lokkoh river, is an excellent centre for itineration. Mr. J. B. Nicol, who was a lay reader in Freetown, but volunteered in 1896 to go up-country in connexion with the Forward Movement, is stationed there. Port Lokkoh.

YORUBA MISSION.

From this country, which is 1,000 miles east of Sierra Leone, a large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at the latter place had been carried away. About the year 1840 many of them, having now become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was the establishment of Missions at Badagry (1845) and Lagos (1852) on the coast, and at Abeokuta (1846), Ibadan (1852), Ode Ondo (1876), and other towns and villages in the interior. The Yoruba country (excepting Lagos, which was (and is) within the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Sierra Leone) was a part of the titular diocese of the Bishop of the Niger territories. When, in June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, he received the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa," and at the same time two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as Assistant-Bishops for the Yoruba country. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March.

Unhealthy season on the West Coast.

THE Committee are very sensible of the urgent need for reinforcements in the Yoruba Mission, which has suffered losses through death and sickness. The spring of 1896 was exceptionally unhealthy both at the coast and in the interior. During the first half of the year over twenty Europeans died in Lagos alone, and at one and the same time at Oyo the Rev. F. Melville Jones was nursing a newly-arrived Wesleyan missionary, Mrs. Melville Jones was performing the same kind office for the wife of a Baptist missionary, and two Roman Catholic missionaries succumbed to fever. The C.M.S. Mission lost a native clergyman and a European layman, both at Lagos. The Rev. E. S. Willoughby, native pastor of St. Peter's Church, Faji, died on April 24th, 1896. His death was due to a cold caught during Divine Service on the previous Easter Day, which developed into pneumonia. His last words, Bishop Phillips wrote, were a request that Psalm xxxi. might be read to him. Mr. Arthur Smith's death occurred on May 23rd, 1896. In response to a special appeal for urgently needed help he had gone forth at short notice from Islington College in October, 1895. His first fever proved fatal, and his illness was of only four days' duration. Both these deaths were mentioned, but barely mentioned, and one only in a footnote, in the Report for 1895–6. But besides these, the Mission has lost through sickness the Rev. and Mrs. F. G. Toase, who came home in June and felt it their duty to resign; and Mr. T. Jays, who only returned to the Mission after furlough in January, 1896, and had to come home again in consequence of a severe attack of blackwater fever in July of the same year. Mr. Jays is now engaged in qualifying (without expense to the Society) with a view to medical work in the Mission-field.

Deaths of Rev. E. S. Willoughby, and of Mr. A. Smith.

The only recruit sent out to the Mission during the year was Miss Mary Harrison, who sailed in December. She received her training at the Highbury Home, but was obliged by ill-health to return home again in April. Miss J. J. Thomas came home at the same time. In July, 1896, the following missionaries returned to the Mission:—Mr. J. McKay, Mr. E. Fry, Miss E. Ballson, Miss S. C. Grover, Miss A. J. Hudson, and Miss P. Leach.

Bishop Tugwell proceeded soon after his marriage in February, 1896, to visit the Niger Mission, leaving Mrs. Tugwell at Lagos. He returned to the latter place in June, and in September he and Mrs. Tugwell arrived in this country. The Bishop's intention was to make only a very brief visit of two or three months, but it was prolonged under the advice of the Society's medical advisers, and in December he responded to the request of the Committee to accompany the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson as a deputation to the West Indies, as already mentioned in previous sections of this Report.

Ordinations.

On Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896, Bishop Oluwole admitted Mr. Robert A. Coker to deacons' orders; on October 18th, in St. Paul's Church, Breadfruit, he admitted Messrs. James A. Braithwaite, Simeon A. Coker, and Joseph Marshall Freeman, B.A., Durham University, to deacons' orders; and on February 14th, 1897, he admitted Mr. Adolphus Williamson Howells, B.A., L.Th., of Durham University, to deacons' orders, and the Revs. R. S. Oyebode, J. Okuseinde, and R. A. Coker to priests' orders. All these ordinations took place at Lagos. Bishop Oluwole made several visits to interior stations during the year. In January, 1896, he made a tour from Ibadan to Oyo, and itinerated with the Rev. S. Johnson in the unevangelized districts around, preaching and showing Gospel pictures with the lantern. In June he visited Ijebu Ode; in August he went to Leke; and in September to Abeokuta. In November he paid a visit to the Niger. He returned to Lagos from the Niger on January 4th. Bishop Phillips spent February, March, and April at Lagos, and the remainder of the year at Ode Ondo. Bishops Phillips and Oluwole came to England in April, 1897.

The Rev. J. B. Wood * performed the onerous duties of the secretariat from Abeokuta until August, making visits to Lagos from time to time. In August the Rev. T. Harding relieved him of these duties and removed temporarily from Ibadan to Lagos for the purpose.

LAGOS.

Lagos.

An elaborate printed report, with numerous statistical tables, by the Government Inspector of Schools in the Colony of Lagos, Mr. Henry Carr, of the schools submitted to inspection in his district during the year 1895, has been received. The total number of schools included in the report is 56, with 3,276 children on the register. Of these, 25 schools and 1,720 children are classed as Anglican, namely, C.M.S.; 14, with 671 children, as Wesleyan; 15, with 762 children, as Roman Catholic; and 2, with 123 children, as "United Native African." The number of Mohammedan and Heathen children at the schools is returned as 427 and 527 respectively, of whom 271 and 279 are in C.M.S. schools, 105 and 125 in Wesleyan schools, 25 and 91 in Roman Catholic schools, and 26 and 32 respectively in United Native African schools. The total number presented in the several standards was 1,073, and the proportion of passes obtained to the number obtainable was 76 per cent.: in the C.M.S. schools it was 76·8 per cent.; in the Wesleyan, 72·8; in the Roman Catholic, 78·5; and in the United Native African, 67. The financial statistics are interesting, but some of the heads do not fully explain themselves. The total income of the schools was £4,047, including balances brought forward of £415. School fees amounted to £985 (C.M.S. £486); Government grant, £1,064 (C.M.S. £506); grants from Societies, £1,248 (C.M.S. £107; Wesleyan, £357; Roman Catholic, £710); collections, £129 (C.M.S. £110, and the rest Wesleyan); donations, subscriptions, &c., £170, of which over £169 was for C.M.S. schools.

* The sad news of the death of the Rev. J. B. Wood is received as these sheets go to press.

Christ Church, Faji.

The duties of the pastorate of Christ Church, Faji, were shared for a few weeks in the spring, while the Rev. F. G. Toase was absent on a health trip to Sierra Leone, by Bishops Phillips and Oluwole; then on Mr. Toase returning home Bishop Oluwole had charge until August, when the Rev. T. Harding undertook the responsibility as a temporary arrangement. The congregation averages 240 on Sunday mornings and 160 in the evening. Bishop Oluwole had charge of the Training Institution and the Grammar School also until August, when Mr. A. H. Howells, native tutor at the Grammar School, was appointed Acting Principal of the former Institution, and Mr. Fanimokun, Acting Principal of the Grammar School. The Girls' Seminary, during the absence of Miss Ballson, was under Miss C. C. Boyton, who had the assistance of five native teachers, one of whom received her training at the Annie Walsh School, Sierra Leone, and three are old Seminary girls. There are five classes. The work is to a great extent, to Miss Boyton's regret, carried on in English, but the lower classes are taught in Yoruba. Twelve of the girls are boarders. Instances of untruthfulness and of deceit, as at the Annie Walsh School, are sadly common, and a readiness to be satisfied with a merely nominal Christianity characterizes too many of the girls, but some show by their lives that they are earnestly seeking to follow Christ. A Sowers' Band was commenced during the year as a means of promoting the object of the Three Years' Enterprise. Some of the elder girls accompany the teachers in visiting the Hospital and the Poor House, and appear to take an interest in the inmates. The Bookshop is under the management of Mr. F. Terry, who returned to the Mission in November, 1896.

Girls' Seminary.

The Rev. D. Coker has accepted the pastorate of St. Peter's, Lagos, and his place at Badagry has been taken by Mr. Ajayi, who was previously engaged at the Lagos Training Institution. The Badagry congregation is described by Mr. Harding as "just alive." Indolence, apathy, selfishness, carelessness, and discord characterize too many of the members. Badagry.

IJEBU ODE was visited by Bishop Oluwole in June and July, 1896, and he wrote :— Ijebu Ode.

> We rejoiced to see what we saw, but long for much more. The whole of the Jebu country needs our prayers, but particularly our catechumens. Polygamy is a strong system in that country, and presents no ordinary difficulties. There are candidates for baptism, but much care is necessary in the administration of the rite. At a private interview we had with a select few, they came out with their difficulties, and asked our prayers not only for strength of will, but for God's guidance to find the way out. Cases of persecution are not wanting, but we are thankful for grace given to endure. Still, it is a point which calls for prayer. We also gathered that there is just now a great rush into Mohammedanism, a religion favoured by the chiefs. This is a loud call for immediate and strong missionary efforts.

The Rev. R. A. Coker, one of the new deacons, accompanied the Bishop, and remained at Ijebu Ode. He baptized 42 adult converts at Iwade in September, the first-fruits of that station; six other adults were baptized a few days later.

ABEOKUTA.

The veteran superintendent of the work at Abeokuta and in the district around, the Rev. J. B. Wood,* had an attack of fever of unwonted severity in his experience in the autumn of 1896. Mrs. Wood also a short while before suffered severely from fever. Happily both were raised up and enabled to resume their manifold labours of love. Miss H. J. Duncum was the only other European at the station until the arrival of Mr. Fry and Miss Hudson in August, 1896. Miss Duncum had charge for a time of the dispensary work. There is a Sunday-class of inquirers, led to become so while under treatment in the dispensary. Abeokuta.

The Abeokuta Native Pastorate Auxiliary celebrated its seventh anniversary in Ake church in September, 1896, under the presidency of Bishop Oluwole. Mr. Wood reported as follows on the progress of the congregations during the year :— Native Church.

> Taking into view the general tone of the reports sent to the Church Council by those in charge of the churches, there has been, I think, spiritual growth during the past year. There has been self-denial on the part of not a few, otherwise our funds would not have proved to be so satisfactory as they are, for trade has been very bad, and many have found it hard to make a living. There is a growing sense of responsibility for the welfare of the Church, for the need of raising the means for its working expenses; the duty of making Christ known to the many thousands who are yet in ignorance of the blessings which come through faith in Him. At the same time, it must be said, there are very many who are very negligent Growing sense of responsibility.

regarding this duty. And on the part of some, and, I think, an increasing number, there is more readiness to separate from any connexion with what is inconsistent with the profession of the Gospel.

The communicants in the district are 1,168, as compared with 1,031 in 1895; the adherents 3,619, as compared with 3,222; the adults baptized were 89, as compared with 77 in the previous year.

In 1895 the total of voluntary offerings was £1,004; in 1896 it was £1,040. There has been an increase in the pastorate income; the sum received in 1895 was £473, and in 1896 it was £515. This not only covers the reduction on the amount of the C.M.S. grant-in-aid, but leaves something substantial over.

During his visit Bishop Oluwole confirmed 94 candidates in Abeokuta and the neighbouring hamlets or farms. At Isan, one of the farm out-stations, the Rev. D. O. Williams, who accompanied the Bishop, baptized fifteen adults, four of whom, together with eleven others, were amongst the confirmees. Mr. Fadipe (see Annual Report for 1894–95, page 63) is referred to as itinerating over a considerable area. The Rev. J. J. Ransome Kuti has the pastoral charge of these farm congregations, working under the Rev. S. W. Doherty, of Igbore.

IBADAN, OYO, AND OGBOMOSO.

Ibadan.

The Rev. and Mrs. T. Harding and Miss J. J. Thomas were the European missionaries at IBADAN until July, when Mr. and Mrs. Harding went, as already mentioned, to Lagos, and Miss S. C. Grover and Miss P. Leach joined Miss Thomas at Ibadan. During Bishop Oluwole's visit in January, 1896, he held special Mission services daily in Kudeti church, and gave Bible readings to the workers; he also confirmed eighteen candidates. The Rev. D. Olubi describes a jubilee procession (in celebration of the 50th year since the Yoruba Mission was commenced) which took place on December 17th, 1895, when he led the members of the three C.M.S. congregations in Ibadan to the compounds into which Mr. Hinderer was first conducted when he entered the town in 1851. The congregation collected £9 for the B. and F.B.S.; and in November, 1896, the sum of £11 18*s.* 5*d.* was given at a united harvest thanksgiving service. A new Dispensary was opened in April, and in the six months following 2,940 cases were treated, and a Sunday class for the patients was well attended. Miss Leach on her return to Ibadan assumed charge of this work, which Miss Thomas had meantime carried on. The latter refers to its value as a missionary agency:—

A woman crawls on hands and knees to church.

> Want of space forbids me to speak of many interesting cases, but we have cause to thank God daily for one poor woman brought out of heathen darkness through Mr. Jay's teaching and medical care. She is so covered with disease that she can only crawl about on hands and knees, and yet unless seriously ill she regularly attends church and class, and is always ready to show her gratitude by helping us in any small way. I have now known her for two and a half years, but I have never heard an impatient or grumbling word from her. "Tini" is indeed a bright example of one who lets her light shine.

The ladies visit and teach in the schools, hold mothers' meetings, &c.

The Training Institution at Oyo was opened by the Rev. F. Melville Jones with his students in April, 1896, in temporary quarters, pending the erection of proper buildings to consist of Principal's house, schoolroom, class-room, and students' rooms. Three of the youths proved disappointing in different ways, and left the class. Mr. Melville Jones says of the rest :— Oyo Training Institution.

Of the remainder some give good promise of becoming earnest, useful workers, and there is room for hope that all may do well. Living in such close contact with them, we cannot help seeing many flaws in their characters, and one often seems to do as much fault-finding as anything else. Very plainly we can see that all have their faults, and yet all have their good points as well. The question often comes to us, "What kind of agents will they make?" and we pray and work that through the Holy Spirit's power they may prove fit instruments for God's work.

Twice a week Mr. Jones goes out with the class for street-preaching; and in the autumn he spent three days with them at each of two villages near to Oyo, where they visited from house to house, preached in the open air, had lantern meetings, and had seasons of Bible-study. At one of these villages, Akimorin, the people were very attentive, and appeared to understand their message. One case in particular is mentioned by Mr. Jones :—

A man came to us, bringing an old woman with him, and said he had seen the pictures, and heard what we had said, and he knew it was all true, and he wanted to give up his idols and serve Jesus only. We talked with him awhile, and found him really in earnest. He seemed to have a real sense of sin, and of the need of a Saviour. He promised to come to see us again before we left. Both he and the woman came two days after, and then we told them that if they really trusted Jesus there was no need for them to keep their idols, so they brought them to us. The man was a worshipper of Ifa (the oracular god of the country), and the woman of Osun (a river of that name worshipped). The former told us he had long ago lost faith in his idol, but he had never before heard of any one to take its place. He was much struck with what Jesus had suffered for him, the pictures of the Crucifixion having brought it vividly before him. We taught him a little prayer, in which was the petition, "Forgive me my sins"; he corrected this with much emphasis into, "Forgive me all my sins," and nothing but that way of putting it would satisfy him. Again, the first time we said the prayer to him we ended with, "For the sake of Jesus, Thy Son, Who died for us." The second time we unintentionally omitted the last clause, but he added the words again of his own accord, "Who died for me," pointing to himself with such a smile of joy upon his face. They promised to come and see us in Oyo, and the woman has since been, and is as earnest as ever; the man, however, is a chief in the village, and fears the opposition of his people if he comes out too boldly. He wants to be a secret believer. "Who died for me."

Mr. McKay on his return from furlough was stationed temporarily at Oyo. Mr. T. Jays was at Ogbomoso a few weeks, from March to May, when he was seized with the fever which drove him back to England. The Rev. F. L. Akiele, a native deacon, reports several inquirers, one of whom gave up his ifa to him, thus renouncing Heathenism, and another, when his wife threatened to desert him if he became a Christian, said he would rather give up his wife than his Saviour.

ODE ONDO AND ILESA.

Ode Ondo. On St. Stephen's Day, 1895, Bishop Phillips baptized sixteen adults at ODE ONDO, and on New Year's Day he confirmed nine candidates. These services, he says, formed part of the local celebration of the Jubilee of the Yoruba Mission, and the thank-offerings on New Year's Day amounted to £38 11*s.* 6*d.* The Bishop was absent from Ode Ondo from January, 1896, until the following May, on a visit to Lagos, when the Rev. E. M. Lijadu was in charge of the work. The Bishop considers that the congregation manifest signs of progress in Christian faithfulness as well as in liberality. They are more firm in maintaining their principles, and more zealous in communicating the knowledge of the Gospel to the Heathen. Mr. Lijadu's testimony is to the same effect. He instances an occasion when the church elders called in a body on a member of the church who had decorated his house in order to join in the general display connected with the national festivities in honour of Ogun, the god of war, and Ora, the god of harvest. The congregation contributed altogether for religious purposes the sum of £91 7*s.* 10*d.* Men's and Women's Christian Associations serve to knit the bonds of Christian fellowship, and to preserve from heathen companions; they also foster works of charity, relieving the sick, &c. Mr. D. Daboku, the Ondos' "Own Missionary," continues to labour at Oke Igbo, where there are 22 catechumens and 16 school-children. At Saba's Farm there is a spirit of inquiry in the household of one of the chiefs, who is fourth in rank from the King of Ondo, and a strenuous opponent of the Gospel. Indeed, there are converts in the households of no less than four out of the six highest chiefs, including the king's household. The Bishop baptized four adults at Aiyesan in January, 1896.

Decided attitude of Christians.

Ilesa. At ILESA a man who is a Christian in name has been installed as king of the Ijesa tribe—the first instance, Bishop Phillips says, of a Christian being made king over any of the tribes in Yoruba-land. He was one who was rescued from slavery and taken to Sierra Leone, where he was baptized over forty years ago. He was elected to succeed to the throne in 1894 (see Annual Report for 1894–95, page 65), but his instalment did not take place till April, 1896. He, however, is a polygamist, and this sad fact counterbalances in a large degree the otherwise good influence he endeavours to exercise in inducing the chiefs to attend Divine Service, to refrain from Sunday labour, and to send their children to school. Bishop Phillips baptized six adults, four men and two women, in August. The debt of £30 remaining, as mentioned last year, on the new church has been removed by means of generous help rendered by Christians at Lagos. A harmonium was subscribed for (£12) by the congregation.

Ekiti country.

Bishop Phillips says that the account of his visits to the Ekiti country which was published in the C.M. Intelligencer, together with a map which he prepared, aroused great interest among Government officials at Lagos, and Governor Carter at once sent Major Ewart to explore that district. Major Ewart's farthest point was Afuji, a town only four days' journey from Asaba, on the Niger. The Bishop met him in June at Ode Ondo, and was glad to learn that the map had been found to be "pretty correct." Ijero and Ado are the two out-stations in the Ekiti country. At the former there are six communicants and 32 inquirers. The chiefs at Ado have hindered the work by their hostility; but at Ise, where no agent has yet been placed, there is a little body of Christians, immigrants from other towns, who are making their influence felt.

NIGER MISSION.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave (who in 1864 was consecrated Bishop of the Niger), explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, and found the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied by African teachers, under the direction of the Bishop—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Gbebe, reoccupied, 1879; Okrika, 1884; Ido, reoccupied, 1887; Ogbonoma, 1888; and Obotshi, 1890. Bishop Crowther continued to labour zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. (For account of Bishop Crowther's successors see notes at head of "Yoruba Mission.")

The superstitions of the people, and demoralization caused by the increasing European liquor traffic and by the general low tone of Christianity on the West African Coast, have proved formidable obstacles to the spread of the Gospel; but more than 4,000 persons have been baptized, including several influential chiefs, and some of the converts have exhibited Christian fortitude in enduring persecution, and liberality in contributing to the building of Mission churches, &c. At Bonny the once famous idol temple, decorated with human skulls, has been destroyed. Nevertheless, a higher standard of Christian life is much needed.

In 1890 a party of Missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Soudan. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home, but others followed after a short interval, and itinerations have been made in the direction of Sokoto.

REFERENCE has already been made under Africa (vide supra, page 63) to the terrible calamity which overtook several officers of the Niger Coast Protectorate and others at Benin, on January 5th, 1897, and to the punitive expedition which was immediately sent to attack that place, and which took it after considerable resistance on February 18th; and also to the expedition sent by the Royal Niger Company against the Nupes, which succeeded in occupying Bida on January 29th. Both these events are likely to prove of great importance in opening up new territories to the Gospel. The former lies only a few miles to the south of the direct route from Ode Ondo to Asaba, and Bishop Phillips's tour in the Ekiti country in 1894 (see preceding page) must have taken him far in the direction of Benin, while Bishop Oluwole, on his way to visit the Niger Mission in November, 1896, called at Benin, and made inquiries both there and at Warri as to the possibilities of opening a station in the Benin district.

New openings in Benin and Nupe.

Bida, on the other hand, is the capital of Nupe, a suzerain province of the Empire of Sokoto, the ruling race of which are Fulahs, but the inhabitants are Hausas. The Sultan of Sokoto put his territories under the protection of Great Britain in 1885, and granted to the Royal Niger Company a monopoly of the trade. Bida was visited by Bishop Crowther in 1857 and 1886; by the late Rev. J. A. Robinson, Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby, and

Mr. J. J. Williams in 1891; again by Dr. Battersby and Mr. Williams in 1892; and by Bishop Tugwell and Mr. Williams, as mentioned in last year's Report, in 1895. The effect of the treaty made by Sir G. Taubman Goldie with the new Emir was to place the part of Nupe which is south of the Niger River under direct British administration, while Prince Markum will administer the remainder under the direction of the Royal Niger Company.

Interview with Sir G. Taubman Goldie.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview with Sir George Taubman Goldie, K.C.M.G., Governor of the Royal Niger Company, in July, 1896. They were specially glad to hear him express his own conviction and that of the Directors of the Company that the liquor traffic, if developed, would be fatal to the progress of civilization and the development of trade in the Niger territories. He described the measures adopted by the Company for the restriction and, so far as possible, the prohibition of the traffic, and assured the Committee that there was no likelihood of the Company's departing from the policy hitherto followed in this matter.

Bishop Tugwell's visit to Keffi.

Bishop Tugwell, after his marriage at Lagos in February, 1896, arrived at Onitsha in March, and proceeded from that place to Lokoja with Mr. L. H. W. Nott, who was on his way back from home after furlough, and thence up the Binue to Loko, and forward by land to Keffi. They returned to Lokoja in April, arriving on the 24th. The Bishop came down the river soon afterwards, calling at Onitsha and Brass, and reached Lagos in June. Bishop Oluwole, at Bishop Tugwell's request, visited the Niger Mission in November. He arrived at Akassa on the 21st of that month, and left it again, after visiting the stations up the river, on December 20th.

Ordinations.

On Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896, Bishop Tugwell admitted the Rev. J. Spencer to priest's orders, and Messrs. P. A. Bennett and J. J. Williams to deacons' orders, at Onitsha. Bishop Oluwole admitted the Revs. J. L. Macintyre and E. F. Wilson-Hill to priests' orders and Mr. Obadiah Thomas to deacon's orders at Lokoja, on December 13th, and on the following Sunday, December 20th, at Asaba, he admitted the Rev. P. A. Bennett to priest's orders.

Reinforcements.

The two who were ordained priests by Bishop Oluwole at Lokoja in December were among the year's recruits. Mr. John Lester Macintyre and Mr. Ernest Frederick Wilson-Hill, of Islington College, were admitted to deacons' orders by the Bishop of London at St. Paul's Cathedral on May 31st, 1896. The other reinforcements were Miss Ellen Dennis (sister of the Rev. T. J. Dennis, of this Mission) and Miss Mary Helen Holbrook, both trained at the Highbury Training Home. All the above sailed together in July, 1896. The Rev. N. Hamlyn was married at Lagos, on January 1st, 1897, to Miss Isabel Rogers, who went out from England and met him at that place. Miss R. E. Frisby (who has since resigned) and Miss A. L. Wilson came home in July, 1896; the Rev. T. J. Dennis, Mrs. P. A. Bennett, Miss E. A. Warner, and Miss L. M. Maxwell in February, 1897; and Mr. E. A. J. Thomas in March, 1897. Miss Wilson returned to the Mission in December, 1896.

The Rev. H. H. Dobinson*, the Secretary of the Mission, has been appointed Archdeacon of the Niger by Bishop Tugwell.

DELTA AND LOWER NIGER.

Niger Delta Pastorate.

The Committee in October, 1896, approved a revised draft Constitution of the Niger Delta Pastorate Church, and instructed that any steps necessary on the part of the Church Missionary Society to give effect thereto should be taken as opportunity might offer. The Archbishop of Canterbury has also given his formal approval of the Constitution. Thus happily has terminated the separation, arising in part, doubtless, from misunderstanding, between the native clergy of Bonny and the immediate neighbourhood and the C.M.S. Bishop Hill, encouraged thereto by the late Archbishop Benson, strove very earnestly to bring about a revival of mutual intercourse, and Bishop Tugwell has been privileged to see his own patient and persevering labours in the same direction crowned with complete success. Accordingly, the names of the clergy, and the statistics of the congregations so far as reported, which disappeared from the Society's Annual Report of 1891–2, are restored again in the present Report. The clergy are the following:—Archdeacon Dandeson Coates Crowther, son of the late Bishop Crowther, who was ordained deacon in 1870; the Rev. James Boyle, ordained in 1881; the Rev. Hugh Stowell Macaulay, grandson of Bishop Crowther, ordained 1887; and the Rev. Josiah Antonius Pratt, ordained by Bishop Ingham in 1893. The latest report to hand is contained in the Delta Pastorate Chronicle for 1895, a book of eighty pages. There are seven districts: that of Bonny contains three churches, namely, St. Stephen's Cathedral, St. Clement's, and St. James's, Peterside, and four chapels; the district of New Calabar has one church and one chapel; the Okrika district has one temporary church; and the Opobo district has two churches and fifteen chapels. Altogether, there are seven churches and twenty-one chapels; the farthest inland being about one hundred miles from the coast. Six of the congregations average more than a hundred, viz., St.

* While these pages are passing through the press tidings arrive by telegram that Archdeacon Dobinson died on April 13th. Dr. C. F. Harford-Battersby offered in the emergency to go out for a short time until Bishop Tugwell is permitted to return, and he sailed on May 29th.

Stephen's, 1,000; St. James's, Peterside, 250; St. Andrew's, New Calabar, 130; St. Peter's, Okrika, 215; St. Paul's, Opobo, 900; St. John's, Queenstown, 320; and Akwete chapel, 150. On Christmas Day, 1895, the attendances at St. Stephen's Cathedral numbered over 2,000, and on the following Sunday 2,500 are said to have been present. In connexion with this congregation there are day and Sunday schools, the latter largely attended by adults; night-school; three classes weekly for catechumens; and a monthly missionary prayer-meeting. Mrs. Crowther, wife of the Archdeacon, has a Girls' Home under her charge, with eleven inmates, three of whom are survivors of twin couples rescued in 1880, 1882, and 1888. This congregation's contributions were: balance of church collection, £39 18*s.* 2*d.*; thankofferings, £40 19*s.*; class fees, £165 14*s.* 3*d.*; annual subscriptions, £50 8*s.* 3*d.*; balance of school fees, £13 13*s.* The Bible and Communion Service Book in use at St. Stephen's were originally presented to Dr. J. C. Wigram, Bishop of Rochester, for use in the chapel of Danbury Palace, by some of his congregation on his leaving the rectory of St. Mary's, Southampton, and subsequently were presented by the Bishop's son, through the Rev. F. E. Wigram, to Bishop Crowther for the Cathedral Church at Bonny. Okrika has been without a resident agent since 1893, two or three Christian chiefs having conducted the Sunday services. The former chapel fell down, and a new one was erected; but the old Mission-house, left without human inhabitant, had fallen a prey to the elements, and had become a haunt of wild beasts, for a leopard made the place its habitation for a time; moreover, the Heathen had cast into its compound persons suffering from small-pox and other contagious diseases.

St. Stephen's congregation.

The Rev. James Johnson, the much-respected native pastor of Breadfruit, Lagos, after his visit to Bonny in company with Bishop Tugwell in September, 1895 (see last year's Report, page 86), wrote an interesting account of Bonny: its past history, its degrading superstitions, its cruel practices, the introduction of the Gospel, the severe persecution of the early converts, and the state of the pastorate as he found it. This was published in the C. M. Intelligencer for January, 1897. It appears from it that the Bonny inhabitants originally came from the east of the Opobo River, and belong to the Ibo race. Received at first as fugitives and refugees by the hospitable Idzo-speaking inhabitants, the chiefs and freeborn classes among the new-comers adopted the Idzo language, which is now regarded as the language of Bonny, although the bulk of the people still speak Ibo. A prejudice against the Ibo language as that of the slave community has led many of the chiefs and heads of houses to take exception to vernacular teaching in the schools. The refugees, growing strong, rose against their benefactors, raided upon them, and delivered them to the European slave-traders, and called the town Ubale or Ubani, the name of their own original territory in interior Ibo, which Europeans corrupted to "Bonny."

Brass. Sir John Kirk's report on the disturbances which took place at BRASS in 1895 (see last year's Annual Report, page 86) showed that the Natives had some ground for the discontent which prompted them to the acts of lawlessness for which they were punished. In recognition of the services rendered by the Royal Niger Company in the interior, in 1886 the command of the Niger mouth and of a strip of territory on either side of the river extending to the area where its proper territory begins was granted. The Brass middleman lying immediately without the pale of the Company's influence is, in order to reach his natural trade route, the Niger, compelled to cross the Company's frontier and pay duties practically prohibitory to native trade. Mr. H. Proctor wrote in September :—

> No relief has yet been given to the people by the British Government, although more than a year has elapsed since an official inquiry was made. The people are still shut out of their natural markets, but are patiently waiting the long-delayed help. They are not a vindictive people, although it may appear so by their late actions ; all they desire to have is fair play, and an opportunity to trade and so to live. Much of their land is quite incapable of cultivation, being a swamp of mud and mangroves, and so trading is living, and no markets means starvation to a greater or less degree.

People embittered by a sense of wrongs. As a consequence of their sense of wrongs the people's minds are embittered against the white man and against Christianity, which they regard as the white man's religion. The leaders of their ju-ju superstitions are in more request than ever, and sacrifices are more frequent than was wont. Regarding the trade in spirits the Rev. N. Hamlyn writes :—

Trade in spirits.

> The new house I now occupy overlooks the river. I am able to see the trading canoes of the Natives go up and down, to and from the traders' stores. Often the sight of those canoes fills my heart with sadness. They go up to the trading beaches filled with palm-oil and kernels, the produce of the country ; they come back laden with cases of gin. These go to the village of Gbobokiri, where there is a Christian population. Some speak of this detestable traffic as being good for the trade of the country ; yet only this week I was told by a native trader that the import of gin has paralyzed the natural trade of the country, by bringing to the people that which unfits them for regular legitimate trade. How much we need the constant, earnest, and faithful prayers of God's people against this evil !

An unsatisfactory congregation. Mr. Hamlyn resides at Brass Tuwon, at the mouth of the Brass River, and he reports that the congregation at St. Barnabas' Church does not increase, and the contributions show rather a falling-off. While a large proportion of the adult population have been baptized, many of them in their infancy, the number of full Church members is only eight, those who adopt the country custom of marriage—a very frail bond—and refuse to be married in church being, of course, not admitted to the privilege of full communion. Of the eight just mentioned two were married as Heathen before their conversion, so are not required to be married in church, and two are widows. There are no classes for confirmation candidates, but Mr. Hamlyn has a small class of three boys whom he is preparing for baptism, one of whom was the only Christian in his village, and suffered persecution from the Heathen because he would not give up attending church. Mr. Hamlyn prepared for baptism and baptized five Yoruba men, soldiers in the Niger Coast Protectorate force, in August. The school, under a young Lagos schoolmaster, maintains its ground, the boys acquitting themselves fairly well in respect of Scripture knowledge, and in reading both Idzo and English. Brass Nembe is between twenty and thirty miles from the sea, up a perfect maze of creeks. There the congregation doubled during the year, averaging at the close about one hundred. Mr. H. Proctor visited it fortnightly from Tuwon, staying three or four days each time, and between June and September of 1896 he spent most of his time there. The chiefs, while the Mission-launch was out of use, sent their gig-canoes with boys to fetch him, and showed their kindly feeling by frequent gifts of food. Here, however, even more openly than at Tuwon, polygamy is practised by those attending the services, and who were baptized in former years. The school is under a young Native of Brass, and has increased in numbers. Itineration is scarcely possible at present, as the people regard with the greatest suspicion any effort to approach new villages, and refuse to show the waterways. An engineer, Mr. R. Taylor, sent out from this country to work the launch for a time, arrived in June. Mr. E. A. J. Thomas spent three months, from May till July, 1896, at Agberi, a river station of the R.N. Company, where the Idzo language is spoken. Owing to the lowness of the river in April it took him twenty-three days to reach this place from Onitsha, a fortnight of which was spent on a sand-bank. A missionary had never been seen at the place before in the memory of the people, and they asked whether the Lord Jesus Christ belonged to the Company! Mr. Thomas was saddened to see the gin-drinking propensity of the people.

Polygamy practised by professing Christians

A missionary never seen before.

The Rev. H. H. Dobinson arrived at ONITSHA after furlough in March, 1896. Bishop Oluwole in December confirmed 28 candidates, all except two members of Christ Church congregation by the waterside, of which the Rev. A. C. Strong is the native pastor; and Mr. Strong baptized 36 adults. Through the kindness of the Royal Niger Company a house has been procured at a nominal rent for Mr. Strong in the midst of the waterside population, and a school has been opened in his compound, of which the church committee have the management and pay the teacher's salary. Immanuel Church, in Onitsha proper, is in charge of a catechist, and has a congregation of about 70. A number of young men have earnestly set themselves to read about Christianity, and their influence is proving considerable against prevalent heathen ceremonies. Archdeacon Dobinson wrote:—

Heathen festivals on the decline.

Some of those who were prominent in heathen dances and ceremonies cannot now be got by their old companions to take their part. In one case the "band" has suffered because one of the chief pipe-players prefers to "study book" to blowing the pipes. A few days ago a good number of the older men met together to discuss the state of affairs in their village. They came to the conclusion that things were going to the bad rapidly. Now they are falling back (!) because their village was not forward as formerly in keeping up heathen festivals and dancings. What was to be done? This "book" business and church was spoiling their town. Some proposed that a law should be made to prevent all children or persons going to school or church. This was, however, negatived, and it was decided generally to allow everyone to do as he liked with his own family.

The Girls' Training School, under Miss E. A. Warner, and since her departure under Misses M. Holbrook and E. Dennis, has twenty boarders and five day pupils. The mornings from 8.30 to 1 P.M. are spent over books, and the afternoons in needlework, housework, washing and ironing, &c. An old Annie Walsh School girl gives assistance in the school. Miss L. M. Maxwell had charge of the Dispensary, which is open on two days of each week, when often some 130 attend on one day. Special classes for the dispensary patients are held by a catechist.

Obusi.

OBUSI, formerly spelt OBOTSHI, is the sphere of an extending work. The congregation increased from 49 to 82, and altogether at the centre and various out-stations over 250 hear the Gospel preached every Sabbath. The school has grown in like manner from eight children to 25, and a new school has been opened. Seven scholars were baptized; five of them were "house children" (some of these are as old as seventeen, however), and had had the benefit of Mrs. Bennett's teaching. Mr. Bennett attributes the progress in a large degree to the medical work he has been able to do in consequence of the elementary course of medicine and surgery which he took at Livingstone College during his furlough. He had a weekly average of 245 at the Dispensary—an open shed. Several patients became inquirers, and two were baptized. There is a school with twenty pupils at Obonike; another at Ogidi, occupied for three months at the beginning of 1896 by Mr. E. A. J. Thomas, where Archdeacon Dobinson baptized six converts, including the native agent's father and mother, in October. At both these out-stations, especially the former, a great desire for reading is manifested, and six adults were baptized at Oba.

The Rev. T. J. Dennis had charge of the work at ASABA for five months, from September, 1896, till January, 1897, when he left to come home. The town consists of five large villages, and while there is a strong band of Christians, Heathenism also is still strong. A yearly festival, Mr. Dennis says, is observed in honour of the devil, "who is much feared and respected in Asaba." Seventeen adults were baptized. The Rev. J. Spencer took charge of the Training Institution in August, 1896, in succession to Mr. Merriman, whose wife's ill-health compelled him to resign. There are nine students, three of them from Sierra Leone, the rest Natives of the Niger territories; two belonging to Asaba, one to Onitsha, one to Obusi, one to Osamari, and one to Brass. At Akwukwu several adults have been prepared for baptism. Miss Maxwell and Miss Warner, of Onitsha, crossed the river to Asaba and visited this out-station and also Onitsha Olona at the beginning of 1896; they were most heartily welcomed by the people, who shouted with excitement.

Heathenism strong

UPPER NIGER AND SOUDAN.

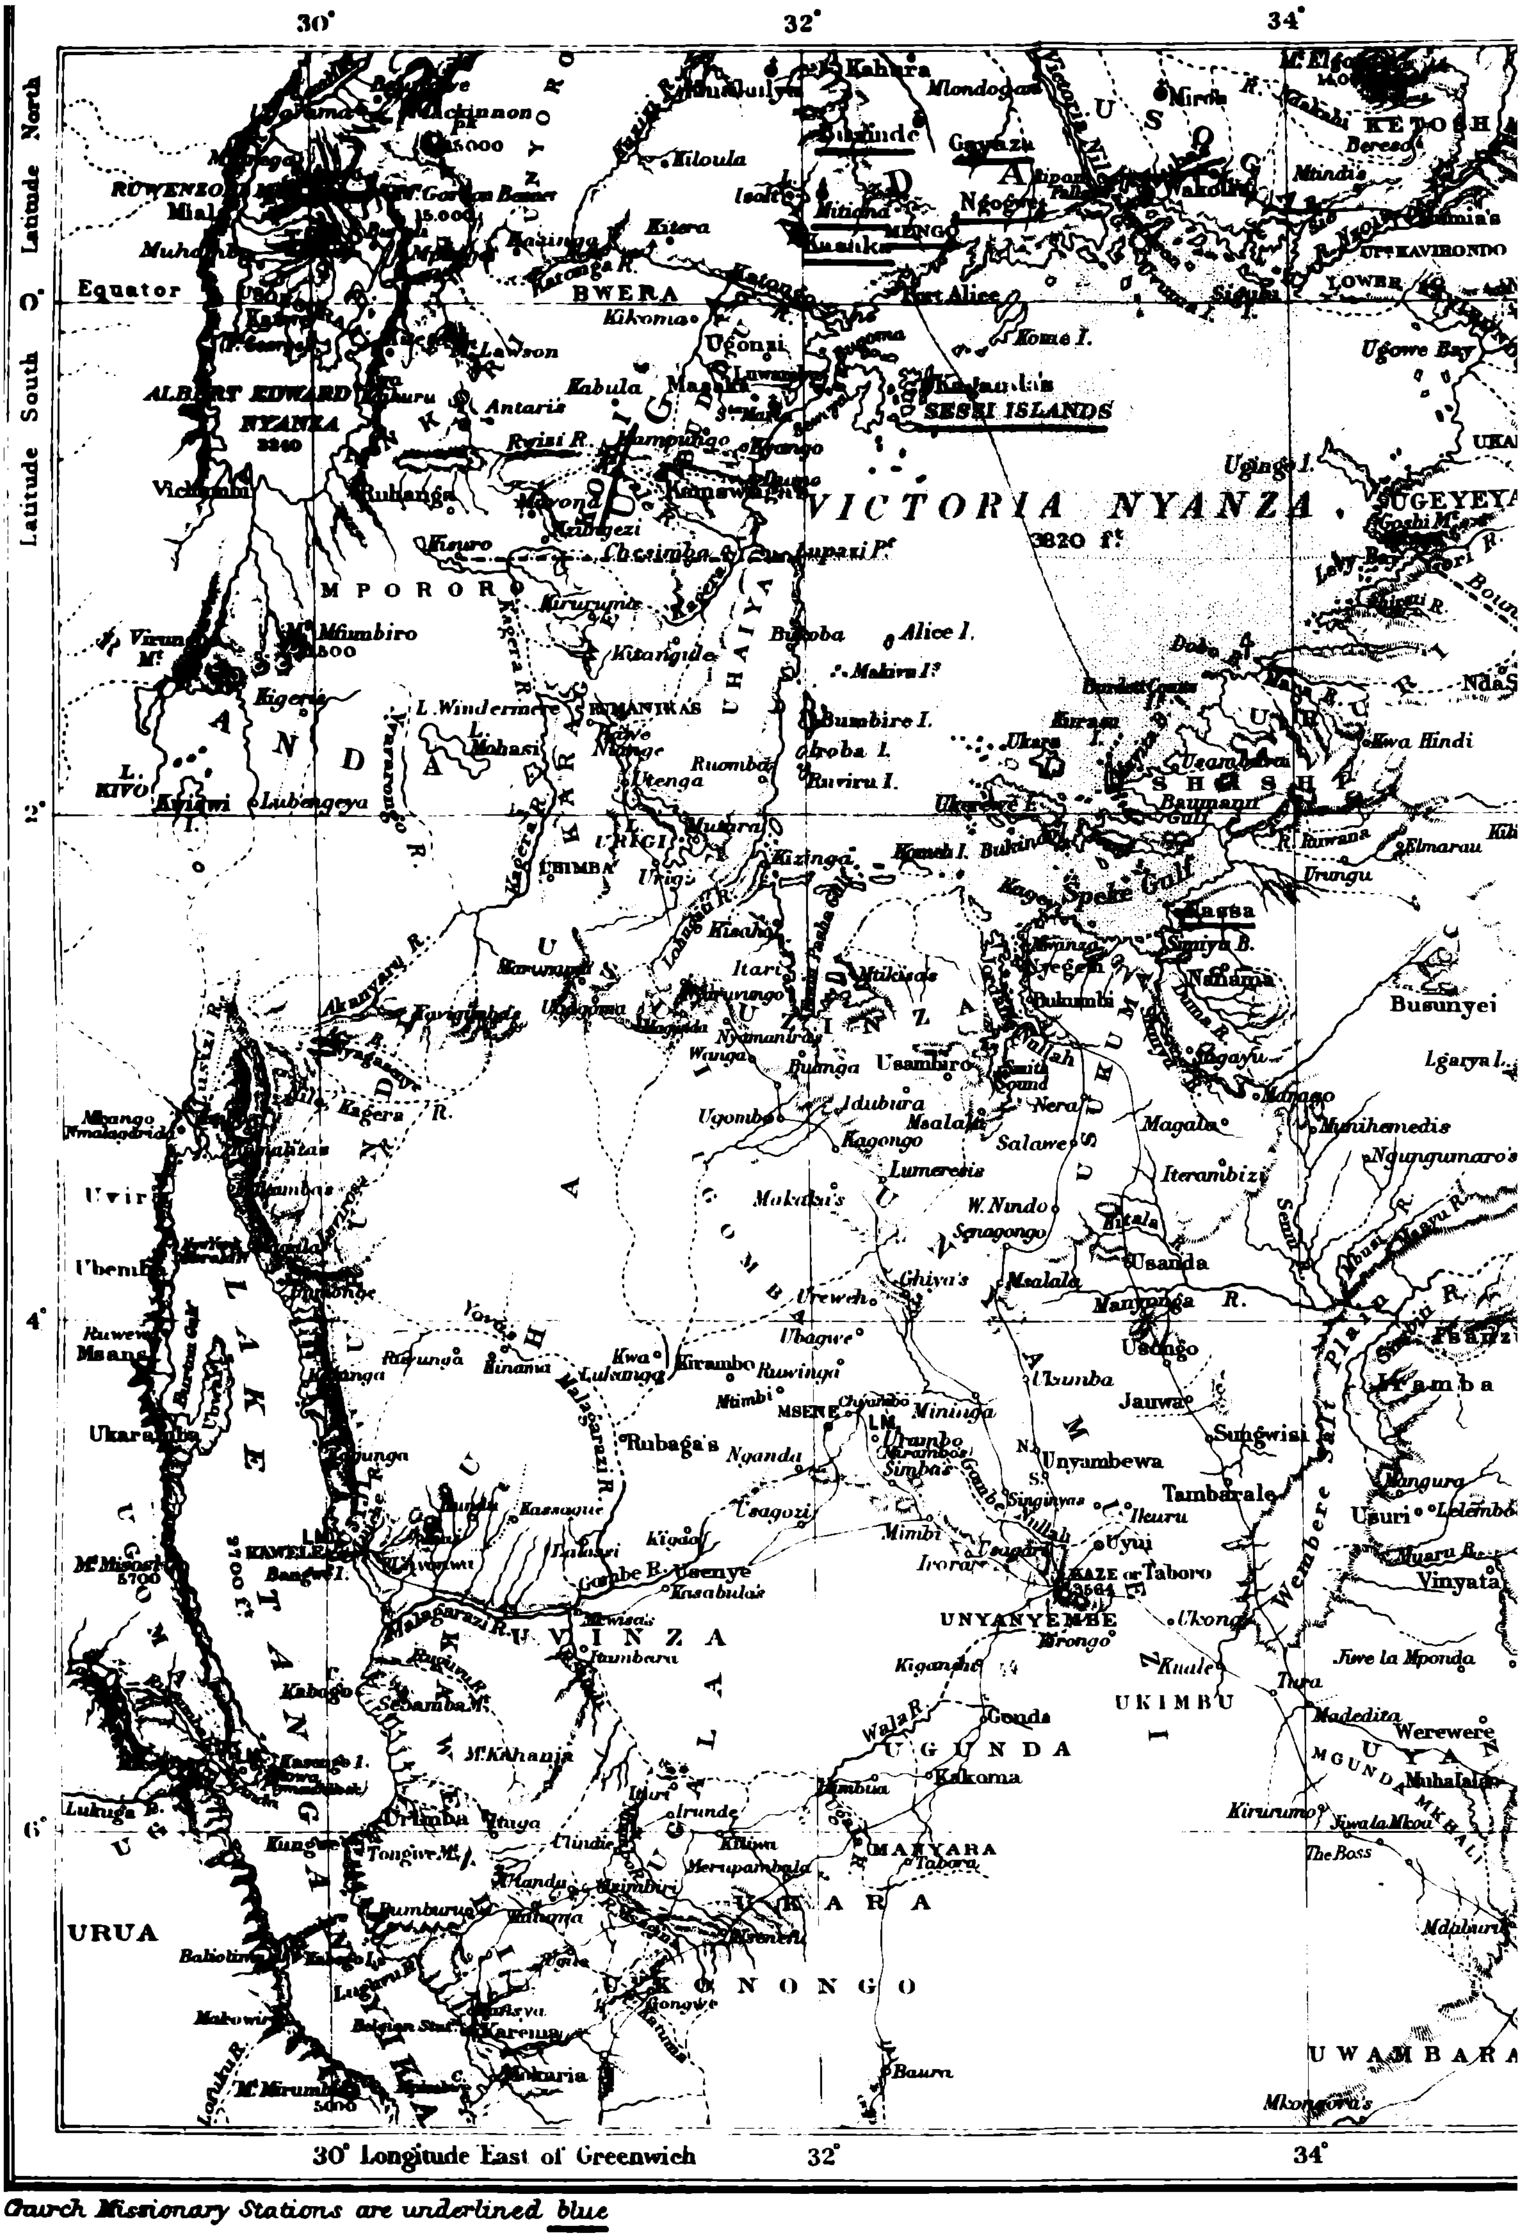
Bishop Tugwell conducted special services at Lokoja on April 27th to 29th, which were attended by some eighty people. On the 30th a meeting was held in the church, when a number of leading Mohammedan teachers were present, to discuss the gin traffic, and a petition was signed deprecating its introduction into the country. Archdeacon Dobinson baptized five adults in September. The average Sunday morning attendance at the church is 180, besides 20 at an English service, which is attended by some of the R.N. Company's officers. Bishop Oluwole conducted two "quiet days" for the workers at Lokoja in December, and held an ordination.

Lokoja.

When the Rev. J. J. Williams, the newly-ordained native deacon, wrote his Annual Letter in October, 1896, raids by the Nupe Mohammedan princes had blocked all access to the towns west, north, and south of Lokoja, and only the Basa country to the east of the river was open for extension, while the population of Lokoja itself was swollen by refugees seeking protection. In September two visits were made to the Basa Country by Archdeacon Dobinson, accompanied by Mr. L. H. W. Nott, Mr. E. A. J. Thomas, and Mr. O. Thomas on both occasions, and on the second, in addition, by the Revs. J. L. Macintyre and E. F. Wilson-Hill, who arrived at Lokoja with the Archdeacon on September 9th. The object of their journey was to select a site for one or more new stations. The farthest point reached was Gendé, a town of some 900 inhabitants, situated on a hill about 1,100 feet above the river. It is on the border-line between the Basas and Igaras, and consequently has a mixed population. This consideration decided them against selecting Gendé, notwithstanding the advantages of its situation and a supply of good water.

New stations in the Basa Country.

Okabé was eventually chosen as the place for a training school which Mr. Macintyre was instructed to open. It is a small village, beautifully situated on a hill-top, and having good water. The chief is a woman whose manner assured them of a cordial welcome. Kpata, a town with 1,100 inhabitants, was selected as an evangelistic centre. It is separated from Gbebe only by a lagoon, and from Okabé by an hour and a half's walk. Archdeacon Dobinson wrote:—



> The Basa people appear to be quite devoid of political organization: no king, no chiefs, no Parliament; certainly they have no sanitary authorities, as we found from walking about the village streets. The Basa tribe is no doubt small and insignificant, in point of numbers and territory, when compared with the large races of the Upper Niger, but their open country, their friendly attitude, invite our approach to them for Mission work. Hitherto they have proved themselves a sturdy and independent people, and have up till now resisted all attempts at invasion, and, what is more important, they do not tolerate the slave-raiders who have infested and depopulated the western banks of the river. The Mohammedans as yet have had no success among them. And last, but not least, there is almost an entire absence of gin among them. Whether they are too careful of their pockets to indulge in the spirit, or whether they resist it for other reasons, remains to be proved; the fact exists, and long may it continue to be so. The language of the Basa people is undoubtedly Nupe.

Bishop Tugwell's visit to Keffi, in the Soudan.

As already mentioned, Bishop Tugwell, accompanied by Mr. L. H. W. Nott, made a visit to Keffi, in the Hausa States. They left Lokoja on March 31st, in canoes, and reached Loko three days later, on Good Friday. Keffi was reached on April 11th, and they left it again on the 14th. In the market they saw 150 slaves exposed for sale. They had an interview with the Magagi, or prime minister, in his house, and before they left he sent a message wishing them peace and good health, and promising a welcome on their return to the town. Mr. Nott's knowledge of the language was of the greatest value during the tour.

CENTRAL AFRICA

C.M.S. Report, M.3

EASTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and in the following year was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from the freed slaves entrusted to his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and some 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. A Mission was started in the Taita country in 1883, and in 1885 a Mission was founded in the Chagga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima Njaro, but the latter Mission was removed in 1893 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the traveller Stanley of the readiness of Mtesa, King of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered to send a missionary expedition to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party proceeded accordingly to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill, were killed; others have died, or been invalided home; but the Mission, in the face of tremendous difficulties, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in Uganda in 1879. King Mtesa died in 1884, and Mwanga succeeded to the throne. The new king, in 1885, was led to regard the missionaries with suspicion, and the Mission was in danger. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, and several were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country. A period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga re-entered Uganda, regained his throne, and the missionaries returned with him. King Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company in 1889. The late Sir Gerald Portal, as Queen's Commissioner, reached Uganda in March, 1893, instructed to report on the best means of dealing with the country, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate.

Intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Lake have been established in the Usagara hills—at Mpwapwa in 1876, at Mamboia in 1879; and at Nassa, in Usukuma, the south end of the Lake, in 1888.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with the title "Eastern Equatorial Africa," and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th, 1884. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of King Mwanga. His successor, Dr. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. Missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration; he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. The present Bishop, the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated on April 25th, 1890.

Bishop Tucker's movements.

BISHOP TUCKER at the beginning of 1896 was concluding a visitation to Busoga and the Bavuma Islands, which he had made from Uganda. After returning to Mengo he proceeded to the Sese Islands for confirmations and the inspection of the churches, as well as conference with the teachers. This visit occupied parts of the months of January and February. At the end of March he started on a long tour through Singo and on to Toro, which took up two months. On June 4th he left Uganda to return to the coast. Of the eight months spent there since his arrival in October about four were spent in travelling, some 1,000 miles being covered on foot. During this time 2,052 candidates were confirmed and three ordinations were held.

The return journey to the coast was made viâ the old German route, the way by which the Bishop went up and returned in 1890 and 1891; and the stations in Usukuma and Usagara were visited on the way down. The Bishop had an attack of dysentery as he neared the coast, and when Zanzibar was reached on August 17th he had to resort to the hospital of the Universities' Mission, where he was tended with unflagging care. He was taken on board the Nowshera before the bombardment of Zanzibar commenced on August 26th. On September 5th he arrived at Mombasa, very weak, and suffering also from rheumatism in his hands. He was at Rabai for a confirmation and ordination on October 3rd and 4th. On October 7th he dedicated a new church and held a confirmation at Frere Town. Three days later, under doctor's orders, he sailed for Naples, whence after a stay of three weeks he came forward to England, and was welcomed home by the Committee on December 15th.

His illness at the coast.

On the same day, the Bishop being present, and the President of the Society, Sir John H. Kennaway, M.P., being in the chair, the resolution regarding slavery in East Africa which has been already referred to (vide supra, page 66) was unanimously passed. A letter from the Bishop which bore date Uganda, March 17th, 1896, had appeared in the Times newspaper of June 23rd, 1896, in reply to some who pleaded that there may be "under certain social conditions and in certain stages of human development a lawful type of slavery," and that the slavery existing in Mombasa, Zanzibar, and Pemba was of such a type. The Bishop adduced testimony of a most painful character regarding certain features of domestic slavery, which he said everyone knowing anything at all of British East Africa and of Mohammedanism knew to be absolute fact; and he proceeded:—

The Bishop's views on the social aspects of slavery.

> I will not discuss the question as to whether slavery of this kind may be lawful "under certain social conditions and in a certain stage of human development." I will only say that I believe I am expressing the deep conviction of the great mass of the British people when I denounce the existence of such a state of things within the limits of a British Protectorate as an iniquity and a scandal which ought to be put an end to without a moment's delay. But, Sir, there is another side of this question. There is the existence of an undoubted connexion between a legalized condition of slavery at the coast and slave-raiding and slave-trading in the interior.
> I have during the last six years travelled very nearly 10,000 miles in British and German East Africa, and I speak of "that which I do know" when I say that it is invariably towards the coast that slaves are driven, Connexion between slavery and slave raiding.

and that so long as there is any doubt as to the abolition of the status of slavery in Mombasa and Zanzibar, so long will the slave-trader continue his occupation, with all its attendant horrors.

In corroboration of the Bishop's conviction on the point last mentioned in the above quotation, he forwarded to the Times a copy of the following memorial, bearing the signatures of the Bishop, Archdeacon Walker, and of twelve other European missionaries—all who were within reach of the capital at the time when the memorial was despatched to the Consul-General at Zanzibar :—

Memorial of missionaries to the Consul-General.

"To H.B. MAJESTY'S CONSUL-GENERAL AND DIPLOMATIC AGENT, ZANZIBAR.

"We, the undersigned missionaries of the Church Missionary Society, believing that the existence of a legalized condition of slavery in Mombasa, Zanzibar, Pemba, and the coast districts is more or less intimately connected with slave raiding and trading in the interior of the continent, beg to express the very earnest hope that the legal status of slavery in the above-mentioned districts which are under the control of Her Majesty's Government may be abolished without delay.

The legal status of slavery on the islands of Zanzibar and Pemba was abolished in April, 1897.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements to the ranks of the European staff of the Mission arrived at Mombasa on October 1st, a few days before the Bishop left. They were the following:—for the Coast Stations: Mr. William Ernest Parker, of Islington College; Mrs. Pickthall, who went for a few months in 1895–96 to Sierra Leone; and Miss Minnie Isabella Culverwell, a trained nurse, and also trained at The Willows. For Uganda: the Rev. John Samuel Callis, B.A., of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of All Saints', Plumstead, a son of the Rev. J. Callis, Rector of South Heigham, Norwich; the Rev. Beresford Edward Wigram, M.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, Curate of Tonbridge, second son of the late Rev. Prebendary F. E. Wigram, formerly Hon. Secretary of the Society; the Rev. Herbert Clayton, B.A., Pembroke College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of All Saints', Newington (Pembroke College Mission); the Rev. Henry Walter Weatherhead, B.A., of Trinity College, Cambridge, Islington College, and (for medical training) Livingstone College, Curate of St. George's, Tufnell Park, son of the late Rev. T. K. Weatherhead, missionary of the Society in the Western India Mission from 1860 to 1878; the Rev. Hugh Wilson Tegart, of Islington College; Mr. Albert Ruskin Cook, B.A., Cambridge, and M.B. and B.Sc., London, a nephew of the Bishop of Exeter; Mr. Alfred Whitehouse, of Islington College; Miss Bertha Taylor, of The Willows; and Miss Kate Timpson, a trained nurse, and also trained at the Yarmouth Training Home. These all sailed on September 3rd, and with them, returning to the Mission, were the Revs. G. K. Baskerville and T. S. England, and Mrs. E. Gardener. Mr. G. L. Pilkington prolonged his stay at home by a few weeks in order to carry through the press the Luganda Bible; he sailed on October 30th.

Luganda version of the whole Bible.

The fruit of Mr. Pilkington's arduous labours both in the field and at home was before the Committee on the date above referred to, when they welcomed home Bishop Tucker. A copy of the Luganda version of the whole Bible, printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society, was laid upon the table. The singular shape of the book attracted attention. It is three inches broad or thereabouts, and the same thickness; and the explanation given the Committee was that this shape and size enabled it to fit into one of Huntley & Palmer's 2-lb. biscuit tins, leaving room for a little book, Oxford Helps to the Study of the Bible, prepared by Archdeacon Walker, and published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and at the end for Prayer and Hymn-book. Now that so many Europeans are residing in Uganda, these tins are somewhat plentiful, and they are much in request as a protection for books from the voracity of white ants and other insect plagues. An eloquent tale is told by such books as the above of the obligations Missionary Societies are under to the great printing and publishing societies like the B. & F.B.S., the S.P.C.K., and the Religious Tract Society. The Luganda version of Helps to the Study of the Bible is a witness to the remarkable progress of a people who twenty years ago had not even heard the Gospel. It gives illustrations of the Rosetta and Moabite stones, specimens of the Hebrew characters, of Greek codices, of an Anglo-Saxon version, of Wycliffe's translations, of hieroglyphics, &c. &c. The Pilgrim's Progress, translated by the Rev. E. C. Gordon, has been printed by the Religious Tract Society, this being the eighty-eighth dialect in which Bunyan's immortal allegory has been published. There have been received from the Mission in manuscript a version of the four Gospels and the Acts in Kigogo, revised and in part translated by the Revs. H. Cole and J. E. Beverley; a revised and enlarged Kigogo Hymn-book, by the Rev. J. E. Beverley; a new Swahili Hymn-book, compiled by the Rev. W. E. Taylor; portions of the Prayer-book in Kisukuma, translated by the Rev. E. H. Hubbard; a revised Hymn-book, also translated by Mr. Hubbard; and a Kisukuma reading-sheet and primer. The Committee have also received from Busoga a copy of St. Mark's Gospel in Lusoga, translated by the Revs. W. A. Crabtree and F. Rowling, and printed on the Mission press by the latter, with the assistance of a Buganda lad.

Other Luganda translations.

Ordinations.

At Mengo, in Uganda, on Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896, Bishop Tucker admitted the Revs. Henry Wright Duta, Yairo Mutakyala, and Yonasani Kaidzi to priests' orders, and Messrs. Samwili Mukasa, Bartolomayo Musoke, Nataneli Mudeke, Henry Mukasa, and Nua Kikwabanga to deacons' orders. At Nassa, he admitted on St. Peter's Day, June 29th, the Rev. F. H. Wright to priests' orders, and at Rabai, on October 4th, Mr. James Deimler to deacons' orders.

Two missionaries were removed by death during the year, Mr. John Percy Nickisson and Miss Mary Elizabeth Conway. The former was an engineer, and after a short course at the Society's Clapham Institution, sailed in May, 1892. He was one of the party which accompanied Bishop Tucker up-country through the British sphere in the autumn of that year, when much anxiety was entertained respecting the future of Uganda, and when the Consul-General intimated to the Bishop a few days before the party started from the coast that the Government disavowed all responsibility in respect to their safety. Mr. Nickisson arrived at Nassa, viâ Uganda, in March, 1893, and he continued there until his death on June 28th, 1896, exercising a holy and loving influence, which especially bore fruit among the Wasukuma boys. Very providentially Bishop Tucker, accompanied by the Rev. J. Roscoe and Dr. P. Rattray on their way down to the coast from Uganda, arrived at Nassa on June 24th, and the patient had the advantage of Dr. Rattray's unremitting attention. The Bishop wrote regarding Mr. Nickisson :— Deaths of Mr. J. P. Nickisson,

> He was a man whom I greatly loved and whose work I much appreciated. He has without question left his mark upon Nassa. His work among the children was especially successful. The fact that some 600 children are under instruction in the Nassa district is due under God to Mr. Nickisson's work and influence.

Miss Conway, who reached the Mission in December, 1894, died at Taveta on December 12th, 1896. She was a Gleaners' Union "Own Missionary." and Miss M. E. Conway.

The Bishopric of Likoma, vacant since the death by drowning of Bishop Chauncy Maples in September, 1895, was filled in June, 1896, by the consecration of the Rev. J. E. Hine, B.A., M.D., who joined the Universities' Mission in 1888.

Two missionaries of the Leipzig Missionary Society were murdered by the Natives in October, 1896, at Meru, some eighty miles west of Mount Kilima Njaro. One of these belonged to Mochi, the station from which the C.M.S. retired in 1892.

I. COAST DISTRICT.

Miss S. Bazett came home in June, the Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Taylor and Miss J. B. Tobin in November, 1896, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. G. Smith and Mr. J. A. Wray in April, 1897. As already mentioned, the Rev. T. S. England and Mrs. Gardener returned to the Mission in October, 1896. The Rev. J. E.

Hamshere was married to Miss M. J. Lockhart, of this Mission, on December 22nd, 1896.

Bible Depôt opened at Mombasa.

The British and Foreign Bible Society opened tentatively a depôt at Mombasa for the sale of Scriptures in the autumn, and appointed to the charge of it, under the supervision of a committee consisting of C.M.S. missionaries, Mr. Joseph Mackertich, brother of one of the same Society's colporteurs in Persia. Another tentative forward movement deserving sympathetic notice in this Report is a small Mission undertaken by the Society of Friends in the island of Pemba.

The political troubles referred to in last year's Report came to an end in April, 1896, when the rebel chief Mbaruk passed over into German territory and gave himself up to the German authorities.

FRERE TOWN.

Frere Town.

The Rev. H. K. Binns contrasts the state of unrest and danger with which the year commenced at FRERE TOWN with the quiet and security which characterized its close. In January, 1896, the people were afraid to sleep in their houses, apprehending an attack. The slaves from the shambas around had fled to Mombasa for safety, and a Nordenfeldt gun was mounted on the roof of one of the Mission buildings. The long-expected attack took place on January 21st, but happily very little damage was done. Mr. Binns' report of the general spiritual condition of Frere Town is not encouraging. In the Congregation, zeal, and love, and self-denial, inseparable, as he justly says, from true spiritual Christianity, are rarely met with. Sunday-school teachers and other voluntary workers take a low view of their responsibilities, and neglect the work they have undertaken for Christ on the smallest pretexts. The absence of home discipline is a fruitful cause of sorrow and disappointment, and is seen especially in a lax morality on the part of the girls. There is a strong drift towards Mombasa, where good wages are offered by Europeans, Goas, and Hindus, and there "the temptations to dishonesty and immorality are tremendous." But there are brighter tints in the picture. Mr. Binns is sure the people love the services in church. Their singing, responses, and reading of the Psalms are "always hearty." A new church, of which the first stone was laid in February, 1894, by Mrs. Semler, wife of the native pastor, was dedicated by Bishop Tucker on October 7th, 1896. The members of the new Uganda party, who arrived at the coast a few days before, were present on the occasion. The church was not used, however, for regular divine service until February 13th, 1897. It is capable of seating about 350 people, and is built of stone, having fittings of teak wood, which is proof against white ants. Mr. J. Heselwood, who has charge of the Industrial Work, was the overseer of the building operations during the later stages since his arrival. Mr. Binns attaches special value to the industrial work, because it retains under the influence of the Mission those who otherwise would go away at the most impressionable age, and he refers to several of the present agents who were retained in various capacities, and thus probably saved from being drawn into the vortex of worldliness and sin in Mombasa and other coast towns. The Dormitory Boys have been much reduced in number, the system of boarding them without adequate provision for effective supervision on the part of the European missionary-in-charge—who was obliged to live some distance away—having not proved a success. Mr. and Mrs. Luckock, who took this work up on their arrival in November, 1895, had only nine boys under their care. They found other work, however. For example, quite unexpectedly, and probably unprecedentedly, a party of some 25 Africans arrived in the spring of 1896 from the Seychelles, Mr. and Mrs. Luckock's former sphere of missionary service. These people had availed themselves of the opportunity of returning to Africa which was afforded by some steamers calling at the Seychelles, having on board coolies from Bombay, whom they were conveying to Mombasa for work on the railway. For them Mr. Luckock commenced a Bible-class in French. Among them was a young woman who had for six years been in the Society's Industrial Institution at Capucin in the Seychelles, and she with her aged father—the latter led to Christ by a native Bible-woman whom Bishop Royston had placed at Port Victoria—were a source of much encouragement to Mr. and Mrs. Luckock. Another of the women proved useful in the Girls' Dormitory, which was under Miss M. C. Brewer, in teaching laundry work to the girls. The Girls' and Infants' School is now held in the old church, which affords ample room. Miss E. Lockett took charge in May, 1896, when Miss S. Bazett came home. She had only been five months in Africa, and found it no easy work, but a good staff of native teachers, two of whom understood English, proved good disciplinarians. The children, she says, are bright and intelligent; they write neatly, do arithmetic badly, but shine in repetition, having marvellous memories. Miss G. E. Bird, who spent twelve months at Frere Town studying Kiswahili in preparation for the work in Uganda to which she had been assigned, helped in the school by taking the sewing-class, and conducted a Bible-class of married women—"dear old folk," she calls them—who were most patient over her struggles in Kiswahili.

Africans from the Seychelles at Frere Town.

The Divinity Class, under the Rev. J. E. Hamshere, sent out six men after from twelve to eighteen months' training. Three remained in Frere Town and were engaged as teachers, two returned to Mamboia, and one to Taveta. Asani Mugimbwa, Divinity Class.

one of the two sent back to Mamboia, is described as "a most capable and earnest worker for Christ." Three Waganda Christians, left at Frere Town by the Rev. G. K. Baskerville during his furlough in England, joined the class. Three new men, one from Rabai, one from Mamboia, and one from Kisokwe, were admitted. Of the first Mr. Hamshere says:—

A student's delight in God's Word.

Japhet is a man in middle life, and study is hard work for him, but it is very touching to see his efforts and his brightness, in spite of the work pressing him at times. He draws teaching from one, evidently delighting in the Word and its explanation. To sit by and hear him press home the message to some soul out in the country round here is indeed a joy. His face glows with earnestness, his ideas and similes are very original and forcible, and I have learned of him! Some time ago, when he and I were digging together, he asked how far off the vacation was. He wanted to see his wife and children, but not for a day only. "Why?" said I. "Ah, Bwana," he said, "they cry when I leave them. Last time I came down here, I had to rise early in the morning when they were still sleeping, and steal away quietly." This was jerked out in the intervals of plunging a hoe into the earth.

The men take part in school teaching, in pastoral work at Maweni, two miles distant, and in itineration. At a village some twelve miles off called Mwakerungi, which they went to from time to time, signs of a spirit of inquiry are observed. Several people have learned to read, and have repeatedly called on Mr. Hamshere begging for books and for a regular teacher.

The Rev. E. H. Fincher removed from Mombasa to Frere Town in June, 1896, the former place not suiting his health. He was engaged in language study.

MOMBASA.

Mombasa.

The rapidly growing town of MOMBASA has now a population of some 40,000. Natives from all parts throng thither. "Sin and prejudice grow day by day among us," the Rev. F. Burt writes. Special open-air evangelistic meetings were held in March, 1896, in which the Mombasa staff were assisted by the Rev. H. K. Binns and the Frere Town ladies, as well as by the ladies from Rabai who were ordered to the coast for their safety by the Government. Every morning for a fortnight two companies went in different directions, each holding four or five Gospel meetings, and in the afternoons mass meetings were held in the market place and in Zizi la K'onzi, a compound in a quieter part of the town. The attendances were good, and though some treated the preaching with ridicule, and others opposed, many listened quietly and even gladly. Miss M. R. Gedge thus described one of these meetings:—

Special evangelistic meetings.

One day it was a feast day after the end of Ramadan, and when we got to our usual place of preaching there were hundreds there. It reminded us of a bank holiday at home—drums beating, singing, shouting, &c.; but we were not baffled, and soon found an empty space, and being a large party, our voices sounded far and wide, and very quickly we had a large crowd round us, and they were so quiet and attentive. Gona from Jilore was there, and Lugo from Cha'Ngombe (native catechists), and both spoke right well in spite of jeers and scoffs from some, but God gave them favour with many. It was one of the most solemn meetings that we have had; we felt God's presence in our midst, and we shall see great results, for we believe and rest upon our Saviour's promise: "According to your faith be it unto you." We met for prayer every evening; sometimes all took part, and we know that our God is more ready to hear than we are to pray, and we praise and thank Him that He allowed us in any little way to be fellow-workers with Himself, and certainly not one of the least results has been the drawing of us all very closely together and to the Lord Jesus Christ, our Head.

Regularly throughout the year four meetings weekly were held in the market-place and at Zizi la K'onzi, attended by an average of about 100 at the former and over 150 at the latter place. The old crippled champion of Mohammedanism who formerly interrupted these meetings (see Annual Report for 1894-5, page 78) died in October, 1896, at the Mission hospital. Mr. Burt says of him:—

A former opponent dies in the Mission hospital.

Sometimes, when I have been alone as a speaker at the market meeting, Miss Gedge has nobly faced the old gentleman, and by catching the back of his arm was able to lead him off down one of the narrow lanes, and put an end to the interruption. When he was ill I went to see him, but the room in which he was lying was so foul I could only stop to say a few words. To show him, however, that my heart was touched by his state and surroundings I offered him a few pice; but he scorned the pity of the "Kafir," and with a sharp voice wished the would-be donor further. He became quite docile at Mzizima, however, and used to salute me with both hands most politely.

Opening of Mission Hall.

In October a Mission Hall, built at a cost of about £300, derived in part from the Bishop's Diocesan Fund, and the rest contributed by Mr. and Mrs. J. R. W. Pigott (whose leaving Mombasa on Mr. Pigott's appointment to be H.M. Consul at Palermo is much regretted by the missionaries), and by some of the missionaries, was opened by the Bishop on September 28th. The Native Governor of Mombasa and his retinue were present. Open-air meetings followed by Gospel meetings in the hall were held daily throughout the week. Mr. and Mrs. Burt, with the permission of the Government, visited the Fort on Sunday evenings to speak to the prisoners, and one of them after leaving prison called on Mr. Burt and purchased a New Testament. At the Bible Depôt, opened by the B. & F.B.S., fifty copies of the Gospel were sold in the first week. Mr. W. E. Parker has taken charge of the School from Miss Grieve. A night-school is held by Mr. and Mrs. Burt. House to House Visitation is done by the ladies in their several districts. Miss A. Higginbotham relates her varied experiences in this work. In one house she is interrupted with the cry, "We cannot listen to that; it is blasphemy." In another where she goes a number of little mosque boys shriek round the house, "Here she's coming to teach blasphemy! Here comes the devil!" Yet in that house she found soon afterwards that the husband of the woman she visited had lately been to Taita, where he had heard the Gospel from Mr. Wray and Mr. Maynard, and he asked her to teach the children God's Word. She mentions the following instances of the cruelty involved in the slavery which was legalized, but happily is so no longer, on the island:—

Varied experiences in visiting.

Cruelty to slaves.

In a house I go to I saw a slave-boy of about ten, his ankles bound. I asked why. They said he ran away often for days. The boy was just a skeleton, and though bound was constantly in and out, going so nimbly I saw he was quite accustomed to it. I went a week after; he was still bound. I asked to see his master. I said: "Do you see how the boy's health is injured by this punishment—could not you try some other? He soon will not be able to work for you." His wife called out, "Oh! he has no sense." I said: "I do not think so; but if you do not take those fetters off he will soon lose his senses." His master called for a knife and cut them off. A few days after she told me he had run away, and now she had to do all his work. I said: "If the Consul had seen him he would punish his master. If you fed him well and cared for him he would not want to run away." Some time after I went and he ran to hide, so he may not have been away at all. Both husband and wife are learning to read, and when I can get the boy I teach him; he is very quick, but he has hardly begun when his mistress calls him to go on an errand.

In another house I saw a little girl fettered; her mistress told me she had taken another child into the bush and tried to kill her to get her beads; that her own mother had brought her back and asked her to bind her feet.

Miss E. C. Wilde conducted a women's Bible-class and a sewing-class in the Mission-hall. The little native house—"hut" Mr. Burt calls it—in Mji Mpya, or "New Town," was well frequented by women of the neighbourhood until the spring, when the new railway works attracted many of them. In visiting the houses Miss Wilde was welcomed on all sides, as also was Miss M. J. Lockhart (now Mrs. Hamshere) among women of the better-to-do classes. One woman she mentions as greatly interested. Miss A. I. Grieve visits the Baluchis in their village, and several women appear to love to hear her tell of the Lord Jesus, especially one named Zahurah. This woman, while at Lahore for a few months, was visited by ladies of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission, whom she described to Miss Grieve as "just like you, Bibi, speaking of Jesus." Mrs. Pickthall spent a few weeks in the ladies' home at Mombasa after her arrival, and writes of it as "an ideal home, under Miss Gedge's leadership." Miss Gedge herself follows all the branches of work in which her sisters engage with loving and prayerful interest, taking part as time and opportunity allow. She writes: "We want Mombasa laid on the hearts of God's people at home. Four years of seed-sowing, and not one as yet [namely, among the Arabs and Swahilis] openly confessing Christ! Pray, too, that there may be nothing in any of us to hinder the full blessing, but that each worker may be a Spirit-filled vessel, meet and prepared for the Master's use."

A Baluchi woman compares missionaries in India and in Africa.

Every Monday Miss Gedge visits the Hospital at Mzizima, and sings to the patients and teaches them texts. Dr. C. S. Edwards reports two baptisms, a Rabai girl and a man from Melindi. A leper ward had four inmates, but never more, at one time; a boy who was taught at Frere Town and Rabai is among them. The boy reads with more intelligence than any boy Dr. Edwards has met with, and he reads the Gospel to his fellow-sufferers. The entire staff of the hospital works on the average, Dr. Edwards says, for less than half the money they could obtain elsewhere for probably lighter work. The native dispenser, Mumba, in particular, could easily obtain two or three times the pay he receives, and never be asked to do manual work such as he has to do now. The work among the freed slaves at Kilindini is mainly done by a catechist, Levi. Mr. Burt found a congregation of 120 and nine communicants when he went there in the autumn.

RABAI.

The Rev. A. G. Smith, in reporting on the year's work at RABAI, divides his remarks under two heads: "In times of war," and "In times of peace." For the first four months of the year the gardens around Rabai stretching away for five miles were deserted, and the ruins of some fifty houses in the main street of the town itself were witnesses of the havoc wrought on November 2nd, 1895 (see last year's Report), while nearly all the shops were closed. Many of the people went to retreats in the woods to sleep at night, others resorted to the church. The ladies were ordered by the Consul-General to go down to the coast in February, 1896, whence they did not return till May. The staff during these months consisted of the Revs. A. G. Smith, W. H. Jones, and Mr. J. G. Deimler. Mr. Smith makes grateful mention of the liberality of the people during this season of gloom and apprehension, both towards those who had suffered loss through the attack, and towards the church funds. As an instance of the latter, he says:—

Rabai.

Ladies ordered to the coast.

> I took occasion on the first Sunday in the year to point out that our church funds were some eighty rupees in debt. Much to my astonishment, at the end of the month the native pastor brought me Rs. 283-11 as money gladly given by the people for the wiping out of the debt; every one in the place contributed, I understand. May I commend their action to all those who study the state of the Society's income at the present time?

Liberality of the people.

The daily morning services and daily classes in the church were carried on by the Rev. W. H. Jones, the native pastor, without intermission. Notwithstanding such distractions as the voice of the drilling officer heard in the church-yard, inquisitive heads of Indian soldiers seen extended through the apertures, and even the booming of guns close at hand, the 7 a.m. Sunday morning service had its usual complement of worshippers. Bishop Tucker confirmed 349 candidates on October 3rd, and on the following day he admitted James Deimler to the diaconate in the presence of a congregation of some 800 people, the Rev. T. S. England, of Frere Town, preaching the sermon. The communicants numbered 522. Mr. Smith says about this ordination :—

Ordination service.

> It was a day of mingled joy and sadness. We all rejoiced to see the first of the Frere Town pupils who has been called to the work of the ministry. We were sad when reminded of the fact that the Gospel has been preached to this tribe of Wanyika for fifty years and not one from among them has yet been called to this work of the ministry. Partly as a result of this day's work, several lads now come to me twice a week to study the Bible and Articles with a view to joining the divinity class later on.

The Schools were closed during the early months of the year, but were re-opened in June. James Deimler had charge of the Boys' School. Miss M. A. Ackerman took charge of the Girls' School, with a hundred pupils, on Miss J. B. Tobin having to come home. She longs to see a more loving and gentle tone among the girls, who are too fond of fault-finding and evil speaking one against another. The girls are taught sewing in the afternoons. Miss Ackerman writes of some in the infant school as "the sweetest little souls." One or two of the elder girls in the school assist in teaching in women's classes which meet in the mornings from 7 to 8 a.m. Miss Ackerman also worked the Dispensary, with about 500 patients monthly.

First-fruits of an out-station.

Mr. Smith baptized the first-fruits of Cha Ngombe in April, 1896, namely, five men, one woman, and one infant. One of the men received the name "Stefano," as being "filled with the Holy Ghost, and fearless in speaking to his bigoted family and townsfolk about their sins and the all-sufficient Saviour." Miss M. L. Holmes and Miss F. I. Deed laboured in the villages, some 45 in number, near Rabai. The latter writes that the work made a decided advance in spite of the hindrances caused by the rebel Mbaruk. Three Bible-women joined the ladies in the summer. In August the Misses Holmes, Tobin, and Deed, and Miss Wilde, of Mombasa, with two Bible-women, went together on a three weeks' itineration in the Giriama country, staying ten days in tents in one place. They found the people very friendly, and good numbers listened daily to their words.

JILORE.

Jilore.

The Rev. Douglas A. L. Hooper had the Consul's permission, as mentioned last year, to return to JILORE with his party in March, 1896, and he arrived on the 23rd of that month. His party consisted of Mrs. Hooper, Miss E. F. Goyen, Messrs. Barham and Roberts, whom he took out with him with the Committee's consent, and Mr. Müller, a Christian man from America, unconnected with any Society, but desiring to engage in missionary work, whom Mr. Hooper met at Frere Town, and whom he afterwards found helpful in the industrial work of the station. The rebels had not visited Jilore, and the Wagiriama had conscientiously refrained from injuring the property. Nevertheless, the village was a wilderness, and plants were growing in the house Mr. Hooper formerly inhabited. Six months later Mr. Hooper was able to write:—

> Nothing has been lost apparently by the break of nine months; all was overruled for good, and we can be thankful for the testing time. It brought out latent sin and revealed weakness and instability. Now we can point more than ever to the need of dying to self and having the Overcomer in the heart.

In August they started regular itineration, going out for twelve days each month, Mr. Hooper eating and sleeping with his six Wagiriama fellow-evangelists on these tours, and dispensing with porters and servants. During their absence the station was left in charge of the two senior day-school teachers, converts of Jilore, who conducted the daily services at 6 a.m. and the meetings. Patients from distances of twenty and thirty miles attended a small dispensary opened by Mrs. Hooper. Two new out-stations were put in charge of Gona and Paulos, the catechists. Mr. Hooper relates the following of Gona and his brother Vuko:—

A faithful soul-seeker.

> Not long ago Gona told of how, when he went to see his unconverted brother Vuko, he woke him (Vuko) up in the night for a talk on spiritual matters. I have been reminded of this more than once when out itinerating. Vuko is now our most promising evangelist, and I have heard him pleading with some individual whose bed he was sharing, when all others have been asleep, late into the night or before dawn.

The wife and four children of the above Vuko were baptized on Christmas Day, 1896.

II. TAITA AND TAVETA.

Several months of the year Mr. J. A. Wray and Mr. R. A. Maynard at Sagalla had necessarily to engage in house building. The only accommodation when they arrived and during the six following months (Mrs. Wray had to leave for England in March, 1896) for Mr. and Mrs. Wray was a corrugated iron house, twelve by twenty feet, and for Mr. Maynard (of the Victoria C.M. Association) a wattle and daub hut in a very dilapidated condition. During the rains the latter had to put up his tent-fly within the house as a protection from the rain and the débris falling from the roof. There was no church, and consequently the services were held in the open air. They were well attended notwithstanding, and the volume of sound in the responses reminded Mr. Wray of the C.M.S. Anniversary Service at St. Bride's! If rain came the congregation covered their heads and sat through it; if very heavy they sought shelter for a time and then returned. Two women removed their charms and publicly confessed Christ. One of them, when subjected to petty persecution on this account, said to Mr. Wray: "I never answer them back; I will conquer them by silence." There are several day and night schools. Mr. Wray, after reading in the summer of 1896 the Society's T.Y.E. Manifesto, was led by the paragraph headed "Review" to record the contrast between the external conditions of the work at Sagalla in the past and then. He wrote:—

"I will conquer them by silence."

Contrast between the past and the present.

It is now over thirteen years since we first took possession of this country in the name of our King, which was indeed a stronghold of Satan. The warm welcome we received from the people was not from a very pure motive, for we soon discovered that it was not our persons nor our message that was wanted, but our calico and beads, which they expected would flow into their possession as freely as the water topples over the thousand and one rocks into the valley beneath. Having discovered that our goods were not exactly for free distribution amongst them, they lost no time in showing their displeasure by making themselves disagreeable and nasty. The children would not come to school unless paid for it—needless to say they were not—while the elder people themselves required to be paid for listening to the Word. Permission was refused to cut sticks here or draw water there without payment. Objections were raised against the articles used to draw with. "Give! give! give!" "Pay! pay! pay!" came at every turn. Then I was accused of causing everything that went wrong, of preventing the rain, of bringing about the famine, of causing the stream to dry up, &c., &c. And as time went on their fury heightened; they forbade me to walk there, or go here, and almost confined one to one's own compound. Despised on every hand, our message called foolishness and treated with the utmost contempt, one's life threatened and attempted, stoned with stones, beaten with sticks, shot at with poisoned arrows: "Troubled on every side, but not distressed; perplexed, but not in despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed." Such, then, is a brief sketch of our past history.

"Halcyon days."

The present time may be described as halcyon days. The above has all changed, and, I trust, receded into history. "The Lord hath done great things for us," for which we have abundant cause for most fervent thanksgiving. The beginning of the end of Satan's kingdom has begun to appear. I do not believe we are now wanted for our goods. Their haughty pride is broken, and a spirit of inquiry has arisen. It is no longer "Give! give! give!" but a hearty welcome awaits us wherever we go. When I take my wife to the villages we are always loaded with presents to return home with. They will now do almost anything for me, go almost anywhere for me, give me almost anything I ask for, and some have even offered voluntary labour; and further, as a proof of their good-will, they have given to the Society the hill where they used to meet and hold their big councils of war, &c., the most sacred spot in the mountain. No more are we accused as the authors of all mischief and misfortune, but I am looked up to as a father and guide. They come to me with their troubles. They flock 300 and 400 to our open-air service on Sundays to hear the Gospel. "Kushoma," i.e., to go to church, is the public sentiment of the day, and part of their life's work; the observance of the Sabbath is an institution.

Mr. Wray has translated St. John's Gospel in the Taita language, and a number of hymns also translated by him have been printed at Taveta.

Separated from Taita by about fifty miles of uninhabited wilderness, TAVETA is a strip of forest country extending about ten miles along both sides of the River Lumi, which falls into Lake Jipe. It is thirty-five miles to the south-east of the highest point of Kilima Njaro. The population is from 3,000 to 4,000, who reside in about twenty districts. The arrival of Miss D. Mayor in April, 1896, made the number of Europeans at Mahoo, the little Mission settlement, seven—too many, the Rev. A. R. Steggall thinks, except during the early stages of the work and with the object in view of evangelizing a much wider area than Taveta itself presents. The number was reduced in December by the death of Miss M. E. Conway, as already mentioned. She was instrumental in starting a branch of the Gleaners' Union, for which the Taveta name is Washoshola, and engaged actively in work among the women and boys. Sunday services are held at five different places; the largest congregation, at Sela Ndongo, averages 130, half of whom are children. At Mboghoni, the national place of assembly, the principal chiefs usually attend during the sitting of their "House of Parliament." Lantern services are held during the full moon. Twelve adults were baptized during the year, and the Christians, especially the members of the Gleaners' Union, show evangelistic zeal, going out in preaching bands. The number of people in the settlement is 140. In the Boys' Boarding School are 47 boys, and 13 others live in the houses of the missionaries. There are five day-schools. Mr. A. W. McGregor gives two instances of preservation from danger:— Taveta.

On one occasion, when passing through the forest, I heard a noise overhead, and looking up, saw a huge branch of a tree falling just over my head from a height of nearly 100 feet. As it was whirling round and round in the air I did not know whether to go forward or backward; on each side, owing to the thicket, there was no way of escape. Feeling that there was no escape, I stood, and immediately it fell at my feet, passing within one foot of my face without touching me. One step forward and I should have been crushed to death. On another occasion, when out in the plain with a few of the boys, I nearly ran against a lioness before I saw it. Fortunately, a panic did not take place among us, and the beast, after having a good look at us, performed a half-circle round us, and disappeared in the thicket. Truly in my case I can say that since being in Africa I have realized the truth of Psalm xci. Preservation from danger.

III. USAGARA AND USUKUMA.

THE Rev. E. H. Hubbard, of Nassa, came home on furlough in July, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Wood, of Mamboia, in September, 1896. Dr. E. J. Baxter left his station, Mpwapwa, in August, 1896, on the Committee's invitation, in order to accompany the Uganda party from the coast, as he did for the previous party in 1895. The importance of this service was great, as the question of the three ladies accompanying the party depended on Dr. Baxter being able to leave Mpwapwa and go up with them.

MAMBOIA.

Mamboia. Nothing of a very encouraging character is reported from MAMBOIA. Miss E. E. Waite was absent from the Hill Station nursing one of the Mission ladies in the further interior, when illness drove the Rev. A. N. Wood home in August. The native teacher, Asani Mugimbwa, who had some training under the Rev. J. E. Hamshere at Frere Town, carried on the work single-handed, under the supervision of Mr. D. Deekes, pending her return towards the end of October. She writes most highly of his character and work. School is held three days weekly, and Miss Waite, with Mugimbwa, on two other days visited a village 1,000 feet higher up the hills to instruct a class of children gathered there from further villages. Mr. and Mrs. D. Deekes and Miss R. Colsey took up their residence at the Valley Station in July, 1896. A new and more commodious church was built during the year, capable of seating 500, at a cost of £42. Mugimbwa assisted in the school here also. Miss Colsey refers to the slow progress of the pupils; it takes months of patient teaching before they master the syllables! The members of Miss Colsey's women's class, about thirty in number, are also extremely dull, but she justly says, "We too should be stupid and dull if we had lived such poor, crushed-down lives." And she adds, "Oh! the indescribably sad state of these dear women." Of the people generally Mr. Deekes wrote in October :—

Indifference to the Gospel.

> Many come to the services and school, but it is with sorrow of heart that I have to say few only come for the Gospel's sake. The utter indifference to the Gospel story of the majority is painful in the extreme, and this is sadly illustrated just now by the excessive pombe drinking. Night after night we hear the noise of the drum, and we know that many who attend the house of God are present at these immoral dances and drinking feasts. Their need of the Saviour is great; but oh, how little they feel that need! We are thankful for the few whom we believe to be seeking after the truth, but we think of the many.

MPWAPWA AND KISOKWE.

Mpwapwa After Dr. E. J. Baxter's departure from MPWAPWA in August to lead up-country the Uganda party, Mr. J. H. Briggs and Mr. E. W. Doulton (the latter of the New South Wales Association) were without a clerical companion until September, when the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beverley, at Bishop Tucker's request when he visited the station en route to the coast, removed to Mpwapwa from Kisokwe. The former was mainly occupied in building. The scarcity of the previous year, resulting from locusts and drought, has entirely passed away; food is now exceedingly plentiful and the population abnormally large in consequence. The daily morning and evening services were better attended in the closing months of 1896 than ever before, and the Sunday afternoon service for the Heathen was often overcrowded. Mr. Doulton is careful to say, notwithstanding, that he sees no signs of earnest seeking after God and salvation, but the people attend and listen to the Gospel message, and he believes that this is in answer to prayer and expects greater things. He remarks on the extreme dulness of the pupils at the day-school:—

A work of patience.

It is indeed a work of patience to teach the Wagogo to read. It is almost incredible that some can sit before a calico sheet with letters and short syllables marked thereon, and at the end of six months they do not know the five vowels. However, some are smarter and learn to read fairly well.

He is encouraged to be hopeful regarding them by a remark in one of the published letters of Mrs. R. W. Stewart, of Fuh-Kien: "I am so glad that I believe in the Holy Ghost; these poor women are so dull and stupid." He has an inquirers' class, some of whom he believes are true inquirers, though ignorant. Mr. Beverley admitted publicly four members into the ranks of catechumens in December, and Mr. Doulton says of the service:—

"I am so glad that I believe in the Holy Ghost."

Admission to Catechumenate.

It was on a Sunday morning, and the congregation was unusually large. I thank God for that service; it was, I think, one of the best I have ever attended since my arrival in the Mission-field. Each catechumen stood up before the congregation, and, after stating his reasons for embracing Christianity, he renounced before all his belief in Heathenism, the special forms of which as common to the Wagogo being enumerated. I ask the prayers of God's people on behalf of these four men that they all may indeed be brought to know the Lord in the power of the Holy Ghost, that so they may be bright witnesses to others.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Cole resided at KISOKWE throughout the year, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beverley until their transference to Mpwapwa in September, 1896. The change from famine to plenty has not produced any perceptible change in the attitude of the people at this station towards the Gospel. Mr. Cole writes, "In famine time they are too hungry to read, and in time of plenty they are too excited with dancing and drinking to think of anything beyond the grave." Four members of the little church were attracted back to Heathenism, and others fell into grievous sin. Several of the Christians, on the other hand, showed more earnestness, and pleaded with their fellow-countrymen to accept Christ. At Chunyo, six miles from Kisokwe, a catechumen resides who assembles the people with a horn for evening prayer. His mother is also a catechumen, and regularly travels the six miles to and fro, though advanced in years, to attend the class for instruction. Both Mr. Cole and Mr. Beverley itinerated in the Ugogo country. The latter says of his tour:—

Itineration in Ugogo.

We camped in the districts of eight different chiefs and sub-chiefs. The native helpers I took worked well, and we had a good deal of preaching.

Heathen practising the rite of circumcision.

But my hopes were sadly blighted during this visit on account of the excited state of the country in connexion with the administration of the rite of heathen circumcision. At the stated periods when this ceremony is performed the whole country seems to take leave of its senses, and drunkenness and obscene dances are the order of the day. The revelry is kept up for about two months. Had I known what I know now I should not have gone then. Still, it has showed me a phase of Heathenism I never saw before, and confirmed to me the truth that "the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty." But while we could not get the people together in great numbers at any one time to hear our message, we are thankful to God that we had opportunities of explaining His plan of salvation to many who had never heard it before.

Nassa.

At the beginning of 1896 there were three brethren at Nassa, the Revs. E. H. Hubbard and F. H. Wright, and Mr. J. P. Nickisson. In March Mr. Hubbard crossed the Lake to visit Uganda, and in May he left Nassa to take furlough; then, on June 28th, Mr. Nickisson died. Three days before the latter sad event, Bishop Tucker and the Rev. J. Roscoe and Dr. P. Rattray arrived at Nassa, and when the Bishop and Mr. Roscoe proceeded coastward, Dr. Rattray most kindly consented to remain until the Rev. E. C. Gordon's arrival from Uganda in the following September. The Bishop admitted Mr. Wright to priest's orders on June 24th, and he also confirmed six Waganda and six Wasukuma candidates. Eighteen were baptized during the year, and there were several catechumens in October, when Mr. Wright wrote his Annual Letter. The Sunday congregations at Nassa and the three out-stations continue large; on Mondays also a goodly gathering assembles at the central station, though the prevailing motive, Mr. Wright believes, is a sense of gratitude for the supposed advantage which the presence of the Mission gives them in their relations with the local German military authorities. Mr. Wright says of these Monday services:—

A unique congregation.

Probably such an audience as assembles Monday by Monday in our church at headquarters is unique. Some five hundred half-dressed Heathen, wearing all manner of charms, beads, brass wire, and other (as they think) ornaments, their bodies reeking with rancid butter, and their hair twisted into all manner of fantastic shapes—tassels, horns, &c.—listen to the "Words of God," and preserve, for such an audience, a very reverent demeanour.

The late Mr. Nickisson's labours among the children were rewarded by large attendances at the schools. In March there were over 600 altogether, and a little later the girls alone numbered 500. The wife of one of the Buganda teachers, Rebekah, has won the affection of the girls, and six of them were proposed by her for baptism. There is a small boarding school for lads, to which Mr. Wright attaches much importance.

IV. UGANDA.

Bishop Tucker's third visit to Uganda lasted eight months—from October 4th, 1895, when he entered Mengo, to June 4th, 1896, when he left it to cross the Victoria Lake, spending a few days at Bukassa with the Rev. E. C. Gordon en route. As already mentioned in the introductory notes to this Mission, about four out of the eight months were spent by the Bishop in travelling from station to station, the distance covered on foot measuring some one thousand miles. The following is a list of the confirmations, with their places, dates, and number of confirmees:— Confirmations in Uganda.

It will be seen from the above that the Bishop held a confirmation at Mengo on June 2nd, two days befcre his departure. This was his last public act at the capital. On the previous Sunday, May 31st, which was Trinity Sunday, he admitted three of the native clergy to priests' orders and five of the native teachers to deacons' orders. Later in the same day he set apart twenty-two lay readers. The Bishop thus wrote of the new deacons and of the services:—

Perhaps of all those presented for ordination as deacons the best known to our friends at home is Samwili Mukasa. In 1890 he was one of the envoys sent to the coast by the king to see the Consul-General with regard to the political situation. His earnestness and devotion are beyond all question. Bartolomayo is an able man, and like Samwili Mukasa, gave up a chieftainship for the work of the Church. Nasanaili Mudeka is a young man who was one of the first missionaries of the Church of Buganda to Nassa, and when I was in the country in 1893 I was so struck with the reality of his spiritual life and devotion to the cause of Christ that had he not been too young he would probably have been ordained then. Henry Five new deacons.

Mukasa was also one of the first band of missionaries sent to Nassa, and by his sterling good qualities has earned the respect and regard of all who know him. Nua Kikwabanga is perhaps least known of all the above, but I may say that he is well known to me personally on account of his having travelled up-country with me in 1890. For some time he has worked as a missionary in Busoga. I may say that I have the utmost confidence in all these men, and that it was with a glad and thankful heart that on Trinity Sunday morning I wended my way to the great church on the hill of Namirembe in order to set them apart for the work of the ministry to which God was so manifestly calling them.

Ordination service.

A great congregation of between 3,000 and 4,000 people had assembled at the early hour of eight o'clock. The Archdeacon, Messrs. Pike, Roscoe, and Millar all took part in the service. The former, of course, presented the candidates, Mr. Roscoe read the Morning Prayer, Mr. Millar the Litany, whilst Mr. Pike assisted me in the Holy Communion. All, of course, took part in the ordination of the priests. The service was a long one, but it hardly seemed so to those whose happy privilege it was to take part in it. I preached from the text Col. i. 28, on the work of the ministers of Christ. It was not only an ordination sermon, but it was at the same time a farewell sermon, as two days later I had arranged to start for the coast. My heart was very full as I spoke to these dear men of their work, and as I pleaded with the congregation either as Christians to be faithful to their God and Saviour, or as unbelievers to "come to Christ." Very nearly 500 communicants gathered around the Table of the Lord (to be accurate, 466), a congregation in themselves. What wonders of grace! A congregation of some 3,000 or 4,000 souls, 466 communicants, three native priests, and five native deacons ordained, and later in the day twenty-two lay readers set apart for their special work; was it any wonder that one almost broke down from time to time, or that one's heart was filled to overflowing with thankfulness and praise to God? The strain of the long service as it went forward for nearly five hours began to tell upon me, and it was evident after some three hours that fever was upon me. It was with aching head, aching back, and aching limbs that I pronounced the benediction, and this most wonderful service was brought to a close shortly before one o'clock. At the afternoon service the following twenty-two laymen—all good and earnest workers—received my licence as lay readers :—

Twenty-two lay readers licensed.

2. Jemusi Kabuga.
3. Samwili Kamwakabi.
4. Alegezanda Ndiwalana.

7. Edewedi Bakayana.
8. Zakayo Bulegwanga.
9. Asa Nkangali.

22. Terah Sekibamu.

Mr. Roscoe, my fellow-traveller to the coast, preached his farewell sermon at this afternoon service, and so this never-to-be-forgotten day came to a close. Of the ordained men, H. W. Duta will continue at the capital, Bartolomayo will go to work under Mr. Sugden at Kinakulia, Yairo has been located at Jungo, and Yonasani at Ngogwe, whilst Nasanaili will work at Bulemezi with Mr. Buckley, Henry Mukasa will join Mr. Gordon on the islands, Samwili Mukasa will serve under Mr. Blackledge at Bukoba. A last Confirmation service had been arranged mainly for the benefit of Ngogwe people, but owing to a failure of the local mail, Mr. Martin Hall, who is in charge, failed to get a letter notifying the fact, and expected me to go over to Ngogwe. This was quite impossible. Not knowing the circumstances, however, thirty men walked over to Mengo in order to take me back with them. It was a great disappointment both to me and to them that I was unable to go. However, on Tuesday 150 candidates came up to Mengo, and with those upon the spot the large number of 225 were presented to me. Most of these walked some sixty miles, and one or two more than a hundred, in order to be confirmed. This Confirmation service brought my programme of work in Buganda to a close.

Archdeacon R. H. Walker also wrote regarding the deacons:—

They are men who have without doubt received spiritual life, and therefore with them religion can never degenerate into the performance of certain outwardly religious acts, but will be with them always a matter of the heart before God. These are all men of long standing as Christians, and are the result of seed sown in the troublous times of years gone by. I am sorry that Ashe and Mackay are not here to take their share in the joy of the harvest; their works follow them, and therefore we can all rejoice together.

Affectionate relations between Europeans and Native Christians.

One of the features of this Mission—it may be a characteristic of other Missions too—is the close intimacy that exists between the European teachers and the native converts. Therefore we can speak so assuredly of these candidates for ordination. They truly stand to us in the relationship of brothers. In fact their mode of address to us, "Mwana watu," is one of endearment which would be used to a younger brother. It might be freely translated, "My dear little brother." If it is not as high-sounding a title as some that are addressed to us, it certainly expresses real affection which never fails to carry with it due respect.

The Rev. J. Roscoe left Uganda with the Bishop, and reached home on furlough in September, 1896. On the other hand, the staff was strengthened by the return of Mr. G. L. Pilkington on January 11th, 1897, and of the Rev. G. K. Baskerville on February 18th; and with the latter were the following recruits: the Revs. J. S. Callis, H. Clayton, H. W. Tegart, H. W. Weatherhead, and B. E. Wigram; Dr. A. R. Cook, Mr. A. Whitehouse, Miss G. E. Bird, Miss B. Taylor, and Miss K. Timpson. Mr. Pilkington left the coast with the party, but went forward on his bicycle, thus reaching Mengo five weeks in advance of the others. Miss Bird went to Frere Town in 1895 to prepare for eventual work in Uganda. Dr. Baxter was also with the party, but only in the capacity of a medical escort. The party left Mombasa on November 28th, and the first eight miles of the journey were made by railway, through the courtesy of Mr. Whitehouse, the chief engineer of the railway under construction by the British Government. Miss B. Taylor thus describes the start from Frere Town and the first stage of the journey:—

Arrival of party from England.

Start from the coast.

We gathered together and sang "All hail the power of Jesu's Name," and Mr. Binns offered prayer. Then we got into the boats and crossed to Mombasa, where we found the gharis waiting to take us across the island to Kilindini. Oh! the excitement when the gharis took us straight into the station yard at Kilindini. Mr. Whitehouse and several of the railway officials were there, but it was after twelve o'clock before we left the station. The train consisted of three trucks; the first one contained blocks of wood, on which we Europeans sat, our boys were in the next carriage, and the last one had the loads. The engine came last, and kept up a perpetual whistling; we thought because it was so astonished to find itself in Africa. As the train moved off, three cheers were raised for Mr. Whitehouse. It was so kind of him to make such arrangements for us. Some of the missionaries had not been in a train for nearly four years, and of course our boys never; it was such fun to watch their faces, first astonished, then frightened, then laughing. The line runs down a steep incline from Kilindini to the creek.

First stage by railway.

The temporary bridge from Makupo to the mainland shook so much that we quite expected a repetition of the Tay Bridge disaster. There was a very heavy shower just then, but we were so thankful for it, for otherwise we should have felt the heat very much. We passed through such pretty country, the green looking so bright and fresh after the rains. It is very undulating, and quite reminded one of the hill scenery of the Lakes; we kept getting peeps of the creek. The train took us about eight miles, and then came to a dead stop. The heavy rain last night had so undermined the embankment that an engine and trucks had sunk in, and torn up, in this case, the "temporary way." There was nothing for it but to get out; loads, &c., were thrown out on the bank, and we had to say our last good-byes to the friends who accompanied us. It was very disappointing for them, for they had hoped to come and see our first camping ground. Mr. Pilkington mounted his bicycle and went off to Mazero's to send back porters to fetch our loads, and we walked on. After walking about a mile, we met a railway official with a hand trolly, and we ladies were told to mount it. Two sat and two stood, and three men pushed! Presently we heard an engine whistle, and we had to jump off our trolly, which was dragged down the bank to allow the engine to pass. Another shower came on and we took refuge under a tree, to be presently overtaken by Mr. Wigram carrying his bicycle. It was simply caked with mud, and he could not even push it. Cycling has its disadvantages in Africa in the rainy season.

Last stage by steamboat.

The journey which began on a railway ended on a steamboat: the last four days were spent on Victoria Lake, travelling from Kavirondo to the port for Mengo on the Ruwenzori, the vessel which was built with funds contributed in part in response to an appeal by Mr. Stanley in 1890, in part to an appeal by the Record newspaper, and in part to a third and independent source (see Annual Report, 1894-95, pp. 89, 90). This steamer belongs to the firm of Boustead, Ridley and Co., of Zanzibar, by whom it was taken up from the Coast viâ the German route, and reached Mwanza, at the south of the lake, where it was put together, in May, 1896. Dr. Baxter wrote of the whole journey as the most pleasant one he had travelled from the Coast to the Lake. The difficulties experienced by previous parties have been to a large extent removed. Dr. Baxter says:—

Improvements in the road to Uganda.

When on the previous journeys, owing to the steepness and roughness of the way, the porters had considerable difficulty in descending the hills with their burdens, beautiful roads have been cut, along which a carriage and pair could be driven with ease; and where swollen rivers barred our progress substantial bridges have been constructed strong enough for a team of elephants to pass over.

Unhappily, a steamer sent up by the Government about the same time as the Ruwenzori, and put together at the same place, suffered a disaster on its first voyage, at Bukoba, the German station on the west coast of the lake, where it was driven by a storm on the rocky shore and wrecked.

It was mentioned in last year's Report that Mr. Roscoe, after

Mr. Pilkington's departure from Uganda in July, 1895, was engaged in visiting all the stations of the Mission. He utilized this opportunity for collecting more accurate statistics of the Mission than had been previously available, more particularly as to the number of readers, churches, teachers, catechumens, baptized Christians, and communicants in the several districts. As a result of his patient and persevering labours, lists were compiled by him and Bishop Tucker on the way down to the coast giving the ascertained figures under a number of heads for more than three hundred places. The following is a summary of these valuable statistics:— Statistics of Uganda Mission.

Regarding the "Readers," of whom the list shows there are over 57,000, the Bishop gives the following account:— "Readers'"

A "reader" is any man, woman, or child who is learning or who has learnt to read. He is not necessarily a Christian or a catechumen, or even wishful to become one or the other. He is what his name implies—a reader pure and simple. He has become enamoured of the new learning, or he has heard the Gospel preached, and wishes to read the Word of God for himself. He wishes to become a Christian, or, it may be, he sees that it is becoming the fashion to read, and he will go with the stream. No doubt each and all of these motives are to a certain extent urging men to read at the present time in Buganda. But what rejoices the heart of the missionary when he hears of men becoming readers is the fact that sooner or later they come to the Scriptures—the Word of God. The result will be apparent later on. It will be seen in the catechumenate, the baptismal register, the communicants roll. In this fact lies the real significance of this estimate. There is a very close and real connexion between the number of readers and the number of Christians. Let us not, however, confuse the one with the other.

Churches. Regarding the churches and the services held in them the Bishop says :—

What, it may be asked, is the character of these churches? Of what materials are they built? What is the nature of the services held, and what are the instructions given in these buildings? First of all, I may say that they are of all sizes—from the great cathedral church on Namirembe Hill, which accommodates some 4,000 worshippers, down to the little prayer-house on the little island of Ziru, which has sitting room for perhaps thirty readers. They are built generally of reeds, timber and grass; the reeds and the timbers forming the walls, and timber and grass the roof. Of course the general effect of such structures is entirely in harmony with the country and the life of the people.

And regarding the teachers supported by the Church Council and those in local connexion respectively, the Bishop explains :—

Teachers. The Church Council teachers are those who have been recognized and accepted by that body as teachers, and who on being sent out are furnished with a formal Commendatory Letter. They are also paid by the Church Council. The stipend, in the case of unmarried men, may amount to 5,000 shells per annum, which is equal to Rs. 25, or at the present rate of exchange, £1 10s. sterling. Married men are allowed to draw up to 6,000 shells, or £2 per annum. This sum, as a matter of fact, is only sufficient to furnish clothing; the people themselves, among whom the teacher works, provide a house and food.

Stipend £2 per annum

The teachers in local connexion have not been recognized by the Church Council at Mengo, but only by the local Church Governing Body, together with the European missionary-in-charge. Many of the local teachers are paid by the local body, but the majority are not paid at all, they are simply honorary workers.

Of course it will be easily understood that owing to the very recent development, comparatively speaking, of the work of the Mission, the qualifications of so large a body of teachers must of necessity be of a somewhat limited character. It cannot be said that they are a highly trained body of men. At the same time let us be careful not to underrate their powers. They are men for whom I am deeply thankful. They have, as a rule, a thorough knowledge of the Gospel in their heads and the love of God in their hearts. They have a certain work to do, and up to a certain point they do it, and do it very well too—perhaps as no European could do it. This work may roughly be described as of a threefold character, and for it there are three classes of teachers required. First there are what are called the teachers of the "Mateka." I may explain that the "Mateka" is a little book containing the alphabet, syllables, simple words, the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and the Ten Commandments, with a few texts of Scripture. Then, secondly, there are the teachers who have in hand the Gospel readers. These are supposed to be qualified to prepare candidates for examination for baptism. They instruct them, of course, in the Church Catechism, and, when prepared, present them to the European missionary for his testing. Then, lastly, we have the most highly trained and experienced men engaged in the work of preparing candidates for confirmation. They are expected to take the candidates through such an Epistle as that of St. Paul to the Romans, as well as through a final course on the Church Catechism.

Qualifications of teachers.

This, then, is the composition of this noble band of seven hundred and twenty-five teachers, whose work, from Busoga in the east to Toro in the west, and from Bunyoro in the north to Nassa in the south, is spreading over and changing the whole face of the country. Wherever the teacher goes, there the Scriptures go; a reading-house is soon built, which rapidly becomes a church, a place where God is worshipped. A new interest is awakened in the lives of the people, new aspirations arise, new hopes are given birth to, men begin to see that there is something in life worth living for; a dawn of a new existence has come.

The Bishop entertains very strongly the opinion, in which the Committee most fully share, that the principle of self-support is one which it is of the utmost importance to maintain and encourage. He wrote in November, 1895, a few weeks after reaching Uganda :—

I am convinced that if we are only faithful in our preaching and teaching, the Native Church will in a very little while more than double its contributions towards the sending forth of native evangelists. It will, in my opinion, be a fatal step to bring in the principle of outside help where no absolute necessity for it arises. Of course in some respects it is much easier to dispense the contributions of loving friends at home than to toil on the path of making the Native Church realize its responsibilities. It is a temptation which comes, I suppose, sooner or later to every missionary, but it is one that must be resisted. Once let the Native Christian realize that the Church at home is prepared to undertake this work, then "good-bye" to independence.

Principle of self-support.

The Rev. E. Millar supplies statistics of the books sold during the year ending September 30th, 1896. The statement shows a sale of 17,723 Bible portions, 13,227 reading books, 4,536 catechisms: a total for the year of 39,257, as compared with 42,819 in 1895; 28,078 in 1894; 32,742 in 1893. Mr. Millar explains that the sale of portions was less brisk than it would have been but for the expected arrival of the whole Bible (vide supra, page 96), for which the people were saving up their shells. A supply of hymn-books which arrived early in August was rapidly bought up, the few copies with gilt bindings being specially in request; these were sold at a price fully covering both initial cost and freight charges. The statistics of the book sales are as follows :—

Police force and postal service.

The British occupation has tended in many ways to promote the external well-being and the orderly administration of the country. Mr. Roscoe has afforded information on these points to agents of the press since his arrival in England, which has excited widespread interest. He has mentioned the establishment of a police force, and of a local postal service with daily delivery to places near the capital, and weekly to places at a distance of 100 or 200 miles. The biscuit tin, whose usefulness for preserving books has been already mentioned, proves no less useful for carrying letters on the Buganda postman's head. Mr. Roscoe has also described a recently-adopted institution, the "Kampala Lukiko," or Parliament House, a building seating about 2,000, where the King and British Resident every Monday discuss affairs of state with the powerful chiefs, and legislative and judicial business is conducted. Two secretaries—one of them a Native—take minutes of all proceedings; and Bills are read three times before they are finally passed. Regarding the taxation of the country, Archdeacon Walker wrote in May, 1896:—

Parliament House.

Taxation.

> The tribute is arranged by the king and chiefs in council. This year it was put at 150 shells a head (about four days' work for unskilled labour). Next year it is to be 250 shells. Every one has to pay this tax except the chiefs themselves, a body of some 300 people. The king sends a messenger to a country to collect the tribute, the Katikiro sends a man with him, and the chief of the county sends his man. The tribute when collected is taken to the chief of the county, he then deducts his share and sends up the rest to the king, who gives to the Katikiro and certain other chiefs (as the Kibari and Sabakaki) their shares. Many of the chiefs have sent in presents to the Church funds from their share of the tribute.

Observance of the Queen's birthday.

It may be questioned whether Her Gracious Majesty Queen Victoria, in the 60th year of her reign, has anywhere more grateful and enthusiastic subjects in her wide dominions than these Baganda over whom she has thrown the ægis of her powerful protection. Witness the observances on her birthday, celebrated in 1896 on May 25th, the 24th being Sunday, described by Miss E. M. Furley:—

> Kampala, the Government station, was extensively decorated with flags and palm-branches; triumphal arches were erected with appropriate inscriptions of goodwill to Her Majesty and to the welfare and prosperity of Uganda. There was a grand public reception of the king and all the chiefs by the Government officials, which was celebrated by the presentation of a new Uganda national flag to the country, a review of troops, and a "march past" in grand style! The flag is blue with a Union Jack in the centre and four stars round at the four sides. King Mwanga was highly delighted with it. After this there was a lunch at Kampala for the king and the chiefs. In the evening all the Europeans were invited to dinner, and all went, about thirty, including the French and English Roman Catholic missionaries. We were told there was to be a torchlight procession, and truly there was, beyond anything we had ever thought of; even the brilliant moonlight did not spoil the effect of it. The chiefs and their followers turned out in force to do honour to England's Queen and England's Administration. . . . But the finest sight was after dinner, when we went out on the fort walls to see it. They assembled on the King's Hill in the great open space between the king's enclosure and that of the Katikiro; then began slowly to move down the hillside in the direction of Kampala. On they come, more and more, till the whole of the broad road down the hillside is one shining stream of light, as thousands of torch-bearers pass down in perfect order; then nearer they come, and pass close under where we stand, to the very gates of Kampala; then up Namirembe Hill they divide, and some double back, and the two streams of light pass and repass till the whole hillside in front of us is twinkling with light; then with no noise or disturbance they return up the King's Hill. Besides the thousands lighted, many hundreds of spare ones were carried. It was reckoned there were about 7,000 torches out. Double lines of Nubian soldiers with torches lined the approach to Kampala, through which the procession passed. Torch-light procession.

The Rev. Martin J. Hall, in his Annual Letter, states some general impressions which have formed in his mind during his first year in the country. He modestly disclaims any special value for them because of the shortness of his experience, and he limits their application to the country districts; but in the main they are in entire harmony with what the older missionaries say. His previous experience at home and in his Indian tour entitles his opinions to more value perhaps than ordinarily attach to first impressions. He says:—

Of the baptized Christians there is much that is very cheering to notice. Their intense interest in, and love of, their New Testament (though due allowance must be made for the fact that it is their only book virtually—and convicts and abandoned criminals in England will spend hours over the Bible when they can get no other book in their cells), their deeply reverential manner in public worship, their remarkable familiarity with chapter and verse of Scripture, could teach English Christians many a lesson. There is a kind of oral tradition of interpretation of parables, miracles, &c., which you meet with in all parts of such a province as Kyagwe, where formerly the teachers were all trained at one centre. It is in some cases very quaint; its original source I know not. Love of the New Testament

These people have minds which are a curious mixture between extreme literalness on the one hand and of fanciful mysticism on the other, e.g., they are quite grieved that we cannot tell them the names of the prodigal son and of his father, or of the importunate widow, her enemy, and the judge, whilst they push their interpretation of parables, &c., to a most extravagant length, at times rivalling the early fathers in their ingenuity in finding meanings for every detail in a passage whose design is, perhaps, only to emphasize one main lesson. There is a growing danger of their coming to regard their New Testament as a mere class-book (as it is regarded in our big public schools at home), and of the teachers using it as such. They are in many cases not primarily "fishers of men," and I do not know of a case of a man or woman coming to the teacher with a heartfelt inquiry, "What must I do to be saved?" Of course, the same might be said of a sad proportion of Sunday-school teaching; but we are praying for a deeper order of Christianity than prevails in "Christian England." Such words as "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life," precious and powerful when truly grasped and realized, are in grave danger of becoming a mere shibboleth. On the other hand, Christian public opinion is in many respects ahead of England, and the standard of zeal and knowledge proportionately to the numbers a long way in advance of that of professing Christians in England. Mental characteristics.

In examining candidates for baptism, I notice with apprehension an almost universal absence of any real sense of personal sinnership and sinfulness. Marriage as a divinely sacred bond is far too lightly regarded, and the obligations of the Christian husband to heathen wife (and conversely) to win him or her to Christ too little understood. There is no true idea among the people generally of Christian family life. The children of Christian parents run wild and nearly naked until old enough (say nine or ten years) to begin to read for baptism (if they have not been baptized as infants). I have only come across one Christian home (that of one of our native clergymen) at all approaching to our English ideal of a Christian home. Until quite recently multitudes of boys and girls had no idea of who was their father or where their proper home was, and even now "home ties" are almost unknown. No systematic teaching or evangelization of children as such exists in the country to my knowledge, and this (as I believe, the most important) part of the community seems entirely neglected, unless on their own initiative they begin to read for baptism. I spoke very strongly to the Christian parents at Ngogwe about their neglect of the children, and was just about starting a daily class for little children myself in the smaller church when I was transferred to the islands. If Luther's words be true, "No greater harm is done to Christendom than by the neglect of the children; therefore to advance the cause of Christ we must begin with them";—if such are true words, then the Uganda Church had better look to itself without delay, for it entirely ignores its children.

Home ties almost unknown.

As regards their knowledge of the New Testament, it should be said that it is chiefly confined to the Gospels, the Epistles and Old Testament books being little read. Teachers complain that they do not know how to teach them. I have discouraged all public teaching of the Gospels except to catechumens, to force the others to go further with the reading of the Acts, Epistles, and Old Testament books. There is a painful ignorance about the Lord's return amongst the teachers and ordained pastors.

There is, I am glad to say, a happy absence of the false shame which is so painfully evident in English congregations and individuals. These Christians will pray with grace, fervour, and intelligence from their earliest spiritual history, and converse freely (but never irreverently) of Divine things at all times and places. I have over-heard my canoe-paddlers discussing Scripture points round the fire in the evening as freely and naturally as Christians at home discuss the preacher of the Gospel or anything else except Divine things.

Absence of false shame.

PROVINCE OF KYADONDO.

Mengo.

The missionaries stationed at MENGO at the beginning of 1896 were the following:—Archdeacon R. H. Walker, the Revs. J. Roscoe, E. Millar, and A. J. Pike, and Misses E. M. Furley, E. E. Browne, J. E. Chadwick, E. L. Pilgrim, and M. S. Thomsett. Mr. Roscoe left with the Bishop in June, and Mr. Millar succeeded to the duty of supervising the Church Council teachers. The aim, however, has been to decentralize and to place these teachers, as well as those in local connexion, under the charge of the missionaries stationed respectively in the several districts. It was necessary to impress upon the teachers that, having given themselves to the work, they were no longer free to leave it and to resort to the capital without permission.

The constancy of some of these teachers is severely tried. Mr. Millar writes:—

Some of the professing Christian chiefs are not friendly to the teachers, as they (the teachers) see too much of their private lives, and so they try and make things unpleasant by giving the teachers tumble-down houses and very little food, &c., but the teachers stick to their work in spite of these things.

The number of teachers sent out from Mengo during the year was 230, and there were about 300 altogether depending on the Church Council Fund in October, involving an annual expenditure of about £440. The contributions to the Church funds are mainly in large gifts. The Christians generally have scarcely begun to realize the duty and privilege of giving to promote the Lord's work. Mr. Millar observes:—

Church collections.

The ordinary church collections are very scanty (last Sunday it was 892 shells for about 2,000 or 2,500 people, or, taking out the large gifts, 592 shells, an average of about one-fifth of a shell per man), the majority of the people giving nothing, and the others one shell each, which is equivalent to about the twelfth part of a penny. We frequently point out the privilege and the duty of giving to them; many urge poverty as an excuse, but they can obtain shells if they wish to do so, and it is surprising to see how the very poorest will obtain shells in order to buy the last new book. Many are now learning to work for the Government for wages, and so are enabled to buy cloth and books, &c., but I have never yet seen or heard of any one who worked in order to get shells to help forward God's work.

A "small" monthly missionary meeting.

The monthly missionary meetings, held on the first Friday of each month, have an attendance generally of about 800, which Mr. Millar considers "small." He says:—

Those who do attend show a deep interest in the work. Some very encouraging reports of the work have been given, and some of the teachers have, by the grace of God, done a great work in their districts. It is very sad sometimes to hear of the stories told by the teachers. In Budu the darkness is very great. Tomasi Semfuma wrote a letter to the Church Council begging for teachers, saying the people were crying "Twaa," like a zebra in the wilderness with no one to hear the cry. Some of the arguments which these teachers use are most clever, and I always enjoy listening to the various incidents of their work.

"People crying like a zebra in the wilderness."

Archdeacon Walker wrote in the spring of 1896:—

I was telling our Church Council of the efforts being made to reach the whole world before 1899, and they said, "Well, then, we must try and send out more missionaries, too." The old idea that the earth is like a table on legs, and that one of the gods holds it up, is dying out, but still a good many people think that the end of the world is somewhere in the country of the Bakedde, to the north of Busoga. One of the Church elders said, "If only the Europeans could send a missionary to the country of the Bakedde, then the whole world would have been reached." So most of the people would think. I said, "Then why should you not send?" and at once they replied, "Well, we will try and do so."

Sad instances of falling.

There were many sad instances during the year of falling on the part of some regarding whose sincerity and steadfastness the missionaries had felt confidence. At one time as many as eighty professing Christians were reported by the Church Council as having fallen into the sin of drunkenness. Immorality, too, is lamentably common. Some within a few days of their baptism have, for the sake of a small temporal advantage, returned to Mohammedanism or Heathenism. An increasing number have given up drink altogether, and others would do so, but lack the power, having become habitual drunkards, and this sin in Uganda, as in England, brings other and worse sins in its train.

Eagerness to learn.

The eagerness to learn to read, so marked a feature in the character of the people in previous years, shows no abatement. At present the Bible is practically the only book accessible to them, and the knowledge of its contents, especially its histories, which they possess is very remarkable. It must not, however, be assumed that the desire to read it is in all cases a Spirit-born craving for spiritual nourishment. With many of the readers any other book would be equally acceptable, and such as these show in the classes for instruction a certain measure of impatience at the teaching which brings out the spiritual intent and application of the sacred text. On these and some other similar aspects of the work Mr. Millar says:—

Intellectual versus spiritual.

In reading the Bible, the tendency is to wish to understand merely the literal meaning of the words, and not so much to take in the spiritual meaning. If, for example, in a class I spend some time in bringing out the spiritual meaning of a passage, I often see a restlessness in some quarters, as if to say, "When will he go on to the next verse?" or at the beginning of the next lesson some one remarks, "We read very little last time." I am sure we must in all our teaching make a great point of bringing out the spiritual meaning of the Word. There is also a tendency to read the Gospels only, and to read these over and over again. Whenever I have taken a class in the Epistles or in any Old Testament book the attendance is small, whereas for a class in the Gospels numbers attend, sometimes as many as 200.

There is, too, a tendency to look upon baptism and the Holy Communion as something to be worked for, as one works for an examination, and when any one is passed for baptism all his friends congratulate him on having passed his examination. When a man has been passed for the Lord's Table and has been to the Holy Communion once or twice, he often goes away to the country to rest and is not seen again for some months. It was brought to our notice some time back that many were coming forward for baptism who did not know how to read, and who learnt off portions by heart and sat with books in their hands in the classes pretending to read, and when the time came to be examined "crammed" up likely questions. Since finding out this we have held an examination in reading, and many have been "thrown by the ink," as they say. We have also made the examination a little harder, and require the Scripture proofs from the Gospels of the leading facts of Christianity, which are printed in the first catechism for baptism. This has very materially checked the rush, so that now only those come forward who really have taken pains. These rules being new have hardly affected the number baptized this year, but next year the decrease in the number of those baptized in the capital will be very marked.

Women's classes.

Miss Furley took up in February, 1896, the superintendence of the women's classes for baptism and confirmation, which previously had been under Mr. Pike and Mr. Millar. This brought her into contact with the female teachers, some of whom, she says, are most intelligent women. In March, 1896, for example, she wrote:—

An interesting talk.

I had an interesting talk with one of the teachers this morning; it began by her coming to ask me from which of the prophets the words, "Out of Egypt have I called My Son," were taken, and when I told her she asked me at once whose reign Hosea lived in. Among other things I told her that he lived about the same time as the prophet Isaiah, the one in the kingdom of Israel, the other in Judah, and that took us back to the division of the kingdoms, and the when and the why of it. I found she knew well the names of the kings of Judah, and when I asked her how she knew (knowing they had not the books), she got the better of me by promptly opening her testament at Matthew i. and pointing to the paragraph in the genealogies from David to the Captivity, which I had not thought of. She asked why there was no list of the kings of Israel in the New Testament, and so we went on from one subject to another.

In the summer it was arranged that each lady should take two classes daily, one in the early morning from 8 to 9 a.m., immediately before morning prayer in the big church, and one in the afternoon. Miss Furley's afternoon class consisted of teachers, and she says:—

Class of female teachers.

We started with the Gospel of St. Luke, and were nearly four months over that; and I must say that when we finished teaching was a different thing to me from what it was when we began. We are now reading the Acts of the Apostles, and I never read in England with a class more keenly interested; to many of them it is not so well known as the Gospels, and it has come with a delightful freshness quite unknown in a class at home familiar with the Bible History from childhood. Their prolonged exclamations of keen sympathy, and the real delight with which they watch the success of the Apostles' work, is most interesting.

In the ladies' house several native girls are under instruction in household service and in reading. Miss Furley says of them:—

Baganda girls as household servants.

They are very nice children, but a great charge, and require great patience and forbearance all the day. The amount of work done by each child is not large; like all children, play is far preferable to work. Two cook, two more wash and iron, two more do the housework, and the remaining three cultivate in the plantation attached to the house, the work being changed every week, so that they do all turn about; each child has a part of the plantation, for the cultivation of which she is responsible. The amount of superintendence they require is very great.

I began daily reading with the children, but with other work we have not been as regular as we ought to have been. They attend the daily classes in the church, and three have been baptized since we have been here; one of them, having first taught herself to read, with very little help from us, is now able to teach reading to a younger child. We made each child who could read responsible for teaching another one who could not, as we found we had not time to do it ourselves. The teachers went at their work with such vigour that refractory pupils who could not be made to read in the daytime were obliged to go through their alphabets at night, and we have had ourselves to get up after going to bed to stop reading lessons in the kitchen!

Reading lessons in the kitchen.

Domiciliary visitation is difficult in consequence of the houses of the people being widely scattered, but the ladies have many warm friends at whose houses they are always welcome. Miss Browne refers to visits paid by Miss Thomsett and herself to a man, formerly a chief of some importance, but now for some misconduct a prisoner of state:—

Delightful readings.

He is most intelligent, knows the New Testament in a marvellous way, and now we rejoice because we believe that what before was head knowledge has found its way deep down into his heart. We have really delightful readings together, and generally have another man there called Samwili Kamwakabi, who is preparing for ordination, and I wish you could have seen these two men as we read the Epistle to the Hebrews, eapecially the passages touching on the High Priesthood of Christ compared with that of the Old Testament, and our consequent privileges. They would stop me and say, "Wait a bit; we want to talk about that verse," and then these two would go at it hard, one explaining to the other, talking much too fast for me to understand, shaking hands as perhaps new light came to them, laughing loud for very joy, and then with a "Kale, tugende" ("Let us go on"), they would start afresh.

Miss Pilgrim attended for one and a half hours daily at the dispensary. Miss Browne says of her numerous patients:—

Dispensary patients.

The patients are most amusing in the implicit faith which they have in the "musao" = doctor, as they call Miss Pilgrim. Anything she likes to give them they will take, but many of them cannot yet see how a pain in the head can be cured by swallowing a pill, and would much prefer rubbing the pill on the place. One day we visited a woman with a bad pain in her ear, and gave her two pills to swallow, which she immediately proceeded to push into her ear. Another tried to put her medicine up her nostrils. Some come to the dispensary just for the sake of getting medicine, and won't go away without it, having nothing really the matter with them. For these Miss Pilgrim concocted a dose of powdered quinine and peppermint water, thinking the very nastiness of this mixture would keep them from coming; but the nastier it is the more efficacious they think it, and come next day to repeat their pantomime of wriggling and doubling themselves up and making hideous faces over the swallowing of the aforesaid mixture.

Miss Chadwick is choir leader and conducts a choir practice twice a week for the women and once for the men. The new hymn-book, she says, is a source of great delight. A bell which Archdeacon Walker ordered to be sent out has been set up in a tower near (but separate from) the large church on Namirembe Hill. The first ringing was a great ceremony, King Mwanga himself leading off by giving the first pull at the rope.

Birth and baptism of a son of King Mwanga.

On August 1st a son and heir was born to the king; the mother of the young prince was a catechumen. In accordance with the custom of the country the child was committed to one of the chiefs—in this case the Katikiro—by whom he will be brought up. The name given to him in the first instance was Cwa (pronounced "Chwa"), after a former king of Uganda. Mwanga has formally consented to his being brought up as a Protestant, and both the mother and child have been baptized, the latter receiving the baptismal name of Daudi

(David). Previous to this child's birth the heir-presumptive to the throne was a Mohammedan, a son of Kalema, regarding whom it had been stipulated that he should not come under Christian influence till he should attain the age of fourteen. Two other princes had been declared ineligible to succeed by Colonel Colville on account of their long absence from the country at Bukumbi, on the south of the Lake; these two are Roman Catholics, and no Protestant chief or missionary was allowed access to them except in the presence of the Commissioner. Of King Mwanga himself Mr. Millar says:—

I have been continuing my readings with the king during the past year, going to the court two evenings per week. Mwanga still shows as much interest as ever in reading God's Word, but I cannot say how far his heart is in it. I think the mere fact that he, of his own accord, asked me to come shows that he really does like to be taught; and at times one would think he was a most sincere seeker after the truth. I have had some most serious talks with him, and he has told me (and I believe him) that he really wishes to be a Christian, but Satan seems to have such a hold over him that he cannot break loose. The Baganda are still convinced that he keeps on his old evil habits, but I cannot say that he does; he has denied the matter most flatly to me, and I can get no definite evidence that he is still keeping up these things. Still, I cannot but believe, to a great extent, what the Baganda say; at any rate, he needs our prayers.

"The king needs our prayers."

The suburban churches to which preachers go from Mengo every Sunday were twenty-eight in number in October; and in addition to these there were some eighteen others at a greater distance, in most of which Church Council teachers resided. Since June, Miss Chadwick has regularly visited once a week Lusaka, the village of the Queen-mother, and Kasubi, the place where Mtesa's tomb is, guarded by relays of women, and where also is the establishment of the Nalinya, or queen-sister, whose name is Damaris, and who is a Protestant Christian. Miss Chadwick writes:—

Suburban churches.

I look upon the day in Lusaka, if perhaps the heaviest, as quite the most interesting day in the week. Arriving soon after eight o'clock—I and my two little maids who carry the mats and books, our own and a few for sale—we are until nearly noon in the little building which serves as church and school, reading, singing, answering questions, and helping a very few who want to learn to write. Then we adjourn across the road to our friend Kaidzi's, a great, fat, good-humoured man, who hopes to be baptized this month, and whose good wife, Tabitha, is the only woman in Lusaka who has as yet been entrusted to teach the female catechumens. At two o'clock we say good-bye and enter the Namasole's kisakati, not now with much hope of seeing her majesty, though at one time she professed great affection for me —now the message comes every day, "She is asleep" (Luganda for "Not at home")—but to spend a couple of hours amongst her women and girls who cannot come out to church to be taught. Beginning with a round of the houses, and meeting with a very varying reception, we then gather together with all who will come in a shady spot under the big fence, and hold our little meeting amidst various distractions of straying and inquisitive goats, &c. Here my two girls are proud to be able to help in teaching the alphabet and syllables, while I read with our more advanced pupils, and after the reading we have a general talk over our preliminary catechism, and more singing. This latter is the greatest attraction, and has led them now to gather together every day, I am glad to say, under the guidance of one poor boy, a great friend of mine, a living relic of barbarous times, having been shorn of one ear and his upper lip, and blinded of one eye. Such sights are not uncommon as yet.

Gayaza.

Mr. J. B. Purvis was alone at GAYAZA after January, 1896, when Mr. A. B. Lloyd was transferred to Nakanyonyi, in the province of Kyagwe. It was in contemplation to locate two ladies, Miss E. L. Pilgrim and Miss M. S. Thomsett, at this station, and a mud-built house for their reception was in course of construction at the close of the year. Some 10,000 souls are found in the immediate neighbourhood of Gayaza. Mr. Purvis remarks on the general attitude of the people :—

> Here and there are those who can give a reason for the hope that is in them, and who seek to work out in their lives the truths they know so well in theory. But this I fear cannot be said of all, chiefly I take it because a wave of feeling—or if you will the Holy Spirit—the outcome of the Gospel, having passed over the whole country, has affected popular opinion (it does exist here), which though now decidedly against the old barbarities and in favour of something new, and having even agreed to acknowledge Christianity, yet has failed to grasp the meaning of being dead unto sin and self, and alive unto God through Christ.

PROVINCE OF BULEMEZI.

In the province of Bulemezi, in which there was no resident missionary before August, 1895, 452 were baptized during the year, and there are some seventy churches with congregations varying from fifty to 400. The station, which in last year's Report was called Buzinde, is now called WALULETA by the Rev. T. R. Buckley in his Annual Letter, who, however, contemplated removing a few miles further south to a place where a large hill, Ndeje, has been given to the Native Church by the chief, the Rev. Zakaria Kizito. There are still villages, however, without churches, in some of which hemp smoking is extensively practised. The location of one of the new deacons, the Rev. Nataneli Mudeke, to labour in this province was a source of much encouragement. Mr. Buckley says of him :—

Waluleta.

A native deacon "full of the Holy Spirit."

> He is a man full of the Holy Spirit, whose sole aim is to win souls to Christ. He is a man of good natural ability, and intercourse with him is edifying. He takes the lead in our Church Council ; I merely attend to give advice should it be needed.

Mr. Buckley has been privileged to gather in the first converts among the Bavima tribe, the herdmen of Equatorial Africa, who speak a different dialect from that spoken by the Waganda. He says :—

First-fruits of the Bavima tribe.

> Mr. Pilkington had one of this nation as his boy. He became a Christian, and went to live with some Bavima in a village belonging to them in Bulemezi. He began to teach them, and after a little time they built a church, in which they met every day for instruction. After due preparation and examination, I had the pleasure of baptizing ten adult Bavima in their own church. This boy, Erifa, visited me in Waluleta, and seeing the collection being taken at the missionary meeting on Friday, he asked what should the Bavima do? They had no shells, nor matoke, nor Indian corn; could they bring butter? The butter could afterwards be sold for shells.

The contrast between the old and the new order of things in the country is frequently brought into vivid prominence. Mr. Buckley writes:—

Relics of the barbarous past.

As I officiate on Sunday I see an attentive listener seated at the doorway; his eyes had been plucked out some years ago because he read the New Testament. When officiating in a church a few miles distant I see a woman whose eyes had been plucked out and her ears cut off by a former king's orders. When putting up for the night at a teacher's house a man whose eyes had been plucked out told me he liked staying there because he got plenty of food. Sometimes it is an eye that has been put out, or an ear cut off, but such cases—and they are numerous—show in a lurid light the powers of darkness. One can easily imagine what life in Buganda meant when Mackay first came.

Mr. H. B. Lewin was at Waluleta with Mr. Buckley until August. He refers to the large sale of books:—

Working a fortnight for a New Testament

The Baganda are most eager to get books, and a poor person who has not shells to buy with gladly does work in order to obtain them: a woman will hoe for a fortnight for a New Testament, or a man or a boy work at building a fence for a week for a Gospel. I give last June's account of sale of books, as each month is very much alike: Fifty-five New Testaments, fifty-one Gospels, thirteen Acts and Epistles, nine Old Testament Books, 147 Mateka (first reading-sheet), 236 other portions, &c., altogether making a total of no less than 27,144 cowrie shells, each of which has to be counted and to pass through my hands. Some thirty village teachers had to be supplied with books, and these come in once a month to settle up their accounts. This always takes a long time, and requires great patience, as the shells have to be counted over a great many times before they tally with the value of the books taken. On these days we always have a prayer-meeting, and at most of these I give an address to the teachers.

Mr. Lewin conducted Bible-classes, having sometimes over a hundred members, whose earnestness and attention was remarkable. He says:—

Sensible questions by Bible-class pupils.

The questions asked from time to time are generally most sensible and intelligent. The following were asked me a short time ago:—(1) Where in the Gospels each separate year of our Lord's ministry ends? (2) When the Jews were taken captive into Babylon, who was their ruler?

Kisitala.

In August, 1896, Mr. Lewin removed to KISITALA, the largest village in the province, situated twenty-two miles from Waluleta, with a population estimated at 5,000. The church in this place built by the chief has mud walls, the first of its kind in Uganda, the rest being built, as described above by Bishop Tucker, of reeds. There is an attendance of 250 on Sundays. In the surrounding villages the work advances at a surprising rate. Mr. Lewin says:—

The first mud church in Uganda.

At Musembwa, when the Rev. J. Roscoe passed through at the end of last year, there was nothing but darkness, an ignorant worshipping of Lubari, and an intense hostility to the Gospel; now no less than 100 meet in God's house on Sunday, while some twenty more are reading for baptism.

A church built by a peasant.

At Nakiju I found a church built entirely by a mukopi (poor man). Some time ago he came to live at this village, and commenced to tell the people of the Saviour he had heard and found. For this, his house was burnt down, and he suffered the loss of all things, but strong in faith, nothing daunted, he put up a little shelter for his family, and set to work with his own hands building this small church, in which now twenty-seven persons meet on Sundays, several of whom are able to read a Gospel, and four of whom wish to read for baptism.

These are only examples of the work carried on by the twenty-two Church Council teachers in the twenty-five village churches around here. In every one of these during this last year the readers have more than doubled, and from more than half of them people have been baptized. Christian Baganda day by day are being sent into Bunyoro to take possession of whole villages, and there they are seeking to make known their King Jesus to the Banyoro. Only two days from here are two little churches built by them in that land as a witness to the True God.

PROVINCES OF SINGO AND KITUNZI.

The province of Singo, which was once the most thickly populated of all the provinces, as it is the largest, is now, through having been made the battle-ground of the Mohammedans, one of the most thinly populated of all. Numerous villages were destroyed and others were deserted. These remarks apply also to the province of Kitunzi. The villages in both provinces are mostly small and are wide apart. The larger ones are occupied by teachers who hold baptism classes in them daily. Twenty-four teachers were sent out from NAMUKOZI (Mityana) during the year. The Rev. H. R. Sugden continues in charge. The Bishop confirmed eighty-two candidates, forty-one on Easter Day and forty-one in May, 1896, on his way to and from Toro. The Bishop wrote:—

Namukozi

I found that a great change had come over the scene since my last visit to Mityana in 1893. Then the hill on which the station now stands was covered with long tiger-grass. Now this has all been cleared away and a beautifully-built church, fences, and nicely laid-out gardens have taken its place. Everything seemed to be in perfect order. In comparing the present work with the prospect before us in 1893, I must confess to a measure of disappointment. This is due without doubt to the unsatisfactory character and life of the Mukwenda, the chief of Singo. It has been found necessary to suspend him from Church privileges. The result has been that all the best of the Christians have left him and gone to other chiefs in different parts of the country. The population has suffered a considerable decrease. But what the Church has lost in numbers it has perhaps gained in the substantial character of the work. Those who become Christians do so in spite of the Mukwenda's influence. On the whole one is very thankful for the progress that has been made.

An influential chief suspended from Church privileges.

There are more cases of backsliding, Mr. Sugden says, than formerly. Some of those who sought baptism because it was the fashion, or with the hope of obtaining some worldly advantage, finding that the Government shows no partiality towards Christians, have gone back.

Mr. A. B. Fisher was requested to accompany the Bishop to Toro and to make that country his sphere of work, and consequently he left BAMUSUTA (Kinakulya's), fifty miles west by north of Mityana and about one hundred from Mengo, in March. Mr. Roscoe had visited Bamusuta in January and had baptized 116 adults in the open-air for want of room in the church. The Bishop confirmed 63 candidates in April, and Mr. Sugden at the same time baptized 16 adult converts. The church which was commenced soon after Mr. Fisher's arrival, as mentioned last year (page 125), was burnt to the ground just as it was nearing completion, maliciously, it was believed, by a man who had a grudge against the chief. Mr. Sugden, accompanied by Archdeacon Walker, arrived at Bamusuta a few days after the fire, hoping to hold a short Mission and to open the church. The Rev. Bartolomayo Musoke, one of the newly-ordained deacons, of whom Mr. Sugden says, "He is a very earnest and energetic man, with a good deal of power and force of character," is located at this station.

Bamusuta.

Baptisms in open-air for want of room in church.

Mr. T. B. Fletcher entered into occupation of KASAKA, in the province of Kitunzi, in November, 1895. It was mentioned last year that a number of women, wives of the chief (whom Mr. Fisher called "The Last of the Barons"), were zealous in learning to read. Five of these were baptized on the last Sunday of 1895, and in spite of the chief's opposition they lived consistently with their profession and were confirmed in April, with twenty-four others, fourteen men and ten women, when the Bishop visited Kasaka. The Bishop wrote:—

Kasaka.

> The warmth of our reception at Kasaka was quite remarkable. The young men, who came some distance on the road to meet us, were very enthusiastic in their greetings. The work at this station has been carried on in the face of great difficulties. The chief, named Ndakali, is quite one of the old school—a thorough Heathen at heart and desperately opposed to us. The work, I am thankful to say, is full of promise. The missionaries are regarded with affection by the people, and already a goodly number have been baptized.

A chief hostile to the work.

The Christians at the station have to endure much persecution both from the chief and the people generally. A boy was put in the stocks by his master for a length of time. Numerous churches have been built in the villages, but some of them, owing to the removal of the village chief who had them erected, are neglected, and in two the pulpits were filled with a luxuriant growth of weeds.

Persecution.

The country of Bunyoro adjoins the province of Singo. It is now included in the British Protectorate, and a fort (Fort Hoima) has been erected near Kawola, the former capital of Kabbarega, and a good road made. The Bishop selected a site at Kijungate—a high hill in the centre of a well-populated plain where a large number of Banyoro are settled—for a large church. It is within three days' march of Kawola. One of the two teachers whom Mr. Fisher left in Bunyoro at the close of 1895, as mentioned last year, went away soon afterwards, and the other, named Erasito, met with much opposition from the chief, who left him and the other two teachers sent by Mr. Sugden for days together without food. On some occasions the ground of this attitude was jealousy, because they had given instruction to some people in a neighbouring chieftainship. Eventually the teachers were expelled soon after a visit paid by Mr. Sugden in the autumn of 1896.

Mr. Sugden, after the visit just referred to, proceeded from Kawola southward en route to Toro, passing through numerous Bunyoro villages. His Christian companions from Singo, who acted as his porters, greatly assisted him in making friends with the inhabitants, most of whom had not seen a European before. He writes:—

Helpful Christian porters.

I had some six or seven Christian porters with me, and they were able to tell the people something of the glad tidings, especially when we rested on the Sundays; that of itself was an object-lesson, but the fact that we greeted them as friends, took nothing but what they gave us, and did not demand food, but asked for it as a favour, made the greatest impression upon them, I think, and will, I hope, pave the way for future work amongst them. I was very glad to have my Singo people with me as porters. I spoke to them before leaving Kawola, and pointed out to them how they could teach the people as we passed along by showing them that those who were the people of Jesus were their friends, and almost without an exception they did so. At one very large village, where we stayed the night, the chief came with a hundred of his people and asked me to settle some words. I told him I would gladly hear the words, but that as I was a teacher, not a chief, neither party would be bound to accept the decision unless they liked. The words took up a full hour, my porters interpreting. Both parties agreed to the decision, and then they wanted to give the porters who had interpreted some chickens, upon which they turned to me and asked if they should accept them. When I pointed out to them the words of Matthew v. 9, they at once declined the gifts, telling the people the reason. The astonishment of the Banyoro was great to think that they could refuse a gift, and be willing to help others without a reward because they were Christians.

The Revs. J. Roscoe and J. Martin Hall visited Bali, in the east of Bunyoro, in March. This place is the capital of Semu (Shem) Kakungula, formerly a prominent chief in Uganda, whom the Government appointed ruler over this part of Bunyoro in recognition of his military prowess. His wife is a sister of King Mwanga. Mr. Baskerville wrote regarding this chief:—

Influence of a Christian chief.

The British Government, after the late war with Kabbarega, king of Bunyoro, asked Semu to take control of the district of Namionjo. The first thing he did was to send back to their homes all the women taken captive in the war. This made a great impression. "Such a thing," said the Bunyoro, "had never been done before," and they came to Semu and asked him to teach them, saying, "We now know that the God of the Baganda is the true God, and their God shall be our God."

PROVINCE OF KYAGWE.

The eastern district of Bunyoro just referred to has been placed under the supervision of the missionary residing at NAKANYONYI, the capital of Bukoba, the northern district of the province of Kyagwe. The chief of this district is Tomasi Mukabya, one of the Church elders at Mengo. It is thickly populated, there being a large number of Mohammedans, and a still larger number of Heathen, under an old chief, Mberenge, who in Mtesa's time was one of the high priests of the Lubare worship. There are also many Roman Catholics, the province having formerly been occupied by the French Mission. Nakanyonyi was first occupied by Mr. A. B. Lloyd in January, 1896. Between 150 and 200 attended daily classes for reading. Of his native helper, Asa Nkangali, Mr. Lloyd wrote:— Nakanyonyi.

A more true and faithful worker could not be found in all Uganda; his work will live long after him. Preaching was his great power, and I have known him keep the people literally spell-bound for an hour and more. One particular Sunday, when I was unable through a severe cold to go into church, Asa preached a sermon which will not be forgotten soon. Drink was the topic, and he preached from 11 a.m. till 2 p.m., in fact, right up to the time of the afternoon service, and yet he held the attention of the people right to the end. An eloquent native preacher.

The Rev. G. R. Blackledge was transferred to Nakanyonyi from Ngogwe in June, in order to release Mr. Lloyd to go to Toro, and on August 9th, a large church, second in size only to the one on Namirembe Hill at Mengo, which the chief had had built, was opened. Nearly a thousand people were present; the hymn "All hail the power of Jesu's Name" was sung; Asa Nkangali preached; and the collection comprised one cow, two hens, one mat, and 2,475 shells. In the afternoon Mr. Blackledge baptized seventy-five people. A church opening.

Besides Bukoba, the districts of Bulondaganyi (having seven churches), Kyabazala (four churches), and Wunga (four churches), to the north are, for the present, under Mr. Blackledge's supervision. His itinerations in these extensive fields were a revelation to him of prevailing Heathenism, which his previous experience in Mengo, Ngogwe, and Nakanyonyi had not led him to expect. He writes:— Heathenism prevalent in the remoter districts.

Drunkenness is terribly common in all parts, accompanied by hemp-smoking; a vast number of people are still Heathen, and indifferent to the Gospel. Mohammedanism has got a good position in some parts, such as Bukoba, and lastly, Romanism is making good way with the common people. In face of the above there is little room for self-congratulation, and while we praise God for what has been done, yet the thought of what has still to be done should keep us very low.

The Revs. Martin J. Hall and G. R. Blackledge were together at NGOGWE, the centre of the work in the south of the province of Kyagwe, at the close of 1895, and they remained together, Ngogwe.

with short absences spent in itinerating tours, until the following June when, the Rev. W. A. Crabtree having been transferred on grounds of health to Ngogwe from Busoga, Mr. Blackledge was freed to take charge, as already mentioned, of the northern district of Bukoba. Mr. Hall left in August to occupy Bukasa temporarily during the Rev. E. C. Gordon's absence at Nassa. The congregations at Ngogwe, especially those on Sunday mornings, were very good. There were large classes daily of catechumens and of confirmation candidates at the close of 1895, the work of which fell largely on the Rev. Yonasani Kaidzi and on Henry Mukasa; but these two went to Mengo in December to prepare for ordination, and were admitted, the former to priest's and the latter to deacon's orders, in June, 1896. The confirmation of some 250 candidates at Ngogwe in December, 1895, was mentioned last year. By the following June there were 150 more candidates ready, and it was hoped that the Bishop would pay a second visit in order to confirm them. This, however, proved impossible, and the thirty men who walked to the capital to take the Bishop back returned disappointed without him. Under these circumstances Mr. Hall took the whole party of 150 the distance of over thirty miles to Mengo, and they were confirmed with some others on June 2nd, two days before the Bishop left the country. The work round Ngogwe at this time assumed such proportions that special arrangements for the Sunday services had to be devised. Mr. Hall says:—

One hundred and fifty candidates walk thirty miles to be confirmed.

System of "local preachers."

We started a system of "local preachers" (to borrow from Wesley's vocabulary), having a band of ten approved volunteer preachers who visited in turn ten neighbouring churches each Sunday. Owing, too, to the large increase of distant communicants, Mr. Crabtree or I went to a different central church each Sunday, and, gathering all the communicants in that neighbourhood, administered the Lord's Supper; we also examined and baptized at these centres, which seems preferable to the former plan of bringing them all to Ngogwe for baptism, where none of their neighbours or friends can be present to see their baptism. And this is specially needful in the country districts, where most absurd notions as to the nature of baptism prevail amongst the people.

At the beginning of 1896 Mr. Hall accompanied Mr. Roscoe in an itineration through the eastern part of the province. They walked on an average eighteen miles a day, pausing for a short evangelistic service at each of the little churches with which Kyagwe is dotted. Mr. Hall wrote:—

A solemn after-meeting.

At one place we had a Mission service just before dark in the little church at Mondo's. Roscoe spoke in the gathering darkness, and the Holy Ghost made a great appeal in the hearts of those present. Many of them had been giving way to drink—drunkenness being fearfully prevalent on the gardens of this chief, as he himself is a drunkard. In the short after-meeting, lit up by one of Roscoe's candles, there was a complete breaking down. Tears, sighs, confession, prayer, surrender were heard in brief but continuous flow for some twenty minutes. On our return through this place the other day the teacher told us that, as one outward fruit of our former visit, about twenty-five persons had given up drinking the native beer (mwaye) altogether, and the whole work has received an impetus there. This is only a type of many of the meetings which we held in various places.

Mr. Crabtree bears testimony to the rapid progress made since February, 1894, when he left Ngogwe to go into Kavirondo, but he also points to a danger—and it is one which is present in other districts as well:—

Danger of too rapid baptizing.

Whilst there is much to be most thankful for, there are not wanting many things calling for much wisdom and prayer. At the root of all seems to me to lie a too rapid baptizing; they seem to regard baptism as the be-all and end-all of the work. Confirmation is a useful but troublesome adjunct, because of the extra reading it involves. Teaching and preaching are matters for the few, and the aim of existence is to get baptized, and do as little work as possible. Yet to absolutely refuse baptism, even for a few months, is difficult because of the numerous out-stations, where a single baptism of one worthy candidate gives immense stimulus to the work in that garden. The result is, you have launched upon you about fifty people eager to be questioned with a view to baptism. Of some fifty I examined two months ago, I should have considered about five really fit for baptism, a good many of the others possessing enough head-knowledge, but not seeming to have any depth. If you refuse them, the next query comes, What are we to read? It seems to them rather hard lines to read again the Gospel which they have just read. In short, they wish to get through the set portions, be interviewed by a European, and baptized, rather than wait and digest what they learn and put it into practice. A week will pass after you received these fifty names, and another twenty will be brought to you, and so on—one continuous stream. For the present I have put them off to read two more Gospels and the Catechism, with the result that I have had no questioning for baptism this last month. How the matter will finally adjust itself I do not know. It will call for consideration when Baskerville arrives. But the continuous baptizing of large numbers here at Ngogwe has robbed the service of its solemnity and meaning. This can partly be remedied by baptizing candidates in the gardens they respectively come from rather than at Ngogwe.

Regarding the Roman Catholics in the district, Mr. Crabtree writes:—

Roman Catholics in Kyagwe

The Roman Catholics have spread themselves over Kyagwe, and I heard yesterday what I had conjectured would happen—viz., that a European is intending to build at Mulaji, five miles from here, and (say) three miles from Ziba. Before his arrival the congregation gathered there from places all round in a radius of six miles, and numbered from eighty to a hundred—i.e., as many as our first congregations at Ziba. But so far as I can make out their teaching has not yet affected the people who wish to read as Protestants. One baptized woman who can read—a Roman Catholic named Maria—joined the Protestants in one garden near here, and is now, I trust, reading the New Testament which I gave her. In another garden about twenty-two miles from here—a stronghold of Roman Catholics—I heard, about a week ago, there was a great desire on the part of the Roman Catholics to hear the teaching of the Protestants; and the attendance at the Protestant church had increased. This is almost synchronous with the return of the Protestant teacher Malaki, who first started the work in that garden, and who has since then been to the island of Busi. This garden is called Mu-go Mba; the chief, Bakwana, is never to be seen now, and attends neither Protestant nor Roman Catholic church. It is one of the many gardens of the Namasole, and in all cases where I know of teaching being done in her gardens, Roman Catholics are there.

Mr. Hall visited some of the Bavuma Islands, off the Kyagwe coast, in August, which are supplied with teachers from the island of Kome. Only two of this group of islands are without teachers, and the people on one of them earnestly asked that teachers might be sent to them.

SESE ISLANDS.

Bukasa.

The Rev. E. C. Gordon continued at BUKASA until September, 1896, when he crossed the Lake to give assistance at Nassa on hearing of Mr. Nickisson's death at that station, and the Rev. Martin J. Hall took his place temporarily. Mr. Gordon was much encouraged by the good work of the Basese teachers. These are paid only 1,000 shells per annum, as compared with 4,000 paid to Baganda teachers. This sum suffices to buy the bark cloths with which the former are content to dress, but not for cotton calico to which the latter aspire. In both cases the food is provided by the chiefs, and on some of the islands, as on one called Jana, the chiefs have endeavoured to get rid of the teachers by leaving them without food. They mostly persevere, notwithstanding, obtaining food through friends among the people. The three most important islands—Bukasa, Bufumira, and Kome—have all sent out Basese teachers. Bubeke, an island near Bukasa, and subject to its chief, was reported one of the darkest in the whole group in 1895, but in February, 1896, Mr. Gordon found twelve adults whom the teachers sent from Bukasa a few months before had prepared for baptism, and a congregation of 150 worshippers. During six months they gave 600 shells—more than enough for the pay of a teacher. Mr. Gordon describes a method of collection on this island which has advantages when people are troubled with a bad memory:—

A collection of pledges.

> The collectors come up the church with their hands, and sometimes their arms, full of books. They place these books in the basket which I hold out to receive the shells from the collecting-bags. The books are not given to the collection, but are afterwards redeemed by their owners when they bring a shell to the collection which had been forgotten and left at home. Sometimes a book means as many as ten shells, and sometimes a pencil, or a piece of note-paper, is put into the basket.

Mr. Martin J. Hall spent alternate weeks at the close of the year in visiting the various islands. On 36 of these, he writes, there are 53 separate congregations.

V. BUSOGA.

LUBA'S.

Luba's.

THE Rev. F. Rowling considers that the work regarded as a whole in South Busoga is encouraging, but at LUBA'S, where he resides, there is very little evidence of desire to read or hear the Gospel, and the opposition of the chiefs generally is continued. The services are attended by from 20 to 30. A good church was in course of erection in November, which Mr. Rowling hoped would be ready for the Christmas Day services. The people fully appreciate Mr. Rowling's medical work. An average of eighty patients attend on the four days of each week that his dispensary is open, making some 16,000 in the year. The patients willingly attend services held for them in the little church, but Mr. Rowling is doubtful whether they understand much of what is said, except indeed those who have received instruction in the reading classes, as old words pressed into service for Christian teaching have received a new meaning. The little printing press is kept busy. A Lusoga translation of St. Matthew's Gospel made by the Rev. W. A. Crabtree and revised by Mr. Rowling has been printed, and a reading book has been issued, the type having been set up and the printing done by a Buganda lad trained by Mr. Rowling. The work at Kajaya's is encouraging; about twenty there are steadily attending classes. The island of Bugaya also is a very promising field; the chief Mugeto can read the Gospel, and about 25 are under instruction. The great difficulty is that the Baganda teachers are unwilling to learn Lusoga, and there are at present no Basoga teachers.

Printing press.

MIRO'S.

Mr. A. Wilson, one of the party which accompanied Bishop Tucker up-country in 1895, was left at Luba's in September, but three months later he was transferred to MIRO'S, the northern station. This was at first intended to be only a temporary arrangement, but the removal of the Rev. W. A. Crabtree to Kyagwe in the summer of 1896 necessitated Mr. Wilson's remaining. Five Baganda went to Ngogwe from Miro's in May, and thence forward to Mengo, to be confirmed, and these have since been engaged as teachers. After a visit paid by the Rev. J. Roscoe in the spring of 1896, a few other Baganda teachers were sent, and these find occupation in instructing classes at six separate centres or out-stations, at each of which there is a small church. The Rev. Nua Kikwabanga, one of the new deacons, is stationed at Miro's. Up to the beginning of November, when Mr. Wilson wrote his Annual Letter, no Natives of the country had been baptized (previous converts having been Baganda residents in Busoga), but several were under instruction and five were just about to be baptized. Owing to the lack of female teachers very few women —scarcely a dozen in the whole country—have come under instruction. The extensive tracts of country under the chieftainships of Tabingwa and Gabula are without teachers owing to the attitude of those chiefs, though many of the people, Mr. Wilson says, are desirous to learn.

Miro's.

VI. KOKI.

Kamswaga's.

Four years without a day's illness.

Mr. R. H. Leakey, who arrived at Kamswaga's in January, 1896, accompanied by Tomasi Semfuma and some other Baganda teachers, was able in the autumn of the same year thankfully to record that after four years in the Mission he had not had to keep his bed a single day—a unique experience; he maintains that Uganda is more healthy than England. Koki is, however, distinctly less healthy than Uganda, as it is during the rains surrounded by swamps. Then mosquitoes abound, but Mr. Leakey is getting used to them! The chief difficulties of the work are drink and polygamy. About 90 per cent. of the adults are more or less addicted to drinking, but happily nearly all the Christians are total abstainers. The king, Kamswaga, was at first, though desirous of having a European, and a Protestant European, resident in his country, really opposed to the work of evangelization, and would not allow either his wives or his children to be taught; but he yielded in these points after a while. Mr. Roscoe wrote in May:—

King Kamswaga.

> I think he really wishes to learn, but at present he is very ignorant, and I believe much of his evil and unchristian doings are due to ignorance. Thus I expect the idea of it being wrong to sell or trade in slaves is to him ridiculous, and he looks upon it more as a mere European fad, which as he wants English protection must be put up with, much the same as we might buy a thing we do not want in "a lot" of things most of which we need. But I hope he will soon see how utterly contrary the idea of slavery is to the teaching of Christ and the New Testament.
> One thing of which I am very glad is that he has of his own free will allowed the young princes—three of them, his son and two nephews—to begin to learn to read. It is nice to see them cast aside their own Lubari charms and take the Word of God in their place.

The king went to Mengo in October, attended by most of the readers, in order to get Koki formally incorporated as a part of Uganda. The Revs. J. Roscoe and A. J. Pike visited Koki during the year, the former in April, when he baptized the first six Bakoki converts and three Baganda, and conducted special services, which Mr. Leakey believes were the beginning of a decided change for the better in the attitude of the king, and an occasion of spiritual crisis to a number of the people; and the latter in October, when he baptized fourteen adults and eight children, and married the first Christian couple. Mr. Leakey was much encouraged with the progress he was privileged to witness. He says:—

Progress in Koki.

> When I reached here there was one church in Koki, now there are eight; then no baptized Christians, now twenty-two adults and eight infants. Then books sold very slowly, now there is a good sale. I have about twenty-four names of candidates under instruction for baptism, and about sixteen for confirmation. Drink is far less. Slavery and slave-trade is also less, as the king is trying to stop it. We have much to thank God for here, and He has done wondrously. Tomasi Semfuma is doing an excellent work, and I hardly know how to praise him enough. I believe that, under God, most of the change is due to him.

Mr. Leakey made tours in South Koki, called Kibale, a very hilly country and sparsely populated; and in Dangu, the northern province. In the latter he visited fifty-five gardens and found about 200 readers, though the chiefs were opposed. He also visited Budu, and passed four candidates for baptism, whom Mr. Pike baptized—the first in that province to be baptized by Protestant missionaries since 1892. There are some hundreds of Protestant readers scattered over the province of Budu, all, however, belonging to the peasant class.

Baptisms in Budu.

VII. TORO.

Bishop Tucker, in accordance with the hope mentioned in last year's Report, paid a visit to Toro in the spring of 1896. He arrived at the capital on April 30th, and left it to return to Mengo on May 11th. He describes the country as more beautiful than Uganda, and the climate as more bracing and healthy. He adds the following particulars regarding the country and people:—

Ruwenzori is indeed a mighty mass, towering into the clouds which give to much of it a mystery and beauty hard to describe. The people differ considerably from the Baganda in their physical aspect. They resemble strongly the Bavima, or herdsman tribe, with whom I should imagine they are closely allied. I should describe them as very much better-looking than the Baganda, but not so vigorous and robust. The distinguishing bark-cloth is not made in the country; the dress of the people consists therefore more largely of skins and calico of a poor quality. The constitution of the country resembles greatly that of Buganda. Theking has his Katikiro, Mukwenda, Pokino, &c., and these in turn their underchiefs, until you come at last to the peasantry or Bakopi.

Ruwenzori mountain and its inhabitants.

Reference was made in the Annual Report of 1894–95 (page 99) to the first introduction of the Gospel into Toro. The Bishop gives the story in more detail:—

Yafeti—a member of the Royal family of Bunyoro, who had been taught and baptized in Mengo some years previously—was the living agent used by God to bring the Gospel to this far-away country. He had been appointed chief of the great province of Mwenzi. At his request reading-sheets and books were sent to him, together with two Christian teachers. Marko and Petero, the two first missionaries to Toro, were men full of love and zeal, and with a will they set themselves to the task of making Christ known to the Batoro.

Introduction of the Gospel into Toro.

For a while the work of teaching went on with a considerable amount of success. Then came a check. The Nubians, who had been stationed in Toro by Captain Lugard, were practically under no sort of control after his departure from the country. They seized a quantity of books and burnt them. They also dispersed several little congregations of readers. Notwithstanding these trials and difficulties the work went on, and Kasagama, the king, himself joined the "people of the book," as the readers were called,

Then came the period so marked by missionary enterprise and zeal in the Church of Buganda. More teachers were sent to Toro. Churches were built both at Kasagama's and Mwenzi, and congregations numbering several hundred were gathered at both places.

After this came another time of trial, and this was used by God, as in other periods of the Christian Church, towards development and growth. Both Kasagama and Yafeti had false charges made against them with regard to the government of their countries, and were called to Mengo to answer them. Happily both were acquitted, and Kasagama, after a time of special instruction, was baptized and returned in triumph to his capital. Yafeti, however, is detained in Mengo for some time longer for reasons of state. During his absence all the readers were dispersed and the church burnt.

Baptism of King Kasagama

Kasagama, the king of Toro, was baptized at Mengo by the Rev. E. Millar on March 15th, 1896, the Queen's Commissioner being a witness of the ceremony. He received the name of Daudi (David), and on his return a few days in advance of the Bishop, in order to make preparations to receive him, gave the name of BETELEYEMU (Bethlehem) to his capital, which is about 200 miles from Mengo. The Bishop, who was accompanied by Mr. Fisher, thus describes their welcome :—

Beteleyemu.

Reception of Bishop Tucker.

As we drew near to the king's hill, messengers, according to Uganda custom, began to arrive in quick succession with messages of greeting. These were sent back with our greetings, and so things went on until at last a stream of messengers was moving to and fro, and the excitement grew in proportion. At last, on the site of the old capital, we found the king seated on his leopard-skin-covered chair, surrounded by his chiefs and a large number of followers. He came forward and greeted us very warmly in Uganda fashion. After the first formal greetings were over we all adjourned to the church, where a short service was held. This, I may say, had been arranged beforehand by the people themselves. I spoke a few words expressive of the joy we felt at seeing so many gathered together for the worship of God on the slopes of Ruwenzori. Mr. Fisher also spoke as the missionary to whom the charge of the work had been assigned. It was a joyful service of thanksgiving and praise. The people were full of joy at our arrival, and we were full of thankfulness at being permitted to take up a work which God has so manifestly owned and blessed.

First converts baptized in the country.

On May 8th the Bishop baptized the first fifteen converts in the country, led to Christ by the Baganda teachers. Among them was the Namasole, or queen-mother (who chose the name of "Victoria"), and the king's wife (taking the name of Damari), who was afterwards publicly married to the king. A house for the missionary and a church to hold 800 people were immediately commenced. For the first few months, while studying the language, Mr. Fisher's sermons were translated into Lunyoro by a Bunyoro Christian lad, Nukavil. All the converts were connected with the households of the king and queen-mother, the majority of the chiefs having no desire to become Christians. Drunkenness is very common, and often leads to fatal consequences. Mr. A. B. Lloyd arrived in Toro in July and took over the medical work, after which the patients numbered nearly 200 daily, chest diseases and ulcers being the chief complaints. He wrote home soon after his arrival, expressing his admiration of the king and queen-mother :—

Consistent conduct of the king and queen-mother.

Daudi Kasagama (the king) I admire more and more ; he stands alone, as at present none of his chiefs are Christians. God has wonderfully touched his heart, and he realizes to a very real extent that his duty is first to God. He is most regular at the classes for reading, and, together with his humblest subjects, he sits day by day at the feet of Jesus to be taught. His simplicity is very delightful, and indeed affords us a lesson by which we may well profit. His constant remark concerning any difficult question with reference to the government of his country is, "What ought I to do as a Christian?" He fears not to stand alone, for I believe his trust is in Him Whom he realizes is a greater King.

"What ought I to do as a Christian?"

Vikilolya (Victoria), the Namasole, I cannot speak too highly of ; she is really wonderful ; her bright example is being wonderfully used of God. Constant as a reader at church, she is still constant as a preacher of the Lord Jesus in daily intercourse with her people. I am told by a Muganda teacher, whom we have sent to her enclosure to teach, that everybody who goes to see her hears about the Lord Jesus and His love.

Before the Bishop left, plans were made for the distribution of the Baganda teachers, fifteen in number. Two of them, Tito and Nua Nakiwafu, were retained at the capital, and the rest were sent in couples to the other chief centres of population where the chiefs were willing to receive them. Mr. Fisher made itinerations to visit these out-stations in the course of the summer and autumn. First he went westward some twenty miles beyond the Semliki River, to Mboga, where he found a good church holding 150 people and twenty-five men and women able to read the New Testament. Petro Nsubuga, a Buganda Christian chief, now made a chief in Bunyoro, was the teacher who began work at this the most advanced out-post, close to the borders of the Congo Free State. Of some of the tribes in this neighbourhood Mr. Fisher writes :—

Out-stations.

A church on borders of Congo Free State

On the way we passed two new tribes, the Bakonjo, who inhabit Ruwenzori Mountain, and the Babamba, who live in the hot valley between Ruwenzori and the Mboga range ; both speak entirely different languages. The Bakonjo are a strong-built race, who on their loved mountain are quite nude. By the help of some Christian Batoro we told them the Gospel story, but it is difficult for them to comprehend such good news. The Bakonjo circumcise, and the Babamba file the front teeth to a sharp point, while all the Banyoro extract the four front teeth in the lower jaw. Burning is a cure in Bunyoro for almost every disease. It is terrible to see a poor child burned to the bone with a red-hot iron for a pain in its chest, while its teeth are hammered out to make it fashionable. King Daudi is doing all he can to stop these vile practices, with good success.

We did not see any of the dwarf people, who are called Babatwa, as they continually roam about the forest and do not associate with the surrounding tribes. On the west side of the great Ruwenzori Mountain we visited some wonderful hot springs which the people believe to be a cure for almost every disease ; the water rushing out of the ground is boiling hot, and the people living near the place tie their potatoes in a bundle, throw them into a spring, and in twenty minutes they are beautifully boiled ("without any trouble," says a bystander). A splendid view is obtained of the three large snow-peaks from the west side, and I believe the snow-line can be easily reached from the west, while all attempts from the east have proved hopeless. Earthquakes are common here, and a few months ago a whole village of unfortunate Bakonja were buried by a mountain slip.

King's grandmother baptized.

Mr. Fisher's second journey was to Buliti, the capital of Mwenzi, in the chieftainship of Yafeti. Here Mr. Fisher met the Rev. H. R. Sugden, from Singo, who on a later visit baptized eighteen adults. Mr. Sugden also baptized twenty-five adults and three children at Bamutenda, including the king's grandmother, who is almost blind from old age. She said, "I love the Lord Jesus, but I am never here going to know or understand all His love for me." Then the two visited Katwe, a remarkable village built on a narrow neck of land between the Albert Edward and the Salt Lake. They noticed a great difference in the treatment accorded to them wherever teachers were at work. On the way back they passed through Butanuka, where lions are so numerous that a week seldom passes without someone being carried off while working in the gardens or walking on the roads.

MOHAMMEDAN LANDS.

The spiritual authority of the Sultan of Turkey.

An assumption regarding the spiritual authority of the Sultan of Turkey, which has not been altogether without influence in political circles, is negatived by the Rev. E. Sell in his second edition, revised and enlarged, of The Faith of Islam, published in 1896. The French Minister for Foreign Affairs is reported on a recent occasion to have referred to the Sultan as "the spiritual head of his people," and the same notion is widely prevalent and arises out of the Sultan's claim to be the Khalif, i.e., successor of Mohamet. Mr. Sell shows from numerous authorities that it is an indispensable qualification for the Khalifate to belong to the tribe of the Quraish, and that the Sultan does not fulfil this condition. It is a fatal mistake, Mr. Sell argues, to recognize the Sultan in this capacity, as it tends to render any step on the part of Turkey towards newness of political life an impossibility.

The "Eastern Question," that tangled and seemingly hopeless diplomatic skein, is a term which expresses to the Christian Evangelist also problems that are not without grave perplexities and discouragements. That fanatical hatred of Christians, the growth of centuries, which bursts at irregular intervals into a flame of bitter and inhuman acts of cruelty and organized oppression, now in Armenia, now in Constantinople and Macedonia, now in Crete, render the Moslems in the lands which are under Mohammedan rule the least hopeful subject for the Christian missionary. But it may well be the case that the lack of expectant faith, and the lack in many quarters perhaps of fervent desire, on the part of the Home Church are more responsible for the absence of abundant and visible fruits than the pride and fanaticism of the benighted followers of Islam. The missionaries plead earnestly for more believing prayer in their own and their work's behalf. The Rev. C. T. Wilson writes :—

More prayer needed for Moslem lands.

> I want to make an earnest appeal to Christians at home for more prayer for Moslem lands. I am afraid that there is on the part of many a kind of hopeless feeling about Moslem work. It is confessedly the hardest, spiritually, of all Mission work, and though there has been blessing in places, yet there have been no great accessions from the ranks of Islam in any lands dominated by it. It is the keep of the fortress of Satan, and but little impression has hitherto been made on it by the soldiers of the Cross. And what is the reason? Chiefly, I believe, because there has been so little believing prayer for Moslem lands. There has not been, for one thing, the romance about these Missions tha there has been about some, and less attention has in consequence been drawn to them. Then there has been too much of taking for granted that such Missions were comparatively hopeless, and so there has been but little prayer, and less faith, on the part of the Church for them.

EGYPT MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and which were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: firstly, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, secondly, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted Missionaries have been employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the first founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mussulman can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

As above stated, the Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy, and one Bishop, were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A Medical Mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year.

The Committee, in reply to questions addressed to them by the Board of Foreign Missions of the United Presbyterian Church of North America—which has a strong Mission in Egypt, and one between whose agents and those of the C.M.S. most cordial relations have ever existed—have pointed out that Egypt was one of the Society's earliest Mission-fields, and that it was re-occupied in 1882, owing to the strong sense of responsibility among English Christians in consequence of the position acquired by British influence in the country. They also mentioned that one purpose of the Egypt Mission was to form a base for future advance into the Soudan whenever God might open the way. The Committee therefore have no thought of retiring from Egypt. They have, on the contrary, added somewhat to the strength of the Mission, both in reinforcements of living agents, and in expenditure of means upon a substantial new hospital at Old Cairo.

The Society's policy in Egypt.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements consisted of Mr. Alexander Chorley Hall, M.B., C.M., Edinburgh, medical officer of the Islington Medical Mission, a brother of the Rev. Martin J. Hall, of the Uganda Mission; Miss Lizzie Crowther, of the Highbury Training Home, a fully-trained nurse; Miss Emma Ada Lawford; and Miss Mary Jane Greer. Miss Crowther sailed in October, 1896; Dr. Hall, Miss Lawford, and Miss Greer, in January, February, and March, 1897, respectively. On the other hand, Miss H. K. Cornford and Miss L. M. Mann have resigned. The Rev. and Mrs. P. G. Wood came home in June, 1896, and their connexion with the Society has since been closed on grounds of health.

Dr. F. J. Harpur had the satisfaction of seeing the new Hospital at OLD CAIRO, referred to last year, opened in May, 1897. In the same month of the previous year a severe epidemic of cholera occurred at Old Cairo, but curiously its effect was to diminish instead of increase for the time the work at the hospital, as the people were so fearful of being supposed to have cholera, and of being reported to the sanitary authorities, that they kept away from the Medical Mission; the dispensary attendances fell from 120 to 25, and the hospital for a time had to be closed altogether. The Government measures taken to prevent the spread of the disease caused a riot among the poorer classes, and some of the missonaries became involved, being mistaken for Government officials. Miss E. Jackson writes: Old Cairo Hospital.

I was visiting a member of our congregation, and as I got to the police-station I found a great crowd round it, shouting and shrieking. I managed to pass it by going behind a cart, but coming back was not so fortunate, and one of the Government doctors seeing me sent out a gentleman to bring me into the police-station, where I found Dr. Harpur, who had been sent for, and Mr. Morris. Here we were kept some hours, and it was terrible to watch the angry faces underneath. The people did not go till dispersed by the military sent from town. When we at last were allowed out we were escorted home by a shrieking mob, mostly wild youths; it was quite a new experience. The doctor got a few stones after he left us to go to his own house, but happily escaped without serious injury. Missionaries pursued by a mob.

It is a matter for thankfulness that no member of the Mission party, and none of the native workers or their families contracted the disease, and the more so because the first reported case broke out in the house adjoining the hospital, and which was formerly occupied by the Mission as a girls' school, and in the person of one of the schoolgirls, who died. In the course of the year the number of in-patients received into the hospital exceeded one hundred, many of them from a considerable distance. There were eighteen patients at the close of 1896, though the ward contains only ten beds, the overplus being accommodated on forms and stretchers and in other ways. Many of the patients showed a marked interest in the Gospel. Miss F. M. Sells believes that one young girl, who died after leaving the hospital, was truly converted, so eagerly did she listen and so manifestly find comfort from the Gospel story in her sufferings; and on the day before her death, being spoken to about the Lord Jesus, she said, "He is my Beloved." "He is my Beloved." Miss M. Cay, with a Bible-woman, speaks to the women patients, who assemble four days of each week at the dispensary, often to the number of 120 or 130 at a time. Their minds are exceedingly dull, and the occasional signs of mental or spiritual awakening were welcomed, Miss Cay observes, "like gleams of sunshine through a dense fog." "Gleams of sunshine through a dense fog." The catechist Athanasius visits the male patients, and the ladies and Bible-women the females, at their homes. The former found Moslems who were willing to allow him to read the Bible for hours together in their shops to all who came to listen; and who not only entertained him, but insisted on paying his return railway fare to Cairo. Miss Cay overheard a Mohammedan woman in a village she visited informing another regarding the origin of the Mission:—

A Moslem woman's account of the origin of the Mission.

Her account was as follows:—"Mrs. Engleterra is a great lady, with large possessions. She serves God, and has a kind heart towards the Moslems, so she sent us a doctor and medicine and ladies, all gratuitously, to do us good." So you see we are very welcome, and as "Mrs. Engleterra" has so many sons and daughters she might spare a few more to do good in this benighted land of Egypt.

The Boys' School was closed for several weeks on account of the cholera. It had some 100 pupils in regular attendance at the end of the year, of whom about one-third were Mohammedans.

Mohammedan attendants at Sunday services.

The Sunday Services and classes at CAIRO were conducted by a catechist under the supervision of the Rev. F. F. Adeney, the Secretary of the Mission. They are attended by a goodly number of Moslems. A young student at the celebrated Mohammedan University of Al Azhar expressed a desire to confess Christ; and another youth, the son of a Bey, showed indications of being a believer in the truth of the Gospel. His father was so fearful of his becoming a Christian that he kept him a prisoner in the house, or held him by the hand when he went out walking or driving. The Boys' School had some sixty Moslem pupils out of a total of 140. Miss J. B. Bywater was encouraged by the conduct of her pupils at the Girls' School; two of the oldest, both Moslems, left to enter the Government hospital to be trained as nurses. Miss H. Adeney was chiefly engaged in language study, but she held a class for ragged children and did some visiting. Mr. Adeney baptized by immersion a Jew, a convert of the London Jews' Society in Palestine, who went to Cairo on account of his health. He subsequently visited England, and when Mr. Adeney last heard of him he was an invalid in his father's house at Jerusalem. The Bible Depôt, under Mr. Adeney's charge, is a valued agency, and the demand for Bibles and controversial books and tracts increases year by year. Editions of Sweet First-Fruits and Beacon of Truth have quickly been sold out.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The work in the Levant has for some years been confined to Palestine, to which the Society was invited by Bishop Gobat in 1851. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif, 1892; Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh, 1894; and Kerak, 1894. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their work among Mohammedan women has been greatly blessed. Medical Missions also have done much to diminish prejudice. The first Mission hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, and Kerak have been made centres of Medical Missionary work. (See also Headnotes to "Egypt," p. 142.)

Palestin free from disturbances.

It is a cause for much thankfulness, and several of the missionaries remark upon it in their Annual Letters, that Palestine was not seriously affected by the troubles and disturbances which occurred in other parts of the Turkish Empire, and that the work of the Mission could be carried on without interruption. The Rev. J. R. Longley Hall, the Secretary of the Mission, in November, 1896, in response to an inquiry as to the probability of Palestine proving safe for tourists to visit the country in the spring of the following year, wrote expressing his belief that it would be quite safe to do so. He added :—

I feel the responsibility greatly, and am in constant receipt of information as to what is going on in the different places. I shall not allow the ladies, especially, to run any unnecessary risks ; but at present from all parts of the country comes the news, "Perfect quiet." Moreover, we are not tourists, but are labouring for the Master in the places where He Himself has placed us, and therefore can claim His special protection, and we know that we have it. I would ask your earnest prayers for our Mission at the present time, that the covering Wings may be over us and the Everlasting Arms underneath and round about us, and that this time of uncertainty and restlessness may be a time of specially open doors for the Gospel. We find many ready to listen to the Word who would not tolerate it but for the state of fear in which they are.

Visit of Rev. T. W Drury.

The Rev. T. W. Drury, Principal of the Society's College at Islington, was one of a tourist party who visited the Holy Land in February, and he bore witness on his return to the immense profit and enjoyment he had derived from the tour, and not least from the opportunity of seeing something of the work among non-Christians and of holding intercourse amidst the scenes of their labours with missionaries, some of whom he or his predecessors had the joy and privilege of helping to equip for the warfare.

Reinforcement.

One who had been under Mr. Drury's charge at the College sailed to reinforce the Mission in January, about the same time as Mr. Drury started on his tour, namely, Mr. Henry Gladstone Harding, accompanied by Mrs. Harding. Dr. J. Cropper returned to the Mission in June, 1896, the Rev. J. R. L. Hall in September, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ellis in January, 1897, and Mrs. J. R. L. Hall in March; while Miss H. Attlee came home in June, 1896, the Rev. W. F. Connor in August, Miss F. Nuttall in October, and Miss J. Wenham (for a few weeks only on medical grounds) in January, 1897, and Miss A. Welch in May. The Rev. W. F. Connor and Miss C. C. Coote have retired from the Mission.

Death of Mrs. Sandreczki.

Mrs. Sandreczki, who laboured with her late husband, the Rev. C. Sandreczki (who died in 1892), for some thirty years at Syra and Smyrna, and at Jerusalem, died at Passau, in Bavaria, in January, 1897.

JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem

The Preparandi Institution and the Bishop Gobat School are under the charge of the Rev. J. Zeller. Three students from the former received appointments as teachers, one at Nablous and two at Nazareth, and there were seventeen students at the end of 1896. The Gobat School was under the mastership of Mr. H. Fallscheer, a son of the Rev. C. Fallscheer, during the furlough of Mr. F. T. Ellis. The school has sixty pupils. One of them is an Armenian orphan whose father was killed in the massacre at Marash. The Rev. T. W. Drury expressed to the Committee the great delight he had experienced in observing the orderliness and cleanliness of the school, and in examining the boys; these could both understand and speak English, and manifested the greatest interest in replying to the questions Mr. Drury asked, so that he found it difficult to leave off. The Printing Press, also under the Rev. J. Zeller, issued "Two Addresses for Communicants," "The Sacraments of the Church," by the Rev. H. E. Fox; "Discourses on the Sermon on the Mount," &c. A translation of Dr. Handley Moule's Outlines of Christian Doctrine is in the press, the work of Mr. Ibrahim Haurani, whom Mr. Zeller describes as "the best Arabic scholar in Syria." The first chapter, on the existence of God, appeared in an Arabic paper published by the American Mission in Beyrout, and excited much interest. The Girls' School increased its accommodation by renting additional rooms at some few minutes' distance from the school; it has 190 children, including infants, on the day-school list, and twelve boarders. One of the latter gained maximum marks in the examination in Scripture, syntax, and arithmetic. The Congregation worshipping at St. Paul's Church, of which the Rev. I. Baz is the pastor, under the supervision of the Rev. C. T. Wilson, shows a slight increase of members, and Mr. Baz writes with joy of some of them as leading truly godly lives. Miss A. M. Elverson found it necessary to exercise greater caution than usual in Visiting Mohammedans in the city, and was on more than one occasion warned, "as a sister," by the women to give up this branch of her work for fear of evil consequences from the authorities or others. She visited an aged woman, mother of the keeper of the Great Mosque, on her death-bed and read to her from the Word of God. The woman listened quietly, and asked Miss Elverson to sit on the bed that she might hear better, but made no sign either of dissent or assent regarding the message. Many Greek women, with the consent of their priests, attend Miss Elverson's women's meeting; and in her Sunday Bible-class for boys Protestants, Greeks, Armenians, and Moslems learn together. A sale of articles made by the members of a Y.W.C.A. branch raised £12 for Kefr Yasif church. A large number of Moslem villages in the Jerusalem district are visited by Mr. Wilson and his fellow-workers, and Mr. Wilson writes that Mohammedans are being evangelized to an extent that would not have seemed possible a few years ago. The great increase in education in the villages is opening the minds of the people and enabling them to profit by the circulation of the Scriptures; while at the same time the native workers are showing a deeper sense of their duty to the non-Christian peoples around them. Miss Elverson occasionally met with village women who were praying in the name of Christ for forgiveness and to be kept from sin. She and her Bible-woman are in some villages accosted as "Mahdis," intended as a term of respect.

Work in villages.

Mr. G. Nyland observes signs of spiritual, though not of numerical growth, in the congregation at Ramallah. After Miss F. Nuttall's departure in the autumn to come home, no ladies were at this out-station, a fact which Mr. Nyland mentions with regret. Miss Nuttall took an interest in the schoolboys, as well as in the women, and several joined a Band of Hope, engaging to abstain not only from intoxicating beverages, but also from gambling. Some 900 patients received medicine, the majority of them Moslems. Miss Nuttall remarks on the softening and humanizing influence which the Gospel manifestly exercises over the women. She says:—

Ramallah.

At first many are utterly stupid, like animals, but they gradually wake up, and in the end become quite willing and even interested listeners, in many instances believing with the simple faith of little children. Sometimes, indeed, a Moslem will turn round and instruct her Greek neighbour, sitting by her on the same bench, and tell her the Gospel story she herself has newly heard.

Last Easter Sunday but one I took the subject of the Resurrection with our Christian women as usual. A tall, Bedawy-looking woman had come in, and seemed much interested. After the meeting she said, "Oh, lady, how beautiful are the words of your honourable Koran! Do tell me more about Saidna Eesa. Let me hear more of the precious news" ("Kharafil Arjeery"). So I invited her for the next day, and she sat and listened for about two hours while I told her of Christ's death and Resurrection. She begged us to come and see her in her own village of R——, where we had never been before. So we went a week or two afterwards. She herself had to go away on business, but her daughter-in-law received us most kindly, and we had a very good time in her house. Owing to my Bible-woman's absence we were not able to go again that year, but last spring we went, and had a splendid opportunity of telling the good news to such an attentive audience of both men and women—who came, not for medicine, but really to listen. We paid another visit in July, and this time our friend H. was at home. We found the house swept, and cushions and mats laid down for us. "I saw you coming under the olive-trees," she said, "so I got the house ready for you." We told her again the story of the Resurrection.

One woman who had been visited from time to time for four years, and who had spoken during her illness to others of Christ as her Saviour, firmly refused when dying to repeat the usual Moslem formula. There are schools and small congregations at Tayibeh—where the Rev. Hanna Musa, a native deacon, is stationed—Jiffna, Abood (which has the advantage of having an earnest lady worker, Miss Nicholson, not in connexion with the C.M.S. or any Society, residing in it), and Bir Zeit. At the last-named village, twenty miles north of Jerusalem, Miss G. F. Tindall and Miss E. E. Brodie reside. The latter gives a graphic picture of village visitation, with the manifold interruptions:—

Manifold interruptions.

Picture to yourself a courtyard, which is entered by a shattered door, and round this court perhaps from five to seven houses. A native house means merely one big, windowless room, and living in it the father and mother and one or two generations following. In the summer time the women, when not engaged in the fields or vineyards, congregate together into a courtyard to do their daily household work, such as sifting the corn, cleaning the grain, basket-work, cooking, mending their one garment, combing their hair, and so forth. A Felahat (village woman) rarely sits idle, but, true to her Eastern nature, all her work is done in a leisurely fashion. Into this court the missionary enters, Bible in hand, ready to speak to any one she may find, and as she enters her eye gladly and quickly sees a little group of women sitting quietly together in the centre of the court, and she is apt to think what an especially good opportunity has fallen to her; but after she has been speaking a few minutes, and the women seem to be listening, and she is anxious to drive the lesson home, suddenly the quiet and attention is broken by the shrill scream of a cock, repeated and repeated, and the hens, not behind-hand, begin to cackle, and all the little chickens fly first over one, then over another. Then the dogs start barking, for some gipsy or other has come to beg a piece of bread, or a neighbour wants to buy some eggs, or to borrow a sieve or spoon. And then the donkeys, who up to now have stood quietly tied in the court, begin to bray alternately, or some horse neighs, and as the afternoon wears on the husbands and the elder boys return from the fields, bringing with them herds of goats, and sheep and oxen, and the whole little company must get up in order to make room for them to enter the one-roomed dwelling, where a place is provided for them beneath the dwelling-room of the family above. By the time we settle down again the thread is broken, and the children must needs cry, and the women have only a scattered recollection of what has been said.

Some 1,500 patients received medicine from the ladies during the year.

JAFFA.

Jaffa.

The Rev. T. F. Wolters, who has charge of the work at JAFFA and out-stations, had, in addition, for several months the work of the secretariat during the Rev. J. R. L. Hall's absence in England. Miss E. Armstrong experienced for a time some difficulty in getting access to Moslem homes, owing to the unpopularity in which the English were held for the time being; but later the feeling disappeared, and wider openings than before offered in Jaffa itself. An encouraging token that this work is not without fruit was afforded. A man from Jerusalem brought a letter of introduction from Mr. Wilson to Mr. Wolters, and said he wished to become a Christian, but dared not do so in Palestine. He had learned the Gospel from his wife, who had heard it from Miss Armstrong when the latter was speaking to some women in a Christian's house. The Moslem villages around the town were, however, inaccessible throughout the year. Nevertheless, impressions were made from time to time even on these village people. Mrs. Wolters, on her return journey with her husband from the half-yearly conference at Gaza, inquired at the public well about a girl who had been in the hospital, and the woman to whom she spoke turned to her companions and exclaimed: "Truly the religion of these Christians is better than ours. See how she asks after a poor girl! Our religion does not lead us to do that." Miss F. E. Newton and Miss F. Brownlow were engaged chiefly in the study of Arabic, but they visited with the Bible-woman and gave assistance in the schools. The former mentions Scripture Union classes on Saturday mornings, which "are really a sight to see," some 70 to 100 boys in each of the three divisions attending voluntarily on their holiday and committing the Scriptures to memory. The boys do not attend the Sunday-school well; but on the first Sunday in the month, "Missionary Sunday," the attendance is better, and the missionary box collected 10*s.* during the year.

"The religion of these Christians is better than ours.'

"A sight to see.'

The Rev. H. Dimishky, of Lydd, was called to lose his wife in January, 1897. When a Greek woman who attended her remarked "St. George may heal and help you," she at once replied, "Christ is with me, and is my soul-healer; what can man do?" The general respect which she had won was shown by the attendance of some 100 persons at the funeral. Mr. Dimishky mentions that the school was interrupted on one occasion by the Muchtar (representative) of the Greek congregation and a policeman with an order to examine the scholars. Whereupon a blind boy was brought forward by the teacher, and given the tenth chapter of St. John's Gospel to read from the raised type. The Muchtar followed the reading, and could detect no mistake, and went away acknowledging that the school was doing a good work. At Ramleh the Misses F. L. A. Roberts and E. A. Cooke live and labour, being welcomed at the houses of many of the best Moslem families.

GAZA.

Gaza. In response to the application of the local authorities at GAZA, a firman was obtained during the year for the Hospital, a circumstance of great importance in the eyes of the people, and also in the eyes of the Rev. Dr. Sterling for the position of the work is placed thereby on a stronger basis. The hospital had 343 in-patients, and its 35 beds were kept full, patients sometimes being placed on the floor. Nearly all these in-patients were Moslems,

Hospital patients. many of them requiring operations. One old man, after four months of sickness, walked eighteen hours to reach the hospital and died on the night of his arrival. Another, an Egyptian, trudged for fifteen days in the sand and heat; he too seemed ready to die, but after a long stay was discharged cured. One patient was a Turk from Asia Minor. Miss S. L. Barker says of the Arabic addresses, given daily by Dr. Sterling:—

Gospel addresses in the wards. He plainly and fearlessly sets forth Jesus as the Divine Son of God, and shows them the fallacies of their own creed. He finds, if he does not do this, they only put the new teaching on the top of their old beliefs, and their faith remains unshaken. One can see by the riveted attention of the hearers and by the answers given to questions that they are really interested, and one longs for the convincing and convicting power of the Spirit to tear away the veil from their eyes, and that those whom we have good reason to think are convinced of the truth may have courage to confess.

The out-patients numbered 11,403. These are of all sorts and conditions, "from Government officials and learned sheikhs to the swarthy sons of the desert, in their picturesque garb of sheep-skins—a motley but interesting company." Wards for women and children were opened during the year, and the ladies, Miss S. L. Barker and Miss F. Patching (Miss E. E. Watney, who arrived in March, was engaged in the study of Arabic), Visiting in the orange gardens. worked among the female patients. A widow woman who resided in the orange-gardens in the suburbs of Gaza invited Miss Barker to her home, which the latter describes as "the cleanest and tidiest hut she had ever seen." Miss Barker lent her New Testament to the woman's son, and in the evenings he read to his Arab neighbours about our Lord's miracles, exciting their intense surprise, then wrapped it up carefully, keeping it against Miss Barker's return to exchange it for another copy, and saying, as the exchange was effected, "Are you quite sure it is the same as the other?" The mother and son listened with rapt attention as the plan of salvation was unfolded, the former remarking of the Jews of our Lord's time, "How could they help loving Him when He loved them, and healed their sick, and loved the little children?" Altogether the hospital and dispensary work at this station is full of interest, and "there can be no question," as Dr. Sterling observes, "that a wonderful work is being done, and that the Gospel light is shining." Owing to the opening of a girls' school by the Greek Church, the number of girls in the Society's school went down from 120 to 28, but Dr. Sterling rightly rejoices at every sign of increased vitality among the Greek Christians, and accepts these consequences without jealousy. The girls are bright and intelligent, and have remarkable memories for learning by rote. The boys' school has forty and the infants' also forty pupils.

The Autumn Conference of the Palestine Mission was held at Gaza in November, from the 9th to the 13th. The Rev. C. T. Wilson preached a special sermon for the occasion in Arabic, on Sunday, the 8th, from Ezek. xxxvii. 3, and Dr. Gaskoin Wright gave an address on 1 Cor. ii. 1–5, on the following day.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

Nablous Hospital.

As compared with 1895, the year under review at NABLOUS was quiet and almost free from opposition. The temporary Hospital, under Dr. Gaskoin R. M. Wright, is very ill-suited for its purpose, being on the side of a hill, and liable to be flooded in heavy rains, but neither the necessary money nor the Government firman giving permission to erect a suitable building are easy to obtain. Meanwhile, the present building is always full and the number of out-patients steadily increases; moreover, the prejudice against the preaching as steadily diminishes. Many of the patients have expressed to Mrs. Wright their belief in Christ as the Son of God. Dr. Wright speaks gratefully of the help rendered by Miss A. A. M. Bedells and Miss M. C. S. Adamson, the former of whom had charge of the nursing in the women's and children's ward, and the latter the same in the men's ward, as well as out-patients' dressings, &c. Miss Bedells says that with the women the obstacle to be surmounted is not bigotry or prejudice, but ignorance. They know nothing of Mohammedanism, and need teaching as simple as that given to infants. They are generally accompanied by so many babies that it is difficult to obtain attention and a hearing.

The Pastoral Work is under the Rev. C. Fallscheer. Besides the Sunday services in church, there are Bible-classes, mothers' meetings, and prayer meetings on most evenings of the week, in which Miss E. G. Reeve renders help, as she does also, with Miss A. N. Jarvis, in the schools, whose pupils consist of Moslems, Jews, Samaritans, Greeks, Latins, and Protestants. The native deacon, the Rev. S. Gomri, assists Mr. Fallscheer in the care of the Christians at Nablous and out-stations.

NAZARETH, HAIFA, ACCA, AND KEFR YASIF.

Nazareth.

The Rev. H. Sykes is in charge of the northern district, of which NAZARETH is the chief station. He quotes from an Egyptian Arabic newspaper a reference to Nazareth as abounding in discord, backbiting, enmity, faction, and bigotry, and he regretfully acknowledges the faithfulness of the description. The schools in the district appear to afford the best grounds of encouragement and hope. The parents of some of the children, influenced by the Greek Catholic priests, have endeavoured to stipulate that their children should no longer commit Scripture texts to memory, and instances of children causing confusion to Greek priests by their answers and knowledge of God's Word have come to Mr. Sykes' ears. The Medical Mission opened accA at Acca by Dr. J. Cropper attracts patients from an extensive area, especially those of the peasant class. The schools also are well attended. It appears, however, Miss E. C. Wardlaw Ramsay remarks, as if little progress is made. Ignorance and superstition seem as dense as ever, and only here and there are there any signs that the Light has penetrated.

Kɔfr Yasif. The building of the church at Kefr Yasif, referred to last year, makes progress. Mrs. Low states that many of the people have given one day's free labour monthly, and others have rated themselves so many measures of oil to help forward the erection. The catechist, Khuri Girius, formerly a priest in the Greek Church, gave a weekly address on the progress of missionary work in Africa. In his house Miss L. W. Lewis opened a small dispensary, and an average of about eleven people daily, on three days each week, were treated and spoken to regarding their souls. Miss Lewis thus finds the knowledge she gained at Bethnal Green Hospital, while under training at the Willows, of much use. By means of this medical knowledge she gained an influence in a village called Jedaidi, where there is one Protestant family whose child was cured by her remedies. At their request she went weekly, administering simple medicines, dressing wounds, and always reading and Haifa. explaining God's Word. At Haifa, as in many other stations in Palestine, the schools and classes are the most promising agencies. Miss M. A. Daniels finds both the boys and girls bright and intelligent, and showing much interest in the Scripture lessons. The congregation is stationary as to numbers, the standard of spiritual life is low, while mistrust, envy, and hatred among them are a hindrance to God's work. The Moslem women, when visited, listen eagerly to the Gospel, and Miss Daniels is sure many of them are trusting in Christ as their Saviour.

SALT AND KERAK.

The fighting between the Turks and the Druses which Salt. occurred during the year did not affect the work at Salt, as the people there, though heavily taxed, are exempt from military service, and they were not tempted, as the people in some other parts of Palestine, to vent their feelings of resentment against Europeans in general and the English in particular. The congregation at Salt, the Rev. D. M. Wilson states, is the largest belonging to any Protestant denomination in Palestine or Syria, and the church is over-crowded. A collection was made on a Sunday in October to render help to missionary work at Nassa, in East Africa, and £5 12*s.* was contributed. Mrs. Wilson's arrival in March, 1896, a few weeks after her marriage, caused the greatest interest, as she was the first European lady to take up her residence in the place. A new governor who arrived in September has shown a disposition to be very friendly, which Mr. Wilson thinks is in part at least attributable to the influence of Dr. Torrance, of the Scotch Mission at Tiberias, from which place the governor was transferred. Dr. Ibrahim Soleiba has charge of the dispensary, and Mrs. Soleiba, formerly a teacher in the British Syrian Schools in Beyrout, conducts a girls' class and a meeting for women. The Rev. Joseph Segall, in charge of the London Jews' Society's work at Damascus, kindly assisted Mr. Wilson in the oversight of the schools at Jedeidah, which is in the Hauran, and near Damascus.

Kerak.

The opposition from the Governor of KERAK, which Dr. F. Johnson met with immediately after his arrival there at the beginning of 1896, as stated in last year's Report, continued until the autumn. A soldier was stationed daily at the door of the Mission compound to prevent the people receiving medicine, and to report any visits Dr. Johnson might pay to the people's houses. This opposition had the advantage, however, that it gave opportunity for language study, and in spite of all restrictions relief was afforded by surgical operations in a few instances. A new governor arrived at the end of September, and the restrictions were immediately removed. Dr. Johnson asks for prayer that he may have wisdom and grace in carrying on his twofold work of teaching and healing.

PERSIA AND BAGHDAD MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was one of the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and finding the Moslems of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode there, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society formally adopted his work as one of its Missions. Ladies were added to the staff in 1891.

In 1882 the Mission was extended by the occupation of Baghdad, which, though in the Turkish Empire, has opportunities for Persian work (work, however, which the C.M.S. has only been able very intermittently to carry on), being in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans, and therefore the resort of thousands of pilgrims from all parts of Persia.

Assassination of the Shah.

THE assassination of Nasr-ud-din Shah on May 1st, 1896, within five days of completing fifty lunar years of his reign over Persia, was an event which naturally attracted world-wide attention. He was kneeling in the mosque of Shah Abdul Azim, near Teheran, when the assassin approached and fired the shot which was almost immediately fatal. His reign was unhappily marked by vigorous persecution of the followers of El Bab—literally "the Gate"—a religious and social reformer, who, soon after the Shah ascended the throne, led a crusade against the corruption of public and private manners. His doctrines spread with great rapidity, and the apprehensions of the authorities led them to put thousands of these people to death. The Shah's murderer, it was reported at the time, was a Babi, one of this sect.

The new Shah.

Muzaffar-ud-din, who had been Governor-General of Azerbaijan, succeeded to the throne, being son of the late Shah by his Royal wife, though younger by three or four years than his half-brother, the Zil-es-Sultan, Governor of Ispahan.

The Rev. W. St. Clair Tisdall, in an article on "Christianity in the Persian Empire—Present and Past," which appeared in the C. M. Intelligencer of June, 1896, gives the following grounds for his belief that the present time is specially favourable for Christian effort in Persia:—

> The established religion of the country is the Shî'ah form of Muhammadanism, which by the Muslims of all the rest of the world is regarded as a dangerous heresy. The Mullâs and Mujtahids have great power and influence, it is true, but they are dreaded rather than loved or respected. For many generations various forms of faith, all more or less contrary to Islâm, have prevailed in the country, especially different shades of Sûfî belief, which are Protean in their variety, and seem to agree with one another only in entirely rejecting the cardinal doctrines of Islâm and in a very decided tendency towards the Pantheism which lies at the base of the Hindû faith. The poetical literature of Persia is largely imbued with this teaching. During the last fifty years, moreover, the Bâbî doctrines, which form an entirely new religion (though bearing a great resemblance to a peculiar form of Gnosticism that existed in Persia in early ages), have spread most extensively among a people celebrated even from remote antiquity for being peculiarly liable to receive impressions from without. The rise of the Bâbî faith is in large measure due to the spread of the Gospel; the best of their doctrines are borrowed from it, and they openly reverence our Holy Scriptures and profess to be ready to reject any opinion they may hold when once proved contrary to the Bible. The fierce and sanguinary persecution to which these people were a few years ago subjected, and which still hangs in terrorem over them, has naturally tended to spread their doctrines throughout Persia. Half the population of many towns and villages is composed of Bâbîs, divided into two different sects. It is computed that at least 800,000 persons in the country now hold Bâbî doctrines. The rise and spread of such a faith, one which is most friendly to the Christian and in deadly hostility to the Muhammadan religion, is in itself a clear indication that the people of Persia are already in large measure wearied with Islâm and anxious for a higher, a more holy, a more spiritual faith. Almost all through the country the Bâbîs are most friendly to Christians. They call themselves our brethren, and profess to see little or no difference between themselves and us. This attitude forms an agreeable contrast to the prejudice and hatred which lead the most bigoted of the Muhammadans to regard all Christians as unclean and vile, worthy to be classed only with dogs and swine.

Spread of Bâbîism.

Islâm is rapidly losing its hold on Persia. Few but those who are pecuniarily interested in its maintenance show any zeal for the faith, and even these do so only at intervals, when they stir up the passions of the mob to endeavour to intimidate Christian converts and inquirers and terrify them into denying their Master. But even the Mullâs in many parts of the country most courteously receive not only European and American missionaries on their itinerating tours, but even the Bible Society colporteurs as well, and permit them to discourse in their presence about the Gospel message. Not a few instances have recently occurred in which the Mullâs themselves have publicly praised our Scriptures and recommended the people to purchase and read them.

Islam rapidly losing its hold.

A noteworthy indication of the people's awakening interest in the Gospel is afforded by the greatly increased and steadily increasing sale of the Holy Scriptures in all parts of the Persian Empire. Taking into consideration only one out of several Societies engaged in this work, the British and Foreign Bible Society, it is encouraging to notice that since 1891 the sale of Scriptures has trebled.

Awakening interest in the Gospel

The reinforcements sent out during the year were:—Dr. Henry White, M.R.C.S. England, and L.R.C.P. London, of the London Hospital, who had long experience of Christian work in Islington; Miss Emmeline Marie Stuart, M.B. and C.M., Glasgow, niece of Bishop Stuart, who had acted for a few months as travelling secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union; and Miss Emma Ellen Martin, formerly a missionary of the Female Education Society in Palestine, who subsequently went to Australia, and has been sent thence to Baghdad by the Victoria Church Missionary Association. Dr. White sailed in November, 1896, and Dr. Emmeline Stuart in March, 1897; Miss Martin arrived at Baghdad from Melbourne in December, 1896. Miss L. Stubbs and Miss H. L. Conner came home in November, the latter for urgent family reasons, and she returned in company with Dr. E. M. Stuart. The Rev. H. Carless sailed to return to the Mission in October, visiting the Punjab Mission en route.

Reinforcements.

Bishop Stuart's itinerations.

Bishop Stuart made two lengthy tours from Julfa during the year. The first was to Yezd and Kirman, and the second to Baghdad viâ Harmadan, returning viâ Bushire and Shiraz.

On the former journey the Bishop started on March 3rd, 1896, accompanied by his daughter. They had many encouragements on the journey, Mohammedans, Babîs, and Parsis at many places where they stopped en route showing great interest in the Gospel message which they proclaimed. The freedom of intercourse in the villages and small towns as compared with the cities much impressed the Bishop. At Nain, a place between Ispahan and Yezd, the Governor, who is related by marriage with the Zil-es-Sultan, and has two nephews at the C.M.S. Persian school at Julfa, received the Bishop very courteously and returned his visit. Three weeks were spent at Yezd, and here also the Governor, a son of the Prince-Governor of Ispahan, was very kind, and afforded Miss Stuart opportunities of visiting the princess. A learned and thoughtful Mujtâhid allowed Miss Stuart to visit his anderîm and to read to the ladies of his family from the Gospel. She found they had copies of the Scriptures, which they had purchased from the Bible Society's colporteur. The Bishop wrote from Yezd:—

Spirit of inquiry at Yezd.

> It is one great advantage that I am accompanied by my daughter, as she has constant calls on her to visit the women in their own houses, as well as visits from them. Encouraged by her presence, several come to our services. Some of those whose acquaintance she has made can read intelligently, and in several houses she has found copies of the Scriptures. There can be no doubt that a spirit of inquiry pervades Yezd, the result in a great measure, I believe, of the spread of Bâbîism amongst all ranks. Even a leading Mujtâhid and Seyyid on whom I called, and who received me with much courtesy and apparent cordiality, is credited with being a Bâbî. Another of the leading citizens, an uncle of Behâ himself (the immediate successor of the Bâb), received my visit in the same kindly way, and professed himself to be a constant reader of the Gospel, with the contents of which he was evidently familiar.

Large audiences at Kirman.

Kirman, 240 miles beyond Yezd, was reached on April 20th. On the previous day (Sunday), at the last stage of the journey, they were accommodated at a spacious country-house of the Prince-Governor of Kirman, and the large central hall and verandahs were packed with an audience of some 200 Persians. The first ten days spent in Kirman were fully occupied in preaching and in having intercourse with the numbers who came to them. They lodged in the house of a Parsi gentleman outside the city, who threw open the large upper floor of the house for the large congregations who gathered daily.

The Bishop wrote on the last day of April :—

One thousand present at an evangelistic address.

The crowd of men and women which every morning has closely packed full the large hall (60 feet by 30 feet) of this Parsi house, had so outgrown the room that this morning we held the service in the open, under the shade of trees in the garden, where 1,000 souls at least were present, and the gates had to be closed to prevent more coming in. On the whole they were well-behaved and orderly, and there were no attempts at interrupting the preacher such as would have been made in any similar gathering in India, and both Paul and I had the opportunity of delivering our message. One great attraction hitherto has been the singing, to the accompaniment of Carless' organ, which he disposed of to a Persian who has kindly lent it to my daughter. But to-day we gave them only the preaching. Altogether it has been a very interesting time we have had here.

The day after the above words were written the assassination of the Shah took place, and the news reached Kirman on May 2nd. The Firmân Firmâ, or Prince-Governor, at once sent an urgent and confidential message to the Bishop apprising him of the fact, and requesting him and his daughter to go into the "Ark," as the fortified palace of the Governor is called. There they were detained in "honourable captivity," as the Bishop wrote, for nearly a month, in good quarters and treated with much consideration, but the passages were guarded by soldiers lest they should go out. A telegram from Sir Mortimer Durand, the British Minister at Teheran, inquiring after the Bishop and asking the Prince to see to his safety, doubtless rendered the latter all the more solicitous for his guests' well-being. They had frequent intercourse with the Firmân Firmâ and the Ameer, and one of the latter's sons went daily to the Bishop to learn English, while Miss Stuart made several visits to the boy's mother. The Firmân Firmâ accepted a copy of the New Testament, and afterwards assured the Bishop that he read it the last thing every night after he had got through all the work of the day. When at length they were allowed to start on their journey back to Julfa an escort of twenty soldiers was arranged to accompany them from stage to stage. They reached Julfa on June 27th.

The Bishop in "honourable captivity."

In September the Bishop and his daughter left Julfa for Baghdad, arriving at the latter place on November 5th, and reaching Julfa again on January 8th. On this journey also he was impressed with the numerous openings and opportunities for work in the villages. The Bishop had a most merciful escape from serious consequences of an accident just before reaching Baghdad. He fell headlong down a flight of several stairs in the Khan in which he was staying, and, having a small box in his hand, he could not save himself, but the injuries he sustained were only slight, and he was able after two or three days' rest to complete his journey. The Committee have sanctioned the tentative occupation of Kirman, and Mr. Carless, in accordance with their instructions, went there in March, 1897.

A merciful escape from accident.

JULFA.

Julfa. In May, when the news of the Shah's death reached Ispahan, apprehensions were felt lest a rising against the Christians should take place. H.B.M. Consul requested the Rev. C. H. Stileman, the secretary of the Mission, to exercise his influence with the Christian community in JULFA to observe special circumspection, and also asked that for a time visits on the part of the missionaries to Ispahan might be discontinued. The Consul afterwards wrote to Mr. Stileman, "You have given me much help." To the surprise of the European residents having most experience of the country, everything remained quiet; and at the end of the year the missionaries reported that a greater measure of liberty had been enjoyed than ever before, and that singularly little opposition had been experienced.

In the early weeks of 1897, however, there were pronounced indications of a turbulent spirit among the people, which it was clear the slightest provocation or incitement, especially one appealing to their religious fanaticism, would easily excite. At the end of January Mr. Stileman wrote:—

Fanatical disturbances. There was a considerable disturbance in Julfâ yesterday afternoon in connexion with our boys' boarding-school. The superintendent of the institution had taken the boys, including three Persian boys (viz., the two sons of the convert Paulus lately admitted, and a lame boy, Yusuf, who was baptized with his father nearly three years ago), to one of the Armenian public baths as usual, when the bath was suddenly surrounded by a number of Mohammedans, who maintained that an Armenian bath was unclean for Moslem boys. I was in Isfahan at the time, but the Bishop was informed of the disturbance, and went with others to try and quiet the people—without success, however. He was advised to retire, as his presence only excited the Mohammedans, and after he had left the three Persian boys were forcibly taken off by the mob to Isfahan. Benjamin Badal (the well-known colporteur) was severely beaten by the mob, and had his watch stolen, but otherwise no one was hurt.

Imprisonment of converts. The boys were kept in prison for a week and were then released. While in prison Yusuf overheard a discussion in which it was urged on the one hand that they should be killed, and on the other the reply was made that as they were only "puppies" it would be better to get hold of the "bigger dogs." A day or two after their release it became known to those who had instigated their arrest that Paulus was a convert, and horsemen were at once sent to take both him and his two sons and put them in prison, where they were detained for some days. Meanwhile Benjamin, the colporteur of the British and Foreign Bible Society, who was severely beaten by the mob on the day when the youths were first taken to prison, as mentioned in the above extract from Mr. Stileman's letter, was charged a fortnight later with causing the death of a Mohammedan who received some accidental injury at the time from the mob. Benjamin's life was in imminent danger from the excited rabble, but the Governor of Julfa, at the instance of the Prince-Governor of Ispahan, and in Benjamin's interest, had him taken to the palace. He was subsequently removed to Teheran, under protection of the British Legation.

At the instance of Âghâ Najify, the influential Mullâ whose opposition to the work has caused trouble on several occasions, renewed attempts were made during February to stop the work of the women's ward in the Julfa Hospital. On one occasion a police officer endeavoured to enter and take the names of the patients; at another time a horseman went round and proclaimed in Âghâ Najify's name that no patients were to go to the hospital or dispensary; and again, a little later, an attack on the hospital was reported to be premeditated, but it was rendered impossible by a fall of seventeen inches of snow, the heaviest which had been known in Julfa for many years. Mr. Stileman wrote: "Praise the Lord . . . snow and vapour, stormy wind fulfilling His word!" An attack on the hospital prevented by a snow-storm.

In the charge of the Armenian Congregation, with 213 baptized members and 107 communicants, Mr. Stileman was assisted by the Armenian deacon, the Rev. Minatzakan George. At the beginning of the year (1896) the prayer-meetings in connexion with the Universal Week of Prayer were carried on in English, Persian, and Armenian. The Sunday morning services are conducted in Persian except the Psalms and hymns, which are in Armenian; a large number of Mohammedans attend the services. The Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall's sermons at these Persian services are greatly appreciated, Mr. Stileman says. The congregation sent £25 for the relief of sufferers among the Armenian people in the Turkish Empire. Fourteen candidates were confirmed. The Sunday-school is attended by about 140 girls and 130 boys; twelve of the latter form a class of Persian boys. Armenian Congregation.

Mr. Tisdall was chiefly engaged in Literary Work. He has completed the translation into Persian of Sweet First-Fruits, referred to last year. He has also translated from Urdu (the Rev. J. G. Deimler's version) the Âîneh-i Dil, or Mirror of the Heart, a book which was originally published in French, and has since been rendered into German, Bengali, Urdu, Armenian, and other languages. He has revised the Indian-Persian version of Sir W. Muir's Testimony of the Qur'ân; and has also composed a number of dialogues on the questions in dispute between Mohammedans and Christians, and other booklets. By burning, as he says, the midnight oil, he wrote an interesting book—The History of the Conversion of Armenia—which required reference to numerous Armenian sources, and which the Religious Tract Society has published. Translational work.

Mr. Tisdall took part with other missionaries in the Instruction of Inquirers, of whom there were many. Mr. Tisdall gives an account of some of these:— Inquirers.

One is a young Mullâ whom Miss Bird introduced to me. He and an elder Mullâ, a relative of his, asked her for books, and at last, after reading the Gospels, got the whole Bible, which they are diligently reading at night with closed doors. The younger of the two tells me that he fully accepts the whole Bible as God's Word, and we should pray that the Saviour will speak to his heart from it. He also assures me that all the Mullâs and Mujtahids around this have, and read, the Bible, and he is of opinion that most of them know it is God's Word, whole and uncorrupted, though they say the contrary in order to deceive their disciples and prevent them from becoming Christians. Another old man was led to come to me for teaching by a dream. He cannot read, but any portion of the Bible or any tracts we give him he gets read to him by others. He has a small body of friends who gather at his house once every week at night and read, or hear read, the Gospel message. Another inquirer is a learned man who speaks Arabic very well, and lived long in Baghdad. He came to me perfectly convinced of the truth of Christianity, and when I asked what led him to believe in our Lord and to reject Mohammed, he told me that, some time ago in Baghdad, he had been puzzled by the fact that both the Christians and the Moslems claimed for the founders of their respective faiths the power to work miracles in confirmation of their claims to be sent from God. He found that the Christians appealed to the New Testament, and the Moslems to the Koran in proof of what they asserted. Not deeming this satisfactory, he went to a learned Jew and asked him about Mohammed's miracles. The Jew scoffed at the idea. He then inquired about those of Christ. The Jew, while denying to Jesus of Nazareth that title, and showing himself much prejudiced against Him, yet acknowledged that He had worked miracles, as he said, by means of the "Incommunicable Name." That showed the inquirer on what a different base the two claims were founded. Further examination made it evident to him that the Koran shows clearly that Mohammed never professed to have the power of working miracles, but rather the contrary, and that all those ascribed to him by Moslems were without foundation, while the one passage at the beginning of Sûrah liv. referring to the splitting asunder of the moon (which many Moslems refer to as a miracle wrought by Mohammed and recorded in the Koran) he found to be copied (with the change of only one word) from the Odes of 'Imru'l Qais, a famous ante-Islamic poet, where the meaning was the same, but the reference was to a practice not fit for description. The investigator has had his son admitted into our Christian boys' boarding-school, and we trust that his own intellectual conviction of the truth of Christianity may soon, through the influence of the Holy Spirit, turn into something more profitable. There is a well-read man, an Arabic scholar, a book-binder by trade, who comes to church or Bible-class, and also on Fridays for instruction. He is most carefully reading the Bible for the sake of teaching others, as he himself professes to be a Christian and desires baptism. He has brought two of his brothers and a friend of his to me for teaching already. He is himself engaged in writing a tractate in defence of the Truth, showing why he accepted it, and I hope we may find it suitable for publication.

The Mullâs possess and read the Bible.

A Jew consulted by a Mohammedan regarding Christ's miracles.

Baptism of a Persian convert.

There was one adult baptism, that of a well-educated man of middle age, who was influenced several years ago towards Christianity by a remarkable dream, but he had not seen any part of the Word of God until in 1895 his wife obtained a copy of the Persian New Testament at the women's dispensary. The Report of the Mission, drawn up by instruction of the Conference, says of him :—

From that time onward he seems to have been a very earnest inquirer, and after visiting us twice and remaining some days in our guest-room reserved for the purpose, there could, humanly speaking, be no question that he had experienced a real change of heart. His whole soul seemed to flow out in love to Christ, for Whom he had already witnessed, and to some extent suffered, and in view of his earnest and oft-repeated request for baptism, we felt that it would be only right to grant him this privilege.

This convert received the name of Paulus at his baptism in October, and he shortly afterwards wrote a pamphlet entitled "The Means of Salvation," of which Mr. Stileman says, "It is a small book of 17 short chapters, written from the standpoint of an ex-Mohammedan who had found fulness of blessing in Christ, and is in every way excellent." The Persian Boys' School, during the absence in England of Mr. J. Aidinyantz, was under the Rev. W. A. Rice. It has been removed to the building which was formerly known as the Orphanage, a change which gives better accommodation. Some fifty boys are in regular attendance. One or two were removed during the year because their parents feared they would openly confess Christ if they remained. The Armenian Boys' School has received an accession of fourteen additional pupils, in consequence of the Roman Catholic school in Julfa having been closed. In Mrs. Aidinyantz's absence, Miss L. Stubbs, and after she left Miss A. Stirling (who suffered from a serious attack of typhoid fever in the spring of 1896) had charge of the Armenian Girls' School, in which the attendance (about 300) steadily increases. Some forty of the former pupils of the school and the teachers attend a weekly sewing meeting, which is preceded by a meeting for prayer. When Easter was drawing near, some of these girls approached Miss Stubbs, seeking counsel in a matter which pressed on their consciences. She writes:— Schools.

About Easter-time several of these girls came to me about confession (their parents will not yet allow their daughters to attend our church); they know it is not right, and the Armenians do not allow any one to attend Holy Communion without having first confessed to a priest, and they were very anxious to attend Communion (Easter being the most important time of the year). We had prayed together and I advised them to see their priest. One of them wrote to him, the priest answering by bringing all the texts out of the Bible which he thought would prove his point. This did not convince them. We again prayed together, and we decided that one should call upon the priest: one did the next day, and the discussion ended by the priest saying, "If your conscience will allow you to go to Holy Communion without confessing, you may go," so this battle was won for herself and her friends. Armenian girls object to confession to a priest

These girls have a remarkable influence, Miss Stubbs says, over their parents. In visiting the Armenian women at their homes Miss Stubbs was much encouraged, and several joined the women's Bible-class and began to attend the church services. The in-patients in the Hospital numbered 236, of whom 214 were Mohammedans; and there were 2,863 out-patients, of whom 900 were Armenians, 7 Jews, and 1,950 Mohammedans; besides these, Hospital.

there were 4,004 treated in the dispensary in Jubbara, the Jewish quarter of Ispahan, namely, 2,705 Mohammedans, 1,290 Jews, and 10 Christians. During Miss H. L. Conner's absence Miss E. C. Davies-Colley took her place as matron of the hospital. She gives an instance of the appreciation manifested by the patients of the loving treatment they receive:—

Hospital treatment appreciated.

One boy here has an awful head, one big wound from front to back. He is fourteen years old, and for ten years his head has been bad. His friends took him away one Sunday: his mother was ill, they said, and wanted to see him. But he longed so much to return that he asked not to be given any dressings, so that he might be obliged to come back soon! Next morning before it was light he was sitting outside the hospital door. He explained that his father said he could not bring him the two or three miles before his work, but his uncle told him he would bring him if he got up at midnight. So the poor, delicate child got up in the middle of a cold November night to get back to his beloved cot, and when I came round the wards there he was sitting, the picture of contentment.

A considerable proportion of the patients enumerated above were women, but in addition to them, there were 10,520 attendances of out-patients at the Women's Dispensary under Miss M. R. S. Bird, Miss P. Braine-Hartnell rendering valued assistance. The former refers to Sakinah, a former dispensary patient, whose baptism and persecution were mentioned in last year's Report. She is still in the anderîm of the Prince-Governor, and is engaged as housekeeper to one of his principal wives. A fellow-servant in the palace who brought her child for treatment said, "Sakinah is not a Moslem, she is not one of us." It was reported that she had been given against her wish to her former husband, who had divorced her because of her liability to fits, but the Prince assured H.B.M. Consul that she was still under protection. Of two other women Miss Bird writes:—

A convert in the palace of the Prince Governor.

Brave female catechumens.

Hamedeh (whom Sakinah first brought) has professed her faith in Christ and borne persecution nobly. When confronted by two Mullâs and asked to repeat the Lord's Prayer, she did so and bore a beating in consequence without a murmur. Another time her chuddah was torn in the street by an abusive man. Several times she has been stopped and beaten, but all she says is: "If I am killed, remember I am a Christian; do not have a doubt about it."

"For Jesus' sake."

Another, Khorsheed, came to the hospital rather more than a year ago, covered with terrible sores, divorced by her husband, uncared for by her friends—as broken-hearted and down-trodden a woman as you could see. Now (though she still has a bad sore) her bright face and desire to help attracts the attention of those around: she is always the one to offer to help a friendless patient (the hospital rule is that each patient have a friend to wait on her)—"Let me wait on her for Jesus' sake." Just now she has two sick children under her charge, who declare they are happier with her than with their own mothers. Both she and Hamedeh do their best to bring others to class; both are waiting anxiously for baptism.

Miss Bird is frequently requested to visit invalids at their homes, who are too ill to attend the dispensary. She bears testimony to a greatly improved state of feeling towards the Mission in Ispahan, but the example she instances shows that there is still ample room for further improvement. Writing in November, she said:— Room for improvement in treatment of lady missionaries.

> Only last week, when a lad threw a clod of earth, hitting me on the head, all the men cried, "Shame!" Formerly, had it been a stone instead of earth, they would have been sure to cry, "Bravo!" or, "You have hit the dog well."

In the neighbouring villages around Ispahan, incidents of an encouraging nature often occurred. At Kharesgan, about fifty neighbours gathered in the invalids' compound, and after listening to the address, one of these women ran off and shortly returned with a measuring-glass, which she said she had stolen from the dispensary a year before, saying: "I never knew that it was sin. Pardon me!" At another village, Rahrun, the women were most attentive and said they wished Miss Bird would go weekly instead of the Sheikh, as they could understand her Book but not his. "I never knew that it was a sin." Dr. Carr was requested in September to visit the Bakhtiari country—four days' journey—to see the wife of a chief who was ill. He saw there some 400 to 500 patients, and spoke to them of the Saviour and His love. Many, including the khan and his wife, asked for Testaments. A patient from Bakhtiari, the Mirza of one of the chiefs, was operated upon for cataract in the hospital, and professed to believe in Christ; a friend also whom he brought for an operation made the same profession. Patients among the Bakhtiaris

At Najifabad the convert who was baptized at Julfa, together with his son, in March, 1895 (see last year's Report, page 154), had to remove for a time to Teheran, but he was able to return after a few months and resume his trade as a shoemaker without molestation. The man's name is Suleiman, and his son's Yusuf (one of the three lads who were imprisoned at the beginning of 1897, as mentioned above). Bishop Stuart found an opportunity of disarming an enemy of the Mission—an apothecary, whose professional jealousy had led him to stir up the Mullâs to close the Mission dispensary in the autumn of 1894—by admitting his son into the Persian school. He found this man possessed a copy of Glen and Martyn's version of the Old and New Testaments, obtained by his son from the Mission-school at Teheran. Najifabad was visited by several members of the Mission staff besides the Bishop: the Rev. A. R. Blackett, Dr. Carr, Miss Davies-Colley, and Miss Stirling. All found it an advantage, in prosecuting their language studies, to spend a few weeks in a purely Persian town. Najifabad.

Mr. Blackett remarks that the study of a vernacular is rightly called "picking up a language," for very low stooping is necessary, and after 22 years of responsible service in the Colonial ministry it is very natural that he should be specially sensible of the restriction of enforced silence. It is, however, as he says, "an investment for the future." Dr. Carr had about a dozen "Picking up a language."

Babîs in his room every night of his stay in the place for reading and prayers. One of them had had his hand cut off at the wrist some twenty years ago for his faith. Mr. Stileman and Dr. Carr went during the hot weather to Soh, a place on the hills some 7,500 feet above sea-level, and seventy miles from Julfa; and from thence they visited a tribe of Kurds from Western Persia, who were engaged in collecting tragacanth gum, and sowed the seed of the Word among this "very wild-looking people." They went also to a remote and secluded village, Abiana, among the mountains, amidst scenery of surpassing beauty, and found that copies of the two first gospels had preceded them, left possibly by Mr. Carless, who went there four years before. Mr. Stileman had a copy of the C.M. Gleaner with him, and spoke to the people about the illustrations, but the most useful one as a text proved to be the advertisement on the cover of the "Hovis wolf." Just before they left Soh, a man who was proceeding from a place some fifteen days' south-east of Ispahan, on a pilgrimage to Mashad, a sacred place in north-east Persia, was accidentally shot. The doctor took this man to the hospital at Julfa and kept him under treatment for over a month, after which he returned, the possessor of a copy of the New Testament, to the reading of which he had listened with great attention.

BAGHDAD.

Baghdad.

BAGHDAD and the district around was flooded in the spring of 1896; hundreds of houses collapsed, and many lives were lost. The house occupied by Dr. H. M. Sutton suffered severely, and had, in fact, to be pulled down. The numbers attending the Dispensary at Baghdad were so much in excess of what Dr. Sutton was able to treat that, in order to avoid the disappointment caused by sending large numbers away, he closed the dispensary for some months and paid visits to the homes of the sick instead. One man who underwent an operation became an earnest inquirer, recognizing in the dispensary work a practical illustration of the lofty tenderness of the Gospel, which he learned to read and love. The Rev. J. T. Parfit says of him:—

An earnest inquirer.

He came and read with me day after day. He was always praying, and learned many of our Prayer-book collects by heart to assist him in the new and strange reality of praying as a Christian. He had many sleepless nights, and once with deep tenderness he told me, "I could not sleep last night, but stood and wept as, in vision, I saw the crucified Christ dying for my sins." He often gathered together his family at the door of his humble mud dwelling, while he read to them portions of the Word of God.

Permission to open a school.

It was mentioned last year that the Turkish Government, after a long delay, had granted permission to open a school at Baghdad. Several of the missionaries, and especially those in Mohammedan lands, make special note in their Annual Letters of events occurring on the seventh day of the month, the day allotted to those Missions in the Cycle of Prayer. They know that they are being pleaded for on that day, and they expect good things. Accordingly Mr. Parfit observes that it was on February 7th that the permission was received. But the dilatory tactics of the local officials interposed further delays: the censor of the Baghdad Council of Education refused to pass the school books; then all other than Protestant children were forbidden to attend; then they attempted to close the school by force, and brought upon themselves an official reproof from the Governor. Not until December 7th (again the seventh!) were the official papers sanctioning the opening of the school obtained from the Governor, though, as already stated, they had been notified by the British Ambassador at Constantinople exactly ten months before. One good result of their persistent opposition was that Mr. Parfit's repeated visits to the Government offices brought him into contact with a very intelligent Turk of remarkably upright character, who visited him repeatedly, and appeared to be not far from the Kingdom. Bishop Stuart, during his short visit in November, presided at the first prize-giving in the school. Dr. Sutton, in a short itineration, had numerous conversations with some of the better-class village people. In one village the Mullâ of the place sat with him for two hours each of the two nights he spent there, earnestly listening as he explained the way of salvation; and Dr. Sutton saw the same man reading from the New Testament to the boys in the village school, and writing out the prayer, Psalm li. 10, on slips of paper which he had learnt the previous night, and giving it round to the boys. Miss A. Phillips, of the New South Wales Association, whose own work was language study, says:—

A village Mullâ explains the New Testament

> We are a little band in Baghdad, but great honour is laid upon us that we are permitted to hold this fort for Jesus, and God is blessing the work begun and continued so patiently through many discouragements and trials. Only those who work in strongholds of Mohammedanism can tell the "patience" that is needed; but if it seems like walking "round the walls" of an impregnable fortress, yet for our continual comfort we know that when God's time comes, even these walls shall fall, and He shall be glorified in the manifestation of His own power!

"Walking round the walls."

INDIA.

The Famine.

Two great calamities will render the years 1896 and 1897 memorable in the history of India, namely, the Famine which still prevails over extensive districts in the North-West and Central Provinces, and the Plague which is devastating Bombay and Poona, Karachi and Hyderabad. Apprehensions of widespread scarcity began to be felt in the autumn of 1896, when the usual rainfall between August and November failed through a large part of India. The effect was noticeable on the growing autumn food crops of rice and millet and pulse, and it prevented or impeded the ploughing and sowing for the spring crops. In the North-West and Central Provinces these effects were aggravated by the exhaustion of food crops through previous short harvests. Week by week the telegrams became more grave; and while the rains in November and the cold weather showers in December and January relieved the situation, it was established beyond doubt before the latter month had proceeded far that a state of famine existed, or was immediately threatened, through an area of 164,000 square miles, with a population of 37 millions, while a further area of 121,700 square miles, with a population of 44½ millions, was exposed to distress. The following table shows the area of distribution as given in the Blue Book relating to the famine and the relief operations during the year 1896:—

Area of distribution.

	Famine.		Distress.
	Square Miles.	Population.	Square Miles.	Population.
Punjab	16,800	4,139,000	30,100	6,559,000
North-West Provinces	26,200	11,273,000	50,600	26,013,000
Bengal	6,700	5,281,000	9,900	8,265,000
Burma	2,600	212,000	8,600	555,000
Madras	8,500	1,206,000	—	—
Bombay	43,000	7,009,000	9,300	2,064,000
Central Provinces	60,200	7,824,000	13,200	1,019,000
Total	164,000	36,944,000	121,700	44,475,000

Such figures as the above are indeed appalling, and might almost excuse a sense of hopelessness in the Government and its officials at the task of dealing in any effective degree with a calamity of such gigantic proportions. That, however, has by no means been the sentiment of Lord Elgin, the Viceroy, and his colleagues. As mentioned in last year's Annual Report, the Indian Government has for many years past been making provision by providing a reserve fund of ample proportions for such an emergency, and Lord Elgin announced in unequivocal terms his intention and that of his colleagues to use these resources without stint for the object of saving life. He said at a meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council at Calcutta on January 7th:—

The resources of the Government made available for saving life.

Our means are ample, our determination to use them is absolute. I speak in this matter for the whole of my colleagues, and for none of them more than for the member in charge of the Finance Department. I can say from personal knowledge that the local Governments gratefully recognize that in this connexion they are being met with the utmost consideration and liberality, and I feel the most complete confidence that, whatever the criticism of our action in this emergency may be, in one respect, at all events, we shall not fail to secure the verdict of the historian—that is, in our making available for the saving of life the full resources of the Empire.

Measures of relief.

The number in receipt of Government relief at the beginning of 1897, when the above-quoted words were spoken, was 1,200,000, of whom about a quarter of a million were receiving gratuitous relief, and it was expected that these numbers would increase until April. Besides organizing relief works and distributing gratuitous relief, the Government granted suspension of revenue where necessary, sanctioned loans on a large scale to landholders prepared to give work on their estates, opened the Government forests to grazing, reduced the railway rates for carriage of food, &c.

Anticipatory preventive measures.

Irrigation

It may be safely assumed that the terrible array of figures given above would have been considerably higher but for the preventive measures which have been systematically and continuously pushed forward since the famine of 1877. Within that period 14,000 miles of major canals, giving irrigation to $3\frac{1}{4}$ millions of acres, have been constructed at a cost of 130 million rupees. Well irrigation has been developed on a similar scale, so that, e.g., the central alluvial plain of North India, from Delhi to Benares, is described by Sir Charles Elliott as riddled like a sieve with innumerable water-holes from 10 feet to 50 feet deep. The net result is that 29 millions of acres are irrigated from various sources out of the total Indian cultivation of 180 millions of acres, i.e., one-sixth of the area of cultivation is placed beyond the risk arising from any ordinary drought, and can feed 120 millions of people—one-half the population of British India.

and means of distribution of food.

As a measure of protection and prevention, next to works of irrigation, means of effective distribution of food are essential; and for this the Government made the same systematic and extensive provision. After the famine of 1877, India was mapped into areas of food supply, with a distinct railway provision for each block. On the basis that a line of 300 miles long, serving a tract 25 miles broad on each side, can protect from famine an area of 15,000 square miles and $3\frac{3}{4}$ millions of people, a scheme for 20,000 miles of railway was drawn out. Of that total 9,000 were already made, and up to April 1st, 1896, the railway mileage constructed since 1877 was 11,409 miles, one-half consisting of lines specifically recommended by the Famine Commission. The capital outlay on this vast machinery for securing India against famine since 1879 has been 85 million rupees a year, and the money has been so judiciously expended as to yield in 1895–6 a return of 5¾ per cent.

Former famines.

To estimate the effects of such anticipatory and humane measures as the above, it is necessary to recall some of the Indian famines of former years. Mohammedan historians, Ferishtah and others, give graphic accounts of appalling famines in the times before the British occupation: how people were driven to the most terrible and uncivilized expedients to satisfy their hunger; how they drowned themselves in the Jumna in crowds, unable to endure their misery; and how the price of grain in the beginning of the last century sometimes rose to 64 times its ordinary rate. Since 1769, when the administration of the Bengal districts began to pass into English hands, fifteen actual famines have occurred in India. In that year ten millions of human beings perished and one-third of Bengal was left bare of inhabitants. It was in the Madras famine of 1790–2 that the first serious attempt was made by Government to employ people on relief works. And it was not until the Bundelkhand scarcity of 1868–9 that Lord Lawrence, as Viceroy, and the Government of Great Britain definitely accepted the responsibility of preventing loss of life during famine, and their acceptance was in advance of the possibility of performance. The principle of responsibility, as defined by Lord Lawrence, was accepted by the Famine Commission which was appointed by Parliament after the famine of 1876–8.

Sir William W. Hunter has justly said that the prevention of death in famine, as distinguished from the partial mitigation of distress, is essentially a conception of the British mind; and it may be added that the vast organization which renders it possible even in a remote degree to realize the conception is no less a British creation, and is one which has no parallel in the world's history. But the hearts of British Christians have aspired to do more than this, and it was almost difficult for the authorities to check the liberal impulses of people in England until, in their judgment, their gifts could be used beneficially and without deranging the Government measures. On January 11th, immediately on the communication of the Government's sanction of the step, the Mansion House Indian Famine Fund was opened by the Lord Mayor of London. The objects for which private subscriptions were invited by the Government were such as the following:—the supplementing of the subsistence ration provided by the State with comforts, such as food or clothing for the aged and infirm, children, and patients in hospital; the providing for the maintenance of orphans; the relieving of numerous poor but respectable persons who will endure almost any privation rather than apply for Government relief (this applies to "purdah" women among others); and the restoring to their original position, when the acute distress is subsiding, of those who have lost their all in the struggle, and giving them a fresh start in life. In the famine of 1877–8 the public contributed through various channels the sum of £700,000, and a State paper issued in 1880 showed that close upon four million persons were relieved in one or other of the above methods by its means. The Mansion House Fund of 1897 stood at £534,000 on June 1st.

At several stations in the North-West and Central Provinces the Society's missionaries were face to face with cases of acute distress, which appealed irresistibly to their Christian charity and commiseration. Many who were ready to perish—sick and aged folk and orphan children—were relieved, and, relying on the generosity of Europeans in the country and of friends at home, onerous pecuniary liabilities were incurred. In order to give help in such cases, the Committee, having a balance in hand of some £5,000 from the Famine Fund of 1877–8, authorized, in December, the several Corresponding Committees representing the Society in India to draw in each case to the extent of £500, and again in January they sanctioned the remainder of the fund being remitted. On January 12th, the day after the opening of the Mansion House Fund, the Committee resolved to invite special contributions for the same object, to be distributed through the Society's missionaries. The sum received and remitted to India was £8,529 up to June 1st, in addition to the above-mentioned £5,000.

C.M.S. Famine Fund.

The other sore calamity by which India has been and is being troubled is the Plague, which was first identified in Bombay in September, 1896. The Government took prompt action to prevent it from spreading, conferring wide powers on the chief executive officer of the city, appointing a special Medical Committee to investigate and advise, engaging scientific experts from other parts of India to report upon the disease and its prevention, and employing additional medical men to carry out at once the special sanitary measures in Bombay advocated by the committee of experts. Notwithstanding all efforts, some 2,500 deaths occurred in Bombay before the end of the year; 300 in Karachi, where it first appeared in December; and about 100 sporadic cases elsewhere. In Poona it did not make its appearance until January.

The Plague.

"Shall there be evil in a city and the Lord hath not done it?" For the deliverance of His people of old He called for a famine upon Egypt and brake the whole staff of bread, and for the restoration of His people when they wandered in the paths of sin He sent famine and pestilence in their land; so in the Gospel dispensation it may with confidence be assumed that the sore judgments which have visited India are intended for the everlasting benefit of its people. Two immediate effects may be expected in God's providence to work directly for India's regeneration, if only the opportunity be afforded to it speedily of hearing the Gospel message. One is the cementing of the bonds which link it with Christian England; and the other is the loosening of the bonds which attach it to idolatry.

At a meeting of the Imperial Legislative Council in March, 1897, a debate on the Budget gave opportunity for strong expression from several native members regarding the gratitude which they said all India felt for the noble manner in which England and her Colonies had contributed to the Relief Fund. In particular, the Maharajah of Darbhangah declared: "The whole of India feels deeply grateful for the magnificent way in which the people of England have unanimously come forward to afford relief to the famine-stricken peasantry of this country." The influence of such sentiments can scarcely fail to be favourable in a high degree to the missionary cause. And it may further be expected that the demonstrable fact of relief both in famine and plague having been afforded, not from their idol gods, but from Christian charity and from the kind but firm insistence on measures which were in direct opposition to the inculcations of their religious teachers, will prove no less favourable to the spread of the faith of Christ.

Evidence that such influence has already told to some extent in the directions indicated will be found in the following pages. Here mention may be made of an article contributed to the Times of March 30th on "The Plague as an Iconoclast." In it attention is drawn to the fact that, while at the first appearance of the plague in Bombay, it was almost impossible to induce the people to enter the hospital wards and submit to segregation (an essential condition of hospital treatment in a great epidemic), by the end of February this repugnance had been overcome and the accommodation in the General Hospital, as well as in those of the Parsi, Jain, Hindu, Khoja, and Mohammedan communities, was availed of by large numbers. "For the first time in India," the writer remarks, "segregation is not only being enforced, but is accepted as inevitable by the people themselves. This amounts to a change in public opinion difficult to realize in England." But the terror of the plague, even where its presence has not come, has operated in the same direction. The Epidemic Diseases Act, which was passed in February, 1897, was a legislative advance which would have been impossible a few months or even weeks earlier. It had been stated in the Calcutta Municipal Corporation that many of the Natives would rather die of the plague than allow themselves to be segregated or removed; nevertheless the Bill was accepted by the Hindu members of the Viceroy's Legislative Council, and the firm words of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, that it was "perfectly certain the Government could not allow the whole town to run the risk of plague infection because the source of that infection happened to be a woman," passed unchallenged. Perhaps even more remarkable, as the writer of the above-mentioned article in the Times observed, is the eagerness with which Natives of India resorted to inoculation with the plague serum. The success of experiments made on prisoners was so striking that the Municipality of Bombay agreed to provide inoculation hospitals, with a minimum of thirty rooms, for the general inoculation of the inhabitants, and in the course of February between two and three thousand inoculations, including second and third administrations, were reported. Notwithstanding the prejudices of caste, Hindus came forward in large numbers, as also did Parsis, Europeans (including ladies and children) setting the example of courage to the Natives. The Mohammedans alone held back, influenced, it is supposed, by their habitual submission to the decrees of fate. At a meeting of Mohammedans convened in Bombay at the end of December the sentiments which appeared to meet with most favour were: "We will not go to the hospital, our Musjid is our hospital"; and "we must resign ourselves to the will of God, and not resort to segregation."

Hindus submitting to segregation, and resorting to inoculation.

The Government policy towards the religions of India is that of strict neutrality; but in the cause of humanity, and in the interests of the material welfare of the people, as in past years in abolishing suti, infanticide, sacrifices of human beings, and the burial of lepers alive, so now, in taking measures to arrest disease, they have been led on grounds of benevolence to set themselves against some of the direct effects of the religious conceptions and prejudices of the people. Happily, the Government is ready now to recognize its duties in this regard, and has the courage of its convictions. Formerly it was often, to a large degree, on the initiative of missionaries, by their respectful protests in India, and their creation of a healthy public opinion at home, that the Government was induced to take such action. It is thus increasingly apparent, and is evidenced on a platform which commands the attention of the civilized world, that the ends of an enlightened humanitarianism and of an ardent evangelism are not antagonistic, but that, on the contrary, each is eminently helpful to the other. This fact was ably and conclusively established in a review of the mutual relations of Missionary Societies and the Indian Government, by Major-General George Hutchinson, which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for January and February, 1897; and, on the part of the Indian Government, was frankly acknowledged in the well-known statement made to the British Parliament in 1872:—

Recognition by officials of Indian Government of benefits of missionary work.

> The Government of India cannot but acknowledge the great obligation under which it is laid by the benevolent exertions made by 600 missionaries, whose blameless example and self-denying labours are infusing new vigour into the stereotyped life of the great population placed under English rule, and are preparing them to be in every way better men and better citizens of the great Empire in which they dwell.

Sir Charles Elliott's testimony, on returning home after nearly forty years of official life in India, latterly in the important office of Governor of Bengal, delivered at the Society's Anniversary in 1896, was to the same effect. He said:—

> I have obtained a large and wide experience of missionary work in India, and I have not lightly formed my opinion. I assert that their usefulness is second to none among the beneficial influences which have followed the introduction of British rule into India, and which under God's Providence are penetrating and breaking up the darkness and superstition that are still in the country. No one who is a candid observer, and especially no people who are such keen judges of character as the people of India, can fail to watch with admiration the nobility of spirit, the simplicity of life, and the single-minded devotion to a high aim which the missionaries really display.

And he added:—

> There is another point which I wish to urge, and that is that the Missionary Societies in India fill a want which the Government is unable to fill, and yet the filling of which is essential to the progress of the country. The Government of India, as you know, is unable to proselytize; it is bound to look evenly upon all religions, and show special favour to none, and yet it admits its liability to inculcate a high morality and spread the cause of education, and many of its members are inclined to believe that the inculcation of such high morality separate from the Christian religion is impossible. How, then, can the problem of religious education in India be solved? We have had here a problem closely akin to it at our own doors, and the Government has recently introduced a Bill—the Education Bill—for the purpose, which is now undergoing a great deal of keen criticism. But in India the Missionary Societies have solved the problem for us, and it is to them and to their schools there that we owe the fact that hundreds of thousands of Indian boys and girls are having Christian education imparted to them.

Problem of Religious Education in India.

On the latter point the words of the Rev. J. Haythornthwaite, Principal of St. John's College, Agra, in an article on "Hinduism as it is,"* may be quoted:—

Indictment of purely Secular Education

> Man everywhere is a religious being, and especially so in India. He has a soul, as well as body and mind, and therefore any system of education which on principle must ignore the noblest part of human nature is self-evidently defective.
>
> Such a system is disastrous to the nation. India is rapidly changing. Great forces are at work, which are shaping the India of the future. No one can contemplate what that future may be without considerable apprehension. If India is not to be Christian, atheism, and of the worst kind, seems inevitable. Now is the time for action. Soon the transition period will be ended, and the character of the nation will be determined for good or evil. Shall the most religious country become the most godless, or shall Christianity yet achieve its highest triumph?

* See C.M. Intelligencer, August, 1896.

At this point the testimony of Mr. John R. Mott, of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, who visited India in 1896, in the course of an extended tour (which included also Australia, China, and Japan, and occupied twenty months), for the purpose of influencing students, may be quoted. He wrote:—

Testimony to the value of Educational Missions.

We confess that we started on this tour somewhat disposed to look upon Educational Mission work as less important than directly evangelistic work. A careful study of the question in four or five Mission countries has led us to attach the greatest possible importance to Educational Missions. No country has done more to deepen this conviction than India. Without doubt Educational Missions have opened a larger number of doors for the preaching of the Gospel than any other agency. They have furnished the most distinguished and influential converts. They have done more than all else combined to undermine heathen superstitions and false systems of belief. They are to-day the chief, if not the only, force to counteract the influence of the secular character and tendency of the Government institutions of learning. In the interest of the ultimate success of the missionary enterprise we believe that Educational Missions would be abundantly justified if they were doing nothing but teach science, history, philosophy, ethics, and political economy, in their right relation to Christ.

Indian visitors distinguishing themselves in England.

That "India is rapidly changing," as Mr. Haythornthwaite says in the extract quoted above, has been brought home to Englishmen in a most convincing way during the past year by two Indian visitors having carried off the honours, against all competitors, in spheres in which the choicest of England's sons delight to excel. The head of English cricket for the year (1896), and the head of the India Civil Service competition were both Hindus: Prince Ranjitsinhji, a Rajput, accomplishing performances of exceptional brilliancy in the field of sport, and Mr. Atul Chandra Chatterji, a high-caste Brahman, distancing by a considerable interval the second of the sixty-one gentlemen, many of them of distinguished academic careers, in the field of intellectual athletics. A Times writer justly remarked:—

Half a century ago, to become learned in the Veda was still the highest aim of a Brahman; to ride about at the head of his little household guard was still the ambition of a Rajput chief. To take part in a public game of football would have been as far beneath the dignity of a Rajput prince as the study of anatomy would have been degrading to a Brahman. The recent successes of Prince Ranjitsinhji and Mr. Chatterji give emphasis in England to a change which has for some time been well understood in India—a change from the old pursuits of the high castes and from their old standards of excellence to the new pursuits and the new standards of excellence which Englishmen carry with them to whatever country they go. At first it seemed that the change was a mere matter of imitation. But the change has long advanced beyond the imitative stage. Prince Ranjitsinhji's playing is distinguished above all things by its originality, verve, and personal resource. The long interval between Mr. Chatterji and the next man to him on the list indicates a not less remarkable capacity.

And these successes do not stand alone. Lord Kelvin, at the 1896 meeting of the British Association, declared himself "literally filled with wonder and admiration" at the paper by Professor J. C. Bose (an M.A. of Cambridge, Doctor of Science of London, and a graduate of Calcutta University) on electrical waves. Indian women, too—and this is a much more remarkable evidence of change—are proving their intellectual capacity by University successes. Two Indian ladies (one of them, however, was a Parsi, the daughter of Mr. Dadabhai Naoroji, late M.P. for Central Finsbury, and her case is scarcely, perhaps, in point, as the Parsis have ever been in the van of progress), passed in 1896 the final examinations for medical and surgical qualification at Edinburgh; and another passed the first division for the same qualification in the London University. But these instances are evidence not of change alone; they are evidence, brought within the Home Church's immediate range of vision, of qualities which, while they are arrayed against the Gospel, make the evangelization of India a work quite exceptional, both in its present difficulty and in its ultimate promise.

Successful Lady Students.

The number of Indians studying in England in 1895, according to the Indian Magazine and Review, was 284, of whom 146 were Hindus, 70 Mohammedans, 36 Parsis, 27 Christians, and the rest Burmese. An "Indian Christian Union of Great Britain and Ireland" was formed in 1895 for the purpose of uniting for mutual help the little body of Indian Christians while in this country. It is earnestly to be hoped that this Union will make it one of its avowed objects to seek out and show sympathy with non-Christian Indians in England, with a view to commending to them the claims of Christianity. One member who joined the Union during 1896 was a convert from the Parsi community, Miss Almai Maneki Cooper, who was baptized at the parish church of Putney, "with water from the Jordan," and confirmed in Christ Church Cathedral, Oxford, by the Bishop of Reading. It must be added, however, that those who recommend such visits to this country for the purpose of study incur a very grave responsibility. The risks and dangers are considered by many wise and experienced friends of Indian Christians to far outweigh the doubtful advantages.

Indian Christian Union.

Legal disabilities of Indian Christians

The Society has united with the Wesleyan Missionary Society and the London Missionary Society in presenting a joint memorial to the Indian Government urging it to use its influence with the Native Governments of Mysore, Travancore, and Cochin, with the view to the removal of certain legal disabilities under which Christians in those States labour. An Act passed in 1850 provided that in British India no disabilities affecting rights of property should attach to Christians as such in the eyes of the law, and the object of the memorial was to bring about the adoption of the provisions of this Act by the above Native States. As regards Travancore, the Governor of Madras had already, before the memorial was drawn up, taken action in the direction desired.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in India in the last century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the deaths of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained in the south. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813, no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist Missionary, and his companions, had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future work. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhagalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work was begun among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, in 1860.

Statistics of the Mission.

THE printed reports of the several Corresponding Committees in India are most interesting documents, containing as they do carefully-prepared statistics regarding every fact and feature of the work which admits of expression in figures. They usually arrive in England, however, too late to be available for use in the Society's Annual Reports. That of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee for 1895 — the seventy-sixth report — gives numerous statistical tables, prepared with immense pains. The first table corresponds in the main with that which follows at the end of this Mission (on page 194), but is somewhat more full, giving not only the total number of baptized Christians and communicants at each station, but the number of men, women, and children. The second, third, fourth, and fifth tables relate to education, and give detailed information regarding expenditure and the sources of income to meet it, the number of teachers and of scholars of each sex in the theological classes, normal schools, the Anglo-Vernacular schools, and Vernacular schools for Christians and non-Christians respectively, and the number of Sunday-schools and of pupils in them. The most valuable and important of these are given in this Report, but necessarily with less elaboration of detail. There are some facts of real interest, however, which find no record in these pages. For example, the tables in question not only give the information that the C.M.S. schools in Bengal in 1895 numbered 145, but also how many there were of each of the several classes of schools: two theological schools, for training men for the ministry and for posts as catechists; two normal schools, for training men for schoolmasters; 39 schools, mainly for the children of Christian parents, of which 33 were Vernacular, with 1,168 children, and five Anglo-Vernacular, with 548 children; and 102 were mainly for the pupils of heathen parentage, 99 of which were Vernacular, with 3,415 pupils, and three Anglo-Vernacular, with 520 pupils. The total expenditure in these schools and institutions during 1895 was Rs. 78,503; of which Rs. 23,180 was derived from endowments, fees, and subscriptions, Rs. 40,623 from the Society's General Fund, and Rs. 15,123 from Government as grants-in-aid. There were 66 Sunday-schools in the Mission, with 1,678 scholars, of whom 567 boys and 492 girls were children of Christian parents, and 578 boys and 41 girls were Hindus and Mohammedans. The accounts of the receipts and disbursements of the somewhat numerous funds are given with the same clearness.

Deaths of Mr. H. C. Tugwell,

Death removed two European missionaries from the staff during the year. Mr. Henry Charles Tugwell died at Calcutta on June 7th, 1896, and the fact was intimated in a foot-note in the list of names in last year's Report. He was sent out by the Victoria C.M. Association at the close of 1893. He was a son of the Rev. L. S. Tugwell, of Tunbridge Wells, formerly a missionary of the Society in British Columbia, where he baptized the first Tsimshean converts in 1861. Mr. Tugwell was also a cousin of Bishop Tugwell, of Western Equatorial Africa. His health was somewhat weak from the time of his arrival in the Mission, and he succumbed to a prolonged attack of fever.

Mrs. J. Brown,

The other death was that of a labourer of twenty-two years' standing. Mrs. Brown, wife of the Rev. James Brown, of the Santal Mission, was brought to England in August, 1896, in a most precarious state of health, and died on November 14th. Her devoted work among the Christian girls of Barhawa was both an inspiring example to fellow-workers, and will result, it cannot be doubted, in lasting blessing to the Santal Church.

and Rev. H. C. Milward.

A former missionary, the Rev. H. C. Milward, Vicar of Lyonshall, in the diocese of Hereford, also died during the year. Mr. Milward graduated at Christ's College, Cambridge, in 1855, and went to Calcutta the following year on the staff of Bishop Wilson's Cathedral Mission. In 1857 that Mission, at the instance of Bishop Wilson, was taken over by the C.M.S., and Mr. Milward became a missionary of the Society, but the failure of Mrs. Milward's health obliged him to return home in 1860. He was subsequently at different periods commissary of Bishop Stuart of Waiapu, and Bishop Cheetham of Sierra Leone; and from 1881 almost uninterruptedly until the time of his death, and in three different counties, he was an Honorary District Secretary of the Society.

Reinforcements.

The following were added to the staff: the Rev. Lionel Archibald McClintock Newbery, B.A., Christ's College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of North Meols, Southport; Mr. Sidney Walter Donne, who joined the Mission in 1889 and withdrew in 1896, as mentioned last year, owing to family circumstances, but re-offered at the close of the same year; Mr. William Victor Rung Kamcke, of Islington College, an engineer; and Mr. J. E. Bodry, who was accepted by the Calcutta Corresponding Committee in local connexion. The three first-named sailed in November.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Calcutta admitted the Revs. F. W. Bourdillon, A. Le Feuvre, W. P. Parker, H. Kitley, D. Biswas, and P. T. Biswas to priests' orders on December 20th, 1896, in Calcutta Cathedral.

The autumn half-yearly conference of C.M.S. Bengal missionaries was held at Calcutta on September 8th to 10th. The first day was observed as a "Quiet Day," and the Rev. W. H. Bray, the Acting Archdeacon, gave two helpful addresses. The conference sermon was preached by the Rev. C. H. Bradburn from Exodus iv. 27.

Visit of Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen.

The Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen, after holding Mission Services in the Telugu Mission during parts of December and January, 1896–7, visited Calcutta, Santalia, and Bhagalpur. Mr. Standen had a slight accident while at Calcutta which detained him there a few days, during which Mr. Thwaites visited the Santal Colony, accompanied by the Rev. F. T. Cole, and by Mr. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission. Subsequently Mr. Thwaites and Mr. Standen conducted Missions at Taljhari and at Bhagalpur.

The Secretary of the Mission, the Rev. H. D. Williamson, with Mrs. Williamson, come home on furlough in April, 1897, and the Rev. W. H. Ball, Principal of the Calcutta Divinity School, has been appointed Acting Secretary pending other arrangements. The members of the Calcutta Corresponding Committee are the following:—The Bishop of Calcutta, the Revs. G. M. Davies, G. H. Parsons, and E. T. Sandys, Mr. S. Jacob, Mr. R. M. Gurney, Mr. J. Monro, Mr. J. A. Bourdillon, Mr. A. F. Cox, and Mr. M. C. Turner.

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. Gouldsmith returned to the Mission in January, 1897. The Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Crockett came home in March, and Mrs. W. H. Ball in April; Mr. Crockett had suffered from an attack of dysentery in the autumn, and a voyage to Colombo failed to re-establish his health.

CALCUTTA.

Old Church, Calcutta.

The Old Church, during the Rev. H. Gouldsmith's furlough, was placed in charge of the Rev. C. G. Mylrea, with whom the Rev. A. W. Crockett and Miss I. F. Young were associated. Mr. Crockett's health broke down in July. On resuming work he broke down again, and was ordered to Colombo, the Rev. G. H. Parsons assuming charge of the Old Church for a time. Finally, he was invalided home in February. The Rev. H. Gouldsmith returned to Calcutta and took over the incumbency in the same month, the Rev. C. G. Mylrea having been transferred to Bhagalpur. Miss Young's health also failed in May, and entailed her absence from the work for five months. Her principal work was in visiting Eurasians, who welcomed her visits but were mostly indifferent to spiritual things and often living in open sin. The pastoral work of the Old Church is similar to an English parish, but there is also much evangelistic work. The ignorance, indifference, and sin are very great, which is not surprising with Mohammedanism and Heathenism all around. Romanism is a further disturbing force.

The Divinity School is under the Rev. W. H. Ball, who was assisted during the year by the Rev. W. P. Parker. The former describes the disadvantages under which the institution labours in the present inconvenient building:—

Divinity School.

We are still in a building quite unfit for a Divinity School: two lecture-rooms for three classes, no proper accommodation for eating, bathing, or sleeping, men crowded together for months at a time, never able to get any privacy for prayer, reading the Bible, or for study; in the midst of a crowded neighbourhood and noisy streets, never quiet for twenty hours out of the twenty-four, living, working, teaching in the midst of continual noise, sometimes the teacher has to stop simply because he cannot be heard. We live in the midst of a population crowded to the enormous extent of 68,480 per square mile; and in the midst of insanitary conditions which the present Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has described as unspeakable in their abominations. The next ward to this, and whose boundaries are only about two hundred yards from the College, is described by the Sanitary Commissioners as having houses built almost back to back, the narrow passages between them shut out from the sunlight, rats running about in the dark as they would at night, and a heavy, sickening odour pervading the whole place; walls and floors of the houses damp with contamination from liquid sewage, which lies rotting, and from which there is no escape. Jammed in among these are native huts, filthy, dilapidated, and foul beyond description, in many places it being impossible to walk round these huts where the ground is damp with liquid sewage, and the stench is beyond description. Yet in this ward the population reaches as high as 144,640 per square mile.

As we have no convenience for married students, they have to live among Hindus and Mohammedans, in the midst of conditions similar to the above, many of them living in such a manner that the common decencies of life cannot be observed, in houses where an Englishman would not put his horse, let alone a human being.

A site in another neighbourhood was offered in the course of the year on favourable terms, but the Committee, in view of the financial outlook, were reluctantly compelled to decline to purchase. At the beginning of 1897 the Rev. C. Grant was assigned to assist in the Divinity School, when the Rev. W. H. Ball took up the Secretariat on the departure, on furlough, of the Rev. H. D. Williamson.

Boarding Schools for Christian boys

The Rev. C. B. Clarke continues to superintend the Christian Boys' Boarding School, with the exception of a short illness in March, 1896. The Bishop of Calcutta, at the annual prize-giving in November, dwelt on the importance of separating Christian lads from non-Christian surroundings, as is done in this school. Mr. Clarke is able to rejoice that he is in as Christian an atmosphere as ever he enjoyed at home in England. The school is very full, having sixty-four boarders and twenty day-boys. Two out of three passed the matriculation examination in 1896. One old boy passed his F.A.; another finished his course at the Divinity School, and is now a preacher of the Gospel. The school is also an attraction to the Christian soldiers stationed near. Mr. Clarke says:—

> One feature of the year has been a sympathy that has sprung up between the Christian soldiers in the fort and those at Barrackpore and the school. A "sergeant," as they are all called by courtesy, at the cricket-nets, or kicking a football about with a lot of boys at his heels, or on the horizontal bar, has ceased to be anything accounted of. They are thoroughly at home. In fact, one of the soldiers said at a meeting in the school that the school was to him a little heaven on earth.

The Girls' Boarding School steadily increased in numbers, the boarders averaging about ninety and the day scholars about thirty-five. Two out of three candidates passed the entrance examination of the Calcutta University. In the other Government examinations the girls did very well, and five of them obtained scholarships. The general tone of the school is good. They have a Gleaners' Union, and now support a Bible-woman among the women in the jute mills at Kamarhatti, near Agarpara, whose work is superintended by Miss Farler. They collect in their missionary box for special objects, such as the famine in Gond-wána. Further, Miss Neele writes:—

> One of our former pupils, now working in connexion with the Church of England Zenana Mission, paid us a visit a short time ago, and I was pleased to see how her interest in her work stirred up the missionary spirit in her younger sister and a friend, so that it is now their determination, if possible, to join her when they are old enough in a year or two (D.V.). Others of our number are, I know, looking forward to entering on Mission work when they are old enough.

There was little serious illness among the children, but Miss Lena Chapman, whose services are temporarily lent by the C.E.Z.M.S., at the beginning of 1896 was laid aside by sun-fever for three months. Miss Sampson was able to delay her departure until Miss Chapman was well enough to take up work again. In the following May, during the summer holiday, Miss Neele and Miss E. J. Neele were thrown out of a tum-tum while driving to Kapasdanga. The vehicle fell over upon Miss Neele, who had to keep to her bed throughout the whole of the holiday. The matron, Mrs. Seal, left to become superintendent of the Lady Elliott Hostel for Bengali female students of the Campbell Medical School. In February, 1897, services were conducted at the school by Mr. Herklots, of the C.S.S.M.

Christ Church.

The Rev. E. T. Sandys, Chairman of the Calcutta District Council, is responsible for Christ Church. His Annual Letter gives a striking picture of Hindu fetishism and its survival among professing Christians:—

> At Krishtopur a very sad event occurred during the year. The son of a Church member had a temporary fit of insanity. The father, instead of asking for prayer for his son, consulted some Hindu friends, and took a journey to the heathen shrine of Kali at Tarkeswar, and obtained a small bar of iron which had been "blessed" by the goddess. This was twisted into a wristlet and put upon the afflicted lad. The bar of iron could have been purchased at a blacksmith's for a penny, but the journey and the price paid to the Brahman priests at Tarkeswar amounted to about eight shillings. Needless to say I had the ring taken off as soon as possible.

Popular Hindu superstitions

> This leads me to say how very little we realize the gross ignorance and utter superstition which binds the people of this land. Before taking a journey, good luck must be obtained by offering a gift to a deity (Hori-lût); children must be guarded from evil by having a charm (madhuli) tied round their neck, arm, or waist—this is commonly spoken of as "medicine;" if you have a gourd or melon growing in the garden, a blackened pot with white marks on it must be put up beside it to ward off the evil or covetous eye. At nightfall a lighted lamp is waved about the house, into all the corners, under the bed, and round about the darling infant's head, to ward off all the perils and dangers of the night. If any one is ill, then a person knowing some suitable incantation is brought to the house; he takes a wisp of straw and performs magic signs, muttering his incantation the while; this may take the form of anointing with water or oil. Or, again, the remedy may consist in muttering the verse (mantra) into an earthen saucer (shora), which is then hung up over the sick patient.
>
> This is popular Hinduism in the villages of Bengal—fetishism as rank and black as in the darkest parts of Africa. And our ignorant Christians have to live with this all round them.

Trinity Church.

The Rev. A. Stark, who is in charge of Trinity Church, was attacked by fever in April, 1896, and had to go on sick-leave to Darjeeling for three months. The Hindi chapel at Intally has been given up to the S.P.G., owing to the decision that it is within the parish of St. Saviour's, so that Hindi as well as Bengali services are now held in Trinity Church. The Hindi services are conducted by the Rev. Katwaru Lal. The congregation contains a number of the spiritual agents of the Mission, and the boys of the Boarding School, as well as the general public. The effects of the Mission conducted by the Tamil evangelist David are still felt. The Leper Asylum was the spiritual charge of the Rev. Katwaru Lal. A Hindu and his wife and a Mohammedan were baptized in 1896.

Mohammedan Mission.

The Rev. R. J. Kennedy had no European helper during the year in the Mohammedan Mission. The quarter of a million Mohammedans to whom his Mission extends are scattered over a large area, from Chitpur in the north to Bartola in the south, a distance of about eight miles, so that the work is manifestly beyond one man's accomplishment. Mr. J. E. Bodry, a Eurasian gentleman, educated in England and Scotland, who has for years assisted in the parish work of the Old Church, has been appointed to assist Mr. Kennedy and has been welcomed by him. Mr. Kennedy preaches successively in Mattiaburj, where he meets with much opposition; in front of the Mohammedan Madrassa School in Wellesley Street; in the Chitpur Road, in order to reach the Pathans and others who come to Calcutta to trade; and at Kidderpore, where native soldiers from Alipur are reached. This is in addition to visiting, teaching in the Mattiaburj Middle School and the Garden Reach High School, and conducting the Hindustani service in the Old Church Mission-room. Another Primary School has been opened at Bartola.

Associated Evangelists.

The Band of Associated Evangelists in Calcutta were reduced to two by the lamented death of Mr. H. C. Tugwell. The Rev. J. F. Hewitt thus summarizes the work of the band, of which he is the leader:—

> The open-air preachings have been so arranged that every inlet to Calcutta is preached at once in the week; so that all who are in the habit of coming on foot into the city from the adjoining villages have opportunities of hearing the Word of God. The numerous landing-stages or ghats on the banks of the River Hooghly are also all preached at once in the week. Including the Hindi work, we have four preaching-stations open each evening, and on one evening, by calling in the aid of voluntary workers, we have five. The chapels are in the centre of the city, and reach the more settled population resident in those quarters. At one we have had specially good meetings, many educated men listening to very close and searching addresses in the vernacular. The work consists in preaching, hymn-singing, selling of Scriptures, and distribution of tracts.
>
> The following figures will serve to give an idea of what has been done during the past year. In the matter of addresses given and people reached, the numbers have necessarily been somewhat difficult to obtain correctly, and must not be taken as accurate to a figure; but the other information, being easier to record, can be counted on as precisely correct. Taking both the Hindi and Bengali branches of the work, the figures add up as follows:—Number of houses visited, 10,616; number of visits paid to hospitals, 642; estimated number of addresses or sermons preached, 1,500; approximate number of people who have heard something of Christianity, 35,825. Number of portions of Scripture sold—mainly the four Gospels—but including some few other religious books, 7,136.

The Gospel heard by 36,000 people.

Mr. Hewitt engages in the Bengali work, in which he is assisted, since August of 1896, by the Rev. M. Dukhlal Biswas. He mentions that he was requested on two occasions to visit a Hindu house to pray for the recovery, once of a son and once of a daughter of the house. There were seven adult baptisms during the year. One helper in the instruction of inquirers should be specially mentioned:—

> In this work Pundit Mohun Lall Bidyabagish (a convert of the late Dr. Baumann's) has rendered invaluable service. He is an old man now, and almost bedridden with paralysis, but his heart is young with the love of Christ, and all his energy and prayers are devoted to bringing about the true conversion of these inquirers.

Mr. A. C. Kestin has passed his final language examination, and now hopes to add Urdu to his Hindi. The Hindu fakirs succeeded in inducing his landlord to evict him from a small shop in the Burra Bazaar which he used for preaching, and he feels the need of a permanent chapel. The Rev. J. F. Hewitt puts the case forcibly thus:—

A Calcutta Fleet Street.

I learn that it has been sometimes maintained in England that all such evangelistic work should be carried on in the open air. I am convinced that the supporters of such an idea have never seen the congested streets and lanes of this "city," for such is that part of Calcutta in the Londoner's sense of that term. One might as well try to carry on an evangelistic meeting on the pavement of Fleet Street in the middle of the day, as to do so, say, in the Burra Bazaar quarter of the Harrison Road. The Corporation of London would not object more strenuously than the Calcutta Municipality; nor would the omnibuses, four-wheelers, and hansoms of Fleet Street inflict more loss of life on the hearers than the tika garis, goroo garis, and private carriages of Harrison Road. The Calcutta Conference has taken this great need into consideration, and a Committee has been appointed to take steps with a view to securing one of the very few remaining sites, and building a permanent chapel.

The Rev. Katwaru Lal helps Mr. Kestin in the work among the Marwaris.

Barnagore

Barnagore appears as the residence of a C.M.S. missionary for the first time in this Report. In February, 1896, the Rev. G. H. Parsons removed from Chupra, and after some difficulty in getting a house, moved to Barnagore in May. The Rev. E. T. Sandys lent the services of a zealous evangelist, Rojini Kanto Ghose. With the help of two probationers they set to work. The following is Mr. Parsons' description of the new field:—

Work among mill-hands.

We had two good months of continuous work from May 20th to July 20th, and whatever doubts I might have had as to the wisdom of opening a new station when none of our older Missions are even fully manned, I very soon was convinced that Barnagore affords a splendid centre for evangelistic work. There is a crowded population in the municipalities of Cossipore and Barnagore, the Government gun-foundry and the jute-mills affording employment to thousands of hands. During these two months our work consisted chiefly of preaching in the bazaars and villages in the evenings, house-to-house visiting in the mornings, and selling books, Gospel portions, and other Christian literature. In the first three weeks we sold over seven hundred in this way in the streets and bazaars, chiefly in Hindi and Bengali, but also English, Urdu, and Ooriya. I found that the hands employed in the jute-mills are mostly Hindi-speaking, and if this station is developed as a centre for work, a Hindi-speaking Scotsman would find splendid opportunity, the Europeans being almost without exception Scotch.

Besides the mill-hands there is a large population of well-to-do, educated Babus, who go either daily or by the week to offices in Calcutta. These are far more difficult to reach, as they are so seldom "at home." I have, however, come across several gentlemen whose interest in religion is as real as is their dissatisfaction with Hinduism.

During the cold season of 1896–7 Mr. Parsons camped out in co-operation with the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies stationed at Barrackpore, keeping clear of the Wesleyan centres, in a district beyond Nyhattie. Mr. Parsons was secretary and treasurer of the Church Missionary Association, the Gleaners' Union, and the Translation Committee.

Agarpara Orphanage.

Miss Farler continues in charge of the Agarpara Orphanage assisted by a Eurasian lady, Miss Olliver, who knows Hindustani and Bengali. The death from cholera of Mrs. Bhattercharjea, the valued matron, in May, 1896, was a great blow. Her love for the children and self-forgetting interest in them will be hard to replace. There are now 88 children in the school.

The C.E.Z.M.S. work in Calcutta consists of the Normal School, to which are attached a Training Class and Central School, under Miss Valpy and Miss Kent, with three assistant missionaries. The Bengali work devolves on five assistant missionaries; that among Mohammedans is conducted by Miss S. Mulvany and Miss Hensley, with nine assistant missionaries; at Barnagore, Miss Sampson, Miss J. A. Evans, and Miss C. Dickson are stationed, together with Miss Ashwin for the Training Home; Andul has Miss M. G. Rainsford Hannay, Miss Hilare Brown, and one assistant; Howrah has Miss Cowley, Miss H. Owles, and one assistant; Barrackpore has Miss Good, Miss Pantin, Miss F. A. Smith, and Miss J. Sharpe, with four assistants; and Nyhattie has Miss L. Parsons and Miss Sibley.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

At the beginning of 1896 there was every prospect of the occupation of Burdwan by two married missionaries, for the Rev. F. W. Bourdillon and his wife arrived there in February to join the Rev. A. J. and Mrs. Santer. This hope was speedily dissipated, for Mr. Santer's health broke down so completely with asthma and fever that six weeks later he was invalided home.

Efforts to reach pupils in Government College.

He endeavoured to reach the boys of the Government College by taking up his position twice a week under a peepul tree in front of the gates just as the college closed for the day. He frequently had an audience of 400 or 500 boys, and wrote:—

> As I spoke in English as simply and slowly as I could, the majority of the lads could understand what was said; and the Bengali boy's readiness to seize every opportunity of hearing or speaking English guaranteed a quiet audience.

In Burdwan itself one wavering inquirer brought forward a very old salve to the conscience as an excuse for shrinking from baptism:—

> "Is it not better," said he, "to stay where I am (i.e., within the borders of Hinduism) and teach my fellow-men of the truth and how to do right, rather than to leave them and separate myself from them so that they refuse to listen to me?"

Mr. Bourdillon is impressed with the opposition which any convert would have to face:—

Weight of opposition

Less and less do I feel inclined to blame any man here in Burdwan for hesitation in confession by baptism, as I more and more recognize the weight of opposition which exists, and which to a new convert must appear certain to crush him. I believe there is a special canon of opposition in the minds of the better class of people here, and if I am right it is one which it will require many years of patient labour to wear out, should the Lord delay His coming.

Work among village women.

Mr. and Mrs. Santer made visits on their bicycles to separate villages, or went to address distinct audiences in the same village. The lantern came into frequent requisition. Frequently Mr. Santer would set it going and leave. When the coast was clear the women would come out and be addressed by Mrs. Santer and the Bible-woman, who would have to find their way back in the dark along the ridges of the rice-fields. In January, 1896, Mr. Santer opened a new out-station at Katwa, a town of 12,000 inhabitants, about thirty-five miles away from Burdwan, at the junction of the Ganges and the Adjai. When the railway, now in the course of survey, is completed, Katwa will be easily reached by it, and will form a valuable link between Burdwan and the Nadiya district. Katwa was abandoned by the Baptist Missionary Society about fifteen years ago. "Only some graves," says Mr. Santer, "both of Bengalis and Europeans—amongst the latter being one of William Carey, son of the great Dr. Carey who laboured there over forty years—only these marked the attempts of Christian Missions in that place." One Bengali Christian, the sole survivor of the Baptist Mission, welcomed them heartily. A catechist was sent to reside at Katwa in April. In May Mr. Bourdillon visited him, and again made a longer stay in July and August. But until the railway is finished the expense and awkwardness of the journey will make proper supervision difficult.

New out-station.

Memorials of early missionary pioneers.

The Rev. L. A. M. Newbery and Mr. Victor Kamcke are located temporarily at Burdwan.

The C.E.Z.M.S. is represented at Burdwan itself by Misses Gore and Marks. At the out-station of Mankar, Misses Harding and Lloyd (who are assisted by a zealous C.M.S. catechist) have now found a suitable but small house which was opened in January, 1896. When they first took possession they had to endure a mild form of boycotting, and even ill-treatment. Miss Harding wrote:—

"In March and April we met with a good deal of opposition from the Brahmans, because there was an inquirer. It was not at all an infrequent occurrence to have mud thrown at one, which, being dry, did not hurt.

My sola hat saved my head. A crowd of men and boys would follow us, shouting, 'Horibol, Horibol, beat them, turn them out. We don't want you to come and make Christians. Go away!' Once a Gospel was bought and immediately torn up before me and thrown in my face." Indignities suffered by ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S.

The prejudice subsequently subsided, but there was still difficulty in obtaining an entrance into Brahman zenanas. In the course of itinerating they met with village people who fled away from them, never having seen a white woman before! The missionaries' hearts were made glad by an inquirer, who in Easter, 1896, was locked up in his house for a week by his friends and afterwards carefully watched, but he was subsequently sent to Calcutta to read with a C.M.S. catechist.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

THE Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Butler sailed in October to return to the Mission after furlough, and Mr. S. W. Donne and Mr. P. H. Shaul in November, 1896. The Rev. A. G. Lockett came home on sick-leave in August, 1896; and the Rev. and Mrs. F. B. Gwinn, the Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Charlton, and the Rev. W. Wallace, on furlough, in February, March, and April, 1897, respectively.

The Normal School at KRISHNAGAR has not wholly recovered from the mutiny referred to in last year's Report. In filling up the vacancies a special effort was made to ensure spiritual fitness. Some of the boys who left remained at home, trying to retrieve their characters; some of them found situations with other missions. The Rev. F. B. Gwinn, who was in charge during the first half of the year, wrote:— Krishnagar Normal School.

This is an indirect though undesirable testimony to the value set upon the training given at the school, and of the estimation in which C.M.S. trained agents are held, as most of the men have been engaged without either character or reference, and given higher salaries than they would have received for some years had they remained faithful to the C.M.S.

The Rev. W. Wallace had charge of the School during the latter part of the year. He was succeeded at the beginning of 1897 by the Rev. A. Le Feuvre, to whom also was assigned the charge of the station work in Krishnagar. In the latter he is assisted by the Rev. W. P. Parker.

In the early part of 1896 the Rev. W. Wallace was engaged upon his own work of Itineration, not only in Krishnagar itself, but in the large town of Santipur and at Navadiwipu. A curious unconscious testimony to missionary work is afforded by the native modellers. Mr. Wallace says:—

To show how the missionary has become a recognized institution of the land, I may mention that in the beautiful "model of a native village" produced by our leading Hindu modeller, and sold here at a regular list price, The missionary a recognized institution

I notice all the incidents of native life beautifully modelled, and among them the missionary in his sola hat preaching to Natives at a corner of a street.

Girls' Boarding School.

The Girls' Boarding School, in the charge of Miss E. Bristow, of the C.E.Z.M.S., has now forty-five girls on the roll. An outbreak of cholera carried off two of the girls, both of whom had given evidence in their lives of their sincere faith in Christ. A Hindu girl named Echa was baptized by the name of Christodashi (servant of Christ). There was also a little Mohammedan girl whose mother was under instruction as an inquirer. The Boys' Boarding School at CHUPRA, under the care of the Rev. C. H. Bradburn, had seventy-five boarders and sixty-eight day boys. One boy passed the Middle English Examination in the second division, and another passed in the third division of the Middle Vernacular, besides other successes. Among the Native Christians in general, Mr. Bradburn observes one marked improvement:—

Chupra.

Boys' Boarding School.

To me there is one striking change among our people that we need to give great praise for: they now know the meaning of heart conversion and consecration. There is a recognized difference between a nominal Christian and an awakened Christian, and this is not confined to adults; on the contrary, it is more prevalent among the young and rising generation. This is a day no doubt our predecessors longed for, but did not see, and now we realize what they hoped and prayed for.

Mr. Bradburn's testimony may well be accepted as an encouragement by the Rev. I. W. Charlton, who superintended the Pastorates since 1892 until he came home on furlough in the spring of 1897. The financial position of the Church Council is maintained chiefly by the curtailing of all expansion. During the past year the efforts towards self-help were rendered almost hopeless by the failure of both the rice crops. Mr. Charlton wrote:—

The Pastorates

Not that we slack our efforts to teach them the duty of giving to God a portion of however little they have, but it becomes perplexing to know exactly how to put it to those who are barely getting one meal a day, and that often with borrowed rice!

Mr. Charlton raises a serious and difficult question, and one that is of the greatest practical moment to the future of the Native Church:—

A difficult question affecting self-support.

There are many questions concerning our Church Council system which force themselves upon the mind as one sees and knows more and more of the Bengali villagers. Will they ever be willing, and do we ever want them to be willing, to pay their clergy an income which is at least five or six times as large as the average parishioner? Is it in accordance with the Bengali idea that the minister of religion should necessarily be the richest man in the village? Does he not rather naturally expect to find true religion and self-abnegation side by side? If so, would not such an instinct, if left to itself, or, at the most, guided gently into the right channel, have produced more devoted and unworldly Christian workers?

The question has another side which must not be overlooked. Educated and trained men are needed for the pastorates, and such men are able to command a higher rate of pay in consequence of their training. Mr. Charlton's presence at home during the inquiries of the T.Y.E. Review Committee is opportune, and any practical counsels tending to solve these and other difficulties will be welcomed. The Church Council met as usual twice in the year, once at Chupra and once at Krishnagar. Among the subjects discussed were the marriage age of girls, the improvement of the daily Church services, the advancement of the educated portion of the community, and how to improve the condition of the agricultural class. A Committee of Nadiya pastors was established in October last, to meet every fourth month in different parishes. The Rev. Dwarka Nath Sircar mentions a catechist who gave up his salary and elected to depend on the voluntary offerings of the people. Nearly all the pastors speak of the scarcity, and some mention that it is being utilized by Romish priests. The Rev. Koilash Chunder Dey, of Bollobhpur, says that the village is growing so large that there is great want of land for cultivation, and he is helping some of the people to start a new village between Ratnapur and Kapasdanga. The usual Christian mela was held in January last at Chupra. Mr. B. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, the Rev. Ihsan Ullah, of Narowal, and the Rev. M. N. Bose, of Gopalgunge, took part in the devotional and evangelistic services. Mr. Charlton has been succeeded on his return home on furlough by the Rev. E. T. Butler.

Church Council Meetings.

The Rev. F. B. Gwinn (now at home), after his return from a lengthened visit to the hills, engaged in itineration in the winter of 1896–7. He noticed a change for the better in the attitude of the people towards Christianity:—

> The educated Hindus now raise little opposition, and seldom attempt to defend Hinduism as it is believed and practised by the few orthodox members of the community met with in each village. We have always been listened to with attention and respect, and frequently on leaving a village been presented with sweets and the juice of the date-palm. In other villages Mohammedans have told us that their maulavis no longer forbid them to eat with Christians, as Christians are "the people of the Book."

Hinduism not defended.

His use of the lantern led to a singular misconception. He wrote:—

> In one village I had to spend a considerable part of one evening explaining the magic-lantern itself, as an impression had got abroad that I was a worker of wonders and produced the pictures in the dark by some mysterious power of my own. I afterwards discovered that one of our preachers, who is proud of a smattering of English, had, in inviting some similarly "educated" Hindus to our evening meeting, stated that I had come to show them pictures which he would explain to them, while I would act as "magician." Hence the wrong impression arose. Our Bengalis are very fond of mixing English words with their vernacular in speaking to their educated neighbours, and our preacher, forming his word on the analogy of such words as "physician" and "musician," had assumed that one who exhibited a magic lantern must be a "magician," and referred to me as such. The mistake did no more harm than secure us a very large audience that evening, and we sold more copies of the Gospel in that particular village than in any other.

Making Bollobhpur his headquarters, the Rev. A. Le Feuvre spent the cold season of 1895–6 in itineration. He mentions Christian villages which make no attempt to evangelize the Heathen within easy reach of them, and of other villages where no independent Christian or even C.M.S. schoolmaster came out to join in voluntary work among the Heathen. On the other hand, he met with some noble instances of devotion. The first is that of a boy :—

A Brahman boy refuses to worship Kali.

The school at Bethberiya was remarkable for the intelligent interest in spiritual things shown by the Hindu boys, and the true love for Christ manifested by some of them. One, a young delicately-built Brahman boy, had been thrashed by his elder brother till he fell exhausted because he refused to bow before the image of Kali, and that boy's bright, happy face and hunger after the things concerning his Saviour showed what the grace of God could do in spite of awful obstacles.

The second is a very bright example of zeal for Christ :—

A bright example of zeal.

Kedar Nath Biswas became a true believer in and follower of Christ nearly seventeen years ago, and from that time to his death he lived so consistently, and brought up his boys so faithfully among the Heathen, that both his Hindu neighbours and his European employer had nothing but good to say of him. The former said, "Kedar was a true Christian," and the latter's brother, after running down Christian converts generally, declared that he believed Kedar to be a true believer in Christ and a living Christian. His boys tell of how their father took them Sunday after Sunday to a village five miles off to shepherd a couple of families who were without a pastor, and for this service he sought and got nothing from man. He preached in bazaar and village for miles round his own house, taking his boys with him to sing, as they were all gifted with good voices. Kedar preached so earnestly to the Heathen in his master's employ that the latter had to offer him the choice of not preaching during working hours, or the "sack," and he chose the latter. With five boys to support he had to seek fresh work in which he could testify for his Master without hindrance, and with this end in view he went to Calcutta. There he contracted fever, came back, dysentery supervened, and when I arrived at his house I saw at once there was little hope of his recovery ; while his wife, through having to look after him and the two children at home, had got fever too, and was unable to move.

Kedar and his wife both died, and Mrittunjay, the elder son of Kedar, died later on of pneumonia. Of him Mr. Le Feuvre writes :—

A patient Christian lad.

All through those sad times in his own home not a word of complaint passed this boy's lips, and he commenced his letter telling me of his father's and mother's deaths with, "Praise God for His goodness in taking father and mother from all their trouble and pain to be with Him." All through his own trying illness, which made him utterly incapable of anything but mere existence, there was always a deep trust in Him Who does all things well, and Who makes all things work together for the good of them that love Him. And with all this deep faith and patience he was a thorough boy, yet a boy always glad to do what he could for others.

The North Nadiya band of Associated Evangelists suffered the loss of their leader, the Rev. A. G. Lockett, in the spring of 1896. He was struck down with fever and taken to the General Hospital at Calcutta, but his health did not improve and he was ordered home. Previous to this the band had itinerated during the cold weather of 1895–6. Mr. Lockett took charge of the west camp, working villages along the south border of the district, while the Rev. R. B. Marriott and Mr. E. T. Noakes itinerated in the east. Holy Week of 1896 was spent, as was that of 1895, in a gathering of Bengali helpers at Santirajpur for spiritual refreshing. The Rev. and Mrs. I. W. Charlton joined them, as also did Miss Adams, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who addressed the Christian women. The meetings were followed up by Bible-readings for the men. Great blessing resulted, to which all the missionaries testify. The native brethren were happier in their work, more prayerful and earnest, and went forth with quickened hope to preach the Word. Another result followed in the baptism of a Mussulman convert at Tetelberia, almost the last event before Mr. Lockett's illness. The Dispensary at Santirajpur received a valuable accession by the appointment of a qualified native doctor, Dr. Paulus. The value of this work is evident from the fact that there is not one fully qualified medical man within thirty miles.

Associated Evangelists.

Dispensary.

Mr. Marriott, while at Khushtia, received a challenge to a public controversy by a Mohammedan, who beat an ignominious retreat when his challenge was taken up:—

A Mussulman champion after challenging to a discussion retires.

About Christmas time a somewhat amusing incident occurred: a man who gave out that he was a Brahman convert to Mohammedanism paid a visit to one of the richest Mussulmans in the place, and challenged us to a public discussion with him. We agreed, only stipulating that the controversy should take place on a week-day; so it was arranged that it should take place on a certain Wednesday (December 18th), and Mr. Kennedy very kindly sent up Maulavi Hossen Ali from Calcutta to conduct the Christian side of the controversy; but when the Mussulman champion heard who was coming he found that he had a very special engagement which compelled him to leave Khushtia on the Tuesday, so he proceeded to summon a meeting of Mohammedans for Sunday, December 15th, and challenged the Christians to meet him then. Of course we did not go, and on the Tuesday the Mussulman took his departure by the same train by which Maulavi Hossen Ali arrived. Later on we found out that this Mussulman had been baptized by a former missionary in this district some years ago.

The Rev. H. Kitley, of the Calcutta Band, joined the evangelists in camp for the cold season of 1896–7. The Rev. A. G. Lockett bears grateful testimony to Miss Dawe's work at this season:—

Work among the women.

I must not pass from the mention of the winter work without a grateful recognition of our indebtedness to Miss Dawe (of the C.E.Z.M.S., Ratnapur), who once again arranged for a series of camps in our district, and with her fellow-helpers preached the Gospel to the women of upwards of 100 villages. It is difficult to speak warmly enough of the great value of this work among the women, nor do I know what we should do without the kind co-operation of our neighbours at Ratnapur. We are most thankful to God that by their means the women in our district are, at least in some measure, being evangelized, and invaluable aid rendered to our efforts among the men.

The scarcity of rain, felt in North Nadiya as elsewhere, caused great distress. It had, however, one very good effect—itineration could be commenced much earlier than usual. The Bengali preachers were out on October 20th. Mr. Kitley and Mr. Noakes were in one camp, and Mr. Marriott in the other. Later on Mr. Donne arrived, and took over the general charge of the band.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has, at Krishnagar, the Misses Collisson, Boileau, J. R. Richardson, Bristow, and M. Smith, with three assistant missionaries, besides twenty-three native helpers. At Bollobhpur and Ratnapur are the Misses Brown, Owles, M. Owles, F. and M. Leslie, Scott, and Miss Von Hiimpe, M.D., L.S.A., with one assistant missionary and seven native helpers. Miss Adams superintends the Widows' Training Class at Kapasdanga, assisted by Miss Simpson, one assistant, and three native helpers.

III. SANTALIA.

THE Rev. and Mrs. J. Brown came home in August, 1896, and the latter, as already mentioned in the introductory remarks at the head of the Mission, died in November. The Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Cullen and the Rev. F. Etheridge came home in April, 1897.

Taljhari. At TALJHARI a ten-days' Special Mission was conducted in August, 1896, by the Rev. G. M. Davies, Chaplain of Barrackpore, for the agents of the Santal Native Church Council, about sixty in number, which was productive of much blessing.

Pastorates The Rev. F. T. Cole, Chairman of the Church Council, reports the number of Christians in the several Pastorates as 2,835, a smaller number than that reported last year, the reduction being accounted for by unusual mortality, the exercise of discipline, and emigration. The people raised two-fifths of the total expense of the pastoral and evangelistic work of the districts. This approach to self-help is not all. Mr. Cole adds:—

> Besides raising two-fifths of the cost for maintaining public worship, we have raised a special fund for the support of "own own missionaries." The amount raised during the past year amounted to 346 rupees. It is the aim of each pastorate to have its own native missionary, and where they are not able to accomplish this, two pastorates join in supporting an agent to work specially among the Heathen.

There were sixty adult and 114 infant baptisms during the year, and the Bishop of Calcutta confirmed 246 candidates, including about twenty from Godda and Bhagaya. "It has been a source of great joy," writes Mr. Cole, "to see the earnestness of some of the candidates." "Train up the Christians from the very first to be independent" is, in Mr. Cole's opinion, the best answer to the T.Y.E. inquiries as to the best modes of operation. The Rev. Bhim Hansda, after receiving priest's orders, was placed in charge of the Chuchi Pastorate—357 Christians, divided into four congregations. The Rev. Sham Besra is in charge of Pandua, a colony from Taljhari, on the north of the Ganges. Two agents are at work on the Bhutan frontier, among the Garo, Mech, and Rajbousi tribes, their base of operations being Santalpur, a Santal Christian colony containing 657 souls, who have their own pastor, the Rev. Baijnath Murmu, and have also an "Own Missionary."

Boys' Boarding School.

The Boys' Boarding School is carried on under the Rev. J. Blaich, with the aim "chiefly to educate them for Christ and for Heaven." Mr. Blaich had the joy of baptizing nineteen boys and young men during the past year, and twenty others were under instruction. One case is described in detail :—

Boy converts.

Parbat is the nephew of a Pergannite, a Santal Government official in charge of thirty to forty villages. He was not long in the school when he expressed a wish to become a Christian. As is my custom, I kept him under instruction for more than six months, and at last sent him home to announce the fact of his conversion to his parents and his uncle. They, of course, opposed with might and main, and endeavoured by every means to keep him at home away from me. Yet he had the courage to forsake father and mother and relations and return to school. Letter after letter came asking him not to be baptized ; yea, the very day of his baptism his poor old grandmother came a long distance groaning and crying, asking him to return with her, and telling him that if he were baptized they would have to renounce him, and would regard him as dead. The Lord strengthened him to withstand all the pleadings and the threatenings. He and the twelve other boys who were baptized together were so full of joy that in the evening, after church, several Heathen boys gave in their names as catechumens, saying they were induced to do so by witnessing the great joy and happiness of those who were baptized.

Spiritual results are not reached at the expense of efficiency. The school has classes for Middle Vernacular, Upper Primary, Lower Primary (with Bengali and Hindu departments), for girls, for infants, and for training teachers to conduct Lower Primary schools. The Assistant-Inspector of Schools made the following entry in the log-book :—

"I was much pleased with what I saw. I think the Government grant-in-aid to the Mission for Santal education very well laid out, and the superintendent deserving of every congratulation on the results attained here."

The Hindi School, started two years ago for the sake of lads from the Bhagaya and Godda districts, is in great demand, and the numbers could easily be increased if there were accommodation for more. Only three out of thirteen teachers draw more than Rs. 6 per month.

On account of the sudden departure of the Rev. J. and Mrs. Brown, the Rev. F. T. and Mrs. Cole were asked to go to BARHAWA, where Mrs. Cole took up the oversight of the Girls' Boarding School.

Hiranpur. The Rev. D. M. Brown had the assistance of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jessop at HIRANPUR during the hot season, but the latter was moved at the beginning of 1897 to his old station, Godda. The presence of a second missionary enabled them both to make tours, of several days at a time, with the native preachers, after the itinerating season was over, right on into May. There is a small dispensary at Hiranpur, kept open when the missionary is not itinerating. About 1,000 persons attended for treatment in 1896. Of the attitude of the Santals Mr. Brown says:—

Opposition dying out. The general impression which is left by a tour throughout the district is that the nature of our message is now fairly understood; direct opposition is dying out, and the Christian teaching is almost everywhere admitted to be good. But while the occasional visits of the itinerating evangelist are helpful in temporarily reviving the attention of the Heathen to the Gospel call, definite results cannot reasonably be looked for except in those places where a resident preacher remains to follow up the work so begun.

Mr. Jessop gives a sanguine account of the district. Every village, he says, can be reached by a native evangelist, of whom a number are located all over the district.

Bhagaya. At BHAGAYA, the Rev. H. J. Jackson finds the medical knowledge acquired at Islington very useful. At his dispensary the average attendance is about twenty. There are 162 children in ten very simple schools. While there were some sad cases of backsliding, real progress was made. Nine adults and sixteen children were baptized, and thirteen were confirmed at Taljhari. Services are held every Sunday at the out-stations of Telgama, Haripur, and Bacha, though at the last-named place there is not yet a resident catechist. The Brahman mentioned in the last Annual Report is still an earnest student of the Bible, but does not show any sign of coming out for baptism. He is much opposed by his heathen relatives, who are anxious about him, seeing that he is being taught the Christian's Bible.

Godda. At GODDA the Revs. F. Etheridge and C. Hughesdon both suffered in health, the former severely. Mr. Etheridge was disabled with sunstroke in March, 1896, and was taken down to Calcutta, whence he was ordered to Darjeeling. He was allowed to return to work in September, but was ordered home, as already mentioned, in the spring. During his convalescence he made considerable progress with a dictionary of the Malto language which he is compiling. Before their breakdown both missionaries went out itinerating. The dryness of the season 1895–6, while it enabled them to start earlier, caused considerable difficulty about water, the only water to be had being in semi-stagnant pools, and "varied in colour from pale black to sickly grey."

The Pahari Boys' Boarding School did much better than in the previous year in the Government Examinations. As instruction, food, and clothing are provided at the expense of Government, the approach of famine naturally caused the applications for admission to be numerous. A village school for Pahari girls, started in 1895 as an experiment, has so far proved a success. Pahari Schools.

Mr. S. J. Jessop, who was at work at Godda before he went to Hiranpur, alludes to the baptism of two young men at Bhaswani, one of them formerly a heathen teacher in Government employ, and both the fruits of itinerant preaching:—

It was a most impressive time. The news had spread all round that these two young men were going to be baptized; numbers came to witness it. We walked from the tents to the tank singing in Santali, "Hold the Fort" and "Dare to be a Daniel." After the baptism both young men faithfully, though tremblingly, told the surrounding witnesses their reason for forsaking Heathenism; not that they might receive any worldly gain, but that their sins might be washed away by the precious blood of Christ, and that they may be faithful followers of Him Who died to save them. Impressive baptisms.

Mr. Jessop succeeded the Rev. F. Etheridge at Godda, on the latter coming home in the spring of 1897; he reminds the Committee that the Godda district, so thinly manned, contains 1,500 square miles.

BHAGALPUR.

The Rev. J. A. Cullen (now at home) had the companionship of the Rev. S. R. Morse during the first seven months of 1896. Mr. Morse held two services every Sunday for the English residents, who make up a congregation of about twenty, and opened a dispensary. After August, however, Mr. Cullen was again left alone, "to carry on evangelistic work, pastoral work, school work, Orphanage work, Leper Asylum work, chaplain's work (in Bhagalpur), with the charge of three out-stations (evangelistic and pastoral), distance respectively from Bhagalpur 34, 80, and 140 miles." It cannot be wondered at that it is still only sowing-time in Behar, even though the staff of native helpers has increased from three to twelve. However, one family was baptized, in the teeth of much opposition. Mr. Cullen wrote:— Bhagalpur

The Babu had been reading the Bible with me for some six or eight months, and his wife was being taught at the same time by the Zenana Mission ladies. From the first the man made a bold profession of Christ amongst his friends and acquaintances. This brought upon him a storm of persecution, and everything that could be done was done to prevent him from openly professing Christ in baptism. At last they succeeded in depriving him of his employment, and he was no longer able to support his family in Bhagalpur. I offered to help him in his difficulties, but he refused to let me do so, as he would not give his persecutors a chance of saying that he Baptism of a Babu and his wife.

was becoming a Christian for filthy lucre's sake. I feel sure his resolution was a wise one, although it obliged him to return to Calcutta before his baptism. Since going there, he, his wife and family have all been baptized by a missionary of the London Missionary Society. His was an intelligent faith. He took nothing for granted, but reasoned out the why and wherefore of every Christian doctrine; and while, of course, many things were beyond him, he was fascinated by the spirit of holiness which breathed forth from the teaching of Christ. He used to exclaim, "The sum of it all is holiness; it is so different from the spirit of Hinduism."

In addition, several inmates of the Leper Asylum, which now contains sixty-five lepers, were baptized.

The Rev. C. G. Mylrea went to Bhagalpur at the beginning of 1897, to take the place of the Rev. J. A. Cullen, during the latter's furlough.

The C.E.Z.M.S. have stations at Bhagalpur and Jamalpur. At the former are Misses Haitz, Daeuble, and Lawrence, with fourteen helpers; at the latter Misses Hall, and E. Chambers, with ten helpers. During the first four months of the year the Bhagalpur ladies visited 178 villages.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the North-West Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was stationed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Mirat was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Jabalpur, 1854; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Mandla (Gond Mission), 1879; and Kherwara (Bheel Mission), 1880. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened by T. V. French (late Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (late Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed out of the Diocese of Calcutta, the Bishop (the Right Rev. A. Clifford) having episcopal supervision over the whole of the North-West Provinces.

It has been already mentioned under "India" that the North-West and Central Provinces contain the area most severely affected by the famine of 1896–7. Sad evidence of its ravages will appear in the pages which immediately follow, as the stations are visited one by one, and the disinterested efforts made by the missionaries to render timely help will be noticed.

The aim of the Indian Government, deliberately adopted and fearlessly proclaimed, has been to take such measures as to avert the necessity of any single individual dying from actual starvation. Can the Church of Christ adopt any lower aim regarding the souls in these populous provinces, among whom there exists a grievous famine of the Word? Bishop Clifford has again and again sent appeals in behalf of the unevangelized millions within his diocese, and in the spring of 1896 he and a number of evangelistic missionaries, leaders of Associated Bands and others, labouring in Bengal, the North-West Provinces, and the Central Provinces, signed a renewed appeal, encouraged thereto by the news of the quickened interest of Christians in the homeland in the great work of the world's evangelization. They wrote:— Appeal for labourers.

We who have met together at Allahabad as representatives of evangelistic work in North India, and specially in the name of the Associated Bands, appeal to our brothers at home to join us in evangelizing the millions around us. The two dioceses of Calcutta and Lucknow contain a population of 120,000,000. Of this vast number at least 18,000,000 are found in districts for the evangelization of which the C.M.S. is responsible, and there are large districts in which not a man of any Society is witnessing for Christ. Eighteen millions in C.M.S. districts.

For the evangelization of these 18,000,000, forty-five C.M.S. missionaries are available, including the members of four Bands of Associated Evangelists. Two of the Bands are in towns (Calcutta and Lucknow), and two in country districts (Nadiya and the Gonds). They have been working for the last four or five years. What are they able to do? They reach all classes; the wealthy zemindar and humble field labourer, the English-speaking Babu, the ignorant aboriginal, the university student, the village schoolboy, the clerk, the shopkeeper, and the artisan. They are met with in the busy city and among the countless villages of country districts, living in tent, or boat, or native hut, proclaiming the Gospel in noisy markets, at the village grain-store, by the roadside, or at the head-man's house, to great and small, young and old, learned and simple, everywhere the one message, "Christ and Him crucified." Only a comparatively small number of people hear the Gospel. We have reckoned that each missionary with his native helpers may preach Jesus once to perhaps 20,000 people in a year. Suppose that a like number are reached indirectly, then our present evangelistic force of forty-five men may make the good news known in a year to 1,800,000 souls. It will take at least ten years for all those 18,000,000 for whom the C.M.S. is responsible in North India to hear the Gospel.

The Lord cometh! The hours of the brief working day are drawing in; the shadows fall. As you look for His coming, as you hope to gain His "Well done!" as you pray for the Kingdom, heed the cry of India's millions, and respond to His challenge, "Here am I, send me."

Reinforcements.

The party which arrived at the close of 1896 to reinforce the staff would appear very insignificant when compared on the spot with the extent of the need, but they formed a not inconsiderable proportion of the year's recruits that were available for distribution among all the Society's Missions the world over. They consisted of three ordained men, two laymen, and six ladies:—the Rev. Henry Bickersteth Durrant, B.A., Pembroke College, Cambridge, a son of Mrs. Durrant, of this Mission, who was accepted in 1893, and after a short course at Islington College was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of Exeter, his uncle, on Trinity Sunday, May 20th, 1894, after which he held for two years the curacy of St. Matthew's, East Stonehouse; the Revs. Albert Butterworth and Charles Cousens Petch, of Islington College, who were admitted to deacons' orders at St. Paul's Cathedral by the Bishop of London, on Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896; Mr. William Holloway and Mr. Thomas Law, sent out by the Victoria Association; Miss Annie Eliza Banks; Misses Emma Maud Beyts and Emily Mabel Featherstonhaugh Major, of The Willows; and Misses Emily Frances Bazeley, Eveline Alice Luce (daughter of the Rev. J. J. Luce, Vicar of St. Nicholas', Gloucester), and Jessie Elsie Puckle, of The Olives. In addition to the above, Miss Geraldine Letitia West was transferred to this Mission from the Punjab and Sindh Mission upon her return to India in October, 1896, after furlough. On the other hand, the Mission has lost the Rev. and Mrs. G. Litchfield, and the Rev. H. J. Peck, owing to their disconnexion on grounds of health. Mr. and Mrs. Litchfield left the Mission in 1895, and visited South Africa in the hope that the climate would fully restore Mrs. Litchfield and enable them both to return to India, but such has not been the result, and Mr. Litchfield has accepted the incumbency of Holy Trinity, Cape Town.

Deaths of Rev. Dr. C. Baumann,

Two heavy losses have also been inflicted through death. The Rev. Dr. Charles Baumann died on July 3rd, 1896, and the Rev. Brocklesby Davis on February 2nd, 1897—both at Benares. Dr. Baumann, whose father was in the service of the Gossner Mission, was born at Muzafferpur, North India. He was educated in Germany, and in 1867 graduated Doctor of Philosophy. He entered Islington College in 1866, and was admitted to deacon's and priest's orders by the Bishop of London in 1867 and 1868, and in the latter year he went to the Cathedral Mission College, Calcutta, as Professor, and subsequently engaged in evangelistic labours. He was afterwards Principal of the Christian Boys' Boarding School, Convener of the Committee of Revision of the Bengali Bible, and assisted in revising the Bengali translation of the Prayer Book, &c. &c. From 1874 to 1887 Dr. Baumann was secretary of the Calcutta C.M.S. Association. When he returned to India after a long and severe illness, in 1892, he was forbidden to remain in the damp climate of Bengal, and was therefore transferred to Benares. He grappled with the difficulties of a new people and a new language, in which his great linguistic powers stood him in good stead. His chief work was the charge of the out-stations, Azamgarh, Jaunpur, Chunar, and Gharwah. He started a small dispensary in his own house and a bookshop in the city, and, as before in Calcutta, was wonderfully successful in attracting the Natives to himself. His death resulted from a chill through getting wet when returning from his monthly visit to Azamgarh. In his last semi-conscious moments he was engaged in his loved work of sermon preparation. His body lies in the graveyard near his father's grave, both alike waiting for the coming of the Master Whom they served.

and Rev. Brocklesby Davis.

Mr. Davis was a scholar of Peterhouse College, Cambridge, and took his degree as 21st Wrangler in 1849, being also placed in the Third Class in the Classical Tripos. He was shortly afterwards elected Fellow of his College, and was ordained on his Fellowship in 1850. In 1855 he became curate to Canon Patteson at Spitalfields, and worked there till he offered to the Society in 1859. His chief work was as an educational missionary. From 1859 to 1879 he was stationed at Allahabad as Principal of the High School; and from 1879 till the time of his death he was Principal of Jay Narayan's School at Benares. In both places he carried on the work with great ability and in a true missionary spirit, and won the love and esteem of his pupils. But he was also diligent in evangelistic preaching in the bazaars and villages; in fact, it was in this service that he met with his death, which followed upon a chill taken in camp when he was on a preaching tour among the villages round Benares. He was the first chairman of the N.-W.P. Church Council, and for nine years presided over the deliberations of that body and guided it through its early difficulties. The Rev. G. B. Durrant wrote of him:—

> To those who knew him intimately the words that will most readily occur as best describing his life and work are those from Holy Scripture: "Faithful unto death." Faithfulness to duty, loyalty to principle, a fixed determination not to be moved by any influence, however attractive and plausible, from what he believed to be true; a life of incessant labour in preaching and teaching—these were the most marked features of Mr. Davis' character, and will, I think, be recognized as such by all who knew him. He will be remembered by his brother missionaries especially, perhaps, as one who was loyal to the "old paths." "Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest unto your souls," is a text which to many of us will always recall the prevailing tone of Mr. Davis' mind. It amounted with him almost to a dread of what was new. As a worker he was simply indefatigable.

Loyal to the "old paths."

Deaths of Mrs. R. M. Lamb,

The widow of a former missionary—the Rev. Richard Martindale Lamb, a graduate of Trinity College, Cambridge, who gave up the vicarage of Holy Trinity, Over-Darwen, Lancashire, in 1846, and went out with his wife to Mirat, where he laboured eleven years, and was killed by a fall from a horse at Mussourie in 1857, the year of the Mutiny—died in London on December 3rd, 1896.

and Rev. J. Richard.

One of the native clergymen of this Mission, the Rev. J. Richard, pastor of Annfield, Dehra Dun, died on July 22nd, 1896. He was admitted to deacon's orders by Bishop Milman in 1874, and to priest's orders in 1879.

Missionary Conference.

The Missionary Conference met at Agra on November 3rd to 6th. A "Quiet Day" was conducted by the Rev. W. G. Peel, of Bombay, who based his three addresses on Gal. ii. 20. The late Rev. B. Davis presided at the sessions of the conference, and the subjects dealt with included: Temperance work among Indian Congregations; The Centenary of the Society—how to mark it; A Provident Fund for Agents; Establishment of a Missionary Institute for Bible-women; A Scheme for working Rural Missions; Work among Children; Recommendations about the impending Famine; Literary Work. The Conference was brought to a close by an English lecture on the "Hindu Doctrine of Merit," by the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper.

Church Council Meetings.

At the end of the following month, on December 28th to 30th, the Annual Church Council of the North-West and Central Provinces met at Muirabad, when thirty delegates from fourteen stations assembled. Canon Lester, who paid a cold-season visit to the N.-W. Provinces as a Special Missioner at the invitation of Bishop Clifford, conducted the "Quiet Day" service, his subject being "Growth in Spiritual Life." The Bishop of Lucknow presided at the concluding meeting, when papers were read on "The Ideal Pastor," "Funeral Reforms," and "Systematic Almsgiving."

I. NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

THE formation of the Indian Christian Association, North-West Provinces and Oudh, was mentioned in the Annual Report of 1894-95 (page 123). Under its auspices it is claimed that the "First Exhibition of Indian Christian Art and Industry" was held at Cawnpore on December 27th and 28th, 1895. It was held under a large tent pitched in front of the Christ Church College Hall connected with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel. The Bishop of Lucknow opened the Exhibition, and remarked regarding the exhibits of women's work that "there was not another native community whence such works of art and beauty could emanate." The exhibits were 537 in number, and included painting, photography, drawing and calligraphy, sculpture, tailoring and dressmaking, fancy needlework, &c., carpentry, ironsmiths' work, goldsmiths' work, book-binding, harness, carpets, boots and shoes. The bulk of the exhibits were from Mangalore, Lucknow, Cawnpore, Allahabad, and Mirzapur, but Lahore in the Punjab, Palamcotta in Tinnevelly, Cottayam in Travancore, and other equally distant places were represented. Three silver medals were awarded: one to the S.P.G. Industrial School, Calcutta, for carpentry; one to the C.M.S. Press at Lucknow, for printing; and one to the Basle Mission Weaving Establishment at Mangalore, for weaving. Among the winners of the money prizes were the S.P.G. Industrial School, Delhi, for leather work, which the committee declared to be "a beautiful piece of work, worthy of the best West End shops"; the C.M.S. Secundra Orphanage, for book-binding, of which the committee remarked: "Binding exceedingly good, and sewing also. Finish and gilding very good"; the C.M.S. Orphanage, Gorakhpur, which obtained several prizes for net-work, crochet-work, embroidery, crewel-work, &c.; the C.M.S. Normal School, Benares, which also obtained several prizes; and the C.M.S. High School, Agra. Exhibition of Indian Christian Art and Industry.

Mr. H. Bennett came home (invalided) in July, 1896, the Rev. W. B. Collins in December, and the Rev. W. G. Proctor and Mr. R. Baker in March, 1897. The Rev. and Mrs. W. Newby Fraser, of the New South Wales Association, went to Sydney under doctor's orders in February, 1897. Miss Stratton and Mrs. Johnson have also come home. Mrs. J. W. Hall returned to the Mission in October, 1896. The Rev. H. W. V. Birney was married in November to Miss Sarah Ethel Smith, of the Zenana Bible and Medical Mission.

ALLAHABAD.

The Rev. J. A. F. Warren, as mentioned in the last Report, was temporarily transferred to ALLAHABAD from Jabalpur to take charge of the Divinity School. The teaching, however, is done in Urdu alone, and not in English, so that Mr. Warren was unable to undertake much of the work, and eventually, no one qualified to take the position being forthcoming, the school was closed. It was an extreme measure, only resorted to under the Allahabad Divinity School.

pressure of absolute necessity. Mr. Warren's removal to Allahabad had at least the advantage of postponing the closure for six months. The work at Holy Trinity Church prospers under the hands of the Rev. T. Russell, the aggregate attendance of communicants having risen from 1,087 in 1893–94 to 1,248 in 1895–96, and the offertories from Rs. 1,244 to Rs. 2,309. Bible-classes, a day-school, a Gleaners' Union, and other organizations have been set on foot. The Incumbent of Holy Trinity is also chaplain of the Civil Hospital and Naini Jail. The Hindustani Congregation was ministered to by the Rev. W. Newby Fraser, who also engaged in itineration. In the winter of 1895–96, when itinerating in the Bharwari district, Mr. Newby Fraser met with a characteristic specimen of Mussulman formalism :—

A blind Hafiz interested in the Gospel.

A blind Hafiz (one who knows the Koran by heart) became very interested in the Gospel, and frequently visited our camp at night to discuss religion with the catechists. He was very proud of his knowledge of the Koran, which he could repeat "parrot-fashion" from beginning to end, but without knowing the meaning of a single word he uttered. It was certainly a wonderful feat of memory and a sad illustration of the formality of Mohammedanism. This man always made a point of being present at our meetings in the bazaar, when he paid great attention to what was said.

At a very out-of-the-way place called Manjhanpur much interest was manifested. Mr. Newby Fraser wrote :—

Varied receptions experienced by itinerants.

It was wonderful to see the expression of interest that marked the faces of the people. Questions were asked by several, and before leaving they invited us to go again, and, if possible, send a preacher to live there. The apparent good-will of the people towards us was the more remarkable from the fact that Manjhanpur is a Mohammedan stronghold.

On the other hand, at Chail, near Manaori, the party were stoned out of the place, and at Maidapatti they could get no audiences at all. In April, 1896, Mrs. Fraser had an attack of small-pox, and Mr. Fraser's health began to fail. In December they were ordered to leave the country, and accordingly set sail for Sydney in the spring.

The Rev. S. Nihal Singh, besides bazaar preaching, writing Urdu tracts, revising the Urdu hymn-book, superintending schools, and so forth, itinerated in 142 villages in the Jhansi Pargannah, and preached to about 16,000 souls, an average of about 118 souls per village. "But what," he justly asks, "is this in a village in which five or six thousand souls live?" One interesting piece of work was the service held for the drummers of the 5th Bengal Native Infantry, who were nearly all Christians, and preaching in the regimental bazaar. When the regiment was transferred to Calcutta, the commander of its successor refused to allow the work to be carried on.

The Work of the Z.B.M.M. in Allahabad consists of zenana visiting, schools, village work, and the Converts' Training Home; the missionaries being Miss Fallon, Miss Paterson, Miss Wright, and Miss Tulloch, BENARES.

The deaths of the Rev. Dr. C. Baumann and the Rev. Brocklesby Davis, of BENARES, have been referred to in the introductory notes to this Mission. It is a long time since such a blow has fallen upon any station as the death of two veteran missionaries in one year. Mr. Davis' last Annual Letter stated that six boys of the Jay Narayan's School passed the Allahabad Entrance Examination, two the Prayya Sanscrit Examination of the Lahore University (one of whom headed the list), and three gained prizes in the Scripture Scholarship Examination. There were four adult and twenty-nine infant baptisms during the year. Miss Davis was in charge of the village school at Tulsipur, and a high-caste school in the city, besides superintending the Bible-woman, with whom she frequently visited melas attended by women on the banks of the Ganges. The Rev. J. J. Johnson, in addition to the Hindi Services in the city, and the Work among the Pandits, for which he was already responsible, took charge temporarily of the school after Mr. Davis' decease, and also took over the superintendence of the work at Chunar, Ahroura, and Gharwah; while the out-stations of Azamgarh and Jaunpur were placed under the Rev. J. S. Gray, transferred from Secundra after Dr. Baumann's death.

Benares.

Jay Narayan's School.

Miss A. H. R. Bull is in charge of the Girls' Orphanage. In May a case of small-pox occurred among the children, and three weeks afterwards Miss Bull was herself attacked and was laid aside for more than three months, during which Mrs. Barr and Miss Lorbeer, of the Z.B.M.M., and Miss Honiss (now the wife of the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, of Masulipatam), carried on the work. A recent admission to the Orphanage was that of "a queer, weird-looking little Albino Indian baby, with the unmistakable features of a Native, but with pink eyes and perfectly white skin." Miss Bull says:—

Girls' Orphanage.

> At first, owing to her having been fed with opium, I did not think she would ever be anything better than an idiot, but she is getting on splendidly, and developing too in a most wonderful way.

On account of the famine the number of inmates in the Orphanage considerably increased, and a new wing had to be built. In November Misses Luce and Puckle went to Benares to learn the language, and Miss Beyts, who is definitely assigned to the Orphanage, arrived in December.

The Z.B.M.M. Mission in Benares is a strong one. In the city itself, Miss Johnson-Smyth, Miss Matthews, and Miss Brett are engaged in zenana and school work; Mrs. Barr, Miss Leetch, and Miss Sturges being similarly engaged at Sigra. The Victoria Hospital and dispensaries were under the charge of Miss Pailthorpe, Miss Game, Miss McDowell, and Miss Bowesman.

GORAKHPUR.

Gorakhpur. The spiritual destitution of the great district of GORAKHPUR, with five million souls, cannot be too often reiterated. The Rev. J. P. Ellwood writes: "There are hundreds of villages where the Gospel has never been preached."

Schools. The High School, under the Rev. T. F. Robathan, passed six out of fourteen in the Matriculation examination for Allahabad University, and eleven out of nineteen in the Middle Anglo-vernacular. All the Christians who went up passed. The Alinagar Middle School suffered from the competition of a rival Mohammedan school, but Mr. Robathan does not anticipate that the opposition can hold its own long. The Swinton Memorial School has improved. A new Primary Vernacular School was opened in August in a part of the city called Purdalpur, and another in December in Old Gorakhpur, making five in all. The work of the Printing Press has been placed under a Christian foreman, and it proves useful as affording an industrial training.

Mr. Ellwood wrote in January, 1897, regarding the measures he had been led to adopt for the relief of sufferers from the famine:—

Famine relief. We are now feeding 250 children, and several of the children who have lost their parents during the famine we have taken charge of altogether. It soon came to our knowledge that their parents too were famishing, and it behoved us to do something for them also. A large number of the people are now employed in repairing our roads, and the weak ones too are fed daily. All our staff is employed in looking after the poor, the weak, and little ones, and daily instruction is given in the Word of God.

Orphanages. There are three Orphanages in the Gorakhpur district, two for boys, both industrial, and one for girls, and three purely Christian schools, which are doing well. Two new catechists were sent into the Basti district. "Our one hope now for the Basti Mission," writes Mr. Ellwood, "is the presence of the female Band of Evangelists," namely, of the Z.B.M.M., who, it is proposed, will camp out during the cold weather, and in the hot season live at Basharatpur.

LUCKNOW AND FAIZABAD.

Lucknow. The Rev. A. W. Baumann is Chairman of the Native Church Council, residing at LUCKNOW. He went to Naini Tal in May for his health, but soon developed enteric fever there, and was not able to return to his work until the middle of September. The Normal School. Rev. A. I. Birkett has charge of the Normal School. In 1896, five out of fourteen candidates from the Normal School passed the Allahabad University Entrance Examination; five out of nineteen the English Middle. In the Scripture examination conducted by the Missionary Educational Union, one boy won a prize, and three others earned certificates of merit. The average attendance went up from 126 to 146. One lad, who passed the English Middle, was taken away by his parents to Allahabad, but after a while left his home, came back to Lucknow, and was baptized.

The Associated Evangelists' Band was strengthened by the addition of Mr. Hamilton Blackwood. On the other hand, Mr. R. Baker was temporarily transferred in May, 1896, to the Gond band, returning to Lucknow in August; he had subsequently to come home. Mr. Harrison was able to spend three months in the summer in one or other of the rest-houses erected in 1895, as mentioned last year. In the previous cold season he worked about fifty villages, in most of which, he says, the Gospel had been preached at least once, yet the majority of the people were conscious of nothing more than that they had heard the name "Yeshu Masih." While in the rest-house at Nigohan Mr. Harrison tried the effect of giving away a little medicine, and found that made a great difference to the manner of his reception in the villages. The Rev. E. A. Hensley tells how he met with a blind convert:— Associated Evangelists.

We were preaching one morning in one of our preaching-places in Lucknow, and I noticed that two blind men had been for some time listening, and when I had finished my "talk" to the people, the blind men edged towards where I was standing, and at last summoned up courage to speak. "Sahib," said they, "we have got an inquirer for you." "An inquirer," said I, "what do you mean?" "Yes, an inquirer," they answered; "he is quite pakka" (lit. "ripe"). "If that is so, then show him to me," I said, and with that, staffs in hand, they picked their way out of the crowd and took me towards a building. On my way I learnt that they were Christians, and that they belonged to the Government poor-house, and that one of their friends—a blind man—had learnt from them about Christ, and wanted to become a Christian too. At last we reached their part of the poor-house, and there I found myself in the company of six blind Christians. Two were married, their wives also being blind, and two were bachelors. They told me that they had been there for two or three years, and though often jeered at by Hindus and Mohammedans, they had been faithful to their Master and had witnessed before men as to who they were and Whom they served. Then they called for the blind inquirer, and when I asked him why he wished to become a Christian, his answer was that now for a year and a half he had believed in Jesus Christ as his Saviour. A blind convert in a poor-house.

This man, with two other converts, was baptized on July 19th.

The Ladies of the Z.B.M.M. working at Lucknow were Miss Marston, Miss Marshall, Miss A. Hill, Miss Boys, Miss Goodall, and Miss Hall, engaged in zenana visitation; Miss Wahl, assisted by Miss Brett and Miss Spackman, engaged in the Village Mission; and Dr. Jane Haskew, Dr. Jenkins, Dr. Cornall, Miss Sheldon, and Miss Borlase, were on the staff of the Lady Kinnaird Memorial Hospital. A new wing was added to the hospital during the year, raising its accommodation to fifty in-patients.

At FAIZABAD, the Rev. W. G. Proctor (now at home), reports Faizabad.

the baptism of a Brahman, a brother of one of the catechists, and his family :—

Baptism and death of a Brahman.

He was a very intelligent man, and showed a clear comprehension of the truths of Christianity, and evidences of a firm faith in Jesus as his Saviour. I had sent the whole family to their brother, who was residing in Sultanpur, to be further instructed before baptism, and soon after arriving there the elder brother was taken ill. Hopes of his recovery were confidently entertained at first, but he had a relapse, which ended fatally. Before he died he asked very urgently for baptism, and as it was not possible for me to arrive in time, his brother Prem Das, our catechist, baptized him. Miss Luce, of the Zenana Mission in Sultanpur, writing to tell me of his death, said: "He suffered a great deal, but was conscious to the end, and said several times, 'Main Prabhu par pura biswas rakhta hun' ('I put my whole trust in the Lord'). I feel quite happy about him, and am glad we had him baptized."

Mr. Proctor contrasts the amount of ground covered by itineration with the vast area untouched :—

One and a quarter millions of people, and only one missionary.

During this itineration we visited about 100 villages, and travelled between fifty and sixty miles, bringing us into touch with perhaps five or six thousand people; not, of course, that all these were preached to, but they probably heard of the Isailog (Christians) and what they had to say; but even so, how little has been accomplished when one remembers that in this district there are nearly one and a quarter millions of people, and only one missionary and his band of catechists to preach to them.

The Z.B.M.M. Workers were Misses Gault, Boys, A. Hill, and Morris stationed at Faizabad and Ajudhiya; and Miss E. Luce and Miss Reid at Sultanpur.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

Agra.

The Rev. J. P. Haythornthwaite, after having charge of St. Paul's English Church, AGRA, for nearly three years, reports :—

St. Paul's Church.

The congregation, offertories, and monthly subscriptions are all nearly double what they were in 1894. The total receipts for the year amount to Rs. 1686 : 8 : 9, of which Rs. 600 was given to missionary work in Agra and Secundra, and Rs. 170 to diocesan objects.

St. John's College.

Mr. Haythornthwaite, as Principal of St. John's College, had as fellow-labourers during the year, the Revs. J. M. Challis, J. M. Paterson, and H. W. V. Birney. All took part in the tuition, while also engaged in other duties. Mr. Birney left for Mirat in November. The average attendance at the College increased from 113 to 130, and at the Collegiate School from 395 to 404. Three non-Christian masters were replaced by Christians. The University Examination results, published in June, 1896, showed that two out of three passed the M.A. examination; three out of eight the B.A.; twenty-three out of forty-four the F.A. The two M.A.'s were third and fifth in order of merit, and one of the F.A. students was third on the list. Of the successful candidates, two of the B.A.'s and six of the F.A.'s were Christians. During the year a new block of ten class-rooms was added to the College, built from the designs and under the personal superintendence of Capt. Gibbon, R.E. (a son of Canon Gibbon), to whose care and energy the speedy and satisfactory erection of the building was largely due. The new rooms were used for the first time on October 1st, and were formally dedicated on November 2nd. The Commissioner of Agra presided on the occasion, and spoke in terms of high appreciation of the work of the College. The Rev. Dr. Hooper offered the dedicatory prayer, and the Rev. A. H. Wright sketched the history of the College, from personal knowledge, from 1864 to the present time. A portrait of Bishop French, the founder and first Principal, was presented during the year by Mrs. French, and was hung in the College Hall. A tablet also was erected in the portico to the memory of Situ Ram, the faithful Jemadar who served the College for forty-five years, and whose brave defence of it during the Mutiny has been often recorded.

Visit of Lieut.-Governor.

In February, 1896, the Lieut.-Governor, Sir Anthony McDonnell, visited the College with his staff, and expressed his sympathy with the moral and religious basis which underlies missionary educational work. The workers were cheered by many signs of spiritual advance.

Addresses to the students by Mr. J. R. Mott, and Canon Lester.

A stirring address by Mr. J. R. Mott, of the S.V.M.U., at the College in January, 1896, was followed by the Students' Convention at Lucknow in the following month, attended by twelve delegates from the College. In December, Canon Lester, who paid a cold-weather visit to India at the invitation of Bishop Clifford, in order to conduct Special Mission Services in the Diocese, delivered a course of four lectures to the 300 English-speaking students on the principles of natural and revealed religion, which made a deep impression, especially upon the non-Christians. Mr. Haythornthwaite writes:—

> I could not help feeling that if their minds and hearts had not been so well prepared by the daily Bible instruction, they would not have been able to follow such deep teaching so intelligently and with such evident appreciation.

Mr. Thomas, the Haileybury lecturer, delivered evidential lectures fortnightly in the vernacular. These alternated with English lectures by the Bishop of Lucknow, the Rev. I. W. Charlton, the Rev. Dr. Hooper, and others. A lecture on temperance was delivered to a crowded audience by Mr. W. S. Caine, ex-M.P., in December. More than 200 of the students are members of the Students' Temperance Association.

On November 6th a most animated controversy took place in the College Hall between Maulavi Mohammed Jehangir Khan, of Agra, and the blind Christian Maulavi, Hafiz Ahmad Masih (see last year's report, pages 196–7), of the Cambridge Delhi Mission. About 1,000 were present. The North India Gleaner observed:—

An impressive sight.

> It was an impressive sight to see the solitary Christian, and he blind too, standing fearlessly with only his one book, the Bible, to help him; while his adversaries had to employ some half-dozen servants to ostentatiously carry in and carry out the many ponderous tomes of Islamic writings with which they sought to impress the audience.

According to another account:—

He (Ahmad Masih) publicly stated how he had abused, struck, and torn the clothes of Christian padris in that very city of Agra, and the shame the recollection causes him now that he is a follower of Christ. He is a blind man, but possessed of a wonderful memory, and quoted both the Scriptures and the Koran with effect. Each spoke for fifteen minutes at a time, the conduct of the meeting being in the hands of the Rev. W. McLean, evangelistic missionary in Agra, supported by the Rev. W. Seetal. The subject on this occasion was a comparison of the life of Mohammed with that of Christ. Each speaker seemed to make his points from time to time, though the Mohammedan professed to find difficulty in accepting spiritual interpretation of such passages as Ezek. xxiii. and the Song of Solomon, which he adduced in support of his arguments. The discussion, though at times it verged on warmth, was, on the whole, carried on in very good part, and seemed to absorb its hearers, who remained throughout. For three and a half hours it went on, the sun setting and the moon rising to shed a picturesque lustre on the assembly, and the church in the background, itself a testimony to the rising power and dominion of the Son of God. The Christian had asked a question which Jehagir Khan had no desire to answer; again and again was he pressed to reply, but as often did he decline; the reiteration of the question grew almost comical, and the follower of Islam showed himself still more and more pressed, till, after stating that he rejected all his own most famous commentators, he retired, promising to appear again after a few days. His followers could not have been best pleased at this termination and at the turn things had taken; and while the handful of Christians present dispersed to their homes jubilant and with thankful hearts, the Mussulmans quickly departed in silence.

The Mussulmans departed in silence.

A lantern lecture by a male missionary in a Brahman's zenana.

Mr. Challis, besides taking his share in educational work, used his lantern in the schools, the college, the villages, and in private houses. He was twice invited to the house of a Brahman to show Scripture pictures even in the zenana itself, the ladies being allowed to see from an upper room through chicks, or gauze-like blinds.

The Christian Hostel was improved by the addition of a new wing, lavatories, cook-houses, and swimming-bath, which were in use throughout 1896. Owing to a slight raising of fees, however, the number of inmates fell to sixty-four. The charge for board and lodging amounts to Rs. 5 per month, more than the sons of the poorer catechists, padris, and cultivators can afford, but bursaries of the aggregate value of Rs. 120 per month are at the disposal of the Principal for the assistance of deserving cases. The Rev. J. M. Paterson, Superintendent of the Hostel, points out that many of the lads, although the children of Christian parents, need to experience a change of heart even as do many English lads. Ten of the pupils, he says, were converted in the two Missions held during the year. Active Christian work is encouraged. Mr. Paterson reports:—

We have an active Gleaners' Union Band in our Hostel, and the boys give well out of their slender store. We have a Voluntary Workers' Band, and every week the boys go out to two preaching-stations and preach in the bazaars, and occasionally in the villages. One Sunday-school for heathen children also is partly worked by our boys.

The Girls' High School was under the care of Miss S. E. Smith, of the Z.B.M.M., until her marriage to the Rev. H. W. V. Birney, in November. She was assisted by Miss K. E. Honiss (now Mrs. Clarke), and Miss V. H. Latham, of the New Zealand Association. Miss Honiss was called away to help in the Benares Girls' Orphanage during Miss Bull's illness, and had herself an attack of malarial fever. Miss Latham, whose health was not good, was invalided away for some months. Miss A. E. Banks arrived in November. Girls' High School.

The Rev. W. Seetal has been for twelve years the pastor of the Native Congregation. From October 11th–23rd a Special Mission was conducted by the Rev. I. W. Charlton, of Nadiya, and the Rev. Ihsan Ullah, of Narowal. There is good reason to believe that many were truly born again, while the spiritual life of many Christians was revived. The Rev. Aman Masih Levi, who seceded to the Church of Rome in the winter of 1894-95, after working for sixteen years as a native pastor in connexion with the C.M.S., on July 12th made public confession of his grievous fall, gave up his crucifix, rosaries, and books, and was formally re-admitted to communion. Dr. Hooper says of him:— Native congregation. Special Mission conducted by a European and a native clergyman

He admitted that personal pique had much to do with his perversion, but left on my mind the impression that there was, along with this, more of honest mistake than I thought at the time. For he told me (a) that what he had read of Roman Catholic books had made him think there was more devotion in that Church than in ours; but when he entered it he found hardly anything but empty ceremonial. And (b) that he had been assured that the Roman Church honoured Christ more than Protestants did; but when he became a Roman he found Christ practically nowhere, and the Virgin almost everywhere. A native pastor received back from the Church of Rome.

The Rev. W. McLean is in charge of the Evangelistic Work in Agra and its district. He regards the outlook as encouraging, and writes:—

There seems to be a spirit of unrest amongst educated Hindus, many of whom are disgusted with modern Hinduism, and feel they cannot remain longer in such a religion. This is an opportunity which should not be neglected; it depends now upon the Christian Church whether such are to drift away to the "Arya Samaj," or henceforth to bow at the shrine of infidelity, agnosticism, or the True God. Unrest among Hindus.

In his itineration all through the cold season Mr. McLean had with him twelve preachers and a colporteur. Twelve adults were baptized: a Hindu bairagi; three educated Mohammedans; and two Brahmans. Of one of these, a Brahman pundit named Masih Parshad, Mr. McLean says:—

His case is particularly interesting; he was on his way to Muttra (one of the sacred cities of the Hindus), when he met our preachers, one of whom gave him a Hindi tract, which he carefully read. I think it was "Dimak Baptism of a Brahman pundit Khagai," or, a "Hindu God eaten by White Ants." After a time he came to our tents and proved an earnest inquirer. He was taught daily for some time, and it soon became apparent that he was a man of intelligence and ability; in a short time he could repeat the Creed, Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments, and give a concise account of our Lord's life and work. He also seemed to clearly understand the Gospel plan of salvation, and very soon could explain it to others. He readily gave up his sacred thread, and allowed his chito, or bunch of hair worn on the top of the head, to be cut off. He now seems very bright, and is daily engaged in the study of the Bible, learning off by heart the Hundred Texts of the Irish Church Missions.

Two new schools for Chamars and sweepers were opened in the city.

Miss Bland, of the F.E.S., had charge of three girls' schools, two for Hindus and one for Mohammedans. These schools were established by Miss Ellwanger, who is still remembered. Miss Bland puts clearly the aim of the work:—

Our great aim is to make Christ known and His salvation, and it is very delightful to hear child after child answer to the question, "What did the Lord Jesus do?" "He died to save us." They are now learning over again in all the schools the story of His birth for "the great day"—their name for Christmas.

The Secundra Orphanage was under the care of the Rev. E. T. Pegg. Mr. Bennett had a bad attack of small-pox in June, 1896, and was ordered home at the end of that month. The Rev. J. S. Gray, in charge of the evangelistic work, went out into camp in the cold weather of 1895–96, and addressed audiences of 400 and 500, drawn together by the attraction of the lantern slides. After the Conference he was transferred to Benares, as already mentioned.

MUTTRA.

Muttra. The Rev. P. M. Zenker and his sister, Mrs. and Miss Durrant, and Miss Stratton (now at home), were reinforced at MUTTRA in November, 1896, by Miss E. M. F. Major and Miss E. F. Bazeley. Evangelistic work was carried on in Muttra and in the out-stations of Brindaban and Karaila, as also elsewhere in the district. A young Rajput, a Chauhan Thakur named Dori Singh, was baptized by the name of Dhirajwant Dharmm-Sevak, and was engaged as a colporteur by the Bible Society. Mr. Zenker mentions the visit of the Rajah of Shivpur Baroda to Muttra. For three months, in the cold season of 1895–96, the Rajah, who had made Mr. Zenker's acquaintance many years before, called upon him every few days, and allowed the Mission ladies to call on his mother and wives. Although hampered by the presence of the retinue and servants, Mr. Zenker was able to have much profitable conversation with the Rajah, to whom he gave three Hindi New Testaments for the use of himself and his family.

Miss Stratton supervised three Bible-women and six schools, and visited 35 zenanas. Mrs. Durrant had a house-class of twelve men and one woman, and started a school for the children of Christians. During part of the year she was able to gather a class of the elder lads of a High School in the town, under heathen management, who, for the sake of improving their English, were willing to go to her on Sunday mornings. She was hopeful about this class, and particularly about one lad, of whom she wrote:—

He formed habits of daily prayer and study of his English Bible, and there was an earnestness which could not be doubted in his tearful declaration, "I believe in your Jesus, I take Him for my Saviour, I want Him for my Friend." But, alas! his friends, after trying in vain to prevent his coming to be taught, got him off to Faizabad, where he seems to have been ill almost ever since. I much doubt if the illness arose from natural causes.

"I believe in your Jesus; I want Him for my Friend."

An anonymous letter to the managers of the High School put an end to this promising effort. In addition to learning the language, taking charge of two schools, and visiting in some of the homes, Miss E. B. Durrant had a class of native stablemen.

ALIGARH.

The Rev. A. E. Bowlby compares ALIGARH, and the three civil districts committed to him for evangelization, namely, Bulandshahr, Aligarh, and Etah, to the county of Yorkshire, to which they are about equal in area and population, and he says, "Think of Yorkshire with two clergy and a band of some twenty Scripture-readers and Bible-women!" Aligarh.

Mr. Bowlby itinerated in Bulandshahr district in January, February, and March, 1896, and in the two other districts in November and December. In the first-named district a Medical Mission at Bilaspur, supported previously independently of the Society (by Mrs. Lowe and the Skinner Estate), was transferred to the C.M.S. during the year. David, the medical catechist, is a trained but not certificated hospital assistant. Three thousand attendances were made, and some minor operations performed. There are three other out-stations. Mr. Bowlby is anxious to place an evangelist at a fifth town, Anupashahr, a large and important place of pilgrimage on the Ganges. In the Etah district a great change for the better came over the Native Christians at Soron, due especially to the influence of a new agent, namely, Arthur Solomon, and also his wife, who was placed there during the year. Mr. Bowlby purposed to hand over the work at Kasganj, which he had no means of improving, to the Methodists, but the Christians begged hard not to be transferred. In Hatthras there is a distinct movement towards Christianity. There are primary schools, mostly for Chamars, at Bulandshahr, Sikandrabad, Dehli Darwaza, Aligarh, Soron, and Kasganj. One of the baptisms mentioned by Mr. Bowlby was that of a Mohammedan Eurasian lady connected with the Delhi royal family. On the other hand, Mr. Bowlby says that there is more than one Eurasian in his district engaged in actively propagating Mohammedanism, and that such are constantly referred to as results of Mohammedan preaching, and as a set-off to Christian conversions.

MIRAT.

Mirat

The Rev. J. W. Hall, of MIRAT, conducts a monthly temperance paper in Roman Urdu, which is much appreciated, though not financially successful. In October, 1896, the Rev. I. W. Charlton, of Nadiya, conducted a Special Mission for the Native Congregation, which was attended by Methodists as well as the C.M.S. congregations, and was productive of much blessing. The Rev. D. Jeremy, after twenty-eight years' service as an ordained pastor, and some years previously as a catechist, has retired from active duty at the age of 75. The High School, under Mr. Har Saran Das, including two branch schools, contains 300 boys. Miss Stroelin, of the C.E.Z.M.S., superintended the Women's Work at Ghaziabad and Mirat until she was relieved in November by the return of Mrs. Hall, who was accompanied by Miss G. L. West, transferred to the N.-W.P. from the Punjab Mission, and Miss Jonathan, a native assistant who, while in England with Miss West, received training in midwifery. Miss West and Miss Jonathan are stationed at Ghaziabad, where the Society has a Middle English School, a Hindi Primary School, and a flourishing Girls' School.

The Evangelistic Work was chiefly under the direction of the Rev. W. B. Collins. He mentions opposition by paid agents of the Anjuman-i-Islam :—

> One man especially, who calls himself a Maulavi, but who is ignorant both of the contents of the Koran and the Bible, is paid Rs. 10 per month to disturb all Christian preachers, and to heap the foulest abuse upon our Lord and His followers. He usually plants himself upon a stool about three feet from the preacher and bawls as loudly as he can, at the same time distributing papers full of obscenity and blasphemy.

A profane opponent.

Besides ordinary itineration, the great melas at Nanchandi and Gurhmukteshwar were visited by all the Mission staff in force. There were eighteen baptisms during the year. The Rev. H. W. V. Birney joined the Mirat Mission after his marriage in November, and went out into camp.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Staff at Mirat consists of Miss Stroelin, Miss M. Hall, and Miss Cadman-Jones.

DEHRA DUN AND MUSSOURIE.

Dehra Dun.

The Rev. T. Carmichael, at DEHRA DUN, met the drought in the beginning of 1896 by a series of prayer-meetings :—

Prayer for rain.

> The heavens were like brass; the fields were dried up into dust. We betook ourselves to prayer. Three times a week we assembled for special prayer in the villages. We read passages from God's Word which showed why such chastisements are inflicted by our Heavenly Father, and the lesson they are intended to teach. Then we fell down before God and confessed our sins, specifying each sin which prevailed around, and asking some one particular person to confess one of the particular sins, so that each might be mentioned before God in turn. Then we asked God to pardon each particular sin, asking one of those present to plead for it, so that each one prevalent sin might be pleaded and prayed about in a similar manner.

After about a fortnight's continuous prayer, conducted on this plan, the rain began to fall, greatly to our joy and to the relief of all. It commenced one day suddenly, and rained for several days. A gentleman said to me, "This rain has saved the country!" We now changed our programme, and held meetings for praise, to thank and bless God for the relief he had given. But I was disappointed to find that, now the distress and anxiety were over, there was not that disposition, which we had hoped for, to continue in prayer, praising and blessing God.

The prayer-meetings were subsequently kept up as a means of reviving the spiritual life of the Native Christians. Later in the year much sickness was experienced, in the midst of which the Rev. John Richard, the native pastor, who had been connected with Annfield for nearly thirty years, died on July 22nd. He has been succeeded by the Rev. Yakub Ali. Mr. Carmichael enumerates among his encouragements that drunkenness has almost disappeared, that the habit of getting into debt has become less general, that the credit of Native Christians in the eyes of European employers has been greatly advanced, and that, in spite of the scarcity, the Native Christians have put into his hands Rs. 100 towards an iron roof to their church, besides their regular gifts to the Native Church Council. Mr. Carmichael paid a visit to Jaunsar, preaching to the Paharis. He has printed the Gospel of St. Matthew in the Jaunsari dialect, and has now been able to place a native catechist, Newton Qaisar, in this hill district. A Gahrwah Bible-woman is at work among her countrywomen in Dehra.

Signs of improvement.

The Rev. Dr. W. Hooper, who resides at MUSSOURIE, is still engaged upon the revision of the Hindi Old Testament. Both his colleagues, and especially Dr. Kellogg, were in poor health during the year, but in spite of this fact, good progress was made. The Pentateuch, Psalms, Proverbs, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Lamentations, and the Minor Prophets have now been printed. Dr. Hooper hopes that the whole may be completed in two years' time, but in view of his colleagues' health is not quite sanguine. Dr. Hooper was also engaged upon the Urdu New Testament and the Urdu Prayer-book, and he was permanent secretary of the Lahore and Lucknow Diocesan Committee for the latter translation, which concluded its labours in February, 1896. The Rev. W. and Mrs. Latham were ordered up to Mussourie on medical certificate in March, 1896, and there spent six and a half months in exceedingly promising work. Dr. Hooper says:—

Fruitful labours.

Fourteen have been confirmed and fifteen adults baptized; which last number does not include some among the children who were baptized with their parents, but themselves had a very intelligent apprehension of what they were doing. But these statistics give a very small idea of the excellent effect produced by the thoroughness with which Mr. and Mrs. Latham were able (through having nothing else to do) to shepherd the Native Christians and teach the inquirers and catechumens, daily mounting the hills and going down into the valleys to reach them and instruct them in little knots of two or three, or even singly (large meetings being impracticable here, except on rare occasions), entering into all their troubles, and difficulties, and misunderstandings, and spending hours with them in conversation at home. Add to this that the three native workers were by no means superseded, but supervised more than was ever possible before; and that a school for Christian children was set a-going, a thing impossible before for want of proper supervision. I am thankful to be able to mention that the teacher of this school, the daughter of the catechist, who had received her training at Sigra Normal School, has continued her daily labours since the Lathams left without pay.

Mr. Latham observes:—

Rebellion against the tyranny of caste.

Many more could have been baptized had we followed the custom of some other societies who baptize first and instruct after. In any case, however, many more have been instructed than have been baptized, and these, if not in the meantime baptized by others, will in all probability be baptized (D.V.) next year. Very many, also, who had been under instruction have withdrawn and joined Hindu sects of a liberal turn, such as are to be found now in India, so that the number baptized by us of the C.M.S. is but one indication of the general movement amongst the low castes. The movement itself cannot altogether be considered a genuine spiritual awakening of the masses, though it is that partly, while it is also a kind of rebellion against the tyranny of caste. Hence, because it is partly social, the greatest caution is needed to weed out those who have no spiritual aspirations and no desire to know the truth as it is in Jesus. The uniform request one hears from all is, "I want to be baptized." In some cases one finds there has been previous instruction of a kind, and some knowledge of what baptism means; in others there is just the great desire to escape from the degradation of a low caste and to rise above it if possible; in others even less worthy motives; but in all there is a decided intellectual awakening, and a capacity to grasp the truth readily.

The movement is chiefly confined to the sweepers, "on the whole," as Mr. Latham remarks, "the most intelligent of the low castes." Dr. Hooper urges that the work should be maintained by appointing a conscientious native pastor to spend his summers in Mussourie and his winters in Dehra.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA.

MRS. C. H. GILL came home in October, 1896, and the Rev. C. H. Gill in March, 1897.

JABALPUR.

Jabalpur. Congregation.

The Native Congregation at JABALPUR was for the greater part of the year without an ordained native pastor, but the Rev. Nemi

Solomon, who was a catechist in Jabalpur under Bishop Stuart in 1857–59, has been transferred thither from Aligarh. There were five baptisms during the year. Of one inquirer the Rev. C. H. Gill wrote:—

A Brahman inquirer, a former Mission school pupil.

He came here with his wife and family (it is always hopeful when a man brings his family too) just before Christmas, but I had been in communication with him since last April. He is a Native of Jaunpur, a Brahman of those parts, and studied both in our High School at Jaunpur and at Jay Narayan's College at Benares. He passed his entrance examination from the latter college. He was appointed some four years ago as headmaster of a Middle school in the territory of a native Rajah, some 100 miles from here on the railway. But he never forgot what he had learned at school. He wrote to me a letter saying: "I want to be baptized and to become a good Christian. I have perused the whole of your New Testament, and am perfectly convinced that Jesus Christ is our Saviour, and that He indeed died for sinners." When I asked him in my reply why he wished to change his faith, he answered in another letter: "I am a middled-aged Brahman and Pundit of Jaunpur city. I see in the Hindu Shastras that there are different ways stated for salvation. Many gods and munis had promised salvation, but I find none of them could fulfil the same; even their trying was in vain. In your Bible I find that Jesus Christ, by His mighty and marvellous work, is able to grant salvation, and He died for sinners. For these reasons I desire to change my faith and to come to the decision which I expressed to you."

Schools.

Mr. K. N. Basu, M.A., continues head-master of the High School, where the class-rooms erected in 1895 are of great service. Seven students passed the Allahabad University Matriculation, and fifteen the Provincial Middle School Examination. The Sadar Bazaar Middle School and seven vernacular schools held their own well, but the branch schools still meet in hired buildings not adapted for the work. Altogether there were 1,048 boys in the various schools, or nearly 40 per cent. of the native school-going boys in Jabalpur.

Mr. Gill's work in famine relief began in March, 1896, and continued until he left to come home. It afforded many opportunities for evangelistic effort. In the medical work he was for some months assisted by the Rev. S. R. Morse, from Bhagalpur. Mr. Gill wrote:—

Poor-house for starving villagers.

In July we determined to open a poor-house for the relief of the poor starving villagers, who were struggling in from their deserted homesteads and barren fields in the hope of finding bread in the city. It was frightful weather, rain pelting down every day. But we set to work and got forty or more grass huts erected, on beds of gravel which quickly dried, and there we welcomed the heterogeneous crowd of emaciated and despairing men, women, and children who poured in day by day. We fed them with diet suited to their condition, and told them daily of the Bread of Life and Saviour of the World. We believe that many of these poor people, touched by our human love, have learned about the Divine Love, and believe in their hearts; but so far only one has been baptized. Up to date some 850 famine people have been received and kept for periods varying from a month to six months; and one bright aspect of the whole effort is that it has been entirely supported by the European community in the station here. But the most sad item should not be omitted, namely, that out of the above number, some 120, or nearly 15 per cent., have died while under our care from the effects of former exhaustion, in spite of special diet and medical care. Mr. Morse has given much excellent help in this part of our work.

Famine relief was administered at Murwara by means of a Children's Poor-house. Mr. Gill wrote:—

A children's kitchen.

In March last we opened a children's kitchen at our out-station, Murwara, which has been well managed by Mr. Christchitt, our head catechist there. Daily throughout the year an average of 120 children were fed. Now we have opened a regular poor-house there for children only, and have already 163 on our rolls. Most of these are famine orphans. It is fearful to think of the number of formerly happy families now broken up for ever by the grim hand of this famine. All these children were once the darlings of fond mothers and the happy playmates of loving brothers and sisters. Now they are waifs and strays cast on the wide world, and all they know about their position in life is, "I've got no one to look after me." So we have taken them in. But to visit them is anything but a mournful affair. With heads shaved and little bodies washed, with new clothes and warm blankets and straw at night, and good meals twice a day, and, best of all, separated from the gruesome scenes in the bazaars and the depressing influences of the crowds of famine-stricken adults struggling for bread, the scene they present is one at once inspiring and pleasure-giving; they are too young to realize their woes, but they are not too young to laugh and be happy. And so God has given us their fresh and impressionable minds on which to write His laws.

Eighteen of the above children were sent to Secundra and six to Benares.

MANDLA AND MARPHA (GOND MISSION).

The famine commenced earlier, and was more severe in the Gond country than in any other part of India. As early as the close of 1895 great scarcity prevailed after three successive bad seasons, and cholera, the usual accompaniment of scarcity of water, ensued. In April, 1896, a catechist named Parmanand died while on a journey, by the roadside. Other victims followed, and chief among them the well-known Bhoi Baba, Paulus, the first convert from among the Gonds. The Rev. E. D. Price wrote:—

Death of the Bhoi Baba.

The day after our arrival at Marpha, our head catechist, Nainsukh, brought me word that the Bhoi Baba, the first Gond convert and our leading Christian, was ill at his village with cholera. I hastily put a few medicine-bottles in my pocket, and rode off to Banguar. I found the report only too true. Our catechist, Nainsukh, and I did all that possibly could be done for the dear old man, but it pleased our Heavenly Father to call him away, and he passed away the next day at mid-day, witnessing amidst all his pain to his heathen sons and sister who were present. His loss is mourned in all the villages round here, where he was so well known, and had so often preached Christ crucified.

Pitiful superstition.

The pitiful superstition of the people was shown by what happened about the same time at the village of Dhobini, near Marpha. Mr. Price wrote:—

One morning I gave orders forbidding the Marpha villagers to go to Dhobini, and those from there to come here; and to mark the place the respective villagers had not to pass, I took a yellow flag, which I set up on a long pole on the Dhobini path. The next morning this was torn down, and I went to Dhobini to inquire the reason. On the way we passed a number of little flags on sticks marking the spot where sacrifices had been performed to ward off the cholera epidemic. The priest of Dhobini was discovered wearing my little flag round his waist, and I found out that he considered it a valuable charm against cholera, and his reason for tearing the flag down was that the villagers had swept and driven out the demon goddess of cholera on her little cart, but that my flag had stopped her from going any further, consequently the cholera still raged at Dhobini. They were anxious to pass it on to Marpha. In the evening the Christians of Marpha all met together and besought our Heavenly Father that we might be spared, and also that rain might fall to stay the disease. Our prayers were answered: rain fell, and there was not a case of cholera in our village.

After the epidemic had died out, there still remained the famine. Although for some time it was officially known as "scarcity" only, the population was dying at the rate of 1 per cent. per month, or 120 in the thousand per annum. In August the death-rate rose to 140·3, and in September it was still higher. Very pathetic are some of the scenes described. Mr. Price wrote:— High mortality from famine.

I shall never forget the sights I saw from the railway train at the various stations I passed through on the way back to Mandla after the happy Conference time at Agra. At some stations scores of starving women and children fell down before the carriages imploring us for food. All down the train the passengers were giving out pice, and many of the Natives food; but the moans of those who had received nothing as the train passed out, and skeletons of boys and girls holding out their bony hands to us as we sped by, still haunt me. I can truly say, "The cry of the hungry I have heard," and never will it be forgotten. Affecting sights.

Of the rest-house at MANDLA, Mr. Price wrote:— Mandla.

The place was crowded with men, women, and children in a fearful condition—some dying, one dead, others just able to crawl. While I am writing I see there is a crowd of starvation cases outside the door waiting for food. If food is not given to them they will die, and they may die as it is. Starvation cases.

The Rev. H. J. Molony kept open a poor-house in Mandla for three months until November 30th, when he handed it over to the Deputy-Commissioner, who could conduct it on a larger scale with ampler means. After the latter date the missionaries turned their attention principally to the children. In February Mr. Price wrote from Mandla:—

We have here about 110 children to feed every day. With adults, the number to be fed is about 300, and families of starving children continue to arrive. Some of these poor people come to us with hardly any wearing apparel, and we have to clothe as well as to feed them. Grain is most difficult to get, and it is quite a problem how to feed the people all round. There is no hope for it, as far as I can see, but to import grain, but that is not easy 120 miles from a railway-station. As a last resource our catechist has gone to try and get some at a village some miles from here, where he has been told grain is to be had. If it is not to be had there we shall have to import some, or the people of Marpha will starve. There is no grain Over one hundred children fed daily. Grain difficult to procure.

round here except what we have got. Owing to the scarcity of grain we have to give rather short measure to the people we are feeding, else what we have would not hold out till the next supply arrives.

Marpha.

At MARPHA a relief centre was opened, where 534 persons received relief, and 3,851 seers of grain (a seer is about 2 lbs.) distributed. At Patpara an orphanage to hold 160 was built and a temporary leper asylum opened.

The work of the Mission, though naturally much hindered by the cholera and famine, was not stopped. The Rev. H. J. Molony mentions that when out in camp Mrs. Molony worked among the women:—

Work among village women.

Throughout the preaching season it was a great joy to me that my wife could sit down and teach the women while I preached to the men. Even the villagers easily fell in with this plan, and often there was much amusement as the women drove a stray man away from their congregation to listen to the "Saheb." In many villages Mrs. Molony spoke to very good numbers of women, and met with evidences of encouragement. At the fair also, with the help of our good Bible-woman, she held some nice women's meetings.

Two new rest-houses were opened in the district, making five with those at Patpara, Diuari, and Marpha. "This," says Mr. Molony, "gives us a connected line of outposts across the centre of the district, and will result in the more effectual evangelization of certain localities than could be effected by the ordinary plan of touring over a wide area." The Rev. E. D. Price was on tour in the beginning of 1896. At the outset he met with a Gond priest, of whom he wrote:—

A line of outposts.

A Gond medicine man.

The priest was kind enough to explain how he cured sick people. He takes his little drum and, sitting down by the sick man's side, begins to hum and drone until the enchanted evil spirit becomes, as it were, mesmerized and enters the priest's body. Then, of course, this latter would naturally fall ill unless the spirit were expelled, and this the priest accomplishes by dint of thrashing himself with a heavy and cruel chain which I saw.

Mr. Price went into the Native State of Rewah, in the whole of which there is not a single Christian worker. The people were suffering even then from scarcity. The country was infested with beggars, some of them very rich and masterful. In many villages they found three or four families of Brahmans who lived upon the people and kept them poor. One strange piece of superstition was the following:—

A strange superstition.

At one village we saw huge bare poles erected before many of the houses, and on asking what they were for we found out these marked the spots where portions of the 18th Puran had been read, and that these poles were actually married, with full ceremonial, to mango-trees and ponds.

Mr. Fryer estimated that on this tour he preached in 45 villages to 1,303 people, many of whom had never heard of Christ before. Soon after this Mr. Fryer had a severe attack of fever at Marpha, which laid him aside for some months. The illness brought out the faith of a Christian servant, of whom Mr. Fryer tells the following touching incidents :—

A simple-minded Christian.

At one time on recovering from delirium I found one of our Christian servants praying by my bedside for my recovery: it did me good to hear him pour out his soul to God. This same man one day was talking to an inquirer about Jesus and heaven (I was in another room at the time), and, pointing to our bungalow (which is made of bamboo walls and mudded over, and upon the walls we have a few R.T.S. Scripture pictures and some old Graphic pictures), he said to the inquirer: "Do you see this beautiful bungalow and these beautiful pictures?" "Yes," said the inquirer. "Well, then, heaven will be just like this," said my Christian servant. How agreeably surprised he will be when he gets there!

Mr. Baker, of the Lucknow Band, went to Marpha to keep Mr. Price company during Mr. Fryer's illness. Together they made tours in the rainy season to endeavour to get grain for the starving Gonds.

KHERWARA (BHEEL MISSION).

Kherwara.

In January, 1896, the Rev. E. P. Herbert was asked to go from Mandla to the Bheel Mission, while the Rev. C. S. Thompson came home for a much-needed furlough. Although KHERWARA is the next link in the chain of C.M.S. Missions across India, it is 360 miles from Jabalpur as the crow flies, and to reach it Mr. Herbert had to travel 250 miles towards Bombay, then across the Nerbudda and 250 miles north to Chitor, thence to Udaipur, from which there is a journey of fifty miles by road.

Dispensary.

The school at Kherwara is still small, for the Bheels do not yet value education, but the simple dispensary, where "cleanliness, carbolic, and simple ointment work wonders," draws sometimes as many as 120 patients a day. Pema and Teza (the latter a son of old Suka, the first convert) have been kindly taught by Dr. James Shepherd, of the United Presbyterians at Udaipur, to make up ointments and perform similar duties. Mr. Herbert says :—

I wish you could see Pema in the verandah of the dispensary with the sick round him and his face lit up as he preaches the Gospel, and hear his kindly words as he tends their ulcerated limbs, and cheerfully does for Christ's sake what would otherwise be loathsome.

The church was built by the British officers of the Bheel Corps and their friends, and is being repaired by them. The out-stations lie in a semicircle twenty or thirty miles away. Kotra, where the Rev. H. Mould was for the greater part of the year, is fifty miles away. Here three companies of the Bheel Corps were stationed, and Mr. Mould and Sutya Das had access to the regimental bazaar besides their ordinary preaching. Other out-stations are Bilaria, twenty miles east, on the border of the Idar State; Ghoradar and Sarsau, ten and fifteen miles north of Bilaria; Baulia, twelve miles south of the same place; and Lusaria, fifteen miles further on. At each place there is a school, a master's house, a well in the compound, or near it, and accommodation for a missionary, so that he could stay for months at a time right among the people, keeping up communications with Kherwara by means of Bheel runners. Four of these schools and rest-houses have been built by chiefs, who also pay for masters and monitors. One of these is the Maharaja of Idar, Sir Kesri Singh, who supports the work liberally. The brother-in-law of the Maharaja visited the school at Baulia and distributed prizes. The Bheel headmen of Bokla, in the Dungarpur State, begged for a school, and a master has been transferred from Kalbay. With the express sanction of the Bishop of Calcutta, eight adults have been admitted to the Lord's Table, though not yet confirmed.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Mûltan, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Kashmir, 1863; Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Pind Dadan Khan, 1876; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the late Rev. T. V. French. Mr. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where a Mission to the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a Medical Mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially during the famine in 1880, and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. McLeod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hydrabad (1856), and more recently (1887) at Sukkur, on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, the veteran C.M.S. Missionary, being the first Bishop. On his retirement in 1887, the present Bishop, Dr. Matthew, succeeded.

New Lieut.-Governor

THE appointment of Mr. W. Mackworth Young, C.S.I., as Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab caused much satisfaction to the Society's missionaries. Before he became Resident in Mysore he was a member of the Punjab Corresponding Committee. His important speech at the Anniversary of the Simla C.M. Association in August, 1895, was referred to in last year's Report (page 161). Mr. Mackworth Young commenced his labours in his new office in March, 1897.

The following are the members of the Corresponding Committee:—The Bishop of Lahore, Colonels J. E. Broadbent, J. B. Hutchinson, J. A. L. Montgomery, G. Marshall, and W. W. Marriott Smith; Messrs. C. F. Elliott, W. B. Harrington, J. Harvey, and J. Sim; and Revs. W. Thwaites, Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, T. R. Wade, and R. Clark, secretary.

Scarcity and high price of food.

The pressure of high prices in consequence of the famine has been severely felt in the Punjab, but in other respects the sufferings of the people have been much less severe than in parts of the North-West Provinces. The Bishop of Lahore set apart November 25th, 1896, as a special day for humiliation and prayer for rain. Mainly on account of the famine the Bishop gave up his intention of coming to England for the Lambeth Conference, not wishing to leave his diocese at such a time.

Ordinations.

The Bishop admitted the Revs. A. C. Clarke and Mulaim-uddin to priests' orders at Lahore Cathedral on December 20th, 1896.

Reinforcements. The reinforcements to the Mission consisted of the following:—the Rev. Clifford Douglas Fothergill, M.A., Queen's College, and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of Christ Church, Ware—of which parish the Rev. A. Oates, a valued member of the Committee, is Incumbent—and Mrs. Fothergill; the Rev. Arthur Harold Storrs, B.A., Emmanuel College, Cambridge, assistant chaplain of Missions to Seamen, nephew of three former C.M.S. missionaries (the Revs. C. E. Storrs, Vicar of Snaith, T. Storrs, Headmaster of Doncaster Grammar School, and W. T. Storrs, Vicar of Sandown, Isle of Wight), and cousin of the Rev. A. N. C. Storrs, of the Tinnevelly Mission; Mr. A. H. Browne, M.B. and C.M., Glasgow, John Hunter Medallist in Clinical Surgery, &c., &c.—who offered in 1895 to go to Uganda, but was declined by the Society's medical examiners, and who resigned a private practice in Liverpool—and Mrs. Browne.

As already mentioned under North-West Provinces, Miss G. L. West has been transferred to that Mission. The adverse opinion of the Society's Medical Board to the Rev. T. J. Lee Mayer returning to India obliged the Committee, to their and his great regret, to close connexion with him after 24 years' valuable service rendered to Christ in the Punjab. The Pushtu Bible which he translated, and of which he superintended the printing by the photo process, and designed for it attractive title-pages, has been published by the British and Foreign Bible Society, and an edition of St. Luke in large type has been undertaken by the same Society, by the photo process, from Mr. Mayer's original MS.

Publication of the Pushtu Bible.

Deaths of Mrs. Rowland Bateman, Two deaths have to be recorded. Mrs. Bateman, wife of the Rev. Rowland Bateman, died in England on November 11th, 1896. She had shared her husband's toils in the Mission-field until reluctantly compelled through illness to relinquish that privilege, and then for the Gospel's sake had endured cheerfully the trial of separation. She was a daughter of Mr. P. S. Melvill, an experienced member of the Committee.

and Rev. John Williams. The other death is that of the Rev. John Williams, the native pastor and medical missionary of Tank. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Milman in 1872, and priest by Bishop Matthew in 1893. Four years before his ordination he was appointed to Tank, 42 miles from Dera Ismail Khan, at the mouth of the Gomal Pass, in the midst of the wild Waziri tribes and the Povindahs, and there he lived with his family until his death on August 10th, 1896. He had been ill with fever about a month before his death. During his illness he wrote to Dr. T. L. Pennell at Bannu, "Pray that if I do not recover I may be enrobed with the righteousness of Christ, that I may be amongst those righteous men and saints who are praising the glorious God day and night." The Rev. Robert Clark wrote:—

Influence of a native medical missionary over the wild frontier tribes.

By his gentle and winning manners, his kindness to the people, and his medical skill, he won his way amongst the Waziri clans, and he was probably the only Christian man in India who could in those days travel unarmed, and without any escort, uninjured throughout the length and breadth of that mountainous country of wild Mohammedans.

The Government repeatedly bore witness to the influence which John Williams had gained over these wild tribes, and to the political advantages which they had received through his means. When the Waziris attacked and burnt Tank in 1879, they placed a sentry of their own over the Christian hospital, and over the house of their Christian friend and teacher, from whom they had often heard of the Gospel of Christ, and thus ensured his safety in perilous times.

I. PUNJAB.

THE Rev. and Mrs. F. Lawrence, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. F. T. Beutel returned to the Mission after furlough in November; Dr. and Mrs. A. Jukes in December, 1896; and Mrs. Grime in January, 1897. On the other hand, Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams were invalided home in September, 1896, but returned in January, 1897; the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram and Mrs. R. Clark came home on special leave in December, 1896; the Rev. R. Bateman and Miss M. H. Millett came home on furlough in April, 1897; and the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hoare, the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. McKenzie, and Mrs. J. O. Summerhayes (on medical certificate) in May.

The Rev. C. E. Barton was married to Miss Esther Mary Broadbent, daughter of Col. J. E. Broadbent, R.E., in October, 1896; and the Rev. E. Guilford to Miss Elizabeth Rose Grimwood, missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S., in November.

AMRITSAR.

Amritsar.

The Rev. H. G. Grey succeeded to the charge of the Pastoral and Evangelistic Work in AMRITSAR and the adjoining villages when the Rev. T. R. Wade came home in the spring of 1896. He reports the baptism of thirteen adults. Mr. E. Rhodes (who was transferred at the close of 1896 to Kangra) says that large crowds usually assembled to the bazaar preaching, and there was little opposition. At the spring and autumn cattle fairs preaching was continuously carried on for five hours daily. The work and conduct of the boys at the High School afforded encouragement to the Rev. D. J. McKenzie. The senior lads showed interest in the religious teaching, the difficulty being, as he says, "to bring them over the line." He believes that God's Spirit is working in the hearts of some of them. In the School and its branches there are 368 boys, besides the Majitha High School, also under Mr. McKenzie's charge, with 99 boys, and district schools with 312 boys. Thirteen out of fourteen presented for the Matriculation examination passed, one who passed in the first class being awarded a scholarship of Rs. 10 by the Amritsar Municipality. In the Middle School examination 25 out of 27 passed, and one of these also won a district scholarship. The Government Inspector reported as follows :—

Testimony as to tone and discipline of the school.

The discipline I found very satisfactory, and the work carried on in a quiet way, showing good organization and careful supervision. On the whole I was much pleased with the earnestness displayed by the staff of this school, though in some important respects the methods are capable of improvement; and, having now inspected almost every educational institution for Amritsar boys, I gladly bear testimony to the superior tone and discipline prevailing in this institution.

The Government grant for 1896 was the largest the School had ever received. The Rev. A. C. Clarke was mainly engaged during his first year in language study, and preparing for examination for priest's ordination. The Alexandra High School was under Miss F. M. Saw, of the C.E.Z.M.S., assisted by the Misses A. F. and K. C. Wright. The Bishop of Lahore confirmed ten of the girls in February, 1896. In the same month the Government Inspectress commented very favourably on the girls' Urdu writing, and added that their English was above the standard of boys' schools of the same grade. One of the girls gained the third prize in the Lake Memorial Scripture competition in June. A reunion of "old girls" was held in the school in July, and a service of song, entitled The Rani's Sacrifice, based on a Hindu legend, was composed by Miss Saw for the occasion, and was sung by the girls with much enjoyment.

Alexandra High School.

Middle Class Girls' School.

The Middle Class Girls' School was under Miss B. H. Nevill and Miss M. H. Millett. It suffered from a serious outbreak of measles in the summer of 1896. The school was in quarantine as regards church attendance for twelve weeks, Dr. Martyn Clark and Mr. Grey taking services in the schoolroom. Two of the children died, one of whom had been rescued when a child from a house of sin; this girl when delirious was constantly repeating Psalms, especially Psalm xxiii. Some of the girls, on gaining convalescence, were most helpful in nursing the other sick ones. On one occasion in the autumn Miss Nevill, on entering the dormitory, found several of the girls kneeling in the verandah praying for rain. The high prices prevailing in consequence of the drought made the cares of housekeeping exceedingly onerous. There is a great and increasing demand for the girls of this school as teachers and wives. One of the old girls is undergoing a medical training at Lahore, and another who is a teacher has also learnt dispensing. A new schoolroom was opened during the year. Mrs. Grime was welcomed back after her furlough in January, 1897.

Medical Mission.

The Medical Mission report for the year under review has not been received. In that for 1895, which was received too late for last year's Annual Report, Dr. H. Martyn Clark made sad reference to a succession of apostacies of most of those whose conversion was mentioned in the Annual Report for 1893–94. He wrote:—

Apostacy of converts.

Apostacy followed on apostacy and sorrow upon sorrow, and for weeks never a day came which did not bring its own trouble: sometimes a big, sometimes a small matter, but still enough to make life in the minor key, and to cause us to turn continually to the good word of His grace, while we bided His time till these calamities should be overpast, and looked for the blessing which He has promised to give, and which so often enters our lives in the least expected of ways.

Black days they were, as I look back on them, and a sad record it is of ruined souls and many a bitter heartache. Two are now gone to their account; others are yet in the far country herding the swine. One of these, who is now no more, in his last days, as I am informed (with what truth I know not, for he had left Amritsar), desired to be brought back to us. Of the other the headman of his village complained bitterly: "In his last moments we told him to say, 'Wah Guru, Wah Guru' ('Victory to the Guru'—the Sikh formula of faith), and the scoundrel would not. He kept on saying, 'O Christ! O Christ!' He died the death of a dog, and we would not be present at his burning." We learn in the Mission-field, beyond all places, to wait upon God, and never to despair of any man, and to make large allowances, while we in no way lower the God-appointed standard of spirituality or compromise with sin or condone it. If it were all to happen again, I do not know what more or what other we could do than was done in each specific case.

Lessons taught by disappointment.

Those dark days have been good days too. We have been taught much. There have been deep searchings of heart and overhauling of our ways and methods and humbling of ourselves under the mighty hand of God, and it may well be that we shall find that it is just these days which have had in them the promise and seed of a fruitful, joyous future.

It has ever been, and will be to the end, that seasons of great blessing are also seasons of the greatest peril. Where no oxen are, the crib is clean. Where the ingatherings have been we shall see the deadliest assaults of the Enemy.

It is a common experience in missionary life to see a branch cut off, only to be grafted in again in His own time by the Husbandman, and to see it bearing fruit to the glory of His Name. The lesson of the experience we have had is not despair, but to be strong in the Lord and His might, to be patient in tribulation, steadfastly continuing in hope, awaiting the Lord's time and the fulfilment of His purpose—not being weary in well-doing.

Death of a Christian Government official.

Mr. Abdulla Athim, who took part in the public discussion in 1894, which was followed by the baptisms referred to in the above quotation, died after a short illness in July, 1896. When a young man he was appointed Tahsildar of Karachi, but after he embraced Christianity the authorities advised him to give up this office, being afraid that in so bigoted a place his Christian profession would prejudice his usefulness. He accordingly gave it up, and for some years engaged in Mission work. He was appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor a Tahsildar in the Punjab, and later he was Extra Assistant Commissioner.

The Rev. Q. K. Nehemiah, who resides at Majitha, reports several inquirers in that and neighbouring villages. The members of the Arya Samaj are active opponents.

Work of the C.E.Z.M.S.

In connexion with the C.E.Z.M.S. Work, the St. Catharine's Hospital Dispensary was under Miss Hewlett, assisted by Miss Capes (both now at home); and the Zenana Work was carried on by Misses Wauton and Tuting. The Bishop of Calcutta visited the Widows' Institution, which gives employment to 140 widows, in March, 1896, and wrote in the visitors' book, "The general tone and brightness that pervades the place witnesses to influences of the truest character." The ladies engaged in the Punjab Village Mission are Misses Dewar, Dickson, and Hetherington, residing at Ajnala; Misses Barthorp and Jacob, Keswick missionaries at Khutrain; Misses Parslee, Hobbs, Janson, and Richardson, at Jandiala; and Misses Cooper and Wingfield-Digby at Bahrwal-Atari, where the Rev. Wadhawa Mull is the native pastor.

BATALA.

Batala.

The Rev. C. M. Gough took over the charge of the work in and around BATALA from the Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht in April, 1896. He had to give much of his time during the following six months to the study of Urdu. He mentions two cases which interested him very much. The Imam of a village mosque near Batala, who had been convinced and brought to the light by reading God's Word, was baptized in November; and a lad aged 19, the son of a well-to-do Mohammedan of Batala, and a former pupil in the Mission School, asked for baptism, was enticed away by his relatives, then returned penitent. Eighty-five adults were baptized during the year, most of them in the villages, and after a lengthened period as catechumens. The Rev. E. Corfield has charge of the Baring High School; and the A.L.O.E. School has the Rev. N. C. Das as head-master.

Baptism of the Imam of a village mosque,

Miss Gertrude Clarke and Miss Mason are the C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies labouring in the district. Miss Clarke wrote in June, 1896, of a Mohammedan lady, a saiyadzadi, or direct descendant of Mohammed, named Fazl Nissa (the widow of a blind hafiz), who received instruction from one of the Bible-women, herself a saiyadzadi, and declared her wish to be a Christian. Her family tried to frighten her with tales of the horrible things done at baptism—e.g., a square would be cut out of the top of her head, and in the blood taken from this place she would be baptized. She made her escape from purdah by night, having only once before in her whole life—she was twenty-five years old—been outside her galli, and was sent to Amritsar. The baptism took place in April, 1896, at the Alexandra School. A new ward in memory of the late Miss C. M. Tucker was opened by the Rev. Dr. Weitbrecht in the C.E.Z. Dispensary in November.

and of a female descendant of Mohammed.

NAROWAL.

Narowal.

The Rev. Rowland Bateman, on his leaving NAROWAL in March, 1897, was succeeded by the Rev. G. M. Gough. The Rev. Ihsan Ullah has been greatly used of God as a Mission preacher, both in the Narowal and neighbouring districts, and at more distant places, e.g., Peshawar and Agra. He is an evangelistic agent of the Native Church Council, but he relinquished his pay of Rs. 40 per mensem, preferring to be maintained by the direct free-will offerings of the people. A lady missionary of the American Presbyterian Mission at Sialkot, Miss J. Campbell, wrote in a private letter in June, 1896 :—

A native clergyman much blessed as a Mission preacher.

"Powerful sermons."

We are so full of joy these days over the good things the Lord is giving us that we must tell it. I never experienced such a time of reviving as has come into our Sialkot Church, and is spreading on to Gujranwala and other places. It began by the earnest preaching of a native minister in Narowal, who has felt called to give up almost everything for Christ. He preached with wonderful power. His influence reached some of our theological students, and they came back to school all on fire. This minister visited Sialkot in the middle of May. He preached in our church and also in our schools, then went on to Peshawar, and afterwards spent two days in Gujranwala. I never heard more powerful sermons; they went straight to the hearts. Cold hearts revived, sinners were converted, and such confession of sins I never heard. There was weeping, bitter weeping, for days before peace came to the hearts. We had to close school and give up all the time to working with the girls and holding meetings. Such a change has taken place in our schools. Our people say this is Jerusalem now. Now I can truly say the people do feel the weight of sin; I am sure they have seen it in all its awful blackness. We are almost frightened at some of the confessions made by our girls. God grant this may only be a beginning of the times of refreshing in India! Our seminary students have meetings every night; they are so anxious to reach souls. They have all given up the hookah, and many of our girls and the women have given up jewellery. I am so thankful to have seen this day. It means to me, at least, giving up more than I ever did before for Jesus. I feel so ashamed of my coldness in these things in the past.

Death of Miss Catchpool, C.E.Z.M.S.

The death of Miss F. M. Catchpool, of the C.E.Z.M.S., on January 16th, 1897, from small-pox, caught in one of the villages, was a serious loss to this station. She was taken to the Elmslie Hospital at Amritsar, where she died a few days after her admission.

TARN TARAN.

Tarn Taran.

The Rev. E. Guilford was encouraged to hope that he would have a European fellow-labourer at TARN TARAN in the person of the Rev. E. A. Causton, but the latter went to Lahore to study Urdu, and the result has been that he has remained there for work among the students of the University. Of Mr. Guilford's eight native helpers, one Qutub-ud-din, whom he calls his "old and tried friend," has been with him since 1881; another is the son of a man baptized in 1858; and the rest are converts from Hinduism or Islam of several years' standing.

The congregation take up the T.Y.E.

The Congregation numbers seventy people, and these, with only two exceptions, heartily took up Mr. Guilford's suggestion to support a native "O.O.M." (Our Own Missionary), in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise, agreeing to give one pice out of every rupee of their pay for this purpose. To sustain their interest occasional missionary meetings were held; Miss C. Hanbury, of the C.E.Z.M.S., told the story of the Uganda Mission at one of these, and at another Miss Hanbury's sister, who visited the Punjab on her way to China, told of the work in China, donning Chinese dress and using chop-sticks to increase the impression of her account of the triumphs of the Gospel.

Self-denial in Lent.

On Good Friday, 1896, the people took the sum of Rs. 54 to Mr. Guilford which they had saved by the practice of self-denial during Lent, and which was devoted to the relief of the suffering Christians in Armenia. The Bishop of Lahore most kindly invited the whole congregation to be his guests at Lahore for a day at Eastertide, and held a special service in the cathedral for their benefit, addressing them very impressively on the "Unity of the Church."

Leper Asylum.

The congregation in the Leper Asylum numbers forty persons, twenty-four men and sixteen women. "Their bright, living faith," Mr. Guilford writes, "their patient endurance of the most awful and prolonged suffering, and their earnest looking for the coming of their Saviour Who shall change their bodies of humiliation and fashion them like unto His Own glorious Body, make manifest in a very striking manner the power of the Gospel of Christ over the human heart." Two of the inmates, a man and his wife, were sent out to be teachers of a number of lepers gathered into a small asylum at Rawalpindi. The Home for Lepers' Children who are not tainted with the disease, which was opened in 1890, had twenty inmates at the close of the year. Two of the girls passed a Government examination with credit. The boys are taught trades, such as carpentering, tailoring, and gardening.

Out-stations.

At Zunnardar, sixteen miles from Tarn Taran, the congregation numbers sixty persons, and at Takhtu Chak, five miles from Tarn Taran, there is a congregation consisting of people who migrated thither from the Sialkot district, where they had been baptized by the United Presbyterian missionaries. Mr. Guilford laments, as others have often done, that the practice obtains in the U.P. Punjab Mission of baptizing uninstructed people; and he says that he could discover very little difference between the Christians who came to Tukhtu Chak and the surrounding Heathen, nor could he learn from them that more had been done than that a sahib had sprinkled some water on their heads! At Khaire also, five miles distant from Tarn Taran—the village referred to in last year's Report, where nine persons were baptized—there is a congregation consisting of five families. Mr. Guilford visited 400 villages during the cold weather of 1895–6.

There is a noticeable improvement in the attitude of the people. On approaching a certain village Mr. Guilford was accosted by a man on horseback, who told him that the people would be glad to see him, for he had heard some of the chief men of the place "discussing your religion and saying that it is the true one." Mr. Guilford adds:— Improved attitude of the Heathen towards Christianity.

A short time ago a meeting of reformed Sikhs was held at Tarn Taran, when a tract in Punjabi was scattered broadcast, entitled "Pádrián de wade" or "the Ancestors of the Clergy." These so-called "Ancestors" were Abraham, Lot, David, and some others, and the tract was intended to show the moral faults of the Old Testament worthies and to warn the people against listening to the preaching of their descendants, the Padris! The writer stated that he had issued the tract in order to avert if possible a terrible calamity which threatened to overwhelm the Sikh people, for he saw an imminent danger of the whole Sikh population of the Mànjha and Malwa being caught in the soul-destroying net of the Padris! A "calamity" threatening the Sikhs.

Mr. Guilford translated the first part of Pilgrim's Progress in Punjabi. Five adults were baptized; a young Sikh, the son of a rich man and with well-to-do relatives in Government employment, who after baptism stood firm as a rock and witnessed a good confession before his people; an inmate of the Leper Asylum, whose heart was won by the kindness of some of the Christian lepers during an illness; two women from the Leper Asylum; and one from the Zenana Hospital of the C.E.Z.M.S.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies are Miss Hanbury and Miss Vines (the latter sent out in the autumn to take Miss Grimwood's place after her marriage to Mr. Guilford). The following extract from a letter of Mrs. Guilford, written shortly before her marriage, illustrates the work of these ladies:—

The night before last I was called out from our weekly prayer-meeting to a case twenty-six miles away; and I went forth alone into the darkness at eleven o'clock at night, and was riding and walking till 4 a.m. to reach the poor woman. The cart was upset twice in the darkness, but happily I was not in it, being too nervous to ride in the narrow road. I got there just in time to save the poor creature's life, to the gratitude of all the village, and then a bed was spread for me in the open yard, under a tree, and there I lay down with my servant near, surrounded by all the cattle, and a row of sleeping women and children on one side and of men on the other. At day-dawn I rose, and after seeing my patient once more and giving final directions, I prepared to leave. But first I was taken to see a woman whose case proved surgical, and I ordered her to be brought to the hospital. A night journey of twenty-six miles.

This was the worst village in our whole district, into which we have never been able to gain admittance all the nine years we have been here. I tried again last year, and scarcely expected to get away without injury of some kind. The inhabitants are strong, fighting Sikh people. I am sure the ancient Britons never looked more wild and fierce than these hairy, ferocious-looking people. So yesterday morning at six it was interesting to address a crowd of about a hundred of them and to have them meekly listening to all I had to say of our Lord's Kingdom, which is all mercy and grace; and not to be fought against, but received with thankfulness and faith. It was lovely, after nine years of prayer and waiting, suddenly to find the entrance to their hearts by one night's fatigue and self-denial. The worst village in the district.

CLARKABAD.

Clarkabad

CLARKABAD is visited from time to time by the Rev. H. G. Grey, of Amritsar, under whose supervision the spiritual agencies are placed. The Misses M. E. and M. J. Farthing continue their labours among the Christian women, who number 130, and visit the surrounding villages. Seven women were baptized. The Girls' Orphanage is under the care of Miss Edgley, of the C.E.Z.M.S. Mr. H. B. Claxton's chief work during the year was language study. Mr. J. Napier Lennox, who had charge, under the Corresponding Committee, of the secular concerns of the village, died in August, 1896. He has been succeeded by Mr. E. Nicholl.

LAHORE.

Lahore.

The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, who was invited home in December by the Committee in consequence of his father's state of health, wrote :—

"Day labourers."

Truly we are day labourers. I have just completed five years of missionary life, and these have comprised five entirely different spells of work in three different stations. During the same period the Divinity School at Lahore has undergone no less than seven changes of Principal, temporary or "permanent." I think under such circumstances we may thank God that it has preserved a continuous existence at all. Picture Ridley Hall under such a crisis, and pray that if the Lord delay His coming it may please Him speedily to give the infant Church in the Lahore Diocese something more permanent as regards its central theological institution.

Divinity School.

There were eleven students in the Divinity School, viz., four in the junior class, six in the senior, and one reading for priest's orders; and besides these there were five "summer students," i.e., men engaged in work as agents, who utilized the season when evangelizing work is necessarily more slack to brush up their old learning and gain a fresh store for future use. Two students left after finishing their course and went to labour in the Multan district. All the lectures were in the vernacular, and were shared by Mr. Wigram and the Rev. Ali Baksh; they included, besides Bible and Prayer Book and cognate studies, classes in Butler's Analogy, and lectures on the non-Christian religions of India. Teachers and students preach twice a week in the Lahore bazaar, and in the autumn they disperse for village itineration under various leaders. Of the students' bearing under opposition and in controversy, Mr. Wigram writes :—

Tact and good temper of native preachers.

I have been much struck with the tact and good temper of the senior students, and we shall feel their loss greatly now they are gone. One day the audience was behaving in far too swinish a way for us to venture to offer them any pearls; on the other hand, to have attempted to retire at once might have been accepted by them as an invitation to turn and rend us. What was to be done? Mir Alam Khan with delightful tact stepped forward and said: "As we came along the streets to preach I heard the people in their shops say to one another, 'There go the double roti walas.'" (This, I should explain, is the commonest taunt in Lahore, that Christians, and notably catechists, have become what they are for the sake of "double roti," i.e., English bread as contrasted with the unleavened cake of the country.) "Well," said he, "and who were we before, we who as you say became Christians for bread and butter? Hindus and Mohammedans like yourselves. So whenever a Hindu or a Mohammedan becomes a Christian I am to understand that he does so for bread and butter? Well, then, that Englishman in Ceylon who became a Mohammedan the other day, I suppose that was for bread and butter too? Oh no, you all say, that was for the truth's sake, for the truth's sake. Ah, then, now I see: whenever a Hindu or Mohammedan becomes a Christian it is for bread and butter; whenever an Englishman changes his religion it is for the truth alone. From which I can but deduce that the chief result of the religions of this country is to lead men to sacrifice all to their stomach, while the Englishman's religion results in his being before all things a seeker after truth wherever it may be found. Judge you now whose religion is the more worthy!" It was a delightful turning of the tables which the previously noisy crowd could not but appreciate, though, alas! when he tried to go on and speak of that Bread for which he really had left the dry bones of Mohammedanism, the spirit of mischief soon returned into the momentarily subdued audience. I must add, however, that disturbances are quite the exception; as a rule, Mohammedans as well as Hindus are ready to give us a quiet and respectful hearing.

The Rev. F. Lawrence took charge of the Divinity School for a few weeks after his return from furlough, but upon his appointment to the charge of Narowal the Rev. R. H. Welchman was placed over the school. The Hostel, built in 1895, had twenty-five young unmarried Christian men, who were reading for University degrees, residing in it. These all understand English, and for them an English service in the College chapel was occasionally held. In this chapel a memorial tablet to Bishop French, the founder of the Divinity School, was placed during the year. The Congregation is under the pastoral care of the Principal of the school. In the bazaars of the city are not a few baptized people who have strayed to the capital of the Province, and some of whom are living lives at which even their non-Christian neighbours point the finger of scorn; and for the work of seeking out these, as well as for the more efficient shepherding of the congregation, Mr. Wigram is anxious to see an ordained native pastor appointed. Hostel.

KANGRA, KOTGUR, AND SIMLA.

The Rev. J. Tunbridge had the joy of welcoming Mr. E. Rhodes as a fellow-labourer at KANGRA at the close of 1896. The Native Christians, including unbaptized adherents, number 147. The schools, six in number, with 277 boys and 34 girls, passed all the candidates presented for the Anglo-Vernacular Middle Examination, and the grant earned was the highest on record. The states of Kulu, Bashahr, Suket, and Mandi were visited by Mr. Tunbridge in the course of a tour of some 400 miles. At Kangra.

Sultanpur some 112 idols, representing as many different gods, were brought together at a great annual mela and borne aloft on men's shoulders day by day. Drinking and dancing and much wickedness of various kinds were connected with the festival, and as the preachers reasoned of sin, and righteousness, and judgment, a "blush of shame rose to many a dusky cheek."

A Rajah admits that he has no faith in idolatry.

The Rajahs of Rampur, capital of Bashahr, and of Mandi accepted copies of the New Testament, and the former confessed that he had no faith in idolatry. At the capital of Suket Mr. Tunbridge and his companions were led by the people from place to place to preach again and again the "Old, Old Story," and when it became dark they had to tear themselves away.

Lady itinerants.

Mrs. Däuble and Miss Michaelis, of Dharmsala, with their native helpers, also made a lengthened tour of some 200 miles, visiting some fifty villages, finding the medicine chest a great help. They visited some places to which, Mrs. Däuble says, no missionary had been before. At Jwāta they pitched their tent near the Hindu temple, and were astonished to notice how few people went to it. An Arya Samajist in this place showed interest, and begged for a New Testament, which was afterwards sent to him.

Kotgur.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. F. T. Beutel returned to KOTGUR after furlough in November, 1896. The Rev. Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht visited the station in September, when, in addition to administering the Sacraments, he lectured to a large gathering of Christians and Hindus whom the energetic catechist, Munshi Jaswant Singh, had brought together.

Simla.

At SIMLA, where Dr. Weitbrecht resides, the Congregation numbers eighty-two, most of whom are adults permanently residing in Simla—domestic servants, clerks in offices, &c. Besides the Urdu service on Sunday evenings, Dr. Weitbrecht holds an English service for English-speaking Bengali Christians. Three adults were baptized, two of them domestic servants prepared by the catechist, Munshi Yaqub Khan; the third was Munshi Abdur Rashid, taken up to Simla by Dr. A. C. Lankester.

Translation work.

Dr. Weitbrecht's time is largely taken up in the revision of the Urdu New Testament, assisted by Lala Chanda Lal, a Native Christian from Lahore. Each portion of the New Testament, when completed, was printed, and copies sent to some 150 persons, Natives and Europeans, and the notes received from them were carefully collated and sifted—truly "a work of some time."

PIND DADAN KHAN.

PIND DADAN KHAN, the central station for the Jhelam Itinerancy, was again, as in 1895, without a missionary. The Rev.

Lyallpur.

Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht twice visited Lyallpur, the origin of which was explained last year, where sites for Mission premises and for a book-shop and preaching-room have been secured by the Society. Dr. Weitbrecht's first visit was in March, 1896, and the second in December. He thus describes the district and its rapid colonization:—

Lyallpur is the centre of the region known as the Jhang Bār, a wedge-shaped tract of land trending from N.E. to S.W., where the apex is formed by the confluence of the rivers Rāvī and Chenāb, which bound the track on either side. Roughly speaking, it is 180 miles long and some 60 broad at the base, and it covers an area of 2,210,000 acres, or 3,454 square miles.

From time immemorial the Jhang Bār has been a thinly-peopled, almost untilled region, covered with scattered scrub and (after rain) with grass. Along the river margins there has been a certain amount of cultivation, but on the Bār proper—that is, the higher land between the rivers, which cannot be reached by ordinary river irrigation—the whole country has remained waste, with a very few scattered villages, whose people divided their attention impartially between cattle raising and cattle lifting—a distinction with a difference, but not incompatible in the same persons. From Jhang, on the Chenāb, the district centre, roads with wells at long intervals diverged to Multan, Chichawatnī (on the Lahore-Multan line), Lahore, and Wazirabād. Otherwise the country was trackless except for the villagers' rare cattle paths.

During the administration of Sir James Lyall (Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab from 1887 to 1892), the scheme was formed and put in operation of taking a large canal from the Chenāb below Wazirabād to irrigate this immense tract, and thus to afford an outlet for the agricultural population of several congested districts, especially those of Sialkot, Gurdaspur, Amritsar, and Jalandhar. Together with the canal a railway was surveyed and gradually constructed to connect Wazirabād and Multan, and thus convey the agricultural produce of the region to Karachi and elsewhere. Up to date about half of this has been opened, viz., 100 miles to Lyallpur itself.

The colonization of the country has been going on since 1892, as the branches of the canal with their distributaries have been opened up. There are three principal branches: a northern, the Jhang branch; a central, the Rakh branch; and a southern, the Gogaira branch. Of these, the central one, on which Lyallpur lies, is the furthest advanced. The Jhang branch tract is now being colonized, and it is estimated that the population so far settled on both branches is about 350,000. The whole tract, when colonized, will probably accommodate a million inhabitants.

One could not but wonder at the rank fertility of the soil after its centuries of rest. The crops were treading on each other's heels, and our friends, with their well-fed cattle and plump children, were hard put to it to finish pressing the winter's sugar-cane before cutting the spring wheat.

Dr. Weitbrecht made a list of nearly 100 villages that were being colonized by people from the districts in which the Society is at work.

MULTAN.

The Rev. T. Bomford left MULTAN in April, 1896, being succeeded in the general charge of the station by the Rev. C. E. Barton. The latter writes of increasing Congregations (due to some extent to migration from other places), and better offertories. Once a week there is open-air preaching from the verandah of Multan the church, with audiences varying between 50 and 200. The Christian women welcomed a true friend in Mrs. Barton, when she arrived after her marriage. The High School, under Mr. Khem Chand, who passed his B.A. examination during 1896, had a prosperous year. Colonel Hutchinson, the Commissioner of Multan, distributed the prizes in November. Five out of seven passed the Entrance Examination of the Punjab University, thirteen out of twenty the Middle, nine out of thirteen the Primary, and twenty-one out of twenty-three the Lower Primary. One or two of the boys manifested a desire for personal teaching in the Scriptures. Several old boys of the school have come to Mr. Barton as inquirers, and the Rev. W. F. Cobb says:—

Inquirers.

We are never without inquirers. I have in mind some half-dozen who have been coming to us at times during the year, who all seemed very near to the Kingdom. We are still hopeful about each. It is lack of courage which keeps them back. One young Hindu asked me of his own accord to write out a Christian prayer for him to use. Another, the first time he came to see me, said, "I want to be baptized." When I spoke to him about "the new birth" required, he at once quoted St. John iii. 5; and when we told him of the persecution which he might be called on to endure, he quoted St. Luke xiv. 27, or one of the corresponding verses from the other Gospels. He is a Mission-school boy.

Two men gave occasion to hope that they would confess Christ in baptism, one of them a Mohammedan, holding a Government post under the Tahsildar, and a seeker after truth of some years' standing; the other being his servant.

"No longer Mohammedans, but not yet Christians."

Mr. Cobb accompanied Mr. Bomford at the beginning of 1896 on a tour in the Mozuffargarh District, spending most of the three weeks they were out at Jatoi, where the people told them, "We are no longer Mohammedans, though we are not yet Christians." Dr. J. O. Summerhayes, of Dera Ghazi Khan, crossed the Indus and joined them at this place.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

Dera Ghazi Khan.

The Rev. A. E. Day and Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Summerhayes labour at DERA GHAZI KHAN. The latter wrote in March, 1896:—

Preachers mobbed and severely beaten, but willing to preach again the next day.

The work is going on well, both in Ghazi and in the villages in the district, where Mr. Day, Padri Izhaq, and two helpers, one being in charge of the medicines, have been preaching; they were, however, mobbed severely at a small village, and it seems that but for the nearness of a mosque one or more might have been killed, as the men had evidently come over from a neighbouring town bent on mischief. Mr. Day and the others had only been preaching Christ faithfully, and this had had a good effect on some of the chief people who support the Mulla, and we believe that he stirred it up; Padri Izhaq was severely beaten and knocked down and trampled on again and again, and Mr. Day was also almost stunned. The people wanted to make them Mohammedans. At last they dashed into a mosque and were safe, and they would not leave until the crowd of one hundred to two hundred went away. The Christians, with one exception, took it wonderfully well, and were willing to preach again next day; anyway, we can thank God for their deliverance from anything worse than a thrashing, and be happy in suffering for His Name's sake.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN, BANNU, AND TANK.

Dera Ismail Khan.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. Papprill left DERA ISMAIL KHAN in April, 1896, being ordered home in consequence of Mrs. Papprill's ill-health. No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. H. J. Hoare (now at home). The Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Fothergill arrived at this station in November.

Expedients of opponents.

At BANNU the year was marked by severe and continued opposition from the Mohammedans, who are realizing, Dr. T. L. Pennell says, that the activity and life of Christianity is seriously threatening their old strongholds. They resorted to various expedients, such as hiring preachers to stand near the Mission agents in the bazaar and to attract the people away from them, distributing Mohammedan literature, calumniations, and personal violence. More trying than opposition from without was the want of union among the Christians. But there were also encouragements. One of the two whom the Bishop of Lahore baptized at Bannu in December, 1895, as mentioned last year, was Muhammad Taib, who was studying in a mosque at Bannu for the Mohammedan priesthood. He first attended the bazaar preaching, then visited Dr. Pennell for instruction, and finally was baptized. Some months afterwards he returned to his village to get his land and a girl to whom he was affianced, but the opposition was such that he could only have purchased success by denying his new-found faith. The relatives of this convert succeeded on one occasion in carrying him away from the Mission compound, and got twenty hours' start before Dr. Pennell discovered his departure. The doctor started in an ekka immediately in pursuit, and found him at 2 a.m. in a mosque asleep amidst thirteen men, his abductors. Without awaking them Taib was led out and taken safely back. He later brought a former tutor, Mulla Abdulla, from a Bannu mosque to the Mission hospital for healing, and this man, at first bitterly opposed, applied later for baptism. About the same time a village schoolmaster, and descendant of the Prophet, Syed Bedshah, a man well versed in Mohammedanism, professed to accept Christ as his Saviour. Another Mulla from the Warghozi tribe, beyond the British boundary, visited Dr. Pennell several times, and confessed his belief in Christ. The reading of a Persian Testament given him at Bannu two years before led him to seek further teaching. Dr. Pennell says:—

A convert rescued from his captors.

So far the most hopeful work has been the bazaar-preaching, the distribution of the Scriptures, and the personal intercourse with hospital patients and their friends; and among those we meet we find many who receive instruction gladly and acquiesce in a great deal of the Christian doctrine, but fear the results of a public confession, which means much more than one unacquainted with their circumstances is apt to imagine. There is a marked spirit of inquiry abroad in Mohammedan circles, which will undoubtedly bear fruit, though perhaps not very rapidly.

Bread cast upon the waters.

One of Dr. Pennell's itinerations was to Kalabagh, on the Indus, a centre of the salt and alum trade. In this town he met a Mohammedan "holy man," educated and travelled, who had a Bible given to his father by an Englishman who visited the place forty-five years before, and a Mizan-ul-haqq given to himself by another Englishman some twenty years before when he was a boy playing on the river-bank. He told Dr. Pennell that he had preserved both books with care, and knew much of their contents. The lonely out-station of Esa Kheyl is occupied by the catechist Gouhar Masih.

The death of Dr. John Williams, of TANK, has been referred to in the introductory notes to this Mission. Dr. W. F. Adams was requested, on his return to the Mission in February, 1897, to reside at Dera Ismail Khan and to superintend Tank from that place.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar.

"A year of blessing" is the Rev. W. Thwaites' summary of the work at PESHAWAR during 1896. At the beginning of the year a serious scandal in the congregation caused much heart-searching, and suggested to Mr. Thwaites his asking the Rev. R. Bateman, of Narowal, to visit the station and hold a Special Mission. This Mr. Bateman could not do, but he sent a worthy substitute in the person of the Rev. Ihsan Ullah. Soon after the Mission Mr. Thwaites wrote:—

A Special Mission.

I will not describe the whole of the week's work—our morning and evening services in church, the searching addresses given by Ihsan Ullah, and the searching of hearts they caused. The first day of the Mission caused me great anxiety, for serious trouble between some of the members of the congregation, one of whom is in a very important position, came to light, and no peace was possible that day, though I stayed in church till 10 p.m. with the members who were not at peace. And all the week from one side no sign was made until Saturday, when we had a very solemn address telling us the blessing of Whit Sunday could not be ours while we were not of one heart and one mind. God touched the hearts of the erring ones, and that night peace was made and we could wait for blessing; and we had a very blessed time on Whit Sunday, not only in the congregation, but two Mohammedans, who for a long time had been inquirers, received grace to be more than what they had hitherto acknowledged themselves to be—"Christians in heart." They received power to be baptized, and were admitted to the congregation of Christ's flock on Whit Sunday. Muhammad Rosem and Mahdi Khan are their names. It was thought best not to make any change because they are patwaris in Government service, and their names are registered as such, and it might have been troublesome to change. We did feel very, very thankful, just mingled with some sadness, because a third man, who had always seemed the leader among the three, the strongest and brightest, said he could not join them. Poor man! he is married, and he hopes his wife may come with him. He comes with them now to see us, and he is still with us in heart. On the Saturday evening before Whit Sunday they were all with me till almost midnight, and my last words to him were: "God has shown you the truth, He has called you to Himself through Jesus Christ, He gives you this blessing to use for His glory to-day, and it is dangerous to put off." There are others too, and the work in the city, in the Anjuman preaching, and in the bazaar has received a help forward by Ihsan Ullah's visit. Last Thursday we had quite 150 present, who listened for the most part quietly and attentively, and yesterday (Sunday) we had quite 100.

But the great blessing has been on the congregation. The clear, plain speaking of Ihsan Ullah was blessed to almost all, and it is seldom they have heard the dangers and sins of Native Christian congregations put so plainly and yet so lovingly. We do rejoice and thank God for his coming among us. The two new converts have had much trial and persecution, but have been firm and strong in Christ. A deputation of about eighty Mohammedans from the Anjuman-i-Islam waited upon them, and in every way possible they have tried to shake them. Was it money they wanted? They would find them money. Was it better employment? They would try and get it for them. Was it wives? They would get them married. And they could not believe that it was none of these things they wanted. The men have gone on leave to see their people, and we hope to see them back in about fifteen days. The example of these two has had great influence on the people in the city, and we feel that God both can and will give a larger and larger blessing to Peshawar. You will let your prayers ascend for us, for the Enemy is not asleep, but far more awake now than before our Mission week.

Temptation of converts.

Several months later Mr. Thwaites was able to write that the two converts had continued firm and consistent Christians since their baptism; relations had forsaken them, and friends given them up, but they had clung to Christ, and had spoken earnestly to others of the blessing they had received, leading some to inquire. A month after the baptism of Muhammad Rosem and Mahdi Khan, a Mohammedan woman, a former pupil of Miss Phillips, of the C.E.Z.M.S., was baptized. This woman after her baptism consented to return to her husband (a change of religion effects a divorce according to Mohammedan law), but he, instead of taking her to his own house, put her in charge of a leading Mohammedan in the city, and she was for more than a month subjected to every possible effort to induce her to return to Mohammedanism. At length she made her escape from her persecutors, and was put in a place of safety, where she has since lived a consistent Christian life. The third man, who was in a large degree instrumental in leading Muhammad and Mahdi to Christ, appears to have receded. The Edwardes High School, under Mr. Brooke, its Eurasian headmaster, has more pupils than any other school in the city, and that notwithstanding higher fees, Mr. Thwaites believes, than are charged in the other schools, a fact which shows conclusively the esteem in which it is held. Many of the pupils are the sons of leading men in the city and district. The Rev. C. H. A. Field was responsible for the Evangelistic Work in the city and villages. Three times a week evangelistic services are held in the Anjuman, or Mission-room. The audiences are more attentive in the villages than in Peshawar, and most so in those that are most remote from the city. In these farther villages Mr. Field often found Mullas possessing copies of the Scriptures. Mr. Field considers the Mohammedans in their bigotry and fanaticism more hopeful subjects for the evangelist than the Hindus, who seem quite indifferent. He has noticed a picture of the Crucifixion in a Sikh dharmsala, and the worshippers, when told Whom it represented, were not in the least disturbed. He says very justly, "The Mohammedan who is scandalized by the sight of the cross on the top of our church, looking down on the many mosques in the city, is a more hopeful object for evangelization than the Hindu who regards it as an elegant ornament."

Village Mullas possessing copies of the Scriptures.

Three out-stations were opened during the year. Maulavi Hamid Ullah was placed at Mardan, but he died a few months after going there. He left behind him a small collection of Pushtu hymns which have been printed, and are found very acceptable in the villages of Yusafzai. Nowshera was occupied by Ghazi Khan Ullah, and Mr. Thwaites was greatly encouraged by the heartiness with which he threw himself into the work, both of instructing the little band of Christians, mostly bandsmen belonging to the native regiment and their families, and of preaching the Gospel to outsiders. The third out-station occupied is Haripur, in the Hazara district. Azizuddin is placed there, and two Mullas are referred to as having come under his influence.

New out-stations.

Dr. A. C. Lankester and Dr. A. H. Browne have been instructed to establish a Medical Mission at Peshawar. The former suffered during the year from a severe affection of the eyes, and at one time it was feared he would have to return home. The Committee have sanctioned, subject to the approval of the Corresponding Committee, Dr. A. C. Lankester taking up work beyond the Swat River.

Medical Mission opened.

The Duchess of Connaught Hospital, of the C.E.Z.M.S., is under Dr. Ella Mitcheson and Miss Werthmüller. The other C.E.Z.M.S. ladies in Peshawar are Miss Phillips and Miss Houghton; and Misses Condon and Cave are at Abbottabad, in the Hazara district.

II. KASHMIR.

In July, 1896, Mr. R. Venables Greene was married to Miss Amy Judd, a missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S.

The Bishop of Lahore visited Srinagar in September, 1896, and dedicated a new church, St. Luke's, close to the Mission Hospital. The Rev. E. F. E. Wigram accompanied the Bishop as his chaplain, and translated his sermon on John x. 22 into Urdu. During the same visit the Bishop consecrated two Government churches. The land on which all three churches are built had been ceded by the Maharajah to the British Government in perpetuity. The Bishop confirmed ten candidates of the Congregation. He presided at the prize-giving at the High School and recorded his satisfaction at the marked personal influence exercised by the Principal, the Rev. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, upon all his native fellow-workers. The Bishop also visited the Hospital, and described it as "a model of what a Mission hospital should be." The surgical operations in the year reached the total of 3,447, a figure which, as Dr. A. Neve says, may well be compared with those of large London hospitals. The in-patients numbered over one thousand, and the out-patients made forty thousand attendances. Five members of the hospital staff take part in the spiritual work, reading and talking to the patients, and the Rev. J. H. Knowles also renders assistance. The Leper Hospital has forty inmates, in the summer it had as many as fifty. It is among the populous villages of the valley that the largest number of patients and the best audiences for the preaching are met with. Somewhat extensive Itinerations were taken by each of the two brothers, Drs. Arthur and Ernest Neve. The former visited Lolab in the spring, a populous district some sixty miles west of Srinagar. It was three years since this district had been visited. Over 400 patients were treated in three days, and sixty-six operations performed at one village, Sogam. Two addresses each day were attended not only by the sick and their friends, but by the priests and magnates of the village. A stay of several days was made in each of four villages, and Dr. Neve had many private talks on religion with influential ecclesiastics. In August Dr. Neve visited the neighbouring state of Punch, a rough journey, involving an ascent and descent each way of 11,000 feet. He describes a night spent on the top of a mountain in the course of this tour:—

Visit of Bishop of Lahore.

Hospital.

Leper Hospital

A night on the top of a mountain.

> The only flat place was on top of a cattle-shed, wherein abode buffaloes, gujars, and parasites innumerable. The thunderstorm that set in during the night baffles description. The lightning was incessant, and seemed to envelop me, while the thunder pealed in the deep valleys below. The clouds swirling backwards and forwards below were torn aside to give momentary glimpses of jagged and riven rocky peaks rising as out of a sea of flame. Soon came pelting rain, and a wind which tore up the pegs of the flimsy canvas, and it collapsed on me. Hastily gathering up my clothes, I fled, and took refuge in the open shed below among the buffaloes.

Again, somewhat later, accompanied by the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, Dr. Neve went to Chilas, being the first Europeans, the doctor says, to enter it by the Barei Pass. Their journeying was too rapid, and the population too scanty, for large evangelistic opportunities. Dr. E. F. Neve went in the summer to Leh, in Ladakh. He gives the following account of the religion of the people, Lámaism:—

Buddhist monasteries.

If we travel eastward, as I did recently, crossing the snowy Zoji La Pass, and traversing the hot dry valleys which lead to Kargyl, we meet with the first signs of Lámaism after about ten days' march from Srinagar. At Sheogol there is a little monastery perched up on the face of the cliff 300 feet above the stream. Four miles farther on we pass an isolated rocky peak, on the summit of which, 300 feet above the village, is the monastery of Mulbek. From this place, at intervals of a few miles, all through the arid valleys of Kashmiri Tibet, these monasteries are found. There is hardly a village without at least one. They are inhabited by monks (lámas) with shaven heads and red robes, who take part in services, copy manuscripts, carve stones, turn prayer cylinders, and control and guide the religious life of the people around, who, in addition to their great reverence for these lámas, have also a closer interest, for lámaism is to a certain extent a representative institution, as a large number of families have given one of their members to become a monk. Moreover, the monasteries are great landowners, and by lending money on land security they constantly acquire more, so that in many places the peasants are really serfs of the monastery. This constitutes one of the practical obstacles to the acceptance of Christianity by the common people. The lámas are antagonistic, as their craft is in danger and they have the people in their power.

The monasteries are picturesque, irregular buildings of whitewashed sun-dried bricks. Arranged in terraces and flat roofed, they are often perched on fantastic rocks or cliffs. Three of the most striking are those of Hémis, Reyson, and Lamoyoro. The last is a remarkable place; the high conglomerate cliffs are crowned with an immense number of buildings. Time fails to tell of all the wonders we saw—the steep stairs and ladders, the tunnel-like passages, giddy precipices, curious little cells, and fierce Tibetan mastiffs, the rows of prayer cylinders, the painted stones, and, strangest of all—a sad sight—the interior of the temples. We went into two of these. The first was a square room about 30 by 30 feet, and lofty, all the light coming from little windows round the top. On the floor were rows of flat, legless benches for the lámas. Round the walls were shelves and pigeon-holes full of books, manuscripts and vestments, and here also were massive copper bowls, jugs, and basins, and the drums, cymbals, clarionets, and shawms—these last fourteen feet long—used by the monastery band. Most of the things in the temple had come from Llassa (the Rome of Lámaism). On special occasions the lámas wear red cloth helmets, and waistcoats of rich embroidery over their brick-red, toga-like robes. A good many of the monasteries also contain nuns. That of Reyson does not, but has a separate convent, and is altogether of much higher repute than most of the others. In nearly every monastery there are two temples, one with images, library, &c., and the other with frescoes on the walls, and one large image. In Lamoyoro this is ten feet high, and has numberless arms and hands, each containing an open eye. The walls, too, are covered with paintings illustrating the Buddhist hell.

Prayer Cylinders.

The prayer cylinders are one and a half to two feet high, revolving on a pivot. These either have a prayer painted on, or an opening into which it can be thrust. As they pass the monks set them in motion. A certain number are kept constantly revolving by water power or wind. A terribly mechanical and degraded idea of prayer!

In the autumn Dr. E. F. Neve visited Kishtiwar, a district several days' march to the east of Kashmir, where the general tone of the people was decidedly friendly. Miss I. E. V. Petrie engages in Zenana Visiting, and among her sixty pupils are ladies from Bengal, the North-West Provinces, the Punjab, Jamma, Nepal, Punch, Gilgit, the Afghan frontier, as well as Sikhs, Dogras, and Kashmiris. In only two homes did she meet with direct opposition. The husband of one pupil bought a Bible, and made it his constant companion, reading it aloud boldly to those who went to his shop. Zenana work.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies at Srinagar are Miss Hull, Miss Coverdale, and Miss Newnham.

III. BELUCHISTAN.

QUETTA.

Drs. S. W. Sutton and Marcus J. Eustace labour on at Quetta. Quetta.
Quetta. Dr. and Mrs. Eustace had the sorrow of losing two of their children from dysentery in 1896. The Rev. J. Redman, of Karachi, spent three months at Quetta, from July to September, relieving Dr. Sutton of the pastoral charge of the little congregation of Indian Christians. He found that Dr. Sutton's health, owing to excessive work, had come perilously near to breaking down. The Rev. H. Carless, of the Persia Mission, visited Quetta in November on his journey out to Persia after furlough, and the missionaries discussed together the possibility of a chain of Mission-stations from Quetta to Ispahan.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies are Dr. Charlotte Wheeler and Miss M. L. White. During the year 23 villages were visited, in which 1,005 patients were seen, and 719 patients attended the dispensary; 88 zenana patients were visited, and 322 visits to other patients were made.

IV. SINDH.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Redman came home on furlough in April, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Abigail in May, 1897.

KARACHI.

The Congregation at Karachi does not make progress in numbers, but the Rev. A. E. Ball sees signs of a more robust spiritual health among some of the members. The Bishop of Lahore confirmed four candidates in April, 1896, one being from Hydrabad. The C.E.T.S. Branch has forty-five members. It was mentioned in last year's Report that Joel Michael, who had been a catechist, but had resigned some time before his Karachi. Congregation.

perversion, had joined the Church of Rome. He was received back again during 1896, showing signs of true penitence, and acknowledging his folly. The congregation formed a "Prem Sabha" (literally "Love Society") in the summer, the object being to bring the members together for social intercourse and for spiritual edification, and also to help the sick members. A similar society was subsequently formed for the women. A band of volunteers engaged in evangelistic work, and the Rev. D. A. Canney, who took charge of the station during Mr. Ball's absence at Quetta, refers as follows to their labours:—

Volunteer evangelists.

The young men, who are engaged all day in business and schools, &c., were glad of this opportunity, and we had a band of sixteen or eighteen preachers. About 7 p.m. we formed a procession, headed by a large square lantern covered with texts in four languages. We were followed by 600 or 700 men, and at the old market-place we had a large and attentive audience. This was too much for the heathen teachers of religion, and, like Demetrius and his Ephesian friends, they feared for their craft and the perversion of their people from the shrines of their goddesses.

We had, by the grace of God, a good two hours' quiet preaching, after which time threats were raised against us, and words changed to mud and refuse, and the "stone age" followed the "mud formation" on our clothes. As it was so natural and scientific in its order, we appeared unmoved at its development till many in the crowd expressed their feeling of shame upon their fellow-men, and at ten o'clock we left the city, believing that God had wrought all our works in us. The friends of Mohammedanism forbade us coming again on penalty of being beaten, but all the Native Christians in a truly manly way said, "We are ready to go."

The next preaching-night we had a very large audience, about 800 or 1,000 men, but it was clear some had come to trouble us, and after preaching for two hours a few men came out naked with oiled bodies and large sticks to beat us with; several of us were struck with stones or sticks.

High School.

The Rev. W. J. Abigail (now at home) saw encouraging evidences in some of the High School pupils of the power of God's Word—not only better moral conduct, but unmistakable signs of conviction of the truth of Christ's claims and a desire to be enrolled in the ranks of His disciples. The parents of the boys observed the same signs with very different feelings, and Mr. Abigail received a succession of notices that certain boys would be removed and sent to the Government school—their "brains were being turned"; they would not take part in the customary idolatrous ceremonies, and the Bible was preferred to their own Shastras. The sixth form was almost broken up. Nevertheless, the number of boys on the roll (850) was higher than ever before, and the fees reached Rs. 3,867. The Rev. R. Sinker, who was studying Sindhi throughout the year, took charge of the school when Mr. Abigail came home in April, 1897. Mr. Ball made an Itineration Tour, accompanied by the Rev. J. Redman, of Hydrabad, to Tatta, formerly on the Indus, now four miles from its present course. Here they were visited by an old Mission scholar under the Rev. J. Sheldon, who had nearly thirty years ago been on the point of seeking baptism, influenced thereto by a lecture of the late Rev. J. Knott, but had been turned aside by an infidel book. He said of his time at school: "Those were happy days; we used to read the Bible, and somehow it helped us to lead a better life." At Mirpur Batoro they looked up a man who had visited them at Tatta, the guru of a colony of Gujerathi-speaking shoemakers. These people eagerly bought Gujerathi Gospels, twenty being sold in a few minutes. Mr. Ball says:—

Boys' "brains being turned" by the Gospel.

A former pupil's reminiscences of school life.

The life of Christ in verse treated as their sacred book by a colony of shoemakers.

We had much conversation with them, and to our astonishment found they held the name of Christ in great veneration. They told us they had a book which gave an account of the Saviour we preached. When they visited us, as they did two or three times, Dana, the guru, brought the book with him. It had been given to him years ago in Gujerath, and proved to be a booklet published at the Mission Press, Surat, containing a brief account of the life of Christ in verse. A leaf or two were missing, but the book had been carefully rebound. They appeared to look upon it as their Shastra, and some of them knew much of it by heart. They confessed faith in Christ as the only Saviour. You may imagine how deeply interested we were in this case. We taught them a simple prayer and some of the elements of Christianity, and afterwards sent them a Gujerathi New Testament.

English lectures.

The audiences in the Max Denso Hall to hear the English Lectures were not so large as in previous years; but that which listened to a powerful lecture by the Bishop of Lahore on "The Resurrection of Christ" was, happily, an exception in this respect. The Judicial Commissioner of Sindh presided on the occasion. The Rev. I. F. Row, Secretary of the Anglo-Indian Evangelization Society, lectured on "The Greatest Event in History." As a result, under God, of the several evangelistic agencies, three adults were baptized. One was the wife of a Gujerathi Christian; the other two were Shiah Mohammedans. Of the two latter Mr. Ball gives the following interesting account:—

Two Shiah Mohammedans confess Christ in baptism.

One Friday evening at the beginning of the year we experienced specially great opposition from the Mohammedans while preaching in the bazaar. Seeing the crowd, a Mohammedan who had come from the Khairpur State to Karachi on business, walked up to see what was going on. I was reading at the time a passage from Matt. vi., and he asked some questions about it; but in such a hubbub it was impossible to do anything, and, crestfallen, we came away. Our friend S. K., however, had been interested, and he overtook us about half-way home and begged me to read again what he had heard in the bazaar. I did so, and a long conversation ensued. He came the next day, and again and again, till at last he spent nearly all his time talking with someone or other in the Mission and reading the Bible and controversial books. The quantity he read was astonishing, and the way he remembered it surprising. He was quick to catch one's meaning, and it was deeply interesting to watch him coming into clearer light. At last, after about a month, he professed himself satisfied that Christianity was of God, and Christ the only Saviour, and he begged to be baptized. It is not our custom to baptize any one under, as a rule, about a year's preparation; but this was a special case. He was leaving Karachi, and wished to confess Christ before he went. A special meeting of the Church Committee was called at which S. K. was present. He was clearly told what the result of baptism might be in his case. He might be persecuted, be dismissed from his situation, or even lose his life—was he prepared for Christ's sake to run the risk? He was. He had counted the cost, and, if need be, was ready to suffer for Christ. And so he was baptized on Easter morning. About a fortnight later he left for his home in Khairpur, a Mohammedan state, where he would be the only Christian. Much prayer was made for him, but as we heard nothing of him for some time we got somewhat anxious. A letter from him, however, relieved our fears and showed that our prayers had not been in vain. He told how he had talked with his elder brother, that he had read his books, and, when ill, had called on the Name of Christ. Some time after another letter told us that his brother was very near accepting the Faith, but had some few difficulties in regard to the Trinity, &c., that he was coming to Karachi to put certain questions to us, and that if they were satisfactorily answered he would be baptized.

A journey of 300 miles to inquire regarding the Gospel.

They both came over 300 miles to put these questions, with the result that B. K. was also baptized. They have gone on well, and B. K. has recently gone to Quetta, where it is hoped his knowledge of Persian will make him very useful. Both brothers speak Persian, Urdu, and Sindhi, and are well versed in the Koran. They belong to the Kolachi tribe, which lives near Dera Ismail Khan, but for nearly thirty years have been settled in Khairpur. B. K. is engaged in writing a book, the object of which is to show that the Koran itself should lead men to Christ. These brothers need our prayers, and may all who read this try to remember them before the Throne of Grace, that "they may grow in grace and in the knowledge of Jesus Christ"!

Book Depôt.

The Book Depôt sales amounted to 11,689 copies of books and tracts in English and various vernaculars. Friendly Greetings, a monthly paper published by the Rev. W. H. Ball, of Calcutta, is extensively circulated both in Karachi and Hydrabad and their respective districts.

The Plague.

The plague made its first appearance in Karachi on December 10th. Mrs. Ball wrote at the beginning of January:—

The 91st Psalm was my subject in the women's Bible-class yesterday, and they promised me to read it daily during this time of pestilence. We are anxious to have no panic among our people (as there is among Hindus and Mohammedans), and thus far, I am thankful to say, all seem at peace in their minds and trusting in our Father's care. Till yesterday we had the plague only on our right-hand side, but to-day it has passed by our compounds and has appeared on our left as well. I was out for fifteen minutes this morning in the street in front of our compound, and three corpses were carried past during the fifteen minutes. All our schools (except the High School and Gujerathi School) are closed now, and business seems paralyzed. Many city shops are closed, and many hearts are anxious and sad.

"In God's care."

I tell our people that we are in God's care; that we must do our part (having everything perfectly clean and taking all reasonable care), and we can leave all else trustfully to our Father. Of course our end of Karachi is more or less tabooed and avoided by the European people.

And again in February:—

We have had no panic among our people, and it is sweet (and helpful to us) to note their quiet reliance upon God. As I write I can hear a great shouting and noise; the Mohammedans are calling out as loud as they can shout in prayer for deliverance from the plague—a sort of despairing shouting—it makes my heart ache.

Prayer and humiliation.

We Christians, too, are much in prayer. We had a special day of prayer and humiliation last Saturday, and our little church had three times a goodly congregation of praying people, a quiet waiting and pleading before God; so different from this dreadful shouting. The municipality have built rows upon rows of bamboo sheds upon the land adjoining our land here for the refugees from the worst places in this plague-stricken city. Mr. Ball has built two sheds on our land in case any of our Christians are smitten with this terrible plague, but "hitherto has the Lord helped us." Pray for us, you dear fellow-workers at home, that the plague may not come nigh the dwellings of our little flock. The plague-mark painted on plague-stricken houses is a red cross! Thoughts on the "Passover" mark on door-lintels suggest themselves.

And towards the close of March Mr. Abigail wrote:—

Being a hitherto unknown enemy, nobody knew what ought to be done. It was, of course, decided that the city must be cleansed, and the watercarts were set busily to work, to wash away, if that were possible, the evil from the streets. The result of this, however, was only to make matters worse. The water stood in pools, and, a cold wind blowing at the time, many caught cold, and the death-rate rose rapidly.

Medicine refused by the people.

To increase the difficulty a panic seized the people, and they resolutely refused to admit the doctors to their houses. "No," they said, "they will only kill us with their medicines; the appointed number must die, and they will save themselves (i.e., Europeans) by destroying us. Sometimes at the last moment a doctor would be called, and, death following almost immediately, support was given to their belief. There was one such case where the civil surgeon was called to see a woman. He felt her pulse, and, finding it strong, hoped he might be able to bring her through; but she died soon after—"most unfortunately," as the doctor said; "killed by the medicine with which the doctor, in feeling her pulse, had touched her hand," said the people.

Death of a Mission-school pupil.

Another case was that of one of our pupils, a boy in whom we all felt strong interest. He and his brother were attacked by the plague, and we took a doctor and offered to pay all expenses. With the greatest reluctance they allowed the doctor to come in, and then positively refused to allow any medicine, even to relieve the high fever which was then on the boy. "If we sent it they would break the bottle and throw it away." Their utter ignorance of nursing, too, is pathetic. When we could do nothing ourselves, we urged the giving of nourishing food. "What food?" a brother asked; "shall we give him, pickles?" Poor Lala lingered a few days, then became delirious and died. He was a fine fellow, one of our best, an excellent student, a first-rate athlete, and, best of all, a sincere Christian—if that name may be given to one who did not belong to the visible Church. He was one of a little group who not only attended instruction here, but met together in a place by themselves for reading the Bible and prayer. Another of these died at Hydrabad, whither the family had gone for safety. Another lad was among the first to be seized, and in his house five out of seven died. It was very solemn at morning prayers to refer to another and yet another class-fellow taken away, while every day our numbers grew less and less, till at last our crowded rooms, that we had watched with such eager interest, were emptied, and the labour of years (apparently) was lost.

As cases occurred the houses were thoroughly disinfected, lime-washed inside and out, and marked with a red cross in a circle. Walking through the bazaar one could almost imagine what London was like in the Great Plague of Charles II.'s time.

When these measures failed to arrest the plague, it was decided to build huts on the open land outside the city, and there now may be seen long lines—"segregation camps" they call them—made of date-matting on a frame of poles, to which families have been removed from the infected quarters. Hospitals, too, have been improvised, but the greatest dislike is felt to entering them. "Let us die undisturbed among our friends"—that is how the people express themselves. It is only recently, since Government have taken the matter thoroughly in hand, that really effective seclusion of cases has been secured. Now the whole municipal area is divided up into districts, each under the charge of a responsible officer. Every case of sickness has to be reported, the houses are visited separately, and suspected persons are placed under observation. At the same time Government officers, from the Commissioner downwards, are doing their best, by constantly visiting the infected parts and personally superintending the carrying out of preventive measures, to reassure the terrified people.

Amazing apathy of the people.

Our friends at home will naturally wonder what is the religious effect of such a heavy calamity. It is difficult to form an accurate opinion, but I think, on the whole, we are amazed at the seeming apathy of the people. It is true some have prayed to God who never prayed before. There are many pious ejaculations heard that God may soon remove the plague, but of true, hearty repentance and a disposition to turn to God I fear there is but little. Some—and they Hindus and vegetarians—have taken to drinking brandy, hoping thus to save themselves. The belief in fate is very strong, and many for a long time refused to budge, saying if they were to die flight would be useless, and if they were not, then superfluous.

Belief in fate.

It seemed for a long time as if our Native Christians were to escape, but last week one died. The poor old soul, dreading removal to the hospital, kept her condition carefully concealed, and to within an hour of her death busied herself with her household duties. Inoculation is being tried, and Mr. and Mrs. Ball, with several of the Native Christians, have been inoculated, for the advancement of science and the public good.

The disease is still spreading, but, though in the midst of it, God has graciously kept us without fear of evil, and we have no doubt that He will over-rule all things for wise and good ends. If by it men are made to feel the instability of earthly things and led to inquire after God if haply they may find Him, it will not, in this godless and materialistic age, be in vain.

HYDRABAD.

Hydrabad.

The labourers in the city of HYDRABAD, and, it may be said, in Sindh generally, find their encouragements in the promises of God's Word rather than in the retrospect of their own work. The Rev. J. Redman, looking back over sixteen years of labour, is ready to say, though not in despair, "I have laboured in vain, and have spent my strength for nought and in vain." Yet he adds, "Nevertheless, the prospects of God's work in Sindh are as bright as the promises of God." The total number of adherents, baptized and unbaptized, is under forty, and their readiness to take offence and to cherish an unforgiving spirit, and, moreover, the want of discipline in their households, caused much anxiety to those who watched over them in the Lord. The High School suffered a fall in numbers, which stood at less than 100 in December, due in part to the rivalry of other schools, and in part to the decided Christian influence brought to bear in the Mission-school. Mr. Redman spent much time in preparing for the press the Acts of the Apostles in the Gurmukhi character and in the religious language of the Hindus. Though Hindus and Mohammedans both speak Sindhi, there is much difference in the religious terms used by the two communities, the former deriving theirs from Sanskrit, the latter from Arabic; consequently religious books prepared for Mohammedans are distasteful to Hindus, and vice versâ. Last year's Report (page 231) referred to an invitation which had been addressed to Mrs. Annie Besant to visit Sindh, in order "to check the tendencies towards Christianity which have for a long time been observed." Mr. Redman gives some account of her visit to Hydrabad, where she delivered four lectures. He says:—

High School.

Lectures by Mrs. Annie Besant.

Large numbers went to hear her, and many were much influenced. I fear the result has been that some who had been well-disposed have hardened their hearts against the claims of Christ. Many who had been more or less ashamed of Hinduism have become boastful again. Her fluent tongue and display of acquaintance with Oriental religions, shallow and superficial as her knowledge is, caught the ear of the people, who were highly flattered that an accomplished English lady should tell them that their religion was the best in the world.

I felt it my duty to be present at one of her lectures, painful though it was. Her subject was "Hinduism and Christianity." She did not take the line I expected of attacking or denouncing the latter; rather she patronizes Christianity, the aim of her lecture being to show that the chief doctrines of Christianity were all found in Hinduism. She instanced the Trinity, the Incarnation, the acknowledgment and worship (by Roman Catholics) of inferior spiritual existences (devils or angels), the Indwelling of God in man; even transmigration she claimed to find in the Bible, referring to John ix. 2 and i. 22, and Matthew xi. 14, and stated that a Canon of the Church of England had declared that the justice of God could only be vindicated by holding this doctrine. Appealing to her hearers, she exclaimed, "Why change your religion when you have all these doctrines in Hinduism?" It is needless to say that her treatment of these points was most superficial and unreal. Concluding, she said there were, indeed, two points of difference between the two religions: first, that Christianity taught everlasting punishment in hell—though, she said, it was questionable whether the doctrine were to be found in the Bible, and Dean Farrar and others did not hold it; second, that while Hinduism forbade the use of alcoholic drinks, Christianity permitted their moderate use. This is all the difference this accomplished woman could find between the two religions; at all events, all the difference she drew attention to. Were the subject not so sad and serious, one would feel inclined to treat it merely as a ridiculous joke. But I fear it has done serious harm. No lie is so dangerous as one that contains half a truth.

Embarrassing questions.

There was a gathering of Sindhi women to meet Mrs. Besant, at which a former pupil of our Mission-school interpreted. Some of the questions asked Mrs. Besant at this gathering were a little embarrassing. She told them that in her former birth she was a Brahman. "What terrible sin," her Sindhi friends asked, "had she committed in that birth that she should be born a Christian in her present incarnation?" Her reply that it was her wish to study the religions of the West did not prove altogether satisfactory to her audience. She had such a wonderful guru, she told them, so good and holy a man, in that previous birth. "What was his name?" interrogated again her inquisitive friends. Receiving no answer, some drew the conclusion that it must be the same as the name of her husband, so she could not utter it!

Though the visit of this poor misguided woman has attracted much attention for the time, I do not think it is likely to have great permanent effect. The Sindhis, like the Athenians of old, are ever ready for some "new thing." Not that they have any idea of acting upon it though, if it requires any great amount of self-sacrifice.

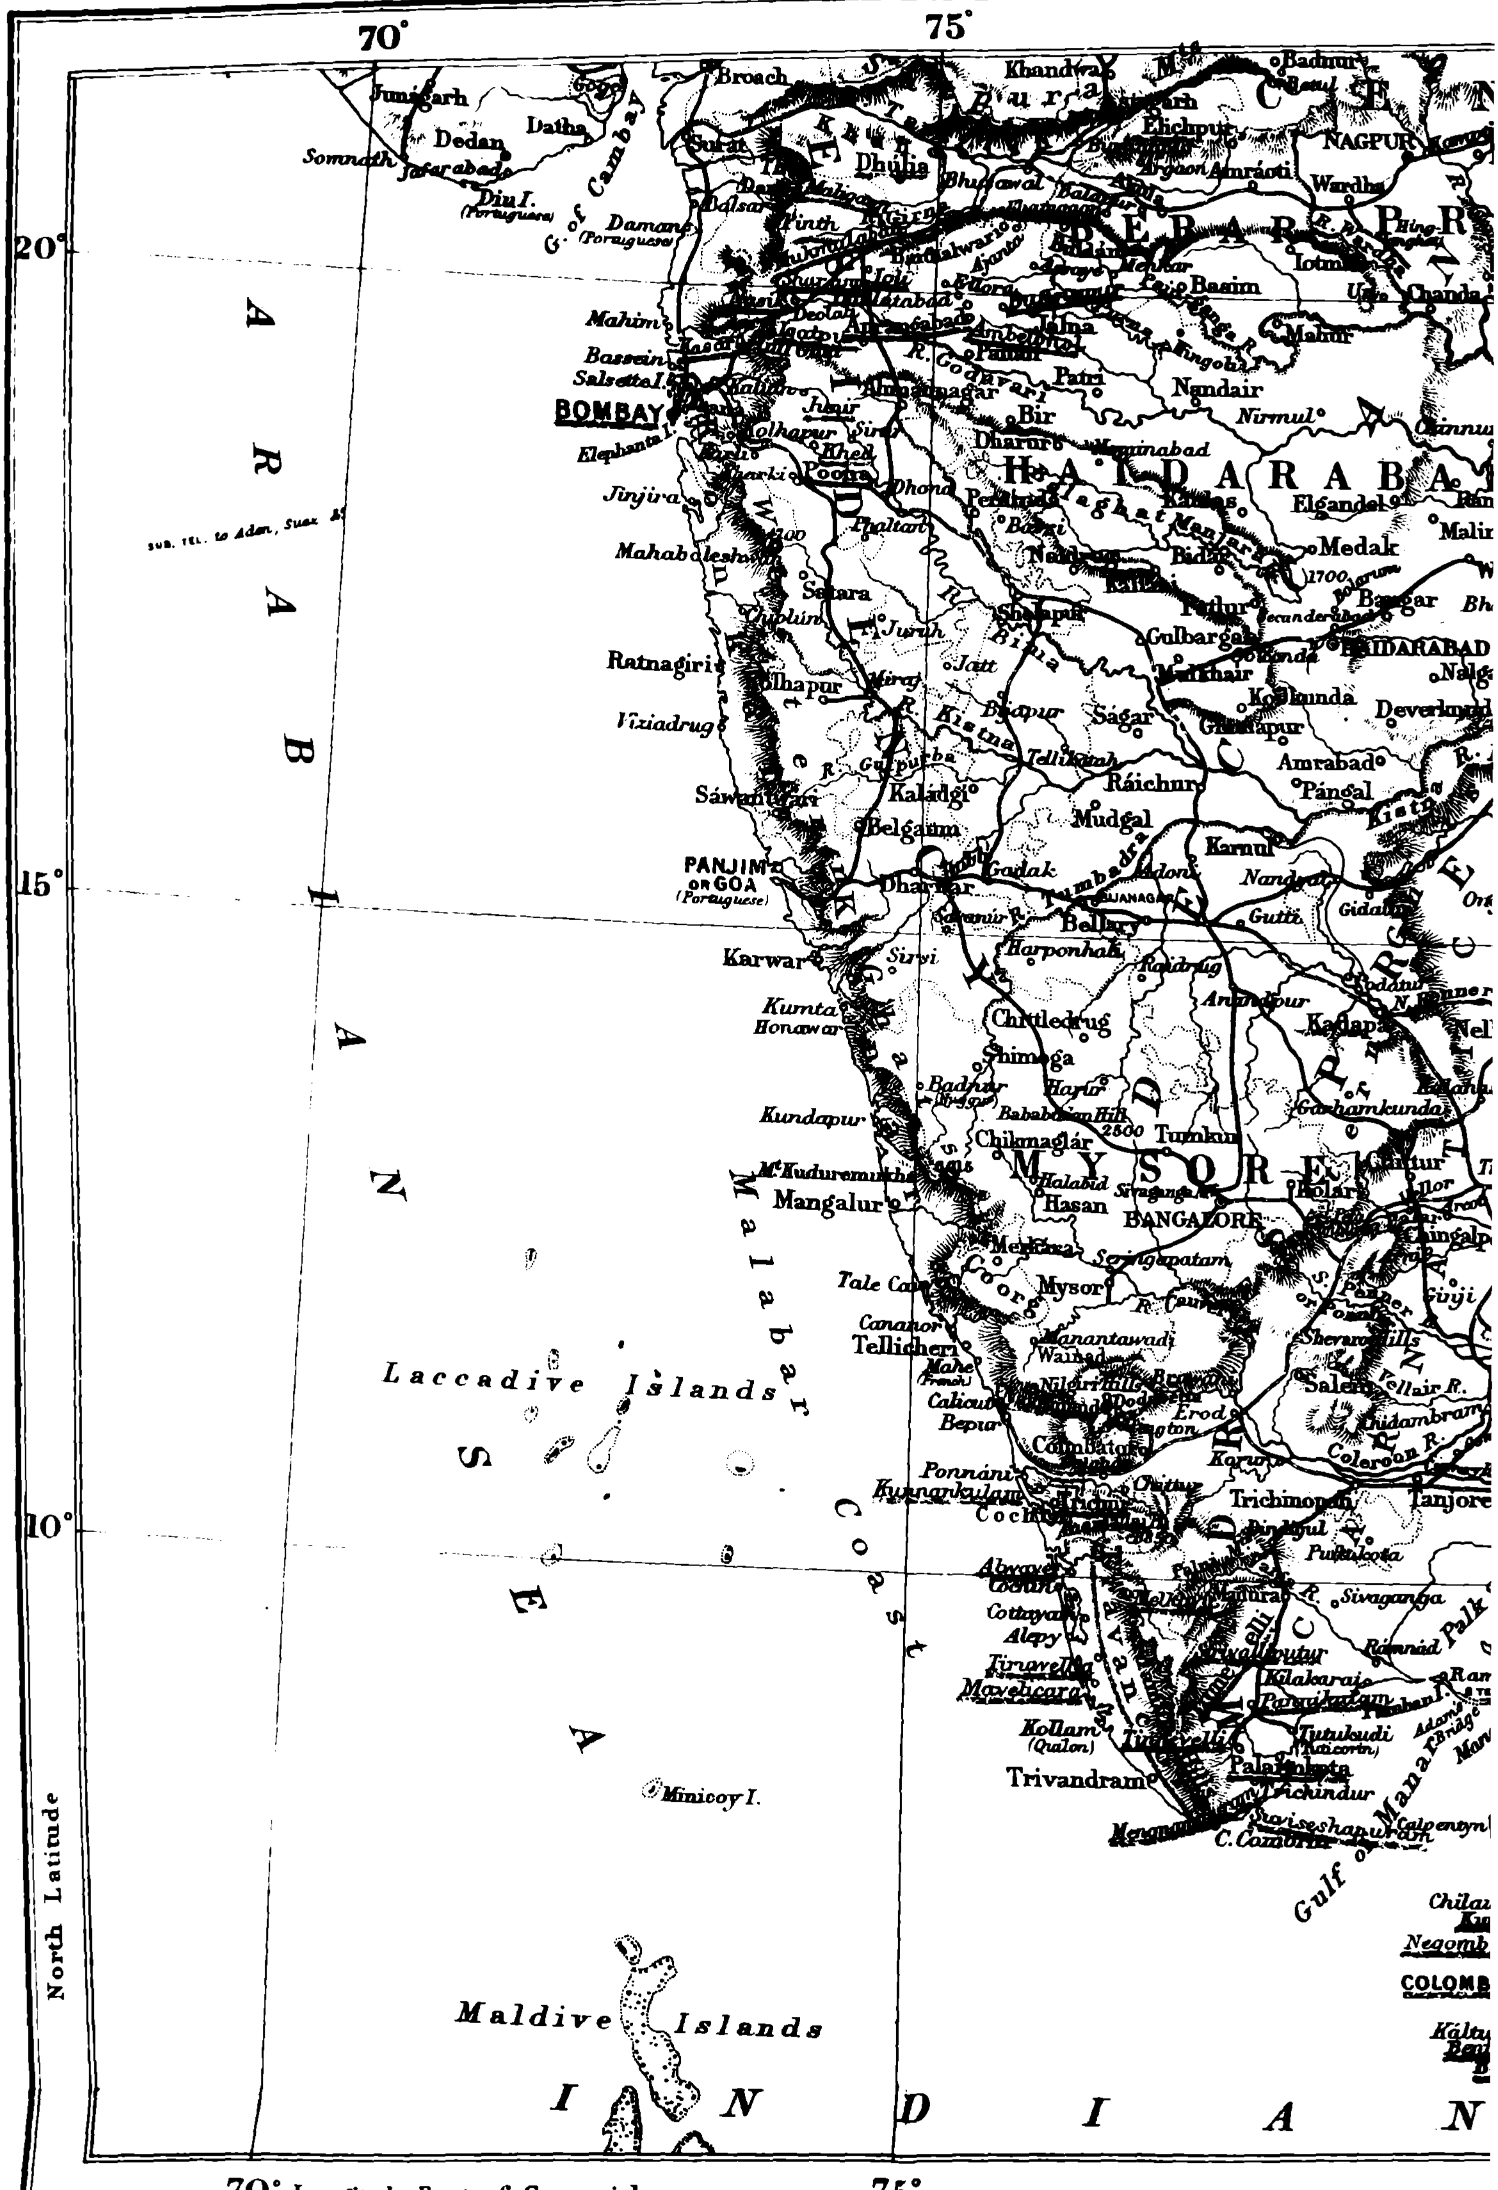
Mr. Redman spent two months in itinerating, in the spring and in the autumn of 1896, and in November he paid a visit to Umarkoti, the birthplace of Akbar. The Rev. D. A. Canney took charge of the work on Mr. Redman's coming home in March, 1897.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies labouring at Hydrabad are Miss E. Dawe, Miss A. Young, and Miss Piggott.

SUKKUR.



Sukkur. At SUKKUR the Rev. A. E. Redman reports that the native congregation continues about stationary in numbers. Some 435 Scripture portions in several vernaculars were sold, and upwards of 4,000 books and pamphlets. Mr. Redman itinerated in various directions: in the Khairpur State, then between Shikarpur and Sibi to the north-west, and between Sukkur and Khanpur to the north-east.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies working at Sukkur are Misses White, Brook, Gordon, and Driscoll.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first missionary of the C.M.S. to work in Bombay was the Rev. Richard Kenney, who landed in 1820; Nasik was occupied in 1832; Junir, 1846; Malegâm, 1848; Aurangabad, 1860; and Poona, 1882.

Missionary Settlement of University Women.

One of the most interesting developments of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union is a plan formed by women students at the Universities of Great Britain and Ireland for a Missionary Settlement of University Women at Bombay, a kind of deaconess' institution for evangelistic, educational, and medical work. Five ladies, the Misses Stones, one of them a graduate of Newnham College, Cambridge, Miss De Sélincourt, of Girton, Cambridge, and Somerville, Oxford, Miss Saunders, of Somerville, Oxford, and Miss Boyland, of Alexandra College, Dublin, arrived at Bombay in the course of 1896. The Rev. E. A. Stuart, Vicar of St. Matthew's, Bayswater, is President of the organization, and Miss G. A. Gollock is a member of the Council. The Rev. W. G. Peel, Secretary of the Western India Mission, represents the Council in India.

Reinforcement.

The only recruit sent to this Mission during the year was the Rev. Louis Bernard Butcher, B.A., Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge, and Islington College. His offer of service was accepted in July, 1895, and shortly afterwards, with the Committee's permission, he was appointed General Secretary of the S.V.M.U. and British College Christian Union. He was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on October 4th, 1896, and sailed in November.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Whiteside and the Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Parry returned to the Mission in November, 1896. The Rev. C. W. Thorne came home in February, and Mrs. W. G. Peel in April, 1897.

The Rev. J. G. Deimler has retired from active service after over forty years spent in labours for the Heathen, four in East Africa, and the rest in this Mission. Two of his daughters remain in the Mission in connexion with the Z.B.M.M.

Death of Mrs. A. H Bowman.

Mrs. Bowman, wife of the Rev. A. H. Bowman, died on November 19th, 1896. Her serious ill-health in 1891 obliged her husband to retire from his post at the Old Church, Calcutta, which he had held for two years, but she cheerfully consented to return to India again in 1892. Her death took place at Khandalla, whither she had been taken for change of air a week before.

The Annual Conference of Missionaries was held at Bombay on November 10th–13th. The Revs. Ruttonji Nowroji, T. Davis, and W. E. Scott, the Acting Archdeacon of the Diocese, preached sermons before the Conference.

Ordination. The Bishop of Bombay admitted the Rev. T. Davis to priest's orders on December 2nd, 1896.

The Corresponding Committee consists of the following members:—The Bishop of Bombay, Hon. H. M. Birdwood, Lieut.-Col. T. A. Freeman, and Revs. A. H. Bowman, W. A. Roberts, and W. G. Peel, Secretary.

BOMBAY.

Bombay. Girgaum Church. The work at Girgaum Church, BOMBAY, has many features of encouragement. The attendance at the services has increased yearly under the ministry of the Rev. A. H. Bowman, and the Pastoral Aid Fund, which relieves the Society from providing the stipend of the incumbent, rose from Rs. 1,546 in 1894 to Rs. 2,846 in 1896. The largest offertory of the past year, and of any previous year, was Rs. 702 for the suffering Christians in Armenia. Mr. Bowman, in addition to the ministerial duties connected with the English congregation, is chaplain to six different institutions, each of which involves at least one visit weekly, with a service and address. The Rev. D. L. Joshi took the pastorship of the Marathi Congregation, with 174 souls, of whom 92 are communicants, in October, 1896. Four adults were baptized, including one, a Guzerathi Brahman named Ranchodji, sent from Nasik. Mr. Joshi gave weekly addresses in Marathi to the students in the lower classes of the Robert Money School; and the Rev. W. H. Dixon also took two classes daily in the Scriptures. The number of students in the school was the same as reported last year—210. Mr. J. Jackson, the Principal, says that the opposition to Mission schools and to Mission work generally in Bombay is more pronounced than he has ever known it, and his connexion with the Mission reaches back thirty years. The Girls' School is under the charge of Miss Harris, of the Z.B.M.M. The Rev. W. H. Dixon reports on the Evangelistic Work among Marathis and English-speaking Natives. As a result of work among domestic servants by an agent of the Servants' Mission, a butler of the P. and O. captains' quarters, named Raoji, was baptized, and his father, who was at first opposed to his conversion, subsequently sent his other three sons to be instructed. Addresses in English and Marathi, and Bible-readings, were delivered every night in the Mission Hall; and during March Colonel Freeman and Mr. Dixon gave a series of lectures on "Man, his needs and his conceptions as to their fulfilment, displayed in the various religious systems which he has worked out for himself," and "The Fulfilment found in Christ." There were fewer inquirers than in the previous year. The Parsi converts, of whom accounts were given in the last Report (page 235), have stood firm amid severe trials of their faith. The Parsi Christian Association, referred to last year, holds quarterly meetings, which are fairly well attended. In connexion with it a magazine has been started, in the first number of which the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji gave an account of his own conversion; and in the second Mrs. Sorabji contributed a paper on her late husband, the Rev. Sorabji Kharsedji. Evangelistic Work among Mohammedans was carried on by street preaching in the districts where they reside, and at the tombs of saints outside the city, to which they resort on pilgrimage. This open-air work is not unattended with danger. On one occasion a catechist was placed hors de combat for some months by a blow on the head. The "Church Missionary Hall" referred to last year proved too small, and a larger one, capable of accommodating a hundred persons, has been opened, in which conversational discussions, lasting for three or four hours at a time, are held. The Rev. T. Davis says of these:—

Work among Mohammedans.

When some of the Maulavis are discussing before others they love to extol the monotheistic virtues of the Koran and the character of Mohammed. To meet them there are two questions I find most useful, which, if led up to in a quiet, friendly way, invariably put on the closure. "Mention one thing only in the life and character of Mohammed whereby we should infer his superiority to Jesus Christ." "Mention one doctrine only of monotheism revealed in the Koran which is not revealed in the Mosaic writings."

Two useful questions.

A man whose singular vagaries were traced in last year's Report under "Allahabad" (page 187), as having turned from Mohammedanism to Roman Catholicism, then to Protestantism, and then back to Mohammedanism, is referred to by Mr. Dixon. For a time he proved troublesome to the Mission at Bombay, but later professed to be friendly, and led a number of Maulavis to the hall for discussion. He went, after a time, to Hydrabad, in the Deccan. Mr. Davis meets not a few who have apostatized to Mohammedanism in Bombay, and he finds them very pitiable objects, despised by their co-religionists, and receiving little sympathy from Christians, and often very unsettled and unhappy in their own minds. Mr. Davis refers to three inquirers, ready for baptism, but waiting till they see some prospect of maintaining themselves after baptism. One is a married man with a family who would both lose his work and his family by confessing Christ in baptism; another is a merchant's son, who would have to leave his father's house; and the third is a soldier in a Sikh regiment who first heard of Christianity in a Mission-school in Calcutta, and was introduced to Mr. Davis by Mrs. Sorabji, of Poona.

The Plague.

The plague, which commenced its ravages in Bombay in September, 1896, has been noticed in the introductory section to the India Missions. In the middle of December the Rev. W. G. Peel, the Secretary of the Mission, wrote:—"Plague very bad; new cases rise to fifty, sixty, and even sixty-seven a day; many deaths. The city is in a great plight. Tens of thousands of the people have fled, and the exodus goes on daily. It is all round us now. You are praying for us." At the end of January: "Death is all around us—100 new cases to-day. On good computation about 10,000 have died in Bombay, and half the population has fled." A fortnight later the plague had made its appearance in the church compound, and the wife of one of the Mission servants died. At the beginning of March the population of the city was estimated to be 300,000, instead of 820,000, its normal number of inhabitants, the remainder having fled or died. But the plague deaths were by that time diminishing, averaging 130 a day, having risen at one time to 200. Mr. Peel added:—

"Death all around us."

Very few Christians died from the plague.

At the Bombay Missionary Conference last Monday, we found that the Indian Christians connected with the various Missions had only lost eight by death from plague. S.P.G. was not represented, and I do not know how many they have lost—very few, I think. You will join with us in thanking God for this great mercy.

The Z.B.M.M. has a strong staff of ladies in Bombay; viz., Misses Trott, Schwarz, and Campbell, engaged in zenana and school work; Misses Kimmins, Edge, Hughes, in school work; and Mrs. Clark, Miss Morris, Miss King, and Miss Forbes, in zenana work. The Rev. W. G. Peel is the Hon. Secretary of the Z.B.M.M. for the Bombay Presidency.

NASIK.

Nasik.

The Rev. A. Manwaring is in general charge of the pastoral and industrial work at Nasik, and is Chairman of the Western India Church Council. The Marathi Congregation was under the Rev. D. L. Joshi until October, when he went to Bombay, and the Rev. A. Cornelius succeeded him at Nasik. Every seat in the church is occupied at the Sunday services, some 200 being the average attendance, and Mr. Manwaring says: "The service is one which I attend with great pleasure and profit. There are few native congregations in India where the responses are more hearty or where the singing is better." The Sunday-schools are attended by seventy-eight boys and forty-seven girls, and the Sunday-school teachers meet every Thursday to talk and pray over the next Sunday's lesson. The high price of food owing to the famine rendered the care of the Orphanage an unusually anxious one to the Superintendent. Mr. Manwaring has endeavoured to develop industrial occupations at Sharanpur, the Christian village, and he reports with satisfaction that carpentry to the value of Rs. 1,200 was turned out, and purdahs, or curtains, made of grass seeds, sold for Rs. 200. This branch of the work proved self-supporting, and has the advantage of affording a training for several Christian youths. Evangelistic work in the town of Nasik is carried on by addressing gatherings in two preaching-halls, one of them in the Mohammedan quarter, by open-air preaching, by visits to Brahman gentlemen and others, and by Sunday-schools for heathen children. Some Mohammedans showed much quiet earnestness in listening to the Message. In August the Sinvhast Festival, which occurs only once in twelve years, was observed at Nasik. Of the importance attached to it the Rev. C. W. Thorne (now at home) wrote :—

Industrial work.

Sinvhast Festival.

> The Brahmans say that "during the Sinvhast all the sacred waters of India 'come to meet' in the Godavery, and lie hid in her all the year ; so that to bathe in this river during the Sinvhast is equal to bathing in all the sacred waters of India. One bath in the Godavery at this time is equivalent to bathing in the Ganges 60,000 years, and to die by the river is certain salvation. No merit is obtained by bathing in any other river in the whole of India during the Sinvhast."

In spite of these advantages, whether owing to the famine or to other causes, the numbers attending were much smaller than on previous occasions ; instead of hundreds of thousands, the Rev. E. J. Jones mentions 50,000 as present at Nasik on the first day of the festival, August 13th, and 7,000 at Trimbuk. At any rate, the numbers were amply sufficient to provide scope for the small evangelistic parties that sought to improve the opportunity in their Master's Name. The labours of the little C.M.S. contingent were not unrewarded. A number of Sadhus, it was found, were more or less favourably disposed towards Christianity, and several placed themselves under instruction. Three of these were baptized at Nasik, and a fourth, as already mentioned, at Bombay : one of the three subsequently left Nasik, another was a Guzerathi, and the third a Malabari, who was sent back to his own country. The Rev. D. L. Joshi writes :—

Diminished number of pilgrims.

Baptism of Ascetics.

> Our inquirers represented the various orders of Bairagas and Gosavis. For a time our little village of Sharanpur had the appearance of a hermitage. Hindustani was the medium of communication. When I taught them it was curious to see them reading Malayalam, Guzerathi, Urdu, and Marathi Testaments. What a testimony to the noble work of the Bible Society !

"Testimony to the work of the Bible Society."

Mr. Joshi wrote a fifty-page tract on the festival, which has been published.

But a still more important convert has to be mentioned. On August 2nd Mr. Manwaring baptized Professor Pandit Gopal Chundra Shastri, M.A., of Calcutta University, the son of Rao

Bahadoor Gowree Sankar, a wealthy landlord and influential merchant. The Pandit, who is an Oriental scholar, and was at one time a magistrate of the second class, had travelled widely in India, and had visited Burma, Ceylon, Aden, and even Tibet as a preacher and teacher of Hinduism. He attributed his conversion solely to the Word of God, saying: "It is the Book through which God speaks to man; by constantly reading both the Testaments I have been able to understand the true religion and the Only Mediator." Mr. Shastri subsequently entered the Madras Divinity Class. It was largely through his influence that the inquirers mentioned above were attracted to the missionaries during the festival.

The Revs. E. J. Jones and C. W. Thorne took part in the work of the Itinerancy. In many places there were large audiences, but a lack of anything more than a passing interest. At one place, Nimon, however, Mr. Jones found all classes of people, and especially the Brahmans, apparently greatly interested. On two or three occasions his tent was filled with Brahmans with whom he held friendly discussions. Mr. Thorne met in one village, where the Gospel had been heard before, a man who had named his son "Jesus," so that in calling him and speaking of him he would always be acquiring merit by the repetition of the name of a great God. Mr. Jones reports on the out-stations. At Deolali he was delighted with the result of his examination of the schools in Scripture. In some cases nearly eighty per cent. of full marks were obtained. The Igatpuri schools also did fairly well. A blind catechist is stationed at Makhmalabad, and Mr. Jones was struck by the clearness of his arguments and his grasp of divine truth. The other out-stations are Sinnar, Yeola, Sangamner, and Dodi—where a school for Mahar boys was opened during the year.

A heathen parent names his son "Jesus."

POONA AND JUNIR.

Poona Divinity School.

The Divinity School buildings at POONA were sufficiently advanced by July, 1896, for the students to enter into residence, the vestry of the church being used for classes; but the class-rooms were ready by September. The building was formally opened by Mr. H. Wingate, C.I.E., the Bishop of Bombay being prevented by Mrs. Mylne's illness from performing the function. Six hours' lectures were given daily to two classes, one containing two candidates for an examination which the Bishop of Bombay has sanctioned for vernacular pastors; and the other consisting of five preparing for work as catechists. The Principal, the Rev. R. S. Heywood, observes in some of his students evidence of independent thought, and "a wonderful knowledge of Scripture passages," and also a "remarkable faith in prayer." Except to two of the students—a Tamil and a former Parsi, who are taught in English—the instruction is in Marathi. The Rev. D. K. Shindé gives the following list of subjects which were taken by himself:—

A. Vernacular Pastors:—(1) Old Testament: (a) The history of the Canon; (b) The general history of the Old Testament. (2) Pastoral Theology. (3) Evidences (Mitchell's Letters to Indian Youths). (4) Church History up to the Council of Nicea. (5) Sermon composition.

B. Senior Readers:—(1) Old Testament: (a) General history; (b) Special: (i) Genesis; (ii) Exodus, chapters ix.-xx. (2) New Testament: (a) General history; (b) Special: (i) Acts, chapters x.-xxviii. (3) Outline of Christian Evidences. (4) Church History. (5) Hinduism.

Congregations.

Mr. Shindé ministers to the Marathi Congregation, with 184 members (including, however, some families living in Khed and Junir), and Mr. Yessudian, the Tamil student at the Divinity School, referred to above, to the Tamil Congregation, with 182 members. A polyglot Sunday-school is held on Sunday afternoons, with classes in English, Marathi, and Tamil; half the members are adults. The Bishop of Bombay confirmed twenty-four candidates in August, four of whom were Tamils, and the rest Marathis. When the Rev. W. A. Roberts took charge of the Evangelistic Work in the extensive district of Poona, Khed, and Junir in January, 1896, the only native agents at his disposal were two inexperienced youths in Poona, and a non-graded agent at Junir. He obtained after a time two probationary agents, and was successful in securing a hall in Poona for evangelistic meetings. Open-air preaching was carried on morning and evening at some sixteen places in the town during the rainy season, the divinity students assisting. The people listened well, and readily accepted tracts. There were three adult baptisms, one a Marathi, the other two Tamils.

Junir Itinerancy

In JUNIR Mr. Roberts reports a few inquirers, but the uncertainty in regard to their future maintenance deters them, as many others, from baptism. A school for low-caste children was re-opened during the year. The Itinerancy is extensive and populous, and, to a large extent, virgin soil. Eighty different villages and towns were visited during the year. At the beginning of 1897 Mr. Roberts and his fellow-workers were itinerating in the valley of the Bhima, which, so far as they could ascertain, had never been evangelized before. Stubborn ignorance was found, and the idolatrous customs of centuries have, of course, a tenacious hold, but the people listened willingly and attentively. Mr. Roberts, after one of his tours in company with the Revs. R. S. Heywood and H. T. Jacob, thus summarized the convictions which were impressed on their minds:—

(1) The intense ignorance of the truth that exists in the district. If these people near and on the main road are so dark still, what must be the condition of those in the valleys and mountainous parts of the north, where no one certainly in recent years, if ever, has visited, and where some of us hope to go at an early opportunity? It is surely enough to excite Christian compassion when one hears a very old man, with one foot in the grave, in a village near to a busy centre, asking, as one did in the preaching one morning, where will the wind (meaning his soul) go when it leaves the body. They are without knowledge, without hope, without comfort.

"Without knowledge, without hope, without comfort."

Wide-reaching influence of bazaar preaching.

(2) The wide-reaching influence of the street-preaching in large centres. One Sunday morning we were taking a quiet walk, and fell in with a number of pilgrims. Did they know anything of Jesus Christ? "Yes," said one intelligent man. "Where did you hear of Him?" "In Calcutta." "What do you know of Him?" "He is the Son of God, Who will conduct us to the Father." On another Sunday morning, another pilgrim of another company had also heard the Gospel in Calcutta. In the villages in which we preached, although they had not heard in their own villages, yet we came across several instances where men had heard the preaching in Poona or elsewhere.

(3) The immense importance of elementary schools. These people are so steeped in ignorance, in prejudice, and in sin, and are such slaves to evil customs and modes of life, and their children are growing up as they; but if we could get hold of the children, we might be able to give their thoughts a turn from the groove in which the minds and lives of their ancestors have moved for ages.

The schools at Khed, both the Anglo-Vernacular and the one for Mahars, had a chequered course. The former for a time had a rival school, opened by a Brahman, which diminished its numbers. The latter, owing to the scarcity, had to be closed, as the boys' earnings in the relief works rendered their time precious as bread-winners.

The Rev. W. C. Whiteside, on his return from furlough in December, resumed charge of the Itinerancy, residing for the present at Poona.

MALEGÂM.

Malegâm.

The Rev. F. G. Macartney's experience at MALEGÂM, as regards the attitude of the Mohammedans and Hindus towards the Gospel, corresponded with that met with by St. Paul from the Jews and Greeks of his day: to the former Christ crucified is a stumbling-block, to the latter foolishness. There are a goodly number of Mohammedans in Poona, mostly poor weavers. Very few can read the Koran in Arabic, and there is no Maulavi of any influence among them, yet they defend their religion with zeal and determination, and state their objections to Christianity with the fullest confidence. A stray Maulavi from North India, who was able to quote from memory his references to the New Testament, giving chapter and verse, was put forward at the preaching-place as the champion of Islam. The controversies were conducted without bitterness, and the Christian workers continued on good terms with their fellow-townsmen. The preaching-hall and school were wrecked by the rising of the River Mosam, on which Malegâm stands, which was an inconvenience, as street preaching is often objected to by the police because of its blocking up the narrow thoroughfares. There were no adult baptisms.

Controversy without bitterness.

Six inquirers were under instruction, but some were turned from their purpose by relatives, others would have become dependent on the Mission for support if baptized. Their case illustrates the great problem, "How to provide work for native converts." When a solution is found, Mr. Macartney is sure that many will join the Church.

The Congregations in Malegâm and its four out-stations—viz., Nandgaon, Manwar, Sawakarwadi, and Dhulia—number 175 baptized members, nearly one-half of whom are children. There are six Schools with 640 children, compared with 495 in 1895. The Government grants increased by Rs. 121, and the fees by Rs. 108. An attempt to start a girls' school in Malegâm was unsuccessful, the parents having no desire to have their daughters educated. At Manwar, however, the girls' school made good progress. It has been taken over by the Z.B.M.M., which has three European ladies engaged in village work in the Malegâm district—namely, Miss A. Thompson, Miss A. Sims, and Miss B. Willison.

The Church Council opens an out-station among the Bhils.

During the itinerating season every town and most of the large villages of the district were visited. An experienced native agent, Mr. Antoba, was placed in February, 1896, at Nandurbar, to work among the Bhils of North-West Khandesh, and three other workers have since been associated with him. Two schools also have been opened. The simple Bhils accorded the evangelists a cordial reception at first, but they were subsequently frightened by the stories of Brahmans, who assured them that the Christian preachers were sorcerers who had the power of inflicting mental and physical blindness on the parents of children whom they wished to get hold of, and that the children would be made into bamalaes—viz., small dried fish. The Western India Native Church Council has undertaken the cost of this enterprise.

False reports spread by Brahmans.

A few plague cases occurred in Malegâm in the winter, but the consequences of famine were felt universally throughout the district, prices being higher than during the famine of 1877. As early as October it was reported that in Khandesh one-fifth of the population would be in need of relief. Mr. Macartney says:—

The people humbled and expectant.

> We have found the people in many places humbled and expectant. They acknowledge that the hand of the Almighty is upon them, and that not a little of the present distress and suffering is the result of sin. Many profess that they have ceased to look to their unsympathetic gods that are about them. They have lost confidence in them, and instead of looking down they are looking up to the Supreme Being, Parameshwara.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Parry, on their return to the Mission after furlough in December, 1896, were stationed at AURUNGABAD, with the view to Mr. Parry opening a training class, and taking charge of the Anglo-Vernacular school. This measure has been urged for some years past by the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji, who has charge of the station and district work, and in which since the station was opened in 1870 he has had no European fellow-labourer. Mr. Ruttonji dwells mainly in his Annual Letter on the evangelistic efforts of the year and their fruits. Besides regular preaching on market-days in the city, catechists make a practice of joining parties on the road and travelling with them, in order, without interrupting their journeying, to deliver their Gospel message. Mr. Ruttonji mentions the following incident of bazaar-preaching:—

A sneer fittingly rebuked.

While I was preaching in the bazaar one day a Brahman began to sneer at the condition of the Christians, and to say that Christianity was intended for the lower, and not for the higher classes. Upon this the preacher put the New Testament into the hands of an old Christian standing by, who at eighty years of age had learned to read, and asked him to read a few verses from it. Then, taking the book from him, he handed it to the high-caste man, and asked him to read, but he was obliged to confess with shame that he did not know how. The missionary then appealed to the bystanders, and asked which was the nobler of the two, the aged Christian who had learned to read, or the rich man who had never learned to do so?

Converts.

Mr. Ruttonji baptized a Brahman youth from Agra who was first impressed through listening to the bazaar preaching. His friends did their utmost to dissuade him from being baptized, but he stood his ground, and made good progress in learning the Scriptures, committing to memory the principal contents of Genesis and of the Gospel of St. Matthew. Six other adults were baptized. Mr. Ruttonji observes a relaxation of the hold of Hinduism over the people's minds. In the course of a sermon he preached before the Missionary Conference in November, he said:—

People learning to contrast Christianity and Heathenism.

The people are learning to contrast the gentleness and love of Christianity with their own religion. Hindus who went from Aurangabad to the great Sinvhast festival at Nasik, on coming back to their homes openly expressed their disappointment with the Hindu Sadhus, asserting that their envy and malice, their irritation and spirit of revenge, was something altogether different from the religion taught by the missionaries.

This altered state of feeling was exhibited also during the sufferings consequent on the famine. Mr. Ruttonji says:—

Indignation against impotence of idols in time of famine.

The country has suffered much for want of the latter rains. The Hindus had hired Brahman priests to keep up their noisy worship before the village idols, and fully expected abundant rain as the result of their worship. But after waiting for days and weeks, they resolved to punish the gods who had received costly offerings without giving them the looked-for blessing in return. In some places they indignantly besmeared their idols all over with mud, and closed up the entrance of the temples with thorns. In others they filled up the temples with water, and blocked up the doors, so that the idols may shiver in wet as a punishment for keeping their fields dry.

Of the Christians in the villages of his district, on the other hand, he remarks :—

My Christians are experiencing great inconvenience and hardship from the scarcity that prevails. But I am thankful to say that their trust in God is not shaken. They continue to offer their prayers to the Lord Whose they are; and have stoutly set their faces against robbery and violence, which their Heathen neighbours commit in the open day.

Testimony of Government Inspector to patience and cheerfulness of Christians

The Inspector of H.H. the Nizam's schools had occasion to visit several of the villages where my Christians reside. He told me that he made a point of watching their conduct closely, and was struck with their Christian patience and cheerfulness. Distressed by scarcity, which to them is no less than famine, harassed by the Heathen on all sides, they made a deep impression on his mind that nothing but the Arm of God had kept them from denying their faith or from doing wrong. I was thankful to receive this encouraging and impartial testimony from one who has had rare opportunities of forming an independent opinion of my several hundred Christians scattered in the district.

In the first "Quarterly Paper" of the Parsi Christian Association, to which reference has been already made (vide supra, page 249), Mr. Ruttonji, after tracing his own personal history, bears his testimony to the faithfulness of his Saviour, and appeals to his Parsi brethren :—

A Christian appeals to his "Parsi brethren."

It is now forty years since I embraced the Christian faith, and during that long period I have experienced trouble and difficulty and sorrow of one kind or another, but I rejoice to bear my testimony to the faithfulness of the Lord Jesus Christ. Had it not been for the solace of His holy religion I would have been miserable, instead of which I am happy and peaceful.

My Parsi brethren! though I have given up your faith I have not given up my love for you. When I was in England in 1893 I spoke of you everywhere in high terms, assuring the English people that you were the most loyal subjects of Her Majesty the Queen-Empress, and that you held her person in great reverence and loyalty, and all my hearers were greatly pleased. And because I love you, let me entreat you with tender affection that you earnestly seek the kingdom of God and His righteousness revealed in the Lord Jesus Christ; and pray remember that no other name under heaven is given among men whereby we must be saved. May He bring you to this saving knowledge.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the last century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Several Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several native clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Telugu Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Râghavapuram, 1872; and Khammamett, 1888. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godávari, was founded by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Native Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others, the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891.

Reinforcements.

THE reinforcements sent out during the year were the following:—the Rev. Edward Alfred Livingstone Moore, B.A., Oriel College, Oxford, son of the Rev. E. Moore, Principal of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford; the Rev. Ellis Gregory Roberts, M.A., Jesus College, Oxford, Minor Canon of Llandaff, whose brother, the Rev. W. M. Roberts, is an Association Secretary of the Society in Wales; and the Rev. William John Williamson, Islington College, who was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896, and was selected to read the Gospel on the occasion. Mr. Moore was assigned to the Mohammedan Mission, Madras, and the other two to the Telugu Mission. Mr. Williamson sailed in October, Mr. Roberts and Mr. Moore in November.

Ordination.

Mr. R. F. Ardell, of this Mission, was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London, at St. Paul's Cathedral, on March 14th, 1897.

Successes in Peter Cator Scripture examination by pupils in Society's schools.

The Society's Mission-schools in South India were remarkably successful in the Peter Cator Scripture Examination of 1896, open to all candidates, Europeans and Natives, within the Presidency of Madras. In the Higher Grade, the first prize of Rs. 100 was conferred on Miss K. R. Krishnamma, of the Noble College, Masulipatam; the second prize of Rs. 80 on J. G. Thomas, of Tinnevelly College; and the fourth prize of Rs. 40 on L. V. Thomas, of Noble College. The third and only other prize was won by a student of the Madras Christian College. In the Lower Grade, the first prize of Rs. 50 was obtained by A. Perianayakam, of C.M.S. High School, Mengnanapuram; the second of Rs. 40 by A. Arulappan, of the Palamcotta High School; the third of Rs. 35 by M. John, of the same school; the fourth of Rs. 30 by George Henry, of Zion High School, Chintadrepettah; the fifth of Rs. 25 by M. Somasundaram, of the Normal School, Masulipatam; the sixth of Rs. 20 by K. Pakkian, of the Elliot Tuxford School, Mengnanapuram; the eighth of Rs. 10 by K. N. Perimal, of Cottayam College; the ninth of Rs. 8 by T. Sarveswara Dikshatula, of Noble College. Thus all the prizes, except the third of the Higher Grade and the seventh of the Lower, were won by pupils of C.M.S. schools. The winner of the first prize, Higher Grade, Miss K. R. Krishnamma, is a daughter of a leading Indian Christian, one of the converts of the Rev. Robert Noble.

The following are the members of the Madras Corresponding Committee which administers the South India Mission:—The Bishop of Madras, the Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura, Archdeacon W. W. Elwes, the Revs. C. H. Pelly, W. Scott, and H. D. Goldsmith, Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot, and the Rev. E. Sell, Secretary. Mr. Sell's return, in February, 1897, after furlough, was hailed with much joy in Madras. The congregations held a special meeting to express their esteem and satisfaction.

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

Interview with Professor S. Satthianadhan.

The Committee had the pleasure of an interview, in October, 1896, with Professor S. Satthianadhan, of Madras, a son of the late Rev. W. T. Satthianadhan, who was taking a tour in Europe and America. He reminded the Committee of the difficulties attending work among the educated classes in India, owing to their intellectual pride and false patriotism, and also to the un-Christian lives of many Englishmen. But he spoke hopefully, and especially so as regards the increasing spiritual power of the Native Christian community in Madras.

Address by students of Madras Christian College.

The past and present students and friends of the Madras Christian College—towards which the Society makes an annual grant of £300 in recognition of the privilege which Native Christians, who have received the truth through the Society's missionaries, enjoy of prosecuting there their studies for the University Examinations—presented an address in the summer of 1896 to the Free Church of Scotland, whose institution the College is, thanking the Free Church for the work and influence of the College and its Principal, Dr. Miller. The interest of the occasion was greatly enhanced by the fact that Dr. Miller himself occupied the Moderator's chair, the Free Church having, not for the first time, done itself the honour of electing a missionary to its chief post of honour. The official reply of the Assembly to the address of the students was moved by Principal Rainy, and concluded with the following most admirable words, especially so when it is remembered that some of the signatories of the address are the most distinguished native gentlemen in South India, Heathen and Mohammedan as well as Christian:—

Reply of Free Church of Scotland.

You remind us that many of you are not sharers with us in the religious belief which has inspired our work in India and elsewhere. We respect the exercise of your own judgment, and through all the differences that may divide us we would maintain the same cordial goodwill. It is most true that we desire, as you express it, to see East and West linked in a common brotherhood. We rejoice in all good gifts which are peculiarly your own; and we would be serviceable to you in communicating, so far as you will receive them, whatever good gifts have been bestowed upon us by Him Who has made of one blood all nations of men to dwell upon the face of the earth. But in that spirit we desire affectionately, and above all things, once more to commend to you, as our missionaries have often done, the Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God, Who for us men and for our sake took flesh and died. We men in the West have no better claim to Him than you have. We possess nothing so precious—we value nothing so much—we have no source of good so full, fruitful, and enduring—we have nothing to compare with the Lord Jesus Christ. To Him we must bear witness. And we should gladly consent that you should cease to listen to us, if you should be led to give your ear and your heart to Him.

Ordination.

The Bishop of Madras admitted Mr. John Gnanapragasam to deacon's orders in March, 1896.

The Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick sailed in September to return to the Mission. The Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Lash came home in May, 1897.

Southern Pastorate.

The Annual Letter of the Rev. W. D. Clarke, native clergyman in charge of the Southern Pastorate, MADRAS, is full of interest, and evidences a work, both wide and deep, of the Holy Spirit. Two congregations are under Mr. Clarke's ministerial care, those of Zion Church, Chintadrepetta, and Trinity Chapel, known as John Pereira's. The number of baptized Christians connected with the two congregations is 805, and the average morning attendance is 260 and 60 at the two churches respectively. The Christians are widely scattered over the city, which probably accounts for the proportion of attendants at the service not being larger. On special occasions the churches are often quite filled, as was the case when the Bishop of Calcutta preached at Zion Church on Sunday, October 25th, when 730 people filled all the available space throughout the building. Mr. Clarke gives the following account of his Sunday and week-day engagements:—

A native pastor's engagements.

My time on Sundays is fully occupied from seven in the morning till seven in the evening. I begin my Sunday work by conducting the morning service in Zion Church at 7.30; a Bible-class for young men from 9 to 9.30; another morning service at Trinity Chapel at 10 a.m.; a Sunday-school for poor children in Zion High School from 3 to 4 p.m.; an evening service at Zion Church at 4 p.m.; and a cottage prayer-meeting at 7 p.m.

In the week-days I commence my work by conducting a morning service four days in the week at 7 a.m. in Zion Church, and spend an hour every day from 10 to 11 a.m. in imparting Scripture instruction in Zion High School and other primary schools connected with the pastorate, and the afternoon is set apart for visiting the congregation. Almost every evening in the week I conduct what is called a cottage prayer-meeting in the six districts into which the Southern Pastorate is divided.

Mr. Clarke attaches great importance to cottage meetings, as they bring Christian families together, and thus tend to preserve unity and concord, as well as afford excellent opportunities to the pastor to speak his mind fully and freely to his people. The Christians of the pastorate contributed Rs. 2,284 in monthly subscriptions, collections at divine services, missionary boxes, and the annual Ingathering Service. This last was held on Easter Monday, April 6th, 1896. On Easter Day a Memorial Hall to the memory of William T. and Anna Satthianadhan was opened by the Bishop of Madras; and in this hall the Harvest Thanksgiving service was held on the day after, followed by an auction sale of the people's offerings, which included a cow, a number of sheep, fowls, turkeys, ducks, pigeons, jewels of gold and silver, household furniture, fancy articles and toys, fruits and vegetables, &c., &c., and realized Rs. 380. At an Ingathering Dinner the same day, 150 men, women and children sat down together, without distinction of caste or rank. A lantern exhibition ended the day's proceedings. The Juvenile Association connected with the pastorate collected Rs. 135 during the year, of which Rs. 100 were given to the Native Church Fund, Rs. 15 to the Gleaners' Union Branch Fund, and Rs. 7 to the Bible Society. Twelve adults were baptized. Mr. Clarke has under his supervision a high school, six primary schools for poor children, and five Hindu girls' schools. Evangelistic agents labour to make Christ known in hospitals, railway-stations, and among servants; and some twenty voluntary evangelists, members of the Preachers' Association, proclaim the Gospel at two different centres in the city twice every week, and once a month they meet all together and conduct a large open-air meeting. Twice a year they make a five days' visit to some place where the Gospel is little known.

Harvest thanksgiving.

The chief event in the year's history of the Pastorate, however, was the part the Christians were led to take in the Three Years' Enterprise. In the summer of 1896 the Madras Native Church Council initiated a scheme with two objects, the first to promote self-support, and the second to encourage voluntary missionary efforts. A part of the scheme was a proposal to raise in the four pastorates connected with the Council a sum of Rs. 6,000 as a Centenary Fund. On October 27th, the day before the consecration of Bishop Morley (see below, page 278), a meeting was held in the Victoria Public Hall, under the presidency of the Metropolitan, who was supported by the Bishops of Madras and Travancore and Cochin, and by the Bishop-designate of Tinnevelly. Of this meeting Mr. Clarke says :—

Three Years' Enterprise proposals.

Meeting: four bishops present and 2,000 people.

It was one of the largest, if not the largest, Christian meeting held in Madras. There were nearly 2,000 people, and the singing and addresses were full of life and to the point. It was, as some English friends remarked, an Exeter Hall meeting in Madras. I thank God for this meeting in the Victoria Public Hall, for it has strengthened many a weak brother and put new life into many an indifferent member of the Church of Christ. An English lady remarked that she never knew before that meeting that Madras had any missionaries, and that any kind of missionary work was being carried on in Madras.

"Never knew that missionary work was being carried on in Madras."

For the Christians of his own pastorate Mr. Clarke had already a few weeks before printed a leaflet of four pages explaining the T.Y.E., and proposing a series of questions relating to his people's willingness to take part in the effort, and the extent of their ability to do so; and this leaflet was distributed in Zion Church after silent prayer during one of the Sunday services on October 4th, and the sermon which followed sought to enforce the appeal. What the result was appears from the following extract from Mr. Clarke's Annual Letter :—

Gifts to Centenary Fund.

I thank God and bless His Holy Name for the wonderful way the members of the Southern Pastorate have responded to these appeals. I have received up to date about seventy papers, and what shall I say about the answers? They are most remarkable. Most of the members are in full sympathy with me in this noble enterprise. This is indeed a very great thing to start with. Members have already promised, and some of them have paid, hundreds of rupees towards the Centenary Fund; Rs. 350 from one, Rs. 300 from another, Rs. 150 from a third, Rs. 100 from a fourth, and Rs. 50 from many, and very few have promised anything less than a month's income towards the C.M.S. Centenary Fund.

New evangelistic efforts.

Well, this is only one-half—the material part—of the Enterprise. In regard to the other half—the spiritual part—I am also thankful to inform you that the members of the Southern Pastorate are not backward in coming forward. They are equally warm. There is a growing desire in the hearts of many to evangelize this vast Empire. Some have already commenced to do some active work on a small scale. Voluntary house-to-house visitation, visiting hospitals, distribution of handbills and tracts have been undertaken by many. Young men connected with Zion Church have banded themselves together to work for their Heavenly Master, and are conducting a devotional prayer-meeting among themselves. A Brahman convert, Mr. J. Srinivasam by name, is carrying on a Special Mission for children.

Other pastorates.

The Rev. D. A. Peter, of the Mount Pastorate, also says that the T.Y.E. has given a fresh impetus to his people in the direction of evangelistic efforts. He has four congregations and six schools under his care, and, in addition, has the superintendence of the evangelistic work of the Church Council. He and his five lay evangelists, including a violinist, visited 612 villages, and they computed that some 45,000 heard the Word from their lips. Two congregations are under the Rev. J. Satthianadhan, pastor of the Northern Pastorate, one worshipping in Black Town and the other in Tondiarpett, or Tinnevelly settlement, about three miles apart. The Christians connected with the former number 588, of whom 307 are communicants, and those with the latter 107, of whom fifty are communicants. Bishop Hodges, of Travancore, preached at one of the churches on Sunday, November 1st, to a congregation of 420. Eight adults were baptized. Three of these were hospital patients, one a young woman, an inmate of the Leper Hospital. The income of the pastorate amounted to Rs. 1,154, including Rs. 232, the result of sale of Ingathering offerings, which were similar in kind and variety to those mentioned above as given at Zion Church Ingathering. The Rev. J. Gnanapragasam, after his admission to deacon's orders, was appointed to the Poonamallee Pastorate, which has four congregations and 465 baptized Christians. Twelve adults were baptized.

Divinity School.

The Divinity School had eleven students throughout the year, a larger number than in any previous year. The two who entered for the Universities' Preliminary Examination were both successful, Mr. Noah Adolphus, B.A., obtaining a first-class, and Mr. M. Asirvathan, F.A., a second. No candidate sent up for this examination has ever failed, and many have taken high places. Of the other students, two are graduates, and the rest are all matriculates of Madras University. Five of the students had previous experience of service in the Tinnevelly Itinerancy, four being sent to the class by and at the expense of the Tinnevelly District Council. Another student is Gopal Chandra Shastri, M.A., who was baptized at Nasik by the Rev. A. Manwaring, as mentioned under that station (vide supra, page 251). The students go out one evening a week in two bands for open-air preaching, as arranged by the Principal, the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith; but in addition to this they themselves planned and carried out Sunday afternoon open-air preaching. The Rev. W. S. Hooton gave assistance in the Divinity School throughout the year, owing to Mr. Goldsmith having to discharge the onerous duties of the secretariat. Mr. Hooton remarks on the opportunities that even a new missionary finds for evangelistic work in Madras, owing to the large number of English-speaking Natives there:—

No candidate ever failed in Preliminary Theological Examination.

Openings among English-speaking Natives.

It seems that Madras is specially advanced in this respect, but certainly here the opportunities for conversation with educated Natives, students, and others seem almost limitless, and so far as I have used them I have found the class I speak of most ready for such conversations. On railway journeys especially I have had some very remarkable and evidently providential openings of the kind.

Work among the Educated Natives is the special branch of labour assigned to the native clergyman, the Rev. S. John. He says this class are "conscious of the leavening or permeating influence of Christianity in themselves and in their children," and that they readily admit that Hindus have received and are receiving various benefits from it. The Rev. J. S. Peter, the native head-master of the Harris High School for Mohammedan youths, reports the opening of a new hall for the school in October, 1896, when the Director of Public Instruction, the Hon. Dr. Duncan, presided, and paid a high tribute of praise to the school. The school has not been fruitful in baptisms, but Mr. Peter says:—

Harris High School.

Change in the characters of pupils.

> To estimate our work by the number of converts that we make would be a poor estimate indeed. To one who has worked like myself for seven years in this school, the good hand of our God is plainly seen in the change that comes over the characters of most of our boys. The ardent desire for search after religious truth, the deep reverence for holy things, the longing after purity and spotlessness awakened in the school, is in many cases carried into the life of action. But not one of our former students has yet stood out to witness for the Master in the face of persecution. He Who knoweth the secrets of all hearts knows best how many secret disciples there are who out of fear of persecution dare not proclaim the truth they inwardly rejoice in. Outward circumstances lead us to cherish this hope. The marvellous way they cling to a school proscribed by their orthodox teachers, and the respect and veneration they pay to those connected with it, are very hopeful signs. The most respected European in this city and in this Presidency among Mohammedans is the Rev. E. Sell, who was once the head of this institution. The Rev. Malcolm Goldsmith, who was the Principal of this school, is honoured as a saint by Mohammedans in this city.

Every day between 1 and 2 p.m. the masters of the school meet for united prayer. Mr. Peter takes an active part out of school hours in delivering lectures to educated Hindus in connexion with the Y.M.C.A., which was established in Madras in 1890. And here it may be mentioned that the foundation of a new building for the Y.M.C.A. was laid on January 29th, 1897, by the Governor of Madras, Sir Arthur Havelock. The site, covering 20,000 feet, has been purchased by contributions from England, friends of the Y.M.C.A. movement in America have given the funds for the superstructure, and the hope was entertained that the cost of the foundations would be met by gifts in India. Dr. H. Grattan Guinness, who was on a tour in India with his daughter, Miss Lucy Guinness, took part in the proceedings in laying the foundation stone. Mr. Peter also refers in his Annual Letter to a students' three days' Conference, which took place in Madras at the end of February, 1897. He says:—

New Y.M.C.A. building.

Students' Conference.

> This Conference is an off-shoot of the Student Volunteer Movement. Such conferences, I believe, will be a great power in this land. They are becoming a regular feature of our colleges and high-schools. We believe that they will be the means of drawing our Christian students into closer union with the Master and lead them to face the grand truth which the Lord is teaching us all slowly but surely—that His work in India is to be done by the Indians. In our churches, in our Church Council rooms, and last, not least, now among the young men of our community, this belief is stamping itself with the Divine impress of God's Holy Spirit, and soon the cry will be heard in louder and louder tones, increasing unto the full day—"Here am I, send me."

A reference made by the Rev. E. A. Douglas, of the Tinnevelly Mission, to the S.V.M.U. Meetings in February, 1896, may also be quoted here :—

S.V.M.U meetings

In February I went up to Madras with some fourteen student delegates from Tinnevelly to attend a Student Conference, the fourth of a series in India, and conducted by Messrs. Mott and Wilder. It was a trumpet-call to students to systematic Bible-study and a waiting upon God for a fuller endowment of the Holy Spirit, and to take their part in the evangelization of India. Dr. Miller presided at the opening meeting. Mr. Mott's address on Bible study for personal growth; Mr. Wilder's practical talk on the filling of the Holy Spirit; Mr. Campbell White's stirring appeal for volunteers at this crisis of India's history; the open discussion on the attitude of Indian students to Christ; the burning words of Mr. Mott's on personal purity—all make the Madras Conference noteworthy. Its results are with God, but I may mention that 170 students joined the "Morning Watch," and forty-one pledged themselves to devote their lives to evangelizing India. Forty colleges were represented, and more than 100 delegates attended from colleges outside of Madras. The impulse of this Conference has been felt down here in the founding, in the Tinnevelly Hostel, of a branch of the Y.M.C.A., which has made a very vigorous beginning.

The Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick resumed charge of the Harris School on his return to India in October after sick-leave.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies working at Madras are Miss S. Oxley and Miss E. L. Oxley, the former among Hindus and the latter among Mohammedans.

Hyderabad.

A year of steady advance is reported by the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith at Hyderabad, where he still labours, with the Committee's permission, in temporary connexion with the Diocesan Mission of the Bishop of Madras. He had the help of the Hindustani catechist, Maulavi Abdullah Masihi, lent from the C.M.S. Mohammedan Mission at Madras. Being a convert from Islam, the Maulavi's arrival attracted much interest, mostly of a hostile character. Mr. Goldsmith says of him:—

A former Mohammedan preacher now preaching Christ.

In former days he had three times visited Hyderabad from his native place, Bellary, as a Mohammedan preacher in the mosques here. When, therefore, he stood with us in open-air preaching, many recognized him, and as they came to see that he had become a Christian, he had to stand showers of abuse. He is a solid, square-built man, and retains in its entirety his elegant Indian costume, without adopting, as so many even of the non-Christians and many more of the Christians now do, Western clothes. This, though so right and proper, rather irritates his enemies, for it proclaims too plainly for them what he once was. His own account of himself is that for fully ten years before his decision for Christ in 1892 he had been impressed with the truth of the Christian position. His knowledge and experience therefore is ripe, and by God's grace he is able to stand patiently very bitter opposition. He is a representative of the very large (I believe) class of devout Moslems who study the Koran and are the Protestants of Islam. His preaching is sometimes rather dry, but often he warms into very hearty appeals, using his memory of the Koran (more than of the Bible) to supply texts and arguments for surrender to Christ and the Gospel.

Another convert from Islam, Háfiz Muhammad Ján, who was baptized at Hyderabad in 1892—the same year as Maulavi Abdullah—and who had meantime taken a three years' course at the Allahabad Divinity School, also joined Mr. Goldsmith, who writes :—

His social position and his education, both earlier and later, all qualify him for influencing the generation to which he belongs. There are hundreds of young men in this Mohammedan capital who are diverging widely both in habits and in faith from the old paths of Islam. If they have any one leader, it may be said to be Sir Saiyid Ahmad, of Aligarh, and the religious freedom of Hyderabad is a congenial atmosphere for their development. One main cause of the freedom here must be the great variety of nationalities that find a home under the Nizam's Government, chiefly owing to its central position. Happily no one sect asserts its right to rule or reform the others. In this field, with colleagues such as Maulavi Abdulla Masihi and Háfiz Muhammad Ján, I trust the power of the Gospel of God will be more and more felt.

Baptisms. Three adults were baptized, but one of them, it afterwards transpired, had been previously baptized in 1895, by the Rev. J. G. Deimler (probably one of the four mentioned in the Annual Report for 1894-95, page 192, as having been baptized in January, 1894). His explanation and his penitence led Mr. Goldsmith to condone his offence, and to write, "All who know his case would forgive him." He describes him as a thoughtful student and a hearty worker. His name is Matthias Abdur Rauf, aged nineteen. Another of the converts, Yusuf Abdul Hakim, was sent to Mr. Goldsmith by an S.P.G. native clergyman at Bangalore; and the third, Ali Khan Masihi, was sent by Miss Rheim, of the C.E.Z.M.S., Masulipatam. Three members of the Hindustani congregation were confirmed in October by the Bishop of Madras, whose visit to Hyderabad gave Mr. Goldsmith great delight. Mr. Goldsmith opened a small Industrial School, teaching carpentry and boot and shoe making.

NILGIRI AND WYNAAD TAMIL MISSION.

The Rev. A. H. Lash (now at home) superintended the work in the Nilgiris and the Wynaad, residing at OOTACAMUND. The con-Ootacamund gregation at this station, under the Rev. G. Swamiadian, increased by sixty-two, but it was due mainly to the migration of Christians from other places. The number of adherents is 526, and there are 328 children in four schools. It is difficult to reach the upper-class native population. Mr. Lash attempted to do so by means of lectures, which were well attended at first, but the Hindus started dramatic performances on the same evening and drew away the audience. The presence of a large and very gay and worldly European community (especially during "the season," which lasts six months) is no doubt a hindrance. In connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise, promises of some Rs. 2,000 were made towards erecting a church for the native congregation.

Coonoor.

Coonoor is a small hill station on the Nilgiri Hills, 6,000 feet above the sea. The native population is a migratory one, and consists largely of coolies on the estates, of those engaged in building, and of servants in the European families. The Rev. A. S. Vores reports that the congregation increased by thirteen, though ten families went away.

Wynaad.

In the Wynaad Mr. Lash baptized ten adults, and he remarks that almost all were representatives of different races, and in several cases were the first converts from those races. One, named Langarachalu, belonged to the Ketty caste; and a little girl, whose father died a believer but unbaptized, was the first to be baptized of the Kroocher race. A young man named Santhu belonged to a high caste called Nambya, and was the first of his people, Mr. Lash believes, to embrace the Gospel. A good deal of opposition is experienced from Roman Catholics, who at one place, Vayita, sent round an appeal for funds to enable them to start a rival school to the one already established by Mr. Lash, and in the appeal warned the inhabitants, chiefly Hindus, not to send their children to the C.M.S. School because the Bible was taught there. The person whose reception into the Church of England from Roman Catholicism was mentioned in last year's Report died some few months afterwards of malarial fever. Mr. Lash says of him :—

First converts from various castes.

Opposition from Roman Catholics.

> Before his death he sent for our catechist, and expressed his joy in believing, and his firm faith in the Saviour. He was most anxious in his last moments to have our good catechist with him to read the Bible and pray. One of his last actions was to call his family round him and admonish them to stand fast in the true religion which they had embraced with him. He said, "After my death the priest will come and try to frighten you and draw you back again to his religion, but you must not listen to him." His last words were, "I am going to Christ."

As anticipated, the priest did endeavour to draw back into the Church of Rome the sister of the deceased man, even telling her that his death was in answer to his (the priest's) prayers that he might be punished for forsaking his Church. His efforts, happily, had no success.

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies at Ootacamund and Coonoor are Miss Hopwood, Miss Daniels, and Miss G. Kember.

II. TELUGU MISSION.

Visit of Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen.

THE Rev. E. N. Thwaites, Vicar of Fisherton, Salisbury, and the Rev. W. S. Standen, Incumbent of Smithills, Bolton, visited the Telugu Mission at the request of the Committee for the purpose of holding Special Mission Services, especially among Native Christians. They sailed in November, 1896, and arrived viâ Bombay at Khammamett on December 10th. After spending a few days at that station, and at Ellore, Bezwada, and Masulipatam, they proceeded to Calcutta.

The Revs. J. Stone and H. W. Eales returned to the Mission in October, 1896; and the Rev. J. Harrison came home on furlough in January, 1897, and Mrs. A. E. Goodman in May. The Rev. C. W. A. Clarke was married to Miss K. E. Honiss, of the North-West Provinces Mission, in December, 1896.

Book on Hindus, by Rev. J. E. Padfield.

A valuable book, The Hindu at Home, on the proverbs, the folk-lore, and the manners and customs of the various races of India, the work of the Rev. J. E. Padfield, B.D., was issued by the S.P.C.K. Press, Madras, at the beginning of 1896. It gives a clear and accurate account of the people's religious beliefs as translated into the action of their daily life; the daily round of observances, marriage and funeral ceremonies, sacred marks, thread and tonsure, festivals, diets, ornaments, and omens, are described. The book furnishes a powerful plea for earnest and increased work by Christian women. The women are the conservative element, and these ceremonies form a large part of the interest of the dull lives within the Hindu zenanas; till that is changed it must be expected that the men will remain the slaves of customs, some bad, some harmless, and some foolish. Mr. Padfield has especially laid young missionaries under a debt of gratitude. One of their first duties is to learn to understand the people, to know their manners and customs, and to get into touch with their social and religious life, a task which this book will greatly facilitate. Mr. Padfield, during his furlough, has been appointed to the important temporary office of Secretary to the Centenary Review Committee at the Church Missionary House.

MASULIPATAM.

Masulipatam. Noble College.

The Noble College, MASULIPATAM, had in some respects a remarkably successful year. Two girl students, daughters of a Brahman convert of the school during Mr. Noble's time, S. O. Siva Rama Krishnamma Garu, did credit to themselves and the school, the younger one by taking a first class in the F.A., and the elder, who obtained a first-class in the F.A. in 1895, by obtaining the first prize of Rs. 100 in the Peter Cator Bible Examination, open to all students in the Madras Presidency. Both are reading for the B.A. degree, and the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke, the Principal, thinks that the sight of two girls, daughters of a Brahman convert to Christianity, reading for their degree and being top in their respective classes, must prove a valuable object-lesson to the Hindu community. Three out of seven students of the College who passed the First Arts Examination were Christians. A meeting is held annually, in the spring, of all the boys who have been successful in the various University examinations, for rendering thanks to God and for social intercourse. This meeting was inaugurated in 1894 by one of the non-Christian members. The convert baptized in 1895, Mr. N. Bhushanam, is a source of much comfort. He went as a delegate to the Student Volunteer Meetings at Madras in February, 1897, and on his return to the College gave an account of the meetings which was very helpful and encouraging. Mr. Clarke had a great disappointment and a great sorrow during the year. The disappointment was that a boy whom he regarded as a most hopeful inquirer, and whom he fully expected to confess Christ in baptism, seemed to lose interest and grew indifferent to the Gospel. And the sorrow was caused by the death of one of the old boys who was specially dear to Mr. Clarke, and of whose future he entertained great hopes. Of the latter Mr. Clarke writes:—

An object-lesson to Hindu community.

His name was Ch. V. Narasimhachari; he came to the College some years ago and joined in one of the lower forms. At first he seemed remarkable for nothing except his poverty and his diligence, but as he grew up and passed through the higher classes of the College he developed a really fine character, and exerted a powerful influence upon his friends. He was a tenacious inquirer after truth, and profoundly influenced by Jesus Christ; the thing which struck me most about him was his exceeding honesty. Though often clouded and disturbed by doubts on the most fundamental points of religion, he would never seek peace by accepting anything of which he was not fully convinced, and at the same time he would steadily push on his inquiries after truth, trying to work out in his life what he had really laid hold of. After taking his B.A. degree and reading in a training college for the degree of Licentiate of Teaching, he came to work as a master in the Noble College, but after less than six months' labour he entered into his rest. As a student and as a master he used to read regularly with me on Sundays, sometimes the Bible, at others some Hindu book. At the time of his death we were reading the Gospel of St. John, and we used to spend most delightful hours together discussing it. It seemed to me that there was a field of wide usefulness opening out to him, and I was looking forward with real hope and joy to the day when he would come out as a soldier of the Cross; but God had other plans for him, and has called him hence.

An earnest seeker after truth.

At the request of some of his friends, the Revs. H. J. Tanner and W. C. Penn were present at the cremation of the body of the student referred to above. The latter says:—

It was a hopeless sight; there was nothing to cheer or to speak of hope. While the body was being got ready for the pyre, the little group of friends sat round weeping. Just before it was finally covered up with logs of wood, one of his friends addressed it in terms of eulogy and sorrow, but without any mention of seeing the departed one again. While the body was burning we gathered some of the Christian boys and others aside, and had a little prayer-meeting. The contrast between this scene and a Christian burial was most striking.

Preparandi Institution.

The Preparandi Institution and the Normal School are under the superintendence of the Rev. A. E. Goodman. The latter sent up in November, 1895, and April, 1896, twenty students for the written examination for teachers' certificates, and passed nineteen, nine obtaining "trained" certificates, and ten "untrained" certificates. In October, nine out of ten passed the Practical Test Examination. Twenty-seven students, all who were sent up, passed the Fifth Standard Examination.

Bishop Gell confirmed 242 candidates in the several Pastorates connected with the Masulipatam District Church Council in January, 1896. Mr. Goodman was called upon to enrol some twelve families as catechumens in a village near Tummalapalli, in the Gudivada Taluq. Their account of the cause which had led them to change their faith is indicative of a loosening of the bonds which attach the people to Hinduism. Mr. Goodman says:—

Loosening of the bonds of Heathenism.

I asked them why they did not stick to their old creed. They replied: "We got no comfort from worshipping idols; in fact," they added, "during the floods of September, 1895, the village stone god was swept away by the swiftness of the waters, and we do not know what has become of it. It forsook us in a time of distress, and could not save itself, much less us." They said they were determined to become Christians, and love and serve the Lord Jesus Christ. In these dreadful floods some of their houses were ruined. I trust their motives are sincere. They seemed very earnest, but another trial soon came to test their faith. Within twelve months another flood came, and at the District Collector's request Mr. Wathen and I went to render assistance to the people in the affected villages. Some of the first people I met were those of Areperala—this little band of catechumens—in a village some four miles from their homes. They had just been brought in a boat by the Tahsildar of the Taluq to a dry spot, and were being cared for and fed. Their hamlet was completely submerged in water. They had to leave their little all and come away. I remarked that this was a great trial of their faith, and exhorted them to seek God's help in their trouble. I was glad to see that in their distress they were bright, and said they would trust the True God and not forsake Him.

A paralyzed Christian joyful in affliction.

Mr. Goodman mentions a poor paralyzed Christian man of Vennanapudi who, though unable to read, has a wonderful knowledge of the Scriptures, being able to quote passage after passage, and give the correct references. He has learned the passages from teachers stationed at his village. He "never complains" of his bodily infirmities, but, on the contrary, is always rejoicing; he never fails to speak a word for his Master, and he is ever waiting for his Lord's return. There were, however, instances of a disappointing character as well. A prominent catechist caused sorrow by his conduct, and a group of seventy-six inquirers in the village of Lallagudem relapsed into Heathenism, leaving only one steadfast inquirer, and he the oldest inhabitant of the village; this man was baptized.

The Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen held Special Mission Services at Masulipatam from January 1st to 7th, 1897. On Sunday, January 3rd, 177 received the Holy Communion. All the services were well attended, and at the thanksgiving service on the 7th the sum of Rs. 500 was collected, including some children's toys, the gifts of the young. "Many hearts were stirred," Mr. Goodman writes, "at these services, old promises renewed, and fresh vows taken to serve God truly. A young man who was sent to accompany the missioners on their boat journey to Bezwada, and to whom they offered a present as a recompense for his trouble, declined the gift, and said to Mr. Goodman, "I could not take anything when the missioners had been the means of such blessing to me." The Rev. W. M. H. Wathen, while engaged chiefly in learning the vernacular, took a class in the Noble College Sunday-school on Sundays, and went out occasionally with Mr. Goodman into the district. He was stationed temporarily, while continuing his language studies, at Bezwada in the spring of 1897.

"Many hearts stirred."

Miss Brandon, Miss A. Bassoë, Miss Morriss, Miss A. Moore, and Miss Rheim are the Ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. working at Masulipatam. They find ready access to the zenanas of Hindu ladies. Miss Brandon wrote in May, 1896:—

Three of our Bible-women have a special gift for telling Scripture stories, and they attract great crowds of listeners. They are rather troubled with these crowds, for the women are not at all satisfied with being visited once a week—they clamour for two visits, and sometimes even quarrel about it.

Hindu ladies clamorous for visits.

The teachers complain that when they go to a house, the women will not let them leave, but keep them for hours singing hymns and teaching Bible stories. Often the men sit in the inner rooms and listen; they never interrupt or give trouble. Many of these listeners have a wonderfully good knowledge of the way of salvation. The number of women desiring Bible instruction only is now considerably in excess of those who ask for secular teaching as well.

In one of Hannah's zenanas a child was very ill; all remedies were tried in vain, and the little one seemed to be dying. Two days later, when Hannah came again she found the child nearly well. She asked in surprise what they had done. The grandmother said, "I thought of all you had told us about Jesus, how He healed the sick and raised Lazarus from the dead, and I knew He could do the same now, so I prayed to Him to heal the child, and He heard my prayer." The parents are anxious to bring the child to church to give thanks for her recovery.

BEZWADA.

The Rev. J. Harrison reports the baptism of 194 adults at Bezwada and the district around during the year under review, and there were 1,089 catechumens at the end of 1896, of whom over 700 had been enrolled during the year. The admission to the catechumenate is made at a public service in church, when the candidates promise to give up idolatry, devil-worship, and other heathen superstitions. They are not as a rule baptized until they can say the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments, and answer simple questions on the plan of salvation. Among those baptized, one was a Brahman and one a Parsi. The latter was mentioned in last year's Report. He had studied in England and qualified for the engineering staff, and it was in this country that he was first led to desire to become a Christian. His baptism took place during Bishop Gell's visit to Bezwada in February, 1896, when the Bishop confirmed 200 candidates. As already mentioned, Mr. Harrison came home on furlough in January, 1897. During the eight years since he returned to India after his former furlough the adherents in the district increased from 905 to 2,755. Two newly-ordained native pastors were added to the staff during that period, and the improvement in church organization, the increased strength of the congregations, and the number of new villages in which there are Christians are all causes for joy and thankfulness. The Rev. J. Stone, who returned to the Mission once more at the Committee's request, took charge of the Bezwada district on Mr. Harrison leaving.

Special Mission Services.

During Christmas week, 1896, the Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen conducted Special Mission Services at Bezwada. Mr. Thwaites held meetings every morning during the five days of their visit at 8 o'clock for Christians, the Rev. James Stone interpreting; at nine Mr. Standen addressed Christian workers, male and female, the Rev. D. Anantam interpreting; in the afternoons Mr. Standen had services for Christians generally; and in the evening two services were held for English Christians, and two addresses were delivered to English-speaking Hindus.

High School.

The High School has 148 boys, and the two primary branch schools have 182. Only two, out of nine presented, passed the Matriculation, somewhat below the percentage for the whole presidency; in the Primary 27 passed out of 31; and in the Lower Secondary seven out of fifteen. The Rev. D. Anantam's services have been lent to the British and Foreign Bible Society for the work of revising the Telugu version of the Bible. He removed to Bellary, where his fellow-labourer in the revision, the Rev. E. Lewis, of the London Missionary Society, resides, in February, 1897.

Itinerancy

The Telugu Itinerants have their home at Bezwada, but for most of the year, excepting the very hot weeks of May and a part of June, they were on the move. Most of the large towns and villages in the districts occupied by the Society were visited. In some places the Itinerants were treated with contempt, in others with indifference, and on one occasion they were interrupted by an official; but these experiences were chequered by many of a brighter and more hopeful character. In one place the village zemindar when they arrived was watching the performances of a juggler, and invited the preachers to sit down by his side. When he grew weary of the performance he asked them to preach, and they had a mixed but attentive audience consisting of zemindar, juggler, dancing girls, Brahmans, Mohammedans, and Hindu ryots, and the zemindar seemed glad to accept some Christian books and a gospel. They went to a celebrated river feast at Rajahmundry, on the Godavery, and for ten days, with many interruptions, but with many golden opportunities, they preached and distributed Christian handbills supplied by the Madras Religious Tract Society. Regarding the Brahmans and the open cupidity they exhibited at this feast, the Rev. R. W. Peachey, the leader of the band, wrote:—

Cupidity of Brahmans at a festival.

It was a common sight to see the Brahmans scrambling and fighting for pice given by the bathers. In many cases the police had to interfere and enable the bathers to get out of their clutches. I saw them scrambling in the mud like schoolboys for sweetmeats, as a bather in despair flung all the coins he had in the air to get rid of his tormentors. Many a poor widow was surrounded by a swarm of them, who would haggle before they performed the proper ceremonies required, and afterwards because she did not give them enough. One day a zemindar came and began giving rupees to all the Brahmans. He was in a house a little distance from the river, and I saw the Brahmans who were near tucking their clothes up and starting to run. The successful ones came shouting back with joy, holding the rupee in their hands and calling to all who had not gone to go and get one. They even looked on me with favour from joy at the unexpected boon, and said, "A rupee! a rupee! he is giving rupees!" What did it matter that it rained heavily? For two miles on each side of that house the Brahmans came in swarms, encouraged by the sight of those returning with a rupee for each man.

Miss Jennings, of the C.E.Z.M.S., resides at Bezwada.

ELLORE.

Ellore.

The veteran missionary, the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander, reports that six new towns in the ELLORE district were occupied during the year, and three towns re-occupied. The Gospel spreads chiefly among Malas and Chucklers, and the agency which is most used, Mr. Alexander remarks, is the godly influence of the Christians. In one large Mala hamlet which Mr. Alexander visited, hundreds welcomed him with joy, the head Mala took him to his home, and declared that the people were ready to give their names as inquirers, and the next day fifty householders gave in their names to two native evangelists whom Mr. Alexander sent. The baptized Christians number 2,639, of whom 134 were baptized as adults during the year. Bishop Gell, in January, 1896, held two confirmations, one at Ellore, when there were 134 candidates (82 of whom were women), and the other at Polsanipalli, where 35 men and 36 women were confirmed. Mr. Alexander wrote:—

Increasing number of young confirmees.

One special feature in this confirmation was the number of young persons confirmed. Our girls' boarding-school headed the list with thirteen candidates, more than had ever been presented before. The boys' boarding-school sent four youths. Adults—some of them old men and women—still form the bulk of our confirmees; but as the Church grows older an ever-increasing number of young people are coming up for confirmation. To these candidates the preparation makes confirmation a special blessing. The older people, before they were baptized, had learned the required lessons, and many of them are already communicants; so to them, confirmation, in its truest sense, is not so necessary. But it tends to confirm their faith to see so many gathered together, and to hear solemn words of eternal life from our dear Bishop, and to receive his blessing.

Nearly twelve months later, in December, 1896, special preparations were made for the visit of the Revs. E. N. Thwaites and W. S. Standen. A large pandal was erected by the Christians at their own cost at Veeravalli, a place chosen as central and easily reached by the bulk of the Christians, and as being on the line of rail. At the first meeting 600 Christians were present, and large numbers of heathen Malas, Sudras, and others, also attended. The Tahsildar, or magistrate, holding sway over 250 towns and villages, was present at one of the services. Mr. Alexander wrote:—

Mission services in a large booth.

Great harvest ready to be gathered.

The chief feature of interest was the enrolling of a large number of new Mala inquirers belonging to Veeravalli itself. Each time heathen Malas attended the services. In the evening they stopped after all others had gone away, and spoke to the missioners about their wish to become Christians, and their motives for so desiring. The general answer was, "God had put it in our hearts to do so." No doubt there were influences working before, but this great open demonstration of Christianity seems to have decided them. They promised to come next morning and enrol their names: this they did, and fifty adults (men) gave their names in writing, and pledged themselves to become Christians. Lately ten or twelve persons were baptized there, but now a great harvest is ready to be gathered.

After the services at Veeravalli the missioners went to Ellore for the purpose of holding meetings for English-speaking Native Christians, Eurasians, and Europeans, but the number of non-Christians who attended, contrary to expectation, was so great that the meetings became evangelistic in their character. Mr. Martin Browne, who took an active part in inviting the native gentry to these gatherings, writes:—

When it became known, as it did far and wide, that a visit was to be made to the place by two specially appointed Christian lecturers, and that these gentlemen were coming all the way from England for the express purpose of pressing the claims of the Lord Jesus Christ as the Divine Saviour of the world, an extraordinary interest was aroused, and the Christian church here was filled to overflowing with a crowd of English-speaking Hindus and Mohammedans, including the chief gentry of the town and neighbourhood. It was a most solemn and impressive sight. Just under the preacher sat a Rajah and his son, who were present on each occasion. Behind him, filling all the available seats not occupied by the Christians, I saw the town magistrate and several gentlemen of the Bar; in another part of the church I noticed Municipal Councillors, one of them a Mohammedan—indeed, a large proportion of those present were Mohammedans, as it was easy to see by their distinctive dress. Seats all up the central part of the church were everywhere filled, and right up to the communion-rails on both sides of the church benches were filled with young students of high caste, accompanied by the educated members of their families. What a solemn stillness reigned over this great gathering as God's messenger reasoned with them to see to it that the God they worship is a God that answers them. Eyes were filled with tears as the tender love of God was expressed in the glorious words of the everlasting Gospel and the deep tones of the speaker's kind voice. Truly it was a time to be remembered by all present.

A Rajah and other native gentry present at Mission services.

On Christmas morning 172 persons partook of the Holy Communion, and in the afternoon eight adults and their children were admitted into the Church by baptism. The missioners left Ellore on December 29th. Numbers of Christians from the more distant pastorates arrived after they had left, and were sorely disappointed to miss the privilege they had looked forward to.

Eight pupils in the High School, seven of them Brahmans, passed the Peter Cator Scripture Examination. A Mohammedan youth was baptized, and though he was of age, his friends subsequently removed him from the school. The Inspector highly praised one Brahman boy for his rendering of "Adam and Eve's Morning Hymn," from Paradise Lost. Mr. Browne, the Principal, says:—

High School.

Viewing our school generally, what do we note? Increased reverence at prayer-time, increasing interest in Bible-study and attention to Christian teaching, choice of books from the library of a decidedly Christian character, particular care taken in the preparation of Scripture lessons, indications in the conduct and upon the countenance that in trial and temptation the very Name of Jesus has become a power to them, and that they know something of that submission to Him, that desire to enjoy His saving Presence, which is at least a foretaste and a putting in of a claim to Him as their own personal Saviour, though as yet they may not have been called by God to sever themselves from home and parental control. All but this one terrible wrench, I believe, has truly come to many of our dear students. How eagerly they now accept invitations to come to church to hear a Gospel address whenever one can be given specially for them! What a blessed sight it is to see them on such occasions, as many as seventy in number, sitting so reverently at the evening service at church on Sunday! How much they delight in the singing of such grand hymns as, "I heard the voice of Jesus say," and "Nearer, my God, to Thee"! Truly their young lives are lived very much as if they were in a Christian land. In study, in play, in most of their leisure time we have them entirely under our Christian influence. Must not this tell at length? Can we not reasonably hope that their characters are being formed on the Christian model? Will not the seed thus sown, though its germination may be slow, going on silently with no eye upon it save the Creator's alone, at length, in God's good time, burst forth into living, glorious fruition?

Influence of Mission school on character of pupils.

RAGHAVAPURAM AND KHAMMAMETT.

Raghavapuram. Throughout the year 1896, as through the greater part of the previous year, RAGHAVAPURAM was under the supervision of the Rev. J. B. Panes. At the close of December he handed the charge over to the Rev. H. W. Eales upon the latter's return from furlough. The Bishop of Madras confirmed 86 candidates in February, 1896. Mr. Panes' own district is KHAMMAMETT. He refers with grateful feelings to the Bishop's visit, when he dedicated a cemetery, as well as held a Confirmation. The number of Christians in the district exceeds 1,000; it wanted three of this number at the end of the year, but 70 persons were publicly received as catechumens at the beginning of 1897. Mr. Panes marks with thankfulness that there is growth in strength and spirituality, as well as in numbers. The communicants exceed one-fifth of the whole number of adherents, including children and catechumens, being 210 in number, and many of these take a deep interest in the extension of Christ's Kingdom, and seek by example and precept to win their neighbours, the result being that the inquirers are more numerous than the little staff of agents can adequately instruct. These agents are twenty-four in number, and they have to take prayers in fifty-four widely-scattered villages every Lord's Day. The adult baptisms, thirty-eight in number, included five of one family at Kondalappagudem, and also a young man of good social position named John Basavayya, who was led to seek Christ through the consistent life and faithful testimony of a humble and uneducated village Christian. John Basavayya gave up good prospects of wealth and earthly happiness to follow Christ. Mr. Panes says of him :—

Khammamett.

Growth in numbers and spirituality.

Prospects of wealth given up to follow Christ.

> On May 10th he joyfully confessed Christ as his Saviour in baptism, and since that time has been my constant companion, itinerating with me in the villages. He takes his turn in preaching Christ to the Hindus, and does so with much directness, simplicity, and power.

A convert's joy after baptism.

> Large numbers gather to hear the testimony thus given by one of their own people. Many are deeply interested, and we expect more to follow his example. Twice we have gone to his own village. The first time there was much weeping and lamentation on the part of his friends, especially the women folk; but his happy face and faithful testimony in declaring the joy and blessing he has found in Christ soon dried their tears. On the second occasion a unique opportunity was given of delivering the Gospel message to almost every person in the village. After we had been speaking at length to the crowd which gathered, numbers kept coming to our tent all day long for private conversation. The father, who at first seemed almost heartbroken, gave some sound advice to his son, saying that as he could not prevent him becoming a Christian, he trusted that he would prove a thorough Christian, and by diligent study and consistent life become a successful and useful man.

A successful voluntary evangelist. Eighteen of the adult converts were the fruits of the labours of a young man who was taught to read by one of the evangelists a few years ago, and received a New Testament and Prayer Book, armed with which he began to teach the people around him. These eighteen were baptized in the tank of their own village, Botlakouta. Through the same young man's labours forty persons in a neighbouring village have been admitted as catechumens.

Visit of Special Missioners

Khammamett was the first station visited by the Special Missioners, Messrs. Thwaites and Standen, to which they hastened by train on their arrival in India at the port of Bombay. The Mission lasted five days—from December 10th to the 15th. The services and meetings were held in a large pandal, covered with palmyra-leaves, in which gatherings, averaging about 500, the majority being Christians or inquirers, met twice daily. Mr. Panes wrote at the time :—

> Expectant dependence on the Holy Spirit's presence and power ; directness and simplicity in faithfully and fully setting forth God's truth ; a magnifying of Christ in His saving power and grace above and beyond all else—were the main features in the teaching of both brethren at all meetings, which could not but tell with hearers. There was much confession of past failures, not a few broken and contrite hearts, and many sought the gift or baptism of God's Holy Spirit for service. Generalities and the plural number in prayer were happily forsaken for special personal requests, the individual need of the seeker being the one thing felt and expressed. Petitions for cleansing, for the filling of the Holy Spirit, for power to live a holy consecrated life, for victory over temptation, for grace to live at peace with all men, for a life separated from heathen associations and irregularities, were numerous and were very abundantly answered.

On the Sunday of their visit 147 gathered round the Holy Table—the largest number of communicants who had assembled at a single service in this district. At the thanksgiving service at the close of the Mission the sum of Rs. 290 was given towards the Khammamett Church Building Fund.

A new bungalow built for the C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies was occupied in February, 1896. They have as one of their pupils the wife of the Talukdar of Khammamett, and both she and her husband are very friendly. A touching story is told of a Hindu pupil in one of their schools. She was writing on her slate, "We must all die and go to heaven," when her pencil fell from her hand into a hole. As she stooped to pick it up a cobra darted from the hole and bit her, and within half an hour she was dead.

DUMMAGUDEM.

Dummagudem.

The Rev. J. Cain, of DUMMAGUDEM, dwells in his Annual Letter upon the privations of the inhabitants of the Koi villages in consequence of the famine. He received generous and timely help collected by General Haig, which enabled him to distribute relief. Mr. Cain was prevented by attacks of fever from itinerating, but some of the native workers made evangelistic tours in parts where the Gospel had not before been made known. The Rev. M. Gnanasigamoni is stationed at Korukonda, in the Malkanagiri Taluq, a district 180 miles long, in which there are 130 Christians. Mr. Cain remarks that the region is as foreign to him as India is to an English missionary. His self-denying labours have won the respect of all, even of those who are bitterly opposed to his message.

A native missionary

III. TINNEVELLY.

Consecration of Bishop Morley.

THE nomination of the Rev. S. Morley, Chaplain of the Bishop of Madras, for the Bishopric of Tinnevelly and Madura was mentioned in last year's Report. His consecration took place at St. George's Cathedral, Madras, on St. Simon and St. Jude's Day, October 28th, 1896. The sermon was preached by the Metropolitan, Bishop Johnson of Calcutta, from St. Matt. xiii. 52, and the Bishops of Madras and of Travancore and Cochin took part in the consecration. More than eighty clergy were present, and the congregation quite filled the Cathedral. After the consecration and Communion service, and after the greater part of the congregation had left the Cathedral, the Metropolitan summoned the clergy of Tinnevelly and Madura who were present, and expressed his sympathy with them in the difficulties they had entertained (see last year's Report, page 261) as to transferring their canonical obedience to another person after having given it to the Bishop of Madras; and he then explained that, as had been suggested by the late Archbishop of Canterbury, all that was asked of them was that they should sign a promise that they would submit to the jurisdiction of Bishop Morley, conferred upon him by the Bishop of Madras, and received under his authority. He stated that the Bishop of Madras had signed a document giving jurisdiction to Bishop Morley, and he submitted for their signature the following declaration, which Archbishop Benson had drafted for the occasion:—"In obedience to the Lord Bishop of Madras, we, the undersigned, submit ourselves to the jurisdiction of the Right Reverend Samuel Morley, Bishop, conferred upon him by the Lord Bishop of Madras by an instrument dated the 28th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1896." The Tinnevelly and Madura clergy then adjourned in a body to the Bishop's vestry and appended their names to the document, after which they returned once more to the Cathedral to hear a farewell address from the Bishop of Madras. Bishop Gell referred to the most intimate and happy relations of the new Bishop with himself, and expressed his deep thankfulness that his selection of him had been cordially welcomed without a dissentient voice. He added:—

Bishop Gell's farewell to Tinnevelly clergy.

In transferring the episcopal care of you and your several charges from myself to him, I will say no more regarding my attachment to that part of his diocese than that when the Bishopric of Madras was offered to me thirty-five years ago, the Missions in Tinnevelly formed a prominent and attractive feature in the appointment. My visits not long afterwards to those servants of God, Thomas, Brotherton, Caldwell, Sargent, John Devasagayam, and others, through whose labours and prayers so much spiritual light had been poured upon Tinnevelly, remain among the most treasured memories of my episcopate. Their places were filled by other earnest labourers, whose names I must not attempt now to enumerate. Some are fallen asleep, some are toiling still among souls for the Saviour's glory. May His smiles and His reward crown their faithful labours. . . .

Finally, I exhort you to be loving, considerate, forgiving, humble one towards another, and towards all; to pray for a large outpouring of the Holy Spirit to increase your zeal for the gathering in of souls to Christ's flock, and to make yourselves and all His people holier and more fruit-bearing Christians; and my native brethren especially, both clerical and lay, not to allow national or family customs to interfere with your full obedience to the principles of the Gospel of Christ, and to be more ready to give, especially for the self-support of your Church. Let your prayers be fervent for your new Bishop in the discharge of his sacred and arduous duties. Let your sympathy with him and willingness to be guided by him be his help and encouragement. May his life be long spared with that of his loving and zealous wife to go in and out among you, and may the great Head of the Church use both them and you and all His people in this land for the carrying out of His gracious purposes to the world, and bring us with all who are dear to us to His eternal and heavenly kingdom. I bid you farewell!

Address to Bishop Morley.

Shortly afterwards the European missionaries, native clergy, and others presented an address to Bishop Morley, offering their respectful congratulations, and giving some particulars regarding the Missions in his diocese. The following paragraphs may be quoted:—

The statistics of the Missions in Tinnevelly and Ramnad for the year 1895 are as follows:—Number of villages, 1,308; clergymen, 94; M.D.C. catechists and schoolmasters, 22; native catechists and readers, 850; baptisms during the year, 3,310; number of Christians, 81,481; communicants, 21,182; catechumens, 8,848. In the schools there are 992 Christian and 64 Hindu teachers. There are 18 boys' boarding-schools, 15 girls' boarding-schools, 223 boys' day-schools, 55 girls' day-schools, 376 mixed schools, 18,433 boys, and 6,304 girls. In the Zenana Missions at Palamcotta and Sivagasi there are 53 Bible-women and 49 native teachers.

Speaking generally of the Church in Tinnevelly, we are glad to say that there is much for which we may thank God, and we believe that numbers of true Christians are to be found throughout the district. The spirit of liberality is on the increase, and several cases of noble self-denial are known to us. Many of the community are educated and enlightened, they occupy positions of honour and responsibility amongst their countrymen, and we trust that they try to adorn the doctrine of God their Saviour in all things. An intelligent and active interest in the organization and development of the Church is in many places taken, and especially in the matter of self-support and management.

But with all this, we must acknowledge that there remain many evils to be removed. There is a general lack of sufficient respect for the Sabbath Day, of the ordinances of religion, of the virtues which ought, in some degree at least, to characterize even the very "babes in Christ." The spirit of brotherly love is in many instances sadly wanting, and the need of discipline, especially in marriage irregularities, is constantly presenting itself to us.

Deaths of three native clergymen.

Three deaths of native pastors occurred during the year. The Rev. Gnanamuttu Sargunam, pastor of Kylasapuram, in the Panneivilei Circle, died on July 17th; he was ordained in 1873. The Rev. John Simeon, pastor of Parvathiapuram, in the Palamcotta Circle, died on September 24th; he was ordained in 1869. And the Rev. A. Gurubadham, pastor of Kodankulam, in the Alvânêri Circle, died on October 24th, 1896; he was ordained in 1882.

Miss E. C. Vines returned to the Mission in October, 1896; Mr. W. H. Wise in December; the Rev. E. S. Carr, who was married in December to Miss E. S. Wigram, of the Punjab and Sindh Mission, daughter of the late Prebendary F. E. Wigram, in February, 1897; and the Rev. and Mrs. R. F. Ardell and Mrs. W. H. Wise in April. The Rev. and Mrs. A. N. C. Storrs came home in April, 1897; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Douglas in May.

Ordinations.

Bishop Morley admitted Mr. Jesudasam N. Albert and Vedanayagam Abraham to deacons' orders at Palamcotta on January 10th, 1897. Both the candidates went through the theological course at the Madras Divinity School, and both passed the Universities' Preliminary at the end of 1895, Mr. Albert obtaining a first class, with distinction in Hebrew.

Palamcotta.

The central institutions for the benefit of the Native Church in Tinnevelly, the training of agents, and the higher instruction of Christian boys and girls, are clustered at PALAMCOTTA. The Preparandi Institution.

Rev. T. Kember resumed charge of the Preparandi Institution on its reopening in January, 1896, and the Rev. A. N. C. Storrs, who had been Acting-Principal during Mr. Kember's furlough, was appointed Vice-Principal. The senior theological class had fifteen students; one gained a first, one a second, and another a third prize in the Bishop of Madras' Bible Prize Examination. In the junior class there were ten students. In the Normal department there was a Lower Secondary Class and a Primary Class, with fifteen students in each. The Director of Public Instruction visited the Institution in the summer of 1896, and expressed himself as well pleased with all he saw. Mrs. Kember conducts a class for wives of the students, and she is encouraged by the improvement which she observes in them. The Boys' High School enjoyed a quite remarkable success in the Entrance Examination of the Madras University. Fifteen lads passed out of sixteen sent up, twelve being Christians, who were all among the fifteen. Such a result naturally caused the school to be inundated with applications for admission. Twenty passed the Lower Secondary out of twenty-four; and seventeen out of twenty, who entered for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination, were successful. One of the boys who passed the Peter Cator was a non-Christian, who, Mr. E.

Keyworth, the Principal, says, loves the Bible. The Director of Public Instruction congratulated the headmaster and principal on "the very successful working of the school during the year." Some of the elder day-scholars have formed themselves into a club, calling themselves "Volunteers for Christ." The members take walks together into the country in the evenings, and there have open-air prayer-meetings for their heathen schoolfellows and for their own spiritual growth. All the boarders belong either to the Rev. T. Richardson's Prayer Union or to the Children's Scripture Union. Some of the elder boys have classes on Sundays in the "Mary Arden Boys' School," the building of which was purchased for the Mission by the Rev. A. H. Arden. Miss Mary Arden, after whom it is called, was with her father in India, but died in Switzerland in September, 1896. Mr. Martin Luther, the headmaster of the High School, conducts a Sunday-school for the pupils and for others, which is attended by 177 boys.

Congratulation from Director of Public Instruction.

Mrs. Kember, wife of the Rev. T. Kember, superintends the Girls' Boarding School, with 100 pupils, five-eighths of whom are daughters of C.M.S. Mission agents. Seven of the girls passed the Lower Secondary, and fifteen the Primary. The Government Inspectress reported:—"Singing and needlework, excellent; efficiency, good; dress, very neat; manners, good; result on the whole very satisfactory." Former girls of this school are found as wives and mothers throughout the Tinnevelly district, in Ceylon, in Mauritius, in the Nilgiris, in Madras, and elsewhere. The Sarah Tucker College has five ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. on its staff, viz., Miss Askwith, the Principal, and Misses Swainson, Walford (now at home), E. C. Cowell, and Kenrick. Three out of six candidates were successful in the Matriculation Examination. During the seven years since the Matriculation Class was opened twelve out of seventeen students have passed—a very commendable measure of success. The number of girls in this class has increased from five in the first year to thirty-four. In the Lower Secondary, six passed out of fifteen in the English class, and seven out of nine in the Tamil. In the Primary, all the twenty girls presented passed in all the subjects, many with special merit. Eighteen passed in the Training School out of twenty-nine. All the pupils sent up for the Peter Cator passed and gained certificates—twenty-three in the lower and one in the higher grade. Bishop Morley confirmed fifty of the girls at the beginning of 1897, whom the Revs. T. Walker and A. N. C. Storrs had prepared. Thirteen who had entered the institution as Heathen were baptized during the year. The Director of Public Instruction and Mrs. Duncan paid an unexpected visit to the College in August, 1896, and expressed their high appreciation of the work, the Director giving Rs. 20 for prizes. Six boys from the Blind Schools passed the Primary; three blind children were baptized, and three boys and one girl confirmed. A class for deaf and dumb children, opened by Miss Swainson during the year, was very encouraging. In their own homes these poor children are regarded as having no intelligence, and are sadly neglected. It is wonderful, the report states, how their minds and hearts opened during the short time since the class was formed. Fifty-one C.M.S. and eight C.E.Z.M.S. branch schools are affiliated to the College, besides two boarding schools at Nallur and Surandei. The foundation-stone of a chapel for the use of the students was laid by Mrs. Higgens, wife of the Collector of the district, in October, 1896. The other C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies residing at Palamcotta are Miss C. Blyth, Miss Max, Miss Ridsdale, and Miss Grove.

Tinnevelly College.

The College, in TINNEVELLY town, secured no less than three of the ten Peter Cator Higher Grade prizes, the second, third, and seventh (but this was evidently a different examination from that of which the results have been given above on pages 258, 9), and three out of six of the prizes in the Madras Diocesan Prayer-book Examination. These were all won by Christian boys. The Principal of the College, the Rev. H. J. Schaffter, was compelled, through an obstinate attack of insomnia, to take complete rest for several months, and the Rev. E. A. Douglas took his place. Mr. Douglas writes :—

A golden opportunity.

To get together students who never hear a word of exhortation from the priests of their own temples, and to teach them the way of Life for one hour every day, is a golden opportunity not lightly to be given up. The way of Life! How little they know about it! In my talks with the Matriculation students (they having come under my special charge in the Scripture hour), and occasional talks with those of the seventh and eighth forms, I have been more than ever impressed with the fact that Hindus do not know where they stand. With systems, some theistic, some pantheistic, some atheistic, some polytheistic, they dumbly ask, "What is truth?" As I was talking one day about the Pearl of Great Price, a Brahman student said, "Sir, we do not know what the Pearl of Great Price is; we are all in a mist"; while another student showed the hopelessness of a Hindu's present position and the tyranny of Brahmanical priestcraft by explaining: "We can only get salvation through the Brahmans; they only know the way. But all the Brahmans of the present age are bad; we can't get salvation through them. The Hindu has indeed fallen upon evil days when those who are looked upon as possessing the keys of the Kingdom neither go in themselves nor suffer those who wish to enter. And yet the mist is clearing away. "The creeping tides begin to draw"; many reject idolatry and only very seldom, if ever, do puja at the temple. But they lack moral courage.

"We are all in a mist."

The Rev. F. W. Breed, who also rendered temporary assistance during Mr. Ardell's furlough, had the trial of losing a little child, and of having Mrs. Breed laid aside by a tedious illness. Mr. Schaffter returned to the College to resume work in January, 1897. The foundation-stone of a new College building was laid at the beginning of 1896 by the District Collector, Mr. Higgens.

No report of the Elliot Tuxford School at MENGNANAPURAM has been received. The High School passed eleven out of thirteen in the Matriculation Examination; thirteen out of fourteen in the Lower Secondary, and ten (all who entered) in the Primary. The first prize in the Peter Cator Lower Grade was awarded to the son of the native medical pastor, the Rev. M. H. Cooksley. Mengnanapuram.

The Itinerating Band, under the Rev. J. C. McLeod Hawkins, made several tours, most of them in North Tinnevelly. In the autumn an unusually heavy monsoon kept the Band near Palamcotta, and they were struck with the difference in the audiences there and in North Tinnevelly: in the latter, large numbers, sometimes whole villages, gathered round them; in the former it was difficult to obtain listeners at all, so indifferent to the Gospel message through familiarity with its sound are most of the people. One function of the Itinerancy is to train men for work in the Native Church. New members join the staff at the beginning of each year, and after a course of two years in the Band are, as a rule, recommended for the Divinity Class at Madras or for catechists' work in Tinnevelly. Itinerating Band

The great need of the Pastorates is a "time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord"—"Life and life more abundant," writes the Rev. T. Walker, who was Chairman of the Tinnevelly District Church Council during the year, but has been succeeded in that office at his own request by the Rev. E. S. Carr, in order that he (Mr. Walker) may devote his time and strength more fully to directly spiritual work. The number of adherents in the fifty-three pastorates is 51,358, an increase of 278 in the year, but less by about 11,000 than the number returned in 1892, when the present organization of the pastorates and circles was adopted. The diminution is due to the more watchful exercise of discipline. During the same period the number of baptized Christians has increased from 47,078 to 48,035, and the communicants from 12,558 to 12,621. The agents of the District Church Council number 785, namely, 51 pastors, 149 catechists, 13 inspecting schoolmasters, 407 schoolmasters, and 185 schoolmistresses; and there are in addition 87 agents supported by special funds. In 1892 the pastors numbered 61, the catechists 140, schoolmasters 369, and schoolmistresses 149. During the five years no fewer than sixteen native pastors died, some of them among the most faithful ministers and earnest workers in the district. Bishop Morley, on his arrival at Palamcotta, gathered the agents there for three days' Special Services. The number baptized during the year was 377 adults and 1,298 children. In the 469 schools there were 13,669 children—11,199 boys and 2,470 girls. Of this number 5,007 were Christians, 8,305 Hindus, and 357 Mohammedans. The school fees amounted to Rs. 1,652, and Government grants to Rs. 8,018. Native Church

The membership of the Children's Scripture Union stands at 4,000, among whom are a few Roman Catholic children and twenty-five Hindus. The contributions of the people amounted to Rs. 37,808, as compared with Rs. 29,586 in 1892. It is proposed in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise to build in Palamcotta a large Centenary Hall. The District Council has further decided to cease to give help from its fund for the repair of churches after the close of the century, the charge will thus have to be borne by the pastorates concerned. Efforts also are being made to stir up the congregations to more earnest efforts for the conversion of the Heathen. Harvest festivals are increasingly popular, and were held during the year at two new centres, Pannikulam and Surandei, making eight altogether, and the sum collected amounted to Rs. 2,670, as compared with Rs. 1,619 in 1895. Bishop Morley made a confirmation tour in North Tinnevelly in January, 1897.

A Central Church Council, with a constitution and function similar to those in Bengal and the North-West Provinces, has been formed in Tinnevelly, of which Bishop Morley is President.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Ghaut mountains and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam, 1817; Cochin, 1817; Mavelikára, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission, 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy, 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. Missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of the Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to the See, and was consecrated on April 25th, 1890.

Visit to the Mission of Rev. E. Bacheler Russell.

The Rev. E. Bacheler Russell, who was appointed by the Committee as a special Mission-preacher to reside in India, and to visit in turn the Society's Indian Missions, as was mentioned in the Annual Report for 1894–95 (page 123), but who was prevented by Mrs. Bacheler Russell's death in the autumn of 1895 from sailing that year, as had been hoped, sailed in October, 1896, to conduct Mission services during the winter in Travancore and Cochin. He arrived in England again at the beginning of April. The Rev. and Mrs. F. Bower returned to the Mission in October, 1896; and the Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Neve and Miss M. F. Baker came home on furlough in April, 1897, and the Rev. C. E. R. Romilly in May.

Ordinations.

Bishop Hodges, who came to England to attend the Lambeth Conference in May, 1897, admitted to priests' orders the Revs. T. K. Benjamin, B.A., and M. P. Matthan on March 1st, and the Rev. T. Koshi on October 18th, 1896.

Diocesan Conference to promote T.Y.E.

The event of the year to which the Bishop attaches chief importance was the Diocesan Conference which met on August 25th and 26th to consider in what way the objects of the Three Years' Enterprise could be promoted in the diocese. The proceedings commenced with a solemn Communion service at the Pro-Cathedral, when the Rev. M. C. Chakko preached from John x. 10, on "The importance of spiritual life in the Church." In his opening remarks from the chair, the Bishop dwelt on the duty and privilege of self-support. Papers were then read, followed by discussion, on "C.M.S. Funds, how collected," "How C.M.S. Funds are spent in the World," "C.M.S. Work in this Country, from its beginning in 1815," "Native Church Councils," "The Native Church Fund: how to increase and develop it," "How to develop a missionary spirit in the Native Church." The following Resolutions, embodying suggestions made in the course of the discussions, were adopted :—

Resolutions.

I. That this meeting, representing the Anglican Church in Travancore and Cochin, is in full sympathy with T.Y.E., and hereby expresses heartfelt gratitude for all the benefits received from the Church Missionary Society, and earnestly resolves to make the Native Church self-supporting as soon as possible.

II. That the laity acknowledge their obligations and readiness to co-operate with the clergy for this more than they have done hitherto.

III. That feeling that they do not contribute to the Church Fund in proportion to their increased prosperity, they will endeavour to remedy this defect by one or more of the following methods :—(1) Tithes. (2) A month's income per year. (3) Half a chuckram in the rupee. (4) A percentage of the profit in trade and agriculture. (5) Legacies or benefactions, &c.

IV. That a special fund be raised to commemorate the Centenary by annual subscriptions and coin collection of not less than one chuckram per head.

V. That deputations be sent round to all stations to rouse up the interest of the people in the T.Y.E.

VI. That the collections of subscriptions to the Church Fund be separated from the prayer-meetings.

VII. (a) That in all pastorates and districts collections be made monthly. (b) That every station be parcelled out into convenient divisions for purposes of collecting subscriptions and conducting prayer-meetings. (c) That each division have two collectors, who shall keep a strict account of the money collected.

VIII. That thanksgiving festivals be observed in every church once a year, when men, women, and children should attend church with offerings according to their means.

IX. That with a view to unifying church work and completing the organization of the diocese, it is advisable that every pastor in charge of a congregation should be directly under the Bishop, and be a member of the Provincial Council, so that congregations should be trained from the first on principles of self-support. That congregations not able to join either of the two present District Councils should be formed into separate Councils and be united to the Provincial Council. That in such case it is desirable that suitable financial arrangements should be made between the Bishop and the C.M.S. Committee to carry out their policy without delay.

X. That a Central Committee be formed in Cottayam, with the Church Committee in each station as Sub-Committees, to concert measures for increasing the interest of the people in the T.Y.E. The following to form the Central Committee :—The Right Rev. the Lord Bishop, Chairman; Venerable Archdeacon Caley, Venerable Archdeacon Koshi, D.D.; the Revs. W. J. Richards, J. J. B. Palmer, B.A., J. Chandy, E. V. John, T. K. Benjamin, B.A.; Messrs. M. M. Verghese, B.A., T. K. Kuruvila, B.A., K. J. Chakko, P. J. Abraham, B.A., L.Th., John Chandy, T. Korula, P. M. Chakko, B.A.

XI. That the sermon preached, the papers read, and the resolutions adopted, be printed and published.

The following report of work done in pursuance of the above Resolutions was made at a meeting of the T.Y.E. Central Committee, held at Cottayam in November :—

In accordance with Resolution V. of the Diocesan Conference of August 26th, special services were held in all the pastorates except Mavelicara. These were ably conducted by the deputations appointed by the Central Committee. Besides the addresses given by them, special sermons were preached at Cottayam by the Rev. F. N. Askwith, at Olesha by the Venerable Archdeacon Koshi, at Kodukulanji and Elantur by the Rev. O. Mammen, and at Mallapally by the Rev. K. Kuruwella. This movement, started by the Diocesan Conference, is taken up heartily by all the pastorates. The need for self-support is generally understood by the people, and subscriptions to the Church Sustentation Fund have been greatly increased. Some confessed publicly that they have not given for God's work as they ought to have done, and promised to increase their subscriptions in proportion to their means. In addition to this, people everywhere have very liberally subscribed to the T.Y.E. Centenary Fund. A coin collection will also be made in all the pastorates about Christmas. More than 800 children's collecting-cards have been distributed through the local secretaries, and from information received from them and from other sources we hope a good sum will be collected in this way also.

Subscriptions increased.

In accordance with a resolution of the Central Committee, the addresses read at the Diocesan Conference, together with accounts of T.Y.E. meetings, are being published monthly in pamphlet form.

From what has been done it is evident that God's blessing rests upon this movement. May He help us to go forward in unity and prayer and encouraging one another!

A further result of this Conference was that arrangements were made for the Allepie, Trichur, and Kunnankulam pastorates to join the Cottayam Church Council. The Bishop is assured that this step will call forth more local effort towards complete self-support.

The Rev. Cherian Itty, who was ordained in 1868, died in January, 1897, at Mundakayam, soon after he had been placed in charge of that pastorate.

Death of Rev. C. Itty.

Bishop Hodges sends a valuable summary, together with comments of his own, of the reports of the pastors labouring in connexion with the District Church Councils. He made during the year a complete visitation of all the pastorates, and confirmed 1,213 candidates, viz., 623 males and 586 females. Taking them in the order in which they appear in the list at the beginning of this Report, the pastorates of the COTTAYAM DISTRICT COUNCIL return an aggregate of 10,875 adherents, including 1,349 catechumens; 2,551 communicants; 736 were baptized during the year; and Rs. 4,377 was contributed. At Arpukara 73 were confirmed, and 29 adults baptized; many of the people promised to double their subscriptions to the Church Fund after a visit from the T.Y.E. deputation, and some promised to give three and even four times as much as before. At Cottayam, as a result of the T.Y.E. meetings, the people greatly increased their subscriptions to the Church Fund, which rose from an average of 3 annas per head to 8 annas; and this besides subscribing liberally to the T.Y.E. Fund. The Bishop says there are many signs that a missionary spirit is developing, especially among young men. At Cochin the people, mostly belonging to the working-class, subscribed Rs. 261 after three days special services conducted by the T.Y.E. deputation, and promised to renew the subscriptions annually for three years. A poor blind man named Murkos was the first to come forward, with a gift of Rs. 2 to the fund. A school has been built in the pastorate at a cost of Rs. 700. One congregation in the Changanasheri pastorate sent two members of the Y.M.C.A. to preach to the Pulayans who went to the hills for harvest, and they had the opportunity of preaching to many hundreds of willing hearers. Another congregation supported a teacher who accompanied the pilgrims to the Sabari mela. Fifty-five candidates were confirmed. In Pallam pastorate there are 3,334 adherents, and their subscriptions amount to Rs. 572. Some of the prayer-houses in the pastorate need to be enlarged to afford accommodation for the increasing numbers. The senior churchwarden at Olesha died during the year. He was, the Bishop writes, an exemplary Churchman, and on his sick bed he expressed a desire to see the Olesha Church self-supporting. A monthly missionary meeting has been commenced. On Christmas Day there was a coin collection for the T.Y.E., each member giving a silver coin; and on the following day the children brought Rs. 40 raised by collecting cards. These gifts were in addition to subscriptions of Rs. 200, and promises of 200 paras of paddy a year to the T.Y.E. Fund. The pastorates of Trichur and Kunnankulam were united to the Cottayam Council at the beginning of 1897. The Rev. J. H. Bishop writes:—

Cottayam Council

An exemplary churchwarden.

New pastorates join the Church Council.

> Although the people at first were opposed to the Church Council system, and only somewhat reluctantly consented to a special Trichur and Kunnankulam Church Council being formed, towards which they were willing to contribute not more than Rs. 50 and Rs. 30 respectively, yet after the visit of the Bishop in October last, and the efforts of the T.Y.E. deputation at the same time, much larger subscriptions were promised by leading laymen, and the people were much encouraged, and consented to the proposal that the Trichur and Kunnankulam pastorates, including all the principal out-stations, be united to the Cottayam Church Council from January 1st, 1897. The Trichur Pastorate will have to pay Rs. 150 and the Kunnankulam Pastorate Rs. 100 per annum, liable to increase, to the Cottayam Council. This is a most happy solution of a very perplexing problem, and exceeded my highest expectations.

Seventy candidates were confirmed at Trichur, three being from Kunnankulam.

Melkavu Council.

The MELKAVU COUNCIL has 2,410 adherents, of whom 75 are catechumens; 1,132 communicants; 124 were baptized during the year; and Rs. 1,729 was contributed. At Melkavu the T.Y.E. movement was heartily taken up by the people. The Mankompu pastorate lies in the territory of the Panniat Rajah, who was quite opposed to Mission work when the Rev. A. F. Painter first went to this district fourteen years ago. When, however, the Rev. P. A. Samuel, accompanied by thirty members of his congregation and some school-children, paid a visit to the Rajah's residence at the beginning of 1896, hoping to be allowed to preach and sing the Gospel in his hearing, after they had sung the lyric, "How sweet the Name of Jesus sounds," accompanied by fiddles, the Rajah and all his household went out to hear it, and asked the pastor to explain it verse by verse; after which other lyrics were sung, and the Rajah said he was glad to find these hill people so much improved, and he sent them away with presents.

The hymn "How sweet the Name of Jesus sounds" explained to a Rajah.

In the TIRUWELLA COUNCIL there were three pastorates, with 34 congregations and 5,821 adherents. The Rev. K. P. Oomen, of Tiruwella, was one of the T.Y.E. deputation chosen to visit the pastorates, and in his own pastorate he says the effort was much blessed. The local apothecary promised a month's pay for each of the three years, another member promised Rs. 36, and a third Rs. 30 annually; about 75 T.Y.E. cards were distributed to the children for collecting. At some of the out-stations young men volunteered to take up evangelistic work. This pastorate has 1,995 baptized Christians, 427 unbaptized adherents, 637 communicants; 117 adults were baptized during the year, and Rs. 782 was given for religious purposes.

Tiruwella Council.

The MAVELICARA COUNCIL has nine pastorates, in which there are 10,736 adherents, of whom 1,359 are catechumens; 2,917 communicants; 784 were baptized during the year; and Rs. 4,664 was contributed. The Elantur pastorate has nine congregations and ten schools. The Bishop confirmed 125 candidates. In Kodawalaniya fifty adults were baptized and 151 confirmed. The Bishop says that Kannit pastorate shows improvement in every respect. The foundation of a new church was laid at Gnakanal, towards the building of which the people subscribed Rs. 560; at this out-station a lay reader has been licensed by the Bishop; 115 candidates were confirmed. At Kattanam some of the young men meet on Sunday afternoons, and after reading and prayer go out in pairs to preach to the Heathen. "Progress in every department" is the Bishop's report of Mallapalli. The attendances at services and meetings and the contributions are better than they were. The adult baptisms numbered 243, and the confirmees 270. The few remaining members of the "Six Years' Party" in the Mavelicara pastorate, who are in well-to-do circumstances, are a source of temptation and trouble to the congregations, and make the exercise of discipline very difficult. Hindus and Mohammedans are also active in their opposition, imitating the methods of the Christians, e.g., conducting meetings with lyrics, distributing tracts, &c. In Tallawadi pastorate the Rev. M. C. Thomas reports that 65 persons, mostly at the out-stations, returned to Heathenism during the year, while 53 adults were baptized.

COTTAYAM.

Cottayam. The training and educational institutions for the Mission are at COTTAYAM or in its immediate neighbourhood. The Cambridge Nicholson Institution. Cambridge Nicholson Institution, under the Rev. J. J. B. Palmer, had 27 students, of whom ten were in the Divinity Class and the rest in the Normal Department. Of the ten, three were reading for the Universities' Preliminary Theological Examination, and the other seven (one being a deacon of the Syrian Church) were in a class for evangelists. The Divinity students give the majority of the lectures in Scripture and theology to the Normal students; they also preach every week in the market or near the Hindu temple, and attend, accompanied by the Principal and the boarding-master (the Nair convert whose baptism was mentioned in last year's Report, and of whose faith and consistency of life Mr. Palmer writes with much thankfulness; his wife has not yet joined him) the festivals and fairs held from time to time near Cottayam, and even the Shiva Ratri so far north as Alwaye, and the sham fight at Ochira, near Puthuppalli to the south. In connexion with the Y.M.C.A. they visit from house to house, and conduct a Sunday afternoon open-air preaching arranged by themselves. The Principal of the Institution superintends an annual examination of the agents, which he values as an opportunity of keeping in touch with the men who have been trained under his supervision. He is also Increasing demand for the Scriptures secretary of the Press Committee, and reports that the demand for the Scriptures in the vernacular grows continually, so much so that the sales in the Depôt increased during the latter half of 1896 by about 800 per. cent. The Press Committee sent the native superintendent of the Press and three of his subordinates to Madras, where the secretary of the Madras Auxiliary Bible Society kindly arranged for their enjoying opportunities of inspecting the chief presses and binderies of the town. Mr. Palmer himself utilized the vacations by visiting several Mission-stations in order to gather information helpful to him in the discharge of his duties.

The College. The College, with 400 on the books, had a prosperous year. In the Junior Peter Cator Scripture Examination twenty-two passed out of twenty-six sent in, all in the second class. In the Lower Secondary, twenty-two out of thirty-three passed, three in the first class. In the Matriculation, twenty-seven out of thirty-three; and in the First Arts, eight out of eleven. These are the results of the year as known to the Principal, the Rev. F. N. Askwith, in November. More recently, thirteen out of sixteen have passed the First Arts, and twenty-two out of fifty-six the Matriculation. The College, Mr. Askwith says, retains its high moral tone, and the spiritual work of some of the students—

Sunday-school work and open-air preaching—is a ground of encouragement. He wishes, however, that a keener interest were manifested by the boys generally in their Scripture lessons. A hostel for Hindu students, in which there are 26 inmates, was opened during the year.

The Girls' Boarding School, under Miss M. F. Baker (now at home), has 70 boarders and above 80 day girls. Eight of the girls, out of ten sent up, passed the Primary Examination. A third village branch school was opened at Nambadu.

Pallam.

At PALLAM the Rev. and Mrs. E. Bellerby are in charge of the Buchanan Institution, with 146 students, of whom 94 are boarders; and 554 pupils in twelve branch schools, of which two new ones were opened during the year, one at Olesha and the other at Kodukolangi. Three students went out from the Institution, two to take charge of branch schools, one as the wife of an agent who has charge of a school and congregation; and one became assistant mistress in the Institution. This last was Chacha Jacob, the student referred to last year as the first female candidate from Travancore to enter for the Lower Peter Cator, which she passed well up in the second class. Four passed in the Madras Lower Secondary, two in the first and two in the second class, and twelve passed the Primary. Later, in November, 1896, the whole Upper Primary class of eighteen entered for the Primary, and fifteen passed. The first two Normal students in the school sat for the Lower Secondary Grade in the spring of 1896, and passed in the third class. A weekly prayer-meeting is held for the teachers, and there is a Gospel meeting with singing, prayer, and short address every Wednesday evening for the girls. Mr. and Mrs. Bellerby visit the branch schools from time to time, and monthly meetings are held for the teachers.

ALLEPIE.

Allepie.

ALLEPIE is a busy and enterprising town of some 25,000 people, of many languages and religions and castes. The Christian community witnessing for Christ among them numbers less than five hundred, mostly of somewhat low caste, and some of them—at least six—cut off from the Church on account of gross sin. The visible fruits of the witnessing, by public preaching, sale of books, discussions, &c., were seventeen adult baptisms, all from the ranks of the "Freedmen"—viz., former slaves—and lepers. One was a prisoner under sentence of death for murder, whom Mr. Richards visited and instructed in prison during the few days before his execution. The Rev. W. J. Richards gave a lecture in March, 1896, to the Allepie High School Literary Society on "The Responsibility of Education," when he presented the claims of Christianity before a crowded audience, which included many Madras graduates, judges, and other Government officials. Allepie and its out-stations have been formed into a pastorate and placed in connexion with the Cottayam District Church Council. Several of the members joined it from the Church of Rome, being recommended to do so by an agent of that Church "if they wished to know the whole counsel of God, as the Scriptural record was with the Protestants,"—referring to the Bible in the vernacular. Mr. Richards mentions one of the teachers, whose pay is Rs. 4½ a month, who sold some land and took to Mr. Richards Rs. 30 as an offering to the Lord. This teacher is "a simple man, who knows his Bible and Prayer-book, and very little more, but who loveth much." The Leper Asylum has 24 inmates under constant instruction.

TIRUWELLA.

Tiruwella.

Archdeacon J. Caley succeeded the Rev. A. F. Painter in the charge of TIRUWELLA on the latter being invalided home in February, 1896. His work is that of helping and advising the pastors, on whom the responsibility for the work is more and more being thrown. He writes :—

Nairs ask that their servants may be taught the Christian religion.

Taking the pastorates as a whole, I am thankful to report real and substantial progress. The people are being taught to give more, year by year, towards self-support. They are becoming more watchful against wrong-doers, and more ready to bring sin to light. The numbers of those who can and do read the Word of God are increasing. More efforts are being made by members of the congregations to win others for Christ. That the people are really made better is evidenced by a request from some Nairs to commence work amongst their Pulayan servants at a place about seven or eight miles from some of the existing congregations, the reason being that they now find the Christians are better servants than they were before. Considering the terrible opposition of the masters during long years of struggle, this unasked-for testimony is very significant.

There are thirteen schools in the three pastorates connected with the Tiruwella District Council, and also two normal schools for the depressed classes, with seventy-three students—forty-four youths and twenty-nine girls.

ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Ettamanur Itinerancy.

The Rev. C. A. Neve had charge of the ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY, whose boundaries were indicated in last year's Report, until he left to take furlough in the spring of 1897. The Bishop confirmed forty-nine persons, and laid the foundation-stone of a church at Kattampakkal. At Ayarkunnam a Nair gave up a piece of land, and the congregation, numbering 100, built a prayer-house upon it. The first fruits, thirty adult converts, were baptized by Mr. Neve in October, 1896. At Thambalakada also the first-fruits were baptized in June, 1896, consisting of nine persons; the congregation there, too, has about 100 members. A congregation was formed during the year at Thedanada. Three or four men from the place visited Mr. Neve at the close of 1895, and petitioned for a resident teacher, and as soon as possible one was sent. Mr. Neve says of these people:—

A teacher lives in a tree to be safe from elephants.

The history of this little congregation of poor, downtrodden people during the past year has been a sad one. Before the monsoon rains, fever was very prevalent. Then the rains set in with unusual severity. Here (as at Peer Maad) many just managed to exist, reduced almost to skeletons, and many died. Amidst it all the teacher stuck to his post. The district is infested with elephants (at the harvest season), and the hut in which the teacher now lives is a small room made of latticed bamboos and reeds with thatched roof, built on the branches of a tree raised twenty feet above the ground.

Chenapadi and Manimala are places in a similarly wild jungly country, where the Society has no houses, and supervision is very difficult to provide. At the latter, one of the people conducts the services, receiving Rs. 2 a month.

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy

The Rev. C. E. R. Romilly (now at home) was in charge of the ALWAYE ITINERANCY, which comprises the taluqs of Parur, Alangadu, Kunnaltanadu, Todupuzha, Moowaltapuzha, and Wykium, an area of 1,692 square miles, with a population of 453,000, of whom about half are Hindus and the rest Mohammedans, Christians, and Jews. The Gospel is also proclaimed in the Native State of Cochin. Two evangelists are stationed at Ernakolam, the semi-capital, where they invariably get attentive audiences in the bazaar, and many, especially Roman Catholics, purchased the Scriptures. The capital of Cochin Native State, Tripooneterah, is reached by the agents stationed at Kandanada, but there the opposition is usually somewhat keen. On one occasion this opposition was useful, as the disturbance attracted the attention of one of the princes in the neighbouring palace, and an order was sent down for the preachers to go up to the palace, which they did, and preached for half an hour before the princes. The evangelist at Wykium, a Hindu town with a large and famous temple, is well received in the houses of the well-to-do tradespeople and even of the high officials, and engages with them in religious conversation.

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

Trichur.

The Rev. J. H. Bishop, in charge of the evangelistic work in and around TRICHUR, states that he had been led, before he received the Committee's T.Y.E. Manifesto, to draw up a statement for private circulation among European and Indian friends, asking for prayer and help during the last three years of the Society's first century on behalf of the people in the Native State of Cochin. In September, 1896, a Special Mission was conducted in Trichur by the Rev. Isaac F. Row, Indian Secretary of the Anglo-Indian Evangelization Society. Mr. Bishop believes a deep and permanent work of grace was accomplished in many individuals. Some of the educated young Christian men at first objected to after-meetings, but they came to recognize their importance, as many of the young converts were enabled at these meetings to understand and realize the way of salvation as they had not done before. Mr. Bishop baptized in October four converts of the very low and degraded Nâyâdi caste. The Maharajah of Cochin, who recently succeeded to the office, paid a quasi-state visit to the High School in November, and expressed himself much pleased with the experimental science lesson and the remarkable quickness exhibited by one of the teachers and his pupils in proposing and solving complicated questions in mental arithmetic. His Highness subsequently received at his palace handsomely bound volumes of the Holy Scriptures in Sanscrit and English, the gift of the Madras Auxiliary Bible Society. Through the kindness of the same Society and of the Association for the Free Distribution of the Scriptures, a copy of the Bible is being presented, together with a friendly letter, to every Nambûri householder in Cochin who is willing to receive one; and every Malabar Jew is being offered in like manner a copy of the Hebrew or Malayalim New Testament. The Rev. F. Bower took charge of the work at KUNNANKULAM and in the district on his return from furlough.

A deep and lasting work of grace.

CEYLON MISSION.

This Mission was commenced in 1817 among Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) forming the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddêgama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kurunêgala, 1880. For work among the Tamils Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

Reinforcements.

THE reinforcements to the Ceylon Mission consisted of the Rev. Hugh Horsley, M.A., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, Vicar of Oulton, Staffordshire, who retired from this Mission in 1895, but responded to the Committee's invitation to go out once more, and sailed in April, 1897; the Rev. J. Hamilton, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Rector of Maine, Coole, Westmeath, and Mrs. Hamilton; the Rev. Horace Crawford Townsend, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, son of the Rev. H. W. Townsend, Incumbent of Abbestrewey, Skibbereen; Miss Minnie Alice Wood, of The Olives, daughter of the Rev. David Wood, who retired from this Mission in 1893 in consequence of failure of health; Miss Helen Mary Warren Spreat; and Miss Amy Dowbiggin, daughter of the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin, of this Mission, in local connexion. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton and Miss Wood sailed in October, Miss Spreat in November, 1896, and Mr. Townsend in January, 1897. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton were obliged, on grounds of ill-health, to return to England in April, 1897. Mrs. R. T. Dowbiggin, who came home on account of her daughter's illness, as mentioned last year, returned to the Mission in October, having had the comfort of tending her child during her last weeks on earth; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Simmons returned in November. The Rev. and Mrs. J. I. Pickford came home on furlough in January, 1897, and Mrs. J. W. Fall the following month.

Deaths of Rev. G. T. Fleming,

The Rev. G. T. Fleming, after sixteen years of service in this Mission, died on August 29th, 1896. He was educated at Islington College, and was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London in 1880, the year in which he sailed to Ceylon. Of the eight Islington men of his year, he was the second to enter into rest, the first having been the Rev. L. F. Mountfort, who died after five years' service in Western India. The surviving six are the Revs. J. Ilsley (of this Mission), W. Banister (South China), A. E. Ball (Sindh), C. S. Thompson (Rajputana), J. Redman (Sindh), and W. G. Peel (Bombay). Mr. Fleming laboured at Jaffna until his first and only furlough in 1890, and at Colombo from 1892 until his death, among Tamils in both places. Mrs. Fleming came to England in October.

and of Mrs. G. Parsons.

The widow of the Rev. G. Parsons, who laboured in Ceylon, among the Singhalese, from 1849 till 1866 with one furlough, almost all the time at Baddegama, died at Whetstone on October 29th, 1896. Mrs. Parsons was the mother of the Rev. G. H. Parsons, of the Bengal Mission.

Ordinations. On May 31st, 1896, the Bishop of Colombo admitted Mr. D. Joseph Perera and Mr. D. H. G. Theodore Perera to deacons' orders, and the Revs. C. C. Handy, B.A., C. T. Williams, and A. K. Verasingam to priests' orders; and on December 21st he admitted Mr. W. L. Boteju to deacons' orders and the Revs. R. W. Ryde, G. Daniel, and S. Morse to priests' orders.

At the half-yearly conference of missionaries at Kandy, from January 5th to the 12th, the first day was observed as a "Quiet Day," commencing with an administration of the Holy Communion and a sermon by the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin. Addresses were given on various aspects of St. Paul's life and work as a missionary by the Revs. J. D. Simmons, A. E. Dibben, W. Welchman, and J. Hamilton.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

COLOMBO.

THE Rev. A. E. Dibben welcomed with much thankfulness at COLOMBO the arrival, in November, 1896, of the Rev. J. and Mrs. Hamilton, who left an Irish parish in order to try the experiment of six months' work in the foreign field, hoping to remain there permanently if health permitted, a hope which unhappily has not been realized. Mr. Hamilton at once began to give English Congregation. valuable help in connexion with the English Congregation at Galle Face. Both he and Mr. Dibben were much cheered towards the close of the year by a visit from the Rev. E. Bacheler Russell, who was unexpectedly detained for three weeks in the island en route to Travancore. "The sermons preached by him in the church on three consecutive Sundays," writes Mr. Dibben, "were the means, in the Lord's hands, of bringing souls to Christ, and we look forward to his possible return at no distant date to conduct a Mission here." A Boys' Brigade has been formed and has proved a great success, the number of boys applying for membership having made a second "company" almost necessary. Many members of the congregation continue to show liberality in their gifts to Foreign Missions, but Mr. Dibben feels that there is still much need for an awakening on this point amongst the Christian community at large. He writes:—

> Those who give do so generously, but we long to see a wider circle of our fellow-countrymen interested, and many who now hold entirely aloof from the work giving liberally of their substance to help forward the work of evangelizing the Heathen. I trust that, with God's blessing, something may be done in this direction in connexion with the Centenary of our Society, and that the Christians of Colombo may be led to resolve that without further delay the Gospel shall be preached "to every creature" in Ceylon, and thus the reproach be wiped away that, in spite of the wealth and size of the Christian community in Ceylon, there are to this day tens of thousands of people in the island who have scarcely even heard the name of Christ.

The Tamil Work in Colombo has suffered sore bereavement by the loss of two successive leaders, the Revs. J. D. Thomas and G. T. Fleming. No Tamil-speaking missionary being available at first, Mr. Dibben superintended the work until the close of the year, when the Rev. J. W. Fall removed temporarily to Colombo and was placed in charge of it. Encouraging progress is reported in this branch of the Mission. Eight adults and twenty-seven children were baptized, sixty-eight new communicants enrolled, and eighty-six additional scholars received into the schools during the year. Miss B. Child having been obliged to return to England on sick-leave in the autumn, the house-to-house visiting, the supervision of the Bible-women, and the arrangements for two day-schools, have since that time devolved upon Miss E. S. Young. Her work lies amongst both Tamils and Mohammedans. Tamil work.

The Rev. E. T. Higgens reports "steady progress" in the Singhalese Work. Street-preaching has been vigorously carried on, in spite of occasional Buddhist opposition. Mrs. and Miss Higgens superintend the work of the three Bible-women, and join them in house-to-house visiting. They also hold meetings, often in the open compounds, for women and children. Efforts are made to reach the servants in the surrounding bungalows. Of this branch of work Mr. Higgens says:— Singhalese work.

We have had no baptisms this year in connexion with the work amongst domestic servants, but in two bungalows there are three or four candidates. These are in houses where the mistresses take a real interest in the spiritual welfare of their servants, and give all the facilities possible to the catechist.

The pastoral work, which is carried on by the Rev. J. Perera, under the superintendence of the Cotta District Council, was somewhat discouraging, owing to the removal of several Singhalese Christian families from Colombo. Much earnest work has, however, been done, and at the time of writing the report seven adults were under instruction for baptism.

The Singhalese school at Kollonawe, about three miles from Colombo, has been the mark for special opposition on the part of the Buddhists, who have opened a school of their own there, with the object of drawing away the pupils, several of whom (as they probably knew) were earnestly desiring to become Christians. The average attendance has thus been reduced from forty to twenty. A similar school is situated in the Mission compound in Colombo itself, and has an average attendance of seventy-five. Miss A. Higgens writes:—

Not till the harvest-time shall we know what the seed of God's Word sown in these schools has brought forth. The other day I was in the house of a girl who three or four years ago was in our Galle Face day-school. Her mother is a Christian, and the girl herself was baptized in infancy, but the father is very bitter against Christianity, and at one time took her away from the school, but she fretted to such an extent that he had to bring her back. Since leaving school she has been confirmed, and though her father very much objects to her coming to church she gets there sometimes, and is always so glad when we go to see her. A little niece is staying in the house, whom she teaches every day to pray and to say little verses of hymns. I asked the child to sing to me, and found that a very favourite chorus was one which her girl-aunt had learnt at school—the Singhalese translation of "Anywhere, everywhere, I will follow Jesus."

COTTA.

Cotta. The Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin, of COTTA, sees signs of real progress in the direction of self-support and self-government in the congregation connected with the Cotta District Council. The Sunday-schools are fifty-eight in number, and are attended by 1,005 children. The Rev. G. S. Amarasekara, of the Cotta and Nugeoda pastorate, presented twenty-nine candidates for confirmation on March 30th, 1896. Temperance work has been carried on with encouraging results amongst both adults and children, and about 300 of the latter (the majority of them Buddhists) have been gathered together every Thursday in Cotta Church for a Gospel address. The gifts of the Christians to the Council Fund and the Native Missionary Society show a satisfactory increase. The Talangama and Welikada pastorate extends over a large district. Twelve services or prayer-meetings are held weekly. Sixteen adults and twenty-five children were baptized during the year. There are twelve Sunday-schools and a night-school connected with this pastorate, and Mr. Perera visits on an average six village Mission-schools each week; a duty in which he takes "great delight." The report of the Mampe pastorate tells of the passing away of three Christians, and of many others brought, through serious illness, to the very gates of death. "In all instances," writes the pastoral catechist, Mr. W. E. Boteju, "those whose Christian lives were thus put to the test showed an unswerving faith in God." And this faith is of no mushroom growth. Mr. Boteju goes on to say :—

Pastorates.

A characteristic feature of the Christians of Mampe is a strong faith in a prayer-answering God. After Divine service the congregation remain behind in church to make special supplication to God on behalf of themselves and others, and they have been greatly encouraged in this by specific cases of direct and visible answers to their prayers.

Lujanwala, the youngest of the pastorates, is under the charge of Mr. Charles Wijesinha. He is able to report signs of deepened spiritual life amongst many of the Christians. Several who formerly felt unable to take part in the Sunday prayer-meeting have begun to do so, and the women especially show much eagerness in Bible-study.

For six months of last year the Girls' Boarding School at Cotta was carried on by Miss Dowbiggin, Mrs. Dowbiggin being absent in England in consequence of the long illness and subsequent death of her daughter May, a much-loved pupil at the C.M. Children's Home, Limpsfield. The number of girls in the school has risen to fifty-nine, the eldest pupil being nearly twenty, and the youngest six years of age. Miss Dowbiggin reports :— Girls' Boarding School.

One girl has been baptized during the year, after waiting for five or six years. She was baptized in her own village during the Easter holidays. It is encouraging to see that the names of two old Boarding-school girls head the list of the results of the annual examination in Scripture held for teachers of vernacular schools in the district. A girl who left the school at Easter, having passed all the standards, has asked to be allowed to come on Sundays to the Bible-class which the elder girls attend. . . .

A girl of sixteen or seventeen, whose father is a rigid Buddhist, was ill, and when I went to see her one evening I said, "What can I do for you?" She replied, "Pray with me." During the prayer she more than once said "Amen" to the petitions with great fervour, which struck me. A day or two afterwards I asked, "When did you begin to love Jesus and give your heart to Him?" She said, "When Mr. Martin Hall was here." This was two and a half years ago, and therefore all that time she has been, like Joseph of Arimathæa, a secret disciple. I believe it is the same with her elder sister, who is also in the school. May the Lord in His own time and in His own way lead them to confess Him before their father, that Jesus may confess them before His Father in heaven.

The English School for Boys continues to do an excellent work, though the Buddhists have succeeded in drawing away a few of the pupils, who now number 150—a loss of eighteen upon last year. The bitterness of this opposition may be gathered from the following example given by Mr. de Silva, the headmaster :— Boys' English School.

A leading member of the Theosophical Society, a well-known Buddhist reformer, in the course of an address given at Cotta, compared Christian schools to hell, and warned the people especially against sending their children to our school unless they wished to ruin them by adopting the Christian faith. Buddhist Opposition.

One lad was baptized during the year, and there are ten catechumens, some of whom seem likely to "witness a good confession." Encouraging news was received of some of the "old boys," though two, alas! have fallen from the faith. Mr. de Silva writes :—

An old boy, holding at present a lucrative post in the Straits Settlements, is leading an exemplary life in the midst of heathen surroundings. His letters breathe a genuine heavenly fragrance. I trust he will eventually devote himself entirely to the preaching of the Gospel. Another young man, who is a captain in the Salvation Army, is a devoted servant of God, trying to do all the good he can by his godly life and teaching. He has willingly sacrificed many temporal advantages and comforts for the sake of the Gospel. A third has been ordained a deacon this year, after having worked as a catechist for some years, and is in charge of an important pastorate in the Cotta district. Another convert from Buddhism, who left us to attend Wesley College, is doing remarkably well, and continues to attend regularly the Sunday-school and services at Cotta as before. Being anxious that his younger brother should adopt his faith, he desired me to admit him to the school when his father was about to send him to the Buddhist school.

Of the Evangelistic Work, Mr. Dowbiggin speaks with special thankfulness. He says:—

The Bible-women who read the Scriptures to the people I regard as evangelists, and they have read the New Testament to 7,969 women, 4,958 men, and 8,956 children, a total of 21,883. The catechists and readers preached to 55,984 people in streets, villages, and gansabhawas. They also held among scattered Christian families 182 prayer-meetings, at which 1,449 were present. They were the means of distributing, along with the pastors, 16,500 tracts, which in many instances we know were carefully read. Our evangelistic methods and school-work are being copied by the Theosophic-Buddhist party, and the same party is very active in establishing opposition schools, sending out itinerant preachers, and circulating its literature. How long this effort may last it is impossible to predict, but as yet I see no signs of abatement in this district, and in some localities the opposition has been strong and persistent. I would mention here that we sold fifty-one Bibles, fifty-four Testaments, and 281 portions of Scripture during the year. The Gospel is the best evangelizer. The Word of God has been faithfully preached throughout the district, and some fruit has been gathered in, but not so much as we had hoped. Many are not far from the Kingdom of God, but they never seem to get pushed in.

In one village six persons were baptized in a prayer-room built by themselves, and were afterwards called to suffer persecution. Mr. Dowbiggin says:—

New converts steadfast under persecution.

Since the baptisms the Buddhists have tried them and tempted them in various ways. The head-man of the village tried to force them to take alms to the temple, and one of them said: "Do you not know that we have embraced Christianity? Though you or any one else tell us, we will not do so, nor go any more to the temple." One of those baptized was surrounded by Buddhists, who began to blaspheme Jesus. He said: "This is not the first time Jesus has been blasphemed. The people did so when He was dying on the cross for them, and your blaspheming only draws my heart more to Him."

Although Cotta is a Singhalese station, it is found necessary to employ a Tamil-speaking catechist for work amongst the 1,650 coolies who have found employment on the newly-planted tea estates of the district.

Theological Class.

The Theological Class at Cotta was under the charge of the Rev. S. Coles (now at home), who was also engaged in the difficult task of revising the Singhalese Bible and Prayer-book. His report of the eight students is a cheering one:—

They are in the habit of going out three times on week-days to preach by the roadside, and on Sundays they are well employed by going in many directions to preach and teach out of doors, and to more or less settled congregations and in schools. Twice in the year they have gone on preaching-tours, and were much encouraged by the attention paid to the messages they delivered.

The following subjects were studied during the year:—

(a) Bible: (1) Old Testament—2 Samuel, 2 Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel, Ezra, and Nehemiah; (2) New Testament—Gospel of St. John, Acts

Epistles to Romans, Corinthians, Philippians, Timothy, Titus, Hebrews. (b) Liturgy: History of Book of Common Prayer, Communion, Baptism, and Occasional Services. (c) Christian Evidences: Paley (second part); Ellicott on the Existence of God. (d) Singhalese grammar and classics. (e) Practice in preaching. (f) Singing.

BADDÊGAMA.

Baddêgama.

The Rev. J. W. Balding, of BADDÊGAMA, says of the district under his charge, that it contains a population of nearly 150,000 Singhalese; these, with the exception of about 600 Christians, of whom 270 are communicants, are all Buddhists, or, more truthfully, given up to demon-worship and superstition. In this extensive district there are three pastorates. The Rev. J. Colombage, who has been for two and a half years in charge of the Baddêgama pastorate, reports eleven baptisms and thirty-two candidates for confirmation during the year. Balapitiya, on the sea-coast, sixteen miles from Baddêgama, is, Mr. Balding considers, the most important centre in the district. This pastorate is under the Rev. B. Perera. Eleven adult converts were confirmed. A Bible-woman has now been appointed to the district, the work amongst women having been as yet almost untouched. The Dodanduwa pastorate continues under the charge of the Rev. J. P. Kalpagé. Out of the fifty-five adult Christians, forty are communicants. An important step was taken during the year, namely, the congregation made themselves responsible for the full support of their pastor, at the same time electing a Native Church Committee. The pastorate is now therefore self-supporting.

Pastorates

The Girls' Boarding School at Baddêgama has been, to quote the Government report, "conducted with conspicuous success." Ten girls were confirmed during the year, and twenty former pupils are now working as teachers in village schools. There are sixty-one boarders. The Village Schools number thirty-five, with 2,278 children—an increase of 128 children during the year, despite the fact that it was found necessary to close four schools, and that only three new schools were opened.

Schools.

The catechists stationed at the five out-stations labour, for the most part, under special difficulties. At Bentotte, twenty-eight miles from Baddêgama, the Buddhist opposition is very pronounced. A girl who expressed a wish for baptism was immediately removed from the school. The catechist at Elpitiya reports the confirmation of two women. The few communicants he believes to be "true people." Three prayer-meetings are held weekly, and tract distribution is vigorously carried on. The Telwatte district includes sixteen villages, in one of which a girls' school was built during the year by the Natives themselves. "Although there are many seekers," writes the catechist, "there are very few who believe in Christ." A new catechist was stationed at

Out-stations.

Kitulampitya, but the inhabitants of the village, supposing him to be of inferior caste to themselves, broke into his house and compelled him to leave the place. He has, however, bravely returned to his post, and is hopeful about the future. Of Mapalagama Mr. Balding writes:—

There is a population in this part of the district of about 7,000 people, all given up to superstition and demon-worship. Seventy-five years we have been working in it; catechist after catechist, teacher after teacher, has been sent. No one stops for any length of time, and there is scarcely any fruit to be seen. Oh, that I could find a good man full of faith and the Holy Spirit to try once more in this barren field.

Miss M. S. Gedge, who resides at Baddêgama, was chiefly engaged in language-study, in which she has made sufficient progress to undertake Mrs. Balding's Bible-class during her absence in England.

Miss Helen P. Phillips (an honorary missionary of the New South Wales C.M. Association) and Miss Ellen M. Josolyne have, on the whole, a happy story to tell of their year's work at Dodanduwa, the headquarters of one of the pastorates, as already mentioned. A Buddhist "mission" held during the spring and summer of 1896 was, however, for a time a sad hindrance to them. Miss Phillips writes:—

Every five years (so we are told) they put up large sheds near the chief temples, where thousands of people go daily to be taught, to hear the Banna read, and to worship relics, brought with much pomp from district to district to the Pin Kam Palla, as these large sheds are called. One very large one was erected at our Dodanduwa chief temple, and another at the temple close to Mary's school at Tiranagama.

These "missions" continued during the months of April, May, June, and July, where thousands from our thickly populated villages come to worship and do great koosals (or deeds of merit). Many went pilgrimages to all the surrounding temples. One day some women came to see us and rest, who told us they had that very day worshipped at five temples, and were on their way to the sixth. At one temple one day, so much beautiful food had been offered to the priests that, after feeding all the beggars they could get, they collected all the dogs and feasted them! Then every single person had to offer money to the relics, which money, of course, the priests got. In fact, when we came from India, where we had spent a very happy holiday, it seemed as though we should never begin work again.

Five boys from the school at Patawata, at the north end of Dodanduwa, were baptized during the year, and they, together with the seven baptized the year before, form the choir of the village church. Miss Phillips says:—

They all have Bibles and Prayer-books, and proudly find out and read every lesson, &c. I love to look across the church from where I play my "baby-organ" to our choir pews, where I can see all my dear boys reading their Bibles or singing the chants most heartily, if not in perfect tune; and what is more, these Bibles all go to Buddhist homes. Never before this last year have there been Bibles in these Buddhist homes. Who can tell what their influence will bring forth?

The remaining 151 boys in the school, and forty-one of those who attend the industrial classes in the afternoon, are all Buddhists, and of the ninety girls attending the Vernacular school, and the sixty-nine who have joined the industrial classes, only one has been baptized, though many are, Miss Phillips believes, "Christians at heart." One special feature of the year's work was the organization of fourteen "Cottage Meetings" in Buddhist homes. Twice during the year the poor fisher-folk of the village have been addressed by a high-caste Singhalese lady from Colombo, the first ever permitted by her friends to engage in such work. Miss Phillips has bought and handed over to the Society a piece of land near the Church, upon which a Mission bungalow and schools are now being erected.

A high-caste Singhalese lady proclaims the Gospel to poor villagers.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

KANDY.

The Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering and the Rev. R. W. Ryde have had the joy during the past year of admitting two former and three present students of Trinity College, Kandy, into the Church of Christ by baptism. The College building has been enlarged, and the number of students, including those attending the affiliated Primary School, has now reached 430. The boarding house is full, and more than twenty names have been entered for admission when vacancies permit. The "Old Boys' Association" has a membership of 144. One former student sent the whole of his first month's salary, after leaving the College, as a thankoffering for blessings received there. Of the present pupils Mr. Napier-Clavering and Mr. Ryde write, in their joint Annual Letter :—

Trinity College, Kandy.

A grateful student.

> That Jesus Christ can help boys on week-days with the ordinary lessons has been realized as a matter of experience by several of the boys. It was suggested to one little boy that he should in silent prayer seek the help of Jesus Christ for his lessons. "Yes," was his answer, "I have tried it and found it true." And this is not a solitary instance. As one of us was trying to explain to one of the boarders that there are Christians and Christians, and that the power of Christ reached beyond the checking of words and deeds, he acknowledged that he knew by experience that Christ could keep his thoughts.
>
> But how can we reproduce the conversations that have given us the greatest joy? The very secrets of the heart that is seeking after God may not lightly be exposed to the gaze of others; there are conversations too sacred to be reproduced. Only those who have been privileged to share in them can fully appreciate the way in which God prepares for them, or the circumstances of the occasion He gives. We thankfully acknowledge that God has given many such occasions during the past year. May we be more ready to buy up our opportunities as they are given!

"I have tried it and found it true."

Two Pastorates are worked under the District Council for the Central Provinces. The Rev. H. Gunesekara is pastor of Kandy; his district also including Katukele, Gaetembe, and Kadugannawa.

Pastorates.

Twenty-eight persons were confirmed at Kandy on July 18th. The Gampola Pastorate is under the Rev. H. W. Senewiratna. Four adults were baptized and nineteen confirmed during the year. Miss A. M. Denyer and Miss E. M. Loveridge are responsible for the Work among Women. One woman was baptized during the year.

Two C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies, the Misses Bellerby and Nash, conduct the Clarence Memorial School for high-caste girls. The Misses Scovell and E. Karney, of the same Society, engage in village work, making their headquarters at Gampola. The latter's medical knowledge has opened many doors.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy

The Rev. J. G. Garrett, residing at Kandy, has the supervision of the SOUTH-EASTERN DISTRICT of the Singhalese Itinerancy. He writes at the commencement of his Annual Letter:—

I begin with a sense of thankfulness that, as a Mission band, we have been led to more expectancy, more seeking for the Holy Spirit's work, more determining to be satisfied with nothing less than we have experienced before. . . .

Dependance on the Holy Spirit.

That the work of a missionary could not be done by "the natural man," and that the only work worth counting done was the work we could see and believe to be the Holy Spirit's own work, has made me more slow to baptize perhaps, but more expectant of Divine interposition than I felt before. This has led to our monthly meetings being taken up almost entirely with the subject of the Holy Spirit, and I feel that the effect has been to make our attack on Heathenism more real, and certainly our hopefulness more intense, than in times past.

It is not surprising to hear that work carried on in this spirit has resulted in very definite blessing. Although the number of baptisms is comparatively small, the truth has found an entrance into many hearts and lives, and the outward confession of faith, though delayed for various reasons, will no doubt follow. Of one man Mr. Garrett tells the following story:—

An opponent yields to the influence of prayer.

One day, while a fellow-worker was going to a service, he met an Arachi, a village head-man, who had been from the first our most determined opponent. My friend asked him to come to the service, and he came. The catechist preached, and afterwards they had some singing, simple lyrics, the children picked them up, and the little service consisted of simple prayer and praise—about thirty Buddhist children and three Christians, a few Buddhists looking over the low mud walls, and our Arachi seated on a bench a little apart, inside. Service over, the evangelist felt it laid upon him to pray for this Arachi. He knelt beside him at a form as he sat, and prayed in silence. Presently, with no previous agreement, the same thought came upon my schoolmaster; he knelt too and prayed in silence. The influence spread to the catechist, who knelt with them, and the three prayed in silence for the soul of this man who sat between them, and the children looking on. Presently he broke out: "I cannot do it, I dare not do it; they would kill me," &c. Without getting off his knees the evangelist said, "Show him Matt. v. 11." The Arachi yielded, knelt and prayed with tears, and went to the schoolmaster's house and spent the day with him, inquiring, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" He has been hindered as yet from being baptized, as he has left the village and gone with a gang of labourers to a tea-estate some fifteen miles off, and so has got out of our reach. If indeed, as I believe, the Spirit's work has begun in his heart, we may pray with courage, for "the gifts and calling of God are without repentance."

Commenting upon this and other cases, Mr. Garrett adds:—

Longing for fruit.

Of those that in one district were moved by the Spirit, as I think, to confess Christ—in all eleven men and two women and four children—only three have been baptized. Am I too anxious to "glory in their flesh"? The writing them in a baptismal registry, and signing them with the sign of the Cross in token that they should not be ashamed of Jesus, is so great a joy that we rather press for it. I am striving to enter into the rest which comes from indeed feeling and living, "God forbid that I should glory save in the Cross of Christ Jesus my Lord, by Whom the world is crucified to me, and I unto the world." To say with St. Paul, "I thank God that I baptized none of you," is an experience above me so far, and how far this means "glorying in their flesh," God knoweth.

Turning to the consideration of the Native Christians, Mr. Garrett relates one very touching incident:—

Grace abounding.

I never saw "grace abounding" more than in Mr. Nathaniëlsz, an old Wesleyan native minister, and his wife and daughter. I only came to know them after he had retired from active service and was on pension. His daughter had been in charge of a large school in Galle, but health had forced her to give it up. She came to help me at Urugala, and I at once felt that she was one in whom the Spirit of God dwelt. She left civilization, and money, and friends, to live where they stole the very plates off her table. Her old mother delighted in the sacrifice her daughter made, and when the husband's pension was granted, came herself to be a Bible-woman in another village six miles off, bringing the old man with her. Here they were as "a burning and a shining light" till the Buddhists rose at the bidding of the Theosophists, and sternly "boycotted" them. The exposure led to consumption. She had to go to Colombo and the work was stopped. But here an incident occurred which many who heard me at home will remember. The old woman is dying. Her favourite daughter, Sophie, is still at Urugala; she longs to come and be with her mother in her last hours. But what will become of the work? There is none who can do what she is doing. She has my full consent to let it drop, and let the poor girls she is ministering to go back. But she cannot. Finally she asks me to "leave it to her mother," and I come into the little white-washed room in Colombo where the dear old lady lies, all worn away, on a little couch. She kissed my hand again and again, and blessed me for having let her try to do the work, and then we came to the great question, "May Sophie come down and be with you?" &c. "But what will become of the work?" "Oh! she must leave it; she won't have you for long." The old lady at this raised herself up on her elbow, and speaking with far more force than one would suppose her capable of, she said: "What is my trouble, what is my burden, what is weighing me down, but that the work is not done?" "And shall Sophie come down and leave her work too? No, sir! Tell her to stay at her post and to work for herself and for me too; we will have lots of time to be together in heaven!" So the mother again gave her daughter up, and proved that she had an inheritance among those that are sanctified. And in a fortnight, when I saw Sophie again, the tears streamed down, but she only said, "I did what my mother told me, sir," and she too has proved that "she desires a better country, that is, an heavenly."

"Tell her to stay at her post."

Six candidates were confirmed at Urugala, and the Bishop, during his visit, laid the foundation-stone of a little church to be erected in the C.M.S. compound in memory of Mr. Nathanielsz, who passed to his rest not long after his wife, witnessing for his Lord up to the last.

Northern District.

The field of work assigned to the Rev. H. E. Heinekey is the NORTHERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy, including the Lower Dumbara District and the North Central Province. He writes:—

> The former district is eight miles by ten, with a population of about 43,500, of which more than 11,000 are Tamils on tea-estates. The latter is over 4,000 square miles, with a very scattered population of nearly 75,000. Anuradhapura is the chief town in the province, and it contains a few English inhabitants belonging to the Ceylon Civil Service. There are no tea or cocoa estates in the province. Wattegama is the chief centre of the Lower Dumbara District. I hold Singhalese and English services there on the first Sunday of each month, and on the second Sunday take Singhalese, Tamil, and English services in Anuradhapura. The other Sundays I have services in various places. The Tamil work is done by interpretation.

The Rev. J. Colombotantorige, formerly of Baddêgama, has now been transferred to Anuradhapura. He is the first Singhalese pastor to work there. Mr. Heinekey opened three new schools in his district in addition to the ten already in existence. Two boys from the Arangalla school, and two from that at Hattamunie, were baptized during the year. A Tamil evangelist, formerly schoolmaster at Anuradhapura, has been appointed to work amongst his own countrymen, of whom there are many in the neighbourhood. Addresses in both Singhalese and Tamil are given every Sunday to the prisoners in the gaol.

Western District.

The WESTERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy continues under the charge of the Rev. L. G. P. Liesching, whose work extends over an area of more than 2,000 square miles, with a population of upwards of 317,000 souls. He writes:—

> During the early part of the year I was able to make a short tour to the south of this, and to cover what to some extent was new ground. This has since been twice visited. It must not be forgotten that the work round Kegalle is much newer and younger than round Kurunegala, a larger town twenty miles to the north. The population is thicker here, and the climate very much healthier than there. These two considerations of course add much to my regret that this part of the district has not been evangelized sooner, and that even now nothing but the humblest beginning has yet been made.

One encouraging incident is given:—

Buddhist chiefs invite evangelists to preach in public court house.

> In the course of the tour just referred to, we were preaching to the crowd assembled at the village tribunal, a few miles from this, and started singing under the shade of a tree. I had previously had a friendly conversation with two native chiefs, neither of them a Christian, but the senior of them an old pupil of Mr. Fenn's at Cotta. However, it was rather late when our preaching commenced, and when I saw the two great headmen walking out to where we were standing, my heart sank, as I thought they had chosen this as the least unpleasant way of intimating that our opportunity was now past, and that as the work of the court had to begin, we must no longer preach. In this, however, I was happily mistaken, for they had come to invite us inside, and both sat listening attentively, and ensuring silence and order through their officials, while the catechist and I, one after the other, explained the way of salvation, and pleaded with the crowd—assessors, headmen, and people of all races, creeds, and conditions—to accept the Lord Jesus as their one Refuge. And this in the very building where, but a few years before, the predecessors of these chiefs had used their influence to assemble a vast concourse of people from all the country round to listen to the blasphemies of Colonel Olcott! Truly those that wait on the Lord shall never be ashamed.

Kegalle.

The Rev. F. W. Daundesekara (transferred from Talampitya) is in pastoral charge of the congregation of Kegalle (where Mr. and Mrs. Liesching reside), and the neighbouring villages. He has been privileged to see some definite results of his work there in 1893, when he was an evangelist supported by the Gleaners' Union at Colombo. Ten of the inhabitants of Kobbewella, a village about four miles from Kegalle, who were baptized during the year, are the fruit of his former labours. This is the seventh village station to be occupied in the Western District. Of the Girls' Boarding School at Kegalle, Mrs. Liesching writes:—

Girls' Boarding School.

The children have improved greatly in many ways. In needlework, singing, and general diligence they have made decided progress. They have done well in the Scripture examination. We know that the daily instruction they receive in the Bible must tell upon their lives, and we trust that many may be led by the Holy Spirit to seek and find the Saviour and follow Him in simple obedience.

Two of the elder girls, Ranmenika, aged eighteen, and Agida, aged fourteen, were baptized at Easter by their own wish, the parents having given their consent. We had a long term of more than six months after the hot weather, and the children are now away for the Christmas holidays. Ranmenika writes that she is reading the New Testament to some women, and trying to get them to believe in the Lord Jesus. Our present accommodation is very limited, and as we are expecting more girls next term, we intend to enclose a verandah so as to make two more rooms.

The educational work generally of the district made good progress during the year. Mr. Liesching says:—

Again I am able thankfully to record satisfactory progress in this branch of the work, the result no doubt of regularly-held test examinations by my school inspector. The Government grants earned amounted for the first time to over Rs. 2,000, which is an excess of over Rs. 600, or nearly 50 per cent. above the amount of two years ago. We have reason to expect a further increase next year, as I have had this year five schools on my hands which have received no aid from Government. Four of them will certainly be aided in 1897. There are in all twenty schools, besides the girls' boarding-school with over 1,100 children on the lists, and a daily average attendance of 660.

A new school was opened at Ranwela, two miles from Kegalle, where Mr. and Mrs. Liesching resided once for fourteen months in a native house. It already has eighty scholars on its roll. Kurunegala is under the charge of a pastoral catechist, who, although he has no very definite results or developments to chronicle, concludes his report with the remark: "The Hand of the Good Shepherd is leading His little flock here, and they hear His voice." At Talampitya a native Baptist missionary, ignoring the wishes of his European fellow-worker, visited the place in January, 1896, and immersed seven members of the C.M.S. congregation (see last year's Report, page 294). Some, however, show signs of wishing to return to the communion of the Church of England. Of the village work as a whole Mr. Liesching has not a very cheering report to give. The lives of many of the Native Christians have been a cause of sorrow. The village of Jakaduwà, however, he describes as "a model station of late." Four adults were baptized there.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

Tamil Coolie Mission.

The three European superintendents of the Tamil Coolie Mission, the Rev. J. Ilsley, of Kotgala, the Rev. W. Welchman, of Kandy, and the Rev. J. W. Fall, of Haputala, all write under a deep sense that "there remaineth very much land to be possessed" in the immense districts under their charge. Mr. Ilsley says of the KOTGALA DISTRICT :—

> The enormous number of estates in different parts of the district that have to be visited, some 150 miles away, down in the valley of the Kelani, at sea-level, and others at altitudes varying from 2,000 feet to nearly 7,000 feet above, make it an exceedingly difficult district to work, and do what one will, there is always the feeling that the work is not being done satisfactorily. We only seem to be hovering round the margin of the work, instead of getting at the very heart of it. Until each estate can be visited by the European missionary at least once in the quarter, and until the Holy Communion can be administered to each congregation at least once a month, one must needs feel that the work is far from being satisfactorily done.

It is scarcely matter for surprise, under the above circumstances, that discouragements arise through the low-level lives led by some Native Christians, and the open sin into which others have fallen. Mr. Ilsley writes, however, far more about encouragements than discouragements. The catechists of the district all testify to the prayerfulness of the majority of the Tamil Christians, and their diligence in Bible study. Two special instances are given by Mr. Ilsley :—

Two hours before dawn spent in reading and prayer.

> Last year mention was made of a Tamil Christian who for some time past had been in the habit of devoting two hours every morning to the reading of the Bible and private prayer. Another instance of the kind has been reported, and in this case also the habit has been of long standing. Both these men of God rise two hours before the dawn in order that they may have time for uninterrupted reading and prayer before they begin their day's work at six o'clock. All the more interest attaches to these two cases from the fact that, some years ago, these men were by no means bright Christians.

The privilege of public worship is also warmly appreciated by many of these simple people. Mr. Ilsley says :—

> It is by no means an uncommon occurrence for the churches to be filled, sometimes uncomfortably so, on Communion Sundays. The Christians delight thus to meet together, and truly many may say with David of old, "Lord, I have loved the habitation of Thy house, and the place where Thine honour dwelleth."

Twenty-four adults and seventy-one children were baptized. Of one of the newly-baptized Mr. Ilsley writes:—

Paul, a Tamil trader, was baptized early in the year. He is a Native of Meenachinadapuram, in Tinnevelly, and was educated in the C.M.S. Mission-school there. He is an intelligent man, and has read a great deal about Hinduism, with the result that he became a determined opponent of Christianity. Nearly three years ago he was travelling by train from Colombo, and in the same carriage, which was full of Tamils, there was a Tamil Coolie Mission catechist. The catechist spoke to his fellow-countrymen about Christ, and offered them some Christian books and tracts. Those who could read accepted them. Paul also took one from the catechist, but, instead of reading it, he tore it up and threw the fragments in the catechist's face, using at the same time most abusive language. The catechist had the good sense to bear the insult patiently, only remarking that he was sorry the tract had been destroyed, and begging the man who had destroyed it to beware, lest God should cast him out at the last. Six months afterwards there was an open-air evangelistic meeting in Kandapolla Bazaar, one of the speakers being the catechist who had travelled in the train with Paul. After the meeting, one of those who had been listening attentively to the addresses came to this catechist and said: "I do not know whether you remember me. I was the man who tore up the tract that you gave me in the train some time ago. I am truly sorry for the abusive language I used, and for having destroyed the tract. I have not forgotten what you then said, and I am glad to tell you that I have determined to know more about the Christian religion and to become a Christian." He became from that time an inquirer. The catechist who had charge of Kandapolla began to instruct him, and in February last he came to me and asked to be baptized. He told me all about himself, and what had led him to think of Christ and His claims. I examined him carefully, and was most delighted to see what a grasp he had of the way of salvation. We had prayer together, and then I told him I could not come to Newera Eliya or Kandapolla for some time, but that when I came I would gladly baptize him. He inquired where I would hold service on the following Sunday. I replied, "Lindula." "Then," he said, "I will come there and be baptized." And so he came, walking nearly thirty miles to the service. The church was full on the occasion, and it must have been a great help to him to feel that so many were lifting up their hearts to God for him. He returned to Kandapolla, and still lives there, engaged in his profession as a trader. He married a bright Christian girl a few months ago. I saw him last in September. He and his wife and his wife's brother were at home when I called to see them. They all looked so happy. After we had had a little talk together, he brought out his Bible and I read a few verses, and prayed with them. He also offered prayer, simply and earnestly. He is now being prepared for confirmation.

Patience under insults rewarded.

Walking thirty miles to be baptized.

The KANDY DISTRICT is thus described by the Rev. W. Welchman:—

A district between 2,500 and 3,000 square miles in extent, with Kandy as centre, constitutes the northern division of the T.C.M. There are some 500 estates in this district, each with a large number of Tamil labourers, the total being estimated at about 100,000. Dotted over this district are eighteen centres, in which services are held regularly Sunday by Sunday by the catechists, and once in four months by myself. The total number of Christians attending the services is about 800. In many cases the Christians have many miles to walk to church, so that the attendance is not very large at some of the services, except when the "Padri" comes, and then all make an effort to be present. Fancy an English congregation receiving three visits from a clergyman in a year! And yet people wonder if they hear of any irregularities in the lives of the Tamil Christians. With so few advantages the wonder is they stand as firm as they do. It must not be supposed that we have churches in each of these eighteen centres. Sometimes we meet together in native houses, and sometimes in stores, but we are doing all we can to get special buildings in each district. Besides the eighteen centres in which Sunday services are held, there are several other places in outlying districts where the Christians gather together whenever the catechist or the "Padri" comes round.

Three visits from a clergyman in a year.

Notwithstanding the above disadvantages Mr. Welchman reports distinct advance in every branch of the work. He writes:—

The number of catechists has risen from thirteen to fifteen, that of schoolmasters from fifteen to twenty, while a new Bible-woman has been employed, making the number three. The schools are now twenty in number, as compared with fourteen last year. Then as regards definite results there has been advance. The number of adults baptized was fourteen, as compared with six last year, that of children thirty-one, an increase of one over the previous year. The total number of Christians has increased by over 100, while the amount subscribed by the Christians for general church purposes was Rs. 1,573, Rs. 450 more than last year. It is very difficult to say anything definitely about the spiritual progress made by the Christians, but the attendance at church and at the Holy Communion has increased considerably, and one can but hope that this is a sign of a deeper surrender to the Spirit's working. For these things we rejoice and thank God.

Of those baptized during the year Mr. Welchman says:—

In nearly every case the conversion was the gradual growth of seed sown years ago. Some had been educated in Mission-schools, and the lessons learnt had taken root, and at last they were brought to acknowledge Christ in baptism. Others had heard the Gospel at muster, and after instruction by the catechist had decided to cast in their lot with the people of the Lord. One case was a pathetic one. When visiting a certain district a man and his wife were brought to me for baptism by the catechist. I questioned them and found that they did not know the lessons which are generally required for candidates for baptism, viz., the Lord's Prayer, the Creed, and the Ten Commandments. They seemed to understand, however, the need of pardon, and that Jesus Christ was the only Saviour from sin. I told them I could not baptize them at once, that they must learn a little more, but that on my next visit I would admit them into the Church. The old man was very sad. He said that he had been trying for seventeen years to learn the Lord's Prayer and could not do so, and that three other missionaries had told him he must wait and learn. He pleaded very much to be baptized, but I felt it would be well for him to have more instruction, so arranged that the catechist should go regularly for three months to teach him. At the end of that time I paid another visit to the district, and could scarcely believe that I was examining the same people I had questioned before. The Creed and the Lord's Prayer were known by heart, and they seemed to understand much more clearly what before they had indeed believed. It was a real joy to baptize them, and I felt that for this country it was one of the best examples of reality of purpose I had ever come across. I often think of this old man, waiting seventeen years for baptism, and although turned back and asked to wait, still trying to learn, and determined to publicly confess the One he had learnt to love.

Waiting seventeen years for baptism.

Mr. Welchman was absent, through ill-health, from the Mission for three months during the early part of 1897. The Rev. A. Gnanamuttu, Tamil pastor at Kandy, is compelled by age and infirmity to retire from the Mission, after forty-six years' faithful service, principally in connexion with it. Miss H. E. Finney, who resides at Kandy whilst engaged in Tamil study, was joined in November, 1896, by Miss M. Wood.

The Rev. J. W. Fall, of the HAPUTALE DISTRICT, reports a year free from memorable incidents, except indeed the painful incidents of the temporary defection of two native agents, the ill-health of others, and the conscious inadequacy of Mr. Fall's own efforts to combine purely evangelistic work with the necessary pastoral supervision of the district. His heart was gladdened, however, by the baptism of eight converts, all over twelve years of age. Three of them—a father, mother, and son—had been under instruction for six years. A new church was in process of erection at Balangodde, where the opening of many hundreds of acres of land for tea-cultivation has resulted in a large influx of coolies. Mr. Fall writes:—

Systematic giving.

In connexion with the mention of gifts to the Church, I should like to note the spontaneity of giving amongst a people not over-abundantly blessed with the world's gear. It is reported to me, and I know how common it is amongst Tamil Christians, that two women near here put aside from their daily allowance a handful of rice each day. At the end of the month the whole quantity is measured, and the market value of whatever has thus been saved is put aside as a subscription for Church or Native Missionary Funds. Such systematic giving is noteworthy.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

THE Rev. J. I. Pickford (now at home) superintended the six pastorates of the Jaffna Peninsula and the adjoining mainland, residing at NELLORE. Thirty-seven candidates were confirmed there in April, 1896. The Girls' Boarding School continues under the charge of Miss K. Heaney. Two of the girls were baptized by Mr. Pickford. Work amongst women is carried on by Bible-women under the superintendence of Miss M. Saul.

Jaffna. Nellore.

At CHUNDICULLY the chief event of the year was the opening of a new Girls' English High School, under the management of Mrs. Carter (now at home), who was joined in December, 1896, by Miss Spreat. At the close of the year there were thirty pupils on the books, of whom fifteen were boarders. The number of students at St. John's College is slightly lower than it was the previous year, there being 261 on the books, but a higher percentage of results was obtained in the Government examinations. The Rev. J. Carter hoped to baptize one boy early in 1897, but he laments the fact that in many other cases while the intellect assents to the truth of Christianity, the sense of sin seems wholly absent. Fourteen boys were confirmed in April, 1896, about all of whom Mr. Carter writes hopefully. Meetings of the Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A., and Gleaners' Union are held regularly, and give cause for encouragement. The veteran native pastor of Chundicully, the Rev. G. Champion, reports two adult baptisms during the year. He has now 256 adults and 151 children on his list of Christians. The work at Kopay has gone quietly but steadily forward. The Rev. G. Daniel, native pastor of that place, has 198 adult Christians in his district. Miss A. E. Paul and Miss L. Case, assisted by Bible-women, Kopay. are responsible for Work among Women in Kopay and the surrounding villages. The former held Scripture Union meetings for the students belonging to the Training Institution, nine of whom were baptized in November. The Rev. J. Backus, Pallai. native pastor at Pallai, was greatly encouraged by a spiritual awakening amongst the Heathen at the neighbouring village of Elutumatval, the outcome of the faithful efforts of a local colporteur. A weekly Bible-class, conducted by the pastor or catechist, is now held in the village. Three members of the class were baptized, and six "hopeful candidates" were under instruction at the close of the year.

The Wannie, an extensive district on the adjoining mainland, was visited by the catechists in June, 1896, when the Gospel message was carried to 132 villages, and numerous tracts were distributed and Scripture portions sold. Mr. Pickford himself visited the district a month later, and held services for the Christians at Mullative, (where a girls' school has been opened), Tamiyuttu, Nedunkerney, and at Vavoniya, the seat of the pastorate, where a church is in course of erection.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Mission has owed much to successive Bishops of Mauritius, Dr. Ryan, Dr. Royston, and the present Bishop, Dr. Walsh, an old member of the C.M.S. Committee, who was consecrated in 1890.

Bishop Walsh (now in England), assisted by Archdeacon Buswell and the Rev. A. K. Finnimore, conducted a special devotional service in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise in St. Paul's Church, Plaine Verte, on July 31st, 1896, at which all the C.M.S. clergy and agents were present. The Bishop admitted the Rev. S. Susunker to priest's orders on February 2nd, 1897. A few days before, on January 29th, the Bishop held a "quiet day" for the clergy and other workers in Mauritius, at Holy Trinity Church, Rose Hill, and Miss H. A. Wilkinson addressed a special meeting for wives of agents and other women. Ordination.

The Rev. C. A. Blackburn came home in June, 1896, and returned to the Mission in May, 1897. Archdeacon H. D. Buswell was married to Miss A. H. C. Wilkinson on April 20th, 1897.

There are six Pastorates, four of which are under native pastors, all now in priests' orders, and two under lay agents. The Rev. S. Susunker, of Port Louis Pastorate, reports eight adult baptisms. The Rev. J. Ernest, of the Northern Pastorate, says his people contributed Rs. 235 to the Church Council Fund—the largest amount ever sent up by them. The Bishop confirmed 14 Indian candidates, the service being conducted in French, the Bishop's sermon was preached in English, and Mr. Ernest translated it into Creole. In the North Central Pastorate the Christians fell in numbers from 551 to 504 through migrations, return to India, and deaths. Six adults were baptized. Archdeacon H. D. Buswell, at the completion of his thirty-fourth year of missionary service, having watched for thirty years with deep interest the growth of the work in this island, writes:— Pastorates.

> The conviction is burnt deeper into my soul than ever that "except the Lord build the house, they labour in vain that build it," that no amount of anxiety or activity will be remunerative apart from the presence and working of the Holy Ghost. "I believe in the Holy Ghost." "I believe in the Holy Ghost."

The Archdeacon gave lectures two mornings each week at the Diocesan Training Institution, with five students, four C.M.S. and one S.P.G., at which also the Rev. S. S. Singh took classes in Scripture, history, English grammar, &c. The Archdeacon also superintended the work among the Hindi-speaking Coolies, the Christians among whom look upon St. Paul's Church, Port Louis, as their mother-church. Their attendance at the services is irregular, and their general spiritual condition occasioned much anxiety. The largest North Indian congregation in the island is the one at Moka, where a zealous colporteur ordinarily conducts the services. In evangelistic work, to which the Archdeacon devotes three days of each week, many profess to be impressed, but give no evidence of a sincere purpose to live a new life.

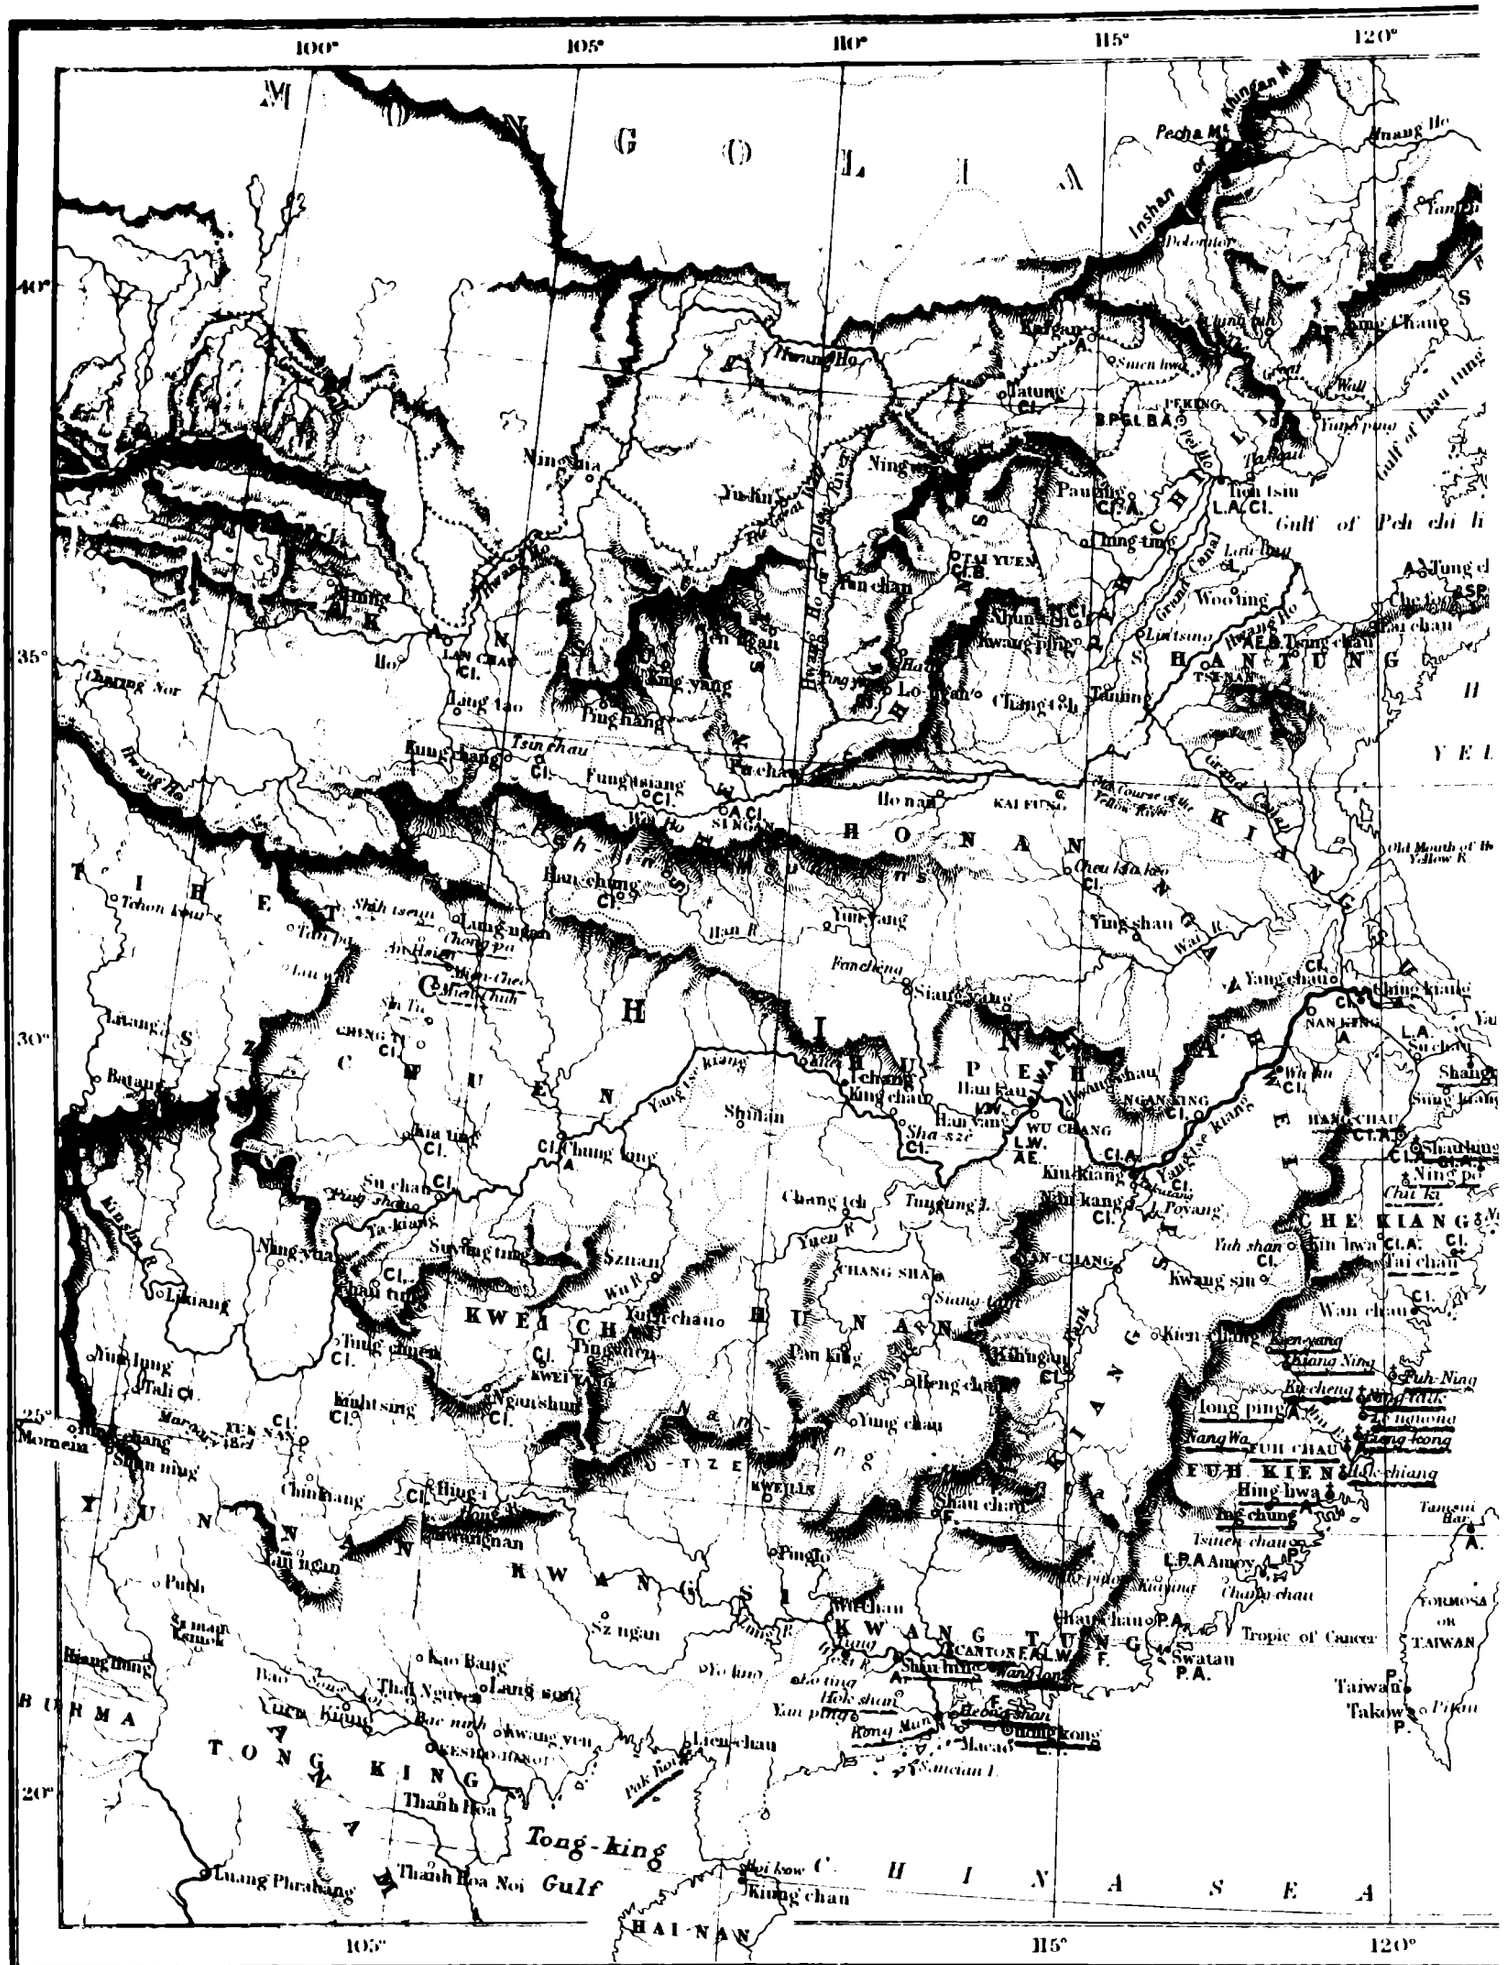
Boys' and Girls' Orphanages.

The Boys' School and Orphanage at Plaisance is under the Rev. V. W. Harcourt, as also are the twenty-two Elementary Schools in the island. The religious teaching in these schools is imparted in Creole, which the children understand, but certain specified lessons are taught either in English or French to meet the Government requirements. The girls, twenty-two in number, were removed from Plaisance in September to be under Miss A. H. C. Wilkinson's (now Mrs. Buswell) care at Rose Belle. She had forty in the Girls' School and Orphanage at the end of the year, of ages ranging from five to sixteen. In some she observes an earnest desire to follow Christ, but others are a frequent cause of grief because of their untruthfulness and dishonesty.



Work among Women.

Miss H. A. Wilkinson engages in Work among the Women. She superintends the work of seven Bible-women, visiting them periodically, and occasionally having them at Rose Belle for teaching and prayer. She also holds monthly meetings at eight places in the island. During three months over 550 women visited Miss Wilkinson, to whom she sang and set forth the Gospel story. Many came for medicine (two asked for poison to give their husbands, and one man walked many miles to ask for a spell which would induce a judge to give a verdict in his favour !). The women whom she visits are most willing to listen, and now and then she is encouraged by signs of the Spirit's working in their hearts.

The Rev. A. K. Finnimore works among the Tamil Coolies.

CHINA.

THE "Farther East" would seem to be a term which is destined to lose its special significance, as applying to China and Japan, in the early future. The direct railway communication between Calais and Peking, which the Trans-Siberian Railway will in due course effect, is likely to bring London within little more than ten days from the capital of China. This line—the longest hitherto constructed or projected in the history of the world—will have a total length of 4,547 miles, from Cheliabnisk to Vladivostok, on the Sea of Japan, more than one-third of which is completed. It has been officially stated that 70,000 workmen are engaged on its construction, besides the engineering and administrative staffs, and during 1895 not less than 918 miles were laid down. At this rate of progress the main line should be practically completed before the end of the century. This, even before the branch line from Kiakhta to Peking is opened, will place London within sixteen days of Nagasaki and seventeen of China, as compared with twenty-eight and thirty days respectively by the Canadian Pacific line, the shortest route at present available. Such a change in the means of intercourse between Europe and a population, including China, Japan, and Corea, of some 450 millions of people—almost a third of the inhabitants of the globe—may well be described in its potential and permanent importance as a revolution of the first magnitude. Vladivostok will be brought nearer still when a line through Manchuria, in accordance with a treaty made between the Chinese Government and a Russo-Chinese bank, has been constructed, as this will materially shorten the route by cutting off the great northern bend of the Amur River. The provisions of this treaty require that the shareholders of the "Chinese Eastern Railway Company," to which the portion in question of this line will belong, shall be either Russian or Chinese subjects, and the general conditions of the treaty place the enterprise practically under the Russian Minister of Finance. The railway company will guard the line by its own police force. Moreover, it is provided that goods in transit over the line will be free from Chinese taxes, and that they will be charged duties on entering China from Russia one-third less than are levied at the Chinese sea-ports. This part of the line is to be commenced not later than August, 1897, and to be finished within six years.

The Trans-Siberian Railway.

The publication of the terms of the above treaty in December, 1896, added fresh interest to the discussion of the many questions relating to China's foreign trade, which have become somewhat acute. Two consequences of the Chino-Japanese war appear likely to be of a far-reaching character in this connexion. The first is the right which Japan secured by treaty for foreign nations to import machinery and establish manufactories at the open ports. This right gave an extraordinary impetus to certain industries, especially cotton-spinning and weaving. The report of the Imperial Maritime Customs stated that as a consequence of this concession "there is every prospect of China becoming a most important manufacturing country." The total trade in 1895 was over 315 million taels (the tael fluctuating between 2*s*. 8½*d*. and 3*s*. 0*d*.), as compared with 290 million taels in 1894 and 153 million taels in 1885—i.e., it more than doubled in the decade. The share of the British Empire in this trade in 1895 was 215 million taels, more than two-thirds of the whole; Japan, with 32 million taels, being next; the Continent of Europe (omitting Russia), 29 millions; the United States, 20½ millions; and the Russian Empire, 17 million taels. Of the total trade the value of the share of the port of Shanghai was 219 million taels.

China's foreign trade,

The second consequence of the late war having special commercial importance is the heavy foreign debt which China has for the first time been obliged to incur. The total national debt is indeed only some £40,000,000—extremely small in proportion to the potential wealth of the country—but it is a cause of grave financial embarrassment to the Government. Apart from customs revenue, the tariff of which is fixed by treaty, the chief sources of the national income are the land and the salt taxes and the likin levies. These are collected by the several provincial governments, and after discharging the local obligations—the maintenance of the military and civil services and the river police—the surplus, if any, goes to Peking. Some of the provinces are so poor that they are not even self-supporting. To tamper with the land tax, which was fixed once for all in the middle of the 18th century, would probably provoke a rebellion. The salt trade has vested interests of wealthy and influential classes, and therefore presents great difficulties to proposals for additional revenue. Consequently, unless the Government will face the question of radical reforms in its whole system of fiscal administration, there remains only the likin dues which admit of increase. These can be altered at will, but their tendency is to hamper trade, and probably no course could be more fatal to the material development of China than to add to these vexatious dues. Mr. Jamieson, H.B.M. Consul-General at Shanghai, in an official statement on the subject, recommends as the safe and true remedy the abolition of the likin taxation altogether. The growth of the customs revenue from seven or eight million taels to 21 million taels since 1864 indicates plainly what might be expected if the facilities for inland transport were increased rather than hampered, as they have hitherto been. But it would doubtless be over-sanguine to look for so enlightened and courageous a course from the initiative of Chinese officials. The remedy they have rather rested their hopes upon appears to be the willingness of the Foreign Powers, and especially Great Britain, to acquiesce in a substantial increase of the customs tariff, and this without any undertaking on their part to abolish or reduce the likin charges. One object—the object, it has been said—of the Chinese Grand Secretary and ex-Viceroy Li Chung Tong's mission to this country in August, 1896, was to persuade the English Foreign Office to yield on this point, and his very limited success must naturally have caused him disappointment.

Visit to Europe of Ex-Viceroy Li Chung Tong.

In what direction the pressure of circumstances will impel the Chinese Government to seek the needed revenue is a question which seems to concern profoundly the future prosperity of the country, and on that account has an interest to the friends of Missions who desire the well-being of all lands. In this instance the question of policy to be adopted, whether of arbitrary restrictions tending to exclude the foreigner, or of unhampered freedom, affects very closely the scope and extent of the opportunities for making Christ's Gospel known, and for building up a Native Church in the land. The Missionary Societies took advantage of the presence of Li Chung Tong in this country to present to him an address expressing their prayer for the peace, prosperity, and progress of the Empire he represented, and soliciting his influence to secure an increasing measure of safety and freedom for all engaged therein as Christian missionaries. The following is the text of the address, which the President, Sir John Kennaway, signed in behalf of the C.M.S. :—

Missionary Societies' Address to His Excellency.

London, August, 1896.

To His Excellency Li Chung Tong.

Sir,—We, representatives of various Missionary Societies who have established Christian Missions in China, respectfully beg to offer to your Excellency the expression of our hope that your visit to our shores may afford to your Excellency much gratification.

We venture to believe that your Excellency has found time, amidst the many serious demands of your exalted and responsible position, to make yourself somewhat acquainted with the nature of the work in which the Christian missionaries are engaged in the Middle Kingdom. You do not, therefore, need to be informed that our holy religion teaches men to be law-abiding, virtuous, and benevolent, and that the missionaries in the Viceroyalty which is under your own distinguished government, in common with those who are labouring in other parts of China, are men and women who are devoting themselves faithfully to the task of doing good by the benevolent practice of medicine, by promoting the education of the poor, and by preaching the great truths of Christianity. We avail ourselves of this opportunity to assure your Excellency how highly we appreciate the enlightened policy which has led the Imperial Government of China during recent years to accord to missionaries the right to travel freely, to dwell under the protection of the law, and to pursue their peaceful callings in any part of the great Empire under the Imperial rule. We are well aware of the practical difficulties which have frequently arisen to hinder the full enjoyment of the privileges thus accorded, but we venture to look with confidence to the great statesmen of China, among whom your Excellency has so long held a position of conspicuous influence, to give increasing effect to the gracious Proclamations of the Imperial Ruler of the Middle Kingdom, so that a real safety and freedom may be enjoyed by all who are pursuing the peaceful and beneficent calling of the Christian missionary.

We trust that the long journey which your Excellency has taken to visit Europe may be completed in perfect safety, and that you will return to your home in the best of health, and be spared to continue to render those distinguished services to your Emperor and your country which have made your name illustrious throughout the world.

Praying ever for the peace, prosperity, and progress of the great Empire you represent, and believing that these best blessings are intimately associated with the progress of the Christian religion, We have, &c.

Memorial of Missionaries to the Tsung-li Yamên.

In November, 1895, a memorial signed by twenty of the senior missionaries in China, including Bishop Burdon and the Rev. J. Bates, of the C.M.S., was presented, through the intervention of the British and American Ministers, to the Tsung-li Yamên by the Rev. Dr. J. Wherry, of the American Presbyterian Mission, and the Rev. Timothy Richard, of the Baptist Missionary Society. The memorial drew the attention of the Chinese Government to the publication of such books as the King Shih Wên Sü Pien, Hai Kwoh T'u Tsze, &c., containing slanderous statements regarding Christians calculated to excite the people to acts of violence, and concluded with a prayer that the Emperor would issue an edict for publication throughout the Empire commanding the following three things, viz. :—

1. The real expurgation of the passages slandering Christians from the Hai Kwoh T'u Tsze, King Shih Wên Sü Pien, and from all other books, according to Chinese law.

2. Make known that missionaries are no longer to be considered as belonging to a heretical or depraved sect, as they have come to help in everything that is for the good of China; consequently if any mandarins or people wish to enter the Church they are really free to do so without interfering with any of their Christian customs or to be regarded in any way different from other subjects.

3. Now that all nations are in treaty relations with China, let the mandarins and gentry of each place find out the excellencies of each nation, and finding anything that will be for the good of the people of China let them unite with the missionaries in carrying them out, and thus show their real desire for peace and goodwill.

What followed upon the interview accorded to the deputation was stated in an issue of the Times in April, 1896 :—

The missionaries were told that they might go to the Yamên whenever they liked, as the Ministers would be glad to see them in order to put matters on a satisfactory basis. By the beginning of December two members of the Yamên called on the British and American Ministers to say that an edict granting the prayer of the memorial would be issued in a day or two. But just at this moment, Wêng, one of the strongest supporters of the missionaries in the Yamên, was unexpectedly degraded, and, further, the French Minister intervened in a curious and inexplicable manner. He objected to granting anything in reply to the memorial, as this raised again the question of the right of missionaries to deal directly with the Chinese Government, a right which the French had induced the Pope to withdraw in the case of Roman Catholic missionaries a few years ago. In spite of the conduct of the French Minister, the Yamên continued to have interviews with the deputation and to receive explanations from them. In all there were nine of these interviews. Subsequently the deputation called on the British and American representatives to report their proceedings, and to ask their help in obtaining the three points in the memorial, as well as an agreement that whatever privileges were granted to Roman Catholics might also be extended to Protestants. The importance of this was that the French Minister was indefatigable last year in the interests of Roman Catholics. He secured a convention by which Roman Catholic missionaries could obtain land without the consent of the local mandarins, and also a promise that Chinese statute law is henceforth to be published in accordance with the treaties giving religious liberty, and not with the old law forbidding Chinese to become Christians. On February 24th, the day before the deputation left Peking, Wêng, a Minister of the Yamên, called on them and talked for a long time on religious liberty and general reform. He apologized for not granting the prayer of the memorial, as he had intended to do, but the opposition of his superiors and colleagues was too much for him. The slanderous literature, however, should be suppressed, and the mandarins enjoined to be more friendly.

Interviews accorded to a deputation.

It is very worthy of note that the Hunan official, Chou-han, who originated most of the objectionable literature against Christians, visited Dr. Griffith John, of the London Missionary Society, at Han-kow, soon after these interviews, and that the latter was hopeful that he might become an inquirer.

The veteran founder and director of the China Inland Mission, the Rev. J. Hudson Taylor, in the course of an interview with the Committee on July 7th, 1896, expressed his opinion regarding the state of China, and the prospects of Missionary work in the country. He urged that, notwithstanding all that might justly be said against the official classes, the fact should be remembered that under the present dynasty Christian Missions have penetrated to the borders of Burma and Tibet. To Mr. Taylor it seemed very doubtful whether, if the dismemberment of China were to take place, and Russia were to take a portion to the north and France a strip to the south, the interests of Protestant Christian missionaries would be advanced thereby. He felt that great forbearance was needful when difficulties arise, and that the officials should not be unduly pressed. It should be realized, moreover, that if appeals were addressed for the intervention of the British Government, it would be a reasonable thing for the Consuls to claim to be consulted regarding the movements of missionaries, which might greatly hamper them in breaking fresh ground. It were better, he felt convinced, to take joyfully the spoiling of their goods, if need be, than to appeal to the arm of flesh.

Views of the Rev. J. Hudson Taylor.

It was mentioned in last year's Report (page 16) that the Committees of the C.M.S. and the C.E.Z.M.S., on hearing from Her Majesty's Foreign Office that any claim that might be in contemplation for compensation from the Chinese Government in regard to losses incurred through the Hwa-sang troubles of August 1st, 1895, should be made without delay, decided not to make any demand. This decision was communicated to the Chinese Government, and the British minister, Sir C. MacDonald, received from the Tsung-li-Yamên the following reply:—

The Chinese Government's appreciation of action of the C.M.S. in refusing compensation.

No better proof could be afforded of the warm friendship of Great Britain or of the sympathy and friendly good-will evinced by the Missionary Society, whose refusal to accept compensation commands the Yamên's profound respect and esteem. In writing to the Viceroy at Fuh-chow to have the case cancelled, the Yamên have requested him to see that every effort is made to afford due protection to British missionary establishments and to prevent any trouble arising.

It is too seldom that European travellers in China or other heathen lands speak or write words of commendation regarding missionaries or their work. More often they give public currency to the idle gossip they have picked up among worldly, irreligious European residents met with at club-houses at the treaty ports. Captain Younghusband, C.I.E., in The Heart of a Continent, is a good exception to this bad rule. He gives appreciative notices of Missions met with in his travels through Manchuria, and dwells upon the benefits to civilization and philanthropy which Christianity bestows, and he adds a valuable testimony to the reality of influences of a deeper and incomparably more important character. He says at the close of a chapter on "The Missionary Question in China":—

Captain Younghusband's testimony to influence of missionaries,

That some effect is being produced I can vouch for from personal experience. I can testify to the fact that, living quietly and unostentatiously in the interior of China, there are men who, by their lives of noble self-sacrifice and sterling good, are slowly influencing those about them; men who have so influenced not only a few, but many thousands of these unenthusiastic Chinese, as to cause them to risk life itself for their religion. And if this good work is going on, if Christians are willing to give up all they hold most dear in this life to help others forward, then is this not worthy of support?—not the support of force, for even the missionaries do not desire that, but the support to be afforded by the encouragement of their fellow-Christians. The slothful, the ignorant, and the foolhardy may well be criticized, and the missionary cause will only be advanced if such criticism has the effect of stirring them to increased and more discreet activity. But the true missionary, the man who devotes his life to the work of imparting to other races the religion from which his own has derived so much benefit; who carefully trains himself for this work; who sympathetically studies the religion, the character, and the peculiarities of the people he wishes to convert; and who practically lives a life which those about him can see to be good; should be admired as the highest type of manhood, and it is he for whom I should wish to enlist the sympathies of my fellow-countrymen in this grave crisis of the missionary cause.

and that of Mrs. Isabella Bishop.

Still more emphatic is the testimony of Mrs. Isabella Bishop, F.R.G.S., given at the Society's Anniversary on May 4th, 1897. Mrs. Bishop said:—

Six weeks ago I came straight from some of the darkest of earth's dark places, from the empires of Korea, China, and Japan. The darkness which broods over these countries is a darkness which may be felt. This Scripture phrase is the only word to describe it. But it is not of that darkness, extending as I saw it from the eastern frontier of Thibet to eastern Japan, that I would speak to-night. Here and there are little glimmers of light, lighted by such Christian persons as fill this Hall. But I felt everywhere that these little glimmers of light only increase, in one sense, the darkness which is outside of them. On this journey I visited 103 Mission-stations, including those Mission-stations of the Church Missionary Society often called the Horsburgh Mission, in the far west province of Si-chuan. I have no connexion with Missions and missionary effort, except the most cordial sympathy and the deepest interest. I am a traveller solely, and it is as a traveller that I desire to bear my testimony to the godly and self-denying lives, the zeal, and the devotion of nearly all the missionaries of all the Churches that I have everywhere seen. This testimony, from a traveller unconnected with Missions, may be, I trust, of some value, and I am prepared to give it everywhere.

"Darkness that may be felt."

The visits of such travellers as Mrs. Bishop, full of intelligent sympathy, and ready with counsels of mature Christian experience, to the isolated Mission-stations of the far interior of China, are an incalculable blessing and privilege to the missionaries, of which they write in terms of the warmest gratitude. Those at the treaty ports cannot complain of isolation, but they also have good reason to appreciate the occasional visits of European and American friends who can enter into their temporal and spiritual difficulties, and unite with them in communion with the Father of spirits. Especially are the visits valued of such as are fellow-workers in the Gospel, whose special gifts and graces can be utilized to promote the better organization of the work, or the edification and spiritual power of the workers. Such visitors as Mr. J. R. Mott, of the Student Volunteer Movement, leave a lasting blessing behind them. He went during August, September, and October, 1896, to Chefoo, Peking, Shanghai, and Fuh-chow, and at these places conferences were held, attended by 2,883 delegates, of whom 999 were Chinese students, 235 Chinese teachers, 147 Chinese pastors, and 1,001 other Chinese Christians, besides 411 missionaries and 76 other foreigners. Forty different colleges and 37 missionary societies were represented. Articles in the Chinese Recorder described these gatherings as marking an epoch in the history of Chinese Missions. They resulted in a general revival of Bible study; over 800 engaged to keep the "Morning Watch"; and 76 Chinese volunteered to devote their lives to Christian work among their people. A "College Young Men's Christian Association of China" was formed with the object, among others, of uniting in one organization the Student Christian Associations of China.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong Kong, and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tientsin and Convention of Peking. Hong Kong was occupied in 1862, and Pakhoi in 1886.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-chow city. In that year and the following, other large cities were occupied by native evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-ning was occupied by European Missionaries in 1882; Ku-cheng, 1887; Lo-Ngwong, 1889; Nang-wa-Kau, 1889; Kien-Yang, 1891; and Hing-hwa, 1894.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, and the third, Dr. Burdon, were C.M.S. Missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Bishop Burdon, after more than forty years of active service as a missionary and a missionary-bishop in China, has felt it incumbent upon him to retire from the responsible charge of the Diocese of Victoria, though not from missionary service. Like the late Bishop French, of Lahore, and Bishop Stuart, of Waiapu, he looks forward to devoting his remaining strength to the prosecution of the work he loves, especially by translation work and teaching, but also by proclaiming the Gospel of grace and love. He went to Shanghai in 1853, and during the first twenty years of his missionary service he was the pioneer, or one of the pioneers, of several new Mission-stations. Hang-chow, Shaouhing, Peking, Pakhoi, all owe their occupation by the C.M.S., under God, to him. Peking, however, was vacated and the work handed over to the S.P.G. in 1880. In 1874, Bishop Alford resigned the See of Victoria, Hong Kong, and Bishop Burdon was appointed to succeed him by the Secretary of State for the Colonies, with whom the appointment then rested, on the recommendation of the C.M.S. The bishopric carries with it the episcopal supervision of Church of England work in South China south of the 28th deg. of north latitude; and consequently, although nominally a Colonial Bishop, the most important and most onerous part of Bishop Burdon's sphere was the Fuh-Kien Mission. He travelled over the province again and again on confirmation tours, and all the Chinese clergy connected with the C.M.S. in Fuh-Kien were ordained by him, with the sole exception of the late Rev. Wong Kiu-taik, who received his orders from Bishop Alford. His last visitation was in the spring of 1896, when he confirmed 629 candidates. The Fuh-Kien Missionary Conference a few months later passed the following resolution on the Bishop's retirement:—

We, the members of the Fuh-Kien Mission of the Church Missionary Society in Conference assembled, beg to place on record our sense of the loss which the Mission has sustained by the resignation of the Chief Pastor of the Diocese. Bishop Burdon's long residence in China has given him exceptional opportunities of understanding things Chinese, and his knowledge of the language enabled him by his writings to render great service to Christian Missions throughout the whole of China, no less than within his own diocese. We are glad to know that the Bishop intends returning to the scene of his long and unwearied labours in Christ's service, and we pray that his sojourn at home may strengthen him for future work. Lastly, we shall not cease to ask that those who have the appointment of our future Bishop in their hands may be divinely guided in their decision.

The Bishop left Hong Kong in December, 1896, and resided a few months at Mentone before coming forward to England. The Committee had the great pleasure of an interview with him on April 27th.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements of the year were all for Fuh-Kien. They were: the Rev. Samuel Synge, B.A., M.B., B.Ch., Dublin, of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission, who was admitted to deacon's orders on June 21st, 1896, by the late Archbishop of Dublin, in Trinity College Chapel, the first to be ordained by the Church of Ireland with a direct view to the foreign field under the C.M.S., and who traces his missionary call to an address by the Rev. James Stone, of the Telugu Mission, during a deputation visit to Dublin in 1886; the Rev. William Charles White, sent out by the Canadian Association; Mr. Thomas Woods, a short-course Islington man, formerly engaged under the Irish Church Missions; Miss Mary Harmar, M.D. Brux., and her sister, Miss Maud Gertrude Harmar; Miss Ellen Elizabeth Massey; Miss Edith Marian Katherine Thomas, of the Highbury Training Home; Misses Minna Searle and Margaret Elizabeth Molloy, sent out by the Victoria Association; and Misses Isabel Suttor and Sophia S. Newton, sent out by the New South Wales Association. Dr. Synge, Mr. Woods, and Miss Thomas sailed in October, the Misses Harmar in December. The Rev. J. A. Cutten has been transferred to the Japan Mission.

Death by drowning of the Rev. J. S. Collins.

One who sailed on the same date as the two last-named, namely, on December 31st, was summoned within four months to go into his Divine Master's immediate presence. The Rev. J. S. Collins was the son of the Rev. Dr. W. H. Collins, Rector of All Saints', York, who laboured in Shanghai and Peking in connexion with the Society from 1857 to 1880, and brother of the Rev. W. B. Collins, of the North-West Provinces Mission. James Stratford Collins was born in Shanghai and educated at Repton School and Trinity College, Dublin; he graduated in 1884. In the same year he was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of Killaloe. He held the curacy of Parsonstown in 1887, when he was accepted by the Society.

A few days after his acceptance, on February 25th, the C.M. Association at Trinity College, Dublin, resolved, after correspondence with Salisbury Square, to undertake the support of a Mission in connexion with the C.M.S., and Mr. Collins was allotted to the Association; and thus was the first missionary of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. He laboured with much devotion at Fuh-chow, Lo-Ngwong, and at Nang-wa; and during his last furlough at home his personal influence and appeal were much blessed in spreading a missionary spirit, especially in Ireland, where he spent the greater part of his time. He met his death by drowning on Easter Tuesday, April 20th. He was travelling by boat down the River Min from Yeng Ping, hoping to meet the Rev. J. Martin at Chiu Kau. About nine miles from Yeng Ping the boat struck a rock, and Mr. Collins, on learning that the boat was going to pieces, jumped into the river, and was overpowered by a whirlpool while trying to swim to shore. Two Natives were also drowned, but eleven of those on board escaped. Mr. Collins' body was found and was interred in the Fuh-chow Cemetery on April 27th.

PROVINCE OF KWANG-TUNG.

THE Rev. and Mrs. C. Bennett came home on the Committee's invitation in February, and Miss A. M. Jones came home in April, 1897. The Rev. J. Grundy has retired from the Mission.

HONG KONG.

Hong Kong.

The Congregation on the island of HONG KONG includes 160 communicants. Forty-five candidates were confirmed by Bishop Burdon in November, 1896, of whom twenty were men. This makes a total of 82 confirmees during the past four years, and during the same period, the Rev. C. Bennett remarks, the contributions of the congregation increased fivefold. Mrs. Bennett writes of the pastor's wife, Mrs. Fong, as "a real treasure, a true mother in Israel." She is head teacher of the girls' boarding school, but in addition to this she is ever ready to take every opportunity of teaching and helping the women of the congregation, and of preaching to the Heathen. Mrs. Bennett has enrolled 46 members in a Chinese Bible-reading Union. To one of the members of her women's class, whose son she had noticed singing very well, Mrs. Bennett suggested that she should have family prayer daily and sing a hymn, to which invitation three or four women all living in the same house replied in chorus, "We do, we sing a hymn and take it in turn to pray," and a few evenings later, on turning down the street, she heard the singing distinctly. In addition to Mrs. Bennett, the Women Workers were Misses A. K. Hamper, A. M.

"A real treasure, a true mother in Israel."

Jones (now at home), and A. M. Finney. These visited the Christian and heathen women, and held Bible and prayer-meetings, &c. In the streets and under archways, Miss Jones says, she and her Bible-women often sit down and women gather round to listen. The sixteen Day Schools in and around Hong Kong were very successful in the Government examinations, none passing less than 90 per cent., and many having no failures. The ladies visit these schools and give Bible lessons, and through the children often get admission to their homes. A preaching-room was opened during the year at Quarry Bay, where some 2,000 men are employed in a sugar refinery. In Kowlung City there are nineteen communicants, and sixty-five children are taught in two schools.

The Rev. W. Banister has taken charge of the work temporarily. He arrived at Hong Kong from Fuh-chow in January, 1897.

MAINLAND ITINERANCY.

There was no missionary at work on the mainland during the year. The Rev. and Mrs. C. Bennett, of Hong-Kong, visited the country out-stations in the spring of 1896, and they were much saddened by seeing the neglected condition of the work. The simple-minded people gave them a hearty welcome.

PAKHOI.

Pakhoi.

The number of baptized Christians at PAKHOI is given by the Rev. E. B. Beauchamp as 101, and of communicants as forty-five. The girls' boarding school, opened in May, 1895, had still only eleven boarders at the close of 1896, that year being what the Chinese call a "blind year," viz., having no "spring day," the previous year having included thirteen months, with a "spring day" in both the first and thirteenth; and the Chinese consider that children are specially dull and stupid during a blind year, and it is useless to send them to school. A boys' boarding school was opened with six boarders, who were sent in consequence of a famine in the surrounding district. The accommodation provided in the Hospitals is as follows: In the one for general patients there are 96 beds; in that for male lepers, 100 beds; and in that for female lepers 20 beds. The number of out-patients during the autumn months—the busiest time—exceeded 100 a day, and the daily average for the year was 61. There were nine adult baptisms, seven of the converts being lepers. Mr. Beauchamp gives the questions which were asked of each candidate, and the replies received from one of them :—

A "blind year."

Hospitals.

A leper convert's replies to questions previous to baptism.

1.—Why do you wish to be a Christian?
2.—What has Jesus done for you?
3.—What is the meaning of baptism?

4.—What is sin?

5.—What kind of men should Christ's disciples be?

One of the lepers replied thus:—

"After I believed in Jesus I went to my home, and my parents and brothers began to ridicule and persecute me. After reading Matt. x. 23, 37, 38, I thought that I ought to leave them, for our Saviour says, 'He that loveth father or mother more than Me is not worthy of Me . . . and he that taketh not his cross, and followeth after Me, is not worthy of Me . . . and when they persecute you in this city, flee ye into another.' Jesus thus spoke to me, and told me that even though I was persecuted I need have no fear.

"You have asked us these five questions to see if we clearly understand the truth. I will write a little about what I believe, but, sad to say, my bad hands prevent me from writing well.

"A. 1.—I have entered the Church because for a long time I have been far away from the Heavenly Father; now I thank God for leading me to turn round and worship only Him; because I believe that Jesus has saved me, I wish to serve Him alone. If we do not believe in Jesus we cannot worship the Heavenly Father. In John xiv. 6 we read, 'I am the way . . . no man cometh unto the Father but by Me.' Because I believe in Jesus, and worship the Father, I have entered the Church.

"A. 2.—Jesus Christ left heaven to come into this world to preach the way of eternal life to us men. He laid down His life, and was crucified for me and the whole world. He has redeemed us from all sin, and has poured out His precious blood to make our hearts clean. This is what Jesus has done for me.

"A. 3.—Baptism is the symbol of our having been born again, and is also the outward sign that we have been saved by Christ, and we ask Jesus to put His Holy Spirit into our hearts.

"A. 4.—We are by nature sinful creatures. In Genesis iii. 6, 7, we read of how sin came into the world. God commanded Adam not to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, for if he eat it he would surely die; so Adam at first would not eat of it. Afterwards the Devil tempted Eve, and she ate of the tree, and gave some to Adam, and he ate of it: thus they both committed sin. We are therefore inheritors of their sinful nature, for when we would do right sin is always present, and we rebel against God.

"A. 5.—If we would be Jesus' disciples, our bodies and souls must belong to Him, and we must also love one another. In John xiii. 34, 35 our Saviour said: 'A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples if ye have love one to another.' This is, therefore, the most important of the Christian's duties. Because God so loved the world He sent His only begotten Son into the world to save us from sin. This is what God's love to us is. Jesus loves us so much that He bore our sins on the Cross. This shows how much Jesus loves us. (See Ephes. v. 2.)"

PROVINCE OF FUH-KIEN.

A CONFERENCE of missionaries connected with several Protestant Missions labouring in Fuh-Kien was held at Kuliang, a sanatorium near Fuh-chow, in August, 1896, and a memorandum was drawn up to be sent to the Boards and Committees of the several societies represented. This memorandum, which bears the signature of the Rev. W. Banister, of the C.M.S., was as follows:—

A memorandum from missionaries.

We, the undersigned Committee, members of the different missionary organizations labouring in the Fuh-Kien Province, beg to present to the Committees and Boards of our Societies in England and America the following considerations with regard to the present prospects and conditions of missionary labour and status in the province of Fuh-Kien.

1. The atrocious crime of August 1st, 1895, which turned the eyes of the world upon this part of China, has been followed by the undermentioned results:—

(a) The fact that neither the Missionary Societies of England and America, whose interests were involved, nor the relatives of those who lost their lives at Hwa-sang, have asked for the slightest compensation, has afforded to the world a conspicuous example of the disinterested motives of the missionary societies and their agents.

(b) The abundant wealth of prayer which has ascended from all churches in all parts of the world since the massacre of August 1st has been manifestly followed by a widespread and general movement towards Christianity among all classes of the population, and in all parts of the province, but especially in the neighbourhood of Fuh-chow and the northern part of the province.

(c) The knowledge of this movement, and the fact that in many places hundreds have joined the local churches, has caused a feeling of uneasiness in the minds of the Chinese authorities. And parallel with the above movement there is noticeable on the part of the local authorities an organized effort to suppress and to intimidate the people from joining the Christian Churches by harassing the Native Christians, and discriminating against them in every possible circumstance and on every possible occasion.

2. In a Christian land, when a man turns to Christ it is because he is conscious of sin, and longs for forgiveness and emancipation. In a heathen land the reason for turning to Christ may well be more imperfect and more mixed. It may be that it is not hunger for spiritual things which gives this movement its growing impulse, but certainly God's Spirit is at work in those who are invoking Christian help. The desire for freedom, for alleviation in the social scale, for many good things in the world like these, may possibly form the mainspring of the movement. To help on such a movement and to make it subserve the highest spiritual interests is indeed the grandest work in which it is open for men and women to engage. We therefore plead for the absolute legitimacy of this stage of the Chinese nation's cry to God. Patience with the crudeness of such a movement, generous support, hopeful prayer, and steadfast labour, will lift the hearts drawn to Christ up to a higher faith in Him as the Redeemer from sin under these circumstances.

We further plead with you—

1. For your unceasing prayer, that we may be given wisdom and understanding in the direction of the Native Churches.

2. For your constant sympathy and consideration amongst the many difficulties which beset us in the prosecution of our missionary service in this country.

3. We further plead with you for a vigilance and watchfulness that all our rights as missionaries and as citizens, secured to us under treaty, be safeguarded, and that restrictions which are not justified either by treaty or circumstances be not imposed upon us.

A C.M.S. missionary thanked by U.S. Government.

The Rev. W. Banister received from the U.S. Vice-Consul at Fuh-chow, Mr. W. C. Hixson, the following letter in recognition of the help he was enabled to render to the Commission which undertook the official inquiry and examination of the persons suspected of complicity in the murder of the missionaries at Hwa-sang on August 1st, 1895:—

Fuh-chow, China, December 17th, 1896.

SIR,—On behalf of the United States Government, and by authority of the Honourable the Secretary of State at Washington, I have the honour to convey to you the Government's high appreciation of the valuable services you rendered the United States Commission during its investigation of the late Huashan massacre.

The Government is cognizant of the fact that you were the first person in Fuh-chow to volunteer to go in search of the survivors of the Huashan tragedy; that you were untiring in your zeal in aiding the investigation; that without your knowledge of the people and the geography of Kutien district, your ability to speak and read the language, and your unceasing attention to securing outside evidence for the Committee's use, the Committee would have been badly handicapped, and the Chinese officials would have doubled their rascality with impunity.

The people of the United States are grateful to you for the valuable humanitarian services so freely rendered the great family of civilized nations, and it affords me much pleasure to be honoured with the privilege of expressing to you the sincere gratitude of not only the United States of America, but also of its Christian people.

With the assurance of my most distinguished consideration,

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

WM. C. HIXSON.

Monument to memory of the murdered missionaries.

A monument in memory of the murdered missionaries was erected in the Fuh-chow Cemetery by the various foreign communities in China, and it was unveiled on the first anniversary of the sad event in the presence of a number of the missionary and mercantile community. It consists of the figure of an angel, carved in pure Carrara marble, with wings half-folded, holding a fleur-de-lis in the hand, and looking down upon the graves. On the pedestal beneath are inscribed the missionaries' names, and in addition a small flat stone is placed on each grave. Iron railings surround the whole.

Work of Protestant Missions in Fuh-Kien.

In a valuable paper which the Rev. Llewellyn Lloyd read at a meeting in connexion with the S.V.M.U. in Fuh-chow in October, 1896, he gave some particulars of Protestant Mission work generally in the Province of Fuh-Kien. In forty of the sixty hiens or counties of the province missionary work is being carried on, but in a very unequal degree. Only twenty are occupied by foreign missionaries; in some only one or two out-stations exist, while in others as many as forty stations and out-stations are spread over the entire area. Mr. Lloyd conceives that possibly one in ten of the twenty millions of the population may have a vague idea as to the reason why the missionaries are in the country. Six Missionary Societies are at work, and 127 missionaries, not counting wives; the ordained native pastors number about 140, and the unordained helpers about 400, exclusive of schoolmasters; the professing Christians exceed 40,000; 3,500 were baptized in 1895; and in the same year $30,000 was contributed by the Native Christians for religious purposes. Looking back over the twenty years since he joined the Mission, Mr. Lloyd sees much ground for encouragement in the progress of the work under the C.M.S. He writes:— Progress in twenty years.

Looking back, then, to 1876, I find that at that time the number of converts was 1,600. It is now 20,000, a twelvefold increase in twenty years. The number of churches was then 75, only nine of which were regularly built as places of worship, the remaining 66 being Chinese houses rented and used as preaching-places. Now we have 225 churches, of which some eighty are regularly built as such by the Native Christians, assisted by grants-in-aid, and having decent rooms for the visiting missionary, as well as small parsonages attached. In 1876 there were only two schools in the whole Mission, one for boys and the other for girls. We have now 143 boys' schools and 34 girls' schools, containing altogether about 2,500 scholars. Twenty years ago the contributions of the Native Christians amounted to some $200; now they have reached $7,576. These figures will be sufficient to show our friends that very remarkable progress has been made in this part of China, and it will, I trust, induce them to "continue in prayer" "with thanksgiving" for us and our people.

The statistics of the C.M.S. Mission will be found on page 347. The number of adherents increased during the year under review by 3,883, that is, 33 per cent.; and the native contributions were $7,559, that is, an increase of 50 per cent. on those of the previous year. Contributions increased fifty per cent. on previous year.

Archdeacon Wolfe writes:—

The past year has been one of unexampled progress and success, as well as one of varied and chequered experience in our Mission in this province of Fuh-Kien. At the beginning of the year, and on to the end of September a very remarkable movement towards Christianity seemed to be making rapid progress all over the prefectures of Fuh-chow, Shan-wu, and Hing-hwa. Thousands crowded to our places of worship in all these regions, except in a few instances, and whole villages appeared at one time on the eve of breaking away from their old idolatrous customs and coming over to the side of Christianity. Invitations of a pressing nature had been made to us from many towns and villages, begging us to open churches and Mission-stations among them, and send them teachers to instruct them in the truth and doctrines of Christ, and to teach them how to worship God. I regret to say it was impossible for us to take advantage of a tithe of these opportunities, on account of the weakness of our staff of workers, native as well as foreign; while other Missions here, especially the Romish, which thought more of the quantity than of the quality of their native assistants, were able to take more advantage of these opportunities than we were, and were able to open more new stations in answer to the invitations referred to. About the end of September the movement seemed to have reached its climax, and from that date to the present time it has gradually but visibly been on the decline, and the excitement connected with it, and the great rush of members to the churches, have now well-nigh, if not altogether ceased. There can now be no doubt, I think, that many of those who thus flocked to our places of worship were influenced by other motives than spiritual ones; but not a few, no doubt, also were influenced with a desire to know the truth and to embrace it. These, I rejoice to say, have found it, and in very many deeply-interesting instances the truth has made them free! Even some who first came from purely worldly and unworthy motives and desires have learned better things, and have been convinced that God is with us of a truth, and have joined the ranks of the Church. But though this movement has well-nigh subsided, at least so far as outward appearances go, it has left behind it, not only a very substantial addition to nearly all our congregations of those whom we believe are really true believers, both men and women, but it has also created a public sentiment highly favourable to Christianity among the masses, and a clearer knowledge among all classes as to the aims and objects of the work of Christian missionaries. These are very great and real advantages gained, and on the whole we are justified in looking forward to a prospect full of bright and glorious hope in the not very distant future with reference to the progress and final victory of Christianity in this beautiful province of Fuh-Kien.

A remarkable movement towards Christianity.

Worldly motives of some.

And while the movement was at its height he wrote:—

Value of Church of England Liturgy.

I have never been more thankful for the beautiful and Scriptural Liturgy of our beloved Church of England than I have been since this movement commenced. I have always valued it as a blessed means of teaching our converts the Scriptural and precious truth of our most holy faith, but now, when so many are flocking into our churches all over the country, and so few to teach them, I feel more than ever its value, and rejoice that our Church Service, complete, is read morning and evening and afternoon every Sunday by several hundred congregations of converts all over this Fuh-Kien Mission! This of itself is a powerful and effective means of teaching these new converts and leading them to correct views of God and of Christian doctrine generally. It not only gives them correct views of God and how to approach Him in prayer, it also supplies them with ideas and gives them appropriate language in which to express these ideas in prayer; and one can easily see, when these converts pray in public, that their petitions are moulded after the language of the Liturgy and tinged with the words of its beautiful and Scriptural Collects. These Chinese, as a rule, whether learned or unlearned, possess remarkable memories, and are able to retain what they hear or repeat every Sunday in church. After a short time, even though they cannot read, they are able to repeat most of the prayers in the Morning and Evening Services, as well as the Canticles and Versicles, by heart. All this testifies to the great importance of our Liturgy, not only as a help and guide to these new converts—and old ones too—in the reverent worship of God in the sanctuary, but also as a most useful instrument in teaching them the blessed truths of Christianity.

Death of Rev. Ting Sing-ki.

The Native Church suffered a heavy loss through the death of the Rev. Ting Sing-ki, who was the senior native clergyman in the Society's Mission, having been ordained in 1876. Lately he worked as a tutor in the Fuh-chow College under the Rev. W. Banister, who refers to him as a "trusted helper" on whose judgment he relied very much in times of difficulty, and as "a great illustration of what the Gospel can do with the Chinese."

Ordinations.

Bishop Burdon's visitation of the Fuh-Kien Mission in April, May, and June, 1896, has been referred to in the introductory notes to the South China Mission. On Trinity Sunday he admitted the Revs. F. E. Bland and J. A. Cutten to priests' orders, and Mr. Li Taik Ing to deacons' orders. Mr. Li Taik Ing was formerly a student of Archdeacon Wolfe's, and is the son of an earnest Christian of Tong-liang who built the church in his village at his own expense, and subsequently subscribed $100 towards building other churches.

The Committee have heartily consented to an arrangement whereby four of the five hiens of the Fuh-Ning Prefecture of the Fuh-Kien province shall be assigned to workers supported by the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission, on the understanding that the same regulations shall apply to them as to other C.M.S. missionaries in the Mission, and that they shall be under the jurisdiction of the Missionary Conference. The excepted hien is that of Ning Taik. Miss J. E. Clarke has been placed on the staff of the D.U.F.-K.M. Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission.

The Annual Conference of missionaries was held at Fuh-chow on November 16th and 17th. Many testified in their letters home that the gatherings were very enjoyable and profitable, the only source of regret being that Archdeacon Wolfe was prevented by indisposition from being present at several of the meetings, the first time during the thirty years since these annual gatherings were commenced that he was unable to preside. The Conference meetings are followed by gatherings of the native workers. Miss M. D. Boileau says of those for native women :— Annual Missionary Conference.

On the first morning all the Bible-women who have come to Conference from other districts are examined in the book they have been preparing throughout the year. This year it was the last half of Exodus and the whole of Numbers, and some of them answered very well. We have selected the first eight chapters of Romans for next year's study, which, though requiring little reading as regards mastering the character, will, we hope, set them thinking and lead them to truly understand more of the great doctrines contained there. Meetings of women workers.

After examination follow three devotional meetings, with subjects and speakers previously selected (one foreigner and one native). The subjects this year were—What God has chosen us for ; How can we glorify God? and The Second Coming of Christ. A fourth meeting was added this year on the subject of preaching, which we felt might be a help to them. The last morning was as usual "missionary"—that is to say, each Bible-woman gave some account of the work in her station, and thus they get to know of and sympathize with each other's difficulties and encouragements. This meeting is most interesting, and makes us realize more and more how much we stand in need of more Bible-women, "chosen of God," spiritual, and with a burning desire to win souls for Jesus. But many of our Christian women are unsuitable, and we have more openings by far than women to fill them. We hope this will be remedied as time goes on and we open more women's schools and can train agents. China's women will best be reached by China's women, and our principal work, I believe, is to teach and prepare Christians for evangelizing their own countrywomen, being satisfied ourselves with taking a lesser part in this work.

Mrs. B. Van Someren Taylor returned to the Mission in October, and Miss K. Power in December, 1896. The Rev. and Mrs. H. M. Eyton-Jones came home in April, 1897.

FUH-CHOW.

The movement towards Christianity referred to on page 329, in the extract from Archdeacon Wolfe's Annual Letter, profoundly Fuh-chow.

affected the city of FUH-CHOW and its suburbs. The crowds who attended Back Street Church within the city on Sunday, "to worship," as they said, "the Christian's God," were much in excess of the accommodation, and it became necessary to open two preaching-halls for overflow gatherings. Fifty-five adults were baptized in connexion with this congregation, of which the Rev. Lau Taik Ong is the pastor. One of these was the head of the Taouist priests in the Fuh-chow Prefecture. His whole family joined him in confessing Christ. After his baptism he was offered ten dollars to go and perform some Taouist rites, but he modestly declined, giving as his reason that he was now a Christian. A blind preacher was also among the converts who had made a lucrative living by attending the various idol festivals and descanting on the virtues and heroic deeds of the gods they represented. After his baptism he began to learn the parables and miracles of Christ, in order to publish them abroad in the streets of the city. He induced several others to attend the preaching of the Gospel. One of the two preaching-halls mentioned above was given up when the movement subsided, but the services in the other, in South Street, were continued and a regular congregation of some sixty people were attending at the close of the year. Work among the Women was carried on by Miss Annie Wolfe, in co-operation with Miss Cooper, of the C.E.Z.M.S. Their work was chiefly among the Christian women and inquirers whom they visited at their homes and instructed in classes. Miss Wolfe writes:—

Vork mong omen.

About the beginning of this year the congregation of women began to improve a little, more women came each Sunday, and gradually the little rooms where we hold the Sunday-school for women on Sunday mornings began to fill. This went on till about last June the rooms were so full that we had not enough seats; the native clergyman's wife brought out every chair and stool she possessed, and yet many women had to stand, and during service the women's side of Back Street Church was nearly full. Men had been crowding into the church for some months before, and we had many invitations from them to visit and teach their wives. It was difficult to attend to them all. In most of these houses I was very well received by the women, and they listened very quietly and attentively. Some, whose husbands had been baptized, had learnt a little, and gladly welcomed us when we went to see them, and showed, by their willingness to learn, that they were in earnest. A few of these have been baptized, and others are still learning, some at home and some at Miss Cooper's station class.

Since September we have not had quite such a good congregation of women, but it is still much larger than it used to be, and the women who do come are regular in their attendance. One old woman, a widow, over sixty years of age, has been coming very regularly to church for nearly a year. She is very anxious to be baptized, but finds it very difficult to learn what is required of her. She is very earnest in telling others what little she knows herself, and often she persuades two or three of her friends to come to church with her. When I went to her home a short time ago she gave me a hearty welcome, and immediately sent a little boy to invite her neighbours, so that the Bible-woman and I might talk to them too.

We had a large number of women together that afternoon, and while the Bible-woman talked to one group I talked to the rest. We saw several of these women at church the next few Sundays.

During the months that so many ladies were residing in Fuh-chow, in the winter of 1895-6, Miss Boileau, of Ning Taik, paid visits, accompanied by Chitnio, the matron of the Women's School, to the women living on the river boats. They proved to be most willing listeners and very intelligent. She recommends that a boat be secured to serve as a floating school for the children of this large boat population, and for a "church."

Theological College.

The Theological College, under the Rev. W. Banister, had thirty-nine students. Mr. Banister refers with thankfulness to the visit of Mr. Mott, of the S.V.M.U., to Fuh-chow, and to the conference held in the city, when between 700 and 800 young men and women were present from the institutions and congregations connected with the several Protestant Missions. A Christian Student Association was formed among the College students. The services at the College chapel are open to the public, and the congregation largely increased, partly owing to the out-door preaching by the students among the villages on the island of Nantai near the foreign settlement. The late Rev. Ting Sing-ki has been succeeded as tutor at the College by Mr. Wong Siong Tek, eldest son of the late Rev. Wong Kiu Taik, the Society's first native clergyman in the Mission. He gave up a good appointment in a mercantile office in order to accept this work for God at a salary little more than half what he was receiving. For some time previous he had employed his spare time as a voluntary Christian worker.

Boys' Boarding School.

The Boys' Boarding School has thirty-four scholars, many of whom will in due course go out as schoolmasters. Mr. Banister says it is a pleasure to examine the day-schools presided over by the old boys of the Boarding School, especially in the Scriptures. Three new Out-Stations, and one old one reoccupied (making nine altogether), were opened in the Fuh-chow district during the year. At Ming-Ang-teng ten adults were baptized, and a congregation of over thirty attends the Sunday services. Fifty families gave up their idols at Pa-Tieng.

Misses E. M. M. Brooks, A. L. Leybourn, and A. I. Oxley resided at Fuh-chow during the year, while engaged in language study. Miss Brooks is assigned to Fuh-chow, and Miss Oxley to Lieng-kong.

The Ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Fuh-chow besides Miss Cooper, mentioned above, are Misses Lee and Stevens, and Misses Barr and Chambers at the Women's Hospital.

LIENG-KONG.

Lieng-kong.

As explained last year, the Rev. W. Banister was placed in charge of the LIENG-KONG district, the Rev. L. H. F. Star visiting it from Lo-Ngwong, where he resided with the Rev. W. Light. Mr. Star states that two native Roman Catholic priests were sent into the district at the beginning of 1896 by the Spanish priests of Fuh-chow, who aimed at winning over the newer members of the C.M.S. congregations rather than at gaining the Heathen, and that they promised help in their law cases as an inducement. Many of the people deserted the Mission under these temptations, and the number of adherents shows a falling-off of some two hundred as compared with the previous year.

LO-NGWONG.

Lo-Ngwong.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. Light went to reside at Lo-Ngwong in March, 1896, and during the six months that followed Mr. Light visited every out-station in the district at least twice. The year was one of great opportunities. As many as 400 gave in their names as inquirers in Lo-Ngwong city, and the interest was proportionately as great at other places. At Sa-sang, five miles from Lo-Ngwong, where for some years there had been little encouragement, over a hundred joined the congregation. The increase was most marked at some of the more recently opened out-stations; some of the older congregations, e.g., those at A-Chin, Lau-yong, Twai-kwok, and Tong-A, remained nearly stationary. Much ill-feeling was shown by the Heathen in Lo-Ngwong city. In the summer the magistrate issued a warrant for the arrest of ten of the principal catechists on a charge of interfering in a law-suit. Two of the men were caught (the rest fled) and treated most cruelly. The charge was examined into, and nine of the men were proved to be innocent; the tenth had acted unwisely, and the magistrate who tried the case pointed out his indiscretion and released him. The Boys' School was quite full during the first half of the year, but had only sixteen pupils during the autumn. At the age of seventeen such of these boys as give promise of proving useful workers are sent to Fuh-chow Junior Boarding School for further training.

Catechists arrested on a false charge.

Miss Hook, of the C.E.Z.M.S., has a Women's School with sixteen inmates. Miss Wedderspoon, of the same Society, also resides at Lo-Ngwong.

NING TAIK.

Ning Taik.

The city of Ning Taik was occupied in April, 1896, by Miss M. D. Boileau and Miss J. C. Clarke, who at once made a tour of the district, visiting twelve of the fourteen chapels outside Ning Taik city. A few weeks later they were joined by Miss E. Little. They were the first Europeans to take up their abode in this city, though Miss Boileau had on two previous occasions made short visits to it. The first women who came as visitors to the house would not enter the rooms lest they should be entrapped. Miss Little writes:—

Ladies the first Europeans to reside in a Chinese city.

At first the women were very much afraid of us, and would never sit down—just come in for a moment and run away again; they did not trust us, and our house and everything in it was so strange and new.

One day a number of women of the better class came; that means they had very tiny feet, were much powdered and painted, and had slave girls to help them to walk. They went over all the house and into every room, and looked at everything; then they came back to the sitting-room and listened very attentively while someone preached to them. On going away they said, "We were told in the city you were bad, so we thought we would come and see for ourselves, and we think you are very good." They went away quite pleased, and asked us to go to their house.

An invitation which the ladies gave to a lantern exhibition at their house was accepted verbally, but no one attended; however, they were offered the opportunity of showing the slides to some eighty people in the house of a well-to-do inquirer. The fear and wonder of the people had not worn out at the close of the year, but the ladies were subjected to no rudeness. Miss Clarke says:—

"Cannot understand your taking so much trouble."

A door of great opportunities has indeed been opened to us, but, as usual, "there are many adversaries," for the Enemy will not easily relinquish a stronghold. There are prejudices and suspicions on the part of the people to be borne with and overcome, and our efforts for their good are sometimes doubted and misconstrued. "They cannot understand your taking so much trouble," our Christian coolie boy said to me, of one effort we made to reach them; "it is so loving that it makes them suspicious." But, thank God, we see some signs that their fears are giving way, and they are gaining a little more confidence in us, and we believe that if the lady doctor for whom we are asking could be sent, it would do much to break down barriers, and help to open up a way for the Gospel message.

A building for a Girls' Boarding School was erected, capable of receiving fifty boarders. Miss Boileau had a class of baptized women, and Miss Clarke one of inquirers.

In their tour round the district the ladies went to Lek Tu, and made the acquaintance of the Christian woman "Patience" (see Annual Report for 1888–89, page 195), of whom Miss Clarke says: "She has remained steadfast through all persecution, and has now a happier life, and her sweet, calm old face is a testimony to the power of the Gospel to sustain and gladden in much trial." They arrived at Ngu Yong in the afternoon, and could only stay one night; the women after their day's work went to them for teaching and continued till 9 p.m. It was a pleasure to the ladies to meet old school girls from the F.E.S. School at Fuh-chow and the Fuh-Ning school, and to observe their conduct in their own homes as wives of catechists and of others. Miss Clarke says:—

Former girl pupils as wives.

They are still too young to do much visiting or outside work, but I think that almost without exception they are trying to put into practice in their homes the lessons they learned at school, and witnessing for Christ amongst their neighbours, or teaching the women who come within their reach. One of these girls had a sad life; she was betrothed to a Heathen before her family became enlightened, and her husband is still much opposed to the doctrine, and beats her if she prays or says grace at meal-times, and will not allow her to come to church. But she still holds on steadfastly, and finds strength and comfort in prayer.

The Rev. L. H. F. Star, who was in charge of the work in the district, reports that two new churches were completed (or rather, two large native houses were adapted) during the year in the district, one at Ting Sing-A, the other at Hwok Lëng.

FUH-NING.

Fuh-ning.

The Rev. H. M. Eyton-Jones has come home at the conclusion of his seventh year of service in China, and FUH-NING, as already mentioned, will in the future be worked mainly, if suitable men and women be forthcoming, by members of the Dublin University Fuh-Kien Mission. Before coming home Mr. Eyton-Jones made some kindly reflexions on the Chinese as he has found them, not overlooking serious blemishes in their character. He writes:—

A missionary's opinion of the Chinese.

One is not blind to prevailing vices, especially those from which our converts are just emerging, and which sometimes also give occasion for stern rebuke. Duplicity, avarice, temper, pride, impurity, gambling, and opium-smoking—not a choice array—to leave unmentioned things unsavoury to sight, sound, and smell. Yet, to be fair, the virtues must have a show. The economy (so different from the spendthrift ways of many of our proletariat), the filialness (obviating any need for old-age pensions), the courtesy (for the poorest will offer his best chair, his pipe, and tea to the passing guest), the patient endurance, perseverance, and steadfastness in any line of action once determined (after huge discussion, for John is a great talker)—all these call for our encomiums. A strange mixture: an Issachar for patient, mule-like strength. In diplomacy a Dan lying low in the long grass, attendant on horses' heels. A veritable Benjamin, ravening worse than a wolf when he once sees blood. A born trader, orator, diplomatist, agriculturist, and patient craftsman, not to mention the no less essential though humbler office of chef de cuisine. A materialist, yet superstitious; a believer in justice, yet oppressed; a socialist, yet a worshipper of aristocracy; an indefatigable student, yet appallingly ignorant; dubious, yet credulous; gifted with the vision of a hawk, but with the side-like action of a crab. An idolater, yet once convinced, an iconoclast (I have never heard of even a backslider returning to his idols). A modern Pharisee wedded to externals, yet with a warm enough heart beneath the crust. In rags at home, in full war-paint abroad; ordinarily a model of abstemiousness, an awful specimen when in the grip of the "opium-devil" or gambling mania. A pattern citizen, an exemplary father or son, a horrible sensualist. How can we classify such a people? Careful to miserliness, yet ruining themselves on weddings and funerals. In their virtues a splendid example to English folk; in vices unnamable an abhorrence to all. What more can we say on so general a topic? That for them as for us Christ came, that they, with us, might be saved from the bondage of corruption and the fear of death. And truly, many a miserable one—an enemy to himself and a sorrow to his friends—has been "pulled together" from the wreck of a life to sing a song of gratitude to redeeming mercy, and to utter words of hope such as fell from no idolater's lips on the threshold of a rayless tomb.

Brother John, with all thy waywardness, thy secrecy, thy suspiciousness, thine evil report, our hearts warm towards thee as we meet thee, emerging clothed, and in thy right mind, from among the tombs; for the words of the living Christ have fallen upon thine ears, opened thine eyes, loosened thy bonds, and warmed thee into life. Long neglected in the distribution of spiritual food, partly because of thy unseemliness in our prejudiced eyes, and partly because sitting so far away, we now turn to see thee at the Master's feet. Perchance, had we come earlier with words of healing, thy sores had long since ceased running. Had the Pauline labours been eastwards, how might not our positions have been reversed! As we kneel in unison, and break the bread of life together, or receive it from Chinese clergy, duly ordained, with what a thrill of joy do we realize the Christian bond—all one in Christ. How we long to pierce the future, and see what Christ has in store for the land of Sinim. It is a source of immense consolation, when "ennuied" and lonely, to reflect that, though apparently "out of the running," and dead to the Western world's busy hum, we yet can play the coral insect, and departing, leave behind us footprints on oceanic sands of time. Truly we are privileged of God to "make history" as much as, nay more than, any political reformer; for this Fuh-Kien Native Church, now in 1896 numbering (baptized and catechumens) 20,020, will play a mighty part towards the evolution of all that is best in the coming years. Making history.

The Hospital, notwithstanding that no European doctor was at the station, had an increased number of patients, viz., 3,714 out- and 680 in-patients, and 28 opium cases. These were treated by Drs. Ting Ching Mwoi and Dang Heng Ung, who were trained by Dr. Van Someren Taylor, now at Hing-hwa. Miss J. E. Clarke, on giving up her sister to Ning-taik in April, 1896, was joined by Miss R. Clemson, who was engaged, however, in language study, so that the Work among the Women devolved upon Miss Clarke and her native helpers. The Girls' Boarding School had nineteen inmates; several of the previous year's pupils, being from the Ning-taik district, were instructed to go to the new school at Ning-taik. Miss Clarke also had a Women's Class with ten members, seven of whom were boarders. They learned the Lord's Prayer, the Commandments, and Creed, then an easy book on Christian doctrine in rhyme, a catechism, and the 100 texts. Several of these women unbound their feet. Of one member Miss Clarke writes:— Hospital. Work among women.

One of those who came to the class has just died of consumption; she was one of the new inquirers we found in February, and had come in because of a dream. Shortly before going down to Fuh-chow for Conference I had gone twice with a Christian woman to see her. "I do not forget to pray," she said; "I am often too weak to kneel, but lying here I pray constantly." One could not help hoping she might soon be taken "to be with Christ, which is far better," for here she had little to make life bright. Her husband is an opium-smoker, and then had not been home for two months; she was very poor, and had no one to do anything for her save her father-in-law, who is very deaf and seventy-four years old, and a tiny adopted daughter aged four years, and yet she was, oh! so patient and brave, although her heathen neighbours did not hesitate to attribute her illness to her Christianity, and taunted her accordingly. It was so pathetic to hear her say, glancing at her hymn-book, "I worship every day, I sing and pray," mean- A patient and brave sufferer.

ing she had (family) prayers, as we had at the class. Of course there we read the Bible too, but this she could not do. On my return from Conference I heard she was dead. Some of the Christian women had gone to see her near the end, and they say "she was truly trusting Jesus." She begged that no heathen ceremonies should be performed at her death or burial, and her relatives respected her wishes, and even sent for the catechist to go to her funeral.

And of another:—

Another who came to the class, a very sweet young woman, has been enduring persecution since her return home, where she is the only Christian. She came to read through the influence of her brother, who is a Christian. Previously to coming to school she and her husband did not get on well together—he treated her very unkindly—but on her return he treated her much better at first, saying she was much improved, and that her temper was less hasty than of old. But heathen neighbours stirred him up, and now he and her household persecute her. Some little time ago her brother went to see her, and asked her whether she could endure this. "Yes," she answered, "for Christ is with me, He never leaves me, and He has said, 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.'" Shall we not praise God for such faith, and pray that she may at all times realize the Saviour's presence, and by Him be kept true?

"Christ is with me."

Four women were baptized. One was the deaf old lady referred to in last year's Report (page 326) as wanting "to walk the road of light"; she was given the name "Received Light."

In the whole prefecture twenty-two adults were baptized, and the catechumens numbered 460 at the end of 1896. The villagers of Swa-siek, near Fuh-Ning, showed much energy in spreading the Gospel among other neighbouring fishing hamlets along the shores of the Samsah basin. In one of these one of the literati preached in favour of Confucianism, an unusual course, Mr. Eyton-Jones remarked, "for one never meets leading lights preaching Confucianism coram populo." The difficulties that followed the opening of a book-shop at Fu-Ting were referred to last year. Mr. Eyton-Jones went there in May, 1896, and found to his delight that the half-dozen inquirers in the town had increased to over sixty, some of them being substantial citizens. Later, in July, the congregation was dispersed in consequence of threats from the Yamên, but they were rallied by one of their number, Dr. Tek, a Hing-hwa man, and at one time a student of the Rev. Robert Stewart. By means of a five-ton native junk, purchased mainly through gifts from St. Clement's congregation, Nechells, Birmingham, where Mr. Eyton-Jones was formerly curate, he was able to visit isolated Christians on islands some distance out to sea: two on Paek Long Islands, twenty miles out; one on Yo-Sang Island, ten miles out.

A congregation increased tenfold.

HOK-CHIANG.

Hok-chiang.

The work in the HOK-CHIANG district gave Archdeacon Wolfe, who superintends it from Fuh-chow, cause for great rejoicing, and also for not a little sorrow. The remarkable movement towards Christianity which manifested itself in Fuh-chow and some districts to the north was equally conspicuous in this district, and the one farther south, to be noticed next in order. The number of adherents increased in the year by over eleven hundred in Hok-chiang, and the adult baptisms numbered 258. But the hostility of the local gentry and of the local magistrates was also very painfully in evidence, and the conduct of the Roman Catholics in the district added greatly to the Archdeacon's anxiety and perplexity. As regards the Romanists, the Archdeacon does not charge the Roman Catholic Bishop, who resides at Fuh-chow, or any European Roman Catholic missionaries with complicity in the outrages to which reference is made below. What he says is:—

Numerous converts and inquirers.

In the country towns and county cities, such as Hok-chiang and Sieng-Iu, the local magistrates, acting no doubt under orders from their superiors here at Fuh-chow, are harassing our converts and are making their position and existence well-nigh intolerable by the system of private and open persecution which these officers are carrying out against them. The Romish converts for some reason or other are exempt from these official persecutions, and are allowed to carry on their high-handed conduct without let or hindrance from these officials. Indeed, these Roman Catholics heartily join officials and gentry in persecuting our converts, and thus great inducements are offered to our poor people to join the Roman priests and Church. Not a few of our converts have, in order to avoid persecution, joined the Romanists. Still, there is a strong feeling against the Romanists all over the districts; but their numbers have so rapidly increased, and their violence in proportion, that the people stand in terror of them, and their priests and bishops back them up, and the French Consul backs up the priests. The Roman Catholic bishop is altogether dependent upon the native priests, whose interest it is to keep the bishop and his foreign assistants in complete ignorance of the state of things in the country. The bishop believes all that is told him by his underlings, and brings all their false complaints to the French Consul, who at once takes up their cause, to the great injury of the innocent. Should the local magistrate object or make any complaint, there is a fund collected by the Roman adherents all over the counties, and from this fund, which must now be very large, the magistrate, I am informed, is heavily bribed to hold his peace. The Romanists have appointed one man in the city of Hok-chiang as treasurer of this fund, who takes charge of all their law-suits and carries them through with the local magistrate and his underlings. The result is that all the bad and lawless characters in the country, and those who refuse to pay their lawful debts, are daily joining the Romish Communion, and are protected by the bishop and priests. It is very likely that the bishop does not know all this, as he is entirely dependent upon those whose interest it is to keep him ignorant of the real facts. The Romanists hate our converts because they will not join them, and in many instances they have attacked our converts and declared they will tolerate no other religion but Romanism in their neighbourhood.

Persecution by Roman Catholics.

In May, 1896, Bishop Burdon, accompanied by Archdeacon

Wolfe, visited this district and confirmed 414 candidates, viz., 310 males and 104 females. The confirmations were held at Hok-chiang, Keng-tau, Ko-sang-che, Tiang-Taing, and Ngu-ká. At the last-named town the service took place in the reception-hall of a large house owned by four brothers, the eldest of whom is a baptized Christian. The reception which was recorded to the aged Bishop at almost every place he visited was most hearty and respectful, and in many places even the officials united with the Christians in doing him honour. As an example, the following from the Archdeacon's journal of the tour may be quoted :—

Bishop Burdon's reception in Hok-chiang.

> As we approached Ko-sang-che, and about two miles from the town, we were met by a large number of the Christians belonging to the neighbourhood, some of them riding on horses and many of them dressed in official hats and boots. These are allowable to be worn by the people on occasions of festivity and gladness. One man, the richest man in this neighbourhood, who had recently become a Christian, and was possessed of official rank, walked in the procession. As soon as the procession entered the town all business was suspended along the busy streets through which we passed. The various impediments in the street were removed out of sight. The shopkeepers, and in fact the entire population, lined the long, busy street on both sides and showed the greatest politeness and respect possible; Chinese crackers of welcome were let off in nearly every shop as the sedan-chairs passed by, and everything that was done showed the wonderful change of feeling that has taken place in the minds of this people with reference to foreigners and Christianity. Such a welcome as the Bishop received all along the way, both from officials and people, and especially from the Native Christians, would not have been thought of a couple of years ago, certainly not from the officials, though the Native Christians from the very first have done what they were able and in their way to give an appropriate welcome to the chief pastor of their Church. They have never been ashamed to own themselves Christians in the most public way. An immense crowd escorted us to the church, and then quietly dispersed.

All business suspended, even officials joining in the welcome.

Ladies take up residence in Hok-chiang.

In September, 1896, five ladies took up their residence in this district, in the first instance all of them at Ko-sang-che, awaiting the completion of the house at Këng-tau, which was ready in December, when two of the ladies moved thither. These two were Miss M. E. Barber and Miss F. E. Oatway; and the other three, who are stationed at Ko-sang-che, are Miss M. E. Wolfe, Miss K. Andrews, and Miss E. J. Harrison. The incidents mentioned in their Annual Letters will be most conveniently referred to in connexion with the work of the Pastorates, of which Archdeacon Wolfe, as usual, gives a full and interesting report.

Hok-chiang City Pastorate contains a large population. The city itself has between 30,000 and 40,000 inhabitants, and other towns with 2,000 and even 8,000 families are included in the pastorate boundaries. The Rev. Yek Sieu Mi resides in Hok-chiang, and three catechists assist him. The city church is crowded every Sunday, and four out-stations have large and growing congregations. Archdeacon Wolfe makes the most melancholy statement that 200 Romanists attacked with guns and other weapons some of the members of the Ká-tau congregation, and but for the intervention of the heathen magistrate would probably have killed some of them. The Kêng-tau Pastorate saw a large accession of adherents in some of the villages. At Ngu-cheng, a village of 5,000 families, eighty families joined during the year; and forty in a neighbouring village. Miss Barber, who found the Chinese language during her first year in the Mission "intensely interesting," wrote just after her arrival at Kêng-tau:—

A "dark spot."

I should say it would be difficult to find a darker spot in Hok-chiang. The people are wretchedly poor, and indescribably dirty, and intensely ignorant, and quite content to be so; and yet I am full of hope, for I remember that He Who made His weak disciples a power amongst their enemies, that He Who caused them to triumph over every weakness and to manifest Him to an opposing world, is with us; and I believe that Miss Oatway and I will see triumphs of grace in this spot, which is already dear to my heart, and how much dearer to Him Who counts a "little flock" in Kêng-tau!

Keng-Kiang Pastorate also grew largely in the number of adherents. The Christians in Tiang-Pieng Pastorate suffered not a little from assaults by the Heathen, as they have done in former years. (See Annual Report for 1894–95, page 257.) Their crops were damaged and the huts erected in the fields to watch against thieves burned down, and the magistrate even declined to read their petition of complaint. Then the leading persecutor, at the head of some 4,000 people, with flags and banners flying, attacked the Christian villages of Tiang-Pieng and Nang-Sa-Sang, tore down eleven houses, taking away their contents, fired bullets through the door and windows of the church, and took away the crops on which the people depended for their support. The magistrate took no steps to punish the offenders. Later, this magistrate had one of the best of the catechists beaten and put in prison on a charge which had no foundation, as was subsequently proved in the presence of H.B.M. Consul. In the King-Meng Pastorate trouble was experienced from the Roman Catholics, but none of the baptized members of the congregation were drawn away. There is only one catechist and one assistant reader in this extensive pastorate. The above pastorates are all under the general supervision of the Rev. Yek Sieu Mi, who had a severe illness during the year, but was mercifully raised up.

Christians attacked.

The remaining pastorates are under the Rev. Yek Twa Mi, who resides in the Ko-sang-che Pastorate. In Ko-sang-che also the Misses Wolfe, Andrews, and Harrison reside, as mentioned above. Miss Wolfe writes:—

"Quite at home."

We are quite at home amongst the people, and are received with such kindness that we can go in and out amongst them with the most perfect freedom. In walking down the streets of our market town we are met on all sides with invitations from the women to go into their houses. There are several villages within easy walking distance from our house, and we find the work in them very interesting. The village of Seng-Wong is one in which there is not a single Christian. The people in this village are somewhat better off than the majority of the villagers. We received great kindness when visiting in one rich house there, and are always given great bunches of flowers when leaving. We invited the ladies of the house to come and see us; they came, and brought others with them, and a very good opportunity was given us to speak to them.

Miss Andrews' knowledge of dispensing is found a great help. Native Romanists opened a place of worship in Ko-sang-che, and distributed placards abusing the C.M.S. Mission and endeavouring to prejudice the people against it. Persecution from the Heathen is also experienced. Archdeacon Wolfe says:—

Persecution.

One of the catechists has recently, without any fault whatever, been cruelly beaten by the police, who apparently have orders to accuse our Christian teachers of raising a rebellion. This has been done once or twice during the year by the police, and the magistrate, without further ceremony or trial, submits them to the most cruel and humiliating punishment. At the present moment one of our most earnest and faithful catechists, with three of his congregation, are in chains in prison, simply and solely because they refused to give money to the police who came to their village to apprehend some thieves.

At Sang-Au, in the pastorate of the same name, the Archdeacon baptized on one occasion nineteen adults, including a "medium," who before her conversion gained much wealth from her evil profession. In Lang-Pwang Pastorate the Romanists were very violent. Archdeacon Wolfe writes:—

Violent conduct of Roman Catholics.

The Romish agents have actually forced themselves into the houses of some of our people and taken down the Creed, the Lord's Prayer, and Ten Commandments from the wall, and then sprinkled the house with what they call "holy water"; they then put up an image of the Virgin and Child, after which they had a sort of service. The Christian remonstrated, and tried to prevent this conduct; he was at once knocked down and severely beaten, by order of the native priest, by the men whom he had brought with him. This seems almost incredible, but it shows the high-handed way they go on and treat our Protestant converts. We can complain of the Heathen should they do such things, but we can do nothing with the Romanists. The present official bearing rule in this district will do nothing to offend the priests.

The island of Hai-tang.

At the beginning of 1896 a deputation, consisting of two heathen men, waited on Archdeacon Wolfe at Fuh-chow, pressing him to re-open a station on the island of Hai-tang, off the coast of Hok-chiang, and only a few hours' sail from Formosa. A catechist was formerly stationed there, but was withdrawn several years since. The Archdeacon could not promise to comply, but he resolved to take an early opportunity to visit the island. He tried to do so in March, when he was in Hok-chiang, but the weather was too rough, and no boat would venture. However, he instructed the Rev. Yek-Twang Mi and a catechist and colporteur to go. They spent several days on the island, and brought back the news that 1,200 families had given their names as inquirers, and that they had rented, repaired, and furnished two large Chinese houses to serve as churches. Thereupon the Archdeacon sent a catechist from Hok-chiang to take up his abode on the island, which is fifty English miles long, and from twenty to thirty broad. In May, the Archdeacon, after accompanying Bishop Burdon through his district, succeeded in visiting it, and proceeded to the chief town, Pang-tang. On the way he was accosted by one of the old converts left on the island when the catechist was withdrawn. The Archdeacon says of their meeting:—

Twelve hundred families.

> The dear old man went almost frantic with delight, and literally hugged me round the waist, and would not let me go till he brought me to his house in the village close by, and got tea and other refreshments for me. He was loud in praising God for having once more brought me to the island. He then told me there were five others who have held on to their faith, and brought out his Prayer-book and hymn-book to show me. He had also a New Testament, though he had scarcely learning enough to make much use of it.

Joy of an old convert at meeting a missionary.

The Archdeacon's visit was quite unexpected. He found in Pang-tang a large house fitted up as a place of worship, and two rooms for a catechist; and on the evening of the day of his arrival an audience of nearly 100 men gathered together for worship and exhortation, which continued till nearly midnight. The next day a book, containing the names of 1,400 families who had professed themselves Christians, in the town and adjacent villages, was brought to him. Several villages were visited, and at Ngak-yeu-Pwo, where some 200 families had given up idolatry, a large house, once the pawnshop of the village, had been rented and fitted for public worship and a catechist's residence. In two other villages houses had been prepared in the same way; and also on a small island off the larger one the Archdeacon was told that some 100 families out of a total of 800 had prepared a house for a catechist, and that from yet another island of 700 families a request had been sent for a resident teacher. For all these openings the Archdeacon could only station two catechists on Hai-tang, and they were taken with much pain and many misgivings from important congregations in Hok-chiang.

HING-HWA.

The city of HING-HWA was visited by the plague in the summer of 1896; business was at a standstill for a time, and the deaths were estimated by the Natives at some thousands. Very few Christians died; a student of Dr. Van Someren

Hing-hwa.

Taylor's, and the father of one of the theological students under the Rev. C. Shaw, were among the victims. The son of the latter nursed his father most tenderly, and when he soon afterwards was taken ill the other students nursed him, and offered earnest prayer for his recovery, which was heard and answered.

Conduct of Heathen and of Christians in a time of danger contrasted.

On the father's death his heathen relatives turned his family out of the home in their terror, but they were welcomed into the house of the catechist, showing, as Mr. Shaw remarks, what a difference Christianity makes. Another incident illustrated the same fact. Mr. Shaw says:—

> Just at this time I found it necessary to change two of our catechists; the Dang-Seng catechist I removed into the city, and the city catechist took his place at Dang-Seng. The exchange was effected just when the plague was at its worst. Everyone was leaving the city, for days not a boat had come through the water-gate; but one day a boat arrived bringing a seng-su (teacher) and his whole household and belongings. The people turned out in large numbers to see this wonderful spectacle. The catechist says his march through the streets was like a triumphal procession; the inhabitants could not understand how he could venture into the plague-stricken city, when everyone who could do so was running away from it.

Mr. Shaw reminds the Committee that the work in Hing-hwa as regards the Native Church is nearly self-supporting, a sum of $180 being all the pecuniary help supplied from C.M.S. funds. The difference of dialect makes it impossible to use in this district the men trained at Fuh-chow, and consequently Mr. Shaw conducts himself a Training Class, which had twelve students during the greater part of the year, of some of whom he writes as conscientious workers and exemplary in other respects. A literary man with a great reputation as a scholar, but not very aggressive as a Christian, renders help in the class.

Medical Mission.

The Medical Work is under Dr. Van Someren Taylor, who reached Hing-hwa in June, 1896, and was joined by Mrs. Taylor in November. There were 192 in-patients and 5,840 out-patients during the year, notwithstanding that much of Dr. Taylor's time was taken up with negotiations with different parties over a site for a proposed new hospital. The City Congregation averages about 200, and Mr. Shaw has no doubt that they are growing spiritually; they are certainly more reverent in public worship, and have a better knowledge of God's Word. At Dang-Seng there is a congregation of 300. Miss Tabberer, of the C.E.Z.M.S., resides in this village. In the Ging Dong Pastorate there was for a time a large accession of inquirers from among the merchants of Ang-Tau, but when they found that the profession of Christianity did not protect them from imprisonment for debt, &c., they left off attending the services.

Sieng Iu has two C.E.Z.M.S. ladies, Miss F. M. Lloyd and Miss Witherby. In this district there are fourteen churches. The pastor, the Rev. Ting Chung Seng, is a very earnest evangelist, and "never loses an opportunity of witnessing for Christ."

Bishop Burdon confirmed 115 candidates in the district in May, 1896.

KU-CHENG AND PING-NANG.

Ku-cheng.

The Rev. J. Martin, after one or two brief visits to KU-CHENG from Fuh-chow, which satisfied him that the feelings of the people were friendly, took up his residence at the former place early in 1896; several C.E.Z.M.S. ladies, and Miss Goldie with Mr. Martin's two young children, arrived there in March. The presence of the children created an excellent impression, and the people were heard remarking that the missionaries were not afraid to live amongst them, and that their bringing the children up showed they could trust the Natives. The Vegetarians caused a scare in April, but the vigilance of the magistrate prevented their plans, whatever they may have been, from developing. The people generally, Mr. Martin says, dislike the Vegetarians very much, and treat them with detestation. Dr. J. Rigg, who passed through Ku-cheng on his way up to Kien-ning in April, wrote:—

> In the Ku-cheng district the Christians told me that the outside Heathen said: "Well, you say Jesus died for us, but we never saw Him; but we have seen Mr. Stewart, and he died for us, for certainly if he and the others had not been killed we need not have sown any seed this year, for the Vegetarians would not have allowed us to reap it." It is more and more impressed upon my mind that it was expedient that our sisters and Mr. Stewart should die for the people and the whole nation be saved from the horrors of a rebellion. From what I heard, I judge the Vegetarian rebellion to have been a very serious one, which promised vigorous growth, and might easily have proved as disastrous as the Tai Ping Rebellion. I can conceive that our people, by their deaths, may have saved China—and if so they know it—and I feel I dare not say that I would rather it had not been. My solemn feeling is that it was worth while.

The Vegetarian movement and the Christian movement compared.

> A Ku-cheng Heathen said to the brother of one of my students that the Vegetarian movement was like a fire of chips, soon kindled, very hot, but soon over; whereas the Christian movement was like a fire of hard charcoal, slow to kindle, but increasing in heat and force. Such a dispassionate and reasonable view of our progress is very encouraging.

In May, the Rev. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canadian Association, who later, in November, removed permanently to Ku-cheng, visited Hwa-sang with Mr. Martin, the place of the massacre of the missionaries in 1895. He wrote:—

The scene of the massacre of 1895.

> We had decided to go viâ Hwa-sang, and spend a night there. On we went through beautiful mountains—now riding, now walking, now nearly coming to grief in trying to get over a boulder in a narrow pass, now, as the road turns sharply at right angles, hanging over a valley a hundred feet or so below, but our sure-footed coolies carry us on safely "with the good hand of our God upon us." Now we get out and walk again, for the ascent is too steep for us to be carried up. Climb, climb, climb, till right over against us are the ruined walls of the Hwa-sang houses amidst their lovely surroundings. We pass through the village and by Mr. Phillips' house, and lay our burden down at Miss Hartford's, where we are going to sleep, and then go on up the hill to the other houses. One could not describe one's feelings nor realize that this was the place of martyrdom. "Let the vengeance of Thy servant's blood that is shed be openly showed upon the Heathen in our sight," only such as they themselves would have desired expressed in the prayer of the Captain of our salvation, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." The words of the beautiful hymn also came to mind—

"From all Thy Saints in warfare, from all Thy saints at rest, To Thee, O blessed Jesus, all praises be addressed."

"Forward." As I was turning over some broken pieces of pottery I found a piece with the Stewart crest and the motto, "Forward," scorched by the fire. A message it is for the whole living Church, "Forward," if need be, through the fire, but "Forward" always; "there is no discharge in that war" (Eccles. viii. 8).

The Congregation at Ku-cheng is reported by Mr. Martin to be "most unsatisfactory," and, indeed, he regards the district generally as much behind the rest of the Mission in respect of spirituality, zeal, and liberality. The presence in Ku-cheng city of several dismissed agents, whose lives are a reproach to the Christian name, is a great hindrance. In the Boys' Boarding School there were on the average twenty pupils. Miss Goldie conducts the Women's School, with twenty-one pupils. Mr. Martin baptized four men in October, one of whom had been an inquirer some time before, but had become addicted to opium-smoking. By the power of prayer this habit was broken off, and he became a consistent Christian man. The progress at Ping-nang is slow, but in other respects encouraging. Mr. Martin baptized a family at Chia-A, consisting of a woman ninety years old, her son and daughter-in-law, and their son, fifteen years old. The son carries his old mother on his back to and from church. She was too deaf to hear the questions put to her, but she said continually, "Jesus died for me." In another village, Pa-ka, a man was baptized who was the only Christian in the place. Mr. Martin asked him in the presence of the elders of the village what were his reasons for desiring baptism, and upon his replying, Mr. Martin asked his fellow-villagers whether what he had said was true. They replied: "Yes. He used to be bad and dishonest, but since he worshipped God he is quite different. He is a changed man, and the doctrine of Jesus has brought about the change."

The C.E.Z.M.S. Ladies at Ku-cheng are Misses Weller, Nisbet, and Rochford-Wade; at Sang Iong, Miss W. Newcombe and Miss Burroughs; and Miss Tolley at Sa Yong. Miss Codrington, the sole survivor of the massacre of August, 1895, returned to China in February, 1897.

KIEN-NING AND YEN-PING.

Dr. J. Rigg was received somewhat ungraciously by the people of KIEN-NING city on his return in April, 1896, after furlough. Seven Stars Bridge, the place where he resides, and where the Hospital stands, is two miles from the west gate of the city. The site was given by the gentry and officials of the city after the disturbance in 1892 and the destruction of the former hospital. The number of attendances at the dispensary for two years ending June, 1896, was 7,198, and of in-patients 311. The people are very slow in giving their confidence, but some progress in that respect is perceptible. The services on Sunday were attended by from fifty to eighty people, about half of whom were from the city. The newly-ordained deacon, the Rev. Li Taik Ing, has been assigned to Kien-ning by the Conference. A leper catechist is at work among the unhappy inmates of the Leper Settlement. Kien-ning.

Misses Rodd, Bryer, and Fleming, of the C.E.Z.M.S., are at Nang-wa, where there are about a dozen regular worshippers. The Nang-wa Hospital was closed, the medical student in charge being too young, in Dr. Rigg's judgment, to be left alone. At Yen-ping the congregation varies from ten to fifty.

At KIEN-YANG an earnest catechist is in charge, but finds the soil very hard. The worshippers, some seven in number, are mostly people from Ku-cheng.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became a separate diocese, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., was the first Bishop. In 1880, after Bishop Russell's death, it was divided into two, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the new See of Mid China. Shanghai was occupied in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-chow, 1864; Shaou-hing, 1870; T'ai-chow, 1892; and Chuki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chuki district from Hang-chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal, and eleven of them have been ordained during a period of seventeen years.

Reinforcements.

THE following reinforcements joined the Mid China Mission during the year: the Rev. Cyril Eustace Bousfield, B.A., Christ's College, Cambridge, who was Brownes Medallist in 1892, and took a Second Class in the Classical Tripos, Curate of Dunchurch, near Rugby; the Rev. Edward Thompson, Islington College, admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 31st, 1896; Miss Meriel Catherine Gillmor, trained at The Willows, daughter of the Rev. Gowan Gillmor, a missionary in the Diocese of Algoma; Miss Jessie Campbell Grant and Miss Ella Green, both trained at The Willows; and Miss Mabel Elizabeth Turnbull. In addition to these, Mr. Herbert Hickin, M.B., C.M., Glasgow, who retired in 1896, was led to offer his services again, and sailed in November, the other reinforcements having sailed in October. Miss R. M. Elwin, daughter of the Rev. A. Elwin, the Secretary of the Mission, was accepted as a missionary in local connexion.

The Annual Conference of missionaries was held at Shanghai on October 23rd and 24th, under the Presidency of Bishop Moule.

Ordinations.

The Rev. E. Hughesdon was admitted to priest's orders by Bishop Moule on June 11th, 1896; Mr. Yü Hyien Ding was admitted to deacon's orders in the course of the summer (the date has not been mentioned); and Mr. Seng Dziang-kyioe also to deacon's orders on January 6th, 1897.

PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

THE Rev. and Mrs. C. J. FitzS. Symons, on their return to the Mission after furlough in October, 1896, were designated by the Committee to Shanghai. Miss E. Onyon came home in March, 1897.

SHANGHAI.

Shanghai.

The Rev. A. Elwin superintends the work in SHANGHAI, in addition to discharging the onerous duties of the secretariat.

Writing with the experience of a quarter of a century in the Mission, he says unhesitatingly that the work is carried on under greater difficulties in this city than anywhere else in the Mid China Mission. The people are given up to money-making and to pleasure-seeking, and the concerns of eternity are far removed from their thoughts. On the other hand, the importance of a bold and decided witness for Christ in Shanghai is manifest from the size of the city, ever increasing, and from the fact that it attracts Natives from all the eighteen provinces of the Empire. In the English-speaking settlements the Chinese population increased from 75,000 in 1870, and 107,812 in 1880, and 168,128 in 1890, to 240,885 in 1895; and since 1895 the rate of increase has been greater than ever. And in addition to these there is the immense population of the Chinese city. The number of foreigners in Shanghai, including children, is 4,084, of whom 1,936 are English. Mr. A. J. H. Moule, after his return to the Mission in April, 1896, pursued his work of Translation. He is engaged on the S.P.C.K. Old Testament Commentary. The average attendance at the Anglo-Chinese School, under Mr. W. A. H. Moule, was higher during the year than at any previous time since the school was re-opened in 1889, viz., thirty. There is a growing desire on the part of the Chinese to learn English, and several large schools and night schools endeavour to meet the demand. The principal aim in view is to obtain situations as clerks in the Imperial Maritime Customs, for which an examination has to be passed. Eleven old boys of the Anglo-Chinese School are in the Customs service, and four obtained high places in the examinations, being first or second among large numbers of candidates. With these former pupils Mr. Moule keeps in touch, by correspondence and otherwise, so far as possible. One of them wrote to him:—

Growth of Shanghai.

Anglo-Chinese school.

Former pupils.

The Bible is a large and hard book. Could you pick out for me some of its contents which can comfort a man who is in trouble and sorrow? Here lies before me a beautiful Bible, but I do not know how to study it. China is shamefully trampled on by her neighbours. It seems to me there is no hope of her rising up again during the present dynasty. Is it religion, or education, or some other method which can lift her up again? Bad people are too many in China. To save her is a hard task.

Another, one of six who went to the Tientsin University, a college under the control of the Chinese Government, wrote:—

The Gospel of Jesus Christ which you taught me in Shanghai, I know it is indeed very good news. I shall never forget it; sometimes I do pray to Jesus and ask Him to help me to do good and to be good. Telling the truth of this, I am very glad to join this religion, but, sad to say, my parents will not allow me to do so.

In the above University, out of 150 students nineteen are Christians. An Association in connexion with the S.V.M.U. has been formed there. Miss E. Onyon (now at home) took a weekly Bible-class in the Blind Asylum (which has been handed over to the American Episcopal Mission), conducted sewing classes in the two preaching-rooms, and superintended two day-schools. Mrs. Elwin held a class for Christian women in the settlement and superintended a day-school and the work of a Bible-woman. Miss M. J. Godson took up Miss Onyon's work on the latter coming home. The Congregation, under the Rev. Dzing Kyi-doh, consists largely of Christians from other stations, especially Ningpo. The native pastor writes that cases of backsliding are numerous, owing to the prevalence in an exceptional degree of inducements to sin in Shanghai, to bad companions, and to the fact that, in consequence of high rents, several families live usually together in small houses, and the reading of God's Word and prayer often come to be neglected. The services are now held within the Settlement, in Great Horse Road, and in the same building there is daily preaching to the Heathen, some forty or fifty usually entering to listen.

Difficulties hampering the work.

PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

Miss B. E. Bullock came home in September, 1896, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Hoare in March, 1897.

NINGPO.

Ningpo.

The year was characterized at Ningpo by "quiet, peaceful, united work" rather than by exceptionally striking progress, the Rev. J. C. Hoare wrote just before he left to come home. The Training College received a reinforcement in the person of the Rev. W. E. Godson (who writes that his faith was never more severely tried than by the study of Chinese, and that no work ever tended more to strengthen it); but, on the other hand, a severe attack of typhoid fever from which Mrs. W. S. Moule suffered at the beginning of 1896, which necessitated a change of air on her gaining convalescence, deprived the College for three months of Mr. Moule's assistance. It will be remembered that Mr. Moule himself was brought to the borders of the grave by the same terrible fever in 1888. He writes:—

Training College.

> As we look back upon those months of suffering, anxiety, and suspense, we can only with most thankful hearts praise God for His great mercies and comforts to us, and praise Him also for the earnest care and loving sympathy of our dear fellow-workers in the station.

Theological Class.

The Theological Class had ten students. None of them passed out of the College, as it has been arranged that the whole class will go out every second year. The other pupils number forty-two. The visit of Mr. Mott, of the Student Volunteer Movement, is referred to by Mr. Moule as most interesting and stimulating, and the College has been affiliated to the "College Y.M.C.A. of China." A man was baptized who was first attracted by the College gate-keeper chatting with passers-by at the gate. Another man is an earnest applicant for baptism, of whom Mr. Moule says:—

A barber led to Christ.

Every Saturday a troop of barbers come to shave all heads in the College. One of these is now an earnest applicant for baptism; I only heard of him yesterday, though he has been an attendant at church for months. He had been spoken to while shaving, and the Lord had opened his heart. He was an inveterate gambler, and falling back into the sin after his knowledge of the Gospel, and being remonstrated with by Christians, he, in his indignation with himself, chopped off the top of his finger as a reminder—severe measures, but a sincere heart!

Women's Work was carried on by Mrs. Hoare, Mrs. W. S. Moule, Mrs. Smyth, Miss A. Maddison, and Miss M. A. Wells.

Hospital.

The Hospital had 279 in-patients, including 62 women; 6,236 attendances of out-patients were registered; and 30 major and 220 minor operations were performed. An epidemic of cholera occurred at Ningpo in September, 1896, and among the victims were several Native Christians. An object-lesson as to the benefit of hygienic precautions in daily life was afforded by the fact that not one European was attacked, although many of the cases were close to the houses of foreigners. In addition to daily morning and evening services and afternoon addresses in the wards, systematic bedside teaching was given by a native resident catechist, Mr. Liu. Three in-patients and one out-patient were baptized. Two vaccination depôts in Ningpo, under the patronage of the Taotai, are managed by Native Christians who received their training at the Mission Hospital. The patients in the temporary Women's Hospital listened with apparent interest to the teaching. One woman with an incurable disease expressed a great desire to be re-admitted in order that she might "hear more about Jesus," and was most patient and grateful for all that was done for her. A branch dispensary was opened in June, 1896, at Z-Kyi, a walled city of some 60,000 inhabitants some fifteen miles from Ningpo, and some 356 patients were treated.

Congregations

The Congregations make steady progress in numbers. Notwithstanding a constant leakage to other stations, the members have increased 23 per cent. during the past six years, and Mr. Hoare believes the spiritual life of the Christians has been deepened and enlarged. Thirty adults were baptized, including those referred to above in connexion with the hospital work. Financial progress also is observed, but Mr. Hoare candidly states that he sees no prospect of self-support being attained within any measurable period. The difficulty of the problem as it presents itself in Ningpo, and in many other districts as well, is well stated by Mr. Hoare:—

The problem of self-support.

I believe it to be true of all the Native Churches that I know, whether of our own or other Missions, that increase of numbers does not diminish, but increases the amount of foreign help required. This is in great measure owing to the fact that increase of numbers does not take place in any one concentrated district, but extends over large areas, so that by the time that we have, as in T'ai-chow, sufficient Christians to support one pastor, the area covered is so wide that no one pastor can possibly do the work. The question then arises whether the theory of self-support is to have more weight than the spiritual needs of the Native Church. For my part I am wholly in favour of subordinating the theory to the needs.

Mr. Godson mentions among his first year's impressions that his heart is full of joy as he observes what Christianity is doing for the Chinese. He says:—

A native pastor's visits to the sick.

I shall never forget a visit I paid a sick man, in company with a deacon, at Saenpoh. There was such a tone of reality about all the deacon said, such true sympathy shown for the man's sufferings, and such a manifest desire to win him for Christ, that one left the house feeling more convinced than ever that God has a rich blessing in store for such devoted servants as this man has proved and is proving himself to be.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-chow.

At the close of September, 1896, there were 550 baptized Christians in the T'AI-CHOW district, of whom 308 were communicants, viz., 242 men and 66 women. There were besides 75 catechumens. Bishop Moule made a tour in the district in the spring of 1896, and held confirmations at Ky'i-non, Zih-veh-yiang, T'ai-chow Fu, Tsing-yiang-dao, and T'in-t'e, confirming in all 130 candidates. The congregations have been organized under a District Church Council, two Pastorate Councils being formed for those north and south of the river respectively. The Church Council nominated and gave a title to Mr. Yu Hyien-ding and Mr. Seng Dziang-kyioe, both members of the Itinerating Band, whose admission to deacons' orders has been mentioned. A building was purchased at Yun-gyiao for religious worship, at a cost of $98; the local Christians subscribed $40 and relied on foreign help for the balance. This, however, was declined, and the Christians made it up partly by additional subscriptions and partly by a loan. Opium-smoking was a cause of relapse to several Christians, three former churchwardens among the number. The District Council unanimously passed the following resolution:—

Formation of a District Church Council.

The Council passes a resolution on opium smoking.

That this Council resolves before God to use every effort to get rid of the sin of opium traffic and smoking from the Church, and it calls on every Christian, and especially every warden, to help the pastor to ascertain who smokes or traffics, with a view to leading them to repentance; and, in case this should be of no avail, that such cases should be presented to the Bishop for the exercise of such discipline as the Bishop shall think the circumstances of each case may require.

The Rev. G. H. Jose, who is in charge of the work, writes:—

Whatever it may be elsewhere, the evil results of the habit are apparent in T'ai-chow to all who have eyes to see. A few journeys with opium-smoking coolies or boatmen, or a stay in the house of an opium-smoking squire, or a few consultations with the village assembly, would soon convince the most patient and hopeful of men of its pernicious and deteriorating effects in this district.

Sad story of an opium-smoker.

Mr. Jose relates a painful story of an opium-smoker, the brother of one of the Christians at Da-zih, and gives the man's confession of his sins and promise of amendment. He says :—

I append a confession signed by the opium-smoking brother of one of the Christians near Da-zih. The eldest and third brothers were baptized five years ago, whereupon this second brother, Zing-sin, and the fellow-villagers half-killed them (the elder died from the injuries received), and cast them out. Lao-soen ("Old No. 3") has been an outcast ever since till quite lately, his crops seized, his land and goods sold, &c. ; and yet when this unnatural brother wanted to break off his opium-smoking, he freely forgave him all the past, gave money to the wife and child, bought medicine, and fed and clothed his brother (wearing worn-out clothes himself in order to do so), and helped them in various ways. And he has done all this knowing quite well that unless his brother's heart is really touched, he will go back and harm him again :—

His confession.

"A proof of repentance and promise of amendment by C'u Zing-sin, giving an account of my bad deeds worthy of hell ; how through my opium-smoking habits I first wasted my own substance, as if a flood had washed it all away, and then, eating the bitterness of hunger and rags, I took my brother's portion and squandered his inheritance, constantly selling it to others.

"In the eighteenth year of the Emperor, when my eldest and third brothers were persecuted and driven out of our village because they had embraced Christianity, I stole their deed-box with title-deeds, &c., and took all their household goods, pretending that I would hold them in trust for my brother. I also with the aid of an accomplice cut and appropriated twenty-five bushels of field produce.

"In the nineteenth year of the Emperor, after my eldest brother's death, my third brother being still an outcast, I cut down a lot of his wood on Zong-ts'ing hill, and also reaped his various crops for my own benefit. Moreover, I seized the hill field at Bing-k'ang, and secretly sold it to Mr. Hyu. I also sold a piece of land at Gyiao-deo to the opium shopkeeper. Again, last year I stole and disposed of his mulberry leaves, and, later on, his cow, plough, and all the field produce, as well as seven and a half bushels of peas from the Do-boen field. This year, also, I sold all the produce and crops, pulled up all the stone slabs of the house, and sold them, as well as the Zong-ts'ing hill fields, to the opium den.

"All this is due to my opium-smoking poverty. I now despise myself for these actions, and, receiving my brother's exhortations, determine to turn over a new leaf and make up my mind to lead a new life, and promise to return all I have stolen and steal no more, nor secretly dispose of my brother's property. If I do so may 'Old No. 3' lodge an accusation against me in the Yamên !

"This is of my own free will and not on compulsion, begging for forgiveness as I promise not to relapse again."

Medical work.

A boarding-school was opened in T'ai-chow city to receive the best and most promising boys from the country day-schools, and to prepare them to go forward to the college at Ningpo. A native medical evangelist, formerly engaged at the Shaou-hing dispensary, was transferred to T'ai-chow in the spring of 1896, and some 700 patients were treated. Dr. H. Hickin returned and resumed charge of this branch of the work in February, 1897. The Rev. E. Thompson, one of the year's recruits, was assigned to T'ai-chow, and arrived in January.

SHAOU-HING.

Shaou-hing.

The Rev. W. G. Walshe gives a disappointing account of the Native Congregation at SHAOU-HING. "Absence of vital Christianity," "apathy about the growth of Christ's Kingdom," "self-seeking," and "self-complacency" are painfully prominent characteristics, and he adds with sadness that the other congregations in the city connected with the China Inland Mission and the American Baptists are lamented over in similar terms by the missionaries concerned. There was, however, some improvement in the mutual relations of the individual members of the congregation one with another, less of animosity and of jealousy. They readily responded to a proposal to make monthly contributions towards the Society's Three Years' Enterprise. Mr. Walshe succeeded in establishing friendly relations with some of the local gentry who had previously been considered quite inaccessible. The Dispensary was closed on the transfer of the medical evangelist to T'ai-chow. Miss I. S. Clarke, in her Work among the Women, also observes a growing kindliness in the attitude of the wealthier and more influential people, as well as of the poorer classes. On the Chinese New Year's Day over 400 women, besides children, visited the ladies' house. Some Chinese ladies of the upper class called and took afternoon tea with the lady missionaries in English style, and Miss Clarke and Miss E. F. Turner were invited to their homes, when books and tracts were lent or given. Many of these ladies, Miss Turner says, are able to read, and others are wishful to learn to do so. Several hopeful cases are mentioned. One woman has given up idol worship, though she continues still to earn a little money by rolling tin-foil paper used in connexion with idolatry. Miss Clarke mentions her language teacher, Mr. Kyii, seventy-two years of age, as taking an interest in God's Word. This man taught the Rev. J. H. Sedgwick, now of the Palestine Mission, when he was in this Mission in 1877. Miss Clarke says of him:—

An apathetic and self-complacent congregation.

Local gentry more accessible.

Visits of and to Chinese ladies.

> The old man says he does believe, and that he prays every night and morning, besides reading the "Word of God" in his own home. He told me not long ago that he had been speaking to some friends of his—gentlemen—who live in a very large house not far from here, explaining to them the difference between Confucianism and Christianity. He said, "the former was as if a man had fallen into a canal and Confucius came and exhorted him to come out, but did nothing more; Christ came and caught hold of the man and pulled him out." We cannot but feel that this scholarly old man is not far from the Kingdom of God.

The difference between Confucianism and Christianity.

The Rev. A. Phelps mentions another old teacher who assisted the Rev. J. D. Valentine in learning the language. He was subsequently employed as a Yamên secretary in another province, but he has become addicted to opium-smoking, and, though dressed in silks and possessed of considerable intelligence, is a physical and moral wreck." Nevertheless, he expressed a wish to break off the habit. Mr. Phelps was chiefly engaged, besides language study, in evangelistic work in the city and district. The native pastor, the Rev. Tsong Sieh-en, also took part in the work, and he mentions that on one occasion he was beaten, and "times without number" was defamed and abused.

"A physical and moral wreck."

HANG-CHOW.

Mrs. Isabella Bishop bore strong testimony to the Committee in April, 1897, regarding the Hospital at HANG-CHOW. She instanced three missionary hospitals which stood out in her memory as specially worthy of commendation, one belonging to the Scotch Mission in Manchuria, one to the English Presbyterians at Swatow, and that of the C.M.S. at Hang-chow; and she gave the palm to the last. "It is," she said, "the finest I have seen in the East, whether Government or any other." The orderliness and cleanliness, and the loving care bestowed on the patients won her esteem, but most especially she commended the evangelistic character of the work throughout—the daily services, the pointed Gospel addresses, and the following-up of impressions made by visiting the patients.

Mrs. Bishop's testimony regarding the Hang-chow Hospital.

At the close of December, 1896, a fire broke out in the street in which the hospital stands; five of the out-houses were gutted, and all the buildings must inevitably have been burnt to the ground had not the wind providentially changed. Some twenty Chinese buildings were unhappily destroyed, and some of the people barely escaped with their lives. The statistics of both dispensary and hospital are very high. In the former Dr. D. Duncan Main, assisted by Dr. A. T. Kember and three native helpers, treated 13,721 patients, who made 26,057 visits. The doctor says:—

I need hardly say that the dispensary is not a place where powders are handed out rolled up in tracts, and where bottles are labelled with Scripture quotations, and where so much preaching has to be listened to for so much medicine dispensed. There is a short preaching service for the out-patients, but no one is compelled to listen; but as a matter of fact the patients do listen, often with rapt attention, to the Word spoken, and we are not without spiritual results in this part of our work.

The patients do listen to the Word.

The hospital patients numbered 882, and during the very hottest weather there were 150 in-patients, a few of them, who would take no refusal, sleeping in the verandahs, where they were almost devoured by mosquitoes. Dr. Main says of the advantages of hospital over dispensary treatment:—

Out-patients cannot be controlled—they may eat the prescription and throw away the medicine, or combine our drugs with those of a native quack, hoping, if one does not hit, the other may. Medical etiquette has not reached a fine point in China! But in the hospital patients can be controlled and managed—with difficulty. We are able to prevent them from consulting native doctors and taking native medicine while they are with us, although sometimes they try to get the better of us by taking off a splint from a fractured bone to see if it is uniting, or the bandage of an eye operated on for cataract, to see how nice a dollar looks! Still, it is only in the wards of a hospital that Chinese can be satisfactorily treated medically, and it is there that the medical missionary sees his patients under the most favourable conditions for making impressions upon them: it is there, also, the patients are able to study practical Christianity as well as the advantages of Western treatment. An operation successfully performed makes a good platform for the doctor to preach from, and through the influence gained by his operating skill, ears and hearts and homes are opened for the message of salvation.

Native medical students "worth their weight in gold."

Much of Dr. Main's time was given to teaching a class of eight Medical Students, and he says of some of them that they "are real and bright and worth their weight in gold." He lays stress on the importance of this branch of his work:—

We must have native medical missionaries. As long as flesh is flesh, and especially, as it is in China, "the hotbed of disease," we foreigners cannot do the work that has to be done. It is incredible the amount of torture the patients have to go through at the hands of native doctors. They are utterly void of all scientific medical knowledge, and are experts in killing, and we are bound as humanitarians as well as Christians to fight against their cruel, criminal, and barbarous system of treatment, and to show them the advantages and blessings of Western treatment at the hands of thoroughly qualified Natives.

Opium Refuge.

The Opium Refuge received 158 opium-smokers. This institution is valuable, Dr. Main justly thinks, not only for its success in sending out men cured of the vicious habit, but also as a standing protest against the evil, and a proof to the Chinese that Christians are anxious for their deliverance. Another year's experience only strengthened Dr. Main's conviction that "opium-smoking is an unmitigated curse, and one of the greatest hindrances to the advance of Christian work." A Lepers' Home, to relieve that in Hang-chow, was built by the lake-side. At the two homes there were twenty-one inmates, among whom Dr. Main says the spiritual work was most encouraging. No less than 300 in-patients were treated in the Women's Hospital.

Women's Hospital.

In the Work among Women in Hang-chow city, Mrs. Moule, the wife of Bishop Moule, had the co-operation of her two daughters, Misses A. M. and J. F. Moule, and of Miss A. Hunt and Miss E. Goudge, the last occupied throughout the year in "daily plodding at the language." These visited the homes of the Christian women and others, held classes, and taught in schools. Miss Hunt mentions a pleasing incident regarding one of the members of the Hang-chow branch of the Gleaners' Union:—

An unostentatious giver.

A very dear girl who is a regular attendant at Gleaners' meetings brought me last May a dollar (a large sum to the Chinese—the women as a rule can only earn at the most two dollars a month and their rice) wrapped up in a small piece of paper, on which was written the following words:—"This dollar is what I have earned by work done in the evenings; I very willingly subscribe it to the Gleaners' Union." When she gave it to me she asked me to put it into our box, and not to let the other members know who had subscribed it.

The Rev. Sing Tsaeling, the native deacon, who under Bishop Moule ministers to the Congregation, writes:—

A native pastor's opinion himself.

If your servant, who, with his shallow abilities and scanty virtue has accepted this weighty office, sets himself to reflect, he is most sensible of shame and confusion. But on the other hand, resting in God's great grace, which has not rejected him for his lack of intelligence, [he feels he] may be like the earthern vessel containing precious things, and a weak one manifesting [God's] strength.

Mr. Coultas mentions an effort to supply all the higher native officials in Hang-chow with a copy of the New Testament. Many marks of their appreciation of the gift were met with, and he asks for prayer that the Holy Spirit may teach these men and bring them to the feet of the Lord Jesus.

Out-station

The Out-stations up the Hang-chow River were visited by Mr. Coultas, and by Misses M. Vaughan and L. H. Barnes (the latter of whom left on furlough in March, 1897). Some of the more intelligent men and women are brought to Hang-chow for a few weeks, as opportunity arises, to receive instruction, so that they may be the more useful to their fellow-Christians and to others. At Dande a Mrs. Dzen was baptized, with her two sons. A short while before this woman had a struggle in which conscience gained the victory. She had preserved in her home an incense tablet, which she thought harmless as she did not use it, but she heard that her brother-in-law was coming on New Year's Day to burn candles before it. Her Christian friends told her it would be wrong to allow this to happen in her house. After some hours of inward conflict she brought the tablet to Miss Barnes, saying she felt she ought not to keep it. No baptisms took place at Wang-dza, but the people are increasingly friendly. A day-school was opened at Nyien-U, and four women were baptized there in March, 1896; one of these suffered much persecution from her husband, an opium-smoker. Miss Barnes writes:—

Conscience gains a victory.

A cheerful sufferer for the Gospel's sake.

In the summer her husband wished her to take a cup of opium to poison herself, and only the last Sunday we were there (September) he struck her two or three times on the head with his opium-pipe, because she was trying to make arrangements to betroth the elder girl to a Christian. The faith and patience of this woman have many times put me to shame. She is so bright, and says she must be willing to suffer for Jesus' sake, and earnestly pleads us to pray that God's Holy Spirit may touch her husband's heart. During the summer he beat the younger girl for attending the services, and said that neither of the girls should return to the school. However, at our first praise and prayer meeting (women's) after the summer, the elder girl asked us to praise God because He had answered her prayers and made her father willing to let them return to school.

Two young women were baptized at Ts'in-ts'ao. Miss Vaughan and Miss Barnes visited Dande ten times, Wang-dza four, and Nyien-U four times during the year, staying several days each time, and twenty-one other villages were visited for longer or shorter periods, some of them three or four times. The people at most places were found friendly and willing to hear.

The Rev. E. Hughesdon spent a large part of the year in itinerating, travelling 4,580 li (or 1,500 miles) by boat and on foot. At Yien-Tse Fu a military graduate called upon him and listened very attentively to the Gospel story. At Dong-lü Yien a prominent idol attracted his attention. He writes :—

A prominent idol.

The chief god is of a great size, and most forbidding in feature and gesture ; it sits astride of a big chest partly hidden by its embellishments. The god is hollow—very typical of its kind ; offerings of cash, &c., are put down its mouth, which is open for the purpose. These fall into the chest, which I noticed had a padlock at the side : the priests, no doubt, understood the mystery. Persons afflicted with sore or diseased hands expect to find a cure by rubbing the immense hands of this god, which are thus kept polished. Amongst the burning incense upon the large altar were bamboo slips in a round case used in divination. After the ritual and prostration of the worshipper are gone through, the case is shaken, when one of the slips rises up ; this is taken out and the number noted. Upon the wall were a great number of paper lengths, each numbered to accord with the slips of bamboo. The right paper is torn from the others, on which the fate or fortune of the supplicant is oracled.

Other places visited, some only once, some several times, were Tsen-Yuen-p'u, Dong-lü Yien, Fen-Swe Yien, P'u-Kông Yien, Siu-Dzen Yien, Dzang-K'e, Yü-'ang Yien, and Fu-Yang Yien. At one place the people came around Mr. Hughesdon in some numbers and "just stared right at" him. He wrote : "One needs much grace to be patient and humble, especially when tired and heart-wearied. This continuous scrutiny and ignorant, sometimes rude inquiry and gazing wonder is sometimes very irksome ; bitterness is apt to take the place of love ; but God is able ; the tempted heart does try to struggle up." In another place a criminal who was met with in a tea-shop, "with an iron chain and padlock round his neck, the chain reaching to a block of stone in the mud floor, and a rough iron spear fixed behind his back," showed interest in the Gospel and produced cash to purchase a portion of God's Word and a tract.

Much grace needed by itinerants.

A criminal purchases a Scripture portion.

CHUKI.

Chuki.

The Rev. J. B. Ost reports progress throughout the entire CHUKI DISTRICT, and that notwithstanding much persecution at some of the centres. In last year's Report the entrance of Roman Catholic agents into the district was referred to, and the persecution came mainly from some who joined their communion. Mr. Ost's Annual Letter alludes to such episodes as the following:—A French Roman Catholic priest writing to a mandarin and stating that the "followers of Jesus" (i.e., Protestants) were liars and had no consciences; a man being shot by a Roman Catholic adherent; another man being struck in the face by an assailant. In the last instance a threat of further violence was made. Mr. Ost writes:— Roman Catholic opposition.

One day one of our Christians when attending market, was accosted by a man who interrogated him thus: "T'iu kyu (that is the Roman Catholic term for God) is the Father of Yia Su (Jesus), is He not? The father can beat the son; therefore, as I belong to the T'iu kyu religion, I can beat you who only belong to His Son's (Yia Su's) religion"; and thereupon he struck him a smart blow on the face. On being remonstrated with he became more violent, and drew a knife he had concealed up his sleeve, to attack our convert with. A friend's timely aid prevented blood-spilling, but the man who behaved thus is still seeking opportunity for attacking our native brother, and has with others sought for him at his own home.

The Christians contributed liberally towards a Church Building Fund, and the contributions to the Pastorate Fund increased considerably. Bishop Moule visited nine of the congregations and confirmed seventy candidates in the spring of 1896. The death of one of the Christians at Great Valley (it does not appear whether it is the old man referred to in last year's Report, page 343) occurred as the consequence of violent ill-usage. Mr. Ost says:—

He might almost be regarded as having laid down his life in Christ's cause, as his death was greatly accelerated by a brutal beating he received on becoming a Christian, from some heathen relatives and others. He died trusting in Jesus, and on his death-bed he said to me that he forgave his enemies because they did not know the Truth, and said if they knew Jesus they would love His followers instead of persecuting them. The cruel way in which the man's widow and children were treated by the relatives I have already reported to you. The woman is now paying a visit to her father's house, and is active in exhorting her relations to "believe the doctrine" and give up their idols. Her brother attended a service at Great Valley a short time since, when he secretly informed me that he believed but was afraid to say so openly. An aged Christian's death accelerated by a beating from his heathen relatives.

There were 200 inquirers in March, 1897. Mrs. Ost was actively engaged in working among the women and girls.

WEST CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. In 1894 the cities of Chong-pa, Sin-tu, Mien-Chuh, Miencheo, and An Hsien received resident missionaries, and Shih-ts'uen Hsien in 1895. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

West China Mission.

THE connexion between the work in the far western province of Si-chuan and that in the eastern provinces of Kiang-su and Cheh-Kiang was never an intimate one, and could not be so from the immense distance separating them. The leader of the Si-chuan band of pioneers was previously on the Cheh-Kiang staff of workers; for a while after its initiation the work was nominally under Bishop Moule's episcopal supervision, but it was out of the question for him to visit the labourers; and the financial accounts were kept at Shanghai by the secretary of the Mid China Mission. The consecration of Bishop Cassels in 1895, and the separation of the accounts from those of the Mid China Mission, have sundered the slender links which lent an appearance of organic unity to the essentially distinct Missions, and the Committee have accordingly decided that the work in Si-chuan shall be recognized as a separate Mission under the above title, the "West China Mission."

Reinforcements.

Until the year under review no reinforcements had been sent out since the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Horsburgh led the pioneer party up in 1891. Two men have been enrolled on the staff since then, but they also went up with the rest as independent workers—recognized as such by the Committee, but not until their health, &c., had been tested in the field were their names put on the roll. During 1896 a third man of those who went out independently in 1891 has been accepted, and, besides, two laymen and three ladies have been sent out from this country to strengthen the staff. These are: Mr. Walter Squibbs, of the Edinburgh Medical Mission, L.R.C.P. & S., Edinburgh, L.F.P. & S., Glasgow, and for a short time under training at Islington College; Mr. William Andrews, of Islington College; Mr. Simmonds, a member of Mr. Horsburgh's original party, accepted in local connexion; Miss Ida Kate Sylvia Acheson, of The Olives; Miss A. Maud Barker, of Highbury Training Home; and Miss Lilias Sarah Digby. The above, excepting Mr. Simmonds, sailed in October, and arrived at Shanghai in November. Dr. Squibbs and Mr. Andrews started up the Yang-tse in December, and the ladies, under the kind escort of the Rev. and Mrs. W. Taylor, of the China Inland Mission, a fortnight later.

Probably none of the Society's Mission-fields in the Eastern Hemisphere possess so salubrious a climate as that of Si-chuan, and the missionaries have enjoyed for the most part excellent health. The record during 1896 was less satisfactory in this respect than in previous years, and unhappily the first very serious case of sickness proved fatal. The cause, however, was not one which could be attributed to climate, though one undoubtedly to which the insanitary conditions common to all non-Christian, and some so-called Christian lands, conduce. Miss Alice Entwistle died from an attack of small-pox, probably caught while visiting a native woman, on June 21st, 1896. Her death took place at Chong-pa, whither she had gone from Mien-cheo, her own station, to spend a short time with Mrs. Jackson. The Rev. J. H. Horsburgh wrote at the time :—

Death of Miss Alice Entwistle.

Our God has drawn near to us last night. He has honoured our Mission by taking to Himself (before allowing any of us to return to England) one of our most devoted, most loved workers. Dear Alice Entwistle is with us here no longer. She is with Jesus. I cannot tell you how we shall all miss her; my wife and I loved her almost as a child or a younger sister; and to dear Miss Wells, her close friend, the loss is very keen. With us so well the other day, and now we shall see her here no more. These poor Chinese—for whom she lived, amongst whom she died,—it will take a great deal to make up to them what they have lost in her. Surely there are some who will be moved to come now and carry on her holy ministry! Will you tell them?

Mr. Phillips had small-pox at Mien-cheo some months ago, and Miss Entwistle has been living there. But that is long over. And yet three weeks ago, two days after she came here to help Mrs. Jackson, small-pox began. A week previously she and Miss Wells were visiting a dear Chinese woman in the country. A woman came to listen who was nursing a child, sick with small-pox, so we think she must have got it from her. The attack was a very severe one, and she passed away quietly, without any pain or struggle, last night at about ten o'clock. You know she was looking forward to going home early next year to be married to Mr. —, whom she left to come out to China five and a half years ago. But she said to me at the beginning of her illness, "It would be nice to be going Home to glory instead of going home to England, would it not?"

I do thank God for her simple, brave, prayerful, powerful, peaceful life, wholly yielded to God—for Him and these poor, needy women. I thank God for the example and inspiration she has been to us and to me. I like to think of all the joy the Master has had out of her devoted, beautiful life since she came to China. It was through her that Mien-cheo, now our central station, was opened. We shall miss her so much!

Her prayerful, powerful, peaceful life."

The Rev. W. S. Standen, the Rev. E. N. Thwaites's companion as a Special Missioner to India (see supra, pages 177 and 268), to whose congregation at Smithills, Bolton, Miss Entwistle belonged (and by their offerings she was supported in the field), wrote after the news of her death was received :—

Her education as a child was rather below than above the average education of a working girl, but as soon as she knew she was to be a missionary she immediately went to her Heavenly Father to be taught what might be needed.

In a meeting she attended, which was addressed by a missionary of the China Inland Mission, she had her heart drawn out to the Heathen, and especially to China. For the Chinese she must at once begin to live, and she dedicated every Friday night to prayer and intercession for this needy people; and on the altar of God she laid herself to be all that God would make her for their salvation. And as she prayed with the fervour of her soul, as she very literally shut to the door and shut herself in with God, she prayed herself away for the perishing Chinese; and the Lord called her for this work.

I shall never forget the Saturday evening when she announced the fact to my praying people. We were met together for intercession for Missions in the week set apart for it around St. Andrew's Day. It was a pouring wet night. I seldom remember a more steady downpour. We had not many present, but among the number was Miss Entwistle, from some little distance. We had not gone far with our meeting; I was giving a few opening words. As I was speaking, Alice Entwistle rose from her seat and said: "Excuse my stopping you, Mr. Standen, but I cannot keep it to myself any longer. Last night, as I was spending it in prayer for China, the Lord gave me a call for China; and now I want you all to know it and to pray for me." I replied: "If the Lord has called you to China He will make the way for you to go, so look to Him. We will at once take you to the Lord in prayer."

The Lord did open the door to Alice Entwistle in a marvellous way. It was the Lord's doing and not man's, and she was among those whom she called "her dear Chinese" much sooner than human judgment could have expected.

I cannot refrain from giving her own father's reply to her intimation of the fact that the Lord had called her to China. It may be a word to some Christian parents, who are holding back their children who are feeling called to the heathen field.

She said: "Father, I have had a call from the Lord to China; will you let me go?" Father: "Why, lass, they will not take the like of thee; thou art nought but an uneducated lass. Still, if the Lord has called thee to China, He will have thee there. And, lass, if thy father attempts to hinder thee when God has called thee, He will have to put me aside. There's nought but trouble comes to us if we stand in His way." That father is now in glory, and a blessed meeting have they both had ere this.

"Nought but trouble if we stand in His way."

Bishop and Mrs. Cassels sailed from England, as mentioned last year, in October, 1895. In December the Bishop addressed a letter from Shanghai "to the Missionary Clergy and others in the Diocese of Western China," his first letter written to them as their Bishop. It was headed with the three following texts:—

Bishop Cassels' letter to the Clergy of his Diocese.

"I am but a little child."
"Jesus called a little child unto Him, and set him in the midst."
"A little child shall lead them."

And it concluded with an earnest aspiration for uninterrupted union and fellowship of all the workers in the Lord's service:—

My great, earnest desire is that we may all be drawn together as one in the service of the Lord. A great work lies before us, and any lack of unity will hamper and hinder us most terribly. Perhaps no words have been more on my mind, in this connexion, than the touching exhortation in 1 Pet. iii. 8 (R.V.): "Be ye all like-minded, compassionate, loving as brethren, tender-hearted, humble-minded." There is, indeed, a great deal which should bind us together. Our modes and operations are all on the same lines. We are the only workers in the vast and needy field of northern and eastern Si-chuan. The state of China, just now, urgently calls us to join hands and to knit our hearts together for the advancement of God's Kingdom. I pray God that the Devil may be hindered in his certain endeavours to sow seeds of disunion amongst us. In any matter of difference of opinion, let us take the inspired injunction of the Apostle for our guide: "Let the peace of God be umpire."

The Bishop's visitations.

After a journey of 1,800 miles up the Yang-tse and 330 further overland, the Bishop reached Pao-ning—a station of the China Inland Mission, central for the work of both that Society and the C.M.S.—in February, 1896, where he decided to make his home. Two visitations of the Society's stations were made by the Bishop during 1896, in the course of which he confirmed thirteen candidates—seven men and six women. The Bishop confirmed altogether 156, all except the thirteen just mentioned connected with the work of the C.I.M., and he travelled 3,262 miles, spending 103 days in his journeys.

The Rev. J. H. Horsburgh's family continued at Kuan Hsien, a station of the C.I.M., until October, 1896, when they removed to Mien-cheo. Mr. Horsburgh himself was only once at Kuan Hsien between October, 1895, and July, 1896. During the few weeks he was there in February a double attack was made on the house by burglars. He felt it to be a most merciful Providence that after an absence of several months he should have been brought back just two nights before this attack was made, for he wrote, "I tremble to think what would have happened, and what my wife and children must have suffered, had I not been there." The burglars made a large hole through the wall in the room where the children were sleeping alone. Mr. Horsburgh went from station to station, helping and encouraging the brethren and sisters. Mrs. Isabella Bishop, F.R.G.S., the traveller, arrived at Mien-cheo in March, 1896, and was met there by Mr. and Mrs. Horsburgh. She accompanied the latter back to Kuan Hsien, and between Mien-chuh and that place a stone was thrown at and hit Mrs. Bishop which caused her much suffering, and gave cause to fear most serious consequences. Mr. W. Knipe accompanied Mrs. Bishop to the borders of Tibet, travelling through the Man-tsi territory, the farthest point reached being So-Mo.

SINTU.

Sintu.

The first baptisms in this Mission took place at SINTU on February 9th, 1896, as mentioned last year, the converts being Mrs. Wei, aged 73, and Uh-hsien-i, the cook of Misses E. D. Mertens and E. Casswell. These two were also the first confirmees in the Mission, being confirmed by Bishop Cassels in April, and the former of them was the first Christian to enter the Better Land, being called Home in September. Her peaceful death much impressed her neighbours; one of them said she was constantly praying: "Lord Jesus, come quickly. Do not leave me, my Saviour; I will not leave Thee." Her husband and son, although not believers, performed no heathen rites and allowed her to have a Christian burial. In October, on Bishop Cassels's second visit, he baptized four others, Mr. and Mrs. Uang, their daughter, aged twelve, and Li-T'song-En, Mr. D. A. Callum's cook. Mrs. Uang was mentioned last year as an inquirer. For some weeks at the close of 1895 she appeared to be mentally afflicted, refusing her ordinary food; people from all parts of the city visited her as she lay on her bed, and she earnestly exhorted them to turn from their idols and serve the true God, replying to those who pressed her to take nourishment, that she would do so when every one was saved. At intervals she had fits of violence, when she raved most terribly, beat herself, and broke whatever came in her way. Special prayer was offered up on her behalf and she gradually recovered, and became remarkably bright and clear in apprehending spiritual truth. She and her husband and Li-T'song-En were confirmed by the Bishop soon after their baptism. There were fourteen inquirers at the end of 1896, many of them relatives of the converts. Mr. Callum, who, with Mrs. Callum, took up his residence at Sintu in March, 1896, says of the Christians:—

Christians exercising a marked influence.

These people are very evidently exercising a marked influence on those around them, and seem very much in earnest in telling others of the Saviour Who has saved them, and Who is able and willing to save all who will forsake sin and come unto Him. We try to impress it on them that the growth of the Church depends, humanly speaking, on them, and, thank God, they are beginning to realize that such is the case. They are all working people, depending on their own efforts for their daily food. Out of the nineteen names on the books only three are in our employ; two have been with us more than two years, and have been converted while with us; the other is an inquirer. We require a longer probation from those who are in our employ than from those who are not, as they have not got the same tests as the others have. We have to be very careful in what we do, as there are so many people who would profess to believe anything for the sake of a little gain: we could get numbers of rice-Christians with but very little encouragement. We have to be careful in giving any help to Christians in cases of real need, and help only very moderately. The Christians themselves wish it to be so, for then they are able to answer such as speak evil of them, that they have not been bought over by the foreigners' money or rice, but have been taken captive by the love of God.

Two of the inquirers live in the country, namely, Mr. and Mrs. Uh, step-father and mother of Mr. Uang, both over seventy, yet the former sometimes walks the six miles to Sin-tu for the Sunday services. Evangelistic meetings in Sin-tu were held twice a week, and were well attended. Such questions as: "How are our sins forgiven?" "How are our hearts made clean?" "How can we get to Heaven?" "How can we cast off sin?" are often asked.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mien-chuh.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips continued at MIEN-CHUH, with a few brief interruptions, throughout the year. The evangelistic meetings were less crowded than in 1895, and the inquirers have not increased in number, being still entered as four. The farmer mentioned last year, Mr. An, is very helpful in the work. A new mandarin came into office at Mien-chuh in the autumn of 1896, who made it known that the missionaries might take houses where they would in the town without the matter being referred to him. Mr. Phillips was called to no fewer than fifteen cases of opium suicides during the twelve months; to three of these the summons was too late, but the other twelve were rescued. He says:—

Opium suicides and opium-smokers.

What must be the aggregate of suicides by this horrible poison in the numberless cities and towns of this vast Empire! But these are insignificant in number when compared with the multitudes of opium-skeletons we see walking about every day. The opium-suicides in many cases are not opium-smokers. A woman who has lost her baby, an apprentice who has had a row with his master, a young tradesman who has quarrelled with his wife, such are the causes which daily lead people to take this easily procured poison. On every street, at every few paces, this deadly drug is for sale, and children can purchase it.

MIEN-CHEO.

First-fruits at Mien-cheo.

The first converts of MIEN-CHEO were baptized by the Rev. O. M. Jackson, of Chong-pa, on September 27th, 1896. They were: U-hsing-ten, aged 38, Mission-servant; Chang-in-sin, aged 37, a weaver, and his wife; Mrs. Lin, aged 59, Mission-servant; Mrs. Sie, aged 52, a servant in the city; Mrs. Lin, aged 64, a countrywoman. Some of these were mentioned or referred to in last year's Report. U-hsing-ten was first influenced by a relative, a convert of the C.I.M., who gave him a New Testament to read. Chang-in-sin was influenced through a tract given him by the late Miss Entwistle in an idol-temple where he was worshipping. On the day of the baptisms, before the service, idols belonging to two of the women were burnt in front of the chapel.

The ladies, Miss R. Lloyd, Miss G. E. Wells (now at home), and Miss M. A. Thompson, were enabled to occupy again a house in the city, to which they removed from their temporary quarters outside the walls in the summer of 1896. While negotiating the renting of the house, Mr. Phillips, of Mien-chuh, had an attack of small-pox, which happily proved of a mild nature. Miss Lloyd was frequently called away from Mien-cheo to nurse one or other at the several stations, including some of the C.I.M. missionaries. Mr. and Mrs. Horsburgh took up their abode at Mien-cheo in October.

Miss Wells and Miss Thompson made two visits to Wei-chang, accompanied each time by two of the converts. Crowds of women everywhere visited them, and they were greeted by friendly faces—a contrast, as Miss Wells remarked, to the day a year or two before when they went forth strangers and alone to open up new ground.

AN HSIEN.

An Hsien. Mr. Horsburgh was at AN HSIEN at the beginning of 1896, and succeeded in renting a house. It had, however, to be considerably repaired, almost rebuilt, and this was done under Mr. T. Simmonds's supervision. Mr. and Mrs. W. Knipe occupied this house in the summer. Mr. Callum visited the station in the autumn, and had the opportunity of exhibiting Scripture lantern views in two yamêns and in three chief houses of the town. The ladies of these houses sat behind the screen and heard the story of the Saviour's life. At the yamêns the crowds were great, but the mandarins maintained order. Mr. Callum says :—

Gospel lantern exhibition in yamêns.

> When these two mandarins invited me to their yamêns they never dreamed that they were going to give us the opportunity of preaching to so many people ; but the people came, and were kept in order, and heard the Gospel, and seemed to understand it. They all seemed very much struck by the picture of the dead Christ, the white figure on the cross standing out from the surrounding blackness : all who were chattering and talking stopped, and there was a silence as we told how He had died, but death could not overcome Him, for He rose again, and liveth for evermore, liveth to make intercession for us, for whose sakes He had died. Mr. Knipe did most of the preaching, while Mr. Simmonds and I worked the lantern.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-pa. The Rev. and Mrs. O. M. Jackson were away from CHONG-PA for various reasons, in response to calls for help elsewhere, somewhat frequently, and the house was left in charge of a Christian man, Mr. Liao, a Native of Mien-cheo. A Mr. Li and his wife are the only people of Chong-pa who profess to believe the Gospel. Mr. Jackson and Mr. Simmonds itinerated among the villages to the north in the winter of 1895–6.

SHIH-TS'UEN-HSIEN.

Shih-ts'-uen-Hsien SHIH-TS'UEN-HSIEN is within a few days' journey of Tibet, and native tribes who are governed by their own headmen and not by the Chinese mandarins are still nearer. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hickman continue to reside here. A man whom Mr. Hickman was instrumental in curing of opium-smoking is an earnest inquirer, and a woman aged 74 has broken her meritorious fast of 52 years and cast aside her idols. Mr. Hickman's teacher, a Confucianist graduate, also is an inquirer. Several literati visit Mr. Hickman, and attend the services occasionally.

C.M.S. Report, Pl. 8.

§ Stations of the Church Missionary Society

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly.

Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokio were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; and Kagoshima, 1895. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; and Sapporo, 1892.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and Archbishop Benson nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. Missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883. But in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the Bishop of Exeter. In 1893, the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern Islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. Missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated, the former Bishop of Kiu-shiu, and the latter Bishop of Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the main island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokio, Kyoto, and Osaka. The Right Rev. Dr. Awdry, Bishop of Southampton, was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896.

A destructive seismic wave.

JAPAN was visited by a calamity of almost unprecedented magnitude in the summer of 1895. On June 15th, at 8.30 p.m., a seismic wave struck the north-east coast of the Main Island throughout a distance of about 200 miles, and in five minutes 30,000 people were killed and 12,000 homes destroyed. The map on the opposite page—a map which has not previously been inserted in the Annual Report, Japan in previous issues having appeared in the same map with China, and on a much smaller scale than in the present one—will render easy the identification of the scene of this terrible visitation, namely, along a great part of the coast of the provinces of Rikuzen and Rikuchai. The following are some instances of the devastation. In Kamaishi, out of 1,223 houses only 143 remained standing, and out of a population of 6,557, death overtook 4,700, and 500 were left wounded—many of them fatally wounded—on the ground. In Futaishi only 100 persons escaped death out of 790, and only two houses out of as many hundreds remained standing. The cause of the disaster was attributed to a submarine volcanic eruption. In other parts of the Main Island storms and floods wrought extensive havoc —to the latter reference will be made below under Gifu and Nagoya—and it is not surprising that their effect was to cripple seriously the resources of the national exchequer, and indirectly to produce a ministerial crisis which resulted in the appointment of a new Cabinet under Count Matsukata in succession to Marquis Ito.

Scheme of national expenditure.

The budget for 1897-8, submitted by the Government at the beginning of 1897, was in many respects a remarkable document, and eminently symptomatic of qualities making for stability and strength. It disclosed a large and ambitious scheme of military and naval expansion, involving an expenditure of 295 millions of yen, spread over ten years. To meet these heavy charges a public loan of 135 million yen was to be issued. But the striking fact is that the programme contemplates the redemption not only of the new, but also of previous national debts in 38 years, commencing from 1896. From 1870 to 1896 Japan's debts, contracted with foreigners and with her own people, aggregated 629,995,950 yen. In 1872 she began to put into practice a system of liquidation, and by 1896 she had wiped off 248,625,611 yen, leaving a balance of only 381,370,339. Thus, having fought a great war and arranged to double her army and navy at a cost of 290 million yen, and also to double her annual outlay for maintaining troops and ships, she can still look forward to being completely free from debt in the year 1934.

It cannot be matter for surprise that the Japanese, who in the sphere of finance and of politics manifest so enlightened a patriotism, and a resolute independence which aspires to forego even the luxury of a national debt, should—those of them who have embraced the Christian faith presented to them through the instrumentality of missionaries of the Church of England—display a certain degree of restlessness under a régime which gives them no voice in the selection of the spiritual overseers of the "Japan Church." The appointment, however, of the Rev. P. K. Fyson to the Bishopric of Hokkaido, a missionary who had laboured among them for twenty-two years, was welcomed by the Synod of the Nippon Sei Ko Kwai with every manifestation of satisfaction and approval, and even enthusiasm. The appointment was mentioned in last year's Report.

Consecration of Bishop Fyson.

The consecration took place, together with that of Bishop Hine for the Diocese of Likoma, at St. Matthew's Church, Bethnal Green, on June 29th, 1896, and the Bishop and Mrs. Fyson sailed in October.

Bishop Awdry had an interview with the Committee in April, 1897, and expressed his opinion that the promise of the progress of Christianity, which has been less pronounced during the past few years than at an earlier date, is reviving again. At one time, the Bishop said, Christianity, as everything foreign, was in fashion. The State showed a disposition to make it the established religion. That this should have been done from political motives, as once seemed likely, would have been a step full of peril for the Church, and therefore the Bishop felt that the diminished favour with which Christianity had lately been regarded, and the consequent withdrawal of many whose motives in joining it had not been satisfactory, was a matter for congratulation. But there are evidences that the tide is turning again. The authorities recognize the superior trustworthiness of Christians, and a large proportion of their number occupy positions of trust. Out of the 114 whom the Bishop confirmed during his first year in the country, there were three judges, three bankers, two or three doctors, one head of a prison, and several policemen. The Bishop dwelt also, in his interview with the Committee, on the obstacle presented frequently to the spread of Christianity among the young in Japan through the opposition of the teachers in the elementary schools. It is worthy of note that the Education Department of the Japanese Government took a new departure at the beginning of 1897, by sending a Japanese lady to England to study the education system of this country, and that special arrangements were made by the authorities to admit of her travelling with a lady missionary, who wrote in the South Tokio Quarterly Diocesan Magazine:—

Bishop Awdry's views on the prospects of Christianity in Japan.

A Japanese lady sent by the Government to study English educational systems.

When one of the teachers of the Higher Normal called to thank me on behalf of the school for helping Miss Yasui, and to ask me if I would place her for some months in a family to learn English better, I said that I hoped they quite understood that I was a missionary, and that any family I placed her with would be a Christian family. He said he understood that every nice family in England was Christian. I said that there are nice families who are Christians, but not earnest, but that I should place her with those who are earnest. To which he replied, "Much better, for then they are sure to be kind to her." Miss Yasui is not yet a Christian. She tells me that her reading has convinced her that there is One Supreme Being; and she has read a good deal of the New Testament, but does not understand Christianity. I know of few people whose influence will penetrate further than Miss Yasui's when she returns from England. The Higher Normal School, of which she is one of the teachers, is what we would call a Training School for teachers. Now, she is only one of many teachers; but she has had the honour of being chosen in a rather marked way for the Government work, and when she returns she will be the teacher par excellence that the pupils will look up to; and these pupils will in their turn go out to be teachers in many places where Christianity is still quite unknown.

The opinion has been expressed by the Society's missionaries in Japan that it would be calculated to advance the best interests of the future Church in Japan if a few—one or two in the first instance—of the most intelligent Native Christians connected with the Society's Mission could be sent to this country and matriculate at Oxford or Cambridge. They believe that a course of study there of two or three years would, with God's blessing, be an invaluable training for positions of influence in the Church of Japan in due course. The Committee have not seen their way to use the Society's funds for this object, and special gifts have not hitherto been adequate to make an experiment in this direction possible.

Reinforcements. The following reinforcements were sent out in the autumn of 1896: the Rev. William Royston Gray, M.A., St. John's College, Oxford, who took a Second Class in Moderations, Curate of St. Mary's, Leamington, a son of the late Rev. W. Gray, Secretary of the Society; Mr. Francis Edward Hamond, civil engineer, Haileybury College, and short course at Islington College; Mr. Sheldon Painter, of Southport; Miss Alice Pemberton Carr; Miss Beatrice Nottidge, The Willows; Miss Ada Hannah Wright, The Willows, niece of Miss H. Riddell, of this Mission; and Miss Edith Bryant, a trained nurse. The Rev. J. A. Cutten has been transferred to this Mission from South China.

Deaths of Archdeacon Maundrell Archdeacon Herbert Maundrell, who retired from this Mission owing to failing health in 1893, died on November 3rd, 1896. His earliest years of missionary labour were spent in Madagascar or the neighbouring island of Mauritius, from 1863 to 1875. In the latter year the Society gave up its Madagascar Mission, and he was transferred to Japan. Nagasaki was his station, and from it he had the joy of seeing the Gospel extend its influence west and north and south to the cities of Kiu-Shiu, where European missionaries are now stationed. He was made Archdeacon by Bishop Bickersteth in 1886.

and of Mrs. D. M. Lang. Mrs. Lang, wife of the Rev. D. Marshall Lang, son of the Society's Lay Secretary, died on October 1st at Hakodate, after giving birth to a son who died the following day.

I. DIOCESE OF OSAKA.

Ordinations. BISHOP AWDRY admitted the Rev. H. G. Warren to priest's orders on September 20th, 1896, and the Rev. P. T. Arato also to priest's orders on January 31st, 1897. Both ordinations were held at Osaka; Bishop Evington, of Kiu-Shiu, was present on the latter occasion, and preached the sermon.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. Chapman came home in consequence of the latter's ill-health in July, Mr. Chapman returning in October; the Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Pole came home in August, 1896, and Mrs. Edmonds and Miss E. Ritson in May, 1897. The Rev. H. G. Warren was married to Miss M. A. McClenaghan, of this Mission, in March, 1897.

OSAKA.

Osaka. Archdeacon Warren has combined with his duties as Secretary of the Mission in the Osaka Diocese the pastoral charge (assisted by a native deacon) of St. Peter's Church, and the post of Acting-Principal of the Divinity School during the absence of the Rev. G. H. Pole. Five students graduated in July, 1896, and took up evangelistic work in various parts of the country. The visit to the Divinity School last December of Mr. J. R. Mott, of the World's Students' Christian Federation, was warmly appreciated. A Students' Christian Association was formed and a weekly Bible-class, conducted by the junior tutor, Mr. Fukada, was established. The Rev. S. M. Koba divides his time between the Divinity School and his pastoral duties in connexion with the Church of the Saviour. He has an encouraging report to give of his flock, who have, he says, "peace, love, and unity" amongst themselves. A few of the Christians are in the habit of meeting together early in the morning to pray for any backsliders who have come under their notice; afterwards visiting those for whom they have prayed. Several were restored through these prayerful efforts. Miss R. D. Howard visits amongst the women of this congregation, and also those connected with St. Peter's Church and the Church of the Resurrection. She reports that "the members of the Christian Women's Meetings in all three churches seem to take a real interest in the study of God's Word, often asking questions and taking part themselves." The women of the district attached to Holy Trinity Church, of which the Rev. B. H. Terasawa is pastor, were regularly visited by Miss Hamilton (an independent missionary who works heartily and loyally with the C.M.S. staff), and there was marked blessing in individual cases. Jonan Congregation, which is closely connected with the Momoyama Boys' Boarding School, is under the charge of the Rev. H. McC. E. Price. Most of the Christian masters and boys are enrolled members of the congregation, but good work is done amongst the townspeople also, as will be seen by the following instances of conversion mentioned by Mr. Price:—

Divinity School.

Congregations.

Converts. In my last Annual Letter I mentioned a young man whom I hoped to baptize shortly. He is a tooth-brush maker, of very little education, but his life during the past year has been a bright example to the whole congregation. His simplicity, humility, charity, and reverence continually give me cause to glorify God. Before his baptism he made up his mind to keep Sunday, and he has been blessed with both spiritual and temporal prosperity in consequence. He has been endeavouring to lead others to Christ, and I feel confident that he will be used by God for this. A middle-aged couple who had been baptized here quite recently told me that they owed much to his good example. The baptism of this couple has been a real joy to us as well as to themselves. They have given good evidence of God's work in their hearts, and are enjoying new life. The husband, when asked before baptism what his Christian profession would involve, replied amongst other things that it involved his becoming a fool, meaning that he would have to do his business in future in a truthful, simple way, which the world would reckon foolish. He has already been acting upon this, and possibly it may mean pecuniary loss, but he and his wife agree that they never spent such a happy New Year season as this year.

What Christianity involves.

Thirty-nine adults and nineteen children were baptized in the five churches during the year, and the contributions of all the congregations towards Church work show a satisfactory upward tendency.

Bible-women's Home.

The Bible-women's Home is under the charge of Miss E. B. Boulton (of the Female Education Society), assisted by Miss R. D. Howard. A Loochooan woman—the first to receive a Japanese education—was admitted as a student, and is described as being "very bright, earnest, and intelligent." It is hoped she will eventually be used as an instrument of great blessing in her native islands. Four boys of the Momoyama. Boys' Boarding School were baptized during 1896. Mr. F. E. Hamond, who hopes to take up work in the school, is residing there while studying the language. Miss K. Tristram sends a cheering report of the Bishop Poole Memorial Girls' School. All the older girls in the school are now Christians, and of the six who left last Christmas three intended to work as missionary "helpers," being too young for the position of Bible-women. Of one of these Miss Tristram writes:—

Schools.

Missionary helpers."

She is the sister-in-law of the leading barrister in Osaka, a girl who was baptized two years ago, but whose relations are none of them Christians as yet. They are, however, quite willing that she should give her life for a few years to this work, and she herself is looking forward to it with the greatest joy. She has already proved herself a very good Sunday-school teacher and helper at an evangelistic meeting in a village near.

Four Sunday-schools in the city are worked by the teachers and girls of the school, and serve as a valuable training-ground for the latter. Signs of blessing upon this work are mentioned by Miss Tristram, who says:—

Sunday-schools.

At one of these Sunday-schools, the best attended, we have an average of fifty children, and always some grown-up people. One old woman came regularly for several weeks in the spring, and then when one of the girls asked her address and said we should like to go and see her, she took fright and suddenly disappeared. We were afraid we had lost her altogether, but she came back again last Sunday, saying she could not help it, she must hear some more of our "joy-giving talk." Another woman has been coming regularly for some months, and when I expressed my special pleasure at seeing her on a pouring wet day, she said her husband had told her to come, for all she would hear was very good, and would do her good.

Miss E. S. Fox, while engaged chiefly in language-study, gave some help in teaching, and "made her influence felt, and herself loved by the children," Miss Tristram says.

The Rev. C. T. Warren continued, as well as weakened health would allow him, to supervise the Evangelistic Work in the city. The four preaching-places are chiefly worked by students from the Divinity School. Special "preachings" for non-Christians, extending over three days in each case, were held during November in all the five churches, with most encouraging results. The catechist, whose special duty it is to influence the crews and passengers of steamers calling at Osaka, did excellent service. Many thousands of tracts and leaflets were distributed by him, and the people often responded by visiting him at his own house to learn more of the way of salvation. Already one official of good standing has been led to Christ through his instrumentality. Evangelistic Work.

HIROSHIMA.

The Rev. J. Williams, who laboured for fifteen years at Tokio, took up his residence at HIROSHIMA in September, 1896. He mentions three causes which seem to him to militate against the rapid progress of Christianity in the town:— Hiroshima.

(1) The reaction in Japan against Christianity still continues. It is negative rather than positive. Absolute indifference—this is the general attitude towards the Gospel.

Then (2) Hiroshima has always been a stronghold of Buddhism, and the most powerful sect in Japan has many bigoted adherents in this district. A few months ago the high priest of the sect paid a visit to the town. On his return, when going to the station, the streets were lined with numbers of devout Buddhists, and the water in which the great man had bathed was sold at a good price to the crowd, who gladly paid for the privilege of being allowed to drink it, hoping thereby to secure a safe entrance to the Buddhist heaven. Superstitions attendant on the visit of a Buddhist priest.

Again, (3) Hiroshima is a garrison town, and those who have any experience of such towns in England will understand how this fact militates against rapid progress in Christian work here. At present the work is quite in an incipient state. We have not yet been able to find a second preaching-place, and there is no present prospect of meeting with one. In this respect the difficulty of the work as compared, say, with Tokio can scarcely be estimated by one who has not to face the difficulty.

Miss M. Sander and Miss A. C. Bosanquet arrived at Hiroshima seven months before Mr. Williams, in February, 1896, and thus were the first European missionaries of the Society to reside there. Work among Women was carried on by them with some difficulty on account of the strong prejudice of the women against Christianity. Some English Bible-classes for young men were formed with encouraging results, and the two ladies found many openings for work amongst the soldiers, both in the garrison and in the great military hospitals. Miss Bosanquet writes:—

There are two large military hospitals which Miss Sander and I visit, one for the garrison and one for sick and wounded from Formosa, Korea, Work in military hospitals.

or China. The largest numbers come from Formosa and are landed here to be nursed until able to go on to their own garrisons. I go at least once a week to this hospital, freely giving and lending Christian literature, and as yet there has never been the least difficulty or unpleasantness from that day last April when my Japanese helper and I first asked and obtained leave to go in with books, pictures, and flowers, and wandered with fear and trembling into the long rows of wooden wards. The Red Cross uniforms, so familiar at Hakone, helped me to feel at home, and that was the beginning of very interesting work. Among so many patients, always changing and passing away to distant places, one cannot become personally acquainted with all; but Christians, or men who wish to know more of our teaching, often introduce themselves and their friends; and men who stay long get to know us, and I have very nice letters and sometimes visits from them. There is no work which stirs one with deeper sorrow and sympathy for those who are "in darkness and the shadow of death." There are so many in these hospitals and the naval one at Kure (which we also visit) who have no sure and certain hope to support them in the long, weary days and nights.

Fukuyama.

Mrs. Edmonds (now at home), assisted so far as her language studies would allow by Miss H. S. Jackson, continued her labours at FUKUYAMA and its out-stations, Tomotsu and Fuchiu, and in the surrounding villages. The Christian community consists largely of women, some of whom have by their regular attendance in all weathers at the Sunday Bible-class shown signs of a real thirst for instruction. A small Sunday-school and a "flourishing gathering" during the week are held for the children. Students from the Middle School and boys from other schools in the town constantly visit the ladies. The small proportion of men who attend the church services conducted by a pastoral catechist is a source of sorrow to the workers, but the case of one old Christian man who passed away during the year is mentioned as "a ray of sunshine." He left directions that there should be within one week of his death three Christian sermons in his house. This was carried out, large audiences assembling on each occasion.

The dying wish of an old Christian.

Miss Jackson gives the following description of out-station and village work:—

Village evangelistic meetings.

The village meetings are very inspiriting; the people are so ready to listen to what is said; and though their ignorance and darkness fill one's heart with pity, it is a great joy to be able to stay after the address is over and have a little talk with those who seem most interested, for there are usually three or four who are wanting to talk afterwards. The largest meetings in the country that I have had the pleasure of in any way helping were at one of the out-stations last spring, when two Japanese workers gave addresses for three evenings in the theatre. The numbers increased from two hundred the first night to four hundred the last, and the attention throughout was splendid. I shall long remember one night—the address was on Christian Prayer. The earnest power of the speaker's words and the riveted attention of the audience made me deeply thankful if my presence had in any way contributed to drawing the people together. Another little incident in connexion with that visit may be of interest. Close by the hotel we stayed in was a temple-yard, where carpenters were busy with repairs. One night, at the close of their day's work, as they gathered round the wood fire and lighted their pipes, and I went down to tell them of the evening meeting, one man said, "Carpenters don't want Christianity." On answering, "But Christ Himself was a Carpenter," their attention was instantly arrested, and the change in their rough faces showed how willingly they listened.

MATSUYE.

"A far and wide preaching of the Gospel" was one leading feature of the work at MATSUYE during the past year. The Rev. B. Fowell Buxton writes:— Matsuye.

In the great cities, as well as in isolated houses far up among the mountains, Christ, and Him crucified, has been gladly preached as the salvation that exactly meets the case of every sinner. Some of the brothers have prepared short striking leaflets with illustrations which have been printed by the 5,000 or 10,000, and then they have been given away carefully and prayerfully. Sasao San has gone out burdened with them to the villages all along the sea coast. The people there are very degraded and bigoted. It has been very difficult work that no one but one who can pray would have attempted. There are very few inns to stay at, and they are of the lowest description, so going there in these winter months has had its bodily hardships. But he and any one else who goes with him always come back with joy—with a tale to tell of God's grace and guidance and power. Tract distribution.

In Matsuye itself aggressive work was carried on, often amid much opposition. Mr. Buxton says:—

For a long time we were holding meetings at the preaching-room every day. These have often been noisily interrupted, and sometimes stones and mud have been thrown till the doors and lamps have been demolished. But often there the Spirit of God has worked, and we have seen signs of the power of the Gospel. Then, all the early part of the summer we were preaching in the open air at Matsuye, till the head of the police issued orders for it to stop. So now we have to borrow or rent a shop-front and there hold our meetings. Meetings interrupted.

Mr. Buxton laments, however, the non-success at present of his efforts to evangelize the lowest classes of the population. With the exception of weekly visits paid by the ladies of his party to various "Beggar Villages," those whom the Gospel reaches belong chiefly to the educated classes, amongst whom there have been many cases of conversion. Of the Native Christians an encouraging account is given by Mr. Buxton:—

As for our little churches, their spirit just now seems to be very good. Many individuals have made real progress in the life of faith, and have begun to taste the blessedness of the Holy Ghost.

The week of prayer at the beginning of the year brought special blessing to Yonago and Hirose. We have had six evangelists' meetings during the year, each lasting three days. These have been seasons of special blessing. Besides the evangelists, some of the Christians from Matsuye and from the out-stations try to attend the meetings, and so I trust the blessing permeates all the work. Seasons of blessing.

Hamada was under the pastoral charge of the Rev. T. Makioka; Miss F. Fugill and Miss M. A. McClenaghan (now Mrs. H. G. Warren) having been the only European missionaries in residence Hamada.

there during 1896. Bishop Awdry, who visited the town in the course of an extensive autumn tour, wrote:—

Visit of Bishop Awdry.

On November 6th we reached Hamada, and were heartily welcomed by the ladies and the Native Christians. An address to the candidates for confirmation occupied that Friday evening, a welcome meeting the Saturday, at which we were nineteen Christians in all; and on Sunday, November 8th, I confirmed six persons who had been, I understand, Miss Fugill's class, and the nineteen adult Christians of the place all received the Holy Communion together. It was a happy day, and I hope full of blessing for Hamada, and a real step forward for the Church there.

In the evening Mr. Makioka and I preached to fifty or sixty persons, mostly young men, and on the whole very quiet and attentive. As it is said that in those parts they are generally very willing to hear of One God, the Creator, &c., but not of Jesus Christ our Lord, I chose as my subject, "His name shall be called Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins."

There are indications that the bitter opposition which the ladies have had to encounter is beginning to give way. Miss McClenaghan mentioned one encouraging sign:—

Work among boys.

For long after we came to Hamada the boys of the Commercial School, opposite our house, were our bitterest and most untiring opponents; now twelve of them—including the two head-boys of the two highest classes—are my pupils. Four afternoons in the week I have classes for English and the Bible, and more than once lately some of them have said, "We do not want English this afternoon, only the Bible!" One of them has, I believe, given himself to Christ, and is witnessing bravely for Him before his schoolfellows—no easy task; and others are, I think, earnestly inquiring after the Truth.

Miss McClenaghan's testimony to the Native Christians gives real cause for thanksgiving:—

Devoted Native Christians.

Most of all I should like to tell you of what a wonderful help some of the Native Christians have been to me in my own spiritual life. Never have I seen more whole-hearted consecration, more utter selflessness and "other-worldliness," more evident tokens of the indwelling power of the Holy Ghost, than I have seen in the last year in some of my Japanese brothers.

Masuda, twenty-five miles distant, is regarded as an outstation of Hamada, but could not be adequately worked by so small a staff. Miss McClenaghan wrote:—

I ask your earnest prayers for Masuda. There is a glorious door open for work there, if there were any one to take possession in the King's name. I feel especially strongly about it, because once the light of God's truth shone brightly there, and now the Heathen point a mocking finger at it, and say, "Where is the power of your God?"

The Rev. H. G. Warren, who was married as mentioned above to Miss McClenaghan in March, 1897, has been appointed resident missionary at Hamada.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima.

During the absence of the Rev. G. Chapman in England from April to December, 1896, the Rev. R. H. Consterdine, formerly of Matsuye, was appointed to take charge of the TOKUSHIMA station. He accompanied the catechists in their customary "Autumn Mission" in the surrounding country, an effort being made this time to carry the Gospel to places in a mountainous region hitherto unevangelized. Two of the party, travelling by "paths that seemed intended for wild cats rather than for men," succeeded in reaching the descendants of some fugitives who took refuge among the mountains of Awa after a great battle long ago on the main island. They listened willingly to the Message thus carried to them for the first time.

The Misses E. Ritson and E. M. S. Huhold continue their work in the city itself. The former had three Christian girls living in the house with her, two of whom were hoping to be trained as Bible-women. She mentions several interesting cases of conversion: a police official and his wife, both of whom were in the first instance brought under the influence of the Gospel through Japanese Christian friends; a student at the Normal School; and an old woman of eighty-seven. There was special encouragement in the work amongst schoolboys, regarding which Miss Ritson writes:—

There has been quite an awakening amongst the schoolboys this year. Two were baptized in April, and several others are studying the Bible and coming to one or other of our houses. Then, through these boys, doors have in several cases opened up into mothers' hearts, and so the leaven has been spreading. I often think what a joy it would be to those who take a special interest in schoolboys at home, if they could see some of these boys out here, sometimes two and three together of different schools, earnestly kneeling together in prayer. I think nothing has cheered me more than to see the growth of grace in the hearts of these and other of the new Christians.

A boy evangelist.

One boy who is to be baptized is from the large public "Middle School" in this town, a boy of about fourteen years of age. He came first to me to learn English, but has gradually become interested in the Gospel and now believes earnestly in Christ. He is now in his turn trying to lead smaller boys, and had a meeting of thirteen in his own home the other day, to whom he "preached" in a small way. He first gave them a feast of oranges and cakes out of his own pocket-money, and then addressed them on the subject of "arrows," which lesson I had talked over with him for the purpose a few days previously.

The ladies devote as much time as possible to house-to-house visiting, though the number of callers at their own houses often hinders this. Miss Huhold thus describes the great openings which have been granted to them:—

House-to-house visitation.

It is only with heart-aching that I can speak of my house-visiting, not that it was not great joy simply to sit with them and tell them of the loving heart of the Lord of the Universe; but my great grief is that I am quite unable to visit all those who ask me to come. I visit in three parts of Tokushima. Speaking of one part only, there are two hundred houses, and amongst these two hundred houses are only three who quite refuse my visiting and speaking to them, the reason of which is that the owner of the one is very rich, and, finding this life so agreeable, will not hear anything of eternity; the owner of the second will not hear anything which points out to him the badness of his ways and habits; and the owner of the third will not hear anything which speaks against his heathen pleasures and wine-parties. But these are only three amongst two hundred. The others all receive me gladly; the grievous part is only that it is quite impossible to visit so many satisfactorily and with success. I wish only I could ask for and get ten more ladies to visit the six hundred houses which are in my little district, for as the people do not know anything, they require such a lot of teaching and visiting to make them understand even a little.

Miss Huhold also found opportunities for influencing young men of the student class by undertaking to give them lessons in German—her native tongue—on condition that half the time was occupied in Christian teaching. She says:—

Lessons in German and Christian teaching.

Only one, a doctor, said that he would not learn German under this condition, and gave it up; but that was only one out of twelve. The first five were young men preparing to go to Tokio to the university. I had them altogether in a class. After having had six lessons they asked me to leave the German and to tell them the Bible only—which, of course, I was only too glad to do. Unfortunately, soon afterwards they had to leave Tokushima in order to proceed to their course of study. I have had since then very nice letters from them. The one wrote, "I shall never forget the Bible stories which you told us." Another wrote, "From now I shall be always willing to listen to the Bible." I trust that God will take care of His own seed in their hearts, that though, perhaps, now kept down by the pressure and pleasure of study, it will rise to bring eternal fruit in His own good time.

At present there are three school teachers of the two higher schools here in Tokushima, and a very famous doctor coming to my house. The doctor came at first to have his medical work, written in German, corrected by me. He, too, listens very well to the Bible. The first time I spoke to him of it he said, "Oh, if it is so, I will read the Bible!" Of course it is a great pleasure to me to read with a Japanese out here in Japan my own dear German Bible. This doctor and one of the school-teachers have decidedly the noblest characters of all the Japanese I ever met.

Out-stations.

Four out-stations are worked from Tokushima. Miss Huhold paid three visits of a week each to Muya, ten miles to the north, during the year, and came back every time "rejoicing" over the high standard reached by the Christians there notwithstanding the loneliness of their position. Kawashima lies sixteen miles to the west of Tokushima, Wakimachi, twelve miles further on in the same direction, and the double station of Tomioka and Horigo sixteen miles to the south. At the latter station "a slight movement in favour of the Plymouth Brethren views," which was a cause of some anxiety to the workers and of temporary division among the Christians, happily came to an end. Miss Ritson was much encouraged by some visits she made to various villages surrounding the out-stations, and to four others at greater distances. "It was well worth the long journey which we had to take to reach these villages," she writes, "to see the joy with which the people gathered together to hear the Gospel."

II. DIOCESE OF SOUTH TOKIO.

TOKIO.

Tokio. "In many ways and incidents, great and small," writes the Rev. W. P. Buncombe, at the close of his first year in Tokio, "God is showing us that His Hand is with us, I believe; and as I look forward to this second year's work here the prospect has much bright promise because of His promises, and because there is such a field here for work and witness." To the eye of sense the situation would probably not appear particularly encouraging. Miss O. Julius writes:—

Work on a small scale. People in England naturally think that the C.M.S. work in this great civilized city of Tokio, with its million and a quarter of inhabitants, its trains, 'buses, electric light, telephones, its regular police force, railway service, and postal regulations, must be on a very large scale and in a most flourishing condition; but if they could see our small, old church, reminding one of a cowshed, plaster falling off (from many an earthquake), and its Sunday congregation of about fifty Christians, almost entirely from quite the poorest classes, their idea would be considerably changed.

Miss K. M. Peacocke describes the difficulties from another standpoint:—

The Schools Anti-Christian. Tokio is essentially a student's city. There are said to be 100,000 of them here, and as these young men and women come from all parts of the country it would seem that one of the best ways of spreading the Gospel throughout Japan is by getting at them. This is not easy, as there is a wave of anti-Christian feeling passing over most of the schools. In some cases we hear that it is almost impossible for a Christian master or student to remain in them. Some few students worship the old gods still, but by far the greater number believe in nothing, and of those who are called Christians, many have very distorted views of Christianity. Unitarianism strongly appeals to the questioning Japanese mind, and "Let Him now come down from the cross, and we will believe in Him," is virtually the cry now, as of old.

Of the humble Congregation worshipping in St. Paul's Church, and of their pastor, Mr. Buncombe writes:—

Taken as a whole, they are a quiet, earnest, and constant body of Christians, with simple, child-like faith. The Rev. M. Tomita (deacon), the pastor, is a quiet, spiritual man, and has, I believe, been used by God very much to the members of the congregation.

Mr. Buncombe has the assistance of four native evangelists; one devotes himself chiefly to visiting, another has charge of the preaching-place at Tchizenbori, near one of the landing-places for steamers, and two have taken up their residence in the new Mission-house in that portion of the city known as the Ginza, where a Christian library and reading-room is being gradually established. There is also a preaching-place at Fukagawa. Mr. Buncombe makes earnest efforts to deepen the spiritual life of the native agents under his supervision. Besides special meetings held for them from time to time, and opportunity for attendance at the "Summer School" at Hamadera (a season of great blessing), he gathers them together for a Bible-class twice a week. Thirteen adults and two children were baptized at Tokio during the year. Work at the Out-stations was diligently carried on. In the Boshu District all the Christians are farmers, and some of them had to bear much persecution for conscience sake, but were enabled to stand firm. Six adults and one child were baptized during the year. Miss Julius thus describes a visit to the district :—

In the spring of this year I was at Boshu, one of our out-stations, situated at the entrance of the great Tokio Bay, which is reached by travelling for six hours in a tiny steamer carrying fish to Tokio from the various villages along the bay. An old catechist from here went with me, Fuyeki San, a most whole-hearted and earnest man. On arriving I put up at a village inn, and the next day visited some Christians, and had a meeting for children ; these were very easy to collect, for I was the first foreign lady ever seen there, so crowds of children followed, and from the door of the house of a Christian, the catechist of the place, Tanaka San, and I spoke to them of the true God, and though wild and untrained they listened very quietly. Then for four consecutive nights we held magic-lantern meetings in different places, altogether as many as 1,200 coming to listen; the subjects of the slides were a series on the Prodigal Son and a few on the Life of Our Lord.

A small but vigorous band of Christians.

We are feeling hopeful about the work at Boshu ; though there are not very many Christians, and they are much scattered, there is real vigour in them, and they now are about to build themselves a little church—some giving timber, others labour, all wishing to have a hand in helping, and about £20 from outside friends is all they will need.

At Ichiwa, a military station ten miles from Tokio, the small room in a back street, which was all that could be obtained for some years, has been exchanged for a good-sized house where evangelistic meetings are held regularly for both soldiers and civilians. There are one or two inquirers. An encouraging beginning has also been made at Misaki, a fishing town with about 4,000 or 5,000 inhabitants, situated at the entrance to the Tokio Bay, one of the leading men there having expressed himself as anxious to establish regular Christian teaching in the place. The Rev. H. Woodward and Miss K. M. Peacocke are still pursuing the study of the language. The former has, however, found opportunities for influencing two native gentlemen, and the latter has begun to visit amongst the women.

GIFU.

Gifu.

"GIFU," writes the Rev. H. J. Hamilton, "is, I imagine, the only C.M.S. station in which two of the Colonial Associations unite with the C.M.S. in providing the foreign staff." Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton represent the Canadian Association, Miss E. C. Payne is from England, and Miss Pasley represents the New Zealand Association. Commenting upon this, Mr. Hamilton observes :—

It must be an instructive fact to some of the Japanese who do not believe in the universality of our religion to see Christians from Europe, America

Australasia, and Asia uniting together with one accord in one place in the worship of the One God.

Europe, America, Australasia, and Asia represented by the C.M.S. labourers at one station.

Although Mr. Hamilton was not able to take up his residence at Gifu until May, 1896, he was already familiar with the place and with the workers, having visited it from time to time during the absence in England of the Rev. A. F. Chappell, who has now retired. In July, 1896, began a series of disasters. Following closely upon some rather serious floods came "the worst typhoon known for many years," which caused some loss of life, and seriously damaged many buildings, Gifu church amongst them. Less than a fortnight later arose more floods, far more destructive than the first. The three towns of Ogoki, Imao, and Takasu, all C.M.S. out-stations, suffered most severely; 2,348 houses in them were washed away, 1,579 fell, and 146 lives were lost. Bishop Bickersteth at once visited the district and exerted himself most successfully to obtain relief for the sufferers. Signs are not wanting that these terrible calamities have been a message to many souls. Mr. Hamilton writes :—

rendering people more willing listeners of the Gospel.

Terrible though the calamity was, I believe God's good Hand will bring real blessing out of it for the people who have suffered. Such a wholesale destruction of property, and that of the securest kind, has turned the thoughts of many to the surer, more lasting things of the unseen world. The people of the flooded districts, as our Japanese brethren say, "are thinking very deeply," and have become more willing listeners to the truths we try to teach. And then again they are touched by the readiness of Christians to give a helping hand to the needy, even though far away and unknown, and are more inclined to listen to a religion that has shown itself by deeds as well as by words to be one of kindliness and love.

The Misses Payne and Pasley engage in evangelistic work amongst the women and children. There was an average attendance of ten at a meeting held by them for non-Christian women, and they found an entrance into many homes. A small Sunday-school is also conducted by them in their own house. Five native ladies, whose husbands received regular Bible instruction during the year, gathered together week by week for Christian teaching. For some time there has been no resident catechist in Imao, but one of the three newly-appointed catechists at Gifu has volunteered for the work there—a definite answer to prayer.

NAGOYA.

Nagoya.

Nagoya is the fourth city in the empire, with a population of 200,000 souls. The Rev. J. C. Robinson, of the Canadian Association, is in charge. The following is the programme of work :—

In the city we have two places where there is a service for Christians, a Sunday-school for heathen children, and an evangelistic meeting for unbelievers every Sunday, as well as a prayer-meeting every Wednesday evening, and another evangelistic meeting every Thursday evening. We have also two out-stations at which one meeting is regularly held every week, and sometimes additional ones. My own work is divided as equally as possible between these four places. I preach at one Christian service every Sunday and every two weeks at both, and regularly to the Heathen three times a week. I have also a Bible-class every Sunday morning, and attend a prayer-meeting, at which I give an address, every Wednesday evening.

The work at Nagoya is beset with difficulties. Mr. Robinson thus comments upon some of them:—

We do not meet with open opposition and persecution as we did some years ago, but a desire to be rich or great, according to the standard of the world, seems to have taken possession of a great majority of the people, so that those who appear to care about religion at all are very few. A spirit of coldness seems to have fallen on the Church members generally, so that the pastors and catechists do not receive the support from them that is due.

One great difficulty that we meet with is that of Christians contracting marriages with Heathen. Several such cases have occurred here, and in every instance of which I know, with the exception of one, the result has been disastrous to the Christian.

Strong tide against Christianity.

There being a garrison of four or five thousand men here, we come into contact with a good many soldiers, who, in the recent war with China, won for themselves the reputation of being brave. Doubtless they are brave in many respects, especially when associated together in companies, but not in the way of individually confessing Christ before men and declaring their allegiance to Him. The general tide against Christianity seems to be particularly strong in Nagoya, and several members of the Church, some of them officers who have come to us from other places where they were considered earnest Christians, have, with one or two exceptions, soon given way before the jeers and opposition of their companions.

The resources of Mr. Robinson's Home for the Destitute, of which mention was made in last year's Report, were taxed to the utmost in consequence of the disastrous floods which visited the district in the autumn of 1896. Twelve aged people and seventeen boys were inmates of the Home at the end of the year, and three of the former were baptized during the year. Miss E. M. Trent engaged in house-to-house visiting amongst the women of the town, and met with a kindly reception from several officers' wives, although her message was for the most part received with indifference. Miss M. M. Young, who arrived at Nagoya in January, 1896, was able, while engaged in language-study, to give some assistance in a night-school for boys and young men.

TOYOHASHI.

Toyohashi

The Rev. J. M. Baldwin was transferred from Nagoya to open work at TOYOHASHI in November, 1896. He gives the following description of the place:—

A new station.

Toyohashi is a thriving town which is rapidly rising in importance, situated on the main line of railway between Tokio and Kobe, and about forty-five miles to the south-east of Nagoya, and on the eastern borders of the prefecture of Aichi. It is also a garrison town and is to be the southern terminus of the Toyokawa Railway which is in course of construction, and the first section of which, about eighteen miles in length, is expected to be opened some time during the present year.

The population of Toyohashi and the immediate neighbourhood is about 20,000, while within a radius of ten miles of the town we have a population of at least 180,000 souls in villages varying in population from a few hundred to four or five thousand souls. The number of these villages within the three municipal districts grouped around Toyohashi is, according to statistics, eighty-three.

Thus you will see that we are within easy reach of a population of some 200,000 souls, which, by the way, is just a third of the whole population of Mikawa, the province in which Toyohashi is situated.

The Christian Kenji (Crown prosecutor) of the town, although himself a Methodist, gave Mr. Baldwin a warm welcome, and afterwards rendered him valuable assistance. The people of Toyohashi are less bigoted, and therefore more approachable, than those at Nagoya, and the attendance of Heathen at the preachings was decidedly encouraging.

III. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

THE Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Fuller came home in July, 1896; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. Hind and Miss G. Nott in May, 1897.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki.

Bishop Evington made himself responsible, during the Rev. A. R. Fuller's absence on furlough, for the superintendence of the work at NAGASAKI and its out-stations. He was assisted during the autumn by the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, of Fukuoka, who was obliged to bring Mrs. Hutchinson to the city for medical treatment. The Bishop cannot report much visible progress in the work at the station. He says:—

Slow progress.

In the city of Nagasaki our progress is still slow; only a few have been added to the Church by baptism, and the attendance at the evangelistic services, both in Trinity Church and the preaching-place, is small. One after another of the catechists in Shindaiku Machi has lost heart; and after much thought and consultation with Mr. Fuller I have set before the catechist, Mr. Matsuoka, who has lately taken charge of the preaching-place, the prospect of forming a separate congregation, in the hope that thereby greater energy may be called forth and more encouragement felt.

Girls' Boarding School.

Six adults were baptized during the year—one a telegraph clerk, who was led to Christ through attending Miss B. J. Allen's English Bible-class. The Girls' Boarding School, under Mrs. Harvey, continues to do a valuable work. Miss Allen, who conducted a weekly Bible-class for the girls, writes:—

The work in this little Home is carried on entirely by Mrs. Harvey, with no other help than a Japanese teacher for two hours in the afternoon, and the children repay her unwearied care with devoted loyalty and affection. Last summer, when the hearts of all the Japanese were stirred by the great calamity of the tidal wave, the children begged to be allowed to give up their

Sunday cake (their one "luxury" in the week), in order that they might send the money thus saved to the relief of the sufferers. This even the quite little ones did cheerfully for several weeks, and with the help of some sunflowers from the garden that Mrs. Harvey allowed them to sell, they succeeded at last in raising the sum of five dollars, to their great delight.

Cheerful self-denial on the part of children.

On another occasion they all joyfully forewent the pleasure of receiving their usual Christmas presents, in order that they might have instead some flannel to make shirts for their countrymen in the late war. I wonder how many of our more favoured children at home would be ready to do the same? It is very, very cheering, too, to know that the good seed sown in the Home bears rich fruit in after-life; the girls trained under Mrs. Goodall's care are well known as among the best and most earnest Christian wives and teachers at work in Kiu-shiu.

Miss Allen thus describes the opportunities afforded by boat-travelling in Japan:—

Work for Christ on a coasting steamer.

It seems as if there hardly could be a better opportunity for literally "itinerant" missionary work. The passengers have, of course, plenty of leisure, and come eagerly round a foreigner to hear what the stranger has to say. My thoughts often go back to that quiet evening under the starlight sky. It is a very motley group. There is the square-faced agnostic with the decided chin, who says bluntly that he does well enough without religion: the concerns of this life are quite enough for him. Next comes an elderly man, looking like a Buddhist priest, with head completely shaved; he has read the Bible through from Genesis to Revelation, and is full of argumentative objections as to the appearances of angels, God's will being made known to man by means of dreams, &c. Then there is a boy, whose face haunts me as he looks up from his crouching attitude on the deck, with his shining, wistful eyes, and listens eagerly as he learns that he too may speak in prayer to the unknown Father, God. Lastly, there is a quiet, gentle youth, who owns sadly that he has known it all for eight years, but through fear of man he has never openly owned himself a Christian, and so has become a backslider. He came on to Nagasaki, and was here for a few weeks with his master, a silk merchant, on business. He came often to this house, and bought a Bible, I am thankful to say, and began to pray and attend church regularly. Best of all, his master, a Christian, whose acquaintance I made afterwards, told me that his life was much changed. He left me with the earnest purpose of offering himself for baptism on his return to Kyoto; but his family are strongly opposed to Christianity, and he will have much to contend with. Pray, oh! pray for him, for me, and for us all.

Miss E. M. Keen, while devoting the greater part of her time to language study, was able to influence several individuals who desired instruction in English. One, a school teacher, was baptized in November.

Kagoshima.

Of Kagoshima, Miss Hunter-Brown, of the New Zealand Association, writes, at the conclusion of her first year of residence in that town:—

A dead congregation.

In the dead Church there (taken as an organized body of believers), life has become so wholly extinct that the very corpse has crumbled away into a handful of dust, leaving at present (exclusive of the catechist's and our households, who are all from the north) one regular church-goer, out of the 130 or 140 names once on the roll of baptized members.

This has not been altogether sudden. In 1886 Mr. Maundrell wrote, "Kagoshima is low in number, low in knowledge, low in means." When, a year or two ago, the names of members were reviewed, ninety names were struck off, and as a proof that no undue severity was exercised in that revision, one of the names allowed to remain on the list was that of a man who has only been to church once in the last twelve months.

Miss Hunter-Brown and Miss Cockram, however, see some gleams of light amidst the darkness. The former mentions one applicant for baptism, and the latter tells of hopeful work in connexion with a night-school for young men, organized by two Native Christian judges and others.

Miss Hunter-Brown closes her Annual Letter with an expression of strong confidence and hope:— "Waiting for glad days."

We are waiting for glad days here, with a hope that is more than hope, that is certainty, for we know in Whom we have believed. And when those glad days are come, and you hear of souls here saved and living to His glory, your rejoicing will be all the deeper, because you have known of the ruin and sin within the Church, the ignorance and indifference without, which characterize Kagoshima now.

Bishop Evington twice visited the Loo Choo Islands, and was encouraged at the progress made there under a newly-appointed catechist.

FUKUOKA.

"The year which has just closed," writes the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, "has been one of reaction. Interest in religious matters, which had almost died out, has been gradually reviving; accordingly well-grounded hopefulness is the characteristic of Christ's workers on every hand." Indications of this "reaction" were afforded during a visit paid by Mr. Mott to FUKUOKA. To the surprise of the European missionaries, Mr. Mott gained admission to the Middle School at Fukuoka, and was permitted to address about three hundred students there. Mr. Hutchinson writes:— Fukuoka. Revival of interest in Christianity.

These facts point to a stirring of the minds of the student class in the direction of religion, inquiry which will, we trust, result ere long in real conversions. There is a manifest willingness to hear patiently what we have to say for Christ and Christianity. Pray that we may all have grace and wisdom given us to enable us to "buy up the opportunity."

Two new preaching-places have been opened in Fukuoka, and the native pastor, the Rev. G. Watanabe, began to visit regularly in a group of villages in the neighbourhood. The Soldiers' Rest is warmly appreciated by the class for whose benefit it is intended, having been visited by about one hundred men every month. Miss E. A. P. Sells, who has been joined by Miss F. M. Freeth, finds that the children and young people respond far more readily to her efforts to reach them than is the case with the women. Very few of the latter attend the weekly meeting in the ladies' house, although they are regularly reminded of it beforehand.

The Out-stations under Mr. Hutchinson's supervision are Kurume, Oyamada, and Saga. At Kurume there were four Out-stations.

baptisms during the year, and a policeman and his wife were under instruction for baptism.

The district under the Rev. J. Hind's supervision is eighty-five miles from east to west, and includes several towns of some importance, notably the old feudal castle town of Kokura, with 25,000 inhabitants, now the headquarters of the army in Kiu-Shiu. Great assistance was given in the work there by an earnest Christian banker, formerly of Fukuoka. Two adults and two children, the first-fruits of Kokura, were baptized in December. The former catechist of the Imajiku district now resides principally at Karatsu, an important seaport town in the extreme west of Mr. Hind's district. There is one catechumen at Zassho. Earnest work has been done by the catechist in that part of the district in which Kotake, Nogata, &c., are situated. The sale of Scripture portions has risen, and, at Nogata especially, the prospect is decidedly brighter.

Mr. Hind has completed during the year the translation of Archbishop Trench's Parables of our Lord into Japanese.

KUMAMOTO.

Kumamoto.

"Steady progress," the Rev. J. B. Brandram considers, was made at KUMAMOTO during the past year. At the beginning of 1896 he had not the assistance of a single C.M.S. catechist, but at the close of the year there were three at work. A new preaching-place in an excellent position—the desire of Mr. Brandram's heart for many years past—was opened, at which two weekly services are held in addition to those in the church and at the Leper Hospital. This hospital continues to do a very blessed work under the care of Miss H. Riddell and Miss G. Nott (the latter now at home). Warm testimony to its value was given by Mrs. Bishop, the well-known traveller, in her interview with the Parent Committee in April, 1897. The first three baptisms at the Hospital took place on Christmas Day. Work amongst Women is also carried on by Miss Riddell and Miss Nott, who have been joined by Miss A. Wright, a niece of the former, during her study of the language. A Bible-class and Dorcas meeting are held for the Christian women. Several women were baptized during the year, amongst them a very earnest girl of nineteen, who had to encounter much opposition.

Leper Hospital.

The Rev. H. L. Bleby refers to the hardness of heart and apathy of the people in OITA, and the surrounding district, and he had to bear the sorrow caused by the defection of three Christian men, one of whom, however, afterwards showed hopeful signs of true penitence. On the other hand, Mr. Bleby is able to report a slight increase in the number of Christians at Oita, and there were catechumens under instruction when he wrote. Preaching was systematically carried on at Beppu, Tomioka, Hinga, Miyazaki, Mimitsu, and Soki, and a long-sought opportunity was granted for opening work at Totoro, the port of Nobeoka. Imai San, the much-respected catechist at Nobeoka, died on May 25th, and was succeeded by an experienced catechist from Kagoshima. The work in that town has been, Mr. Bleby says, "fruitless to all outward appearance," but he speaks hopefully of the future prospects there.

IV. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

Bishop and Mrs. Fyson reached Hakodate on December 12th, 1896. Miss A. M. Tapson returned to the Mission in December, 1896.

HAKODATE.

The Rev. W. Andrews, of Hakodate, observes a decided reaction, since the war, in favour of Christianity. His varied work includes the pastoral charge of Hakodate, the training of Preparandi students, ten in number, and the oversight of a large district containing twelve out-stations. Another duty which lies very near his heart is the editing of the Northern Sea Light, a magazine for Native Christians, which reaches 600 people every month, and which, he considers, "does the work of several catechists." The largest gathering of workers ever held in Hakodate took place in the summer, when over forty assembled for a series of devotional meetings. Mr. Andrews wrote :— Hakodate.

> We were most thankful to have the assistance of our brother Buncombe from Tokio. . . . Many of the workers went back to their homes with a blessing. Perhaps such meetings are never so difficult to arrange so as to please every one as they are in this unique country. But He was glorified, and we are content.

In the following November the Chihokai (Japanese Church Conference) met in the same place. Fifteen delegates were present, and Mr. Andrews writes thankfully of the prominence given to the question of self-support, and of the desire shown to appreciate their Church privileges and to follow out the canons and the laws of the Sei Ko Kwai. The Ainu Training School continues under the superintendence of Mr. C. Nettleship. Three former pupils were admitted to Mr. Andrews' class for student catechists, where they take their place side by side with Japanese students. An itinerating tour in the neighbourhood of Urakawa, made by Mr. and Mrs. Nettleship and three of their pupils during the summer holidays of 1896, resulted in the baptism of five persons, all of whom renounced their Inao (sacred willow-wands and shavings used as offerings to the gods), and voluntarily. Ainu Training School.

took upon themselves "the reproach of Christ." Mr. Nettleship says:—

"The reproach of Christ."

> Amongst the Ainu, to be described "a man without Inao" is indicative of a man in the deepest depths of humiliation, wallowing in the mire of utter disgrace and reprobacy; therefore, though many believe and would fain be baptized might they but "put the new wine in the old bottles" by retaining their Inao and adding Christianity to the rites pertaining thereto, yet it is very few who in the sweet heedlessness of faith's desperation dare to come out, casting aside the Inao, taking to themselves the Cross of Christ and its bitter reproach. For the women it is easy, as they are not supposed to have any religion any way; for the young men and boys it is comparatively easy too; but for the old men and the responsible heads of households it is very, very hard indeed.

The boys go by turns to the Kushiro district for three months' training in practical Christian work, and, with one sad exception, have given much satisfaction to those under whose supervision they have laboured.

Out-stations.

Of the out-stations a cheering report is for the most part given. At Emmanuel Village the twenty Sei Ko Kwai Christians built themselves a little church. Mr. Andrews observes:—

Sabbath observance.

> Sunday is well kept in this village; no one thinks of doing any work. All get up later, don their best clothes, and come to church for service at ten, and stay in the church till twelve or one. The service proper lasts an hour, but religious talk, &c., keeps them afterwards. The Sunday-school, too, is generally going on while the adults are having their talk. In the evening there is another service. I was told that, however fine the day, no one would ever go out into the fields for work. I do pray that this great regard for the Sabbath may have a good effect on other Christians in Hokkaido.

The population of Otaru, a seaport town, has increased very rapidly during the past four years, and has now reached 30,000. Indeed it bids fair, at its present rate of growth, to rival Hakodate. A Mission School was established during the year. The Rev. T. Ogawa made an itinerating tour in the districts of Otaru and Tokachi during May and June, 1896, and also gave valuable assistance in lecturing to the Preparandi students. Esashi, with 15,000 inhabitants, is a stronghold of Buddhism, and fanatical feeling ran so high that it was long before the catechist was allowed to hang a notice-board outside his house. The strong desire of some of the people to learn English may, however, Mr. Andrews hopes, be made a means of breaking down prejudice. Work is also being carried on at Obhiro, Urakewa, Mori, and Ono; at the last-mentioned place the Roman Catholic opposition is very pronounced.

Miss M. Laurence has been transferred from Hakodate to Sapporo.

SAPPORO.

Sapporo.

The Rev. J. Batchelor has the happiness of reporting that ninety-four Ainu Christians were added to his flock during the year, bringing the total number up to 664; 139 others being under instruction for baptism. The Hospital Rest continues to be a useful adjunct of the work. During the year under review 138 sick persons, and about fifty of their friends, were received into it for longer or shorter periods. Hospital Rest.

Itinerating work was carried on by Mr. Batchelor whenever opportunity offered, and he gives a happy report of open doors and open hearts on all sides :—

There has been no flagging of interest in the Good News, and crowds always come, whenever there is preaching, to hear the Gospel message. In fact, the people are quite discouraged in some places whenever one is unable to spend a night in their village and preach to them. It is almost impossible sometimes to get any rest, as the following incident will show. One evening at Usu—the evening on which I arrived there, in fact, and after a walk of sixteen miles—thirty Ainu came at nine o'clock for an address and prayer-meeting. As soon as that was over, preparations were made for retiring, but lo! at ten o'clock another party, consisting of twelve Ainu, presented themselves for the meeting. As they had come from a neighbouring village, a mile away, there was nothing for it but to start afresh and hold a second meeting for them. This being finished rest was again sought; but not yet! for another company of nine appeared on the scene at 11 p.m., and a third meeting had to be held to satisfy them. Strange as it may seem, one never feels tired on such occasions, and though sleep at those times wants but little wooing, one never feels the worse for the exertion on getting up the next morning. "Almost impossible to get any rest."

The work at Sapporo, however, is not carried on exclusively amongst the Ainu. There are now 114 Japanese Christians in the district, of whom twelve were baptized during the year. One striking instance of conversion through the Written Word is given by Mr. Batchelor :—

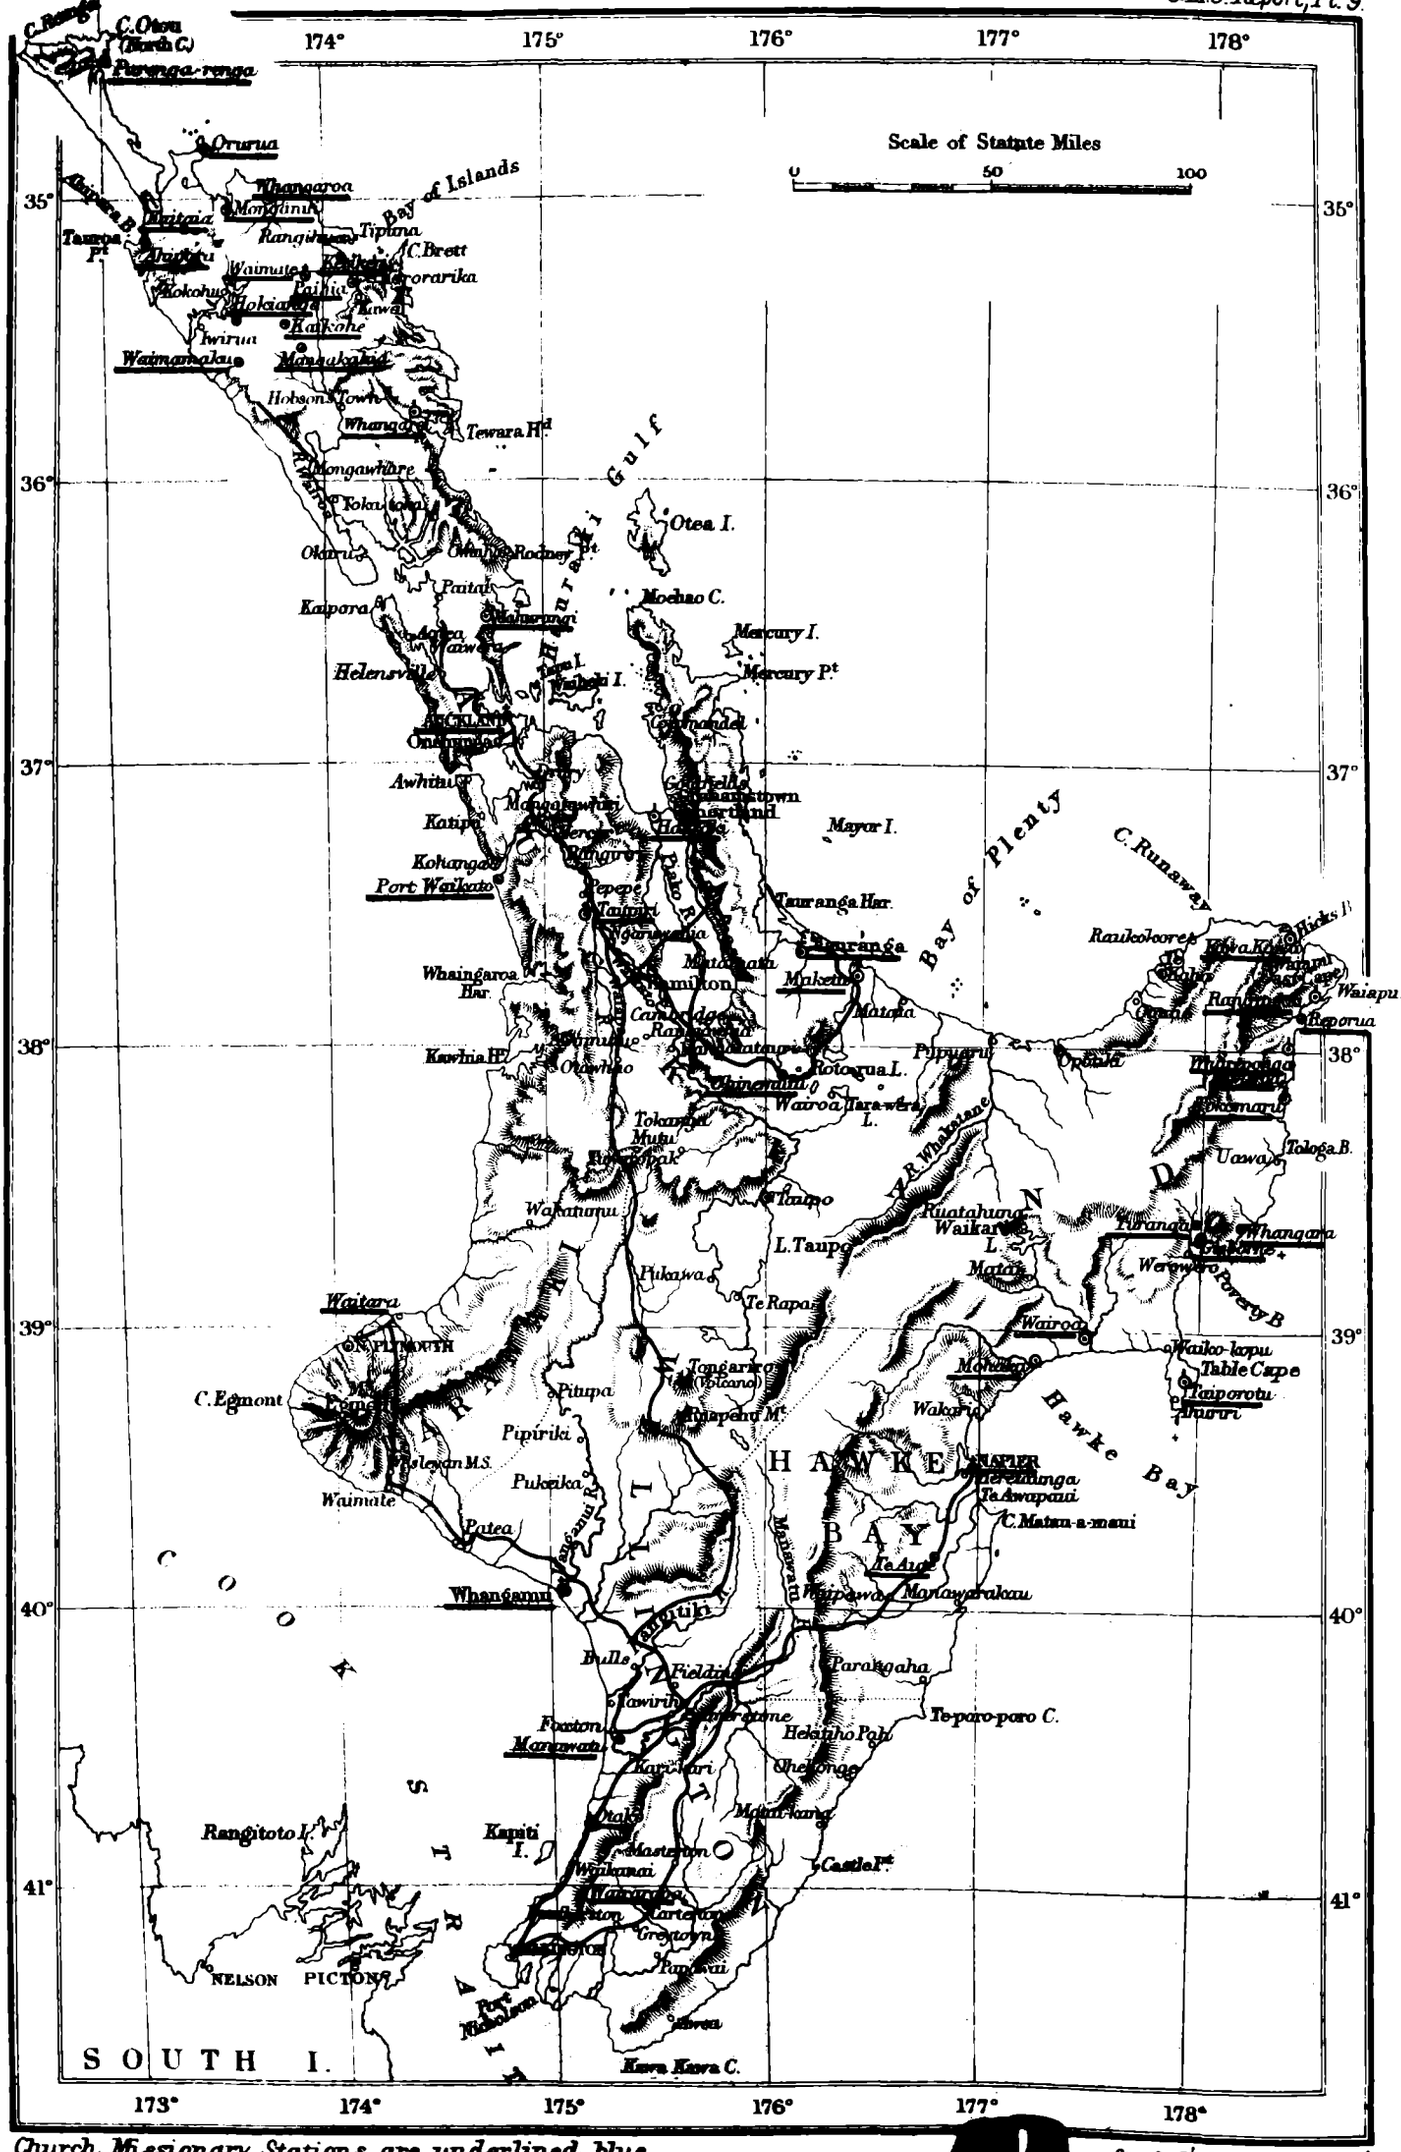
There is a schoolmaster in a certain village in my district who has been for several years a serious and earnest Buddhist. Early last spring this gentleman asked me to exhibit a magic-lantern to his school-children and to lecture on temperance, but by no means to say anything about Christianity. I agreed to this, but spoke a few of the Master's words to him alone in private. I also sent him a New Testament. He has read that Testament. Before he had got far this quiet reading of these simple words of Christ alone, without any human comment whatever, caused him by the gracious Spirit's working to weep and mourn for his sins! As a Buddhist he thought he had no sins; but by reading "the Word" he discovered he had. It was a wonderful change, but not surprising to them who know Christ; and so, like Bunyan's Pilgrim, for weeks he could do nothing but weep and pray alternately; but now he sees the light and weeps not for his sins but for joy. He is now as earnest a Christian as he was before a Buddhist. When this man determined to ask for baptism, his wife, who was also an ardent Buddhist, asked him to divorce her. But now, through his prayers and tears, she too, I hear, after weeping and praying for peace, now rejoices; she has, indeed, asked to be also admitted into the Church by baptism. Surely "the Word of God is quick and powerful"; and it is these moral miracles which go so far towards proving the truth of our religion. Conversion through the Written Word.

The Rev. G. C. Niven was engaged in the difficult task of mastering a second language, it being considered desirable that he should have a knowledge of Japanese as well as of Ainu. He found time, however, to do much useful work, in Mr.

Batchelor's absence, amongst the patients at the Hospital Rest, and also conducted an English Bible-class for students from the Agricultural College, "though the attendance only numbers seven," he writes, "and despite the fact that their sole motive is to hear the English, this is an opportunity for which I am very thankful."

Miss M. Laurence, transferred from Hakodate, is working amongst the women and children.

KUSHIRO.



Kushiro. The Rev. D. Marshall Lang took up his permanent residence at Kushiro soon after the lamented death of his wife on October 1st, the state of her health having compelled him previously to make Hakodate his headquarters. Miss Payne, for some years the only European C.M.S. worker in residence at Kushiro, has the superintendence of the Japanese Girls' School in the town, which has been enlarged, and now accommodates thirty-four pupils, of the Ainu School at Harutori, and of smaller schools for boys and girls (chiefly Ainu) at Tongkeshi, Moshiruga, and Toro. The funds for these village schools are raised largely through her own efforts. In visiting them many opportunities are found for individual influence and tract-distribution, and Miss Payne is assisted in this work by the eldest pupil at Harutori, who acts as her Bible-woman, and by an Ainu lad from the Training Home at Hakodate.

NEW ZEALAND (NORTH ISLAND)

C.M.S. Report, Pl. 9

NEW ZEALAND MISSION.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers, in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. For eleven years no results were seen. The first conversion took place in 1825, and no other Natives were baptized for five years. Then began the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led Bishop Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony, and emigration on a large scale ensued. The vices as well as the benefits of civilization were introduced, and the inevitable conflict of race began. The continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundations. In 1864 arose the "Pai Marire" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread rapidly among the Natives. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminish annually, and will cease (subject to personal claims) in a few years.

I. DIOCESE OF AUCKLAND.

Deaths of Revs. F. T. Baker, and W. Turipona.

The death of the Rev. Frederick Thomas Baker took place on July 23rd, 1896. Mr. Baker was born in New Zealand and educated at St. John's College, Auckland. He was admitted to deacon's orders in 1873, and to priest's orders in 1875, and he was taken into local connexion with the Society in 1876.

The Rev. Wiremu Turipona, pastor of Hauraki, died on September 24th, 1896, at the age of seventy-five years, having embraced Christianity at the age of sixteen. He was admitted to deacon's orders by the present Bishop of Auckland in 1872, being the first Maori clergyman to be ordained by him. He had an accident in 1890 which incapacitated him for travelling, but he was able until four months before his death to conduct the services in his church. Archdeacon Clarke writes:—

> It is not possible fully to estimate his loss, for of all our Maori clergy there was none more earnest and judicious than himself. His Christian life and devotion to duty won the respect and affection of all who knew him, whether Maori or European.

Ordinations.

The Bishop of Auckland admitted the Revs. H. N. Paerata and R. Ngatote to priests' orders at Kaitaia in March, 1896, and the Revs. T. Hapimana and N. Tautau also to priests' orders at Auckland, in May. The Bishop of Waiapu admitted Mr. Hare Maihi Ruarangi, Mr. Timoti Kiriwi, and Mr. Tiopira Paerata to deacons' orders for the Bishop of Auckland on December 20th. During the year 140 candidates were confirmed by the Bishop.

Meetings of Native Church Board.

A Native Church Board of the Archdeaconry of Waimate was held at Waimamuku in January, 1896, and attended by all the native clergy, and fourteen out of nineteen of the lay representatives. For the first time, a Native Church Board was held during the year in the King Country, at Otorohanga, in April, 1896. Archdeacon Clarke writes that the latter occasion was one of wondering thankfulness to him and others who have watched the work carried on in this district under the most discouraging circumstances.

Decrease of Maori population.

The census of 1896 shows a material decrease in the Maori population. In 1891 it was estimated at 41,303—less by 270 than in 1886 ; and in 1896 it was 39,805—a further decrease of 1,490. Moreover, 3,512 of the 39,805 are half-caste. Archdeacon Clarke writes in terms of despair of any improvement in this respect. The total population of the islands in 1891 was 626,658, so that the Natives are less than one in fifteen of the white population.

Deficient in sustained liberality.

The Archdeacon looks forward with anxiety to the day, rapidly approaching, when the Society's grant will cease, and the Native Church will be left to its own resources. Sustained liberality is a grace, he says, of which the Maori are sadly deficient, and the duty of self-support has yet to be learned. Some thirty years ago they made considerable efforts to make up pastoral endowments of from £200 to £400 in order to secure the services of resident ministers, but since then little has been done to augment the funds. The clergy as a whole, the Archdeacon says, are fairly active, and the congregations and communicants keep up in numbers. A church was completed at Waikare, where some time since a number of the Christians joined the Mormons, but they have seen their error and returned to the Church. The work among the lapsed Christians in the "King Country" is zealously and successfully carried on by the Revs. T. Hapimana and N. Tautau. The Archdeacon writes :—

Work among lapsed Christians.

> They are welcomed everywhere, but as yet nothing has been done in the way of organization to ensure systematic teaching, holding regular lay services, and making provision for places of worship. There are only two lay teachers capable of imparting religious instruction. There is still a scarcely disguised feeling of unrest abroad. The people are so distracted by land courts, the action of the Government, the legislation of their so-called "king," as to be unable to pay much regard to their spiritual interests. In the meantime there is no opposition.

The "King," on his visit to his followers in the Bay of Plenty, insisted on one of the pastors accompanying him as his chaplain—a tacit avowal of his having returned to the profession of Christianity. Of the older pastors, the Rev. H. Tarawhiti, of Upper Waikato, is a confirmed invalid, and the Rev. H. Moanaroa has become totally blind from cataract, and was at Auckland undergoing treatment for several months of the year.

Though over seventy he is still "wonderfully vigorous." The principal tribe in Waikato, the Ngatimaniapoto, are being demoralized by drink, indulgence in which many regard as a civilized habit, and not inconsistent with the profession of Christianity.

II. DIOCESE OF WAIAPU.

Visit to England of Bishop Williams.

Bishop Leonard Williams came to England in April, 1897, and was one of the speakers at the Society's Anniversary the following month. He was welcomed by the Committee on April 27th, on the same day as Bishop Burdon, of China, and it was an interesting coincidence that they had both sailed for their respective Missions in the same year, 1853, within a few weeks of each other. Bishop Williams has not visited England since that year. He was born in New Zealand in 1829, and baptized at the first public baptismal service ever held in the country, along with several Maori children. The first public baptism of adults followed a few weeks later. The catechumens appear to have wished their children to be baptized before themselves. One private adult baptism had taken place in 1825, and there had been no other before that in 1829. Bishop Williams' father, the Rev. William Williams, became afterwards the first Bishop of Waiapu. He was succeeded by Bishop Stuart, now in Persia, and in 1895 Archdeacon Leonard Williams was selected by the diocese to be the third Bishop. His mother, who had gone out with her husband in 1825, was still alive when her son succeeded to the episcopate. She was taken to her rest on October 6th, 1896, at the age of ninety-five.

Death of widow of first Bishop of Waiapu.

A united meeting of the three Native Church Boards of the Diocese was held in March, 1896, at Manutukea, near Gisborne. These united gatherings take place every three years, and are attended by the Bishop and European missionaries, the native clergy, and the native lay representatives. The other two years each archdeaconry holds its own meeting.

Ordinations.

Bishop Williams admitted the Revs. P. Te Awarau, A. Rangi, and H. Pahewa to priests' orders at Manutukea on December 20th, 1896, and on the same day, as already mentioned, three men were admitted to deacons' orders for work in the Diocese of Auckland. Archdeacon Clarke, of Auckland Diocese, preached the sermon. On a previous date, official notice of which has not been received, Mr. Ratema Te Awa was admitted to deacon's orders.

Gisborne Training Institution.

All the above were or had been students of the Training Institution at Gisborne, under the Rev. H. W. Williams, and the Bishop wrote of them all as men of great promise, who gave good reason to hope that they would prove effective instruments in the Master's Hand for the extension of His Kingdom among the Maori people. An "Old Boys' Association" was about to be formed when the Principal, the Rev. A. F. Williams, wrote his Annual Letter in November, to bind together former pupils of Te Aute College; this was to be inaugurated by a conference to discuss matters affecting the welfare of the Maori race "spiritually, physically, morally, and socially." The two junior Maori masters of the College started a weekly paper with the object of promoting the true interest of the Maoris, and Mr. Williams says that some able and excellent articles have appeared in it on the present condition of the Maori race and Maori Church, recognizing the spiritual deadness and social evils that exist, and calling upon the readers of the paper to do all they can by prayer, example, and earnest effort for the amelioration of the Maoris' condition. One of the articles was on the Three Years' Enterprise. These efforts Mr. Williams rightly judges to be specially hopeful as coming from the Maoris themselves. Mr. Williams visits regularly an extensive district embracing numerous congregations, and his views on their spiritual state are thus expressed:—

Te Aute College.

Nominal Christianity.

> The attendances at services have, as a rule, been good and well maintained, but there is still deplorable spiritual deadness everywhere.
>
> A nominal Christianity has taken the place of what I believe was real spiritual life in the case of the old Maoris, and this has gone on for so long now that most of the Native Christians seem to think that so long as they have the karakia, or "worship," that is all that is necessary. And unfortunately, I think, the same word karakia is used in the Scriptures for "religion" and "godliness" as well as "worship," and, as far as I can gather, the original karakia meant the incantations of the heathen tohunga, or priests. I have been preaching everywhere on the subject in the hope of showing them the difference, and the necessity for real life and godliness.

The Rev. H. W. Williams, of Gisborne, gives an account of the opening of a new church at Te Horo. He writes:—

Opening of a new church.

> The meeting presented many points of encouragement. There must have been over a thousand Maoris present, who listened attentively to addresses from Mr. G. Maunsell, several of the Maori clergy, the College students, and myself. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the meeting was the collection made on Friday afternoon to pay off the balance of the cost of the church, and provide a house for the minister. I was appointed teller, and given a table on which the representatives of the different parishes deposited their respective collection. The total amount contributed was £311 7*s.* 6*d.*, including £100 collected in the parish, £50 from the adjacent parish of Tuparoa, £40 from Whareponga, and so on, the amounts of the contributions diminishing as the distances increased. The £100 did not include the sums already spent on the building, so that the parish may be congratulated on the results of its minister's efforts to collect money for church-building. The Ngatiporou generally are showing much zeal in this direction; this being the third church built in this parish, during the last four years; and other parishes are following the example. As the amount collected was in excess of the present needs of the parish, a sum was set aside as the nucleus of a contribution to be made by this parish at a similar meeting to be held at the close of the year, in the parish of Kawakawa.
> "A disappointing side." But this meeting had also its disappointing side. While ostensibly met together for church purposes, not more than a quarter of those on the spot were present at the services on Sunday; and I was sorry to hear from my companions that after Mr. Maunsell and I had retired for the night, old songs of an objectionable character were recited and applauded. The master of the Government school close by told me that some of those who take a prominent part in the doings of the parish attend and enjoy meetings of a disgusting character which are held in the large whare of the settlement.

The Rev. G. Maunsell, of OPOTIKI, says the congregations in his district are as a rule small; Sunday work is too prevalent in the busy seasons, as also is drunkenness on the occasion of "wakes." The contributions of the 1,200 baptized Maori Christians in his district amounted to £357. Mr. Maunsell writes:—

We are very much in danger of the seed being choked by the thorns and briars, especially in these times of gold-seeking, when efforts are being made in all directions by men interested in that pursuit to induce the natives to join in their enterprises and come to terms as to prospecting and discovery of gold-bearing stone. Thus their thoughts are very much absorbed in that direction, and conversation naturally gravitates thereto.

The Rev. W. Goodyear has moved from Maketu to TAURANGA. He refers to the visit of the Maori "King," Mahuta, to the Bay of Plenty, to which allusion has been made above:—

He was accompanied by the Rev. Nikora Tautau as his chaplain, and a hundred followers. It was quite an object-lesson to see these men, so lately indifferent to all religious teaching, attending most regularly the daily morning and evening services, and listening to the somewhat racy addresses of Nikora. There was no drunkenness or disorderly conduct, Mahuta having notified to his followers that any one misconducting himself would be immediately sent back home. One Sunday, when I was assisting Nikora, I distributed some fifty or more small hymn-books, which were most eagerly sought after. In a few minutes bands of six or more were to be heard practising different hymns all around us.

The Maori "king" attended by a pastor as his chaplain.

A marked increase in the numbers attending the services is observed by Mr. Goodyear. Bishop Williams visited the district and held confirmations in November, 1896.

III. DIOCESE OF WELLINGTON.

"STEADY progress" on the whole characterized the work in the district supervised by the Rev. A. O. Williams, of Whanganui. At Putiki all the people, with the exception of two men, attend the services, and Mr. Williams says:—

Our services at Putiki are bright and attractive even when I am away from home, and we find that large numbers of Maoris visiting the town attend the services here.

A great change has come over the Maoris at Putiki. The services are attended by all but two men. Our Bible-class is very largely attended, and it is a difficult matter to bring the reading to an end each time, for the Maoris are so eager to go on. Drink is now absolutely prohibited in the pa, and, so far as I know, is never touched by any of the Natives.

Drink prohibited.

The Rev. A. Te Hana works "hard and faithfully" in the Rangitikei district, and not without success. In the Wairarapa district there are 750 Natives, who are visited by Mr. Williams and by his brother, the Rev. A. F. Williams, of Te Aute, in the Waiapu Diocese. Both are anxious to see a native pastor appointed. The latter writes:—

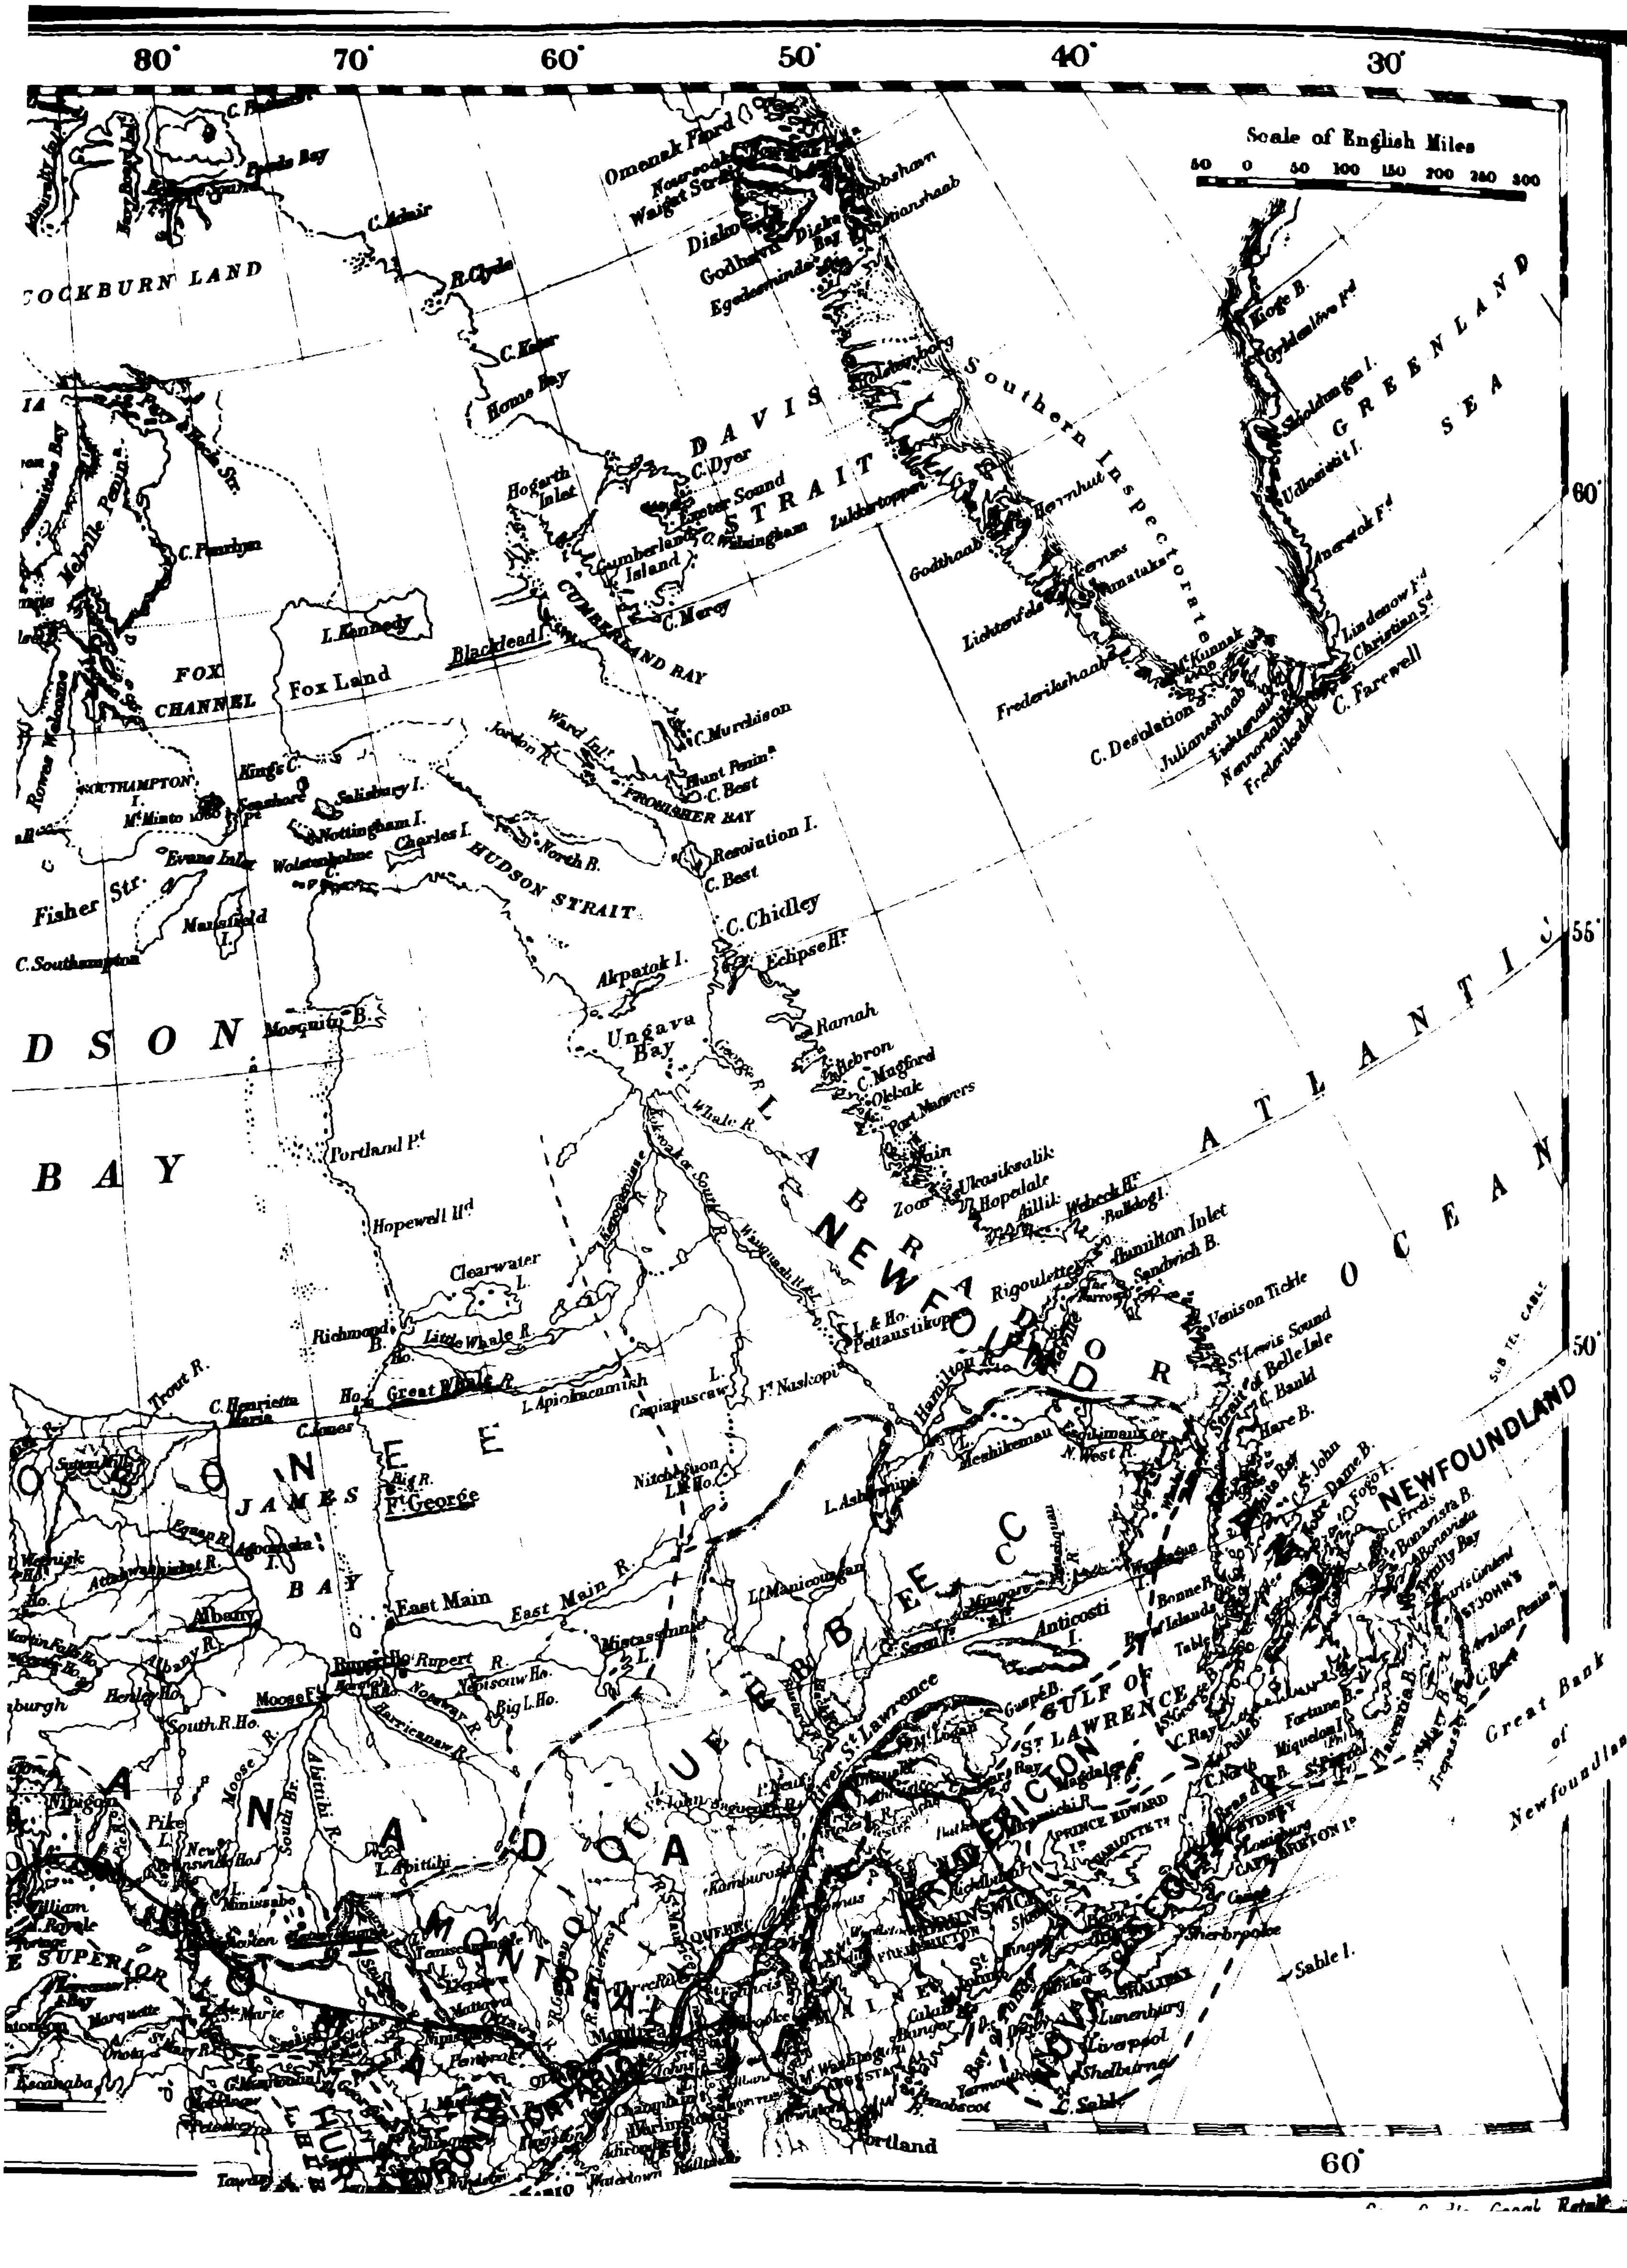
I have paid three visits to the Wairarapa, but two of these were very unsatisfactory, owing, in December, to the Natives being scattered about shearing at the sheep-stations, and in August to much sickness and death, and the presence among them of a Maori "doctor," who told them unless they used his karakia he could not cure them; Mormons, Church adherents, and all believing what he said and keeping aloof from our services. This, however, though sad and disheartening in itself, will have no lasting effect. But I would say here that I do not think this large district will ever be worked satisfactorily until a good, active, resident native clergyman is found to work under the supervision of the Rev. A. O. Williams. It is too far away from our district for us to keep properly in touch with the people and their movements.

The Rev. J. McWilliam, of Otaki, supplies all the lay-readers in his district with a Maori Church Almanack marked with the dates when his visits to them may be expected, by which means disappointment to him and them is prevented, as they frequently migrate to the beach to fish or gather shellfish, or pay long visits to distant relations, or attend the Native Land Court. The attendances were fairly good, though at Otaki there was a noticeable falling-away. Mr. McWilliam writes:—



The attendance has been irregular, and many of the younger communicants have, without giving any reason, absented themselves from that sacrament. I fear the example of some of the Europeans has much to do with this. They see many of the English congregation—and they look up to them as knowing better than they do—though regular at service, yet in the constant habit of turning their backs upon the Lord's Supper. This, with the expressed opinion of several of their so-called Maori dictions that partaking at Holy Communion is the cause of much illness and death among them, has made many of the more unstable ones turn away from Communion. And, as a consequence of relaxing in one duty, they have become lax in others.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

These are Missions to the remnant of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. The first step in the great extension of the Mission in recent years was the sending forth from Red River, in 1840, of Henry Budd, a native teacher, trained up by Mr. West from his boyhood (afterwards the first native clergyman), to open a new station at Devon, 500 miles off. And now, from the United States border-line to the Arctic Ocean, and from Hudson's Bay to the Rocky Mountains, the praises of the Redeemer are sung by thousands of Indians, and in eleven different languages.

The Red River district is now the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese, which has been highly privileged in its two first Bishops, Dr. Anderson and Dr. Machray, was subdivided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. To the two former Sees missionaries of the Society were appointed, the Rev. John Horden and the Rev. W. C. Bompas, and to the third an active co-worker in the country, Dr. McLean. Bishop McLean died in 1886, and was succeeded by Bishop Pinkham; Bishop Horden also died early in 1893, and was succeeded by Bishop Newnham. In 1884, in pursuance of a scheme formed by the Provincial Synod of the Province of Rupert's Land, the Diocese of Athabasca was divided, Dr. Bompas taking the Northern half as Bishop of Mackenzie River, and the Rev. R. Young, C.M.S. Missionary, being appointed to the Southern Division as Bishop of Athabasca. The Provincial Synod of 1890 sanctioned a division of the Mackenzie River Diocese, the territories to the west of the Rocky Mountains becoming the Diocese of Selkirk, and the region to the east retaining the name of Mackenzie River. Archdeacon Reeve was consecrated Bishop of the latter diocese in 1891, Bishop Bompas taking the title of Bishop of Selkirk. In 1884 the Diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan, and in 1887 the Diocese of Calgary was carved out of that of Saskatchewan.

The Society labours in all the above-named eight dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857.

In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; Fort Alexander was occupied in 1864; and Rainy Lake district in 1874. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; York, 1854; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Churchill, 1886. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermilion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875. SELKIRK DIOCESE, Rampart House, 1882; Buxton, 1887; Selkirk, 1892.

General Synod of Canadian Church.

THE second Triennial Session of the General Synod of the Canadian Church was held at Winnipeg in September, 1896. Inconvenient in some respects as Winnipeg was to the Bishops of the Eastern Ecclesiastical Province, the earnest solicitations of the Primate, Archbishop Machray, and of the other Western Bishops, were allowed to prevail, and thus the two-fold object was secured of encouraging the Church-people of Winnipeg by the presence of a large body of clergy and laymen from Eastern Canada, and of bringing before the latter the conditions and needs of Western Canada as a Mission-field. The opening service was held at Trinity Church, and the preacher was Bishop Courtney, of Nova Scotia, who in the course of his sermon from Rev. iii. 8 asked: "Is it too much to hope that the Church of England in Canada in her corporate capacity may see fit to publish abroad an open and hearty acknowledgment of the blessing which the great Head of the Church has vouchsafed to those portions of the household of faith which are organized upon another basis than that of the three-fold order of the ministry, even if she cannot as yet recognize the validity while denying the regularity of the holy orders of their ministers?"

The two most important matters of business which were discussed and determined by the Synod during the eight days it was in session were the appointment of a Supreme Court of Appeal, to determine appeals from judgments of diocesan and provincial courts on subjects of doctrine or worship, or where a bishop has been tried and an adverse decision pronounced; and the adoption of a scheme for the organization of a general Board of Missions for the whole Canadian Church. The Church in Eastern Canada has had a Board of Domestic and Foreign Missions, under the control of its Provincial Synod, for some time, the management of which was in the hands of a large Committee, the bishops and lay and clerical delegates from all the Dioceses. This Committee met quarterly in different parts of the country, and in consequence those so meeting were never the same persons. Hence there was, it was felt, a lack of continuity of interest. The canon adopting and defining the new scheme was thus summarized by a correspondent of The Guardian:—

General Board of Missions.

(1) A society is organized for the general missionary work of the Church, to be called "The Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada," and of this Society every Churchman is declared to be by virtue of his baptism a member; (2) the "board of management" is to consist of all the members of the General Synod, with power to add to their number, the Primate being president; (3) the executive work is under the control of a Committee composed of all the Bishops, and two clergymen and two laymen elected by each Diocesan Synod. This Committee is to meet twice a year, and is to report to all the Synods; (4) the actual work of the Society, however, is given to another Committee—a very small Sub-Committee of six—called, absurdly enough, "the Advisory Committee," the six members being two bishops, two clergymen, and two laymen, together with the officers of the Society. This Committee is to meet once a month, and always in Toronto, and is to "Promote the work and interests of the Society in every way open to them under the powers and instructions which may be given to them from time to time by the Executive Committee." Thus the general management of our missionary work is put into the hands of the Churchmen of Toronto and its immediate neighbourhood. It is regarded as simply hopeless to get together a large representative committee from all parts of a country so vast as Canada now is, and so to secure vigour, interest, and efficiency, this experiment is to be tried.

This new scheme is the Bishops', and when sent down by them was adopted with practical unanimity by the Lower House.

The dioceses in the ecclesiastical province of Rupert's Land have an intimate and direct interest in the successful working of the scheme, inasmuch as it is proposed and provided that the money at the disposal of the Board shall be expended on the Mission work carried on in the Dominion, most of which is in these dioceses. What gave special point to the above deliberations and decisions was a formal notice from the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, to whose liberal grants many of the Canadian dioceses are very greatly indebted, that a reduction of ten per cent. would be made from all its grants in 1897, and that no grants must be looked for after the termination of the present century. It was stated that the S.P.G. was then spending £9,400 per annum on the work in the Dominion, of which about £6,000 went to Manitoba and the North-West.

The Society's expenditure on its Missions in Canada.

It was also mentioned in the discussion that the Church Missionary Society has for some years past been annually reducing its expenditure on the North-West, and this is true, but how small the extent of the reduction was in proportion to the whole sum expended probably few, if any, of those present at the Synod realized. In 1895–96 the total expenditure on these dioceses of the Dominion was £13,300 (besides a further sum of £5,684 spent on the British Columbia Mission), and only £132 10*s*. was withdrawn from previous lump grants during that year. Nevertheless, small as the sum annually withdrawn is, on receiving letters from the Archbishop of Rupert's Land informing them of the scheme adopted by the General Synod, and stating that the scheme would have to be submitted to the dioceses of Eastern Canada before it could take effect, the Committee agreed to suspend for two years the further reduction of the Society's block grant to the Diocese of Rupert's Land. The sum expended during the year under review in the several dioceses (exclusive of expenditure at home) was as follows:—Rupert's Land, £2,781; Moosonee, £1,798; Saskatchewan, £2,632; Calgary, £1,145; Athabasca, £1,743; Mackenzie River, £1,375; Selkirk, £977—a total of £12,451.

Appointment of Bishop Grisdale.

The first session of the General Synod in 1893 approved a constitution in accordance with which the Bishops of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land were to be appointed by the Provincial Synod, as they had previously been before they were formed into a United Church, meeting in General Synod. The first episcopal vacancy to occur in the Province since 1893 was that made by the death of Bishop Burn, of the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, and the Provincial Synod appointed to fill the vacancy Dean Grisdale, of Winnipeg, who was consecrated in August, 1896. Bishop Grisdale was trained at the Society's Islington College, and went to North India in 1870, but was obliged to return home in the following year, when he was transferred to North-West Canada. His connexion with the Society as a missionary ceased in 1876. He was subsequently in succession Canon and Dean of Rupert's Land, and also Professor of Pastoral Theology in St. John's College, Winnipeg. Bishop Grisdale is the twenty-second Bishop consecrated for Canadian dioceses, the first having been Bishop Inglis, of Nova Scotia, who was the first Colonial Bishop of the Church of England, and whose consecration, in 1787, was three years after Dr. Seabury was consecrated by the Scottish nonjuring Bishops for the United States. The first conference of Colonial Bishops was held at Quebec in 1851, with a view to the establishment of Synods and to the unification of the Church. In 1852 the same subject was discussed at a meeting of several Canadian, Australian, and South African Bishops in London, and subsequently at a joint conference of the same Bishops and of eighteen English Bishops—a gathering which may be regarded as a prelude of the Lambeth Conference, which met for the first time in 1867. This important decennial gathering of bishops is indebted for its inception to the Canadian Church. The first suggestion to hold a Pan-Anglican conference was made by the Provincial Synod of Eastern Canada in the course of its first meeting in 1861, and the idea originated with Bishop Lewis, of Ontario, who is now Archbishop of Eastern Canada.

Growth of Canadian Episcopate.

Arctic exploration.

The American continent owes so much to Arctic exploration, that a reference here to Dr. Fridtjof Nansen's wonderful voyage, the story of which from his own lips thrilled many minds and hearts in England in the spring of 1897, will not be out of place. For several centuries Arctic exploration was carried on chiefly by English ships in search of a northern passage to India and China, either by a north-west or north-east channel, or across the Pole itself. This unattained end led to results of great importance, commercial, scientific, and national. Cabot's voyage from Bristol in 1497 initiated the cod-fishery of Newfoundland. Chancellor's search for the north-east channel in 1553 brought him to the White Sea, where the Muscovy Company long carried on a prosperous trade. Hudson's attempt to cross the Pole in 1607 brought the wealth of Spitzbergen in seals and whales into notice, and secured British supremacy in those seas; while his last voyage opened up Hudson's Bay, and led to the eventual establishment of the Hudson's Bay Company, securing the North of Canada to the British Crown. As long ago as 1596 Barents reached 79° 49′ N. in the direction of Spitzbergen, and Henry Hudson a few years later got to 80½°. It took 200 years to get a degree beyond that, which was accomplished by Scoresby in 1806. Twenty years later, Parry attained a latitude of 82°45′, which remained the record for fifty years, until, in 1876, Albert Markham, at a terrible expenditure of suffering, reached 83° 20′, which six years later was exceeded by only four miles by Lockwood and Brainerd. Thus it took 300 years to advance three and a half degrees (or about 240 miles) nearer the Pole. Nansen attained 86° 14′. After years of preparation and experiment he had arrived at the conclusion that a current crept from Behring Strait in a generally north-west direction across the north polar area, and the voyage of the Fram, which sailed from Norway in July, 1893, was undertaken to test the accuracy of this conclusion. On September 22nd she was moored to an ice-floe to the north of Sannikof Island, in about 78½° N. latitude; there it was frozen in and held fast in the ice just three years, when she broke her way out on the north of Spitzbergen, no speck of land having been seen since leaving the New Siberian Islands. Nansen and Johansen left the Fram on March 14th, 1895, at 84° north latitude, and, taking their course over the ice northward, accomplished 140 statute miles in less than three weeks. On April 7th, 1895, having reached latitude 86° 14′ N., in longitude 98° east, they turned and made for Franz Josef Land, struggling with enormous difficulties, and in a rude hut in Franz Josef Land they spent the long winter of 1895-6, mainly in sleep. At length in May, 1896, they were able to pursue their way south and west to Spitzbergen on sledges and in canoes until they met Mr. Jackson, and soon afterwards, after fifteen months' solitary struggling with ice and water and darkness and cold, begrimed with a year's dirt, they returned again into civilization and comfort.

The voyage of the Fram.

Dr. Nansen reaches north latitude 86° 14′.

Such a record of plodding and undaunted heroism, apart from results achieved, merited the enthusiastic reception which was awarded the travellers in England and elsewhere. In the following pages of this Report the reader will find instances of men—aye, and women too—who for the sake of Christ and precious souls are not merely travelling for a few months, but dwelling year after year amid the rigours, and privations, and loneliness, and the long months of continuous darkness of the Arctic regions. It is not asked nor desired in their behalf that such marks of interest as reward the explorer should be bestowed on them; but it is asked that the Church's prayers may not fail them: that Bishops Bompas and Young and Reeve and Newnham, and Messrs. Lofthouse and Stringer and Peck and Sampson and Macdonald and Canham, and the missionaries of the Moravian Church, whose faces are rarely seen in the home-lands, may not be forgotten in their frigid and lonely stations.

Missionaries in Arctic regions.

One whose sphere of work was on the Arctic circle, Mr. Joseph Caldecott Parker, of Blacklead Island, in Cumberland

Death by drowning of Mr. J. C. Parker.

Bay, was drowned through the accidental upsetting of a boat on August 11th, 1896. Mr. Parker had from a boy cherished the ambition of being a missionary, but the prospect of the way opening seemed for a time remote. At length the opportunity presented itself; he offered and was sent to Islington College. Then his father became paralysed, and he gave up his cherished wish at the call of a clear home duty, took up a business of which he understood but little, worked it up and made it a success, and then, as soon as his younger brother could take his place, he again set his heart on going out. At this juncture the Rev. E. J. Peck's appeal for a man to accompany him to a new Mission to the Eskimo of the Arctic Circle reached his ears, and he at once offered again. After a short period of training at the Clapham Preparatory Institution he sailed with Mr. Peck in July, 1894, and reached Blacklead Island on August 21st. He had therefore been out just under two years when the home-call reached him. Mr. Peck wrote giving all the particulars that were known or could be surmised of the circumstances of his death:—

With feelings of deep sorrow I must tell you the sad news of our dear brother Parker's death. He was drowned near Blacklead Island on August 11th. Mr. Hall (Mr. Noble's agent) had arranged to go to a river some twenty miles distant from the station to catch salmon, and as our brother had been working most assiduously at the study of the language, &c., and as he needed a change and rest, he thought it well to join the party. I should mention here that this fishing expedition is planned yearly, and as the journey is not considered dangerous, there was nothing to raise feelings of anxiety on our brother's account. On the morning of the 11th we rose early, and commended each other to God, and I then went down to the boat to bid him farewell. There were altogether seven souls in the party, viz., Mr. Parker, Captain Clisby (a most experienced boatman, who was on a visit to Blacklead Island from his station near Frobisher Bay), Mr. Hall, and four Eskimo. As I had volunteered to remain at or in the neighbourhood of Blacklead Island during the absence of our friends, I took with me a party of Eskimo on Friday, the 14th. This island is about four miles from the station, and the Eskimo being desirous of obtaining some shell-fish which are found in its vicinity, we accordingly made up a boat's crew for this object. About 1 p.m. of the same day an Eskimo arrived in his kiyak (canoe) bringing the awful news of his having found a boat with a dead body inside. I immediately called the Eskimo together, and after going some four miles in a northerly direction we found the very boat in which our friends had left with the corpse of Captain Clisby inside. After some labour we managed to get some of the water out of the boat. We then towed the vessel to Blacklead Island, where our arrival was, as you can well imagine, the cause of profound grief, especially on the account of our dear brother's loss, for he was greatly beloved by the poor Eskimo. As regards myself, I feel that I have lost a real friend and brother in Mr. Parker. He was in every sense of the word a true helper, and one who, I may truly say, poured out his whole energies on the work God had given him to do. . . .

I cannot say exactly how the sad accident happened, but we suppose that a squall must have struck the boat after she passed out of our sight on the northern side of the island. We think the boat must have then heeled over, and the boom of the sail was thus caught in the sea to leeward, and while the boat was thus held down the sea rushed in and swamped her. After the boat was found we sent out search parties in opposite directions, but nothing was seen on any of the adjacent islands, neither were any other bodies found. As there was much drift ice about at the time, and the water was therefore bitterly cold, we do not think any one, sad to say, could have reached the land in any direction.

Mr. Parker's widowed mother showed a beautiful spirit of Christian resignation on hearing suddenly the news of her son's death. She said, "I gave him to the Lord from the first, and my one wish is to know that he died in the path of duty."

Deaths of Mrs. A. E. Cowley and Mrs. H. Robinson.

Two missionaries' wives were also removed by death: the wife of the Rev. A. E. Cowley, of Winnipeg, who went out originally as Miss Hart-Davies, to be principal of a ladies' college which was founded by Bishop (now Archbishop) Machray; and the wife of the Rev. Henry Robinson, of Upper Peace River station, in Athabasca Diocese, who died on July 1st, 1896.

Reinforcements.

The reinforcements to the Mission were the following: Mr. Charles George Sampson, Islington College, who sailed in July for Cumberland Sound; Mr. F. F. Flewelling, sent out to Selkirk Diocese from Montreal in response to Bishop Bompas' request; and Mr. Richard John Bowen, who went out, after a short course at the Clapham Institution, for industrial work in Selkirk Diocese, independently of the Society though with the Committee's concurrence, and who was taken into local connexion during the year.

Translations.

Archdeacon R. McDonald has completed the translation of the Old Testament into Tukudh; and the Rev. E. J. Peck has prepared an Eskimo version in the syllabic character of the Gospels. Both these versions are being printed by the British and Foreign Bible Society.

I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

Archdeacon R. Phair and the Rev. A. E. Cowley continue to act as Joint-Secretaries of the Society's Mission in the Diocese of Rupert's Land. The former sends as usual an interesting report of the Indian stations.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

Of St. Peter's Indian Settlement the Archdeacon writes: "It is to this old settlement we look when a live worker is urgently needed for some important sphere in Indian work. . . . A large number of lay helpers are always in readiness for any special emergency." The Rev. J. G. Anderson, who is in charge of the settlement, gives further particulars of these helpers who have banded themselves together "for the purpose of reading and studying God's Word, for talks on parish work and its needs, and for special prayer as circumstances call for." Five former members of this Association are now engaged in definite missionary work in other parts of the diocese. At Scanterbury, on Brokenhead River, special difficulties are caused through Roman Catholic opposition. A large day-school has been opened and placed under the care of a former catechist.

Regarding the Indians at Fort Alexander the Archdeacon says:—

A great change.

The Fort Alexander Mission is a signal triumph of the success of the Gospel. I can recollect when this place was a stronghold of the Enemy—when polygamy, gambling, and all sorts of heathen practices were carried on without interruption. Days and nights were spent in the service of the god of this world. Now these things are unknown. The strong man armed has been expelled, and the Indians are clothed and in their right mind. Houses and gardens and schools and churches all witness the change, and there is love and peace and happiness in the homes.

Various "little difficulties and divisions which tended to weaken the Mission in days gone by are now," the Archdeacon says, "things of the past." The Mission at Black River is on a small scale, and the Rev. B. McKenzie, the missionary in charge, is able to conduct a day-school, and to pay occasional visits to some "lumber camps" a short distance away. The Indians of this station are all Christians, and have "a nice little church, in which they take the deepest interest, and which is kept in excellent condition." Hole River, notwithstanding the exceptional difficulties with which the catechist, Mr. John Sinclair, was confronted when he commenced work there, is described by the Archdeacon as "one of our most hopeful and prosperous Missions." The Indians have promised to assist in the erection of a small school-chapel. Of the Indian Christians at the old-established station of ISLINGTON, on the Winnipeg River, Archdeacon Phair writes:—

Exemplary Christian Indians.

Their love and loyalty to God's Word is very encouraging, and some of the older Indians might be quoted as a perfect example in many ways to people in other lands. With them it is not simply a duty to go to church, but a pleasure, and no little surprise when they hear of white people not caring to go to God's House.

The Rev. J. Maggrah undertakes, in addition to his pastoral work, the charge of a day-school. The Mission at Les Dalles is described as "a most encouraging one." Mr. J. Kipling, the catechist, who can speak the Indian language fluently, has won the confidence and affection of the people. A suitable room in which to hold services, &c., is greatly needed. The Rev. J. Johnston, in August, 1896, took over the charge of Rainy Lake, a station which, as mentioned in last year's Report, has been without a resident ordained missionary since 1894. The work of building a Mission-house and church (the funds for the latter having been collected by the Archdeacon when in England) was immediately commenced. It speaks well for the progress made by the Indians in skilled labour to hear that "the carpenters employed as foremen were chosen from the Indians at the Indian Settlement, and the white men engaged to help them took all their instructions, both in erecting the Mission-house and the church, from these competent Indian mechanics." The house, when nearly finished, was blown down by a cyclone, but happily no one was injured. The influx of white people caused by the discovery of gold-mines in the neighbourhood of Wabigoon has been far from helpful to the Mission work at that station, where the Rev. G. Prewer continues in charge. At Frenchman's Head, where the Rev. A. T. Norquay is working, the Indian leaders are said to be "decidedly Christian men, throwing all their influence on the side of the Gospel." They are most earnest and resolute in their observance of the Lord's Day. Equal cause for encouragement is given by the Christian Indians at Lac Seul. The men who leave home for work "carry their Bibles with them and read and speak of them when away." The Rev. T. Pritchard, who resides there, feels that an enlargement of the church will soon be necessary. Obeskang Archdeacon Phair speaks of as "one of the most difficult and isolated stations under my supervision." The resident catechist, Mr. R. E. Atkinson, has failed hitherto to obtain a suitable dwelling-place, and the accommodation for public worship in the schoolroom is sadly inadequate. Nevertheless he "goes on with his work cheerfully."

Indian foremen superintending white men in Church building.

"Carry their Bibles with them."

The Rev. G. Bruce has laboured for about thirty years at FAIRFORD, on the Manitoba Lake. The vigorous proselytizing carried on in this district by Baptist agents led to the appointment of the Rev. H. Cochrane to take charge of Lower Fairford, Sandy Bay, and St. Martin's Lake. Efficient schoolmaster-catechists are in residence at the two latter places, and the Indians show an encouraging appreciation of Christian privileges. At Jack Head, which is also included in Mr. Cochrane's district, "the majority of the Indians are Heathen, but they are all under instruction, and some of them apply for baptism from time to time." The catechist at Crane River combines educational work with his pastoral duties. The work at this station is far from encouraging, there being as yet no Indian Christians to leaven the heathen surroundings. The Rev. G. Cook has resigned the charge of Staggville (Manitoba House), and a catechist has been placed there. Archdeacon Phair sees promising signs of further efforts towards self-support on the part of the congregation (largely composed of half-breeds and settlers) at this station.

Fairford.

Mr. Cox, a newly-appointed catechist, has been stationed at Griswold, on Oak River, for work among the Sioux Indians. Archdeacon Phair writes:—

> These Indians value the House of God, and are pleased when they have anything to offer for the spread of the Gospel among the Indians. They live in peace and harmony together, and are an example to their white neighbours in honesty and industry. Their children are making rapid progress in acquiring the language and ways of white people, and in the near future I trust some of them will come forward and be useful in imparting instruction in secular and spiritual things. The church is a small one, but it is well filled when service is to be held, and it means a good deal to come five or six miles through the deep snow, over the bleak prairie, when the thermometer is very low and clothing far from the best quality. But the devotion of these Red men to the House of God, irrespective of difficulties or drawbacks of any kind, might well put the conduct of many Christian people to shame. They would never think of questioning anything said by the Chief in Heaven.

It should not be forgotten that work among these Indians has a special interest. First of all, they are refugees from the American side of the line, and have been engaged for a long time in unspeakable deeds of darkness. When I passed through them some thirty years ago, on my journey from St. Paul to Fort Garry, they were engaged in a massacre which for diabolical acts of cruelty has no equal. After fighting the American authorities for some time, they fled and sought refuge on British territory. The very name of these people was a terror to the Indians all over the land. When they sought refuge among us, reservations were assigned them by the Government and missionary work begun. To these men, hardened in crime and stained with blood, the message of peace and pardon through the blood of Christ was taken, and my readers should see those that received it, clothed and in their right mind, sitting at the feet of Jesus. I know of no better object-lesson on the meaning and value of Missions than that to be learned by a visit to these people. One is struck, first of all, with the stalwart and manly forms of these primitive people, so keen and sensitive in their ways, yet so difficult to arouse or excite. Sitting in the little hut beside a man of fourscore years, one can easily see what Missions have accomplished. The sanguinary warrior has exchanged his paint, and feathers, and thirst for blood for a European costume and a large Bible in his own tongue. Listen to his estimate of this newly-found treasure: "It gave me the light; it has true words, from one side to the other. It has strength in it, too, for what it says it is able to do. It has changed men that nothing else could change; I like it for this."

An object-lesson on the value of Missions.

Touchwood Hills, the only C.M.S. station in the Diocese of Qu'Appelle, continues under the charge of the Rev. A. Cook. He is not able to report much visible progress during the year.

II. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

THE Rev. E. J. Peck came home from Cumberland Bay in October, 1896; and Mr. F. Buckland visited Montreal from Fort Churchill in the autumn of 1896, starting back again, however, in May, 1897.

Another extensive tour, attended by difficulties and dangers very similar to those described in the Report of last year, was undertaken by Bishop Newnham during the summer months of 1896. At Albany the Bishop was joined by Archdeacon Vincent, who accompanied him to Marten's Falls, Fort Hope, and Osnaburgh. At each of these stations, the Archdeacon writes, "I believe we made the very best possible use of our opportunity in preaching Christ and in telling all of His great love in dying for sinners." The Bishop and Archdeacon afterwards went together to Regina to attend the Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Bishop Newnham's visitation.

Land, and subsequently to Winnipeg for the General Synod of the Canadian Church. At Moose Factory, Bishop Newnham resides, when not engaged on visitation tours. He has the assistance temporarily of the Rev. I. J. Taylor, a former missionary of the Society. A serious epidemic of whooping-cough greatly impeded the routine of work at this station during the summer. Every family but one was visited with the complaint, and fifteen children died. The moral standard amongst the Indians of Moose Factory has, Mr. Taylor considers, "steadily risen" during the past few years, but watchful discipline is still very necessary, and has been exercised with good effect. Eight Indians were confirmed during the year. Miss Newnham, a sister of the Bishop, rendered valuable help in the work of the station. The Rev. J. Sanders makes his headquarters at Biscotasing, from whence he visits the six out-stations under his charge. The Indians at Pigeon's Nest and Brunswick Post keep up the Sunday services amongst themselves during the intervals of his visits. At Rupert's House also there was a severe epidemic of whooping-cough, but the Rev. E. Richards believes that the sorrow caused by the death of many little children "was the means of drawing some of the people nearer to Jesus." The Indians at Mistasinee gave Mr. Richards a hearty welcome when he visited them in August, 1896, and he has "good hopes" that a work of grace has begun in the hearts of some of them. The Rev. W. G. Walton, four days after his marriage in February, 1896, started from Fort George with his bride, in a sledge drawn by eight dogs, to visit the Eskimo at Great Whale River, which is also under his charge. They remained there for seven weeks, holding a service every day, and opening a school whenever any scholars presented themselves. The Eskimo do what they can to pass on to their friends the instruction which they receive during the missionary's visit. "It is not at all uncommon," Mr. Walton says, "to find many singing the hymns which I have only taught the two or three at quiet times." He is much encouraged by the increased eagerness of these people for Christian instruction, regarding which he writes:—

Moose Factory.

A missionary's wedding tour!

It is a common saying here that an Eskimo will not give up his tobacco for anything, but I saw them last year giving it up for books—things that were looked upon, only two or three years ago, as not worth bothering about. The first thing an Eskimo now asks for, as a rule, is so many books for himself and family. But what astonishes me most of all is the use they make of them. Eskimo who could not read the year before, came last spring, not only able to read them, but could show me the page where any particular word was that I asked them. Surely this is a cause for praise and thankfulness!

The Eskimo's love of books.

Overcome with grief at the story of Christ's sufferings.

On Good Friday last, while I was speaking to them about the Saviour's great love in having died for us upon that cruel cross, my interpreter quite broke down and wept like a child; so we had to sing a hymn. Some of them expressed a wish for some picture-books, and one very kind helper has sent me seventy small illustrated books on the life of Jesus, and I am interleaving them with short addresses on the various pictures, which I can easily print by means of my cyclostyle. Although the baptisms are only two or three, still a great many desire to be baptized, and I am only waiting till they know more and show that they really mean what they say.

The Eskimo student mentioned in last year's Report has made a promising beginning in work amongst his fellow-countrymen. He has already taught one youth to read the New Testament, and in the spring of 1896 he lived for three weeks amongst a band of Eskimo, in order to instruct them. Mr. and Mrs. Walton returned to Fort George at the end of April, and spent a busy two months amongst the Indians. Mr. Walton sees signs of progress in the attendance at the daily services, the contributions to the offertory, and the observance of Sunday. From July to September he was again at Little Whale River.

Fort Albany.

On the Western coast of James Bay, opposite Little Whale River, is FORT ALBANY, the headquarters of Archdeacon Vincent. His activity, despite his forty-one years of missionary service, continues unimpaired, as may be judged from the fact that during the past year he travelled "at least 3,300 miles; 600 miles was by dog-team, 1,200 miles by canoe, and the remainder by railway and other conveyances." The Archdeacon gives a cheering report of the Christian Indians at Albany, nearly all of whom have daily family prayer in their wigwams, and they attend the church services regularly. Day and Sunday-schools are held for the children. A church is in course of construction at English River, the out-station, 210 miles up the river from Albany, which is under Archdeacon Vincent's charge. The Rev. R. Faries makes his headquarters at FORT HOPE, where about 500 Indians assemble for a short time every summer and receive as much Christian instruction as it is possible to give them. He thus describes the work done during their visit in 1896:—

A year's journeyings.

"Get up; we want to go to church."

Very often so early as 3 a.m. I would be turned out by some Indians rapping away at my window, crying out: "Get up! get up! it is now dawn, and we want to go to church." And so the weary missionary would have to "get up," for if they were sent away others would come and do the same thing.

On the whole, the work was a little more encouraging than that of the summer before. There was no more opposition from the conjurors, for all except two had given up the evil art, and those two were quiet, knowing well that their power was completely broken. I hope very soon to hear them also publicly announce that they will give up the practice of conjuring as worthless, and accept Christianity. The church was always crowded during the week that they were all here, and I held three services a day. The young people delighted to gather in groups and sing the hymns they were being taught. It was indeed a pleasure for the missionary to walk down near the tents and hear some young and old people gathered together in a tent sing hymn after hymn.

The other stations included in Mr. Faries' district are Marten's Falls, 100 miles down-stream from Fort Hope; Osnaburgh House, 200 miles up-stream, where the Indian standard of morality is very low; and Cat Lake, 250 miles north-west of Osnaburgh. Mr. Faries visited Marten's Falls in February, 1896, walking the whole of the 100 miles on snow-shoes. He also paid an interesting visit to some pagan Indians at Attawapiskut River, a long journey across country from Fort Hope. There he found twenty-four members of one family, all of whom had learned to read and had studied the New Testament and other books given to them by Indian friends. They were in sad need of instruction, but after a week's teaching and searching examination Mr. Faries was so fully satisfied with the progress made by twenty-two of their number, that he felt justified in baptizing them.

Fort Churchill.

The Rev. J. Lofthouse remained during the year at FORT CHURCHILL, the station furthest north on the west coast of Hudson's Bay, in spite of his wife's continued ill-health and a serious illness which he himself had in the autumn of 1895. Though both feeling the absolute necessity of "a long and thorough change" after their eight years' isolation, Mr. and Mrs. Lofthouse persevered bravely in their intention of not leaving their post until a competent worker was available to fill the gap. Every adult at this station is a regular communicant, and all are most constant in their attendance at the services and Bible-classes. The children also are "doing very well in school." Great difficulty is found in providing suitable occupation for the boys when they leave school. Early in February, 1896, Mr. Lofthouse, accompanied by a native catechist, started upon a tour of a thousand miles on snow-shoes, in order to visit some Cree Indians. He crossed between four and five hundred miles of "almost unknown country" to Split Lake, on the Nelson River, camping night after night in the snow, and often enduring severe hardships and discomforts, some of which are thus described in his journal:—

A thousand miles on snow-shoes.

February 14th.—Gale continued all night, and we had a most uncomfortable time. A "camp" is not pleasant at any time, but in a gale it is almost the worst place one could choose even for an enemy; it was bitterly cold, and the camp fire so smoky that one was nearly blinded. When we arose this morning we were covered with about six inches of snow. The gale continued all day, and out on the plains we could not see one hundred yards. To travel was impossible, and we could only sit and nurse our misery with as much patience as possible; to read or to do anything else was out of the question; to cut wood and keep up the fire was the only work.

The scarcity of food was another trial. When still four or five days' journey from Split Lake, the party found themselves with no dogs' food, and not much more than one day's food for themselves. A small supply of food was, however, procured from Indians whom they providentially met en route. The travellers reached Split Lake on February 29th, and Mr. Lofthouse was hospitably welcomed by an officer of the Hudson's Bay Company, who also permitted him to hold a service in his room on the following day. Mr. Lofthouse wrote:—

The joy of seeing a minister of their own Church.

At 10.30 o'clock the room was well filled with Indians, nearly all being York Factory people whom I knew well. We had a hearty service and a splendid address from our catechist, Jos. Kitchekeshik, setting forth my object in visiting them. In the afternoon I went to the other post for service, where over fifty were crowded into a room about fourteen feet square. After this we had a prayer or rather praise meeting, John K——, the chief, leading and praising God that at last they had the joy of seeing a minister of their own Church. It was a joyful time, and richly repaid me for all the toil and trials of the journey.

The ten days spent at Split Lake were fully occupied in holding services, visiting the sick, baptizing infants, solemnizing marriages, and consulting with the Indian chief and his councillors regarding the Mission which they earnestly desire should be established amongst them. A catechist has since been stationed there. Of his last Sunday at the station Mr. Lofthouse wrote in his journal:—

A joyous Sunday.

March 8th, Sunday.—A grand joyous day. Numbers of Indians came in yesterday; some came at least thirty miles. At morning service we had a hundred present; two infants were baptized, and after the service thirty-three knelt with me to partake of the Lord's Supper. Most of these were well known to me as communicants at York Factory. In the afternoon had a very large gathering at the trader's house, and a very hearty service, concluding with a prayer-meeting. The people are really in earnest, and it is a great pity that they have been left so long without any means of grace. I find that there are about seventy-five families at or near the post; forty-five of these are from York Factory, and members of our own Church. Thus we have nearly four hundred people left alone to keep up spiritual life as best they may.

On March 10th the party started for York Factory, accomplishing the journey of some three hundred miles in ten days. There Mr. Lofthouse stayed for three weeks. About twenty Indians came in for Easter, but the congregation appeared very small in comparison with that of former years; many of the Indians having been compelled to leave the fort through lack of employment, while others had gone away on account of the few spiritual privileges within reach. Mr. Lofthouse left York Factory on April 13th, and reached home a week later after a difficult journey.

In July, Mr. Lofthouse made a journey of twenty-five days by canoe in order to investigate the opportunities for reaching the Eskimo and Chipewyans on the Thaaune and Fish Rivers, whose evangelization is much upon his heart. Mr. F. Buckland, the Canadian missionary-student mentioned in last year's Report, returned to Fort Churchill in August, having made an encouraging beginning in work amongst the Huskies in the neighbourhood of Repulse Bay, on the Arctic Circle. He went to Montreal for a few months' study, after which he hoped to return to his remote station. A sad report reached Mr. Lofthouse of the sufferings endured by the Eskimo through the scarcity of food. He writes:—

Terrible sufferings through scarcity.

There was no deer to the north, and many of the Huskies were nearly starved to death, whilst several actually died. One family—father and two children—were found during the winter frozen to death in their iglo, with the greater part of one body devoured, without doubt by the other two, but whether after death, or, more dreadful still to think, killed for this purpose, no one can ever know. It is not an uncommon thing for the Huskies to cast lots under such circumstances.

Of the bereavement suffered by the Mission at Blacklead Island, through the death, by drowning, of Mr. J. C. Parker in August, 1896, mention has already been made. Regarding the work at the station during the year, the Rev. E. J. Peck says:—

A year of trial and of blessing

I think we may truly speak of it, on the one hand, as a year of trial, and on the other as a time of blessing. The joy has been intermingled with the sorrow. One has been set over against the other: one to humble, to chasten, to refine; the other to strengthen, to encourage, and to cheer.

In the autumn of 1895 the missionaries had to encounter a terrible outburst of heathen superstition on the part of the Eskimo. Mr. Peck thus describes it:—

Outburst of heathen superstition.

As the snowstorms raged from day to day, and as the ice was driven about by the fury of the gales, some of the people, headed by the conjurors, organized a regular series of heathen practices for the purpose, as they expressed it, "of commanding that there should be no more wind." Connected with these superstitious practices the conjurors recommend, and in a measure enforce, customs of a most immoral nature. As the whole thing was directly opposed to the truths we had told them from time to time, Mr. Parker and myself set our faces dead against it. This incensed many of them not a little, and caused for a time at least a most bitter feeling against ourselves and our work. This, of course, was one of Satan's devices to draw the people's thoughts away from God, but through the grace of our Saviour we were enabled to stand firm, and the poor Heathen, seeing we were not moved, began to realize that the power of God was with us, and after a time the storm of opposition abated.

Another trial was the great scarcity, during some portions of the year, of seal's meat, which is the staple food of the Eskimo, and one for which European food forms but a poor substitute. On the other hand, the missionaries had real cause for thankfulness. Some of the Eskimo showed "an earnest, painstaking spirit in acquiring knowledge." Mr. Peck transcribed the whole of St. Matthew's Gospel from the Roman into the Syllabic character for their use, and hopes before long to complete the transcription of all four Gospels. He spent five weeks in the early spring of 1896 at Kikkerton, a whaling station three days' journey from Blacklead Island. Much of his time was spent amongst the seal-hunters upon the ice. The following description is given of a visit to one village:—

Visit to an Arctic Town on the frozen sea.

This peculiar "Arctic town," the inhabitants of which number in all fifty-five souls, is situated on the frozen sea some four miles from the mainland. The coast-line in this locality is rugged in the extreme, and the mountain peaks rise, covered with a white mantle of snow, far into the clear blue sky. The sight, though desolate, is one of rugged grandeur and boldness, and the picture fills one's soul with feelings of wonder and solemn awe as we gaze upon the Creator's handiwork. My snow-hotel is inhabited by three persons besides myself. My host has been a noted conjuror; his wife, who is rather young, is cleanly in appearance, which fact speaks volumes for an Eskimo, while their little foster-son—a nice, hearty little fellow about six years of age—makes quite at home with me, so that we get on famously together. Our daily life is as follows:—Kettle filled with snow-water, is placed over oil-lamp about six a.m. I creep out of fur bag about seven, and dress. Breakfast then follows; this generally consists of fried seal-steak, biscuit, and coffee. After breakfast have prayer with the people, and then go out for a walk on ice-field. After walk have private reading, and seek to realize in one's own soul the presence of the Lord, for in vain do we speak to others if our own hearts are dead and cold. From 10 a.m. to 12 visit the people in their snow-houses. The inmates are taught the leading facts of the Christian faith—man's lost state, Christ's all-sufficient Salvation, and the power of God the Holy Ghost to convince, teach, and sanctify. At noon prepare dinner, which generally consists of seal-steak, &c., as at breakfast. After dinner hold school for children. We have sixteen on our list of names, and bright intelligent little creatures they are. After school take long walk on the vast ice-floe, and then visit again till tea-time. When the men return from hunting in the evening they assemble in our snow residence, and listen attentively while I unfold to them the great truths of the Christian faith. The people do certainly show a remarkable desire for instruction, and some of them are now able to read very well. The reading-sheets which I gave them last year have been used to good purpose, and as I promised to give a book to every one who mastered the Syllabic characters and could read the sheets, I am besieged with applicants, who, after passing through a rather "tough" examination successfully, carry off the books they have thus won with many exclamations of joy and pleasure.

"A snow hotel."

A canvas church was, through the kindness of the European agent, erected, in which Mr. Peck gathered the people for worship while at Kikkerton. An Eskimo who had removed thither from Blacklead Island was visited on his death-bed by Mr. Peck, and gave clear evidence of a living faith in Christ.

Mr. C. G. Sampson arrived at Blacklead Island on August 22nd, only eleven days after Mr. Parker's death. A month later, Mr. Peck returned on short furlough in England. His yearning over the yet unevangelized Eskimo is expressed in the following words:—

If we glance at the map of North America, we see vast regions of Arctic waste where our countrymen have gone for purposes of discovery. Brave Sir John Franklin and others have died for the cause they had so much at heart. Are there not some of God's chosen ones who are ready to pierce those Arctic wilds to bring life, and peace, and joy to the Eskimo? Along the northern shores of Hudson Straits, the western shores of Davis Straits, in the regions about Fox Channel, and in the almost boundless wastes extending in a northerly and westerly direction, there are many Eskimo still living in darkness and the valley of the shadow of death, without God and without hope in the world; and although they are, comparatively speaking, but a few lost sheep in the wilderness, yet we trust God's people will not forget them, but will send to this race the Gospel of God's grace which alone is able to make them wise "unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus."

III. DIOCESES OF SASKATCHEWAN AND CALGARY.

Bishop Pinkham admitted Mr. James Taylor to deacon's orders on May 17th, 1896, and on July 12th he admitted the Rev. E. F. Hockley to priest's orders. Ordinations.

Mrs. J. Hines returned to the Mission in the autumn of 1896 to rejoin her husband, the Rev. J. Hines, at Devon.

"Taking a view of the work in Saskatchewan all round," writes Archdeacon J. A. Mackay, "we may feel with thankfulness that there is progress." This hopeful opinion is shared by Bishop Pinkham, who wrote in November, 1896, after a visitation of the Diocese: "I have never been so well pleased with the work in Saskatchewan as at the present time, taking a view of the whole work." The Archdeacon thus sums up the present position and needs of the Canadian Indians:—

The Indian problem.

In this diocese, as in most other parts of the country, the very existence of the Indian race in the future depends on their being civilized as well as Christianized. The Indian problem is not yet solved. We are only beginning to feel our way towards its solution. We have Missions in the Cumberland District that have been carried on for over fifty years, and in the English or Churchill River District for over forty years, but the Indians connected with those Missions are in poorer circumstances to-day than they were when the work was commenced among them, because, as they live by hunting and fishing, those resources have greatly diminished, and as time goes on there will be—perhaps in the not very distant future—the alternative of their dying of want or changing their mode of life. As the part of the country that they occupy is not adapted to support a settled population, they will have to move to a part of the country more favourable for agriculture. A few of the Indians from Cumberland District have already come up to the Nepowewin, and others will follow as time goes on.

Indians poorer than ever.

For the Indians belonging to our Mission in the Churchill River District, viz., Stanley Mission, Lac la Ronge, and Montreal Lake, we expect to have a Reservation shortly allotted about thirty miles north of Prince Albert, on which they may settle in the future. It will be, therefore, a long time in the future before those Indians can be expected to be in a self-sustaining position in any sense.

To turn now to the Indians connected with our other and newer Missions—the Plain Indians. Their time of transition was short and sharp. The buffalo disappeared, and they were left destitute. They knew as little of hunting in the forest as of cultivating the ground, and they knew that if they settled they would have Government assistance, so they gathered on Reserves. Then came their first struggle to endeavour to cultivate the land while existing on the Government dole, ending in the outbreak of 1885. Since its suppression there has been quietness, and a certain amount of progress, but all, both missionaries and Government officials, interested in the future welfare of the Indians are, I think, agreed that the most effective way to elevate the race is to take the young away from their surroundings and train them in boarding and industrial schools. Even with such training we cannot expect the average Indian to be absolutely self-sustaining in one or two generations. Most men who are competent judges, and who have given their best thoughts to the subject, are satisfied to hope that in three generations, with proper culture, the Indian will be up to the standard of the white man.

The Archdeacon has now under his care at Emmanuel College, Prince Albert, several of the sons of parents who were them- Prince Albert.

selves instructed by him as children. The Rev. G. S. Winter continued to reside at Sturgeon Lake, where there is an Indian Reserve about ten miles long by six miles wide, and where the Indians are all nominally Heathen, though Mr. Winter is convinced that the majority assent to the truths of the Bible, but "they seem to be waiting for each other to make an open confession." Mr. Winter paid several visits to Montreal Lake, where the Indians, who are all Christians, cannot find sufficient accommodation for worship in the schoolroom, and are preparing to build a church. The Rev. J. Taylor is in charge of Sandy Lake, with its distant out-stations, Whitefish Lake and Stony Lake. The majority of the Indians at Sandy Lake are Christians, and there is a small but flourishing day-school held for their children. At the two out-stations, however, the Christians are few in number and the darkest Heathenism still prevails. The Mission-stations at Stanley and Big Stone River are under the care of the Rev. R. McLennan, who also visits Pelican Narrows and other Indian centres. There were seventy-four communicants at Stanley on Easter Day, 1896. The Rev. J. Hines returned to Devon. DEVON in June, 1896, after furlough, and at once applied himself to the task of erecting a new church and taking down the old building. He then began an extensive tour of the out-stations under his supervision, travelling about a thousand miles by water between July 27th and October 6th. A worker, who occupies the double position of catechist and school-teacher, has been stationed at Grand Rapids. The Rev. J. R. Settee resides at Cumberland, where there are forty-six Indian Christian families, and visits the Pas Mountain Settlements and other places. The Rev. R. Inkster Battleford makes his headquarters at BATTLEFORD, but finds that in order to minister to the spiritual needs of the Indians on the Reserve he must be "constantly on the move from camp to camp, day after day." The Rev. D. D. McDonald resides at Thunderchild's Reserve. Six candidates were confirmed there during the autumn. The Industrial School at Battleford is supported by Government. The pupils are all drawn from Reserves where the Society's work is being carried on, and Archdeacon Mackay believes that the school will be "a powerful agency, not only in civilizing the young, but in instilling into their minds the knowledge which maketh wise unto salvation." The Rev. J. R. Matheson, of Fort Pitt, feels that his work during the past year has been on a "firmer foundation" than had hitherto been the case. The number of "unbaptized adherents" is greater than ever before.

Turning now to the Missions in the Diocese of Calgary, Sarcee Reserve. Archdeacon Tims assumed charge of the SARCEE RESERVE in April, 1896, visiting the Indians from Calgary until July, when the building of the new Mission-house on the Reserve was completed. There are only two baptized Indian Christians connected with the Mission, but several others attend the services and "appear to be leaning towards Christianity." The Rev. H. W. G. Stocken, of BLACKFOOT CROSSING, writes:—

Blackfoot Indians.

For some little time we felt that, in face of the difficulties that had taken place here, our first work was, as it were, to win the confidence of our people, and to get them to forget their troubles in a feeling that the white missionaries were after all their friends, if only they would look on the matter in that light. Now, however, all that is over, and though the naturally discontented Indian mind will occasionally break out into a grumble, I think I may say there is not a man, woman, or child amongst them who does not recognize in his heart that we seek nothing but their real good. I wish I could go a step further and point to those who have "definitely come out of darkness into light"; but though, in our Father's good providence, this may not be as yet, still we know that in due time we shall reap if we faint not, and though the signs of harvest are not very distinct at present, one can at times almost fancy one sees the approaching "white" in the field.

Nine new pupils were admitted to the Boarding School. A Blackfoot service is held in one of the school-houses on Sunday mornings, and Mr. Stocken, with Mrs. Stocken's help, held a very successful night-school, with a Bible-class attached to it, for young men desiring to learn English. The difficulties under which evangelistic work is carried on are very great. Mr. Stocken says:—

A difficult parish.

Perhaps few clergy at home would care to exchange their parishes for one of 35 miles in length with 1,200 parishioners scattered over the length and breadth of it—these parishioners all speaking a language in which it is almost impossible adequately to convey the truth of religion, and in which there are no books to help them. A great deal of time and thought have been given by one or two in the field to the formulating of a syllabic system, by means of which we may place the Scriptures in the hands of the people.

The Rev. E. F. Hockley resides at FORT MCLEOD, and works amongst the 1,350 Indians on the Reserve, their homes being scattered along the banks of the winding river for fifty miles or more. The seventy children in the Boarding Schools have made encouraging progress during the year. Mr. Hockley was also in charge of the St. Paul's Mission amongst the Blood Indians.

IV. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

THE Rev. and Mrs. G. Holmes came home in September, 1896. The Rev. W. G. White was married to Miss Wooster, who was sent to the Mission by the Winnipeg Women's Association.

Bishop Young was unable to undertake his usual visitation of the Missions in his diocese owing to the necessity of attending the Provincial and General Synods at Regina and Winnipeg. He succeeded, however, in seeing all the missionaries with one exception.

The Rev. W. G. White has been appointed by the Bishop to take charge of LESSER SLAVE LAKE during the absence on furlough of the Rev. G. Holmes. Mr. White speaks of the Boarding School, which now contains twenty-eight children, as one of the most promising branches of the work. Two visits were paid by Mr. White to his old station—White Fish Lake—where his brother (Mr. A. S. White) was placed by the Bishop in temporary charge. The services at this station are held in a kitchen. The Rev. C. R. Weaver, of Wapuskaw, reports a good attendance at the services, and that "there seems a better spirit abroad amongst the people." Many of the men have substituted the singing of hymns for "a very foolish noise" they were in the habit of making when on their trips. Ten Indian children are being brought up under the care of Mr. and Mrs. Weaver, who are assisted in this work by Miss Sophie Weaver, a sister of the former. No Annual Letter has been received from the Rev. H. Robinson, of Shaftesbury, on Upper Peace Lake, who had the sorrow of losing his wife in July, 1896, as already mentioned.

At FORT CHIPEWYAN, the Rev. J. R. Lucas was engaged in the compilation of a Chipewyan dictionary. A large number of Indians visited the station in order to dispose of their furs. Some members of one large party, which came from a distance of 160 miles, had, Mr. Lucas believes, never heard the Gospel before. The Rev. M. Scott was absent from FORT VERMILION during the summer of 1896, having been elected delegate to represent the diocese at the Provincial and General Synods. He was, however, prevented by illness from attending the latter.

V. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

BISHOP REEVE visited Winnipeg in August, 1896, to attend the Provincial and General Synods, Mrs. Reeve remaining at Fort Simpson during his absence; and Archdeacon R. Macdonald arrived at Winnipeg in September on furlough. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. I. O. Stringer returned to the Mission in the summer of 1896 after furlough in Eastern Canada; and the Rev. and Mrs. W. Spendlove returned after furlough in this country in April, 1897.

Bishop Reeve, who resides at FORT SIMPSON, reports "a greater desire for instruction" on the part of the Indians at that station.

The Rev. T. J. Marsh continues at HAY RIVER. Mr. Marsh's sister, Miss Marsh, acts as matron of the Diocesan School, and a new helper, Miss Tims, has been added to the school staff. Ten candidates were confirmed at Fort Norman in July, 1896, making a total of twenty-two in two years. The Bishop says that Mr. C. Camsell, who is in charge, has won the affection of the Indians. A new church is in course of erection. Archdeacon McDonald, after completing the translation of the whole Bible into the Tukudh language, left FORT MCPHERSON (Peel River), as already mentioned, for a much-needed furlough, having been in poor health for some time. The Indians of the Peel River district were reduced to great straits through the scarcity of provisions during the winter of 1895. A warm welcome was given to the Rev. I. O. Stringer when he returned to Fort McPherson in the autumn of 1896, after spending the winter in Eastern Canada, accompanied by his newly-married wife and a lay helper, Mr. Young. The Bishop placed a lay worker, Mr. Webb, at Fort Wrigley in the summer of 1896, who reports that the Indians are anxious to learn, and have invited him to visit them at their homes in the woods.

Mr. C. E. Whittaker, of the Canadian C.M. Association, spent most of the winter of 1895–96 at Herschel Island, and found many open doors for work amongst the benighted Eskimo, whose standard of civilization is still very low, and whose temptations are, alas! increased through the importation of alcoholic liquors into their midst. The Bishop writes:—

A sod house used as church.

> Mr. Whittaker was kindly and hospitably treated by the whalers, with whom Sunday services were held on the deck of the largest steamer. He had also opportunities of meeting and teaching a large number of Eskimo. Learning and singing hymns was one of the modes of instruction most acceptable. The little sod house which we bought last year was sometimes packed with men, women, and children.

VI. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

ARCHDEACON AND MRS. T. H. CANHAM came home in October, 1896. The Rev. and Mrs. J. Hawksley, who came home from the Mackenzie River Diocese in September, 1895, returned to the Mission for work in the Selkirk Diocese in May, 1897.

Bishop Bompas was cheered by the arrival in July, 1896, of a reinforcement sent by the Canadian C.M. Association, and consisting of the Rev. H. A. Naylor (son of Archdeacon Naylor of Montreal) with his wife and Mr. F. F. Flewelling. The former has been assigned work among the miners, and is mainly supported by a grant from the Colonial and Continental Church Society. Consequently his name has not been placed on the list of C.M.S. missionaries.

Buxton.

The Bishop made his headquarters at BUXTON, on the Upper Yukon River, a station which is, he considers, "the main centre of the diocesan work." The Rev. B. Totty and his wife removed from Fort Selkirk in the spring of 1896, and took up their residence in the Bishop's house.

RAMPART HOUSE, Archdeacon Canham's station on the Porcupine River was not occupied by a European missionary during

Selkirk. the winter of 1896-7. SELKIRK, on the Pelly River, was, like Rampart House, without a missionary during the winter of 1896-7. Mr. F. F. Flewelling, the new recruit already mentioned, was, when the last reports from the Mission were received, at Klondak, a great mining centre about fifty miles south of Buxton; and Mr. Bowen at Circle City, some two hundred miles to the north. Fort Yukon is in American territory, and therefore in the diocese of Bishop Rowe, of the American Episcopal Church. No provision having been made, however, for the spiritual care of the Indians, Bishop Bompas spent six weeks among them in the summer of 1896, in company with Archdeacon Canham, then on his way to England. They found the Indians "still zealous in attendance on daily services and school, and anxious for instruction." The Bishop writes:—

> It was a pleasure to me to hold a daily afternoon class of middle-aged men, at which several chapters of the New Testament were daily read by them with intelligence and interest, in their own tongue, by way of exercise and at their own request. For the first two weeks I was mostly engaged in schooling from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Afterwards I was partly relieved by the arrival of the schoolmistress at Rampart House.

Mrs. Bompas came home on furlough during the autumn. This is only her third visit to England since she joined the Mission twenty-two years ago, and the Bishop has remained at his post during the whole period, and indeed has only once visited England since he first went out in 1865, and that only for a few months in order to be consecrated.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours; and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a Missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division; in his diocese, with the exception of one station, Alert Bay, the C.M.S. Mission Stations are situated.

Diocesan Conference.

THE second Triennial Diocesan Conference for the Diocese of Caledonia was held at Metlakahtla on August 11th to 13th, 1896. The address of Bishop Ridley was printed in full in the C.M. Intelligencer for January, 1897. It touched upon the relations of the Diocese to the General Synod of the Canadian Church, and upon the Bishop's views regarding the expediency of provincial organization for the three dioceses of British Columbia. The following paragraphs relating to the necessity of spiritual culture on the part of missionaries, to the evidences of progress in the missionary work of the diocese, and to an unevangelized district, may be quoted in this Report:—

Spiritual culture.

Remember we have not the stimulating effect of Christian intercourse like the home clergy. There is much less in our environment elevating to heart or mind. Intercourse with God in prayer, meditation, and the habitual study of His Word will nourish our spiritual life, and we may, without reserve, expect special grace through these channels; because for Christ's sake we are cut off from the advantages we have left behind. Unless we live warily, we sink so low that we cannot lift others heavenward, at which point our fitness for our exposed position amid Heathenism (the Devil's realm) ceases.

Evidences of progress.

Incomplete returns make it difficult to compare one period with another. In 1893, the date of our first Diocesan Conference, the number of baptized Indians (including Kwagutls) was 997, according to the C.M.S. Report, which slightly understated the facts; now it is 1,346, or an increase of 34 per cent. The number of communicants has risen in the three years from 184 to 366, which in a large measure is due to the volunteer labours of our diocesan Church Army. The Indian cash contributions to Church work amounted last year to $780, and their free labour, in church and other buildings, was certainly not less in value than $1,000, but the returns under this head are defective. No returns have been received from Port Essington or Simpson, or the figures would be still more encouraging. In 1893 those stations were included. Four new churches have been built and two parsonages since our last Conference. We have been unable to resuscitate our Preparandi Institution, but we have an additional large Industrial Institution for fifty boys and girls, which may take its place. We have also an additional boarding-school for whites and half-breeds. Only at Fort Simpson is there a debt on any institution in the diocese, and that is less than $800 on the new church. A united effort ought to see that paid off before the next Conference. One of the best signs of life is the advance to Gishgagas. Let it be often remembered in our prayers.

"The black patch in the diocese."

The black patch in the diocese is the Stickine River district, stretching beyond the Pacific watershed. Twice I tried in vain to reach the tribes there, but succeeded only this year. They are as ignorant of God there as the Tsmshians were when first met with. I spent time enough among those Kaiya Dheni (or Tinne) to collect material for a primer in their language. They begged me to live among them or send them a "leader to good." Only one thing in love and duty restrains me myself from breaking fresh ground there. It will be the diocesan post of honour to the man who goes there. I almost despair of getting further aid from England for extension, though it is a reflexion on the Church so to speak. What shall we do, brethren? We must make this a subject of prayer and heart-searching.

Visit to Stickine River district.

The Bishop made a journey up the Stickine River in May, 1896, and spent a fortnight at a station some 180 miles from the coast. There he was occupied fully twelve hours daily in studying the language; he preached to a motley crowd of Indians and half-breeds, of some of whom the drunken volubility was disturbing, and he instructed some children. He baptized two boys, the first sacrament ever celebrated in that wild district. The father of these boys was a European who was at the time 200 miles distant, but had left instructions that, in the extremely unlikely event of a clergyman of the Church of England visiting the country, his children should be baptized. The Bishop gives a pathetic picture of the ignorance of these poor lads and of their half-breed mother:—

Pathetic ignorance of half-breed children.

I used to set the blue-eyed four-year-old on my knee and tell him of the child Jesus, of His dear love and His precious death for him. His eyes, full of wonder, were fixed on mine, and he would say: "Mother never told me this. Why did not mother tell me?" I knew why: she did not know. When I told him God loved him, he would say, "What is it?" and then, "Where is He? Who told Him about me? Is He older than you? Did you see Him?" The mother was almost as simple as her child, and as ignorant of divine things.

The Committee have indicated their readiness to place a missionary in this district should a suitable man and the necessary means be provided.

The Bishop came home in February, 1897, in order to attend the Lambeth Conference. His coming was somewhat earlier than he had planned, but the change was rendered expedient by a providential event to be immediately noticed.

Death of Mrs. Ridley.

Mrs. Ridley, after sharing her husband's missionary labours and perils and sorrows and joys for twenty-one years, first in India and since 1879 in British Columbia, died on December 6th, 1896. God's grace in her was indeed very manifest, and her Christ-like life had a marvellous influence on the Indians for whose conversion and edification she laboured with unstinted zeal and love. The following extract is from the Bishop's most touching account of the scenes which attended her triumphant departure, and his record of the remarks of Indian Christians made to him after her decease:—

Chapel full of Indians night and day praying for her recovery.

On Tuesday, December 1st, crowds of Indians hung round her bed, and she was delighted. Wednesday she was a little weaker, but had a small set of five Indian women in for informal instruction. Thursday afternoon she was placed in a chair to share the Bible-reading I am used to give to all, and she spoke beautifully on Romans viii. 17. All this time the chapel was full of Indians, night and day, praying for her recovery. We could hear their singing, and she was much touched by their love.

That night another attack came on, and we thought she was again dying. After the choking was over, she desired to take leave of all. She first blessed all our lady-workers, and commended Miss Davies to Miss West's care. All were weeping, she alone calm. "Kiss me," she said to me, and she held my face close to her, when she into my ear privately spoke words of love and encouragement. I can only remember, and cannot write beyond this which I can venture on: "The work of God must not suffer through my departure. Shall it?" She saw our Chinese cook standing near with bent head. It is the Cha Li I have before written of, when he was the doctor's servant. Some one said to him, "Mrs. R. speaks." She then again said, "My Cha Li, my dear Cha Li." He ran to her side, knelt down, kissed her hand, and rained his tears on it, only to kiss them away. At the same moment one of our old house-boys (now with a family of his own), hearing her say, "My own dear boy, my son, Herbert," was likewise overcome, and, six foot as he is, he burst into tears as he pressed his face on her other hand. Immediately behind her was a young Kitikshan maiden, a tall and powerful girl of about eighteen years of age. To her she turned slightly, saying, "Mary is such a blessing to me," which convulsed the dear creature, who owes her salvation from savagery at Hazelton to the saint whom she has often of late borne along in her arms. Four races at the same moment held her in their hands and mingled their tears as she blessed them all. Besides all the Mission party kneeling around, the room, a very large and airy one, was covered with silently praying crowds of Indians. My heart was like melting wax as I saw such fruits of her long and loving labour and their wonderful love for her. At one moment we thought she was near the last gasp, but again she slightly rallied. From that time onward to her death all work in the town was suspended. For the three days and nights when she lay a-dying, often nearly choked, the prayer-meeting in the chapel adjoining our house never once flagged. It was always full, and the overflow in other rooms. Every ten minutes messengers passed from the bedside to the supplicating crowds, reporting her actual condition. They had changed their petition when they saw it was God's will to take her, and prayed that she might have a peaceful, painless end, and that I might be upheld by the everlasting Arms. Many souls found the light during the death-struggle. In her death she, by her beautiful and tender words, and patient endurance of agony at times through choking, drew more souls to Jesus than ever. It was victory on victory, triumph on triumph. Quite two hundred souls shared in the blessing, including our new lady-helpers.

"The work of God must not suffer."

"Four races mingled their tears as she blessed them all."

"Victory on victory."

I have given her body to the Indians to do entirely what they like with it, and they have taken their treasure as a most precious trust. They have sent off a canoe to fetch the Archdeacon, another for Mr. Gurd, and a boat for Mr. Stephenson. I have just heard that hundreds of Indians at Fort Simpson are keeping up prayer continually for her recovery; they have not heard yet of the end.

What I have written will have a pathetic interest for you, and call out your prayers on behalf of the bereaved people and myself.

If you ever see a copy of the notes I have made of what the Indians have said to me to-day, I am sure you will agree with me in the conviction that only the Holy Spirit could have taught these dear people as they are taught. It reads like inspired poetry.

"Only the Holy Spirit could have taught them."

Here I will add a saying or two, and cease writing. Hannah said: "God has driven the nail in, blow after blow; quite in; it hurts, but it fastens. . . . She passed into the breakers from the shore, but has gone up on the further side, beyond the dark arch, into the peace of angels."

The mother of Henry said: "We see fulfilled after many years the first promise of the Gospel among the Tsimshians. It burnt nearly out when she brought her torch. She held it aloft. She never let it drop. It never shone so before, and most splendidly as she lay down to die, her work done. She never kept back from us provision (zilōm) for our rough voyage in life. She saw us lying in the stones and dirt, and put her pure hands under us to lift us up."

S. L. said: "I have most reason to grieve. When in my sin all kicked me and trod me under their feet, she alone came to me and took me in her loving arms and told me to rise up again and walk with God. She was the humblest soul we ever saw, and God has exalted her. She saw no one too bad to love and help."

Nansh A. said to me: "Your anchor is now cast in these waters. You can never leave us."

Roger said: "She has gone from the waves to the top of the rock. . . . We are orphaned. Thou God art also our Father, and wilt help those who help us sinful Tsimshians." He added in his prayer, "God bless the Society and bless the Church which sent so pure a soul to land on our shores and walk like an angel among us."

C. Powell said: "Our mother gave her life for us; you now give her flesh to our keeping. Our hearts open wide at the thought of our rich charge. We feel it more than white men think. Her grave will be holy. Our children will have a place to learn how to live, and—what is new to us—how to die. Our children will hear of the humble life of the great chief-tainess, who lifted dirty Tsimshians up and led them to Jesus."

"Her grave will be holy."

Albert L. said: "Jesus said, 'I am the way'; now have we seen pure feet on it—a humble soul walking straight along it. We can now only see her back; her face is in the glory. . . . She kept all the commandments of God. We never saw it so before."

But I must stop, though there is pleasure in dwelling on the story of her great love and complete self-abnegation.

Reinforcements.

Two lady workers joined the staff in time to be witnesses of the solemn and affecting scene described above, and to share the privilege of being specially commended to the Saviour's grace and enabling in the last petitions of the dying saint. They were Miss Rose Margaret Davies, of Highbury Training Home; Miss Helena Jackson, of The Willows; both of whom sailed in October, 1896; and Miss Bertha Davies, sister of the former, also joined the Mission and sailed in April, 1897.

Archdeacon and Mrs. W. H. Collison returned to the Mission after furlough, during which the Archdeacon had held the important position of Secretary of the Hibernian C.M. Association, in October, 1896; and Dr. and Mrs. Vernon Ardagh, who came home in July, 1896, returned in April, 1897.

Metlakahtla.

At METLAKAHTLA, the Rev. W. Hogan states, the communicants often exceed fifty in number. Many of the Indians carry portions of the Scriptures in the vernacular in their pockets, and show an anxiety to be more fully instructed in God's Word. Mr. Hogan mentions also that the Evangelistic Band started off on one of the coldest days in December, 1896, on a ten days' tour to a distant village, to pray and sing and preach. The Government schools at Metlakahtla have been placed under Bishop Ridley's control, and the number of pupils has greatly increased, nearly trebled. Hydahs, Nishgas, Kitiksheans, and Tsimshians, and these of different ages and capacities, make the work of education "real collar work," as Mr. Hogan says, but fruitful, if faithfully done, in great results. The Bishop in one of his deeply interesting letters, in which he gave some striking particulars illustrating the characteristics of the Indians, mentioned a beautiful remark made by one of them when the news of the Ku-cheng massacres reached Metlakahtla :—

"Real collar work.'

> No missionary can be dull among these Tsimshian Indians, unless, failing in his duty, he keeps them at arm's length. Where they give their confidence they give no rest. They have an alertness of mind and purpose which forbids stagnation. This is my seventeenth year among them, and yet I rarely pass a day without hearing something of interest or being presented with some strange problem to puzzle over. . . . When news of the Ku-cheng massacres came, how pitifully these Indians at our daily prayers besought the Lord to have mercy on the Chinese! "Say again, dear Jesus, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.' Oh, gracious Spirit, Thou art not quenched by blood. Let it make Thy garden soil strong to grow Chinese believers in."

Prayer of Indians on hearing of Ku-cheng massacres.

The Indian Girls' Home has twenty-five children, of ages varying between six and sixteen. They are trained in all branches of domestic work, attending the village school for book-learning. A new church was completed and opened at Inverness.

Kitkatla.

The signs of material progress at the village of KITKATLA are very marked. The Rev. R. W. Gurd says :—

> The whole village looks quite different. All the old roads, with their dirt and uncomfortable narrowness, all the old dwellings, associated as they were with active Heathenism, have been exchanged for wide, spacious roads and comfortable homesteads. It is a pleasing sight to witness these Indians working gratuitously and willingly, day after day, in improving their village and homes and building their church. Christianity is a social power amongst them. Our new church is now complete, and very comfortable it looks; the reredos, pulpit, communion-rail, reading-desk, lectern, and font, all made by the Natives.

Testimonies to changes wrought by the Gospel among the Coast Indians.

Captain Walbran, of the Government s.s. Quadra, who has been cruising round these parts lately, wrote to the public press in terms of warm approval of the work of Christian teachers on this coast.

Mr. Chas. Todd, the Government agent for this district, a man of considerable intelligence, when visiting us last winter, stated that he "knew of no village which had made such rapid and manifest improvement as Kitkatla."

And Bishop Ridley wrote at the beginning of 1896 :—

Last month I spent some days among the Kitkatlas, going by the steamer that was bound there, for a wonder, and returning by a hired sailing-boat. On board the steamer I met an accomplished man on his way to Victoria, and greatly appreciated his society. He was a professor travelling for the furtherance of science. Before we arrived at Kitkatla he told me he had visited all the Presbyterian Missions in Alaska and the Missions of the Methodists and of the Church along the coast in this diocese. After very careful inspection, he came to the conclusion that our system is the best for the Natives, as it elevated them all round, besides taking special pains in education. I was not aware he was a Methodist at the time, and value his testimony the more highly because unlikely to lean in our favour.

Great was his surprise as we first saw the Kitkatla village. Only about half of it could be seen from the ship's deck, and yet there in sight stood twenty-four new houses being built, and on a spur in a fine situation stood the frame of a substantial church roofed in, and men busy working at it. I grant I was highly pleased, but my companion was profuse in his admiration. "Such a sight I never saw," said he ; "that is astonishing !"

Change in character of Chief Sheuksh.

But the change observed in its Chief, Sheuksh, is still more remarkable. "His very looks and features indicate what he is—a whole-hearted believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. Those who knew him in the days of darkness—Sheuksh, the autocrat, the severe, the proud, the lion—cannot but extol the power which has transformed him into Sheuksh the gentle, the true, the lamb." Ten adults, the last to forsake Heathenism in the village, were baptized by Mr. Gurd in January, 1897. A wide-spread desire, Mr. Gurd says, exists for knowledge, especially the knowledge of Divine things. Bible-classes for men, women, and youths were all well attended.

The work at KINCOLITH was carried on by Mr. W. E. Collison, son of Archdeacon Collison, during the latter's absence at home.

Aiyansh.

The Rev. J. B. McCullagh, of AIYANSH, on the Naas River, had a long and dangerous illness in the winter of 1896–7, but Mrs. McCullagh's unremitting care and excellent nursing, as he gratefully testifies, were blessed to his recovery. The Bishop visited Aiyansh in the autumn of 1895, and described the surprising progress made in the development of the place :—

Arriving at Aiyansh, on the Naas River, after inspecting the Indians' steam saw-mill on the opposite shore two miles below, I climbed up the steep bank, expecting to find Aiyansh as I last saw it, but it was nowhere to be found. I stood in speechless amazement. All things had become new. Instead of the old narrow trail in front of a single row of huts I saw fine broad roads, with really beautiful cottages dotted about, set in the lovely autumnal foliage, each with a large garden separating house from house so widely that a fire in one could not damage its next neighbours.

"I stood in speechless amazement."

The little old Mission-house, built, I think, and furnished by Mr. McCullagh himself, was quite lost amidst the well-planned adjuncts. Within and without it is now a perfect model. The house stands close to the river's bank. Looking from it northward, the lofty mountains hedge in the intervening rich plain called Aiyansh, meaning evergreen; before me stretched the long new road ending at the church under construction. It has a deep, broad ditch on either side, from which the soil cast up makes a roadway that must be always dry. The trees, hewn into square sills, lie on the ground ready for making the side-walk. It is, I think—or will be—the best piece of road-making in the diocese. The women did it all of their own free will, to make it easier for men to go to church. Remember, women are not drudges here to the men.

On the east side of the church, if my bearings are correct, stands the prettiest school-house I have seen. The interior arrangements and external decorations of all these new buildings, private and public, expressed the ideas of a single mind. It is a model village, planned by an artist's eye and pleasing in every feature. It expresses the thought of a Christian, the civilization that springs from the resurrection, apart from which in our day solid progress is impossible.

A model village.

The Indians themselves bear the entire cost of this material advance. The saw-mill is theirs, and they alone work it. All is done by them excepting what Mr. McCullagh does in designing and superintending. Not one penny of C.M.S. money has been spent excepting on the first Mission-house. The Government gave a grant to the school, and the S.P.C.K., I hope, will grant £50 towards the church. All the rest is done by the people on the spot. Nor is this a singular instance; it is the rule.

In travelling on the river I stop at every village. In the Christian villages one meets troops of healthy, well-clad children who fearlessly meet our gaze. The dwellings are either new or in good repair, and full of modern furniture; the gardens fenced in; the roads not mere tracks. One sees signs of comfort, cleanliness, and ambition; one hears the school-bell and whirr of the sewing machine, and after the day's work done music right and left, unless drowned by the volume of sound from the public hall, where the band practises each week-day evening all the winter through almost.

Contrast between heathen and Christian villages.

The Heathen are dirty, ragged, dispirited, and jealous of the Christians. To avoid treading in filth one must walk on the crooked trails with circumspection. The children stand at a distance huddled together. I have seen two, even in the biting blast of winter, wrapped in a single piece of blanket, their only covering! The houses are rotting, propped up, and patched. Squalid within and dismal without, they truly show the moral and physical condition of their ignorant and superstitious inhabitants. These cling with a passionate resolve to the yaok, or potlatch. "That is our mountain," say they, "our only joy, dearer than life. To prison and death we will go rather than yield." Yet this is their ruin. It is impossible to heighten the contrast between the Christless and the Christian people of the same tribes. Great is our present reward in seeing the elevating, as well as saving, effects of a pure Gospel. The things endured in the process are forgotten in the joy that abideth.

The adherents increased from 83 in 1894, to 150 at the close of 1896, and during the year under review sixteen adults were baptized. The chief event of the year was the opening of the new church—Holy Trinity—on October 28th. Judging from the photographs of the exterior and interior which have been received, the building does immense credit to Mr. McCullagh, who was both architect and builder. The saw-mill, owned and worked by the Indians, made the work financially possible, as some 90,000 feet of timber was prepared on the spot, which it would have cost £500 to convey up from the coast. At the opening service there were Indians present from Kincolith, Lak-Kalzap, and Giatwangak, but greatly to the disappointment of all, the Bishop was prevented by the late arrival of the steamer at

Opening of new church.

Metlakahtla from attending to perform the act of dedication. Mr. McCullagh thus describes the service:—

When the hour for opening arrived we all started from the Mission-house in procession, singing a hymn to the music of the bands which preceded us. The doors of the church were opened with due ceremony; and as the people entered they were shown to their seats by the churchwardens. There were more than 400 present, but there was ample accommodation and to spare. The grant of Prayer-books made by the S.P.C.K. had not arrived, so at the last moment I had to start printing the order of service—special psalms, chants, collects, &c., all in the vernacular—and just completed an edition of 300 the evening before we opened the church. The psalms were read in the old and, to my mind, very profitable way by the minister and choir and people. The most unique feature of the service was the offertory. Our alms-dish was a large circular brass tray two feet in diameter, which I delivered to Mr. W. E. Collison (our reader for the occasion) at the communion-rails. This dish he bore down the aisle while the churchwarden, with small dishes took up the offertory from the pews on either side, transferring the contents of their dishes to the larger dish at each step. Each person's contribution was tied up in a little canvas bag. As this process went on I noticed that Mr. Collison had to straighten and strengthen his back, and on his return he moved like a man who had a heavy load. I had to be very careful in receiving the alms-dish from him, and found it necessary to call Mr. Price to my assistance in placing it upon the communion-table. The offertory was for the payment of the labourers who had been working on the church. It amounted to $1,389.45, and, added to the amount realized by our native women's working party, viz., £69. 16s., nearly meets the labour bill cent for cent. After the offertory we proceeded to the Communion, and about eighty-eight of those present, chiefly Aiyansh people, participated.

"A heavy load."

I can hardly describe to you how affected I was on this occasion. I was overwhelmed with a sense of my own utter nothingness and unworthiness, and of God's goodness, love, and power, and the very real and present working of the Holy Spirit. In a moment like this how precious Christ is to one's heart! There is no need for words between the soul and Him; the soul is satisfied with loving: "Lord, Thou knowest all things; Thou knowest that I love Thee."

The awakening at HAZELTON, on the Skeena River, referred to in last and previous years' Reports, still manifests itself in an earnest desire on the part of the people to know the Scriptures, and in honest endeavours to order their lives by the precepts of the same. The Rev. J. Field says that Heathenism appears likely at an early date to be "entirely swamped" in these regions. The services and Bible-classes are largely attended, and many visit the missionary seeking explanation of difficult passages in God's Word. There are some extravagances to which the people are prone; they have a special liking for the big drum—a liking acquired from imitation of the Salvation Army on the coast,—and Mr. Field has some difficulty in restraining them from introducing it in the services of the church. Twenty-eight adults were baptized, and Bishop Ridley confirmed twenty-five candidates in May, 1896. At GIATWANGAK the Rev. A. E. Price baptized six adults.

Hazelton

The Rev. J. H. Keen's work at MASSETT, on Queen Charlotte's Island, is purely pastoral, as the Indian community there have for the past ten years been professing Christians; but, like many other bodies of nominal Christians, they show a sad lack of stability of purpose and of moral stamina; they are emotional and impulsive, and are easily tempted to do what they know and acknowledge to be wrong. Mr. Keen thus describes a Massett Sunday morning service:—

Sunday morning service.

At the ringing of the first bell at 10.30, the band of workers known as the "Church Army" take up their stand in the village street and hold a short service, ostensibly with a view to gathering the people to church—really because they like the exercise. When the second bell sounds they proceed to the church and take their seats with the congregation. When the bell stops my wife begins a voluntary on the organ, and the two churchwardens, bearing their staves of office, join the choir and myself in the vestry. I may explain that on my arrival here I found the choir in surplices, and have seen no sufficient reason for discontinuing them; on the contrary, I think I have observed that they conduce to order and reverence. We take up our position in the chancel, and service proceeds as regularly and orderly as in a village church in England. The hymns and canticles are sung in English, for the hymns in the vernacular were so unpopular that I thought it unwise to insist on their use, while the canticles in Haida garb became, for musical purposes, almost impracticable. All the rest of the service is in Haida. The lessons are read by my day-school teacher and one of the choirmen alternately. We now have in the vernacular the Book of Genesis, a portion of the Psalms, the first, third, and fourth Gospels, the Acts, and the first Epistle to the Corinthians, so that we can secure considerable variety, though we cannot as yet follow the order of the calendar.

Alert Bay.

The Bishop of Columbia, in whose diocese ALERT BAY and its out-stations on Vancouver Island are situated, visited and encouraged the workers in April, 1896, and confirmed eighteen Indians. The Rev. A. J. Hall mentions with thankfulness that all those confirmed in 1888 by Bishop Ridley, seven in number, had remained faithful to their Lord. The Boys' Industrial School, under Mr. A. W. Corker, has an average attendance of twelve. Most of the pupils read and write both English and their own vernacular; they commit to memory many Scripture texts, and the workers are encouraged by signs of a work of grace in the hearts of some of them. Mr. Hall, assisted by William Brotchie, the valued native teacher, translated the Acts of the Apostles, and revised the Kwagutl translation of the Prayer-Book, and both these are being printed by the S.P.C.K. The heathen Indians are enamoured with the institution of the "pot-latch," which is common to all the tribes on this coast—a periodical giving away of property, which fosters pride and improvidence, and affords occasions for many excesses. One aged chief said to Mr. Hall, "We will all observe Sunday, come to church, and send our children to school, if you will not oppose our potlatch." The practice is illegal, and exposes to a penalty of imprisonment for six months, but the authorities are unwilling to convict, doubtless hoping for the desired results rather from the influences of Christian education than from the discipline of punishment. Happily, most of the young men among the Indians desire to see the custom abolished. Miss E. G. Beeching, who spent several months of the year, together with Miss C. Carleton, at Gwāyasdums, and at Gwāya on the mainland, the summer and autumn resort of the Indians of Gwāyasdums for fishing, writes of one visit to the former place at the beginning of 1896 :—

A hurtful institution

We spent a very happy time with our people, although few in number, the greater part of the tribe having gone to a neighbouring village to "potlatch," which system I cannot attempt to describe ; only this I know, it is one of the greatest hindrances to the work, and that some of the most sinful practices and unmentionable sins are the outcome of it. It is the idol of the Indian, and involves him in all manner of difficulties in the way of debt.

They conducted a school, which the children attended well, and though the hands and faces of these pupils were "not too clean," and their clothing was something of a "pretence," yet they behaved well and showed by their manifest appreciation of kindness that they had "warm little hearts." Through these children an influence was gained over their parents, and a weekly class for women was formed. One of the ladies writes : "Heathenism and sin seems as impregnable as the mountains around us, but we know that these will melt like wax at the presence of the Lord" ; and both render thankful testimony to the all-sufficiency and faithfulness of their covenant God in circumstances of much loneliness :—

"Wanted for nothing."

We have wanted for nothing, either temporally or spiritually. He has given us joy, yes, great joy in our service, and daily fed us from His precious Word, and in all times of discouragement has been our Stay and Comfort, giving us the assurance that He will gather out a people for Himself from among these tribes.

Reports of Special Funds.

REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

THE interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources; and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1896 to the following District Church Councils for the support of seventy-three evangelists :—

	Rs.
Calcutta Native Church Council	350
Santal ,, ,, ,,	200
Madras ,, ,, ,,	720
Bezwada ,, ,, ,,	324
Ellore ,, ,, ,,	300
Tinnevelly ,, ,, ,,	2000
Cottayam ,, ,, ,,	470
Mavelicara ,, ,, ,,	640

Working from eight centres, the fifteen evangelists employed in Travancore and Cochin visited 4,538 houses, conversed with 149,737 persons, and distributed and sold 995 portions of Scripture, and 1,222 tracts.

The report says :—

Early in January the evangelists accompanied the pilgrims to Sabarimala, preaching to them on the way and at their halting stages. They went up this time to the very top of the sacred hill through thick forests, amid much opposition and privation, under the leadership of the Rev. T. K. Ninan, much to the astonishment of the pilgrims, who thought that the evangelists would be devoured by tigers if they dared go up this hill. The Rev. K. M. Mathan also went with them part of the way. They started in two companies by the two different routes taken by the pilgrims, meeting at a general rendezvous. At one place where they halted for the night, the Evangelists tried to preach, when the pilgrims shouted with great noise saying, "Oh, Ayappa, we are troubled by these people here in this forest also, they will not leave us; wherever we are gathered together, there these people come, give them their reward." Then a large number of people came round, dancing and beating drums and threatening to attack them, and the Evangelists were quite overwhelmed at the vast number of people thus excited; still they stood firm, trusting and praying to God for protection, and after a time these furious pilgrims quieted down, whereupon the Evangelists explained to them the way of Salvation through Jesus Christ till midnight. On the next morning they moved on to the last stage of their journey.

The next movement was to ascend the hill where the temple is situated. The building is a small one, but it is surrounded by thick granite walls. All reached this place by the evening, and there was a vast concourse of people lying in all directions, the place having been cleared for the purpose. The pilgrims have to make offerings at three places here. When they saw the Evangelists they were quite exasperated, and several came up to them and threw stones at them, one of which struck a volunteer worker, who had gone up with the Evangelists, on the head and blood ran out; finding, therefore, it no longer safe to stay among these enraged people, they returned in the morning, and came down, and waited for the return of the pilgrims and worked among them on their way back.

PALLAM.—In visiting Hindu houses the Evangelists met with much encouragement. Many received them with joy, and several bought Scripture portions at their hands. When a sick man heard the story of the Saviour healing the sick, he requested them to pray for him, and joined reverently in the prayer and promised to read the Gospel he had bought. Two Chogan families asked them to go to them oftener and to tell them the glad tidings, for they were convinced of the truth of the message the Evangelists delivered. A Brahman rebuked the rest of the audience and said there was much truth in what was being preached and it was not to be despised, but was worth examining. At Ochira some Sudras were heard to remark that the Christians were daily growing in strength, but the Hindus were becoming feeble and indifferent with regard to their religion. At Tripponithara the Evangelists were not only laughed at, but were also pelted with stones and other missiles; but, on the other hand, some continued hearing them, even when they were compelled to go to receive the donation, remarking that it was far better to hear these preachers than to receive what the Puthan offered. A Sudra said he was examining the Christian religion and on that account his parents were against him, but he hoped that by the grace of God he would be able to know the true way of Salvation.

CHANGANASHERI.—A marked improvement in the tone of the Roman Catholics of Changanasheri towards the Evangelists is joyfully noticed by them. The fine opportunity to preach the Gospel to hundreds of people of different castes at the bi-weekly market of this place was availed of by the Evangelists. A Namburi Brahman having heard of the sacrifice of Jesus asked for a Gospel, and it was given him; he is now diligently reading, and when the Evangelists went to him again he asked them for the explanation of his doubts. Another Brahman heard them quietly, notwithstanding the expostulations of another, and said he would pray to the Saviour they preached, and would accept Him as his Guru. They gave him a copy of St. John's Gospel.

NOTICE TO TREASURERS AND SECRETARIES OF ASSOCIATIONS.

THE COMMITTEE OF THE CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY beg to remind the Treasurers or Secretaries of Associations that the Society's Financial year ends on the 31st of March.

It is earnestly requested that those Associations which close their Accounts before the 31st of March will make their final remittance and forward their Contribution Lists immediately after closing.

Remittances may be made through local Bankers, and their correspondents in London, to the account of the Society at WILLIAMS DEACON AND MANCHESTER AND SALFORD BANK, Limited, 20 Birchin Lane, London, in which case it is requested that advice of the same be sent by post addressed to the Lay Secretary.

Or Drafts may be forwarded direct to the C.M. House, payable to D. MARSHALL LANG, Esq., Lay Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, and crossed WILLIAMS DEACON AND MANCHESTER AND SALFORD BANK, Limited, acct. C.M.S.

Post Office Orders should be drawn on the General Post Office, and be made payable to D. MARSHALL LANG, Esq.

Sums remaining unpaid on the 31st of March are not shown in the Accounts as Balances. The Contribution Lists should therefore agree in total with the amounts actually paid to the Parent Society to that date.

Lists and Accounts (if not sent with the money) must be forwarded not later than April 9th. If not so sent the Lists are very liable to be excluded from the Report. At the head of the List should be furnished the name of the Diocese, Archdeaconry, Deanery and County in which each parish is situate. It is very essential that this information should be given accurately to ensure correct entry in Annual Report. The date at which the Accounts of the Association are closed, and the names of the Local Officers, should be specified. Should no officers be named it will be assumed that they remain the same as in the previous Report, and the List will be so printed. Where the Account or the List is a printed one, two copies should be forwarded.

The Contribution Lists should be written legibly to avoid mistakes in printing, and made up in the manner in which the same are printed in the Parent Society's Report. Forms of Account and ruled paper may be had on application at the Society's House.

Where an Association has Branches connected with it, the Money and Accounts of the Branches must be forwarded to the Secretary of the Association some time before the date for forwarding to London. When this is not done within a reasonable time, such Branches shall be considered as self-excluded.

Branch Associations should in every case, where practicable, forward their Money and Lists through the Association with which they are connected, and not direct to the Parent Society.

Particulars of Appropriated Contributions and Contributions to Special Funds are printed with the Lists to which they respectively belong, and the totals thereof only transferred to their respective Accounts. All such particulars should be received not later than April 9th in each year, in order that the amounts contributed can be credited to the Ledger Accounts concerned before the Society's Accounts for the year are balanced.

The Committee take this opportunity of requesting that Local Treasurers will remit to the Parent Committee at the end of every quarter (or oftener in cases of large sums being received) any sum in their hands, over and above the amount required to meet disbursements, &c., the balance being remitted when the Local Accounts are closed for the year. This course would tend to equalise in a greater degree the Income and Expenditure in the earlier months of the Society's Financial year, and save the Society a considerable yearly sum.
