STATIONS, CLERICAL AND LAY MISSIONARIES, BUSINESS AGENTS, AND NATIVE CLERGYMEN,

ON JUNE 1, 1900.

 A STATION is the place at which a Clerical or Lay Missionary is stationed, or at which Native Christians are located under the superintendence of a native ordained pastor in connexion with the Society.

The figures after the Names of the European Labourers show the year of their first sailing for the Society's Missions, or of their reception into connexion in the field. Their University or College is indicated thus: Oxford, "Oxf."; Cambridge, "Camb."; Dublin, "Dub."; Durham, "Dur."; Edinburgh, "Edin."; London, "Lond."; Archbishop of Canterbury's Degree, "Lamb."; Islington, "Isl."; London College of Divinity, "Lond. Coll. Div."; King's College, London, "K.C.L."; England, "Eng." In the case of men trained at the Society's Preparatory Institution, Clapham, or of ladies trained at "The Willows," Stoke Newington, "The Olives," South Hampstead, or at he Society's Highbury Training Home, "Clapham," or "The Willows," or "The Olives," or "Highbury," occurs after their names. The letter D after the name of an ordained man, whether European or Native, indicates that he was a Deacon at the above date. The word "Nurse" after the name of a missionary denotes that she is a trained nurse.

The terms "Hon." and "partly Hon.," in parenthesis, after the name of a Missionary, mean that such Missionary draws no allowances, or only a portion of the usual allowances. Where Missionaries are supported by individual friends of the Society, or by Associations, or other bodies, the fact is indicated. In the case of the Colonial Associations (N. S. Wales = New South Wales, Vict. = Victoria, New Z. = New Zealand) the Missionaries have been selected, and, when necessary, also trained by the Associations, by which likewise they are supported in the field. In nearly all the instances referred to the Society is responsible for house rent, &c., as well as for the expenditure which is involved in the maintenance of the work.

*This mark * denotes that the Missionaries to whose names it is prefixed are in Local Connexion, i.e. that their offers of service were accepted by the Society's representatives in the several Missions.*

The mark ‡ denotes that the name to which it is prefixed is that of an Agent supported by Native Church Funds, which are in most instances aided by the Society. The Native Ministers in New Zealand are supported partly by Subscriptions from Native Christians, and partly from the rents of lands belonging to the Society in the Colony.

The Names of Native Clergymen are printed in Italics. The figures after their names show the date of ordination as Deacon.

The Maiden Names of Wives of European Missionaries, and the year of marriage, when known, are given in parenthesis. In the case of each lady who was a Missionary of the Society before marriage, the Mission in which she laboured and the year of joining it are given; and in the case of ladies who were Missionaries of other Societies the initials indicating the Society ("C.E.Z.M.S." = Church of England Zenana Missionary Society; "Z.B.M.M." = Zenana Bible and Medical Mission; "F.E.S." = the late Female Education Society) are given, as well as the country and year of joining. Wives of Missionaries are always expected by the Society to lay themselves out to do good among the native women in every practicable way, such as by cultivating familiar intercourse with them, educating children, and instructing the adult women.

The Names under each station are printed in order of date, without reference to nationality sex, orders, or other difference; except that, the Secretaries of Missions are placed first in order at the stations where they reside, and wives of Missionaries are placed, in almost every instance, immediately after their husbands.

At the Annual Meeting of the Church Missionary Society, held at Exeter Hall, London, Tuesday, May 1st, 1900, being the Society's One-hundred and First Anniversary,

THE RIGHT HON. SIR JOHN H. KENNAWAY, BART., M.P., President, in the Chair,

AFTER READING OF SCRIPTURE AND PRAYER,

The General Review of the Year was read, followed by the CHAIRMAN'S address, after which, on a motion by the RIGHT REV. THE LORD BISHOP OF OSSORY AND FERNS, D.D., seconded by the RIGHT HON. VISCOUNT CROSS, G.C.B., G.C.S.I., it was Resolved—

That the General Review which has just been read, together with the Report, of which an abstract has been presented, be adopted and printed under the direction of the Committee; that the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Right Rev. James Johnson, D.D., Assistant-Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa, for his Sermon before the Society last evening, and that it be printed and circulated; that Colonel Robert Williams, M.P., V.P., be the Treasurer of the Society; that the Committee be appointed for the ensuing year, with power to fill up vacancies; and that this Meeting, while expressing its hearty thankfulness to Almighty God that He has continued to vouchsafe the Divine blessing upon the extending work of the Society, and that the generous gifts contributed in commemoration of the Centenary have been sufficient not only to strengthen the basis of the Society's position at home, but also to cover the cost of its extended operations, up to the present, in the Mission-field, urges upon all friends of the Society to recognize the grave financial responsibilities which must be faced by earnest and united efforts, under the Divine blessing, if the Society is to carry on at the present rate its rapidly growing operations.

On a motion by CHANCELLOR P. V. SMITH, LL.D., seconded by the REV. T. W. DRURY, M.A., it was Resolved—

That this Meeting, realizing that the speedy evangelization of the world before the coming of the Lord depends very largely upon the labours of the Christian people of non-Christian lands, earnestly welcomes every effort which has for its object the full and orderly development of Native Churches in all such countries; and this Meeting would lay it upon the hearts of all Christian people to pray that it may please God so abundantly to bestow on these Churches the gifts of the Holy Spirit, that they may not only maintain in truth and love the faith once delivered to the saints, but also may, with an earnest sense of their responsibilities to their own countrymen, proclaim the Gospel of His grace, and both by holiness of life and boldness of utterance may gather multitudes into the flock of Christ.

The following Meetings were also held in London on the same day in connexion with the Anniversary :—

At ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly, at 11 a.m., the Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor in the Chair.
At SION COLLEGE, Thames Embankment, at 3.30 p.m., for Ladies, the Rev. H. E. Fox in the Chair.
At EXETER HALL, Strand, at 7 p.m., Colonel R. Williams, M.P., in the Chair.

Addresses were delivered at these Meetings by Right Rev. Bishop Johnson (of Western Equatorial Africa), Rev. Canon Rogers, Rev. E. J. Kennedy, Rev. G. T. Manley, Mr. W. F. A. Archibald, Rev. T. Harding (Yoruba), Dr. E. J. Baxter (East Africa), Rev. G. R. Blackledge (Uganda), Dr. D. W. Carr (Persia), Rev. W. H. Ball, Rev. H. Gouldsmith and Mr. A. C. Kestin (Bengal), Rev. E. D. Price (N.-W. Provinces, India), Rev. A. Elwin (Mid China), Rev. E. J. Peck (N.-W. Canada), Miss B. J. Allen, Miss A. C. Bosanquet, Miss E. S. Fox, and Miss K. Tristram (Japan).

LAWS AND REGULATIONS

OF THE

CHURCH MISSIONARY SOCIETY FOR AFRICA AND THE EAST.

(As revised at a Special Meeting of Members of the Society, held on July 2, 1890.)

I. THIS Institution shall be designated "The Church Missionary Society for Africa and the East;" and shall be conducted by a Patron or Patrons, a Vice-Patron, a President, Vice-Presidents, a COMMITTEE, and such Officers as may be deemed necessary, all being Members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland.

II. The office of PATRON of the Society shall be reserved for Members of the Royal Family; and that of VICE-PATRON for His Grace the Primate of All England, if, being a Member of the Society, he shall accept the office. The PRESIDENT shall be such Temporal Peer or Commoner as may be appointed to that office, and VICE-PRESIDENTS shall consist of all Archbishops and Bishops of the Churches of England and Ireland, who, being Members of the Society, shall accept the office; and of such other persons as, being also Members, shall be appointed thereto.

OF MEMBERS AND GOVERNORS.

III. Annual Subscribers of One Guinea and upwards, and if Clergymen Half-a-Guinea, with Collectors of Fifty-two Shillings, and upwards, per annum, shall be Members of the Society during the continuance of such Subscriptions or Collections. Benefactors of Ten Guineas, and upwards, in one sum shall be Members for Life.

IV. Annual Subscribers of Five Guineas shall be Governors during the continuance of such Subscription; and Benefactors of Fifty Pounds, and upwards, in one sum, shall be Governors for Life.

V. Subscriptions and Benefactions shall confer the same privileges, whether paid to the Society direct or through an Auxiliary or Association.

VI. The COMMITTEE may appoint such persons as have rendered essential services to the Society, either Honorary Members for Life, or Honorary Governors for Life.

OF GENERAL MEETINGS.

VII. An Annual Meeting of the Members of the Society shall be held in London, on the Tuesday next before the first Wednesday in May; when the proceedings of the foregoing year shall be reported, the Accounts presented, and the Treasurer and COMMITTEE chosen. And whenever any vacancy in the office of Treasurer shall occur, the COMMITTEE may fill up the vacancy, for the interval between the occurrence of such vacancy and the next Annual Meeting.

VIII. The COMMITTEE may summon a Special General Meeting of the Members of the Society, at which not less than Thirty shall constitute a Quorum, at any time, and they shall do so on receipt of a requisition in writing, addressed to the Secretaries, and signed by not less than Fifty Members of the Society, and specifying the object of the Meeting. Ten days' notice shall be given in Three London Daily Newspapers, and in two other Newspapers, of any such intended Meeting, and of the purpose for which it is called; which shall be deemed sufficient publicity.

IX. None of the Laws and Regulations of the Society shall be repealed or altered, nor any new ones made, but at the Annual Meeting or at a Special General Meeting called for that purpose.

X. An Anniversary Sermon shall be preached at some Church in London, by a Clergyman appointed by the COMMITTEE. An Annual Report of the Society shall be printed for the use of its Members.

OF THE COMMITTEE.

XI. The COMMITTEE shall consist of the following, being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland:—(a) Twenty-four Lay Members of the Society elected at the Annual Meeting. (b) All Clergymen who are Members of the Society and have been so for not less than one year. (c) All Honorary Governors for Life, and all such other Governors as have been so for not less than one year. In every year so many of the elected Members shall go out of office as, with the vacancies, if any, occurring among them during the preceding year, will make six vacancies, and shall not be re-eligible until the following year. The COMMITTEE shall decide which Members go out of office in each year.

XII. The COMMITTEE shall elect, at their First Meeting in every year, either from among themselves, or from the other Members of the Society (being members of the Established Church of England or of the Church of Ireland), a Committee of Patronage, a Committee of Funds and Home Organization, a Committee of Correspondence, a Committee of Finance, and a Committee of Estimates, and shall have power to fill up vacancies. Each of the said Committees shall keep Minutes of its Proceedings, and shall make such reports of its proceedings to the COMMITTEE as the COMMITTEE shall require.

XIII. The office of the Committee of Patronage is to procure patronage and support to the Society; and to nominate to the COMMITTEE proper persons as Patrons, President, Vice-Presidents, Honorary Life Governors, Honorary Life Members of the Society, and preachers of the Anniversary Sermons.

XIV. The office of the Committee of Funds and Home Organization is to circulate information respecting the Society; to adopt means of obtaining Subscriptions, Benefactions, and Collections in Churches, Chapels, and at Meetings; to take a general oversight of the Associations; and to nominate, from time to time, to the COMMITTEE, suitable persons to act as Agents and Representatives of the Society for these objects.

XV. The office of the Committee of Correspondence is, to seek for proper Missionaries, to nominate them to the COMMITTEE, to superintend their instruction when necessary, to recommend their location, and to correspond with them when sent out, and generally to direct the foreign work of the Society. Subject to the control of the COMMITTEE, the Committee of Correspondence may delegate any of their duties to Committees elected from among themselves, and may authorise such Committees to report directly to the COMMITTEE, and may fix their Quorum.

XVI. The office of the Committee of Finance is, generally, to superintend the accounts and financial affairs of the Society, and from time to time to note and to report to the COMMITTEE how far the expenditure corresponds with the sanctioned Estimates.

XVII. The office of the Committee of Estimates is, to prepare and submit to the COMMITTEE an estimate of the probable expenditure of the Society.

XVIII. The Committee of Correspondence shall appoint from among themselves, at their First Meeting in every year, a Clerical Sub-Committee, and may appoint at their discretion other Committees, for the examination of Missionary Candidates.

XIX. The COMMITTEE may make regulations as to the conduct of business by themselves and by the other Committees, and subject to and so far as not inconsistent with any such regulations for the time being in force, the Committee shall receive and deal with the Reports of the other Committees, shall decide upon the countries where Missions shall be carried on, and shall superintend and control the affairs of the Society in general. The Committee may authorise any Committee appointed under Law XII., and with the consent of the Committee of Correspondence any Committee appointed under Law XV. to deal with and dispose of any matters and classes of matters the consideration of which falls within its province, reporting its action to the next meeting of the Committee. Subject to the control of the Committee, every Committee may make Bye-laws for its own government, and may appoint Sub-Committees and fix their quorum.

XX. The Committee shall have power to appoint such Officers and Assistants as they shall deem necessary for the well-conducting of the affairs of the Society, subject, in the case of the appointment of Secretaries, to the approbation of the next Annual Meeting. One, at least, of the Secretaries shall be a layman. The Committee shall also have power to acquire property of every description for the purposes of the Society, and to invest the funds of the Society as they may deem expedient, and to vest all or any portions of the property and funds of the Society in such Trustee or Trustees, or corporate body, as they may in each case think fit.

XXI. The Committee shall meet on the second Tuesday in every month, and oftener if needful. The other Committees shall meet as often, and at such places, as shall be by them agreed on. All Committee Meetings shall be opened with reading a Form of Prayer composed for that purpose, or one or more suitable Prayers selected from the Liturgy.

XXII. The Patrons, Vice-Patron, President, Vice-Presidents, Treasurer and Secretaries shall be considered, ex officio, Members of all Committees.

XXIII. Five Members shall be necessary to form a Quorum of the Committee; and Three of each of the Committees provided for in Law XII.; in each case exclusive of the Secretaries. In cases of equality of votes, the Chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote. Every Committee may act notwithstanding vacancies.

XXIV. All payments on account of the Society shall be signed by Three Members of the Committee, in Committee, and the Lay Secretary, or in his absence by one of the other Secretaries.

XXV. The accounts of the Society shall be audited and reported upon by Public Accountants appointed by the Committee, and Five Honorary Auditors, Members of the Society (of whom not more than two shall be Members of the Committee), shall be appointed annually by the Committee for the purpose of considering the Reports of Public Accountants, and of making recommendations thereon, and generally on the Accounts to the Committee once at least in every year.

OF MISSIONARIES.

XXVI. Every offer for Missionary Service shall be referred by the Secretaries either to the Committee of Correspondence or in the first instance to the Clerical Sub-Committee or other Committee appointed under Law XVIII. to which it shall belong under rules laid down by the Committee of Correspondence; and the Committee of Correspondence shall have power to deal with the offer, both as to the training and as to the nomination as a Missionary of the Candidate. Provided that no one shall be sent out as a Missionary without having been approved by the Committee of Correspondence, and without, as a general rule, having appeared before them.

XXVII. Candidates nominated by the Committee of Correspondence, and accepted by the Committee, shall receive instruction in such parts of knowledge, and be prepared in such a manner for their future employment, as the Committee of Correspondence shall judge expedient.

XXVIII. Candidates shall consider themselves engaged to go to any part of the world, and at any time that the Committee shall decide, and be subject to such regulations as may be established by the Committee for the direction of the Missionaries: respect, however, being had to their personal circumstances, or to any previous stipulation made by them with the Society.

XXIX. Men who have been duly prepared and finally approved for Missionary work, shall go out, either ordained or unordained, at the discretion of the Committee.*

XXX. The Missionaries who go out under the direction of this Society shall be allowed to visit home, permission having been previously obtained from the Committee; and after having laboured in the cause of the Society, to the satisfaction of the Committee, at the Stations committed to their care, until age or infirmity prevent further exertion, such provision shall be made to render their remaining days comfortable as in the judgment of the Committee is suitable. The Committee shall have the power to assist also, in particular cases, the dependent Relatives of those Missionaries, who, by devoting themselves to the service of the Society, are prevented from contributing to their support. The Committee shall be further empowered in special cases to make such arrangements with those employed by them as they may think fit.

GENERAL.

XXXI. A friendly intercourse shall be maintained with other Protestant Societies engaged in the same benevolent design of propagating the Gospel of Jesus Christ.

XXXII. All questions relating to matters of Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline, respecting which a difference shall arise between a Bishop of the Church of England abroad and the Committee, shall, in the absence of any tribunal having legal cognizance of the same, be referred to the Archbishops and Bishops of the Provinces of Canterbury and York, whose decision thereupon shall be binding upon the Society and its agents, and representatives. The proposed reference shall be made by the Committee, through His Grace the Primate, accompanied by such explanations and statements as the Committee may deem advisable.

XXXIII. The object of the preceding Law being only to provide a mode of settling questions relating to Ecclesiastical Order and Discipline as to which no provision has yet been made by the Society, it is not to be so construed, as in any other respect to alter the principles and practices of the Society, as they are contained in its Laws and Regulations.

XXXIV. It is recommended to every Member of the Society to pray to Almighty God for a blessing upon its designs; under the full conviction that, unless He "prevent us, in all our doings, with His most gracious favour, and further us with His continual help," the Society cannot reasonably hope to meet with persons of a proper spirit and qualifications to be Missionaries, or expect their endeavours to be crowned with success.

* The Bishops of the Church of England under the authority of the law of the land ordain and send forth [ecclesiastically speaking] the Society's Missionaries; and in the event of their being appointed by the Committee to labour at stations within the jurisdiction of a Bishop of the Church of England abroad, it is the practice of the Society to apply to the Bishop for licences in which are inserted the districts to which the Missionaries have been assigned. This is done on the understanding that licences will neither be refused nor when granted be withdrawn from the Missionaries during their connection with the Society, except for some assigned legal cause.

PRAYER USED AT THE ANNUAL MEETINGS OF THE SOCIETY, AND AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE GENERAL COMMITTEE.

ALMIGHTY and most merciful FATHER, we give Thee humble thanks for the light of Thy Gospel. Make us more grateful for this Thy mercy, and more zealous for the salvation of all mankind.

Visit in mercy the Church of Christ; enrich it more abundantly with the grace of Thy Holy Spirit; and bless its endeavours to make known Thy Truth. Unite, as one man, all who are truly labouring for Thee. Disappoint the designs of Satan. Let all Christian Societies live in harmony and love; give them wisdom in all their plans; perfect Thy strength in their weakness; and direct their labours to Thy glory.

The harvest truly is great, but the Labourers are few! O Thou Lord of the Harvest, send forth labourers into Thy Harvest! Fill with Thy Spirit those whom Thou hast sent forth; and enable them faithfully and boldly to preach, among Jews and Gentiles, the unsearchable riches of Christ. Keep them from the snares of the world, the flesh, and the devil; deliver them from all evil; and make them wise to win souls.

Upon all the Native Converts whom Thou hast gathered to Thyself, through Thy labouring servants throughout the world, pour out Thy Holy Spirit, that, as Thou hast begotten them again unto a lively hope, so they may ever be followers of Thee as dear children. Deliver them from all remaining darkness and ignorance; destroy and abolish in their hearts all that remains of Satan's kingdom; grant that their faith, and hope, and love may grow exceedingly; make them to be ready to every good work, and more especially to exert themselves for the salvation of those around them; that so, by their zeal and faithful testimony, by their holiness and fruitfulness, they may glorify Thy name before their countrymen, and bring in unto Thee, from the midst of them, such as shall be saved.

Have compassion, O Most-merciful Father, on all those who have come under instruction, though they be not yet altogether Christians. Convince them effectually, by Thy Word and Spirit, of their sinful and miserable state; pour upon them the spirit of grace and supplication, and draw them to Jesus.

Take away blindness from the Jews. Let them receive Thee, O Jesus, as their Messiah, and proclaim Thy saving Name among the Gentiles.

Deliver all Mohammedans from the delusions of the False Prophet! O Thou True Prophet of Thy Church, enlighten them by Thy Holy Spirit, and bow them down at the foot of Thy Cross!

Pity blind Idolaters who are kept in cruel bondage by the god of this world. Turn them from idols, that they may serve the Living and True God.

O Thou Almighty Saviour, who by the right hand of God art exalted, and hast received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, shed forth His light and grace on this dark world!

Cause all Christians, we beseech Thee, to sow bountifully; that they may reap also bountifully. O Thou that lovest a cheerful giver, let all grace abound toward them, that they may minister liberally of their substance to the making known of Thy Name!

With these our humble prayers, we join our praises and thanksgiving for what Thou hast already done in making known Thy salvation; perfect Thy work, O Lord; shortly accomplish the number of Thine elect; and hasten the coming of Thy Kingdom.

Be present with us, O Lord, at this time. Give us all a single eye to Thy glory. May Thy blessing rest upon our meeting; and may all our hearts be this day quickened and encouraged to fresh and persevering efforts in Thy Service.

We ask these mercies for the glory of Thy Name, through the merits and mediation of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ; and would ascribe to Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, Three Persons in One God, everlasting praise. Amen.

Our Father, which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy Name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, in earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses, As we forgive them that trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation; But deliver us from evil: For Thine is the Kingdom, The power, and the glory, For ever and ever. Amen.

PRAYER USED AT THE OPENING OF MEETINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

ALMIGHTY GOD, our heavenly Father, Who hast purchased to Thyself an Universal Church, by the precious blood of Thy dear Son, we give Thee hearty thanks that it hath pleased Thee to call us to the knowledge of Thy grace and faith in Thee, and to appoint our lot in an age and country where the true light shineth. We bless Thee that Thou hast awakened us in some measure to feel our responsibilities. We praise Thee for what we have seen and heard of the power of Thy Word among the heathen, we adore Thee for Thy many servants who have gone out from amongst us to toil, and suffer, and die in making known Thy salvation; and we thank Thee that Thou dost allow us, unworthy sinners, to unite together in this work of faith and labour of love.

We humbly confess our past lukewarmness in this Thy service, notwithstanding these Thine inestimable benefits and mercies. For our Lord Jesus Christ's sake, forgive us our past negligences, and so endue us with Thy Holy Spirit, that we may more earnestly seek Thy glory in the salvation of souls.

Grant us, we beseech Thee, Thy very present help at these our meetings. We ask, most gracious God and Father, for a constraining sense of the love of the Lord Jesus, and for wisdom to direct us in all our endeavours. Increase upon us the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind. Give us faith and courage; give us zeal and patience; give us a single eye to Thy glory, and help us to bear and to forbear. The silver and the gold are Thine, O King of kings! Supply us with what is needful for Thy great work, and make us faithful stewards of Thy bounty, for proclaiming to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ.

We pray also for all who are united with us in the direction of this sacred cause.

May Thine especial blessing rest upon our Committees, with their Secretaries, throughout the world. Bestow on them the help that we feel so needful for ourselves. Enable them to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, and ever to find favour in the sight of all with whom they may have to do.

Especially we beseech Thee to look, O most merciful Father, upon our Missionary brethren. Draw out our hearts towards them more and more; and while they are bearing the burden abroad, give us grace to help and succour them by our sympathy and prayers at home. Bless every letter written to them from this house, and all our intercourse with them. We pray for them that they may be filled with Thy Spirit. Grant that the same mind may be in them which was also in Christ Jesus. Let them never lose their first love. Raise them above the cares of this world. Help them to deny themselves and to endure all things for the elect's sake. Give them the tongue of him that is taught. Clothe them with humility. Teach them to follow peace with each other, and with all men. Support them under spiritual distresses, temptations of the adversary, bodily sickness, domestic anxieties, and hope deferred. And so confirm Thy word from their lips by the power of the Holy Ghost, that through them multitudes may be turned from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto Thee, our God.

We commend to Thee the Missionaries' children entrusted to our charge. Bring them all to a saving knowledge of Christ Jesus. Defend them with Thy heavenly grace, that they may continue Thine for ever; and daily increase in Thy Holy Spirit more and more, until they come unto Thy everlasting kingdom. Give all needed grace to those who have the direction of the Home in the discharge of the arduous work with which Thou hast been pleased to entrust them.

We most heartily thank Thee, O Lord, for those whom Thou hast already sent forth through this Society; and we pray for a yet larger outpouring of a Missionary spirit on our younger Clergy, on the members of our Universities, on those who are elsewhere preparing for this holy work, on the young men of all ranks and orders throughout our land. And herein do we implore Thy special favour on our Training Institutions, that their numbers may be replenished continually: and that none may go forth from them but such as shall be able ministers of the New Testament, full of Faith, and of the Holy Ghost.

We praise Thee, O Thou God of all grace, for the Converts, the Native Catechists, and the Native Clergy, whom Thou hast granted to us in our several Missions. As Thou hast raised the Native Churches thus far, bring them, we pray Thee, to full ripeness and perfectness of age in Christ. Pour out upon them Thy Holy Spirit. Stablish, strengthen, settle them, and so enlarge their liberality, that they may both maintain Thy Word among themselves, and may make it known to the regions beyond them, till all the Gentiles hear the glad tidings of Thy love.

And now, O Lord God, be Thou in the midst of us to-day. Give us a constant sense of Thy presence, and may all our undertakings be begun, continued, and ended in Thee, to the honour of Thy great Name, for the sake of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Amen.

PRAYERS FOR MISSIONS,

SUITABLE TO BE USED AT MISSIONARY MEETINGS AND IN PRIVATE.

I.—From the Book of Common Prayer according to the use of the Church of Ireland.

Almighty God, who by Thy Son Jesus Christ didst give commandment to the Apostles that they should go into all the world, and preach the Gospel to every creature; grant to us whom Thou hast called into Thy Church a ready will to obey Thy Word, and fill us with a hearty desire to make Thy way known upon earth, Thy saving health among all nations. Look with compassion upon the heathen that have not known Thee, and on the multitudes that are scattered as sheep having no shepherd. O heavenly Father, Lord of the harvest, have respect, we beseech Thee, to our prayers, and send forth labourers into Thy harvest. Fit and prepare them by Thy grace for the work of the ministry; give them the spirit of power, and of love, and of a sound mind; strengthen them to endure hardness; and grant that Thy Holy Spirit may prosper their work, and that by their life and doctrine they may set forth Thy glory and set forward the salvation of all men; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

II.—For a Blessing on Missionaries and their Labours.

(By Archbishop Sumner.)

O most merciful Saviour and Redeemer, who wouldst not that any should perish, but that all men should be saved and come to the knowledge of the truth, fulfil Thy gracious promise to be present with those who are gone forth in Thy Name to preach the Gospel of Salvation in distant lands. Be with them in all perils by land or by water, in sickness and distress, in weariness and painfulness, in disappointment and persecution. Bless them, we beseech Thee, with Thy continual favour, and send Thy Holy Spirit to guide them into all truth. O Lord, let Thy ministers be clothed with righteousness, and grant that Thy word spoken by their mouths may never be spoken in vain. Endue them with power from on high, and so prosper Thy work in their hands, that the fulness of the Gentiles may be gathered in, and all Israel be saved.

Hear us, O Lord, for Thy mercy's sake, and grant that all who are saved by Thy Name may be one in Thee, and may abound more and more in prayers and in free-will offerings, for the extension of Thy kingdom throughout the world, to Thy honour and glory, who livest and reignest with the Father and the Holy Ghost, ever one God, world without end. Amen.

III.—For Missions and for Grace to help them.

(By Bishop Christopher Wordsworth.)

O Lord Jesus Christ, Saviour of mankind, who hast commanded Thy disciples to go into all the world and to preach the Gospel to every creature, and who hast declared that this Gospel of the Kingdom shall first be preached to all nations, and that then the end shall come; we humbly beseech Thee to raise up men full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and send them forth to do the work of evangelists by spreading abroad the glad tidings of salvation; and so to fill us with Thy love, and to quicken us with Thy grace, that we may labour joyfully with them by prayers and offerings for their work, so that finally at Thy Second Coming to judge the world, we together with them, and with those who have received the Gospel at their hands, may rejoice in Thy presence with exceeding joy, and may praise Thee for evermore, our holy and most merciful Redeemer, our most worthy Judge Eternal, our most mighty Lord and God, to Whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory now and for ever. Amen.

IV.

(By Bishop Cotton, of Calcutta.)

O God, who hast made of one blood all nations of men to dwell upon the face of Thy whole earth, and who didst send Thy blessed Son to preach peace to them that are afar off, and to them that are nigh, grant that all the people of heathen and Mohammedan lands may feel after Thee and find Thee; and hasten, O Lord, the fulfilment of Thy promise, to pour out Thy Spirit upon all flesh, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

NOTE ON SPELLING OF NATIVE NAMES.

In the year 1896 the Council of the Royal Asiatic Society adopted the system for the Transliteration of Oriental Alphabets which will be found in the Journal of that Society for October of that year; and, on December 8th, 1896, the General Committee of the Church Missionary Society passed the following resolution relating to the same subject:—"The Committee recommend the use of this system, and hope that the missionaries of this Society who are engaged in translational or other literary work in the Roman character in the languages referred to in the Royal Asiatic Society's scheme or in those connected with them, will employ it; and that it may be used in transliterating the names of persons and places in all communications with the Committee, except those well-known and familiar names which it would be unwise to alter."

This system for spelling Native Names is, therefore, recommended to the Society's Missionaries generally for adoption in their letters and reports. It should not be applied, of course, to those well-known places of which the spelling has become so fixed that it would be mere pedantry to disturb it; as, for instance, Travancore (Travankur), and Lucknow (Laknau). Other well-known names, spelt correctly according to this method, are not pronounced accordingly by English residents. For example, the a in Lagos is always pronounced by English residents, when speaking English, as in the word make.

The powers of the vowels are as follows:—

a as in "*a*bout."
ā usually as in "f*a*ther" (in North-Indian words as in "*a*ll.") e ā*s* in "p*e*n."
ē as in "f*ê*te."
i as in "th*i*n."
ī as in "p*i*que."
o as in "n*o*t," or as in the French "b*o*nne" ō as in "n*o*te."
u as in "f*u*ll."
ū as in "tr*u*ly."
ai as i in "th*i*ne."
au as ou in "b*ou*gh."

It needs only to be noticed further that—

y always sounds as in "*y*ou."
g „ as in "*g*o."
j „ as in "*j*oin."
gn as in "poi*gn*ant."
ng as in "thi*ng*."

h has always a separate sound, except in ch as in "*ch*urch," and sh as in "*sh*e," th and dh should, therefore, not be used in South Indian names to express the dental t and d.

c, whether for k or s, being superfluous, is not used.

Doubled letters should each be pronounced distinctly, as in Italian.

THE ANNUAL SERMON,

Preached at St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on Monday, April 30th, 1900,

BY

ASSISTANT-BISHOP IN WESTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA,

A Vice-President of the Society.

AND HE (JESUS) SAID UNTO THEM, GO YE INTO ALL THE WORLD, AND PREACH THE GOSPEL TO EVERY CREATURE.—St. Mark xvi. 15.

THESE words of our dear Saviour are certainly very appropriate to be addressed to our Society on its entry upon the second century of its existence, and on the occasion of its first anniversary in it, to remind it of its primary duty of preaching the Gospel of God's Grace to the world. Not that there is any thought that it has forgotten it, or has in any way been remiss in the discharge of it; but in order to impress upon it and emphasize for it the very great and urgent need there is now for an immediate and a wider expansion of its operations in the Mission-field everywhere, and especially in those places where rival and opposing or obstructive forces are earnestly and vigorously strengthening themselves.

Even our Master Himself found it necessary, shortly before His ascension into Heaven, to remind His disciples of and impress upon them the command He had given them, and the commission He had, on the first of His post-resurrection forty days on earth, and later on the shores of Galilee, entrusted them with, to go and teach all nations, in order to impress them with the extreme importance of the work, the world's sore and immediate need of it, and the thought that it was the one work for which He had been willing to come down from heaven and live and die on the earth, and for which He had drawn them severally to Himself, taught them, wrought in their hearts through the Holy Spirit, and constituted them and all their fellow-believers everywhere down the stream of time His Church on earth.

The work undertaken by Christ and committed to the Church is the greatest known to the world. No other author of a religion has conceived the thought and entertained the desire and hope of his religion becoming the religion of the world; and no other monarch has aspired after universal dominion, and after a rule co-extensive with the limits of the earth. Other authors of religions have originally dreamt only of influencing their own particular tribes and nations; and if their teachings have travelled beyond these, and their respective followers have been found to carry them into other lands, and even persecute in these lands for the religions they sought to propagate, this has been simply accidental, and an after-thought; and similar to this has been the case with other monarchs. But, on the contrary, Christ's work was set on foot with the express object of His religion becoming the religion of the world, and His Kingdom covering the entire extent of land and sea; and this even though He had then no other earthly force to rely upon than His eleven feeble Apostles and a comparatively small number of other followers, and though He knew that they would encounter the strongest opposition and the fiercest and most murderous persecution. Yet He was no visionary enthusiast, nor was He attempting what to Him would be impossible of accomplishment, or sending out His small and feeble army to a vain contest and a hopeless struggle. He spoke and He still speaks with the fullest conviction of the world's need, and of the complete suitability of His religion to meet it, and also with the clearest consciousness of His own right to the rule of the whole world, and the strongest certainty of the eventual triumph of His cause.

"All power is given unto Me in heaven and in earth" (St. Matt. xxviii. 18); "Ask of Me and I shall give Thee the heathen for Thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for Thy possession" (Psalm ii. 8). These texts taken together declare His warrant for the command in the text.

In the delivery of His commission our Lord appears at one time to have been strongly impressed with and affected by, among other things, the racial and national needs of the different sections of the human family, as when He said to His disciples, "Go, teach all the nations"—all the different races of mankind, Jews and Gentiles alike; and at another time, with the needs of every individual member of the whole human family, as when He said, "Preach the Gospel to every creature," and in the mind of our Lord might there not be included also all other animated and sentient creatures that might be benefited by it through nations and individuals embracing and practising the Gospel? Dare we narrow His commission or aim at less? "Preach the Gospel to every creature." Let us notice:—

1. The work to be done. This is to preach the Gospel.

The use of this expression, the Gospel, the supremest good news, suggests the presence in Christ's mind of a condition of life in the world evoking from Him deep sympathy and fervent pity. It was a condition marked by a never-ending distraction and perplexity, and a severe depression; a condition of uncertainty, doubt, despair, and hopelessness; a condition of moral and spiritual darkness reminding Him of that darkness and confusion that had prevailed over this material world before His Divine fiat and the operation of the Spirit at creation filled it with light, life, and beauty—a darkness in which men everywhere had been groping their way like blind persons to find their God. It was the darkness of ignorance of God. Certainly not of His existence, power, and providence, for the world had never lost the knowledge of these and belief in them, but of His true nature and character and His fatherly relation to mankind generally, and of that worship which alone is acceptable to Him from guilty and condemned sinful creatures.

This ignorance has been the parent of that polytheism and that idolatry which have dominated Heathendom. It has been the parent of that seriously imperfect and defective notion of sin which has sought for reconciliation with an angry God by means of propitiatory brute sacrifices, and sometimes human ones too, resorted to from a sincere desire to present to Him the highest and best sacrifice available for putting out His wrath fire, which other sacrifices had failed to do in spite of the frequency with which offerers had offered them up, after formally transferring their sin, guilt and judgment-death to them, and this although the human victims are fellow-sinners with the offerers themselves; and which has also sought for regeneration, sanctification, and salvation by the performance of severe penances and good works. It has also been the parent of that cruel selfishness which has given birth to slavery and the slave trade with their hellish brutalities; of that awful dread of death and the grave which has frequently led to the wholesale slaughter of fellow-human beings at the graves of the rich dead to furnish them with companionship in their travel through the dark valley of the shadow of death, and with attendance in the unseen and unknown world; of those nameless superstitious fears which have commonly produced many other inhuman practices; and also of that cold monotheism which is so apt to chill one in his approaches to God.

It is ignorance of God as a God of love, and who is love. This ignorance had been too dense for it to be penetrated by the united teachings of both Creation and Divine Providence, penetrated, I mean, so as to be apprehended. It needed a stronger and more impressive force; and this Christ has supplied through His great Incarnation, and the brotherhood of the Divine and Eternal Son of God thereby with all humanity; through the great tragedy of the Crucifixion, with all the unutterable griefs, sorrows, and physical sufferings that attended it, and by which He became the sinners' Substitute, and died, a victim to Divine wrath, the sinner's death; through the glorious Resurrection and Ascension, which have unitedly proclaimed, among other things, God reconciled to man, sin robbed of its strength and spoils, death and the grave conquered, pardon free and full obtainable by every penitent and believing sinner, the inestimable privilege of the Holy Spirit's regenerating work and His indwelling in man and of a personal and individual actual and intimate union and communion with God open to all alike, that God is our Father in Christ, and that Heaven is the eternal home after death of all His believing children.

This is the great find, and this the great solvent to many of the difficult problems of life which Christ has ordered to be published to the whole world. This, and not the Creeds of Churches or their formularies of worship, which, however valuable and helpful to those who have adopted them, should not by their use in the Mission-field be suffered to hinder the development of different national types of the Christian profession among the different races and nations of the earth; this, and not sectarianism, which has tended too much to divide native converts on the field and inoculate them with those animosities towards one another which it has produced in the land of its birth: this is the Gospel to be preached everywhere and to all the nations (not excluding even the once long known, but afterwards the long hidden, and the recently discovered pigmy race in the forest of Central Africa), that it may transform their respective governments, languages, social customs and habits, and their public institutions, influence their national life, and bring to them all alike a rich store of blessings; and this is the Gospel to be preached to every individual sinner also for his salvation for this world and the great hereafter.

It should, however, not for one moment be thought that—whilst our Lord, in delivering His commission, was evidently not unmindful of the fact that teachers like Abraham, Moses, and the prophets among the Jews had preceded Him, and by their work had prepared the way for Him, and that the Gentile prophet Balaam, in spite of his worldliness, and the Gentile priest Melchisedek had also respectively contributed their own share, and was as grateful for it as He was for that of His immediate predecessor and forerunner the Baptist—it must not, I say, be thought He had overlooked the fact that Gautama, the Buddha, on the plains of India, Zoroaster in Persia, and Confucius and Laoutsu in China, and their compeers, great master-minds, and others unknown to fame and unlettered, had in other lands, centuries before, also taught religion and morality to their respective peoples, and that their respective teachings had contained in them some important elements of truth. No, He knew it all, and appreciated all that was wise, true, and noble in their respective religions and moral systems, and all also that would be found even in that system which He foresaw Mohammed of Arabia would rise and teach after Him, and with which he would even seek, if possible, to supplant His own work. It was altogether impossible for Him, who is "the Truth" itself, not to have valued the smallest particle of truth wherever it was found, and this even when it was overladen with the vilest rubbish. But He also knew that their respective teachings did not and could not meet man's needs; that the light from them was and would be too feeble for the surrounding darkness which they had sought or might seek to disperse, and also that the influence of sin and Satan upon their systems had been or would be very great. They did not know God because they had not seen Him and could not see Him. They did not and could not speak of Him as a Father, with a father's devoted love and earnest solicitude for his children, even though Buddhism, like the Heathenism of Ancient Greece with regard to Zeus, had often addressed one or other of its chief divinities as father, and even though an unlettered Heathenism like that of Yorubaland, in West Africa, similarly addresses Ifa, the chiefest of its 600 subordinate divinities, as father also. Hence the necessity, the justice, and the propriety of the command, "Preach the Gospel to every creature."

It is this Gospel, preached here with an open Bible given you in your own vernacular by some of your great ancestors, that has abolished Heathenism and idolatry from your land, made your nation great, your laws humane and just, your government stable, the person and throne of the Sovereign secure in the affection of a grateful and loyal people; your English home, with its delightful sweetness, the admiration and envy of almost all foreign visitors to your shores, is also a fruit of this Gospel. To its influence it is due that the helpless and destitute poor are objects of national solicitude. It is it that has covered your land with charitable institutions, imparted a rich excellence to your literature, enabled you to make the great progress you have made in the arts and sciences, given you power for that philanthropy to which Africa and other foreign lands owe so much. Yes, it is to it you owe both the great influence you wield as a nation in the Parliament of Europe, and also that peace, that calm, that confidence, that hope and joy, and that saintliness that mark many an individual life here. This great gift of the Gospel, and this mighty agency and rich channel of good, you are commanded to impart to others, to the whole world, whose debtors you are thereby.

Let those, then, who will, cavil at Christian Missions, and find fault with us for, as they say, ungenerously and unnecessarily increasing the responsibility of the Heathen by sending to them the Gospel. Let those before whose eyes loom very largely the faults and foibles of comparatively recent converts from Heathenism living in the midst of heathen surroundings, and who affect to forget similar and even greater faults in this long-favoured Christian land, recommend, as it pleases them to do, Mohammedanism as more suited to Africa, on account of its inferior morality, than Christianity, as if our common heritage of innate depravity exists in a stronger force in the African than in the European and other nations, or as if the Holy Spirit has not undertaken to work in the hearts of all peoples alike. Let those who will, recommend the teaching of European civilization to non-Christian peoples before Christianity, as if there is any civilization really worthy of the name that is not founded upon it, and as if each race and each nation has not a right to a form of civilization which is its own. Our duty is a prompt, ready, cheerful, steady, patient, loving, grateful, and prayerful obedience to our Master's command, "Preach the Gospel to every creature."

But is it not painfully disappointing to know that though this command is now nearly 1,900 years old, the Church is not yet able to say in reference both to it and to the world as now known, as the Apostle St. Paul spoke of it and of the world as known in his own time, "The hope of the Gospel which was preached to every creature that is under Heaven" (Col. i. 23); that to-day the Heathen in the world are estimated at 796 millions, and the followers of Islamism (that latest born of world-wide faiths) at 206 millions, and Christians of all shades of opinion at only 490 millions, and of them 150 millions only as Protestants; and that in Africa, where our Society has worked for about 100 years, its Mission-stations and its native churches may be counted on the fingers' ends, and that in some districts in it there has been no attempt at expansion whatever for over twenty years? Is there not in all this a call, and a loud call too, for an immediate and a wider expansion?

2. The opportunity.

The present is surely a time of a greatly enlarged opportunity for this expansion. The very considerably increased knowledge of the great continent of Africa (which to the world outside her had been practically an unknown region) placed now at the disposal of the Church by the bravery, courage, patience, perseverance, and self-sacrifice of several English and other European travellers, and which, through both the discoveries and the rediscoveries made, has completely transformed the map of the continent, and covered with many cities and villages, rivers and lakes, large tracts of territory that had been for centuries together regarded and described as a howling wilderness and a waterless waste; the recent and complete break-up by the Egyptian Government, with the aid of the British force, of that wild, cruel, and oppressive slave-making and slave-trading Mohammedan Arab power in the Eastern Soudan which has been so inimical to the progress of the Gospel; the gradual and steadily increasing cessation of intertribal warfares which had for centuries afflicted the land everywhere, and which also had often seriously interfered with our work; the introduction and growing expansion of such rapid means of communication as steamers, railways and telegraphs, &c.; the present efforts of the medical schools, both of England and of other European countries, to find out the cause of the malarial fever prevalent over the coast-line and some interior parts also, and which has been so injurious, more especially to European life, and to effectually grapple with it; the British Protectorate now exercised over a very considerable area, and which secures to the peoples inhabiting it liberty of conscience; and also the willingness of many of the tribes here and there to welcome the Christian missionary—unite together with other like circumstances to declare the African Continent a widely open field now for the preaching of the Gospel.

The facts that whilst India is dominated by both Hinduism and Mohammedanism, Christian England's Sovereign is India's Empress; that conservative and exclusive China, where mob-rule and mob-violence and a fanatical hatred of foreigners have again and again proved fatal to Christian missionaries, is showing now signs of a real purpose to restrain that violence and assure safety to the lives of missionaries; and that Japan, which has recently and suddenly sprung up from political and imperial obscurity and insignificance into a great national and imperial prominence, and the land where Christian evangelization has laboured under hampering restrictions, is conceding now to foreign residents, missionaries included, the right of citizenship, a privilege that cannot but be helpful to the progress of our work—these together tell the same tale. And we might speak of like encouragements in other countries also.

The opportunity is one that has long been prayed for, and long waited for; and now that God has given it in answer to prayer, should not every nerve be strained to make the fullest possible use of it? Is it to be lost to us through our not taking immediate advantage of it?

Permit here one word of special advocacy for Africa from one of her sons. Africa was your first and earliest field of labour. Here you first wept over the fall of brave soldiers of the Cross on the battlefield; and here you have had some of your brightest triumphs that have adorned the history of the Society and its work. The need for that especial sympathy with and interest in her which your forefathers had exercised, and for that desire to compensate her and comfort her for and over the very cruel wrongs which the great European transatlantic slave trade, in which England had unfortunately taken an active part with other European States, had dealt out to her, and by which she has lost millions of her children, not to speak of other very serious losses, and which together united to determine their selection of her for their first field of labour, has not yet ceased. That especial prominence to which the severe pressure of the commercial needs of Europe has, on account of her great natural wealth, suddenly raised Africa, and the scramble for territorial possessions and imperial expansion in her in which the Great Powers, in the interests of their commerce, and in the exercise of might over right, have indulged themselves during the last few years, and which have lost her her independence almost everywhere, and which also her feeble strength and effort here and there have not been able to effectually resist, are fraught with elements of serious danger to her. And mark, these movements are responsible for most of the warfares and bloodshed that have marked the march of Europe through the continent: for the massacres here and there of small companies of Europeans, and the uprisings of the peoples—contrary to the common and universal practice of hospitality, especially to strangers, prevalent everywhere in the country—against those whom they had been wont to regard both as their guests and their friends, and even against their own countrymen known to be subjects of European States, and suspected of sympathizing with the Governments of those States, as was the case in 1898 in the Sherbro hinterland district of the Sierra Leone colony, when it is computed some Europeans and over a thousand Sierra Leone natives, being British subjects—men, women and children, missionaries, merchants and traders—were massacred in cold blood by the aboriginal inhabitants of that region; and as was the case also a couple of years ago, when some Englishmen were massacred at Benin, just as the fears entertained by Natives in another part of the country many years ago of the possible loss of their independence, through a permitted long residence of Europeans amongst them, created serious complications, and opposed for a time a great obstacle to the progress of Christian Missions.

Africa is threatened with a foreign yet peaceful invasion, which is calculated to greatly demoralize her children and intensify the misery of her unfortunate condition, even though it may bring to her material prosperity; whilst Mohammedanism, which had with the influence of other agencies destroyed those great historic Christian churches that had for centuries existed in her on the North and North-East, the churches of Cyprian and Augustine, of Cyril, Origen and Athanasius, is making a rapid progress in her, and has been bold enough last year to avow on the West its purpose to expel our Christian work. Should not this continent, this long adopted child, then, have in view of all this, in this the beginning of the second century of the Society, a special share in its prayers, in its allocation of missionaries, and in its pecuniary appropriations for the expansion, the immediate expansion, for which I plead?

But in order to this expansion, stones must be removed out of the way. The body and soul-destroying opium trade in China must be cleared away; and so also must that accursed liquor traffic which Europe has been carrying on with Africa, which threatens a severe paralysis to all Christianizing work in her and destruction to her people, and which the Great Powers in council have together shown themselves unwilling to suppress, in spite of many earnest representations to them of its injurious and ruinous character. Commercial greed and Government revenue considerations should not be suffered to stand any longer in the way of Christian progress; nor should they be allowed to inflict upon Christianity the reproach that contact on the part of illiterate and otherwise less fortunate heathen races with the great and highly-cultured Christian nations of Europe, who should be a light to them, is just as fraught now with the direst evil to them as it has been in the past, or to suggest to some in Africa, who are desirous of seeing their race saved from the slow but sure death that is creeping over them, the idea that European Christianity, dogged as its footsteps are by this trade, is powerless to effect this, and that Mohammedanism, with its well-known total abstinence from drink, is the religion for Africa, and cause them, though not Mohammedans themselves, to look with complacency and delight at its progress in the continent. I earnestly entreat you in God's name to continue, with the co-operation of kindred Societies, to protest against the continued perpetration of this cruel evil and this abomination, till England, at least, failing eventually altogether to secure the co-operation of the other Powers engaged with her in the trade, should, true to her great tradition, take the lead in this matter of suppression at whatever cost to her, and by the sheer force of her noble example draw the other Powers after her, as in the days when she stood up alone for the suppression and abolition of the slave trade.

There should be an abandonment of the practice in the Mission-field of different Missionary Societies standing in too close a proximity to each other, frittering away their strength thereby, delaying expansion, and making it extremely difficult for Native Christians, cut up into small different sections, to properly maintain their respective church organizations; whilst strong efforts should be made to avoid an unnecessary, a disadvantageous, and an injurious delay in conferring on Native Churches the responsibility and privilege of self-support and self-government, so that they may, as independent daughter-churches, and under the influence of the Holy Spirit, soon take their place by the side of the Mother Church, and contribute their own share to the work of a world-wide evangelization, even as your independent Colonies of Australia, Canada, and New Zealand have taken their stand by their Mother Country, and are now actively, zealously, and with much self-sacrifice co-operating with her in the war that is being waged against the Boers in South Africa to assert her supremacy.

To promote this expansion the army of professional missionaries must be largely augmented. Let me here invite the converted and educated Christian young men and young women that hear me now to signalize this very important occasion of the Society's first anniversary in the new century, and in response to the Lord's appeal from heaven, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us?" (Isaiah vi. 8) by consecrating themselves now before Him for this work, and, as they shall be led, tender their services to the Society. Surely you, my dear young friends, will not suffer yourselves to be outdone by your compatriots who have recently volunteered gladly by the thousands to go out to South Africa to fight the Queen's battles in response to her appeal to them, or allow it to be said that the young life of Christian England is more anxious for the extension, the prosperity, the integrity and the glory of the British Empire than it is for those of the far greater Empire of Jesus, the Saviour, the King of kings, and the Lord of lords. Let me say to all that this immediate expansion to which I am inviting and urging the Society would need many, many prayers, and a considerably enlarged and a steadily-increasing pecuniary supply. Are you, the Lord's people, not willing to abound in prayer for this work, and to provide gladly and thankfully the enlarged supply for which you certainly will not allow it to be said you have not the power?

But other missionaries than the above are needed; men who, whilst they follow in non-Christian lands their ordinary callings in life, would witness for Jesus Christ by their godly lives, and their personal voluntary efforts to bring to Him some of His lost sheep. The Englishman is abroad. He is found in several non-Christian lands as a merchant, a trader, a mercantile clerk, a Government official, a miner, a railway officer, or a traveller. He is in his person a representative of a great country and nation, and is generally regarded as a representative of Christianity also. But speaking from my native African experience, I much regret to observe that this dispersion abroad, which should, like that of the early converts to Christianity from Jerusalem, have resulted in an increasing spread of the Gospel, has in the main been too much of a hindrance and a stumbling-block, and it has too often unfortunately left upon the minds of the African people the impression that the white man, when he is not a professional missionary, is a man without a religion, a very materialistic being whose sole object in life is to make money, which has become a god to him. And, let me with all respect observe, here is work for the Church at home to so equip and prepare her sons and daughters for life abroad that their lives may witness for Christ, especially before the Heathen, and contribute to promote the spread of the Gospel. I pass on to notice—

3. Our encouragement.

Do we need encouragement for this expansion? Here it is. The Lord who has commanded us to preach the Gospel over the whole world, bids us "Go forward" (Exod. xiv. 15); "Launch out into the deep" (St. Luke v. 4). He would have us get out of our moorings, and His commands, it has been wisely said, are also His enablings. He has assured to us His presence with us always—"I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world" (St. Matt. xxviii. 20). That presence will certainly go with us when we in loving, cheerful, believing, and prayerful obedience to Him, and in compliance with the beckonings of His providential leadings, attempt important forward movements. "My presence shall go with thee," and is not this presence Divine protection, Divine guidance, Divine co-operation, and Divine enabling together?

Surely, our experience of His dealings towards us in the past assures us of His faithfulness to His promise and of His ability to accomplish His purpose. You were not disappointed in your venture of faith when, in a simple exercise of trust in God, you determined a few years ago not to hold back any suitable candidate for missionary service from the field, though supplies for his support should not be in hand; or when you decided to reply to the unexpected invitation conveyed to you by the traveller Stanley from King Mtesa, of Uganda, in Central Africa, by sending him missionaries, though the distance was immensely great, and the journey hazardous; or when you determined to hold on to the good work begun when, after his death, his son and successor, Mwanga, dealt out fire and sword to the converts then made, and from political fears murdered in cold blood Hannington, the first Bishop of Eastern Equatorial Africa and of the Uganda Church and Mission. You were not disappointed when, in the face of the frequent successive and wholesale deaths of missionaries and others in Sierra Leone, which earned for that peninsula the unenviable distinction of the "White Man's Grave," you, trusting in the Lord, resolved not to abandon that post; or when in 1867, under political influence, a long, patient, and prayerful toil at Abeokuta was met with a forcible expulsion of missionaries and a general wreckage of churches and Mission premises; or when in China missionaries like the Stewarts and their companions suffered martyrdom by fire and sword.

And does not the Mission-field itself minister encouragement to you? See! When in the first year of the last century you could not speak of a single convert, you are able to speak in this first year of the second century of 268,240 baptized converts, children of converts, and catechumens, drawn from all forms and shades of Heathenism, not to speak of the many, many thousands who have died in the Faith; of 358 ordained native ministers, of whom I am one myself, converts, or children of converts, ministering the word of life and the sacraments to their respective peoples in their own different languages and tongues; of a large army of native evangelists and of four native Bishops, including the late much and deservedly lamented Bishop Crowther, whose life was full of labour and his death of honour, Bishops drawn from a downtrodden, oppressed, and much despised race, the Negro race, whom an unaccountable prejudice and a lamentable ignorance and malevolence had ruled out of the pale of the human family, and placed under a Divine malediction, to Christianize and educate whom had been commonly regarded as a well-nigh impossible task—a large number of recruits this who, co-operating with you, would take their own proper share in the great evangelizing work, a force given to you for this very purpose. May He who has placed this large force at your disposal give you more and more the wisdom you need for making an effective use of it!

Here, in your own country, interest in Missions has become more widespread than it has ever been, and enthusiasm in it is rising also. Here, that wonderful movement of the age, the "Student Volunteer Movement," whose motto is "The evangelization of the world in this generation," is preparing both for you and for your fellow Missionary Societies a rich supply of converted and liberally educated missionaries for the wide field. This movement had no existence here thirteen years ago when I last visited this country. It was then I heard for the first time a prayer offered to God at a very small meeting of undergraduates in one of the rooms of Pembroke College in Cambridge, which I had been asked to address on the subject of Missions, and in view of the report which had just then reached England that 1,200 university and other college students in America had signified their readiness to go out into the Mission-field to labour for the evangelizing of the Heathen after the completion of their college course and if the Lord should open the way to it, that God might mercifully work among the Christian young men of England as He had begun to do among the Christian young men of America. It was an earnest prayer, and I was much impressed by it; and after thirteen years I return to find it so richly answered that at the last International Student Missionary Conference in connexion with the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, held at Exeter Hall in this city, in January this year, large numbers represented all your great universities and several colleges scattered up and down the country. The Lord has by all these things and more greatly enlarged the talent He has given us. Shall we not make use of it on a larger scale and upon larger ventures?

Let us, brethren, in view of our Lord's long and patient waiting for the world's evangelization, and the gathering-in of His own sheep; in view of the thousands of non-Christian peoples that pass away from this world everywhere day by day and week by week without a knowledge of that Gospel which we are entrusted with for them; in view of the increasing nearness of the Master's return; in view of the world's urgent need of it, and in humble and prayerful dependence upon the Divine favour assured to us, resolve that our watchword shall from this time always be "Advance!" Forward! Onward!

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE.

General Review of the Year.

(READ AT THE ANNIVERSARY AT EXETER HALL, MAY 1st, 1900.)

"The hand of God was to give them one heart."—2 CHR. xxx. 12.
"All the people answered with one voice."—EXOD. xxiv. 3.
"All the people arose as one man."—JUDGES xx. 8.

THE past few months have witnessed an example of oneness of heart, oneness of voice, and oneness of action which is unique in the history of the world. The whole British Empire, fired by an enthusiastic loyalty to its venerable Sovereign—a loyalty more fervently expressed in this time of trial even than in the rejoicings of the two Jubilees of 1887 and 1897—has risen as one man to defend what it believes to be a righteous national cause. Just such a spirit is what the Church of Christ needs to achieve the object of her present existence. What is that object? Not her own aggrandizement; not the perfection of her machinery, the beauty of her services, the splendour of her charities; but the proclamation of Christ as King in every corner of the globe, the announcement of His everlasting salvation to every child of man, and thus the preparing of the way for His glorious Advent. When His servants flock in His Name to Heathendom in the same ardent spirit in which the Queen's soldiers flocked to South Africa—and not the soldiers only, but chaplains, and doctors, and nurses, and members of the Army Service Corps—volunteering eagerly, and sailing at a few hours' notice, whatever their home ties and home difficulties—then the Church will have risen to her high calling, and will be able to claim a far larger blessing upon all her manifold work at home and abroad.

A great cause—a united people.

From this ideal to the realities of the case the descent is startling indeed. It is certain that a complete revolution is called for in all the thoughts and feelings, not of the world—that is not to be expected—but of the Christian Church, regarding the claim of her Divine Head to the absolute surrender of her members to His will and His service. To effect this, one thing is indispensable—the outpouring of the Holy Ghost in fuller measure; and that outpouring will assuredly come, bringing with it blessing even beyond the present possibilities of our faith, if only united prayer as from one heart and with one voice ascends to the Throne of God from all His true children.

Meanwhile it is the duty of the Committee of the Church Missionary Society to report upon the small fragment of work—small compared with what ought to be done—which it has, by the grace of God, been enabled to do in the past year. The Committee would not be unthankful. The Society has indeed been blessed abundantly; and while the lukewarmness of the Church as a body concerning its missionary responsibilities calls for deep humiliation, the fervent labours of individual brothers and sisters abroad, and of individual fellow-helpers at home, may well evoke praise to Him who has inspired and accepted their service. They do not work for the praise of man. The great majority of the missionaries are rarely mentioned in the Society's publications. Their Annual Letters are now in number quite beyond the power even of the Society's large Report to notice as they deserve; and this brief General Review can take no account of them whatever, though it has been written under the inspiration derived from a faithful reading of them all. They are sent by the veteran of forty and fifty years' standing and by the recruit reporting on his first year. They describe in simple language a vast amount of quiet unobtrusive work. They picture to us the Missionary Bishop with his staff of native clergy; the district missionary with his bands of evangelists; the educational missionary with his eager students, Christian and non-Christian; the pioneer missionary pressing into hitherto unreached districts of Africa or China; the medical missionary on the Afghan frontier or in the Persian city never before occupied for Christ; the linguistic missionary reducing some barbarous tongue to writing, or revising some important version of the Bible; the woman missionary among her zenana ladies, or in her girls' school, or instructing her Bible-women, or ministering to the sick in the Mission hospital, or visiting the poor and needy. They carry the reader from the Ganges to the Yukon; from the Yangtse to the Nile; from the Niger to the Tigris; from the Skeena to the Min; from the Himalayas to Ruwenzori; from Fujiyama to the Ghauts; from Great Bear Lake to the Victoria Nyanza; from Blacklead Island to Loochoo; from the innumerable villages of Bengal to the scattered wigwams of the Red Indians; from the myriads of China to the few hundred Eskimo of the Arctic Circle; from ancient cities like Baghdad and Ispahan to the mushroom settlement of Klondyke; from the timid simplicity of the Bhīls and Gōnds to the polish of Japanese civilization; from the cold Buddhism of Kandy to the feverish idolatry of Benares; from the humble coolie of Mauritius to the proud mullah of the El Azhar at Cairo; from old names dear to our fathers, like Abeokuta and Palamcotta and Waimate, to names unknown in the Report ten years ago, like Toro and Chong-pa and Deng-doi; from a long-established colony like Sierra Leone to the latest spheres of British influence, Uganda and Hausaland and Khartoum.

Many illustrations of the oneness of spirit so signally manifested by the subjects of the Queen are to be seen also in the missionary army. While Australians and Canadians have fought side by side with British troops in South Africa, Australians and Canadians have done admirable service in the Mission-field. A Canadian clergyman fills an important post in the interior of Fuh-Kien. A Canadian clergyman occupies the northernmost of all the Society's stations, Herschel Island, literally nearer the North Pole than Mr. Peck's mission at Cumberland Sound. A Canadian engineer is introducing industrial agencies into Uganda. A Canadian medical lady has just sailed for Kashmir. An Australian clergyman is the pioneer of the Gospel in the Persian city of Kirman. Australian laymen are to be found in East Africa, and Australian ladies in China, Ceylon and Palestine. One of them sails her own boat on the bays and rivers of Fuh-Kien. The daughter of a leading lay member of the Colonial Church of New Zealand has occupied, with one English sister, a Japanese city, for which no male missionary was available. Sixty missionaries have joined the C.M.S. Missions from Australasia and Canada since the four Colonial Associations were established. Colonial Missionaries.

Oneness of spirit has been manifested in other ways; for example, in one interesting Centenary contribution. The Japanese workers in the missionary diocese of Hokkaido, Japan, have resolved to give one per cent. of their salaries for five years, in commemoration of the Centenary, to evangelistic work in Palestine, and the money is appropriated to the support of a native evangelist in Mount Gilead. Another Centenary contribution unites in a specially interesting way the Transvaal campaign and the missionary campaign. The Society, as is well known, has no Missions in South Africa; yet the Bishop of Pretoria, in the day of his calamity, expelled by the Boers from his diocese, remembers the Centenary, and sends £4 to the Fund. Sympathy is really due even more in the reverse direction, and the Committee do sympathize with Bishop Bousfield and his brethren in South Africa, and with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and other Missionary Societies, whose work has been so sadly interrupted by the war.

Although the Church Missionary Society's Missions have not been touched by the war, they have been considerably affected, for weal or woe, by other external events and circumstances. The plague in India has caused the missionaries much anxiety, although the Native Christians, owing to their more cleanly habits, have suffered less than some other sections of the population; and now the terrible famine is throwing arduous respon- Public calamities and political events in the East.

sibilities upon many of the brethren, especially upon those labouring among the Bhīls and the Gōnds in the forests of the great Central districts. In East Africa, too, a serious famine has caused widespread distress, sickness, and death. The entrance of Japan into the comity of civilized nations can only work for good, and has already been accompanied by measures officially recognizing Christianity as one of the religions of the nation. The strange political events in China have not so far affected Missions; but the policy of the French Romanists in seeking secular rank and a share in the secular conduct of affairs seems likely to lead to grave difficulties. On the other hand, the growing enlightenment of the Chinese gentry is illustrated by the wide and unexpected success of a new Anti-Footbinding Society. Riots such as the one in which an S.P.G. missionary was cruelly murdered, or such as those at Kien-ning and Kien-yang, in the Fuh-Kien Province, in which several C.M.S. and C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries narrowly escaped death, may be attributed to local causes. Certainly they do not stop the spread of the Gospel. Fifty-five persons have been baptized in the Kien-ning district alone in the past year, the largest number yet registered; and Kien-ning is a city from which both missionaries and native evangelists have been repeatedly expelled in former years. No obstacle has hindered the recently-planned advance in South China, from Canton up the West River, and Mr. Byrde has advanced to the southern border of Hu-nan.

and in Africa.

While the armies of the Empire have been re-establishing British supremacy in South Africa, British influence has been developing in other parts of the Dark Continent in ways that must affect missionary enterprise. The defeat and death of the Khalifa secures peace, for the time, in the Eastern Soudan, and the Society's pioneer party has been permitted to proceed to Khartoum. Within a few weeks lately three events occurred on opposite sides of Africa which show how closely British administration and the Society's Missions may be brought together. On Christmas Day the new Commissioner in Uganda, Sir H. H. Johnston, attended Divine service in the great church at Mengo, conducted, not by Bishop Tucker or Archdeacon Walker, but by two of the Baganda clergy, after which, out of an immense congregation of Bagánda Christians, six hundred received in the Holy Communion the tokens of their Saviour's dying love. On New Year's Day the new Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria came under the direct government of the Crown, and General Lugard, the first High Commissioner of the Northern Protectorate, was duly installed at Lokoja. And on February 1st a new church at Abeokuta, built in memory of Henry Townsend and J. B. Wood, both of whom laboured for forty years in Africa, was dedicated by Bishop Oluwole, and Sir W. Macgregor, the Governor of Lagos, with the Chief Justice and other leading Lagos people, went up from the coast by special train to be present. Abeokuta, Lokoja, and the capital of Uganda, were C.M.S. stations long before the British power appeared. The Christianity of Uganda having survived the horrors of barbarism, has now to be tested by the enticements of civilization and trade. The extension of the telegraph to the Nyanza, and the gradual progress of the railway, are but outward and visible signs of imminent and radical changes. It is encouraging to find Archdeacon Walker, the most cautious of reporters, stating that "many of the chiefs are enlightened Christian men, who are anxious to improve the condition of the people under them, and to have them governed by good laws"; and also that "the men chosen for ordination have in most cases the natural gifts that will enable them to keep in the front rank in the advance of intellectual and social improvement." An experienced lady in the Mission also writes in the highest terms of the native women teachers, some having, she says, "a wonderful grasp of spiritual things." And truly the best men and women are needed, if in the midst of a widespread profession of Christianity the nucleus of truly converted souls is to be strong and influential. Uganda.

The Uganda Mission now stretches far beyond the limits of Uganda proper. Not only on the islands in the Lake; not only in Usukuma, on its southern shores; not only in Busoga, the country of Hannington's murder, where candidates for baptism are now numerous; not only in Toro and Bunyoro, both with Christian kings; but far to the north, on the White Nile, and far to the south-west, in Ankoli, the country where Mr. Stanley met the exiled Christians twelve years ago, the Gospel is now being carried, chiefly by zealous Baganda evangelists. A vast country still stretches between the furthest outpost northward and the pioneers at Khartoum; but it is the country through which Gordon sent the C.M.S. party by his own Nile steamers in 1878, and in which he himself desired to see the Society establish a Mission.

Khartoum itself, in a missionary sense, is but a watch-tower at present; but the time cannot be far distant when it will be acknowledged that the Mohammedans of the Eastern Soudan have as good a right as the Pagans to be told of the Saviour of the world. They may refuse to believe—that is their responsibility; but to tell them is the responsibility of Christian Englishmen. It is with this same object that the Central Soudan, which Bishop Crowther, and after him J. A. Robinson and Wilmot Brooke, longed to enter, is at last being invaded in the name of Christ by the little band under Bishop Tugwell. The Hausa people are Mohammedans, and they, too, have a right to hear of The Soudan.

Christ. The enterprise is not now a dangerous one, in the sense that it was so when Brooke and Robinson planned it, for the country has since become part of the new Northern Niger Protectorate; but the veil over the Moslem heart is doubtless as heavy there as elsewhere. The Committee earnestly hope that the Western Soudan, the Hinterland of Sierra Leone, may ere long be invaded also in force, as the Bishop of Sierra Leone and Mr. Alvarez so justly and persistently urge.

Moslem lands.

In other Mohammedan lands advances have been effected. The Egypt Mission has been strengthened with a view to influencing the students in the great university of El Azhar; and in Persia, not only are the cities of Yezd and Kirman now effectively occupied, but Shiraz, the scene of Henry Martyn's bitter sufferings from the blasphemies of the mullahs, is now, at last, a Mission station; while at the old capital itself the missionaries are no longer confined to Julfa, the Armenian suburb, but are able to reside within the long jealously guarded walls of Ispahan. In eleven years the number of missionaries labouring in Egypt, Palestine, and Persia has risen from twenty to eighty, just fourfold.

The several new Bishops in India and elsewhere, mentioned in last year's Report, have shown a cordial interest in the Society's Missions; and if the Committee name two especially, Bishop Hoare, of Hong Kong, and Bishop Peel, of Mombasa, it is only because they had for so many years laboured as presbyters in C.M.S. fields. The whole Society rejoices to-day at the consecration of our valued African brother, James Johnson. Though in advancing age, for it is thirty-seven years since he entered the sacred ministry, the Committee trust that he may long be spared to labour, as he has done in the past, for the social, moral, and spiritual progress of his countrymen. It is an encouraging fact that the Jebu tribe, the branch of the Yoruba nation from which he springs, which long resisted the entrance of the Gospel into its territory, has latterly turned, literally in thousands, to Christ, chiefly through the influence of evangelists sent forth from his own Christian congregation at Breadfruit Church, Lagos. He goes forth as a third Assistant-Bishop under Bishop Tugwell, specially, at the earnest request of Archdeacon Crowther, to work among the independent Christian communities in the Niger Delta; but the Committee hope that ere long territorial dioceses with African bishops may be formed out of Bishop Tugwell's vast episcopal sphere of Western Equatorial Africa, in one of which the Delta Pastorate Church, as it is now called, will naturally be a leading centre. The eventual issue might well be an united West African Church for Anglican Negro Christians from the Gambia to the Niger, with both white and black bishops and clergy (so long as white are needed), and a strong band of laymen, sitting in one general Synod, to administer their own affairs and direct missionary operations in the interior.

Native Churches —organization,

The organization of independent Native Churches has before been announced as one of the tasks of the new century. Special Committees in Salisbury Square have been for some time considering the grave questions involved, and important draft papers on the subject have been ordered by the General Committee to be sent to leading missionaries and friends and Native Christians for their opinion. And it is not this Society only that is moving. A strong committee of the Boards of Missions for the Provinces of Canterbury and York, upon which several individual members of the Society are serving, is making extensive inquiries upon the same subject. Valuable as have been the Native Church Councils planned by the foresight and wisdom of Henry Venn, something more is now needed. The Native Episcopate must be promoted—not only in West Africa; and real Church Synods with lay members must be established—not only in Japan. The Church Missionary Society has no thought of stepping outside its own sphere. It is, as regards its functions, a lay body, and can only indirectly influence ecclesiastical movements. It is an association for the evangelization of the Heathen, and its control over Christian converts is only provisional. But its experience will be heartily at the service of the Church authorities at home and abroad, whose co-operation is necessary to the effective working out of any practical scheme; and its guidance will be welcomed by the Native Christians who are its children in their plans for securing the development of their Churches upon sound and Scriptural lines.

Meanwhile, the native clergy increase in number—but slowly, owing to numerous deaths in recent years; and men like Archdeacon Koshi Koshi of Travancore, Archdeacon Robbin of Sierra Leone, the Revs. Sing Eng-teh and Dzing Ts-sing of Mid China, and the Rev. Kharak Singh of the Punjab, are not easily replaced. Twenty-four new deacons, however, were ordained during the year.

But Organization and Ministry do not of themselves constitute Life. It is right to build the Visible Church or Churches; but it is still more important to foster the life of the true Spiritual Church of souls united to Christ by a living faith. The Invisible and Mystical Body of Christ, as distinct from the Visible Body, is now denied, not only by some Churchmen but also by some Nonconformists; but the Church Missionary Society must still stand upon the ground of the greatest of English Churchmen, Richard Hooker, and decline to confuse the Invisible and the Visible. And they perceive that a greater task than Native Church organization calls for prayer and effort—namely, the quickening of spiritual life among the Native Christians. For years past, while duly reporting the numbers of baptisms, of communicants, and of adherents, the Committee have warned their friends against the idea that a congregation in Sierra Leone, or Uganda, or Bengal, or Fuh-Kien, is necessarily a company of converted Christians, however it may have advanced in self-support and self-administration, any more than a congregation in Islington or Kensington. On the contrary, the condition of Native Christianity is the weak point in many of the older Missions; and Mr. Walker, of Tinnevelly, is right when he pleads, as the Committee have often pleaded, against "optimistic descriptions of Native Churches," and entreats those who indulge in them "to betake them to their knees." "We want," he says, "prayer—truthful prayer, agonizing prayer, believing prayer;" and the Committee heartily say, Amen.

Nevertheless, remembering the care taken to instruct and to test the converts, adult baptisms (8,360 for the year) are a cause for thankfulness. Moreover, the Committee are constrained to praise the Lord for many tokens of His grace in the Christian communities. The Annual Letters are full of instances. Mr. Bradburn, for example, says of the Nadiya Christians, over whom the Society has "bemoaned" for half a century, that "there is not a society in Bengal (Church or otherwise) but draws agents from among them; and they are to be found all over India, from Kashmir to Assam." This year it is natural to refer to the world-wide commemoration of the Society's Centenary, observed as it was, not for congratulatory meetings or messages merely, but for united and fervent thanksgiving and prayer and for practical efforts in the Lord's service. The universality of the observance throughout the Society's Missions has been surprising. The Annual Letters refer to scores of services and other gatherings in all parts of the world, of which nothing was heard at the time. Thank-offerings were widely made, whose total would have added a large sum to the Society's Centenary Fund if they had been remitted home: but by far the greater part of them were devoted to missionary purposes on the spot, so that they do not come into the Society's accounts. The Committee thank God for the interest and sympathy so widely manifested, and they would express their gratitude to many fellow-Churchmen and fellow-Christians not usually identified with the Society for their ungrudging co-operation. In like manner the Committee, in the name of the Society as a Body, wish God-speed to the coming Bicentenary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and they pray God to make that venerable Society more and more an instrument in His hand for the spread of His Gospel, both in the fields where the two bodies have long worked side by side, and in those many other fields where the S.P.G. is the principal or only agency of the Church of England.

C.M.S. Centenary in the Mission-field.

Centenary Funds.

The Society's Centenary Fund proper has amounted to £137,695, and this, added to the Three Years' Enterprise contributions (which were both invited and given definitely as Centenary gifts), makes a grand total of £198,948. Considering that almost all the gifts, large and small, were additional to the ordinary funds, the zeal manifested is most thankworthy. The appropriation of the Fund is not yet complete. So far it has been allocated to the following purposes:—£30,110 to clear off the debit balances of previous years; about £30,000 to raise the working capital to £100,000; £44,415 to liquidate the balance of the last year; £5,000 to pay off the remaining mortgage on the Society's House; £8,000 for adding a Nursery House to the Children's Home at Limpsfield; thus leaving, after the expenses of the special organization have been met, the sum of £16,280 to be kept in reserve for future contingencies. It will be remembered that the Centenary Fund was not invited for the purpose of being hoarded. If a large balance were always in hand, there would be less room for faith. The Committee cannot doubt, especially after the experience of the past thirteen years, that although it may please God from time to time to test their readiness to depend wholly upon Him, by permitting a particular year's expenditure to exceed that year's income, He will not fail to provide all that is needed when it is needed, so long as the Society continues faithful to His truth and obedient to His will.

A Centenary volume is being prepared, giving detailed accounts of the commemoration at home and abroad, and full contribution lists. Meanwhile the Committee are glad to report that the History of the Society, in three large volumes, has been much more successful than was anticipated, the first edition of 3,000 copies, which was expected to last for a few years, having been sold out within four months, and the second is selling well; while of the smaller One Hundred Years, 18,000 copies have been sold.

"Review" Committees.

It will be remembered that the Three Years' Enterprise called not only for Advance, but for Review; and during the three years some sixty friends were engaged, in thirteen "Sections," in examining all branches of the Society's work and methods. All these Sections have presented their reports, which are being gradually dealt with by the regular Committees concerned. Many valuable suggestions have been made for the improvement and development of both the work itself and its administration; but no radical changes have been made, and the Committee are confirmed in their hope that the Society has been and is working upon sound lines. The most important outcome of the Review will probably be (1) in the direction of decentralization, more administrative power being given to the local governing bodies in the Missions, and (2) in the promotion—as already stated—of the development of Native Churches.

New plans.

Among new plans only just adopted, but which may prove fruitful hereafter, is one for the formation of special permanent Committees to foster and watch over three important branches of work, viz., Educational Missions, Industrial Missions, and the provision of Vernacular Christian Literature for the growing Christian communities. The Committee do not look for large speedy results. They are content to move slowly; but they ask for prayer that sure progress may be achieved, and they are encouraged by the remarkable and increasing success of the Medical Mission Auxiliary, which shows how much may be effected by the allotment of a particular department to a particular man or men.

The Committee thankfully report the satisfactory progress of the Society's Home agencies, notably those under the Women's Department, and also the various Missionary Unions and Bands; but this year it is not possible to notice them more fully. They have observed with pleasure the Missionary Exhibitions organized by local friends in various towns, the Livingstone Exhibition arranged by their colleague, Dr. Harford-Battersby, and particularly the very interesting and instructive Conference of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union; and they trust that much success has attended the united Missionary Conference in New York, to which they have sent a delegation from this Society, and whose meetings are closing on this present Anniversary day.

Candidates—training

In reporting upon that most important branch of Home Operations, the selection and training of Candidates, the Committee must first express their deep sense of the loss sustained by the Islington College through the retirement of its Principal, the Rev. T. W. Drury, whose valuable services for seventeen years they most gratefully acknowledge. They trust that he may be blessed, and made a blessing, at Ridley Hall, where he has followed Professor Moule; and they bespeak prayerful remembrance for his successor at Islington, the Rev. J. A. Lightfoot. Recalling also the fact that both Ridley and Wycliffe Halls were projected by members of the C.M.S. Committee in the Church Missionary House, they cannot but allude in passing to the change also at Wycliffe, rejoicing in the appointment of its honoured Principal to the Bishopric of Liverpool, thanking God for His blessing upon the episcopate of their revered friend Bishop Ryle, and praying that both Ridley and Wycliffe, under their new Principals, may send a larger contingent of their students even than hitherto into the foreign field. That will be the surest way of bringing down a blessing upon their work for the Church at home.

The number of acceptances for missionary work has been 122, forty-seven men and seventy-five women. Of the men, twenty-five were clergy, two were doctors; seventeen were graduates: seven from Cambridge, four from Oxford, four from Dublin, and two from Edinburgh. Of the seventy-five women, twenty-three have been transferred from the late Society for Promoting Female Education in the East. That Society, the oldest of Women's Missionary Associations in England, was dissolved after the death of its venerable Secretary, Miss Webb; and as the large majority of its ladies were in fact working in more or less connexion with C.M.S. Missions in India, China, and Palestine, they and their work have, by a friendly arrangement, been taken over by the Society. and selection.

The increase of women candidates and the growing development of the Medical Missions have combined to cause the initiation of two new agencies for training—viz., a hostel for women medical students, which has been opened in Guilford Street under the charge of Miss Shann, with her sister, daughters of a late much-respected friend, Dr. Shann, of York; and a small Medical Mission in Bermondsey, where women candidates for ordinary missionary service will receive some elementary training in the minor medical and surgical work which is so important in the Mission-fields where there are no regular Medical Missions.

The finances of the year have doubtless been somewhat affected by the gathering of the Centenary Funds, as well as, in common with those of many other societies, by the extraordinary claims on the benevolence of the country for the alleviation of famine in India and East Africa, and the support of sufferers by the war in South Africa. Notwithstanding, the gross income of the year, including Centenary and Special Funds, has amounted to £404,906. Of this, £80,620 has been derived from Centenary gifts, and £20,611 from Special Funds, leaving £303,675 as the sum of General and Appropriated contributions of the year, as compared with £307,660 of the previous year. On the other hand, the General expenditure has reached £353,266, to which figure must be added the payments for Special Funds £14,002, making the grand total £367,268. The excess of payments over receipts in the General Fund, mainly due to the extension of the Society's work abroad, has been met by a transfer from the Centenary Fund. Finances.

In the course of this brief General Review, the Committee have repeatedly suggested topics for the prayers of their friends. And year by year the prayer is ever necessary that God will graciously raise up His servants who shall take the places of those He has called to Himself. The past year has not been specially marked by losses among either missionaries or fellow-workers at home; but among the former must be mentioned Archdeacon Warren, so deeply mourned in Japan; Colonel Freeman, and the Rev. W. Hope Dixon, whose deaths have been a sore bereavement to the little band of labourers in Bombay; three young sisters and one young clergyman quickly called home from the malarial banks of the Niger; and the venerated Mrs. Thomas, after sixty-one years' faithful labour and happy influence, as wife and widow, at the Christian village of Mengnanapuram. Of several home friends removed, the Committee must name one, highly respected and deeply loved both as a leading member of their body and for some years as Lay Secretary, General George Hutchinson.

The Bishops' Appeal for Prayer.

It is to prayer, fervent intercessory prayer, that the English Archbishops and Bishops have, in a letter signed by them all, summoned the Church to give herself during this present year. The most important place in the appeal was given to the missionary enterprise. Ought not this to be noted by all supporters of that enterprise? "Changed political and civic conditions," say the united Episcopate in the first paragraph, "have opened to the Church countless avenues for social and missionary enterprise. Such enlarged opportunities are fresh responsibilities, and fresh responsibilities are, to all devout souls, a call to prayer;" and the next paragraph runs: "Missionary work has made marked advance during the last hundred years, but still two-thirds of the human race lie outside the allegiance of Christ. The great work which remains to be done is another call to prayer." And then in a list of topics the following appear:—"Missionary.—(1) For the Heathen World; (2) for the rulers of heathen lands; (3) for missionary workers; (4) for those who administer the affairs of missionary societies and agencies; (5) for the consistent lives of Christians in heathen lands."

If the whole Church of Christ would but respond to this summons, as the Empire did to the call of its rulers, with "one heart," with "one voice," and "as one man," the most truly effectual step would be taken, not only towards the evangelization of the world, but towards the deliverance of the Church from the dangers and confusions of the time. The Lord alone can purify it from error; the Lord alone can establish His truth in the hearts of men; the Lord alone can pour out the spirit of holiness, and revive His work in the midst of the years. If those pray who are in error, they will be led into the light of God's truth. If those pray who hold the truth, they will be strengthened. And if the sincerity of prayer is proved by unreserved obedience to the Lord's command of commands, the dedication of self and of substance will, according to His promise, bring down such a blessing that there shall not be room to receive it.

Home Operations.

MEMORABLE events have crowded together in the concluding years of the century now drawing to a close. Wars and tumults, famine, earthquake, and plague have made them memorable in the Queen's dominions abroad, while in the home land, mercifully spared from grave domestic troubles, and, until recently, from serious foreign complications, they have been marked by a steady and continuous development of trade, and by prosperity practically unexampled. The religious world has witnessed an activity only less marked than that manifested in mercantile pursuits. Conventions for the deepening of the spiritual life and Evangelistic Missions have multiplied rapidly; efforts for the welfare of the inhabitants of the British Isles have been maintained and increased; and in spite of religious controversy all parties in the Church have displayed considerable energy in the prosecution of religious work in behalf of the home population. But the readers of the Annual Reports of the Church Missionary Society are naturally most concerned with the growth of what is termed missionary interest—but what in reality is, or should be, missionary conviction—and with the degree in which those who profess and call themselves Christians appreciate the responsibility resting upon them concerning the evangelization of the world, and take steps to discharge that responsibility.

The Centenary in the Provinces.

It was impossible in the Annual Report of last year to give any account of the remarkable Centenary celebrations in the Provinces and in Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, for there had not been time when that volume went to press to study the lengthy columns of newspaper cuttings containing the record of these unique proceedings. The C.M. Intelligencer for June and July, 1899, gave a very brief and condensed recital of what took place at over two hundred centres of missionary influence in the dioceses of England and Wales, and at numerous places also in Ireland. There were special services at nearly all the cathedrals, some of them, notably that at Salisbury, being filled again and again by different classes of hearers. The Bishops of the Church were everywhere prominent in bearing witness to the Church's missionary duty. The Archbishop of Canterbury travelled to Manchester, and to Wimborne in Dorsetshire, and at both places he uttered stirring words concerning the work to be done and the call to effort and self-denial. Everywhere the watchwords of the movement were "Thanksgiving, Humiliation, Advance." Money was very little mentioned, and never obtrusively, yet the money gifts were in many cases considerable. Of the churches and districts in and around London, St. Paul's, Onslow Square, sent £1,190; Hampstead, £870; the Islington Association, £1,052, from twenty-six of the churches in the deanery. Norfolk sent £3,743; the Devon and Exeter Association, £2,694; that of Newcastle and South Northumberland, £1,850; East Suffolk, £1,175; East Kent, £995; East Herts, £737; Dorset, £1,224; Herefordshire, £717; the Diocese of Chester, £840; Berkshire, £1,700; the Diocese of Liverpool sent £3,370, of which the profits of a very successful Missionary Exhibition amounted to £1,360; the Manchester Association sent £1,172; Tunbridge Wells, £2,800; Brighton, £1,210; Bournemouth, £2,332; Bristol, £1,475. Ireland remitted £1,550; Scotland, £368, of which "Centenary Envelopes" brought in £102, and "two soda-water bottles filled with 3*d.* pieces" produced £30; and one entry ran, "Domestic servant's wages for a fortnight, did the work ourselves, 10*s.*"

The Church not yet awake.

But while there can be no doubt that the celebration of the Centenary of the Society conduced to the deepening of interest in Foreign Missions, yet the reports of crowded commemorations must not lead to the supposition that the Church is by any means awake concerning missionary work, or that there is justification for a relaxing of efforts to arouse men and women, and children too, to a sense of the obligation resting upon them; for while a great advance has truly been made, there remaineth yet much land to be possessed. A few figures conclusively demonstrate this to be a fact. Thus the Bishop of Rochester stated at the Annual Diocesan Missionary Festival held in July, 1899, that in 1894, of the 360 parishes in his diocese, 104 so far as could be ascertained did nothing systematically for the cause of Foreign Missions; the number had since been reduced, but still twenty-eight answered to this description. At the Exeter Diocesan Conference, again, it was said that there were still forty-seven parishes in the diocese giving no help at all to missionary work. And a paper published in North Wales reported that in 1898 as many as fifty parishes in Anglesey manifested indifference to the parting command given by Christ to His Church. Perhaps the most complete available statement of what is done in an English diocese for the Evangelization of the World is contained in a paper on the contributions to Foreign Missions from the Diocese of Newcastle, which was drawn up by Canon Nicholson. It shows that the voluntary offerings of the diocese are returned at £69,500 per annum, and that of every £1 of this sum Home Work gets 18*s.* 11¼*d.*, and Foreign Work 1*s.* 0¾*d.* The proportion per £1 of the offertories which is devoted to Foreign Missions varies in the different rural deaneries from 7*s.* 10½*d.* to 1*s.* 4¾*d.* Concerning the supply of living agents who have gone forth from the diocese to the Mission-field, it is stated that there are ten clergy, three laymen, three wives, and two single ladies in the Mission-field, but it is added that half of the clergy in question came to the diocese expressly to get experience in Church work before going abroad. The apathy of the Church of England concerning its "primary duty" can hardly be better illustrated than by the fact that in a diocese presided over by such an enthusiast in the cause of the Evangelization of the World as Bishop Jacob, only 3 per cent. of the clergy and ·07 per cent. of the communicants (18 out of 26,000) have become foreign missionaries. It is impossible to assign any adequate cause for this apathy, for no cause can be adequate; but it may be that a dread lest the diligent prosecution of Foreign Missions should interfere with the home work lies at the root of some of the indifference which is displayed. The groundlessness of such fears was expressed by the Bishop of Worcester in his C.M.S. Anniversary Sermon in 1899, when, speaking of the transcendent glory of missionary work, he said:—

> It breathes new life into all the work at home. By an eternal law Home work and Foreign work flourish or decay together. Contributions to Home work have never been diminished because the work of the Church abroad has taken its proper place in our parochial organizations. On the contrary, they will grow and increase, for Foreign work acts and reacts on the Home work. Schools, Bible-classes, Services in Church are all stronger, brighter, healthier, in proportion as the duty to preach the Gospel to the Heathen is recognized. The duty once recognized becomes a privilege and a joy. It is a sovereign antidote to that selfishness which is so often a canker in our work. It is quite possible for even the religious work of a church or a parish to be "sicklied o'er with the pale cast" of selfishness; and it does us all good to be driven out of our narrow parochial groove, to be compelled to take a wider outlook, to be made to feel that Christ's kingdom is not confined to our own parish, our own diocese, our own country, but is wide as the world.

Reaction of Foreign on Home work.

The reaction of Foreign on Home work to the advantage of the latter is evidenced by the remark made by the Vicar of a south country parish in his annual report, when, after referring to the fact that the contributions of his people to the C.M.S. had been greater in 1898 than in any preceding year, he added: "As a congregation we raise far more for the great Home Mission Society than we did when little was done for Foreign Missions. This is, I believe, the experience of many others, and I am glad to be able to add my testimony to theirs."

It is of prime importance, with a view to developing the Home Work for Foreign Missions, that the clergy should be influenced, and that those about to be ordained should have some knowledge of what is being done in the Mission-field. Accordingly the Society united with the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, and other Societies, in the following Memorial to the Archbishop and Bishops, requesting them to add Foreign Missions to the list of subjects in which candidates for Holy Orders shall be examined in their several dioceses:—

Memorial to the Episcopate.

> The Committees of the undermentioned Societies in the Church of England, engaged in promoting the Evangelization of the World, desire to approach your Lordships on a subject which appears to them to be of the utmost importance, not only to the cause of Missions, but also to the whole Church. The closing years of the nineteenth century have seen no more hopeful religious movement than the increased interest manifested in the extension of the Kingdom of our Lord throughout the world. The Church is about to enter the new century with the sense of a responsibility little recognized at any previous period since the Reformation.

Your Memorialists gratefully remember the emphasis given to this duty by the Encyclical Letter of the last Lambeth Conference, which spoke of Missions as "the primary work of the Church," "the work that at the present time stands in the front rank of all the tasks we have to fulfil." The fact, however, unhappily yet remains, which was then pointed out, that "zeal in this cause is still the enthusiasm of the few"; and the urgent appeal made by the Conference is as much needed to-day as it was then, "that prompt and continuous efforts be made to arouse the Church."

Your Memorialists, fully assured that "the first duty of the Church is intercession," are convinced that intelligent prayer and healthy interest on behalf of Missions necessarily require systematic instruction and information; and that besides the information supplied by the literature of Societies and other publications, it is of the utmost importance that instruction on missionary principles and duties should form part of the regular teaching of all those who have been called to, and set apart for, the ministry of the Church. There is, however, too much reason to fear that even among the clergy the supreme obligation of Christian Missions is little understood and valued. The study of the Divine purpose in their origin, growth, and object, of their problems and purposes, their past and their future, seldom forms any part of the religious education given in our schools and colleges. The place given in Holy Scripture to the missionary call and service is not often recognized in its proportionate prominence. It is rarely, too, that theological students, who are required to be familiar with the history of the early Church, have been taught to look for the application of the lessons which that history teaches in the modern Mission-field, or that with the knowledge of Christian doctrine they acquire any knowledge of the great race religions which still occupy so large a part of the earth's surface, or of the methods by which the Gospel is to conquer them.

While fully conscious of the difficulties which may oppose any addition to the present course of study required for those who are to be admitted to Holy Orders, your Memorialists, recalling your Lordships' own judgment of the great importance of the issues involved, respectfully beg your Lordships to take such steps as may seem best to you to secure that those about to be ordained should possess an acquaintance with the Church's responsibility in this matter, and some knowledge of the work of the Church's Missions, and the lives of its missionaries, so that they may realize that while "the licence which they receive from the Bishop is territorial, the commission entrusted to them is world-wide," and that those to whom they have afterwards to minister may learn how large a part of the duty of every Christian it is to make Christ known to the ends of the earth.

The Bishops Call to Prayer.

Other steps have been proposed as likely to lead to an increase of zeal in the cause of Foreign Missions, but there can be no doubt that the most important of all are those which tend to bring about an increase of prayer, for that not only leads to a blessing on the work abroad, but also conduces to larger zeal and effort on the part of the individuals and bodies who offer it. Very welcome, therefore, was the call to united prayer issued in February, 1900, by the members of the Episcopal Bench, which commenced thus :—

DEARLY BELOVED IN CHRIST,—We feel that the circumstances and events of the present time bring with them a special call to prayer.

This year is the closing year of a century marked by wonderful advances in science, invention, and knowledge of the world's needs. These advances have put us in possession of powers and opportunities of doing good which were not vouchsafed to our fathers. Changed political and civic conditions have opened to the Church countless avenues for social and missionary enterprise. Such enlarged opportunities are fresh responsibilities, and fresh responsibilities are, to all devout souls, a call to prayer.

Missionary work has made marked advance during the last 100 years, but still two-thirds of the human race lie outside the allegiance of Christ. The great work which yet remains to be done is another call to prayer.

Amongst the missionary subjects for prayer suggested in a separate paper signed by the two Archbishops were the following :—

(1) For the heathen world; (2) for the rulers of heathen lands; (3) for missionary workers; (4) for those who administer the affairs of missionary societies and agencies; (5) for the consistent lives of Christians in heathen lands.

A step in the same direction was taken by the Rochester Diocesan Board of Missions in connexion with the Day of Intercession, for that Board issued a paper in the autumn of 1899 containing a list of those formerly working in the diocese who were then in the Mission-field, the clergy being allotted to the parishes in which they last held a licence, and lay workers of both sexes to those parishes with which they were last associated in Church work. The suggestion was made that ten or a dozen of the missionaries should be remembered in prayer for a week at a time, and the list, which contained the names of nine bishops, ninety-three clergy, and 195 lay workers (160 of these were women), was arranged accordingly.

Church Congress.

Foreign Missions were assigned a more prominent place than usual at the London Church Congress, for the Session was placed early in the week, instead of at its end as heretofore. The attendance, though falling far short of the great throng when a partisan debate was expected, was nevertheless a large one, about 4,000 persons being present at the beginning of the meeting. The subjects considered were "The Church within and without the Empire," and "Missions to the Heathen;" the three selected speakers being the Right Hon. Sir J. Kennaway, the Rev. E. A. Stuart, and the Bishop of Sierra Leone. The Church Missionary Society was again, as in 1898, represented at the Art Exhibition held in connexion with the Congress, having two stalls, the one chiefly filled with literature and diagrams, and the other with models and photographs bearing upon Medical Missions.

S.V.M.U. Conference.

A Conference organized by the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, and attended by 1,700 delegates, gathered from two hundred educational centres (including 120 foreign delegates from twenty-five countries), was held in London from January 2nd to 6th, 1900. A full account of the Conference is printed in the C.M. Intelligencer for February, 1900; it must suffice here to mention that the C.M.S. friends among the speakers included Archdeacon Moule, the Rev. H. E. Fox (whose paper was read for him in his absence), Canon Bruce, the Rev. G. Ensor, the Rev. G. H. Pole, Dr. Duncan Main, Dr. H. Lankester, Dr. D. W. Carr, Mr. L. H. Nott, Mrs. A. E. Ball, and Miss B. J. Allen.

The 101st Anniversary.

The arrangements connected with the Hundred and First Anniversary of the Church Missionary Society were on the same general lines as in previous years, but one circumstance made the occasion remarkable. As usual, the invitation to preach the annual sermon was given by the Committee some months before the Anniversary, and it was accepted by the Rev. F. J. Chavasse, Principal of Wycliffe College, Oxford. When a few months later the Bishopric of Liverpool was offered to and accepted by Mr. Chavasse, he asked to be excused keeping his engagement to preach the annual sermon on the ground of the numerous new demands on his time which his appointment had brought. Meanwhile the Archbishop of Canterbury had intimated his readiness to consecrate the Rev. James Johnson to be Assistant Bishop of Western Equatorial Africa, and the consecration had taken place on February 18th. The Committee therefore gladly turned to Bishop Johnson with the request that he would occupy the anniversary pulpit. Thus it came to pass that by a happy accident, so to speak, the preacher of the first annual sermon of the Society's second century was a Native of Africa, a convert won by the Society's missionary work, and this was the first time that a non-European clergyman had occupied the pulpit on such an occasion. The sermon is given in full at the beginning of this Report. Sir John Kennaway, M.P., presided over the Annual Meeting, which was held in Exeter Hall the following morning, Tuesday, May 1st, and the speakers were the Bishop of Ossory and Ferns, the Right Hon. Viscount Cross, the Rev. W. H. Ball, of Bengal; the Rev. A. Elwin, of Mid China; Dr. D. W. Carr, of Persia; Chancellor P. V. Smith, and the Rev. T. W. Drury, Principal of Ridley Hall, Cambridge. A meeting was held in St. James' Hall at the same time, with the Dean of Windsor in the chair. In the afternoon there were various conferences, as well as a meeting for women, and in the evening Colonel R. Williams presided over another gathering in Exeter Hall. The Annual Meeting of the Medical Mission Auxiliary took place in St. James' Hall on May 3rd, under the presidency of Colonel Owen Hay.

Year's Receipts and Expenditure.

The financial statement of the year shows that the receipts for the general purposes of the Society were as follows:—(1)

General, £247,172, of which sum £167,629 was from associations, £32,884 from legacies, and £82,889 from benefactions. (2) Appropriated, £137,122, of which £80,620 consisted of Centenary contributions; associations contributed £88,215 under this head, of which £60,859 was to the Centenary Funds. Total, £384,294. A deficit in the accounts of 1898–99, amounting to £30,111, was met from the Centenary Funds. As the following statement shows, the same funds have been utilized to balance the income and expenditure of the year under review: —

The expenditure to be met has been...		£353,266
The sums available for meeting this have been:—
(1) Ordinary receipts	£247,172
(2) Appropriated contributions applicable to the year's expenditure (including certain balances of previous years)	60,557
(3) Contingency Fund	1,121
The adverse balance drawn from Centenary Funds		£44,416

In addition to the sum mentioned above, namely, £384,294, there was received a sum of £20,611 for various special funds not applicable to the Society's general purposes. The grand total of receipts for the year under all heads was £404,905.

Candidates.

The Candidates' Department was in touch with about 390 men and 240 women, 630 in all, during the year ending April 30th, 1900. Many of these only made inquiry, but 253 cases (106 men and 147 women) were dealt with by the various Candidates Committees. The Committee accepted 82 candidates with a view to training and probation, viz. 32 men (three of whom afterwards felt it right to withdraw) and 50 women (eight of whom withdrew or were declined later). The number of acceptances of new missionaries (including a few who from missionary motives offered and were accepted for posts as business agents in the Missions) for the year was 97 (47 men and 50 women); while in addition to these 23 were transferred from the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East and two from the C.E.Z.M.S., making a total of 122 (47 men and 75 women). Of the 97 new missionaries, 28 (18 men and 10 women) were already qualified, i.e. were judged not to need probationary training; 59 (23 men and 36 women) were accepted after training; five (one man and four women) were accepted by the Colonial Associations or by C.M.S. representatives abroad; and five were accepted for special work for a limited term of years. Of the 47 men, 25 were clergy or were ordained before going out, two were medical men, and 20 other laymen. Seventeen of the men were graduates, seven from Cambridge, four from Oxford, four from Dublin, and two from Edinburgh. Three of the women also were graduates, two of the Royal University of Ireland, and one of the Bishop's College, Lennoxville.

The following list gives the names of those accepted for service, together with their colleges or training institutions, the place from which they offered to the Society or the Colonial Association by which they were accepted, and, in the case of those who have sailed, the Mission to which they have been assigned:—

Valedictory Meetings.

The autumnal Public Valedictory Meetings were held in Exeter Hall on October 3rd and 4th. The President of the Society occupied the chair at the former of the two gatherings, when leave was taken of missionaries going out to Persia, Turkish Arabia, the Punjab, Western India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, and the closing address was given by the Rev. D. J. Stather Hunt, Vicar of Holy Trinity, Tunbridge Wells. There was an administration of the Holy Communion in St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street, on the following morning, the communicants numbering upwards of five hundred, and the sermon being preached by the Rev. Professor Moule on Exodus xii. 26. In the evening farewell was said to the missionaries proceeding to Africa, Egypt, Palestine, Bengal, the North-West Provinces of India, South India, Travancore, and Mauritius; the Treasurer of the Society presided, and the Rev. J. A. Lightfoot, the newly-appointed Principal of Islington College, spoke the concluding words, taking 2 Tim. ii. 8 (R.V.) as his text. The missionaries received their particular instructions from the Group Committees which conduct the business of the various Missions. This was an innovation, the practice having previously been for the Correspondence Committee to give the instructions to all the departing missionaries together. The number to be dismissed in recent years has made the proceedings at these dismissals very protracted and somewhat of a tax on the time and strength of the missionaries. The new method has the advantage of being more susceptible of adaptation to the convenience of all concerned, as well as requiring the attendance of individual missionaries for a briefer time. Another public Valedictory Meeting took place at Exeter Hall on November 28th, primarily for the pioneer party proceeding to Hausaland, in the Soudan, but advantage was taken of the occasion to bid God-speed to other recruits leaving for various parts of the field. Bishop Ingham was in the chair, addresses were given by Bishop Tugwell and others of the out-going party, and the closing words were spoken by the Bishop of Caledonia.

Conferences of missionaries on furlough.

Linked naturally with the bidding farewell to those going forth for the first time, or returning to the field after an interval of rest, is the holding conference with missionaries at home on furlough, and seeking to gain from them, and to enable them to derive from one another, those lessons which experience and consultation alone can teach. Conferences of missionaries in England were held in 1897 and 1898, but during the year under review, instead of the gatherings being held on one day only in the Church Missionary House, several days, from September 28th to October 2nd, were spent in happy fellowship at Cliff College, Curbar, in Derbyshire, which was kindly lent by Dr. Grattan Guinness. Sixty missionaries were present. Devotional addresses were given by the Right Rev. Bishop Peel, the Rev. A. E. Barnes-Lawrence, and the Rev. H. E. Fox, and the following subjects were discussed:—"The Spiritual Renewal of the Missionary on Furlough;" "The Parent Committee's Function of (a) Direction, (b) Advice;" "The Need and Dangers of Native Agency in the Early Stages of Missionary Work;" and "The Educational Work of the C.M.S., and the Need of more Educational Missions." A Conference of Women Missionaries, which was held from April 6th to 10th, 1899, was referred to in last year's Report, but as it was in point of time the earliest, and was actually the progenitor of the more protracted Conferences, a fuller account than was available last year must be rendered. The Conference was held at Westfield College, Hampstead, and was attended by workers from almost every C.M.S. Mission-field, from West and East Africa, Palestine, Persia, Bengal, North-West Provinces, Punjab and Sindh, Western India, South India, Ceylon, Mauritius, South China, Mid China, West China, Japan, North-West Canada, and British Columbia. The diversity of the spheres represented was strikingly illustrated when, in response to a suggestion made during the Conference that St. John iii. 16 should be repeated in the different languages used by those present, nineteen different tongues were spoken. Besides a number of devotional meetings, there were gatherings for intercessory prayer, and discussions on a variety of subjects, including, "The Woman Missionary in contact with Christians": viz., (a) Fellow Missionaries, (b) Native Helpers, (c) Native Christians, and (d) Inquirers and Secret Believers; and "The Woman Missionary in contact with Non-Christians": (a) in Mohammedan Lands, (b) in the Farther East, and (c) in Africa. The subjects were introduced by Mrs. Guilford, of Tarn Taran; Mrs. Banister, of Hong-kong; Miss Grover, of Ibadan; Miss Young, of Colombo; Miss Stirling, of Julfa; Miss Wardlaw-Ramsay, of Acca; Mrs. Duncan Main, of Hang-Chow; and Miss Colsey, of Mamboia. Besides these formal Conferences, a series of social gatherings of missionaries who happened to be in or near London was inaugurated, and took place at the Church Missionary House in December and the following months, their object being to enable the missionaries to become better acquainted with one another, as well as with the Committee and others at Headquarters.

Training of candidates.

It is impossible to over-estimate the importance of those institutions and organizations the purpose of which is to prepare men and women for work in the Foreign Field, yet probably there are comparatively few of the friends of the Society who have any real conception of what such training involves, or follow this branch of home operations with an interest commensurate with that with which they regard the efforts of the missionaries in the field. The late Principal of Islington College, in a paper printed in the C.M. Intelligencer for September, 1899, enumerated some of the matters to which attention has to be paid if those who go forth from a missionary training institution are to be properly equipped for the work which lies before them. It is necessary that they should be well-grounded in the doctrines of the Christian faith, that they should have some knowledge of logic in order to be able to cope with the subtle arguments of Mohammedans and Hindus, that they should have had experience in the conduct of active spiritual work, and above all that they should be accustomed to exercise self-control in comparatively trifling things, and that their spiritual tone should be of a high order. One of the regulations of the Society's College at Islington declares, "It shall be a leading aim . . . to promote that hardiness of mind, that alertness and vigilance, that patience of labour, that spirit of humility and mutual kindness, that subjugation of self-will, that superiority to bodily ease and gratification, that simplicity of character and manner, which are indispensable qualifications of a true missionary." Other branches of knowledge in which it is desirable that they should receive instruction are foreign languages, medical work, vocal music, industrial work, non-Christian religions, and the progress of the Gospel in other lands.

Retirement of Rev. T. W. Drury.

Islington College suffered the loss of its honoured Principal, the Rev. T. W. Drury, on his accepting the Principalship of Ridley Hall, Cambridge. On Mr. Drury's resignation being tendered, the Committee adopted the following Resolution :—

> That the Committee accept the resignation of the Rev. T. W. Drury, and place on record their hearty appreciation of the invaluable services which, for seventeen years, he has rendered in the training of the Society's missionaries. During that period not only has the educational standard been maintained at a high level, so that on numerous occasions candidates for ordination trained at the College have gained first places in the examinations required for Holy Orders, but every effort has also been made to promote the spiritual life and activities of the students. The provision of a College Chapel and a Gymnasium and workshops, through the kindness of various friends, and the development of a short course of training for lay missionaries, have been prominent incidents during Mr. Drury's occupancy of the office of Principal. The Committee part with him with sincere regret; they offer him their hearty congratulations on his call to another post of surpassing importance, and they earnestly pray that he may long be spared to carry on the great work commenced by the honoured friend whom he succeeds at Ridley Hall, for the glory of God and the lasting benefit of His Church.

Mr. Drury was succeeded by the Rev. J. A. Lightfoot, M.A., Hertford College, Oxford, Vicar of St. Stephen's, Canonbury, and formerly tutor of St. John's Hall, Highbury. The inmates of the College comprised one missionary on furlough, one graduate, one medical man, two medical students, twelve short course and thirty-six long course men. Eight of the students entered for the University

Preliminary Examination, of whom six obtained a first-class and two a second-class. Two passed the examination at Durham for the B.A. degree with distinction, and another obtained two prizes for Hebrew. Six of the men were ordained by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral, on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899.

New Medical Training Home and Women's Hostel.

Two important developments in the training of women candidates were resolved upon by the Committee in October. It was felt to be desirable that all women missionaries should receive some teaching and gain some practical experience in simple surgery and nursing before going abroad, and it was decided to open a Medical Training Home for ordinary candidates, to be conducted as a Medical Mission, with a dispensary for out-patients, and a resident lady doctor and trained nurse. It was also resolved to open a Hostel as a place of residence for candidates taking a full medical course at the London School of Medicine for Women, or an educational course at the Home and Colonial Training Institution. Premises for the Medical Mission were taken in Riley Street, Bermondsey, and for the Hostel in Guilford Street, W.C., and Miss Lucy Shann, daughter of the late Dr. Shann, of York, and formerly head of the Irish Church Missions Training Home in Dublin, was appointed Honorary Superintendent of the Hostel.

Home Preparation Union.

Consolidation rather than growth marked the year's record of the Home Preparation Union, of which the Rev. G. H. Ayerst, Vicar of Neasden, is the Hon. Secretary. During the year ending March 31st, 1900, forty-eight men and 128 women were enrolled as members. The number of men who renewed their membership from the previous year, or were enrolled during the twelve months in question, was ninety-one, and of women 263. Eight men of the number and twenty-six women were accepted by the Society for training. Associated with these members were upwards of 150 friends throughout the country—clergymen and others in sympathy with the Society—who rendered valuable help by tendering advice to those members commended to their care by the Committee of the Union, and by extending to them practical sympathy. A test paper, consisting for the most part of simple Biblical and doctrinal questions, was sent out to all the members of the Union at the end of the year, answers being received from about 250. Three different courses of study were recommended to the members according to the estimate formed of their several capacities, and suggestive questions were also forwarded intended to direct their attention to points most worthy of study, with a view to helping them to prepare for an optional examination in June or December. Eighty-six men and 252 women availed themselves of the special assistance thus afforded. Besides the work which was thus accomplished by means of correspondence, a great deal was done by preparation classes which were held in London, Belfast, Birmingham, Bristol, Cambridge, Dublin, Hull, Liverpool, Newcastle, Sheffield, and other centres, which were attended by members of the Home Preparation Union and others.

Children's Home.

Old boys of the C.M.S. Missionaries' Children's Home, of which the Rev. A. F. Thornhill is the Director, gained three open scholarships at Cambridge, while a clerical exhibition at Rossall, and open scholarships at Trent College, South Eastern College, and Sandwich Grammar School fell to the lot of boys still at the Home. The results in the Oxford Local Examinations were also good, two of the girls obtaining specially high distinction in religious knowledge. A confirmation was held in the school chapel by Bishop Peel, of Mombasa, and the Home has the honour of having been the scene of his first episcopal act.

Gleaners' Union.

Nearly ten thousand persons were enrolled as members of the Gleaners' Union, making a total of enrolments since the foundation of the Union in 1886 of 122,189. The number of new branches was seventy-seven, as compared with sixty-six in the preceding year (those formed in India and the Colonies not being included); but eight branches were disbanded, so that 924 were in existence on November 1st, 1899. Ninety-two of the branch secretaries were clergymen, and 162 laymen or ladies. The number of branches supporting or partly supporting their "Own Missionary" rose from thirty-two to forty-five, and several maintained a native pastor, catechist, or Bible-woman in the Mission-field. The gifts to the general "Our Own Missionary" fund of the Union amounted to just over £1,400, by means of which the allowances of 14 missionaries are provided. The Gleaners' Union Library appears to be increasingly appreciated. The thirteenth anniversary of the Union was held in London on October 31st and November 1st. On the former of those days the Conference of Branch Secretaries took place, after a short devotional meeting with an address by the Rev. E. A. Stuart. The subjects considered at the morning session were "The Systematic Study of Missions," "The Practical Use of the Cycle of Prayer," and "The Practicability and Utility of Combined Branch Meetings," the papers being read by Mrs. A. Carus-Wilson, Miss H. Napper, and the Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard respectively. In the afternoon the secretaries gave brief verbal reports of their work, and a paper was read by the Rev. J. E. Woodward on "The Need for Advance," the proceedings for the day terminating with a devotional address and prayer-meeting conducted by the Rev. E. W. Moore. On November 1st, All Saints' Day, there was a Communion Service at St. Bride's at which Prebendary Eardley Wilmot preached. A meeting in St. Martin's Town Hall followed, which was addressed by Mrs. McClelland, formerly of the Fuh-Kien Mission; Mrs. Ball, of Sindh; Miss Elverson, of Palestine; Miss Laurence, of Japan; and Miss M. C. Gollock. Bishop Tugwell presided over the Annual Meeting in the evening, when the general subject of "The Evangelization of the World in this Generation" was dealt with. The Rev. H. D. Williamson, late of Bengal, spoke on "Evangelization," Mr. Tissington Tatlow, the Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, on "The World," and the Rev. D. J. S. Hunt, of Tunbridge Wells, on "This Generation." The closing address was given by Bishop Peel, of Mombasa.

Younger Clergy Union.

The report presented at the fourth annual Conference of the Federation of C.M.S. Younger Clergy Unions, which was held in London in June, 1899, stated that the Centenary Celebrations, and the preparations for them, had to a certain extent interfered with the ordinary work of the various Unions, but that the efforts made in connexion with them by the Younger Clergy had demonstrated the value of the organization for banding them together, and had served to promote the consolidation of the movement. The number of Unions belonging to the Federation was twenty-five, with an aggregate membership of about 1,250. Two new Unions were formed during the year between the Federation Conference of 1898 and that of 1899; the one for South Devon, an offshoot of the Exeter Y.C.U., set on foot in consequence of the difficulty experienced by its country members in gathering regularly at the common centre, and the other at Scarborough, established on the initiative of the York Y.C.U. Steps were taken to form another Union for North Devon, the inaugural meeting of which took place within a week of the London Conference. Eleven members of the Y.C. Unions offered themselves to the Society for foreign service. Several forms of home work were collectively undertaken by the members. In London, Hull, Liverpool, and Nottingham, some of them formed and carried on classes for the preparation of intending candidates; at Bradford a breakfast was organized at the time of the Church Congress in conjunction with the Committee of the local C.M.S. Association; and the members of the Belfast, Bristol, Cambridge, and Cheltenham Unions systematically arranged village lantern meetings in their immediate neighbourhoods. Special attention was devoted to the important work of influencing the children. At Exeter and Cambridge addresses were arranged in a number of private schools; and in the latter town, as well as in Bath, Bristol, Cheltenham, and Nottingham, the elementary schools were visited from time to time. The Bristol and Clifton Y.C.U. was to the fore in this last-mentioned form of effort, for its members sought and obtained permission from the School Board to give a missionary address annually in every school under their authority, and addresses were delivered in 1899 in fifty-one schools belonging to the Board, as well as in sixteen under Church management. The Rev. R. N. F. Phillips, Vicar of Emmanuel Church, Croydon, and the Rev. G. F. Seaton, Vicar of Christ Church, High Wycombe, are the Joint Secretaries of the Federation.

Lay Workers' Union.

A step towards the unification and consequent strengthening of the work of Lay Workers' Unions and Bands was taken in the summer of 1899, by the promulgation of a carefully-drawn scheme of federation; the matter, however, proved to be compassed about with difficulties, and up to the present it has not been carried into effect. The report presented at the seventeenth annual meeting of the London L.W.U. shows that there was an increase of four in the number of Unions and Bands in the Metropolis, and of seven in the number in the Provinces, the actual figures being sixty-six and forty-five respectively. The half-yearly Conferences of Missionary Bands were duly held, the one in February, 1899, at Penge, when "Lay Workers' Opportunities and Responsibilities in view of the Church Missionary Society's Centenary" was the subject under discussion; and the other at Holloway in July, which was occupied with a consideration of the attitude of the Bands towards the Second Century of the C.M.S. The members of the London Lay Workers' Union numbered 673, made up as follows:—Ordinary members, 575; honorary members, 21; Presidents and Vice-Presidents, 19; missionary members, 42; and honorary missionary members, 16. Mr. A. E. W. Gwyn, late Secretary of the Bands, whose acceptance as a missionary of the Society was recorded in last year's Report, sailed for Calcutta at the end of 1899; two other members of the Union, having passed through Islington College, and been ordained, left for their work abroad; and yet another offered for West Africa as accountant, and was appointed to Lagos. Four members were accepted for training. The Candidates' Preparation Class was continued fortnightly with a slightly larger attendance than in the preceding year, and was conducted by the Rev. H. Marriott, of Woking. The Committee which was appointed, as mentioned in last year's Report (page 25), to deal with the question of the supply of business men of Christian character for secular posts in non-Christian lands, received sympathetic autograph letters from the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Metropolitan of India. They took several practical steps in discharge of the task entrusted to them, among them being the opening of a register for entering the names of those desirous of going abroad as business men, on which fifteen had been enrolled when the Committee presented their report. Missionary meetings were held in some business houses, and the simultaneous addresses in Sunday-schools were arranged as in previous years, very nearly five hundred being delivered in 223 different parishes in Advent, 1899. The Lay Workers in Manchester and Sheffield again issued outline Sunday-school missionary addresses, which were utilized in a large number of parishes, and in Birmingham they organized sustained and systematic work among children and others.

Women's Department.

The Women's Department of the Society increases in importance and usefulness every year, and the year under review has been no exception to the general rule. "Quiet Days" for home Women Workers were organized in various parts of the country, and also Conferences about practical work, in which the devotional element was not lacking. Of the Conferences, that for workers from the Dioceses of Liverpool, Manchester, and Chester may be taken as typical. In was held in Manchester, and opened on October 24th with a reception given by the members of the local Ladies' C.M. Union and Mrs. Moorhouse. The following days were occupied with a devotional gathering succeeded by a Conference each morning, and with a public meeting for women in the afternoon succeeded on the one day by a "missionary facts" meeting and on the other by a second devotional gathering. The Conference was closed by a special service and Holy Communion in one of the churches. Another Conference, perhaps the most remarkable of all, must be mentioned, that of girls belonging to the educated classes, which took place at the Royal Holloway College, Egham, from March 26th to 31st, 1900. Just over 100 assembled from all parts of England. The inaugural meeting was conducted by the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, Central Secretary of the Society, who spoke of the reasons which had brought so many together. On the Tuesday morning Miss G. A. Gollock's opening address on "Foreign Missions in relation to Reason, Conscience, Emotion and Will" well defined the scope of the Conference. The appeal to Reason was made by the lecturers each afternoon—Miss Minna Gollock in a study of the non-Christian religions of the world; Dr. Donald Carr and Dr. Lankester in pleading the cause of Medical Missions; Mrs. Ashley Carus-Wilson in a sketch of the missionary "Makers of History" from the days of St. Paul to the present time; and lastly, Mr. Maconachie, late Deputy-Commissioner of the Punjab, in a defence of Native Christians against their critics. The appeal to Conscience, Emotion, and Will was made at the morning meetings by little sketches of "Missionaries at Work," "Missionary Facts," or discussions on such subjects as "Study and Prayer," "Methods of Work," &c.; but above all by the devotional gatherings with which each day began and ended, and by the spirit of constant and spontaneous prayer throughout. The Conference closed in the morning of Saturday, March 31st, with Holy Communion in the College Chapel. During the year deputations from the Women's Department visited upwards of eighty ladies' schools, giving a missionary address to the girls, and seeking to interest them in missionary work by showing and explaining curios and in other ways. A Terminal Letter was sent to 315 schools, about 9,000 copies being circulated each term. Several high schools and large intermediate schools were among those visited. The appointment of lady correspondents to foster the work among women, which was originally made as a temporary measure in connexion with the Three Years' Enterprise, has been adopted as a permanent institution. The rapid growth of the operations of the Department has led to the need of a second lady secretary, and the Committee were happily able to secure the services of Miss Minna C. Gollock to share with her sister, Miss G. A. Gollock, the labour and responsibilities of the growing work.

Work among Young.

No part of the home operations of the Society are more pregnant with hope for the future than the Work among the Young, and it is encouraging to report that, partly, perhaps, as a result of the numerous children's gatherings at the time of the Centenary, greater attention than ever before has been given to the stirring-up of missionary zeal amongst the young people. In order to impress upon the friends of the Society the imperative necessity of pressing forward this part of its home organization, conferences of clergy, of Sunday-school superintendents and teachers, and of others were held during the year in a number of large towns—notably in Birmingham and Leicester—which resulted in the appointment in several places of special local committees to watch over and develop the work among children. The subject was also fully discussed at the Half-yearly Conference of Missionary Bands which took place in London towards the end of February, 1900. The Sowers' Band is the chief of the organizations intended specially for the young. The statistics, made up in July, 1899, showed that during the preceding twelve months seventy-eight new bands had been formed, one of them in Uganda, another in Palestine, and a third in Tinnevelly, and that nineteen had been disbanded, the total number in existence at the date mentioned being 468. A former secretary of one of the Bands sailed in the autumn for the Niger Mission, where, soon after her arrival, she was called to her eternal rest; two other secretaries were accepted for training as missionaries, the one under the C.M.S. and the other under the C.E.Z.M.S., and a former Sower offered himself to the Society. Besides Sowers' Bands, 107 Junior Associations had been registered at headquarters by the end of 1899, some of them including from ten to twenty Parochial Associations.

Sowers' Band.

Boys' Schools.

The work in boys' schools steadily developed; many of the public schools, such as—to mention only a few, and omitting those which were named in last year's Report—Marlborough, Haileybury, Wellington, Sedbergh, Repton, Trent, Merchant Taylors', King's College, Canterbury (King's), Cranleigh, Dover, Leicester, Eastbourne, and Brighton, were addressed, through the kindness of the head-masters, by the Rev. A. E. Goodman of the Telugu Mission, and other chosen speakers, and the circulation of the paper for school-boys, which was first published in January, 1897, rose during the year under review from 5,300 to 7,600. Numerous meetings were held for children not attending public elementary schools, the most remarkable of which was that in the Queen's Hall, Langham Place, on May 26th, 1900. The Nottingham Committee for Work among the Young gave special attention to reaching these classes of children, and an account of their methods, which was published in the C.M. Intelligencer of January, 1900, showed how complete and effective was their organization. Missionary seaside services were repeated at Silloth and Alnmouth, and were also held for the first time at Mundesley and Overstrand; by this means the cause was brought under the notice of many who could not otherwise be influenced.

Sunday-schools.

Sunday-school children naturally formed the major portion of the audiences at the great mass meetings of young people, and they showed in many ways how ready they were to exercise self-denial in order that they might help forward missionary work. Some interesting examples of the methods which they adopted with this end in view, expressed in the language and spelling of the children, appeared in the magazines of the Society, among them the following:—"Self-denile. By doing mangleing, 3*d.*; by going without sweets, 1*d.*; out of my pocket money, 2*d.*; for picking a chicken, 3*d.*; by cleaning boots, 3*d.*; out of my bank-holiday money, 4*d.*; out of what I had give me, 2*d.* Total, 1*s.* 6*d.*" "Burying a rat, 1*d.*; helping, 3½*d.*; washing pots, 2*d.*; burying another rat, 1*d.*; doing messages, 3*d.* Total, 10½*d.*" "Earn it out of me wages, 1½*d.*" "Deniance of sugar, 3½*d.*; deniance of sweets, 2*d*; earn, 1*d.* Total 6½*d.*" "Mother sent me this shilling. I was going to buy seeds, ribbon, and sweets, but would sooner give it to the missionary, and am glad of an opportunity to do so." A comparatively novel method was tried at St. Stephen's, Cinderford, where the Sunday-school teachers organized a blackberrying expedition, and, with the help of the children, gathered a large quantity of fruit, which was converted into jam, by the sale of which a sum of seventeen shillings was realized. At many sales of work there was a stall held by the children, and in some places a special children's sale proved a fruitful source of income. Efforts to press forward missionary work in Sunday-schools were almost invariably attended with success, the contributions from the children of a Paddington parish increasing in one year from £6 17*s.* 1*d.* to £18 1*s.* 3*d.*, and those of a Birmingham parish advancing from £4 9*s*. in 1894 to £14 6*s*. during the year under review. The total amount raised for the Society by the instrumentality of the young in 1898–99 was, as nearly as can be estimated, £19,479, as compared with £18,518 in the preceding twelve months, but only in half of the parishes supporting the Society did any effort appear to be made to enlist the sympathy and help of the children. Young people were useful, too, in spreading information: for example, choirs, the members of which were dressed in the costumes of various countries in which the Society is at work, and sang hymns in the vernaculars, were instrumental in bringing together large audiences in the North of Ireland. Best of all, the co-operation of the children in prayer was increasingly sought, and large numbers of the prayer-card issued for their use were circulated during the year. Many of the children took a deep interest in the work of Medical Missions, about twenty beds in various C.M.S. Hospitals being supported by members of the Boys' Brigade.

Medical Mission Auxiliary.

The Medical Mission Auxiliary, by means of Medical Courts at Loan Exhibitions, of the appeals of speakers who advocated this particular branch of the missionary enterprise, and of Mercy and Truth, the organ of the Auxiliary, has brought the duty of healing the sick as well as of preaching the Gospel before the country, with the result that the income of the Auxiliary advanced from £8,466 to £10,600, exclusive of Centenary gifts. The institution of a Medical Training Home for Women has already been mentioned. A matter of less importance may be referred to as an incident of the past year, namely, the decision to have a uniform dress and badge for all trained nurses working in the Medical Missions of the Society, and for the wives of medical missionaries taking a definite share in the work of their husbands' hospitals. The rapid growth of the work has rendered necessary the appointment of an Assistant-Secretary, and the Rev. R. Elliott, M.A., L.R.C.S.I., formerly medical missionary of the Society in Santalia, North India, and at Gaza in Palestine, has accepted the post.

Association Secretaries.

The year under review, like its predecessor, was marked by several changes in the personnel of the staff of Association Secretaries. Archdeacon Hamilton retired after forty-two years of service for the Society in the Mission-field and at home. The Rev. J. G. Watson, Association Secretary for the Dioceses of Oxford and Peterborough, resigned his charge after fifteen years' service on his appointment to the Rectory of Devizes; the Rev. G. Denyer gave up his district in the Dioceses of Manchester and Carlisle, and accepted the living of Christ Church, Blackburn; and the Rev. H. Knott, after a serious illness, gave up his district, which included the Dioceses of Durham and Newcastle, on his appointment to the parish of Totland Bay, in the Isle of Wight. Archdeacon Hamilton's retirement afforded an opportunity for making the following modification in the boundaries of the districts in and near London: the Diocese of London and the county of Essex have been formed into one district; the Diocese of Rochester and that part of Surrey which is situated in the Diocese of Winchester into another; the remainder of the Diocese of Winchester, the Diocese of Salisbury, and the Channel Islands into a third; and the Dioceses of Canterbury and Chichester into a fourth. The first and third of these districts are under the charge of the Rev. F. Glanvill and the Rev. W. Clayton respectively; the Rev. G. A. Anning, B.A., St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, Curate of Langley, Birmingham, has been appointed to the second; and the Rev. J. E. Padfield, B.D., lately of the Telugu Mission, to the fourth. The other three vacancies have been filled up as follows: the Rev. A. E. Wilson, who had charge of the work in the Dioceses of Hereford and Lichfield, succeeds Mr. Watson; the Rev. A. E. Bentley, Association Secretary for the Dioceses of Bristol, Gloucester and Worcester, succeeds Mr. Denyer; and the Rev. C. F. Bickmore, M.A., Cambridge, Vicar of Husborne Crawley, succeeds Mr. Knott. The Rev. H. D. Williamson, M.A., Corpus College, Cambridge, of the Bengal Mission, has been assigned to the two districts, now united, vacated by Mr. Bentley and Mr. Wilson. Mr. Knott has been appointed to assist the Rev. W. Clayton in organizing the work in the Isle of Wight and other parts of his district.

Missionary Vans.

A method of arousing interest in places which could not otherwise be frequently visited, in consequence of the heavy demands on the deputation staff of the Society, and the expense of travelling—namely, the use of Missionary Vans—has commended itself after trial in the Dioceses of Manchester and Carlisle. The Van, which was dedicated in 1898, visited eighty-five parishes during its first year, staying on an average three or four days in each. Those in charge of it addressed 420 meetings and services, with an aggregate attendance of some 22,000 adults and 10,000 children, and sold £35 worth of publications. The collection of money was not made a prominent feature of the work, but nevertheless £14 was received by the evangelists, and £28 was sent up direct to headquarters from meetings which they addressed. Some of the parishes visited by the Van previously gave no support to the Society. Two branches of the Gleaners' Union were started, one of which afterwards held a successful sale of work. The figures for the second year, that ending on March 31st, 1900, were more encouraging still, for the services and meetings numbered 550, the attendances amounted in the aggregate to over 75,000, the value of the publications sold was £47, and nearly 60,000 of the papers for free distribution were put into circulation. With facts such as these before them, the Funds and Home Organization Committee decided to accept the responsibility for the Van as an integral branch of the Home Organization work of the Society. A second Van, the gift of a Manchester lady, intended for use in the Dioceses of Durham and Newcastle, was dedicated on February 1st, 1900, by the Bishop of the latter diocese. Local friends have guaranteed the cost of maintaining the Van for three years.

The older established methods of circulating information and collecting funds were in full use during the year. A noteworthy instance of the former was furnished in Manchester, where the Rev. G. Denyer gave lectures on the Evangelization of the World during Advent in the Cathedral, and also delivered a course on the History of Foreign Missions in the Scholæ Episcopi, under the presidency of the Dean. In Birmingham, too, there was an important gathering in November, when a number of the principals of High Schools, and of the masters and mistresses of the Board Schools, met by the invitation of a friend to listen to an address on Foreign Missions, and confer as to how their pupils might best be influenced in favour of the work of preaching the Gospel among the Heathen. But no ordinary meetings succeed in reaching large numbers of people in the same degree as Missionary Loan Exhibitions, which appear to grow in popularity year by year, and are admirably organized by Mr. H. G. Malaher, of the Missionary Leaves Association. Among the Exhibitions held during 1899 was one at Oxford, which was opened by the Vice-Chancellor of the University on the first day, and by Miss Constance F. Gordon-Cumming, the Lord Chancellor, Dr. A. Lankester (of the Punjab Mission), the Master of Pembroke, and the President of the Society on succeeding days. It was estimated that upwards of 24,000 people visited the Exhibition, the receipts at which amounted to £1,200. A similar effort in Dublin in connexion with the Centenary resulted in a net profit of £1,800. From the Loan Department at the Church Missionary House 237 loans of curios were made, varying in number from 6 to 300 objects each; 3,159 lantern slides illustrating the various Missions of the Society; 1,854 sets of diagrams; 1,587 of maps; and 1,664 books from the Loan Library. All these were lent without charge, on payment by the borrowers of carriage both ways.

Loan Exhibitions.

A study of the contribution lists bound up with the Annual Report for 1898–99 reveals the fact that the total sum collected in boxes was £43,145, an increase of more than five thousand pounds over the amount of the previous year. Nearly two-fifths of the total, so far as can be ascertained, was contributed by young people, and the figures of almost every diocese showed advance. Another prolific source of income is found in Sales of Work, one of which, held at Holy Trinity, Leicester, in the autumn of 1899, realized no less than £320. The history of this effort is in some degree typical of the steady progress which recent years have witnessed at home. About thirty-five years ago the Rev. Edmund Davys, who was then Vicar of Holy Trinity, began to send round a missionary-basket, and the proceeds of the sale of the contents were for some years made up to £5. Gradually more ambitious steps were taken. A sale for which the parishes of Holy Trinity and Christ Church combined was substituted for the basket, and this in 1884 realized £241, in 1889 £262, and in 1894 £352. In 1895 it was decided, not without misgivings on the part of some friends, to hold separate sales, but the wisdom of the step has been abundantly justified, since in 1898 the total of the two sales amounted to £465, and in 1899 to £550. In the year 1898–99 about 850 sales of work were held in the Province of Canterbury, realizing £22,744, while the 233 sales in the Province of York yielded £6,073.

As in previous years, much loving ingenuity and cheerful self-sacrifice were displayed in order that the supplies necessary for the operations of the Society might be furnished. A working man in the West of England sent to his Vicar anonymously the sum of £5 in cash to be devoted to Protestant Foreign Missions, enclosing the money in a letter from which the following is an extract:— Gifts from working men.

> i ask the acceptance of the enclosed £5, which i send in the name of Jesus Christ my Saviour, and asking you to forward the same to the proper quarter, for the help of furthering and extending the name of Jesus Christ in foreign lands. . . . i know this is just as necessary in England as abroad, but the people of England know, but the poor ignorant Heathen don't, they therefore want a teacher to tell them. . . . i myself am only a working man, and this small tribute which i send is the little saving of my labour with which i thought to enjoy at this festive season, but instead of feasting at such times i have sent you the enclosed. . . . as i know you will send it to its proper place where it will be used for the glory of God's Holy Name.

The story is told, too, of an old working man who at the time of a local anniversary wrote the following letter to the Association Secretary:—

> Dear Sir,—A-many of my fellow-workmen allow themselves 1*s.* a week as beer and tobacco money. Believing these to be unnecessary luxuries I forego them, and thus save on this head 52*s.* per annum. Half of this sum (26*s.*) I herewith enclose for you kindly to put in the C.M.S. collection for me to-night and oblige,—Yours cordially, A. L. M.

Two years later the same "A. L. M." ("A Labouring Man") and his wife were very ill with influenza when the C.M. Anniversary came round, but he sent his gold piece on the Sunday, and the following week the Association Secretary received a letter containing 20*s.* from his old friend, with words to this effect: "My conscience would not let me rest for not having contributed better for the good cause, so I send the additional mite." Trading with a penny, though not so popular a means of raising money as in some former years, brought in some interesting gifts, not least among which must be esteemed the sum of £1 4*s.* 4*d.* sent by a coachman's wife with a family, who was in poor health, and much of whose success is to be attributed to the fact that she made her work a definite subject of prayer. Animals, too, were often pressed into the service, for the contribution lists contain frequent mention of missionary pigs; Persian kittens were shown to thrive at Cheltenham, turkeys at Silloth, and canaries in another place, while in at least one parish there was a regular organization of missionary hens.

"C.M. House" at Bristol.

The desirability of spreading information concerning missionary work is increasingly recognized, and as a means to the attainment of this end there can be no doubt of the usefulness of such institutions as the Church Missionary House which was opened at Bristol in the early autumn of 1899.

Publications.

The circulation of the literature published by the Society grows every year. The following table, which gives the number of copies printed in the years mentioned, affords a reliable index as to the estimation in which the magazines are held :—

	Intelligencer	Gleaner	Juvenile Instructor	Awake	Mercy and Truth	Total
1883 .	. 45,400	438,060	379,000	...	...	862,460
1886 .	. 57,650	444,435	406,000	...	...	908,085
1889 .	. 60,456	669,012	404,628	...	...	1,134 096
1892 .	. 72,200	842,918	575,000*	425,000	...	1,915,118
1895 .	. 75,950	890,000	664,000*	499,000	...	2,128,950
1896 .	. 78,900	946,626	674,000*	507,000	...	2,206,426
1897 .	. 79,000	983,283	698,000*	524,000	66,000	2,350,283
1898 .	. 79,200	1,000,800	726,000*	531,000	72,000	2,409,000

Thus, during the fifteen years from 1883 to 1898, the number printed of the Gleaner and of the Juvenile Instructor (now the Children's World) more than doubled, and the circulation of the Intelligencer largely increased, while two new magazines were published. In the same period a loss on the magazines of about £350 per annum was exchanged for a profit of nearly £400.

The chief new publications of the year under review were :—(1) Vol. III. of Mr. Eugene Stock's History of the Church Missionary Society, completing the work, of which a copy, bound in white vellum, has been graciously accepted by Her Majesty the Queen-Empress; (2) Persian Women and their Creed, by Miss Bird; (3) Toro: Visits to Ruwenzori, by Bishop Tucker; (4) Manual for Stewards at Missionary Loan Exhibitions; (5) In Journeyings Oft, a Christmas book for children; besides reprints of other books. The average number of magazines printed monthly was:—Intelligencer, 6,800; Gleaner (including 49,400 for localized editions), 88,800; Awake, 45,800; Children's World, 60,600; and Mercy and Truth, 6,900. Of the Quarterly Paper, 20,000 copies were printed for each quarter of 1899, and 30,000 of it in its new form for January, 1900, this number being still further increased for April, including the copies stitched up with parochial magazines. Of the Quarterly Token, an average each quarter of 225,000 English and 5,000 Welsh (three quarters only) were printed. The circulation of the Society's Sheet Almanack was well maintained. The total circulation of the Society's magazines and papers during the year was seven and a half millions, of which over one and a half million were Centenary papers.

C.M. Intelligencer.

The C.M. Intelligencer for December completed the fiftieth volume of that magazine, though it was then rather more than fifty years old, as it was started in May, 1849, the eight numbers of that year being bound up with the twelve of 1850 to form Volume I. The Intelligencer was originally a little larger in shape than at present, but contained only twenty-four pages, double column. It was the first attempt to provide a missionary periodical for educated people, in which articles on the geography, ethnology, religions, &c., of the various Mission-fields could appear, and what is called the science of Missions be discussed; and in which important letters from the field could be published at once, instead of waiting, perhaps for some months, their turn in the systematic reports then given seriatim in the old C.M. Record. Its success was immediate, and it at once took a recognized position as the only periodical of the kind. In 1876 the old C.M. Record was amalgamated with the Intelligencer, and the combined magazines took nearly the present external form, with sixty-four pages. In 1891 the periodical was enlarged to eighty pages. A new departure—or rather a reversion to the original form, in this particular—was made in January, 1900, by the addition of a frontispiece.

Obituary.

During the year five Vice-Presidents have been removed by death, namely: the Bishop of Limerick (Dr. Graves), Bishop Cheetham (formerly of Sierra Leone), Bishop Lloyd (formerly of Bangor), the Earl of Harrowby, and General Hutchinson, C.B., C.S.I.; four Honorary Life Governors: the Rev. A. Baring-Gould, the Rev. Preb. R. E. Brooke, the Rev. E. C. Ince, and Mr. Joseph Rice; and two Honorary Life Members: Mrs. W. Gray (Nottingham) and Mrs. Shann (York). Among other home friends and members of the Committee who have passed away may be mentioned the Rev. W. S. Lewis, late Vicar of St. Mary's, Hornsey Rise; the Rev. E. Maxwell, Rector of High Roding; the Rev. Preb. Lunt, of Walcot; Mr. R. H. Gurney, of Northrepps Hall, near Cromer; Mr. H. N. Champney, of York; and General Lawder. Of Retired Missionaries six have died during the year, viz.: the Rev. J. G. Deimler, formerly of East Africa and Western India; the Rev. A. B. Valpy, formerly of South India; Mrs. Clark, wife of the Rev. W. Clark, formerly of Tinnevelly and Ceylon; Mrs. Ireland Jones, wife of the Rev. J. Ireland Jones, who since her death has rejoined the Ceylon Mission; the Rev. W. H. Collins, formerly of Pekin; and the Rev. E. P. Wheatley, formerly of Mid China. One widow of a missionary has passed away, namely, Mrs. Maser, widow of the Rev. J. A. Maser, formerly of the Yoruba Mission. Eighteen Missionaries have been removed by death from active service: the Rev. E. A. Wise, Miss S. Hickmott, Miss E. S. Philcox and Miss A. H. C. Squires, of the Niger; Mrs. J. G. B. Hollins, of Egypt; the Rev. S. Gibbon, of Palestine; Mrs. H. M. Moore, of Bengal; the Rev. C. S. Thompson, of the North-West Provinces; the Rev. R. Clark and Mr. W. Stobie, of the Punjab; the Rev. W. H. Dixon and Col. T. A. Freeman, of Western India; Mrs. Thomas, of South India; Mrs. J. Carter and Mrs. J. D. Simmons, of Ceylon; Miss I. K. S. Acheson, of West China; the Ven. Archdeacon Warren, of Japan; and Mrs. J. McWilliam, of New Zealand. Also eleven Native Clergy have died: the Ven. Archdeacon Robbin, and the Revs. J. T. Asgill and J. B. Bowen, of Sierra Leone; the Rev. Yakub Ali, of the North-West Provinces; the Rev. Kharak Singh, of the Punjab; the Revs. A. Asirvatham, S. Paul, and D. Perimbam, of South India; the Ven. Archdeacon Koshi Koshi, of Travancore and Cochin; the Rev. Sing Eng-Teh, of Mid China; and the Rev. Eruera Kawhia, of New Zealand.

Patronage.

The office of Vice-President of the Society has been accepted by the Bishop of Bangor (Dr. Williams); the Bishop of Barrow-in-Furness (Dr. Ware); the Bishop of Cashel (the Right Rev. H. S. O'Hara); the Bishop of Lahore (Dr. Lefroy); the Bishop of Liverpool (Dr. Chavasse); the Bishop of Singapore and Sarawak (Dr. Hose); Bishop Peel, of Mombasa; and the Right Rev. James Johnson, Assistant-Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa. The Committee have appointed to the same office: the Ven. Archdeacon Eyre, of Sheffield; the Rev. George Salmon, D.D., Provost of Trinity College, Dublin; Sir Archibald S. L. Campbell, Bart.; and Sir Matthew F. Smith-Dodsworth, Bart. To vacancies in the list of Honorary Life Governors they have elected the Rev. T. W. Drury, the Rev. W. T. Storrs, A. Evill, Esq., H. Gibson, Esq., and F. P. Ward, Esq.; and they have added the names of Miss A. Brooks (Grantham), Mrs. Alexander Beattie (Beckenham), Mrs. Cobbold (Ross), Miss Hassall (Sydney, N.S.W.), Mrs. J. C. Hoare (Hong-Kong), Miss Louisa S. Hoare (Tunbridge Wells), Miss Léon (Liverpool), Mrs. Charles Moule (Cambridge), Mrs. Sandberg (Isleworth), and Miss M. Walsh (Sydney, N.S.W.), to the list of Honorary Life Members.

The Colonial Associations.

In no year has there ever been so great a manifestation of the spirit of unity between the Colonies and the Mother-Country and among the Colonies themselves as in that which is reviewed in the pages of this Report. The war in South Africa has done more than any event of past years to weld the units of the British Empire into one integral whole, calling forth offers of help from all the great self-governing colonies of Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Cape Colony, and Natal, and not from them only, but even from such vastly diverse peoples as several of the native races of India, the Chinese in Hong-Kong, and the Red Indians in North-West Canada, who alike have felt the benefits of British rule. Under the sway of Queen Victoria, the British Empire has vastly increased. A paper read by Sir Robert Giffen before a meeting of the Royal Colonial Institute showed that between the years 1871 and 1897 the territory of the Empire increased from 8,646,000 to 11,500,000 square miles; the population from 282,000,000 to 407,000,000, about one quarter of that of the whole world; the revenue from £142,510,000 to £257,653,000; and the imports and exports from £947,000,000 to £1,375,000,000. Or, putting it in another way, that the area increased by more than one-fourth of the whole, the population by more than one-third, the income by over eighty per cent., and the imports and exports by more than forty per cent. Figures such as these afford much food for thought, especially when it is remembered that they do not include Egypt and the Soudan, which were rescued from the yoke of the Khalifa in 1898. If they mean anything they mean added responsibility, for responsibility is the inseparable companion of power—responsibility to develop the resources of the different lands not merely for the benefit of the Mother Country, but for the benefit of their inhabitants; responsibility to afford them the protection of just laws impartially administered without fear or favour; responsibility to abolish cruel customs, to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, to let the oppressed go free, to break every yoke, to deal bread to the hungry, to cover the naked, to bring the poor that are cast out to some haven of rest. Such tasks, it is thankfully believed, have been more or less adequately discharged; the prosperity of the colonies witnesses to the justice of the rule of the Home Land, and the reform of abuses in India and elsewhere, brought about, it may be, with much faltering, but still eventually accomplished, bears testimony to some measure of realization of the obligation referred to. What has been done has not been done without cost: what remains to be done will not be done without cost in the future. The stirring message of Mr. Rudyard Kipling to the United States when she began her colonial career has its force for those with years of experience in the matter behind them:—

Extension of British Empire.

Added responsibility.

Take up the White Man's burden—
No iron rule of kings,
But toil of serf and sweeper—
The tale of common things.
The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,
Go, make them with your living
And mark them with your dead!

Take up the White Man's burden,
And reap his old reward—
The blame of those ye better
The hate of those ye guard—
The cry of hosts ye humour
(Ah, slowly!) toward the light:—
"Why brought ye us from bondage,
Our loved Egyptian night?"

Not least has the cost been paid in connexion with the deepest responsibility of all—that of telling forth the message of Salvation through Christ, and Christ alone—for many roads in different quarters of the Empire are "marked" with the missionary "dead."

It cannot be said with truth that our nation has adequately fulfilled the obligation resting upon her to send forth with her sons and daughters who go to settle in the distant corners of the Empire the ministrations of religion, or to carry the Gospel to the Heathen and Mohammedans who own her sway. It is nevertheless a heart-stirring review which the Bicentenary of the venerable Society for the Propagation of the Gospel bids us take of efforts made by Churchmen in this direction, begun before the great Colonies were added to the Empire, and continued to this day. That Society, which owes its origin to the piety and energy of Dr. Bray, Rector of Sheldon, Warwickshire, who had been sent by the Bishop of London to inquire into the condition of the Church and clergy in the American Colonies, was formed with the design, as stated in its first annual sermon, of "settling the state of religion, as well as may be, among our own people there (in the Colonies) . . . and then of proceeding in the best methods . . . towards the conversion of the Natives." After several years of promise the work languished, and during the Hanoverian period was but feebly prosecuted, little being done beyond supporting some forty clergymen and the same number of schoolmasters in British America; but in 1818 the revival commenced which has continued until the present time. In 1899 the S.P.G. had on its list the names of twelve bishops and 787 clergymen, of whom 174 were Natives in Africa and Asia. Of the 613 English or Colonial clergymen, 39 were chaplains in Europe. There were 127 in Asia, all or almost all of whom would be missionaries to the Heathen or Mohammedans. In Africa, with St. Helena, Mauritius, and Madagascar, 145; most of them in the South African Colonies, where the work is both among the white colonists and the native tribes. In the Dominion of Canada, 211, almost all for colonial ministrations, but six are marked as missionaries to the Heathen. In the West Indies and Central and South America, 51, of whom twelve are similarly marked. In Australasia and the Pacific, 40, of whom six are so marked. In addition there were about twenty names of laymen on the list, and eighty women-missionaries were supported by the Women's Missionary Association of the Society. A considerable number of the names referred to are of men selected and engaged by Colonial and Missionary Bishops, towards whose stipend the Society makes on the average a grant of £50 per annum, but most of the Society's missionaries to the Heathen are altogether upon its funds. The Society has contributed largely to the extension of the Episcopate, for out of ninety-four English Colonial or Missionary Bishoprics, fifty-four owe to the Society either a handsome gift to the endowment or an annual grant for maintenance.

Jubilee of Australian Board of Missions.

The Australian Board of Missions, which was founded in 1850, celebrates its Jubilee in 1900, and the C.M.S. Committee, in anticipation of the Commemoration, passed in June, 1899, the following Minute:—

> The Committee of the Church Missionary Society hear with much interest of the proposal to observe in 1900 the Jubilee of the Australian Board of Missions, founded at the memorable first Conference of Bishops in the Australasian Colonies held at Sydney in 1850. They have noted with thankfulness the evidences in recent years of growing missionary interest and zeal among their Colonial brethren; and while they rejoice to have been permitted to assist in providing facilities for members of the Church in Australia desirous of engaging in missionary work in the great Heathen Continents of Asia and Africa, they at the same time recognize fully the special obligation lying upon Churchmen in the Southern Hemisphere to evangelize the Heathen of the Southern Seas, which duty has been more especially undertaken by the Australian Board of Missions. They trust that the proposed observance of the Jubilee of the Board may by God's blessing result in a substantial increase of faithful labourers for Christ in New Guinea and Melanesia, among the Australian Aborigines, and among the Chinese in the Colonies, and, with the labourers, of the means necessary for their support and for the maintenance of Missions generally.

I. NEW SOUTH WALES.

Centenary Celebration at Sydney.

The Centenary of the C.M.S. was celebrated with enthusiasm at Sydney on April 12th, 1899, and following days. There was a Communion Service at St. Andrew's Cathedral in the morning of April 12th, at which the Archbishop of Sydney officiated, and Canon Corlette was the preacher. A luncheon followed, at which Archdeacon John Langley gave an address on "Killing Parochial Selfishness," and the Rev. Willoughby Flower spoke. In the afternoon a special service, also in the Cathedral, was held, at which the Archbishop preached. The Y.M.C.A. Hall was densely crowded in the evening, and an over-flow meeting was held at the same time in the Chapter House. The Archbishop presided at the main gathering, and addresses were given by Dean Marriott, of Bathurst, the Rev. N. Jones, Principal of Moore College, and the Rev. John Vaughan, of Summer Hill. The same speakers delivered their addresses over again at the Chapter House, which was also full. On the 15th a children's meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. Hall, at which the Archbishop again presided, and the Revs. A. E. Bellingham and W. A. Charlton gave addresses. In the following week a Missionary Loan Exhibition, the first to take place in New South Wales, was held, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Shaw. Exhibits from all parts of the world were displayed in fifteen courts, a special feature being objects from the South Sea Islands, lent by the L.M.S., the Wesleyans, and the Melanesian Mission. Christians from Melanesia and other South Sea Islands sang hymns from the platform, and there was a band composed of Christian Chinamen, residents in Sydney. Lectures on the various Missions were delivered at short intervals. The net profits of the Exhibition exceeded £120.

The number of Gleaners enrolled during 1898–99 was 374, exactly the same as in the preceding year, making 3,242 members on the list, of whom, however, only 1,776 renewed. Two branches were disbanded, and four new ones formed, making a total of fifty-nine when the report was issued.

II. VICTORIA.

Commemorations at Melbourne,

THE Centenary Celebrations at Melbourne began on Saturday, April 8th, 1899, with a prayer-meeting, which was largely attended. On the 9th there were special sermons in many churches, and several parochial meetings were held on the two following days. On the 12th there was a Communion Service at St. Paul's Cathedral, when the Bishop of Melbourne (Dr. F. F. Goe) preached on Ps. cxv. 12. In the afternoon a Missionary Loan Exhibition was opened by Mrs. Howard Taylor, wife of Dr. Howard Taylor, of the China Inland Mission, and daughter of the Rev. Dr. Grattan Guinness. Subsequently there was a tea at the Town Hall, at which 1,100 friends sat down. In the evening the same hall was filled by an immense audience, and addresses were given by the Bishop of Ballarat (Dr. S. Thornton), the Rev. W. A. Storrs, of the Tinnevelly Mission, and Mrs. Howard Taylor. The Loan Exhibition, held in the Athenæum Hall, was crowded day by day.

Hobart. At Hobart, Tasmania, services and meetings were held, and under the auspices of the Bishop of Tasmania (Dr. H. H. Montgomery). The Bishop himself preached in the Cathedral, and presided at the principal meeting in the Synod Hall. The Rev. R. P. Carroll, late Acting Secretary of the New South Wales Association, took part in the celebration.

Anniversary. The Annual Sermon of the Victoria C.M. Association was preached on March 6th, 1900, by the Rev. Dr. Hooper, of the North-West Provinces of India, and the Annual Meeting took place in the evening of that day, under the presidency of the Bishop of Melbourne. It was stated at the meeting that the work among the Chinese in the country had been diligently prosecuted by means of a number of schools; that encouraging progress had been made in the efforts to influence the Syrians and other Arabic-speaking people of the colony, chiefly by means of visiting them in their homes; and that the missions to the fast-disappearing aboriginals had been steadily maintained. The balance-sheet showed an income of £3,439, but that amount proved insufficient to cover all liabilities. By the amalgamation of the Australian Branch of the C.E.Z.M.S. with the Victoria C.M. Association in 1896, several ladies were added to the Association's list of missionaries, which, in 1899, contained the names of one ordained man, four laymen (including one doctor), one wife, and nineteen other ladies, besides those of three workers among the Chinese in Victoria, and two among the aboriginals. The Gleaners' Union continued its valuable operations during the year, and good progress was made in the Sowers' Band, the number of members increasing and the children taking a deeper interest in the work.

The Secretary of the Association in China. The Rev. E. J. Barnett, the Organizing Secretary of the Association, and Mrs. Barnett, continued in China throughout the year under review, studying the Chinese language at Macao. The Committee have gratefully accepted their offer to help temporarily in the work of the Society at Canton.

III. NEW ZEALAND.

The Centenary at Nelson. A MEETING was held at Nelson, in connexion with the Centenary, on April 12th, 1899, with the Bishop of the Diocese in the chair. The Bishop said that in point of actual time the meeting held in New Zealand was the first to take place on April 12th, as New Zealand is nearest to the meridian crossing the 180° of east longitude from Greenwich, though when the C.M.S. "for Africa and the East" was founded it was not contemplated that New Zealand in the extreme East would be included in the sphere of its operations. The Revs. W. G. Baker, F. Bennett, and F. W. Chatterton were among the other speakers, as was Mr. H. P. Park, a Maori, who was interpreted by Mr. Bennett.

Appointment of an Organizing Secretary.

Last year's Report mentioned the decision arrived at by the Committee of the New Zealand C.M. Association to appoint an Organizing Secretary, who should be free to devote his whole time to developing the work of the Association. The Rev. J. de B. Galwey, Curate of St. George's, Birmingham, was appointed, and reached New Zealand in January, 1900.

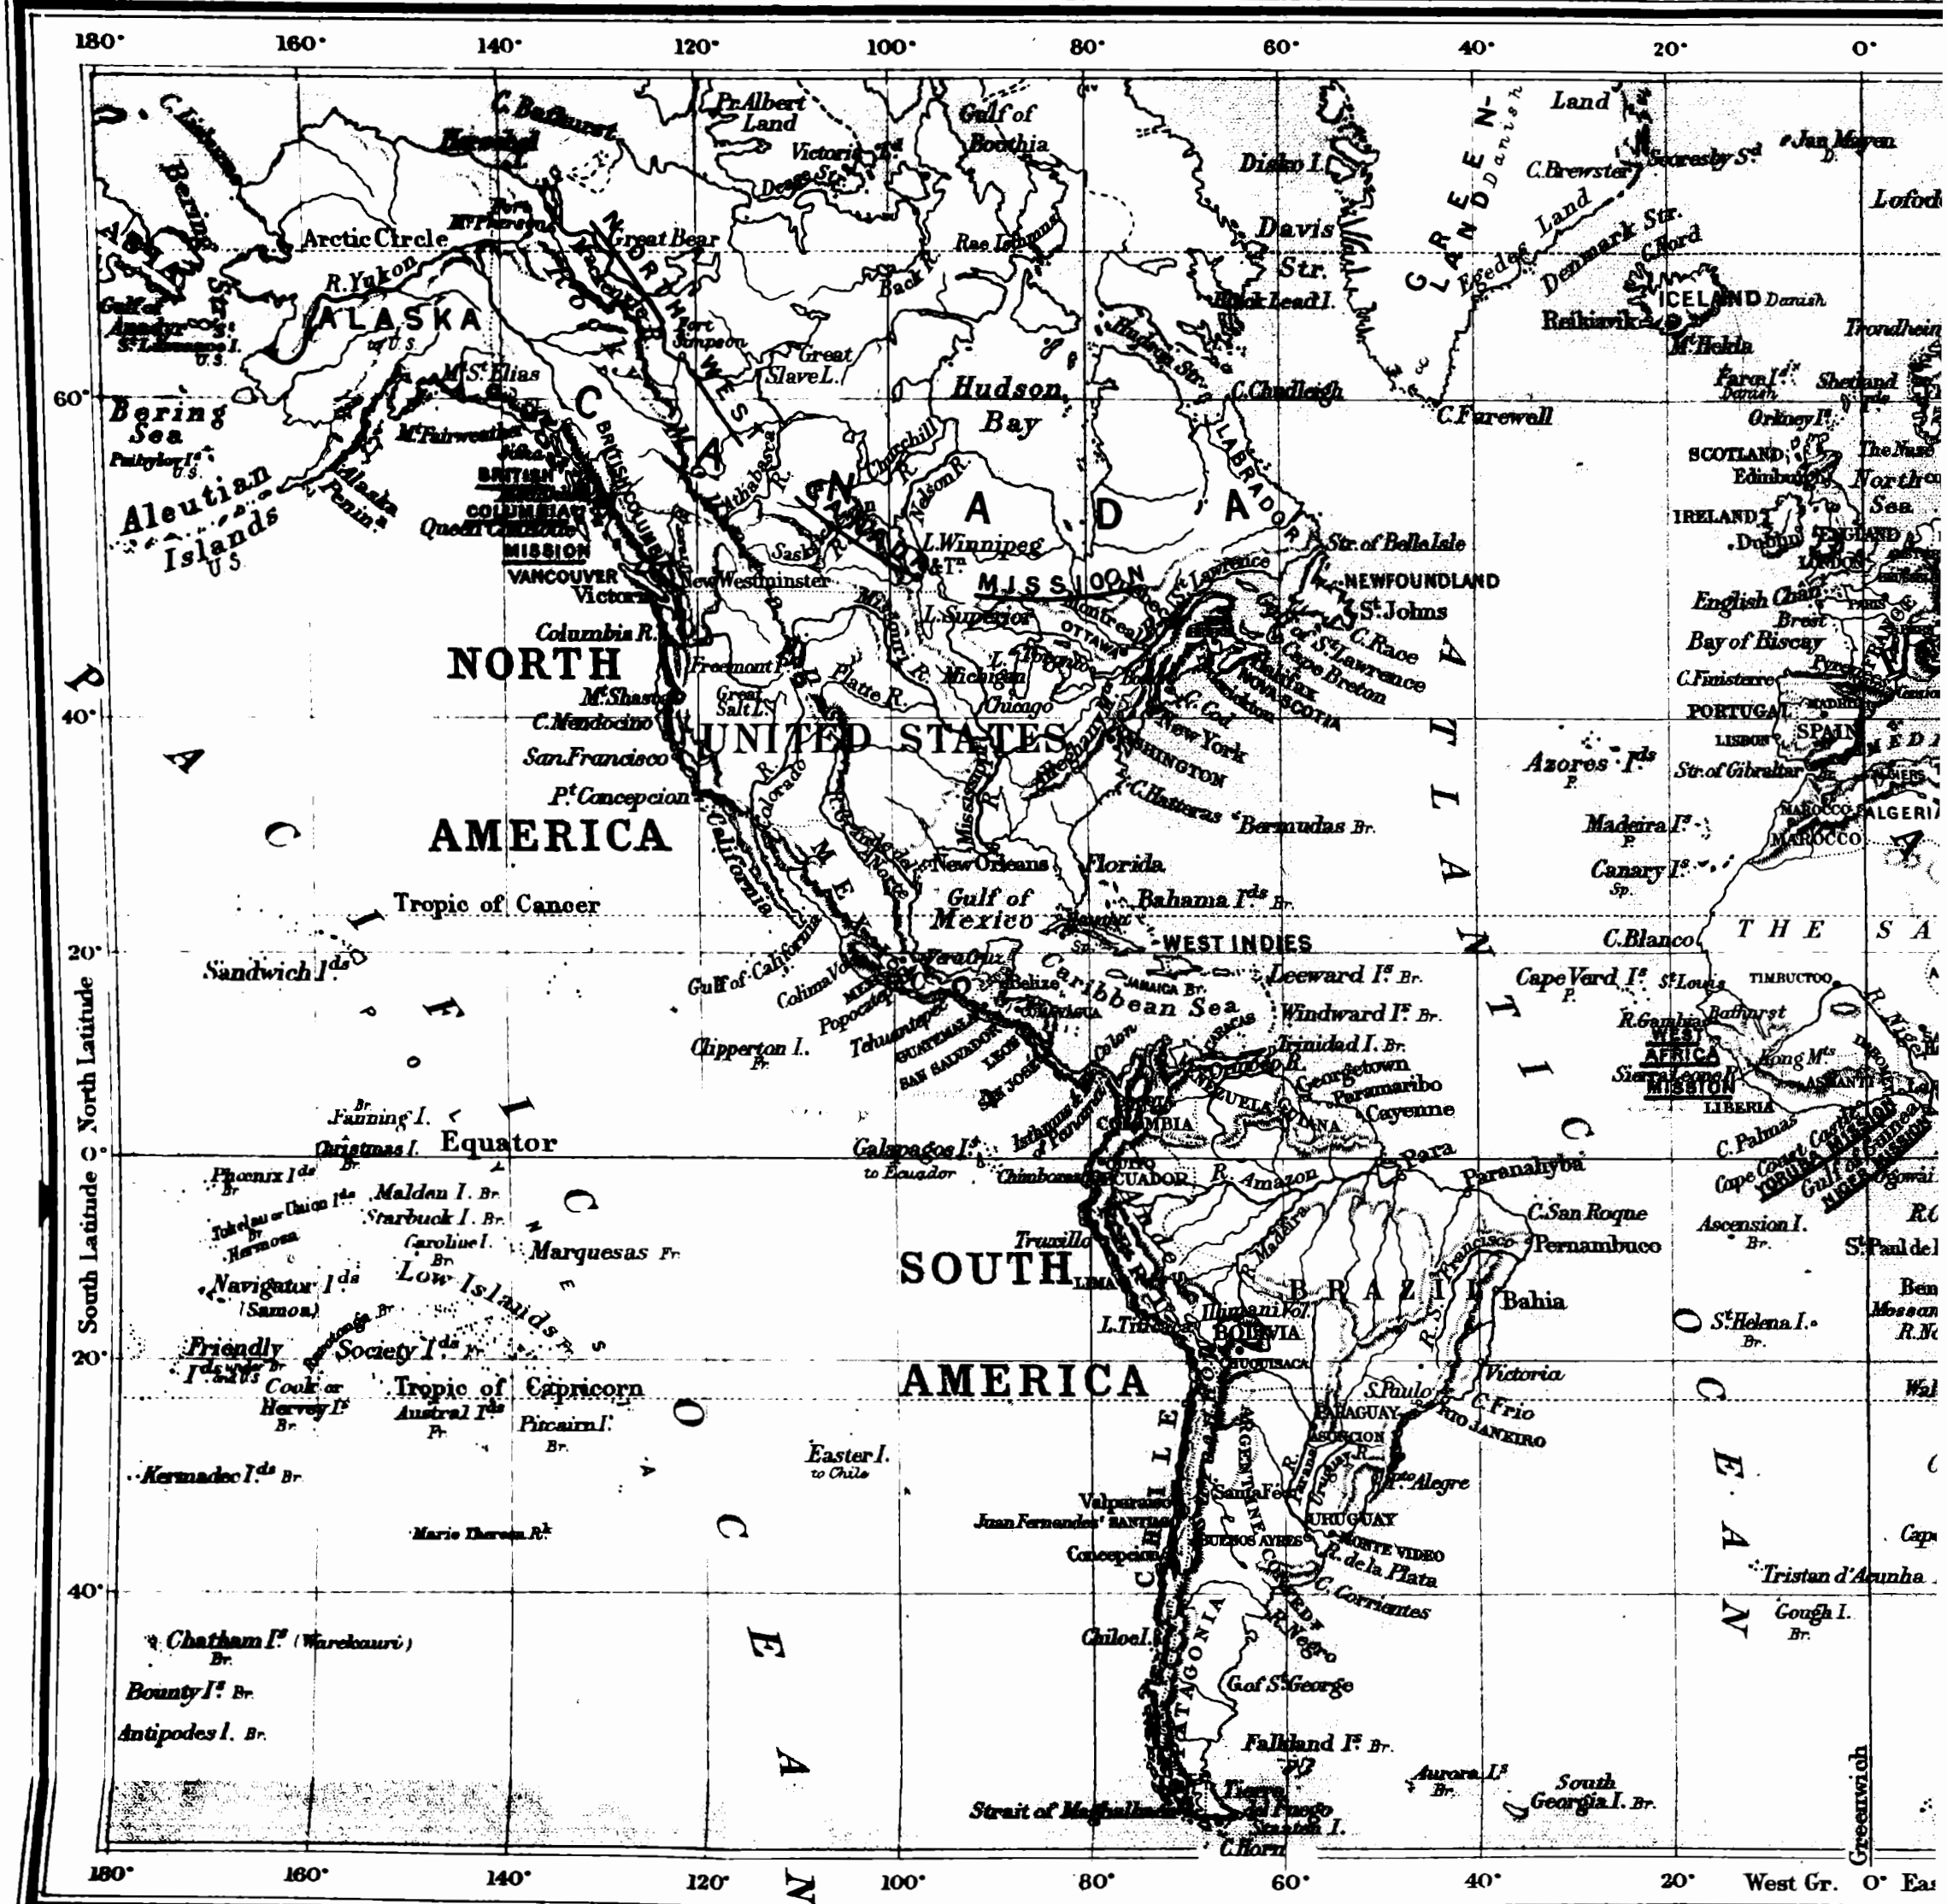
Eighth Anniversary.

The Association held its eighth Anniversary at Nelson, on March 4th and 5th, 1900. On the Sunday, sermons were preached in the Cathedral, and in All Saints' Church, by the Rev. Canon MacMurray, Vicar of St. Mary's Pro-Cathedral, Parnell. The Holy Communion was administered in the Cathedral at 7.30 a.m. on the following day, and in the afternoon there was a Conference of Gleaners, at which two subjects were discussed, "Things often Forgotten," and "The Call to Service." The Annual Meeting of the Association took place in the evening in the Diocesan Library, the chair being taken by the Bishop of Nelson, and addresses were delivered by the Rev. J. M. Adcock, of Timaru, Dr. W. J. Mackie, the Rev. Canon MacMurray, and the Rev. J. de B. Galwey. The Hon. Treasurer, Mr. W. G. Filleul, was able to speak of an income larger than that of the preceding year, the receipts amounting to £1,247, as compared with £1,092 in 1898, the advance being under the heads of donations and appropriated contributions, which latter were largely augmented by the special Centenary effort on behalf of the Maori Mission. Two new missionaries sailed during the year, Miss McCallum, who went to the Palestine Mission on the completion of her training at the Marsden Training Home in Sydney, and Miss F. Smith, who was appointed to work in Masulipatam, under the C.E.Z.M.S., by arrangement between that Society and the C.M.S. More than two hundred new members were enrolled in the Gleaners' Union, and a few new branches were formed. Fifteen Sowers' Bands in the Colony have a total membership of 431. Much is hoped for from the appointment of an Organizing Secretary, and from the meetings which were addressed by Miss Hunter Brown, of the Japan Mission, who was at home on furlough; while the opening of a depôt should result in an increased circulation of the magazines of the Society, of which 1,796 were sold every month.

IV. CANADA.

Observance of Centenary at Toronto.

THE Centenary was observed at Toronto by a mass meeting on the evening of April 12th, in the Guild Hall, at which Mr. N. W. Hoyles, Q.C., President of the Canada Church Missionary Association, and a Vice-President of the C.M.S., presided. After the hymn, "All hail the power of Jesus' Name," which the chairman called the Christians' "National Anthem," had been sung, Mr. Hoyles read resolutions of congratulation to the C.M.S. passed by the Committee of the C.C.M.A. and the Diocesan Board of the Women's Auxiliary in the Diocese of Toronto, and announced that a cable message, "Rom. xi. 36," had been sent across the ocean to Salisbury Square. Addresses of ten minutes each were then delivered. The first was by the Rev. Provost Welch, on "One Hundred Years Ago"; then Mr. Stapleton Caldecott spoke on "State of Religion One Hundred Years Ago in England"; the Rev. Principal Sheraton's subject was "The Birth of the C.M.S."; the Rev. G. H. Kuhring's was "View Points" (viz. the opening of India, the year 1841, the call to Uganda, and the policy of faith); Mr. H. W. Frost, Director of the China Inland Mission, spoke on "China, Then and Now"; the Rev. J. Macqueen Baldwin on "Then and Now in Japan"; the Rev. C. H. Shortt on "C.M.S. in Canada"; the Rev. Dyson Hague on "Colonial Associations"; the Rev. G. C. Wallis on "Then and Now in Women's Work"; and Miss Thomas on "The Gleaners' Union." A special meeting was also held in Montreal, on April 14th, under the presidency of the Bishop of the Diocese, at which an address was given by the Rev. H. M. M. Hackett, Principal of the Montreal Diocesan Theological College, formerly missionary of C.M.S. in the North-West Provinces of India, who reviewed the hundred years of the Society's missionary work.



Satisfactory financial report.

The Anniversary of the Canada C.M. Association took place on October 5th, when the large halls of Wycliffe College were filled with enthusiastic gatherings of friends. The financial condition of the Association was stated to be very satisfactory, the receipts for the year ending September 30th amounting to $13,832. In the evening of the 6th, the halls were again filled for the Annual Meeting of the Gleaners' Union in Canada, of which there are fifty-six branches, the total enrolments having been 3,545. Two missionaries were added to the staff during the year in question—Miss Allworth, who was appointed to Japan, but has since been invalided home, and Miss Archer, who went to the same country. The Association has fourteen missionaries, including five wives, at work in the North-West Canada Mission, and twenty, eight of whom were wives, in other parts of the Mission-field. Several offers of service were received, which justified the hope that the number of foreign workers would be maintained and even increased. A permanent office was rented during the year as the centre of C.C.M.A. work, in which a regular weekly prayer-meeting is held. The need of some such office is abundantly indicated by the facts that the circulation of the Gleaner exceeded 2,000, and that 3,326 missionary boxes, 300 more than in the previous year, were in use. Efforts were made with some success to bring about the observance of the third Sunday in September as "C.C.M.A. Sunday."

V. SOUTH AFRICA.

THE fourth Annual Report of the South Africa C.M. Association is received just as these pages are passing through the press. It is a matter for much thankfulness to note that in the past year, during the greater part of which South Africa was darkened by war clouds, and during the later months of which it was the scene of battles and other disturbances, the contributions advanced by some £103 beyond those of the year preceding. The Report takes a retrospect which is deeply interesting. In 1891 the total contributed to the C.M.S. from South Africa was £58; the next year it was £90, of which the parish of Mowbray, Cape Town, gave £70; in 1893 the three parishes of Wynberg, and of Mowbray and Holy Trinity, Cape Town, agreed to jointly support a missionary. During the seven years from 1893–1899 the contributions have amounted to £5,744, and the three parishes just named are now supporting nine missionaries. St. John's, Wynberg, supports the Rev. A. H. Lash, of South India, and Miss M. Watermeyer, of East Africa; St. Peter's, Mowbray, supports the Rev. W. P. Buncombe, of Japan, Miss A. L. Earp, of Ceylon, Mr. E. A. Hamilton, of West China, and Mr. W. E. Hipwell, of South China; and Holy Trinity supports the Rev. F. E. Bland, of South China, and Mr. W. Hope Gill, of West China; while the three parishes jointly support Miss E. D. Mertens, of West China. The contributions to the Three Years' Enterprise amounted to £276; and those to the Centenary to £455. The ordinary contributions for 1899 amounted to £890 5*s.* 8*d.* A lady candidate from South Africa, approved and sent to England by the Committee of the Association, has been accepted by the Parent Committee for training.

AFRICA.

THE partition of West Africa, which has been mentioned in the last two Reports, was further advanced towards completion by the conclusion, in November, 1899, of an Agreement between Great Britain, America, and Germany, which primarily concerned the political division of the island region of the Western Pacific, but also included an arrangement between the first and last of the above-named Powers with respect to the division of the district which had previously been known as the "neutral zone," and which is situated to the north of the German colony of Togoland and of the British colony of the Gold Coast. The line of partition starts from the junction of the Daka and Volta Rivers, and after following the course of the former for a certain distance in a north-easterly direction, is drawn due north until it reaches the parallel of 10°30′, when it is again deflected in a north-easterly direction, separating the provinces of Mamprusi and Chakosi. Mamprusi, with the important trade centre of Gambaga for its capital, is assigned to Great Britain, and Chakosi to Germany. By this Agreement the Hinterland of the Gold Coast colony has been extended up to about the eleventh parallel. Anglo-German delimitation treaty.

Another important Agreement is that between the German Government and the British South Africa Company, which was signed in the course of the year. This provides for the acceptance in principle of the continuation of the trans-continental railroad, with which the name of Mr. Cecil Rhodes is inseparably connected, through German territory for a section of six hundred miles, to connect the Rhodesian system at the south end of Tanganyika with the East Coast system, and ultimately with the Nile system, in Uganda. An understanding was also arrived at concerning the terminus of the South-West African Railway, and the transit dues to be levied on goods passing through the German and British spheres. Railway construction.

But while plans for the future were thus being matured, the actual construction of the railway in which the friends of the Church Missionary Society are specially interested, that from the East Coast to Uganda, made rapid progress. By the beginning of May, 1899, the 300th mile post had been reached, the first hundred miles having taken about a year to lay, while the third hundred was completed in seven and a half months. Owing to a change in the route which was originally proposed, the total length of the railway will now not exceed 550 miles. The annual statement to Parliament showed that the second half of the year which was reviewed compared favourably with the first half with respect to the traffic and the earnings of the new line. The goods receipts increased by over 100 per cent., and every class of passenger traffic was more than doubled, the third class being almost quadrupled. The downward traffic in ivory increased tenfold in the second half-year, and a keen demand for building sites in the vicinity of the principal stations sprang up. One great benefit conferred on Uganda by the railway is that it conveys horses right across the tsetse belt, and since these animals thrive in Uganda proper, they will become most useful in the development of that country. The telegraph wire has reached Uganda, and Government messages are now received in London within twenty-four hours of their dispatch from Uganda. In West as well as East Africa the making of railways was diligently prosecuted. In Sierra Leone a line is in process of construction from Freetown to Rotifunk; while in the Yoruba country a railway from Lagos to Abeokuta has been opened for passenger traffic, and is being extended to Ibadan. The prosperity of the countries immediately affected has been in correspondence with the enterprise manifested in this provision for the conveyance of goods. In Sierra Leone the revenue has increased by 20 per cent. in the past five years; and in the colony of Lagos it has risen from £57,633 in 1889 to £196,444 in 1898.

Nigeria a British Protectorate.

On the Niger the political Government, which was in the hands of the Royal Niger Company, of which Sir G. T. Goldie was the moving spirit, was transferred to the Colonial Office, and on January 1st, 1900, Nigeria became a British Protectorate. The Company, originally formed under the title of the United African Company, received in 1886 the charter which was so recently revoked, and can look back with almost unmixed satisfaction to the work which it has accomplished. By means of some 300 treaties with native tribes, and of active competition with the representatives of Foreign Powers, it has secured to the British Empire a territory which covers half a million square miles of the most fertile and thickly-populated portion of West Africa. To quote the words used by the Chancellor of the Exchequer in the House of Commons on July 4th: "It put down slave-raiding and massacre over a great area, . . . it abolished slavery within its own jurisdiction, and it also checked materially that terrible curse of Africa—the trade in spirits with the Natives." It dealt in a friendly spirit with the matters affecting missionary work on the Niger in which it was necessary to seek its assistance from time to time.

Brussels Conference and the liquor traffic.

Happily the efforts of the private company to minimize the evils of the traffic in strong drink were seconded by the Conference dealing with the subject which met at Brussels in April, 1899. At this Conference it was decided to raise the minimum duty on spirits, which had been previously fixed at 15 francs per hectolitre at 50° C. (about 6½*d.* per gallon), to 70 francs per hectolitre at 50° C. (about 2*s.* 6*d.* per gallon), excepting Dahomey and Togoland, where it is to be 60 francs (about 2*s.* 2*d.* per gallon). This is a considerable advance, but it does not by any means represent all that was gained by the Conference. The subject was there fully debated, and it is believed that the Powers concerned will be more ready in the future to take independent action to prevent any increase in the traffic. The manner in which Bishop Tugwell has kept the subject before the public has doubtless had its influence in contributing to these important results. In consequence of a letter which he wrote to the Times, referring to the heavy mortality among Europeans in West Africa as a consequence of drinking habits, an action for libel was commenced against him, but eventually a nolle prosequi was entered, and the proceedings dropped.

Appointment of Sir H. H. Johnston to Uganda

The prosperity which fell to the lot of Sierra Leone and Lagos was experienced also in the British Central Africa Protectorate, and now that Sir H. H. Johnston, who has done so much for that portion of Her Majesty's dominions, has been appointed "Special Commissioner, Commander-in-Chief, and Consul-General in Uganda," it may be hoped that a new era of progress has dawned for that land. This expectation may the more confidently be entertained since at the beginning of May, 1899, the forces of Mwanga and Kabarega, ex-kings of Uganda and Bunyoro respectively, were routed by the Government forces under Colonel Evatt, and the two native potentates who in the past have given so much trouble were captured. The exploration and effective occupation of the country north of the Victoria Nyanza, commenced in June, 1898, by expeditions under Colonel Macdonald and Colonel Martyr, were successfully carried out without serious loss.

Unhappily, advance in moral reform does not proceed quite so rapidly as political exploitation, for during the year 1898 only 704 domestic slaves were freed on the East Coast of Africa. The complete abolition of slavery in that region still lies in the future.

The cause of malarial fever.

In the course of the year an important theory was corroborated by Surgeon-Major Ross, who went to Sierra Leone in charge of an expedition organized by the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine. He conducted a series of experiments with a view to ascertaining the cause of malarial fevers, and satisfied himself that there was one distinct species of mosquito which was, if not the only, at all events the chief means of the propagation of the disease. It is hoped that by observing the habits of these mosquitos, which breed on the surface of stagnant pools, it may be possible to bring about their extermination, and thus take an important step towards the preservation of the health of Europeans who may be called upon to reside in fever-stricken districts.

The Transvaal War.

The war in South Africa, which was commenced at the beginning of October, 1899, by the sending of an ultimatum to Great Britain by the South African Republics, is still in progress as this Report goes to press. May it please God, through the issues of this unhappy strife, to open a way for His Gospel among the tribes of South Africa which are still without the knowledge of Him, and to teach His people in the Home Country to lay to heart their past negligence in making known His salvation throughout the vast inheritance He has entrusted to their sway!

The portions of the history of Africa which have been mentioned may seem at first sight to have but slender connexion with that supreme task the accomplishment of which is the aim of the Church Missionary and kindred Societies, but a little reflection will show that the connexion, though perhaps slight, is nevertheless real. Missions have a very true relationship to human progress, and anything that tends to make men more free, anything which conduces to the abolition of cruelty, drunkenness, and lust, must be of interest to those who long and strive for the inauguration of the reign of Peace, and the coming of Him who is known as its Prince. The advent of European authority in Africa, while attended, it may be, with some disadvantages to the Natives, yet appreciably ameliorates their condition, as is shown by the remark of a Central African chief: "Before the Europeans came there was nothing but fighting and quarrelling here, but since they came people have lived in peace." To quote the words of the Bishop of Rochester, used with special reference to the work of the Universities' Mission, "Cruelties have been checked, and child-murder largely stopped. Large numbers of slaves have been enfranchised. The weight which the fear of spirits and charms and spells hangs over life has been lifted off, and regular and peaceful industry has been taught." May such blessings ever mark the rule of nations which bear the Name of Christ!

SIERRA LEONE MISSION.

Africa was the first field entered by the Society. Its first two missionaries were sent in 1804 to the Susu tribes on the Rio Pongas. In 1816 the Society's efforts were concentrated upon the colony of Sierra Leone, which, since the abolition of the slave-trade in 1807, had become the depôt for Negroes rescued from slave ships by the British cruisers. Much blessing attended the labours of W. A. B. Johnson and other missionaries, and in 1822 nearly 2,000 of the freed slaves, adults and children, were in the Mission Schools, several thousands were attending public worship, and some hundreds had become sincere Christians. The work continued to prosper, but at a great cost of life; fifty-three missionaries and missionaries' wives dying between 1804 and 1824. In 1842 a Parliamentary Committee attributed the "considerable intellectual, moral, and religious improvement" of the people to "the valuable exertions of the Church Missionary Society more especially." Port Lokkoh, in the Temne country, was occupied from 1840–50 and reoccupied in 1875; Ro-Gbere was occupied in 1896; Sinkunia, in the Yalunka country, near the boundaries of the British Protectorate, in 1897; and Kafogo, in the Limbah country, in 1900. A serious rebellion took place in the Temne country in 1898, during which several English and American missionaries were put to death by the insurgents.

In 1852 the Bishopric of Sierra Leone was founded, and each of the first three Bishops—Vidal, Weeks, and Bowen (the two latter C.M.S. missionaries)—died within three years of his consecration. Since then the following have succeeded to the charge of the Diocese: Bishops Beckles (1860–69), Cheetham (1870–81), Ingham (1882–96), Taylor Smith (1897).

In 1862 the Sierra Leone Church was organized on an independent basis, and undertook the support of its own pastors, churches, and schools, aided by a small grant from the Society. In 1876 the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society was founded, and has since carried on the outlying Missions established by the C.M.S. in the Bullom and Quiah countries. More than one hundred African clergymen have been ordained on the West Coast (including Yoruba and the Niger). Several of them are Government chaplains.

Causes of the recent rebellion.

A MINOR controversy has prevailed concerning the causes of the rising in Sierra Leone, which was described at length in last year's Report. Sir David Chalmers, who was appointed to investigate the matter, arrived at a conclusion decidedly adverse to the policy adopted by the Governor, Sir Frederick Cardew, and especially to the imposition of the hut-tax, which he considered to have been the main cause of the rebellion; he recommended that the Frontier Police should be abolished, that civil police work should be left to the chiefs, and that the jurisdiction of the District Commissioners should be curtailed. The Colonial Secretary, however, was of a different opinion, and in a speech on the subject in the House of Commons on August 8th, 1899, while expressing his appreciation of the valuable number of facts elicited by Sir David Chalmers, dissented from the principal recommendations which the latter made in his report. Mr. Chamberlain regarded the disaffection in the Protectorate as due to the serious political and social changes brought about by the extension of civilization, especially in its effects upon slavery and slave-raiding, and said, "The hut-tax was the spark that fired the mine, no doubt; but what I want to represent to the House is, I am absolutely convinced that the mine was there, and that it must have exploded, with or without the hut-tax, some day."

The Secretary for the Colonies attaches importance to the views of missionaries.

And he added, "I attach importance to the views the missionaries expressed on this subject; and, so far as I know, without exception, the missionaries declare that the hut-tax was not the sole cause—was not really anything more than I have said, a spark that lit the mine." With regard to the Frontier Police, Mr. Chamberlain pointed out that it was established with the object of putting down "the abominable practice of slave-raiding," and while admitting the force of the objection that the West African cannot be trusted with responsibility, he praised the loyalty, endurance, and bravery of the native police, and could not agree with Sir David Chalmers that the chiefs could be more safely entrusted with the work for which the force was created. "That would indeed be equivalent in many cases to setting up the offenders to deal with their own offences."

Deaths of Archdeacon Robbin,

The death occurred on July 20th, 1899, of Archdeacon Robbin, the native pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Freetown. He was ordained in 1859, was appointed Archdeacon in 1887, and was a member of the Chapter of St George's Cathedral. Bishop Ingham says of him:—

> His power lay in quiet plodding, and his gifts were rather those of St. Barnabas, the Son of Consolation. Who shall tell of the feuds and family quarrels he settled? I cannot. But I know how constantly he spoke of that kind of work which frequently fell to his lot. Missionary work that produces men like him has not been a failure, and never did the Native Church more urgently need men of his loving, humble, and kindly disposition—a true African, and none the less true because ready and willing to co-operate heartily with the white man in whatever would make for the growth and extension of the Kingdom of God.

And the Rev. E. H. Elwin describes him as "pure in motive, forbearing in opposition, and gentle."

and of two other native pastors.

Two other native clergymen were removed by death. On August 26th, 1899, the Rev. J. B. Bowen, pastor of Bathurst, died. His connexion with the C.M.S. and its institutions had been a long and varied one. He was educated at the C.M. College, Islington, and on returning to Africa was for a while tutor at the Sierra Leone Grammar School. He then went as a missionary to the Mendi people, being stationed on the Big Boom River, near Mofwe. After that he was tutor at Fourah Bay College, and subsequently joined the Native Pastorate, being in succession pastor of Hastings and Bathurst. And the Rev. J. T. Asgill, native pastor of Brookfields, who was ordained in 1880, died on February 23rd, 1900.

Reinforcement.

Only one recruit joined the Mission during the year under review, Miss Winifred Warner Stratton, of The Olives and The Willows, a sister of the Rev. A. C. Stratton, of the Candidates' Department at the Church Missionary House, and of Miss M. Stratton of the North-West Provinces of India Mission. She left for Africa in November, 1899. Miss C. J. Elwin returned to the Mission in September; the Rev. Canon O. Moore, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Alley in October; and the Rev. C. G. Hensley in November. The Rev. H. Castle and Miss C. H. Pidsley, who came home in September and November respectively, sailed again in March, 1900. Miss H. Bisset came home in April.

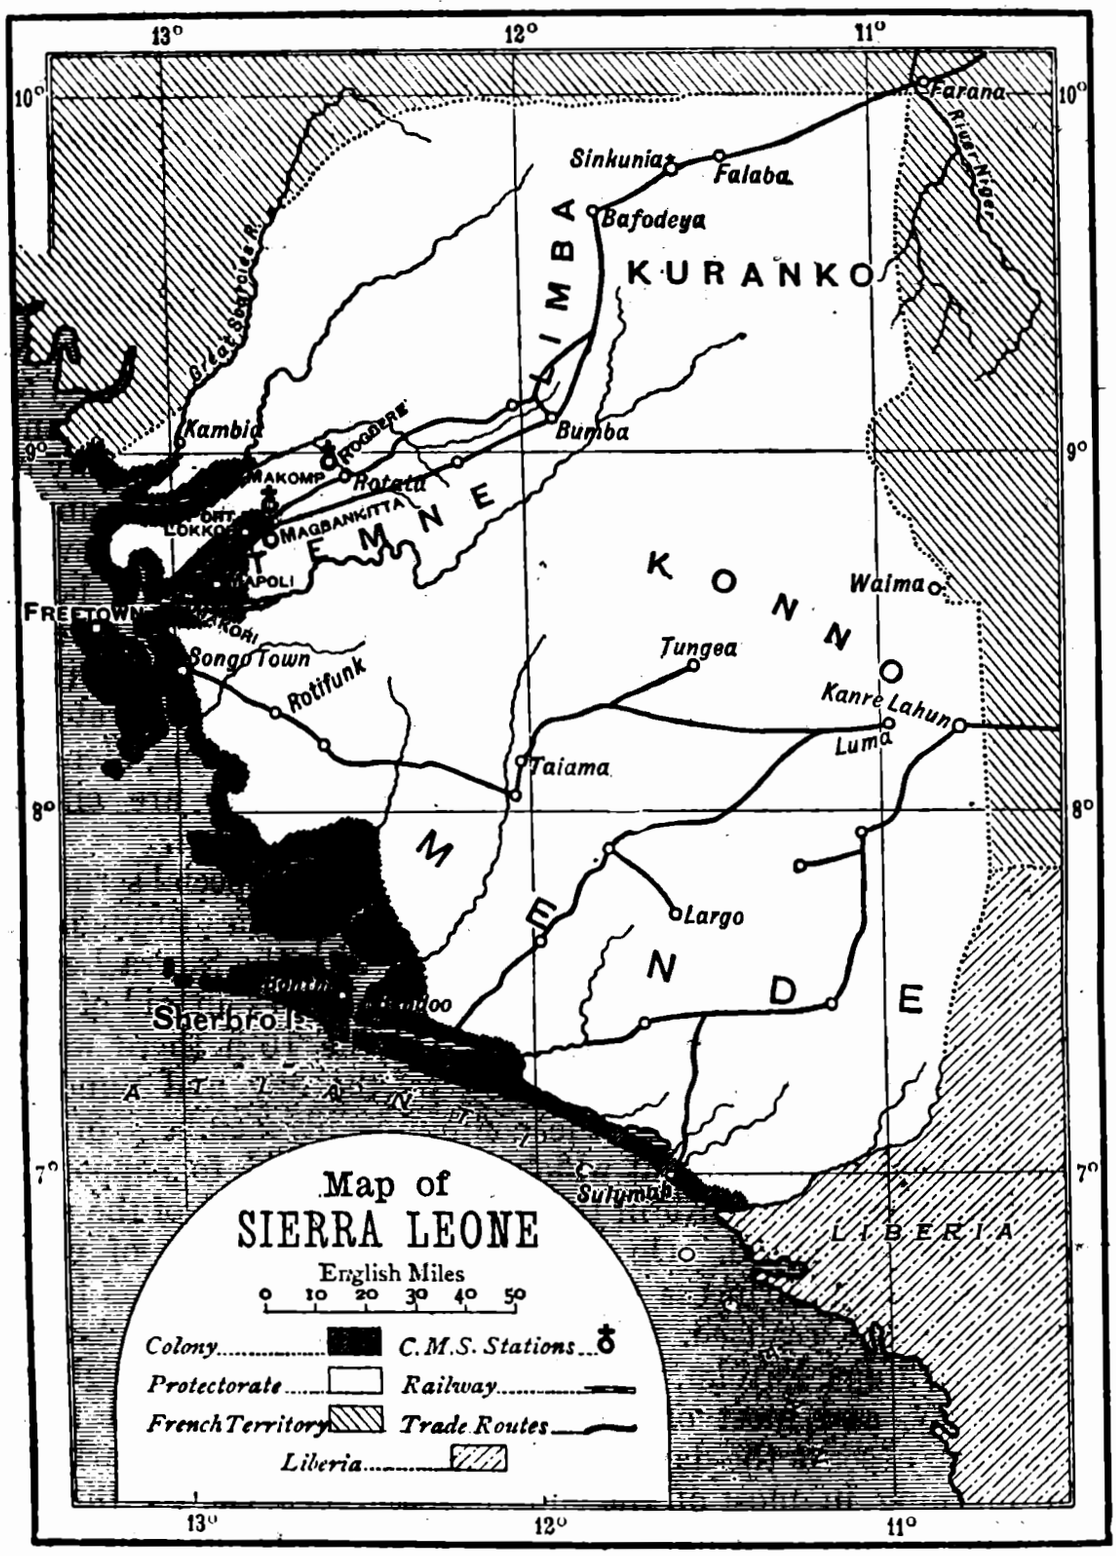
The Rev. E. H. Elwin is the Secretary of the Mission.

SIERRA LEONE.



The Colony and Protectorate.

A careful distinction should be drawn by students of Missions between the colony and the protectorate of Sierra Leone. The original colony consisted only of the peninsula, twenty-six miles long by twelve broad, which contains many towns and villages—Freetown, the largest, having about thirty thousand inhabitants. Other districts along the coast, such as the Sherbro country, have been added from time to time, and the present colony, as is shown on the map on the next page, comprises a strip of land extending along the coast from Liberia to the French colony of Senegambia. Practically the whole of the original colony is under Christian influences, every good-sized village and nearly every hamlet having its church or chapel, and many having both. Behind the colony there stretches inland for some 200 miles a tract of land, carefully delimited in 1894, over which the British Government exercises a "protectorate." The Protectorate is inhabited by many tribes, such as the Temnes, Bulloms, Mendis, Kurankos, Limbas, Yalunkas, and Sherbros, who are either heathen fetish-worshippers or ignorant Mohammedans.

Centenary Celebrations.

By way of celebrating the C.M.S. Centenary, special sermons were preached on April 9th, 1899, in all the churches throughout the colony connected with the C.M.S. and with the Sierra Leone Native Church, and there were special offertories in aid of the funds of a proposed Church House. On the 10th there was a procession of the children belonging to the day and Sunday-schools, and in the evening the communicant members of the Church held a meeting, at which it was decided to support a missionary representative in the field, and two-thirds of the sum needed was promised. On the 11th the annual sale of work in behalf of the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital was held, and £130 was realized. On Wednesday, the 12th, the Acting Governor, Major Nathan, proclaimed a public holiday throughout the colony, and most of the merchants also responded to a request to observe the day. Praise meetings were held early in the morning in most of the churches and chapels, the Bishop Crowther Memorial Church at Cline Town being decorated for the occasion. Social gatherings arranged by the several Parochial Committees filled the day until the evening, when at seven o'clock a Centenary Service was held in the Cathedral. The congregation packed the building to its utmost capacity, and very many who remained outside took part in the service. Several ministers of other religious bodies than the Church of England were present. The choir was augmented, and the singing of the special hymns was most hearty. The Rev. E. H.

Elwin preached the sermon. At midnight about 1,000 members of one of the town congregations, waving huge torches, assembled in the College compound to express their congratulations. They were addressed by Mr. Elwin, whom they had awakened from his sleep, and sang the Doxology. On the 13th a children's service was held, many being present from distant villages in the colony. Some 1,200 young people were packed in the Cathedral, and an overflow service was held in the Wilberforce Memorial Hall. On the 14th there was a Garden Party at the College, at which the Acting-Governor and other officials were present, also all the ministers of the different Christian Churches and Missionary Societies working in the colony. The band of the West India Regiment was in attendance, and at the close accompanied the singing of "All people that on earth do dwell."

Native Church.

The thirty-seventh Annual Report of the Sierra Leone Native Pastorate Auxiliary Association, which was presented at the meeting held on May 10th, 1899, showed that the finances were in a satisfactory condition, since the balance in the Treasurer's hands had increased from £467 to £542. The requisite funds for the stipends of the clergy, catechists, and catechetical agents were raised chiefly by means of class-pence (£1,203) and annual subscriptions (£927); Holy Trinity district heading the list by contributions amounting to £550 towards the general funds of the Church. The male communicants of that district voluntarily undertook missionary work at Lacca, a heathen village lying to the west. Schools exist in most places, and in churches, chapels, and schools, branches of the Scripture Union to the number of seventy have been formed, with a membership of over 3,000. The Rev. E. H. Elwin, who is the hon. secretary of the Union, speaks of the work as being most encouraging, and asks for earnest prayer that it may be further blessed and prospered. The Parent Committee, by a Resolution of November 7th, 1899, decided to hand over the parsonages in Sierra Leone to the Native Church.

The financial statement of the Sierra Leone Church Missionary Society for the year ending November 30th, 1898, shows a balance of £413, but this sum is less by £113 than that brought forward from the previous year.

Fourah Bay College.

The Society is responsible for the three leading educational institutions in Freetown, namely, Fourah Bay College, the Grammar School, and the Annie Walsh Institution, all of which, except for the allowances of the missionary members of the staff, are self-supporting. The Rev. E. H. Elwin, the Principal of Fourah Bay College, reports that two of the men obtained the degree of B.A., one being the son of Canon O. Moore, and two others won their L.Th.; one student went to America for further study, three became tutors at the Grammar School, and three took up business posts. There were twenty-nine students in the College at the beginning of 1900, among them being Mr. W. R. Blackett, a West Indian of African descent, who represents an interesting development of the work. In 1848 the C.M.S. finally withdrew from the West Indies, handing over its Normal College to the Lady Mico Charity, a benevolent foundation well known in the islands. Nearly fifty years later, in 1895, Bishop Ingham, feeling the urgent need of more labourers for Sierra Leone, bethought him of the West Indies, and made a journey to Jamaica in order to see whether coloured evangelists could not be obtained from among the Christian negro population of the islands. He came back convinced that suitable men could be found, and he had, moreover, received an offer from the Trustees of the Lady Mico Charity to train at their college men who might be accepted by the Society. In 1896-97 Bishop Tugwell and the Rev. D. H. D. Wilkinson were sent over to Jamaica by the C.M.S. Committee, empowered to take further steps. They were cordially received by the Church authorities, including Bishop (now Archbishop) Nuttall. Arrangements for the selection and training of candidates were subsequently arrived at, and Mr. Blackett was the first to cross the Atlantic for service in the West Africa Missions as a result of these arrangements. (See the Society's Reports, 1895-96, p. 66, and 1897-98, p. 68.) The pastoral care of Cline Town parish, with its new Bishop Crowther Memorial Church and day schools—for Temnes (with some thirty children) and for Mohammedans (with some 150)—devolves on the Principal of the College. Some of the College students visit the Mohammedan quarter of the town for evangelistic work every Sunday afternoon.

A West Indian recruit for West Africa.

Grammar School.

The Grammar School is conducted by its native Principal, the Rev. Canon O. Moore, who was in England at the time of the Centenary celebrations. During the absence of the Principal in England, the school was carried on by the tutors, under the general supervision of the Rev. H. Johnson, and for several months an Oxford graduate, Mr. Benson, who was spending some time in the colony, kindly rendered assistance. There were 180 names on the roll, ninety-seven of the lads being boarders, and the secular results were distinctly encouraging. Alumni of the school obtained the first five places in one of the two Civil Service examinations, and the first and third places in the other, the total number of candidates, including those from other schools, who passed the examinations being seven and three respectively. One of the lads, too, secured a first class certificate in the examination held by the College of Preceptors, a certificate only once before awarded to any candidate from Sierra Leone. The workers were cheered by receiving a visit from the Governor of Sierra Leone, who kindly offered a prize for the best essay and for the solution of a problem which he enunciated. On the whole the conduct of the boys was good, though there was a little insubordination which called for stringent measures.

Spiritual work was carried on among the lads on the usual lines, the class for inquirers, the Bible Union, and the Missionary Association all being in good working order.

Annie Walsh Institution.

The work at the Annie Walsh Institution was carried on by Miss H. Bisset and Miss C. H. Pidsley, and five resident and two non-resident teachers. Three of the teachers attended a course of "First Aid" lectures in connexion with the St. John's Ambulance Association, and at its close satisfied the examiner and gained certificates. The number of pupils is 117, fifty-two of whom are boarders; this is the largest number known in the history of the Institution. The children did well in their written examination, about fifty-seven obtaining the marks requisite for promotion, while seven of the senior pupils gained an Honours certificate. Every December a competitive exhibition of school work is held in Sierra Leone at which only elementary schools are allowed to compete, but the secondary schools are asked to show specimens of their best work, so as to present higher standards of possible attainment to the elementary institutions. At the exhibition at the end of 1898 testimony was borne to the good quality of the work done by the Annie Walsh girls, and His Excellency the Governor publicly thanked the school for sending in exhibits. The most important part of the work consisted in the moral training of the children, concerning which Miss Bisset writes:—

"Toil with knees and hands."

> Evils which we thought crushed appear again and again; with the increase of new pupils there is generally an increase of bad habits and of evils of various kinds which require to be combated. We need much patience, loving-kindness and firmness in order to check the wrong tendencies which, though small in themselves, are capable of developing into very serious offences. The toil has to be done with knees and hands, quietly and perseveringly doing the same thing day after day. There is an inclination among African children to shirk what is difficult or troublesome and leave it for someone else to do. This does not only refer to study, but to things in general.

It was found to be good policy to keep the children always employed either with work or with play, both of which were under supervision. Happily the senior pupils exercised a good influence over their younger companions. The missionary zeal of the girls received an impetus from the re-opening of the Mission stations in the Hinterland, for which a collection was made in the school-room every week. In addition there were monthly contributions during the year ending July, 1899, for the Princess Christian Cottage Hospital and the Centenary Fund, and help was given also to the Children's Scripture Union and the Centenary Memorial in Freetown, the total contributed amounting to about £28, of which £5 15*s*. was collected among themselves by the members of the Missionary Endeavour Association.

TEMNE COUNTRY.

In an account of the Temnes of Sierra Leone which appeared in the C.M. Gleaner for March, 1900, the Rev. C. G. Hensley describes some of the superstitions of the people as follows:—

Temne superstitions.

The Natives have great faith in charms, which are often made by the Mohammedan teachers. Another class of people who make them are called "country-fashion men." These travel about, and when they come to a town they find out who has wealth there, and then they pretend to foresee trouble coming to him or his house. They are able to support these pretensions by clever tricks, such as making sand or stones appear to arrange themselves in certain ways. The householder is convinced and seeks a preventive for the coming ill. The "country-fashion man," who has already proved his knowledge, offers his services, and in return for a payment in cloth or other kind, he mixes fowl's blood with palm-oil or other equally powerful things in a pot, which must be kept just where he orders, and then is sure to keep away all harm. These men are called in, too, in case of sickness, or sometimes to discover a thief. In the latter case there is a trial by ordeal. The cleverness of the "country-fashion man" often enables him to discover the offender, and then of course it is not hard to arrange that he should be "proved guilty."

"Country-fashion" men.

Sacrifices of fowls, rice, or other food are often made, particularly when danger or trouble is at hand, or when something of importance is to be done. Outside every house and town, charms or "medicine" of various sorts may be seen which are expected to keep away evil. These often consist of little pieces of cloth or tiny mats, sometimes a disused implement or relic of the household, farm, or chase. The same sort of things are seen beside the rice-fields, and here they have a real value because they help to keep away thieves.

Suppression of rebellion.

The rebellion of Bai Bureh, which caused the temporary suspension of the work in the Temne country, did not prove to be an unmixed evil, for when missionary operations were recommenced the people welcomed the workers, and seemed ready to listen to their message. It was evident, too, that their faith in the charms referred to in the above quotation had been shaken, for the Rev. H. Castle writes:—

Faith in charms shaken.

It is a great thing in their eyes for the white man to have quelled the rising, and to have taken prisoner their great chief, Bai Bureh. For it seemed to be universally believed by them that, by the power of his jujus, or devils, he could change himself into many different things; for instance, a frog, so that he could jump away, could hide inside a bottle, and could sleep under water.

Again, many of the Temnes are Mohammedans, and it was thought they would surely defeat the white man when their priests offered the big Mohammedan sacrifice of a black cow, which they did in a town a few miles from us. And, further, as they are great believers in charms, the "war boys" wore them plentifully when going to fight, for they supposed they were able to preserve them from the white man's bullets. As all these failed to overcome him—their great champion and his warriors, their jujus, their Mohammedan sacrifices, and their charms—they now have a great respect for him, and many gather to listen to our message as we go from town to town.

Port Lokkoh.

As mentioned in last year's Report, the workers in this part of the Sierra Leone Mission, the Rev. H. Castle and Mr. T. Caldwell, returned from Freetown to PORT LOKKOH in December, 1898, and found that two of the out-stations had been completely destroyed by the rebels, but that it was possible to again occupy the remainder. The native agents accordingly resumed their labours, and the Rev. E. H. Elwin, the Secretary of the Mission, who visited the district in August, found that everything was proceeding satisfactorily. Four boys were received by baptism into the Christian fold, one of them being Sanna, the first fruits of the "Forward Movement"; another the Mission cook; the third a lad named Bai; and one bearing the name of Thomas. Over three hundred people were present on either bank of the big stream in which the baptisms took place, and Mr. Elwin says:—

Baptisms.

Pa Sunki, our Temne evangelist, was there with his happy face, with Pa Manka, our old interpreter, and never did Temne boys look so happy as those four. I baptized little Thomas first, who had told me "that as Jesus died for him, he could not but love and serve Him."

The attendance at the services was good, the catechumens' class is described as "most hopeful," the number of children in the schools, many of whom were able to read the Gospel in their own tongue, steadily improved, and the missionaries met with a cordial reception when visiting the people in their homes or on their farms. There were two native agents, and about a dozen Christians at Makori, and one promising inquirer, a brother of Bai Chinsman, who died not long since, and who was the only Temne king up to that time who had professed Christianity. At Makomp a young man, who gave striking answers when examined, was baptized by immersion. Mr. Elwin writes:—

It was a touching sight. His father and mother were there and all his people, and it must have made an impression far more than baptism by sprinkling would have done to a people well trained in parables to see this boy thus saying good-bye to the past and rising to a new life in the risen Christ. I addressed the people after, and then Koma, telling him to be a brave "krugba ka Christ" (warboy of Christ).

Ro-Gbere.

The Rev. J. A. Alley has been appointed to the charge of Ro-Gbere, the station which was originally opened by the late Rev. F. S. Allen, whose early death was so deeply lamented. This place now calls itself a Christian village. Nearly all the people observe the Sabbath, and it is thought that before long a great ingathering of souls will be witnessed. In the course of his tour, Mr. Elwin visited several other places, and was well received by the authorities. For instance, he says:—

We met Bai Sheka, one of the great kings, and with him all his great men, and his santiggi on horseback, Pa Lamma, who was such a help to our brethren in the war last year. The king was very glad to see us, and told us he had been present at the crowning of a new king, Bai Farma, and that he was at a town near. We were in this new king's country, so we went to see him. We found his majesty in a nice house, on the piazza, surrounded by his men and some six women with white bands on their heads, who, when any one said anything clever or good, clapped their hands three times. The king gave me two mats and I gave him a scented handkerchief, after which we all stood and prayed to God to bless the king and his country.

The out-stations are Funknin and Banne Lokkoh. The work at the last-mentioned place was not altogether hopeful.

It should be mentioned that all the native agents in the Temne Mission are the fruits of the plans initiated by the late Rev. W. J. Humphrey in 1895, and known as the "Forward Movement." After receiving a year's training at Fourah Bay College, the men are sent up for two years' practical experience under a catechist or a European; if they then pass two language examinations, and the different Scripture examinations, and are well reported of, they become junior catechists.

YALUNKA COUNTRY.

Mr. T. E. Alvarez resided at SINKUNIA, and supervised the work at Falaba, and at the new out-station, Mamadugu, which was opened during the year. No Annual Letter has been received from him.

YORUBA MISSION.

A large proportion of the freed slaves gathered at Sierra Leone at the beginning of the century had been carried away from the Yoruba country, which lies a thousand miles to the east. About the year 1840 many of them, having by that time become Christians and traders on their own account, returned to their fatherland. The result was the establishment of Missions at Badagry (1845) and Lagos (1852) on the coast, and at Abeokuta (1846), Ibadan (1852), Ode Ondo (1876), Oyo (1887), Ogbomoso (1893), and other towns and villages in the interior. The Yoruba country (excepting Lagos, which was—but is not now—within the jurisdiction of the Bishop of Sierra Leone) was a part of the titular diocese of the Bishop of the Niger territories. When, in June, 1893, the Rev. J. S. Hill succeeded Bishop Crowther, he received the title of "Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa." Two experienced African clergymen, the Revs. C. Phillips and I. Oluwole, were consecrated as Assistant-Bishops for the Yoruba country at the same time. Bishop Hill died in January, 1894, and Bishop Tugwell was consecrated the following March.

The Governor testifies to the effects of missionary work.

CONSIDERABLE interest attaches to any change in the government of a British Colony in which missionary work is carried on, and it is encouraging to note the sympathetic words which were used by the new Governor of Lagos, Sir William Macgregor, in May, 1899, shortly after his arrival. About 2,500 children attending the schools of the various Missions assembled at Government House to welcome him, and after they had marched past and had taken up their position in square formation, Sir William Macgregor requested that the teachers should be presented to him, and proceeded to address them as follows:—

> The cry on all hands just now is, "Open up the country, extend, develop," but men are so eager and impetuous in responding to this cry, that they fail to notice the work of those who are really doing this work. You are the instruments who are effecting these results; you are those who really open up and develop a country. It may be said that this is not the purpose you have at heart when you enter upon your work. You have a higher and a nobler purpose, but as a matter of fact such is the practical outcome of your work; you inculcate the spirit of loyalty, as your presence here to-day testifies; you assist the Government; you assist the Magistrate; you assist the policeman. This is looking at your work only from a secular side I know. There is a higher side, and to that you attach the greatest importance; but to-day I want to notice the results of your work from the secular side, and I repeat these are the results of your work; and therefore it is my duty and the duty of all Her Majesty's officers to support and encourage you in your great and important work.

Movements of Bishop Tugwell.

Bishop Tugwell was at Lagos at the beginning of 1899, and presided at the meeting of the Finance Committee of the Yoruba Mission, which began at Ibadan on January 30th. Accompanied by Bishop Oluwole, he paid a visit to the Gold Coast in March, whence he proceeded to the Niger Delta. When he returned to Lagos he was detained for some time by the prosecution for libel already mentioned (see supra, page 49). After some delay the proceedings were abandoned, and in June he and Mrs. Tugwell left for England, which they reached in the following month. Anxious deliberations concerning the advance into Hausaland ensued, and in December he sailed with the pioneer party for that part of the Mission-field.

and of Bishops Phillips and Oluwole.

Bishop Phillips was absent from his home at Ode Ondo for a considerable period. Between December 10th, 1898, and February 17th, 1899, he visited many of the interior stations. A second tour to Ekun, Akure, Ilesha, &c., occupied six weeks from April 19th, and from June 27th to September 16th he was engaged in business conferences at Lagos, Abeokuta, and Ibadan. Under the circumstances it is not surprising that the Bishop demurs to the statement that he is in charge of the work at Ode Ondo.

Bishop Oluwole, whose headquarters are at Lagos, went to Abeokuta thrice—in January, in July, and in September, 1899; in March and April he was Bishop Tugwell's companion when he visited the Gold Coast and the Niger Delta; and in October he inspected the work in the Ijebu country. Most of his work is referred to under the different stations which he visited, but here it may be mentioned that he confirmed a total of 738 persons, several of them on the Gold Coast, where, especially at Accra, the people seemed very anxious to have a native pastor to hold services for them in the vernacular.

Reinforcements.

The following were added to the staff of the Mission, for which they sailed in November :—the Rev. John Simpson Owen, of Islington College, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899; Mr. Frank Dudley Coleman, also of Islington College; and Miss Hannah Rebecca Hewitt, of the Society's Training Home at Highbury. Mr. F. J. Huddlestone went out as accountant of the Mission. There also sailed Miss E. Ballson, in June, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. F. Melville Jones, Mr. H. F. Gane, and Miss M. Blackwall in November. On the other hand the following returned to England :—Miss M. Tynan (invalided) and Miss J. Palmer in October; Miss C. C. Boyton in January, 1900; Mrs. J. B. Wood in March; and the Rev. and Mrs. T. Harding and Miss H. J. Duncum in April. The Committee accepted with regret the resignation of the Rev. F. G. Toase on account of ill-health.

Death of Mrs. J. A. Maser.

A former member of the Mission passed away at Stuttgart on February 19th, 1900, in the person of Mrs. Maser, widow of the late Rev. J. A. Maser, who laboured in the Yoruba Mission from 1852 to 1882.

Ordinations.

The Revs. A. W. Howells, I. A. Braithwaite, and S. A. Coker were admitted to priests' orders by Bishop Oluwole at Lagos on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899; on December 17th, Bishop Phillips admitted Mr. Thomas Adesina Jacobson Ogunbiye, C.M.S. schoolmaster at Ilesa since 1890, to deacon's orders; and on March 11th, 1900, Bishop Oluwole admitted Messrs. Michael Thomas Euler Ajayi, of Badagry, and Joseph Suberu Fanimokun, B.A., L.Th., Durham, Principal of the C.M.S. Grammar School, Lagos, to deacons' orders.

The Rev. T. Harding, Secretary of the Mission, resided at Ibadan. The Rev. F. Melville Jones is Acting-Secretary during Mr. Harding's absence on furlough.

LAGOS.

Lagos.

The European missionaries at Lagos were the Rev. and Mrs. N. T. Hamlyn, Mr. J. Carson, Miss C. C. Boyton (now at home), and Miss E. Ballson (since July, 1899). Special services in commemoration of the Centenary took place at 7 a.m. on Monday, April 10th, 1899, at Christ Church and St. Paul's, at the former in English, the preacher being the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn, and at the latter in Yoruba, the Rev. N. Johnson being the preacher. On the 12th some 2,000 people assembled in the churches. First the Doxology was sung exactly at noon, everyone standing; then an extract from the C.M. Gleaner of the previous January, on "The Trumpet Call of the Church," was read; the hymn "Jesus shall reign" was sung, and Isaiah lx. 1-14 was read; then followed a few missionary collects, the Doxology sung a second time, kneeling, a few other collects, the Benediction, and the hymn "O God, our help in ages past." Bishop Oluwole presided at the Centenary meeting held in St. Paul's School-room in the evening. The room was crowded, and many stood outside at the windows. All the speeches were in the vernacular. The Superintendent and missionaries of the Wesleyan Missionary Society at Lagos and Sierra Leone were present, and the former was one of the speakers. On the same evening a meeting was held in St. Paul's School, with lantern views illustrating a lecture on "C.M.S. Workers in West Africa, Past and Present." On the 14th there was a children's demonstration on the Race Course, with feast and games. The children assembled in Tinubu Square, and marched first to Government House, where they sang "God save the Queen." The Acting-Governor, Captain Denton, who throughout manifested the greatest interest in the arrangements, told the children that the Queen should be informed of their loyal conduct and good behaviour.

Centenary Celebrations.

In connexion with the Lagos Native Church, a special Mission to the Heathen and Mohammedans, organized by the Rev. A. W. Howells, was held at Lagos in March, 1899, which lasted for three weeks. The chief speaker was a native agent from Abeokuta, Mr. Fadipe, who before his conversion was an Ifa priest. There were large attendances at the gatherings, and it appeared as though a deep impression was made, but only a few people put their names down as catechumens.

Special Mission conducted by Natives.

congregation, under the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn, banded themselves together in a "Mission Aid Society," with the object of increasing interest in missionary work, and of gathering monthly subscriptions for the support of a catechist at an up-country out-station. Four of the congregation went out into the Mission-field, and one other offered himself for that work. Arrangements were made for regularly visiting the people, in which the members of the Women's Bible-class took part; this class increased until it had fifty-two members. The teachers of both the Sunday and day schools met once a month for prayer and conference as well as for social intercourse; the confirmation classes, one with forty-five boys, and another with twenty girls, were encouraging, and the branch of the Scripture Union was in a flourishing condition. Mr. Hamlyn was secretary of the Clergy Union, which met from time to time to discuss matters connected with the Lagos Church.

Grammar School.

The Grammar School, under Mr. J. S. Fanimokun, had a most successful year. In November, 1899, the register contained the names of 112 boys, and the examination results were remarkably good, for the Inspector of Schools reported that in the Primary Department 91·7 per cent. were proficient, and in the Secondary Department 98·3. The school won twelve prizes in various subjects at the competitive exhibition of school work. Two of the boys were successful in the Civil Service Entrance Examination in December, 1898, one gaining the first and the other the ninth place; another passed the same examination in August; and in the Technical and Survey Schools Examination, held in September, the only two successful candidates hailed from the Grammar School. A library and a literary club were established, and the interest taken by the lads in missionary efforts continued to increase. A pleasing feature of the year was the co-operation of "old boys" in the work, some of them giving special prizes for proficiency in stated subjects.

Girls' Seminary

Miss Boyton was in sole charge of the Girls' Seminary until the return of the Principal, Miss Ballson, in July, but she had the assistance of Miss Hamlyn, an unattached worker, sister of the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn. A large room was added to the buildings, which rendered it possible to give regular drilling lessons to the whole school at once, and which was also useful as a place for play. There were sixty pupils, twelve of whom were boarders, when the school year commenced in August. A missionary address was given every week, the contributions of the girls being devoted to the support of a catechist at Ilaro, and the Sunday Bible-class for boarders was very encouraging. Miss Ballson says that often on going into the dormitory at night she found the teachers and pupils joining in prayer, and that she believes that all worked with an earnest desire to do what was right.

The people at Badagry, the Popos, worship the snake and the euroko tree, to which in old days they offered human sacrifices. The native catechist resident at the station was encouraged by the baptism of five lads and two women in August; besides whom twenty others were under preparation for baptism. There were many young men amongst the communicants, and the women were accustomed to meet every Monday to ask for a blessing on the work of the following Sunday, and repeat all they could remember of the sermons on the previous day. During the year Aiyesan, which had previously been worked from Ode Ondo, was placed under Mr. Hamlyn, and both there and at Leke he found many examples of Christian zeal, on the part of the catechists and of other workers. Badagry.

IJEBU COUNTRY.

The work in the IJEBU COUNTRY is carried on by the Lagos Church Missionary Society with some help from the funds of the C.M.S., which lends the services of the Rev. R. A. Coker. Ijebu Country.

Mr. Coker states that there were eighty places in the country with an average of eighty Christian adherents in each, and from thirty-five to forty centres where teachers might advantageously be placed, and he adds that in certain cases people made a journey of from three to eight hours' duration so that they might urge, sometimes even with tears, their request for a resident teacher. Illustrating the manner in which the Word is spreading among the people, he writes:— Appeals for teachers.

> Whenever I made an unexpected call on Sundays, I invariably found a Christian, either from Ijebu Ode or from some of the villages, to preach and teach those gathered together who have no other teacher. They are remarkably punctual. They are taught reading and singing, and the Church Catechism. It is very refreshing to my own soul to see so good a number in such out-of-the-way places, who but yesterday knew not God, but now make religion a vital duty. Sometimes on a Sunday I had to visit two or more of such places, thus teaching and preaching to two or three hundred in one day, and returning home in the evening. But the beauty of the whole thing is, that the people spread the glad tidings amongst each other, so that the work outruns the personal labour of us the teachers! The people spread the glad tidings.

Bishop Oluwole, who visited Ijebu Ode in October, and observed progress all along the line, held confirmation services at four different centres, the total number of candidates being 266. The number of adult baptisms during the year was 296, the men being three times as numerous as the women; and the number of Christian adherents increased by one thousand. These facts caused the Rev. N. T. Hamlyn, who visited the country in October, to write:—

> I do not see that the work is one whit behind that in Uganda. In going through the country every few miles one finds a congregation of "inquirers," who have built a little chapel for themselves and are begging for a teacher to come and help them. It is wonderful to see a whole country thus becoming Christianized in a few years; and the fact that it is entirely the work A whole country becoming Christianized.

of the Native Church makes it more wonderful than Uganda, which has been fostered by European care and help.

With such rapid extension it is not surprising to find that the great Enemy manifested his antagonism, and that evil was mingled with the good. The vicious environments of their homes led to coldness on the part of some, while their frequent journeys on trade affairs and their incessant contact with those who were indifferent to vital religion and were satisfied with a low standard of Christian morality did not tend to improve matters. In some cases discipline had to be exercised, and it is said that at Iporogun, where one man was suspended because of immorality, special meetings were held every morning for two weeks to intercede for the backslider. Efforts were made to guard against the encroachments of evil by caring for the welfare of the teachers, monthly prayer-meetings being held at Ijebu Ode for such as were near enough to attend; quarterly gatherings of all the agents in the country were serviceable in the same way, as well as useful for the transaction of necessary business relating to accounts and other things connected with the prosperity of the Church. The number of Sunday scholars was nearly the same as that of Sunday worshippers, for every one came to be taught, whether he could read or not; but the day-schools were poorly attended, and it was regarded as fairly satisfactory if a child came even twice or thrice a week. The celebration of the Centenary was of special interest because of the unique form which it took. At the chief meeting, which lasted three hours, there were twelve speakers, six of them agents, who described the work of the Society all over the world, and especially in Sierra Leone, in the Niger Mission, and in Uganda, and six of them converts, who spoke of what the Gospel had done for them. The following is the substance of the address of one of the latter:—

Intercession for a backslider.

Whole congregations attend Sunday-school.

A Centenary meeting lasting three hours.

Speech by a former Ifa priest.

I had been an Ifa priest, as you all know; I was looked up to in consequence with no small amount of respect by the whole town; my word was golden, and my orders strictly obeyed; my larder always laden with all kinds of meat—my sacrificial perquisites; and I was in no want of ready money. A brother priest of mine was taught reading and writing; he pressed me to follow his example, as it would enable him to put into writing scraps of knowledge he came across in connexion with the cult. I did so, and made progress; and as I was reading the Bible I began to see that the sentiments in the Word of God are higher and nobler—lifting the aspirations to better objects—than the flimsy ones I had been acquainted with; and what is more, what I had been reading lay bare the soul of man in all its enormities, and showed us how to be good. I was ashamed of myself, and regretted deceiving myself and the people. The consequence was I left off Ifa worship and its ministrations for a whole year, to see what would befall me; but as nothing happened to me during the time—on the contrary, I, who had never once been free from a peculiar illness a whole year round, and in consequence used to spend in sacrifice once or twice a year from £5 to £10 to appease the gods, was hale and strong all that year, to my agreeable surprise, and what was more, none of my household complained—seeing this, I buried Ifa and every idol in my house, converting the vessels containing them to household use, and became a Christian. All my brother priests persecuted and boycotted me, and even those I used to minister to looked askance at me and pitied me, thinking something must be wrong with me. But the better religion I found kept me firm, and I heartily thank God for putting into the mind of the Oyinbos to send us the Word of God, and men to teach us.

The Rev. I. A. Braithwaite was transferred by the Lagos Church Missionary Society from Epe to the Ijebu Igbo Mission.

ABEOKUTA.

For the first half of the year under review the missionaries at ABEOKUTA were Mrs. J. B. Wood (now at home), Miss M. Tynan, and Miss H. J. Duncum (now at home). They were joined at the end of May, 1899, by Mr. and Mrs. E. Fry, on their return from England, but Miss Tynan shortly afterwards became so seriously ill that it was absolutely necessary for her to leave her beloved work and hasten home. The railway from Lagos, which was spoken of in last year's Report as approaching the town, was opened in the summer of 1899, and by the autumn three trains a week were running each way, the journey occupying four hours, while in addition a regular postal and telegraph service was established. As to how these and similar changes affected the Natives, Mr. Fry bears testimony:— Abeokuta. Railway opened to Abeokuta.

People are moving about more, and so are getting more enlightened, although the enlightenment they get is not always to their best advantage; and then, too, they are becoming more enterprising. All this tends to the breaking down of many old superstitions and customs by which they were very much bound before, and this applies more especially to the chiefs and men in positions; so that, as some of the pastors may have mentioned, whole families are beginning to come to church, whereas, two or three years ago, they would have been afraid to show any desire even towards Christianity. One of the most remarkable instances of this is the opening of the head chiefs' or petty kings' houses to the preaching of the Gospel. Two or three new ones have been opened since we returned, and Mrs. Wood and my wife and an old catechist go to them regularly, and are very much encouraged by what they see. This in itself will break down much fear on the part of the common people, who will be encouraged to act in accordance with their own convictions without the dread of being persecuted or poisoned. Of course there is always a danger in such movements, but if it brings more under the sound of the Gospel it is our bounden duty to use the opportunity. Superstitions breaking down.

The Centenary of the Society was duly observed in April, 1899, a fortnight being devoted to the celebrations. The first week, from the 9th to the 16th, was spent in meetings for prayer and praise and mutual edification; the second was given up to special evangelistic efforts. On Monday, the 10th, after united prayer for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, there was a meeting of clergy and workers, followed by an administration of the Holy Communion and by gatherings for prayer at the different out-stations. The next day came the children's meeting, with a general service at Ake in the afternoon. On the Wednesday a united meeting was held, all present joining in singing the Doxology at the time equivalent to noon at Greenwich. A sale of work in connexion with the Y.W.C.A., the proceeds of which amounted to over eleven pounds; a grand muster of all the Christians, who went and saluted the king; and a tea for the agents and their wives, filled the Thursday. On the following day the other kings and chiefs were similarly saluted. The week which succeeded was remarkable. Each morning there was a prayer-meeting for the guidance and strength of the Holy Spirit, and each afternoon a service at one of the principal stations taken in turn, after which the congregation separated into eight or nine companies, and preached in all the quarters of the town where the service had been held. The women as well as the men took part in this movement, which was so successful that it was felt to be desirable to endeavour to make some permanent effort on the same lines. Accordingly, the women preachers were organized into a regular band, which met every Tuesday at 7 a.m. for prayer, and half an hour later set forth for the evangelistic work. The members of the band were twenty-two in number, but there were always some who could not attend regularly. It was usually the custom for the women to divide themselves into groups, some devoting themselves to the passers-by, others visiting compounds, and others, again, going forward to a place where plenty of people could be found. Then one would address them, some of the band standing listening, others speaking to the stragglers, and two generally paying special attention to the children. Miss Tynan gives some deeply interesting particulars of the work accomplished by these women:—

Zealous soul-winners.

Once we were in a big market-place and had distributed our forces as usual. I was with one of our leading members, when presently one of the others came from another part and asked us to return with her, as we were wanted especially; we did so, and she brought us to a market stall, into which she asked us to enter. Having done so, we found the senior member of our band already there, evidently waiting for us. She was sitting there in gravest silence, while before her crouched a woman, the picture of convicted wrongdoing. The member who came with me looked from one to the other and showed great emotion; then she and the senior having spoken apart, my friend addressed the culprit. A few sentences disclosed the situation. This poor woman had lapsed into Heathenism, and had hitherto successfully evaded those who were earnestly seeking for her, to try to win her back. How I wish I could reproduce that scene and give a verbatim report of the words so eloquently and impressively uttered! Never can I forget the impression made upon me. No anger was shown, not a word of scolding spoken. Only just such a touching expression of sorrow for her defection, and then of solemn warning as to her danger; presently the senior pleaded with her, showing her her sin; finally, we prayed together, the poor woman seeming quite touched to the heart and promising to come to church and her old class, and my two friends arranged that some of the band would call for her the next Sunday morning and also see after her regularly, so that they might not again lose her, nor did they neglect their trust.

Women evangelists.

Another time we had gone to a different market, where the Heathen were "making their year." There we had indeed a most remarkable time. The women divided as usual, and were untiring in their work of love, seeking out the larger sheds and piazzas, which were filled with chiefs and leading people. The women saluted them and courageously delivered the message of salvation. As a rule they were most happy in their way of doing this. One especially had a most tactful manner of suiting her addresses to the different classes of hearers. I remember once she began, "I come to bring you tidings of great joy from the King of Heaven." This attracted attention at once. On this particular morning this woman seemed to be just the mouthpiece (if I may say so) of God the Holy Spirit, He evidently working through her in the most marked manner, and in the crowded piazzas—one after the other—where before the people had been shouting and laughing, they listened to her gravely and patiently in hushed silence; I shall never forget it. They seemed so impressed by her earnest longing to tell them of Jesus and to win them to Him. Twice she broke down, overcome with her zeal, and at once—quite spontaneously, the members of the band who were there began to sing one of the touching native hymns, and afterwards some of the people followed to hear more of what she had been telling them. How difficult it was, I well remember, to leave it all and take our homeward way!

"He healeth the broken in heart."

One more instance. Early in August one morning, the meeting was over and the women were about to set out to preach in a different part of the town (I, alas! not being well enough to go with them), when presently another member came hurriedly in and explained that she had been detained by a heathen woman whom she knew coming to her to beg her to get the band of women, of whom this heathen woman had heard, to go with her to visit another poor heathen woman who was in such despair over the loss of her only child that she had attempted three times to destroy herself. Her friends had called in the heathen priests to talk to her, and, finding their pleadings useless, had got the Mohammedan priests. Their words being equally vain to solace the mourner, this woman had determined to get the aid of the band of preaching women, hoping that they might comfort her friend. They gladly consented, and we had a special prayer before they set out on their errand of mercy. It was one o'clock before they got back. The way was long and the poor mother in such grief; but God was with them and worked through them, so that they had the joy of hearing from the poor woman, "Your words are good." She begged them to come again and knelt with them as they prayed for her; it was also arranged that on the following Sunday some of them would call for her and bring her to church. They did so, and Tuesday after Tuesday certain members of the band went after the meeting to visit her and tell her more about Jesus and His unfailing love. Finally, the last Tuesday I spent in Abeokuta they got Mr. Williams, our pastor, to go with them to see her, and they returned bearing their spoils with them, for she had renounced her idols and given them to the women.

"Your words are good."

The missionaries conducted a large number of Classes for various branches of the community. Two were held in connexion with the Scripture Union, which has about 200 members, and another was for slaves and pawns, several of whom were baptized. Five new men joined the four who already belonged to the Training Class under Mr. Fry, six of the nine being from the Ijebu country, and they seemed to be "young fellows of the right stamp." Miss Duncum, too, taught at times in the infant school, but all these agencies suffered from an outbreak of small-pox, which necessitated their temporary discontinuance.

Dispensary patients.

Mr. Fry, on his return, resumed charge of the Dispensary, which had an attendance of over one hundred persons each day it was open.

Chiefs helping the work.

Mrs. Wood and the other ladies visited the families of the king and other great chiefs of Abeokuta; the king invariably received them with kindness, and if he was engaged when the missionaries arrived, either postponed his business, or at all events came to listen as soon as he could. He was most anxious that his women should be attentive, and himself set a good example, often repeating the text, or prayer, or verse of a hymn which had been previously taught. One of the chiefs, the Osile, died at Christmas, 1898. Miss Tynan says:—

> He always came to listen to the message; he was most attentive, often answering the questions put to the women. I remember one morning, when the women were slower than usual in gathering to the piazza, he went to the door leading out on the compound and cried, "If there was an idol to be worshipped, or you wanted to go and dance, you would be in time, yet you are late in coming to hear the message of the great God." The zealous old Scripture-reader assured us that he died trusting in Jesus.

Governor of Lagos attends opening of a new church.

The new church at Ake was dedicated by Bishop Oluwole on February 1st, 1900. The Governor of Lagos (Sir William Macgregor) arranged for a special train to run up from Lagos on January 31st, and down on February 2nd. A large party went up, including the Governor, the Lord Chief Justice (Sir Thomas Rayner), four native pastors, and some of the leading native gentlemen and ladies. Over 2,000 persons were present, many of whom could not get accommodation in the church, which only seats about 1,000 conveniently. The king of Abeokuta, the minor kings, and other chiefs attended. This was the first Christian public service ever attended by a king of Abeokuta. At the Holy Communion there were 183 communicants. The collection was a record for Abeokuta, amounting to £28. More than £100 of the cost of the building was given by the people through the shilling monthly collection. Mrs. Wood, who naturally took special interest in the erection of the church, since it was to be a memorial to her late husband as well as to the Rev. H. Townsend, mentions that this giving meant real self-denial for some, and instances one good woman who was obliged to work all night so as to have her money ready at the appointed time. The roof, on iron supports, ordered from England, was conveyed from the coast to Abeokuta by the railway company free of charge, and carried by the congregation from the station to Ake. The Egba chiefs raised £150 for a town clock, which they wished to be placed in the church tower. The native pastor, the Rev. D. O.

Egba chiefs place a town clock in the church tower.

Williams, presented forty-three candidates to Bishop Oluwole for confirmation in January, 1899; and among the accessions to Christianity was a former bitter opponent.

A few Heathen regularly attended the services at Ikija, and the Rev. D. Williams was encouraged by several indications that his work was not without result. Several baptisms took place at Igbore, where the Rev. S. Doherty was pastor; and at Ikeruku a new church, the cost of which was £700, was dedicated by Bishop Oluwole in September. A large congregation, including some heathen chiefs, assembled on the occasion, but as there was accommodation in the church for only 400, and about 1,000 came together, more than half of them had to remain outside. The pulpit, the reading-desk, and the communion rails were the gifts of individuals, and the new communion service was presented by the Rev. C. Lea Wilson, of Nottingham. The Rev. J. Lahanmi says that the Christian community does not manifest the same evangelistic zeal as of old. The congregation was weakened by the death of an old man, a former dealer in slaves, who at the time of his conversion renounced his trade, which had been a source of much profit to him, and for many years led a consistent life.

A church opening at Ikeruku.

Mr. Lahanmi supervised the work at Kemta, a new station opened during the year by the Abeokuta Church Council, and also that at Asa, where, although there was no paid agent, the number of Christians steadily increased, owing to the earnest efforts of a young man who was a pawn, namely, held as a slave pending the payment of a debt. There were fifty-four communicants and 160 adherents at Igbein, of which the Rev. J. J. Olumide is the native pastor. The foundation stone of a new church was laid at Ofada, and Bishop Oluwole confirmed a number of persons at Sunren, where the Rev. J. J. Ransome-Kuti is the native pastor. The accessions to Christianity in the district were numerous and the prospects bright; there are still, however, many merely nominal converts who cause grief by their unworthy conduct, and earnest prayer is asked that all these backsliders may be restored.

IBADAN.

Bishop Phillips, who visited IBADAN early in the year under review, considers the results of the work at that town to be less encouraging than at any other station in the Yoruba country, considering the number of devoted workers, both European and Native, who have laboured there. The Rev. T. Harding (now at home), the missionary in charge, has arrived at much the same conclusion, for he says that the people on the farms are less enlightened and more superstitious than those in the neighbourhood of Abeokuta. It may be hoped, however, that better things are in store, for much attention was devoted to evangelistic work in connexion with the Centenary celebrations. After a missionary meeting at Kudeti on April 10th, 1899, twenty-three bands of preachers went out into as many of the market-places of the town, all speaking from Acts xvii. 30, 31 as their text. On the following day, at 8 a.m., a united open-air service was held in the largest market-place, at which about 1,500 Heathen and Mohammedans, besides 600 Christians were estimated to be present. The whole service is said to have been most impressive, and the people very reverent. On the return of Miss S. C. Grover in June, 1899, visiting in the large compounds was resumed. The difficulty in the way of doing this, which existed in consequence of there being no Bible-woman, was overcome by some of the Christian women volunteering to accompany Miss Grover, who was impressed with the earnest and thoughtful way in which they placed the Gospel before their heathen sisters both in the compounds and in the market-places. In preparation for the Industrial School, authorized by the Committee, seven girls were gathered together, and instructed in various forms of practical work.

Two thousand present at a Centenary open-air preaching.

A successful anniversary meeting of the Ibadan Native Pastorate was held in August, at which it was reported that the income of the year was over £80, being £12 in excess of that of the preceding year, and almost five times as much as that of 1890. Just before this meeting the Native Church resolved to undertake the support of the Rev. D. Olubi, who entered the service of the Society as a schoolmaster in 1855, thirteen years later was appointed a catechist, and was ordained in 1876. Mr. Olubi's congregation at Kudeti consists of 207 members; fifteen adults were baptized during the year, and twenty-eight persons were candidates for baptism at its close. A Temperance Society was set on foot, and by November it had forty-eight pledged members, fourteen of whom were total abstainers. The church at Aremo, where the Rev. J. Okuseinde is pastor, was damaged by a heavy tornado in April, 1899. Bishop Phillips confirmed nineteen members of the congregation. The classes were better attended, the school increased both in numbers and in influence, the Juvenile Missionary Association made good progress, and the members of the congregation appeared to realize more fully the truth that evangelistic work is the duty of every Christian and not only of those definitely set apart for the purpose. Ten adults were baptized, and several inquirers came forward, some of them the fruits of the work carried on at the chapel-of-ease. Mr. Okuseinde asks special prayer for a man who is an earnest inquirer, but as a polygamist is confronted by great difficulties in the way of being baptized. He says of him :—

Prayer asked for an inquirer.

He is the foremost of all the catechumens in every good work. Through him eleven persons attended our church and school, among them his chief wife, and he is a good example to all members in punctuality, regularity, and payment of church dues. As he was a champion of Heathenism, so he would be of Christianity.

At Ogunpa, where the conduct of the teacher, as mentioned in last year's Report, had been so great a hindrance, matters improved a little under the care of the catechist who was transferred thither from Aremo, but the converts were slow to send their children to school. New work was commenced at Oke Mapo with fair prospects of success; greater spirituality was evident at Isehin; and at Apomu, twenty-five miles from Ibadan, which was opened as an out-station early in 1898 (see last year's Report, p. 66), six adults were baptized, one of them the son of a chief, and another a woman of some means and influence.

Itinerations.

The duties of the Secretariat took Mr. Harding away from the station several times during the year, but he was able to make some Itinerating Tours in his district. In the course of one which was undertaken in November in the country east of Ibadan, he passed through a densely populated country, in four days visiting villages and towns which were inhabited in the aggregate by more than 100,000 people, but were without a single agent or Christian, excepting one wavering man who had in some degree been influenced by his brother in favour of Mohammedanism. At Oshogbo, where this man lived, a Mohammedan mosque was in process of erection. In almost every case the missionaries were received with kindness, but all they could do was just to strengthen the hands of such Christians as they met, and proclaim to the Heathen as simply as possible the Gospel of love.

No faithful witness for Christ among 100,000 people.

OYO AND OGBOMOSO.

Oyo.

There was real progress at Oyo, both in numbers and in the general work. Miss J. J. Thomas and Miss J. Palmer, the latter of whom came home in October, lived together in a little native house, and carried on the dispensary, and the work among women. About a dozen people usually attended the Mothers' Meeting, and one or two who had been influenced by the medical work in favour of Christianity, joined the class of inquirers. Visits were regularly paid to the compounds, and to a neighbouring heathen village where the adults showed no desire to hear the Gospel message, but the work among the children was hopeful.

Training Institution.

The Training Institution was under the care of Mr. J. McKay in the absence of the Rev. F. Melville Jones in England. Two of the three blocks of students' buildings, as well as portions of the Mission-house outbuildings, were wrecked by a heavy tornado which swept over the town on April 14th, 1899. The force of the wind carried off some of the roofs bodily, and one of them fell on a probationary student, the son of the Scripture-reader at Ode Ondo, fracturing his left thigh, smashing the bones of the right foot, and injuring his eyes. His condition caused great anxiety for some days, but earnest prayer and careful nursing resulted in his almost complete restoration to health. There was a noticeable improvement in the lad's conduct after his accident, which seemed to have been a means of spiritual blessing to him. The training of the sixteen young men proceeded on the ordinary lines. They had good memories, which enabled them to do well in the Scripture and other examinations; but there was a danger lest they should acquire a mere parrot-like knowledge, and application was not their strong point. The tutors and students rendered great assistance to the Rev. S. Johnson, the native pastor, in conducting services at the Mission church, and in evangelistic preaching. In November and December the customary itinerating tours were made, the senior tutor taking the second and third classes through Iwo and Modakeke, while Mr. McKay, accompanied by the first class lads, went to Isehin and Shaki, returning by way of Igboho, Kisi, and Igbeti, to Ilorin and Ogbomoso. Beyond Shaki all the ground covered was new until they reached Ilorin, in which Mohammedan town they were allowed to preach in the market-place without molestation.

Itinerations by students.

Mr. Melville Jones, when speaking at the Valedictory Meeting in Exeter Hall, related an incident which occurred in connexion with one of the itinerations during a year antecedent to that under review, but which has not previously been recorded. In the course of his tour he one day reached Okihiho, a town with about 10,000 inhabitants, where there was no Christian teacher. It had only once been visited by a missionary, Mr. Harding, who when there taught the people to offer the prayer, "Jesus, Son of God, Saviour, save me; forgive me my sins; show me Thy way," and when he left promised that if possible he would soon come back. Four years passed. Mr. Harding was kept at Ibadan, and the African teachers were so few that he had none to send to Okihiho. When Mr. Melville Jones went there he asked the chief, "Do you remember the visit of the white man?" Yes, they remembered it. "Do you remember what he said?" No, no one could remember. At last one person was found who could just remember that it was something about "Jesus, Saviour." For a whole year after Mr. Harding left they had repeated the prayer he taught them morning and evening; and then, when nothing came of it, they gave it up, and so it had been forgotten.

"Something about 'Jesus, Saviour.'"

Two women were baptized at Ogbomoso, where the Rev. F. L. Akiele was in charge; the contributions of the Native Christians advanced, and the school was maintained with but little alteration so far as numbers were concerned. Three children of leading chiefs, who, as mentioned in last year's Report, had been placed by their parents under Christian instruction, made good progress, and were instrumental in witnessing for the truth in some degree in their heathen homes. The evangelistic work in the town was shared in by the Christians, two bands, one of men and one of women, preaching in the streets in alternate weeks. Some people in a neighbouring village to which Mr. Akiele went were deeply impressed with the message which they heard, and asked that it might not be long before they were taught more about the Saviour; and at another place 300 persons assembled on a Sunday to listen to the Gospel, and were taught a simple prayer. Ogbomoso.

The important town of Ilorin, which, as mentioned above, was visited by the students of the Oyo Training Institution, was also visited during the year by the Rev. J. J. Williams, native pastor at Lokoja, in the Niger Mission. Encouraged by the evident desire of the people to hear the Gospel, he stayed a whole week in the place. One day he preached to the troops of the Royal Niger Company, and an hour or two after the service a woman came asking to see the minister. He adds:— Visit to Ilorin.

Ascertaining that it was I, she fell on her knees, prayed, and rising, lifted up her hands and glorified God. She showed me her old Yoruba Testament, hymn-book, and the Psalms, in which her name, Mary Oyerunke, was written. She is a communicant of St. Peter's Church, Lagos. Her late pastor was the Rev. T. B. Wright, and her teacher and leader at class was the Right Rev. Bishop Oluwole, to whom she sent me with this message:— "Tell him whenever you see him that I continue to be steadfast and faithful to Jesus. Persecution, trial, temptations and troubles since I came here, about fifteen years ago, have not turned me away from Christ. I rejoice to hear that you are here." We read and prayed together. She invited me to the compound where she lived. I went there on October 30th and preached to a gathering of thirty-seven Mohammedans and Heathen. She seemed to be very much respected. She said, "I try always to tell my people as much as I can about Jesus, and what He has done for me." Steadfast, though alone and persecuted for fifteen years.

During his stay over forty Mohammedan priests called to see him, one of whom came every day to read the New Testament in Arabic, and hear it expounded. He experienced a hearty reception, too, from the king, and gives the following account of his intercourse with him:—

On November 1st I called on the king, who received me cordially. Having read John i., and explained it to him in the Yoruba language, he invited me to address the members of his court. At his call about 1,500 persons assembled. I taught them from Romans i. 16. The attention and questions asked by some of the chief men were very encouraging. At the close of that meeting he dipped his big hand into his toga (outer garment) pocket, filled it with florins and shillings, which he presented to me. I told him that the reception and hearing which Kind reception by the king.

he and his people have given to God's Word were far more acceptable sacrifices and better than all the gold and silver which they could give to Jesus. I asked him to keep and use the silver for other purposes, and to give Jesus his heart. He could not bear to hear that I intended to leave on the following day, and sent his chief messenger to beg me to stay until November 6th, if possible, and to invite me to call every day. I promised to stay until Friday, November 3rd.

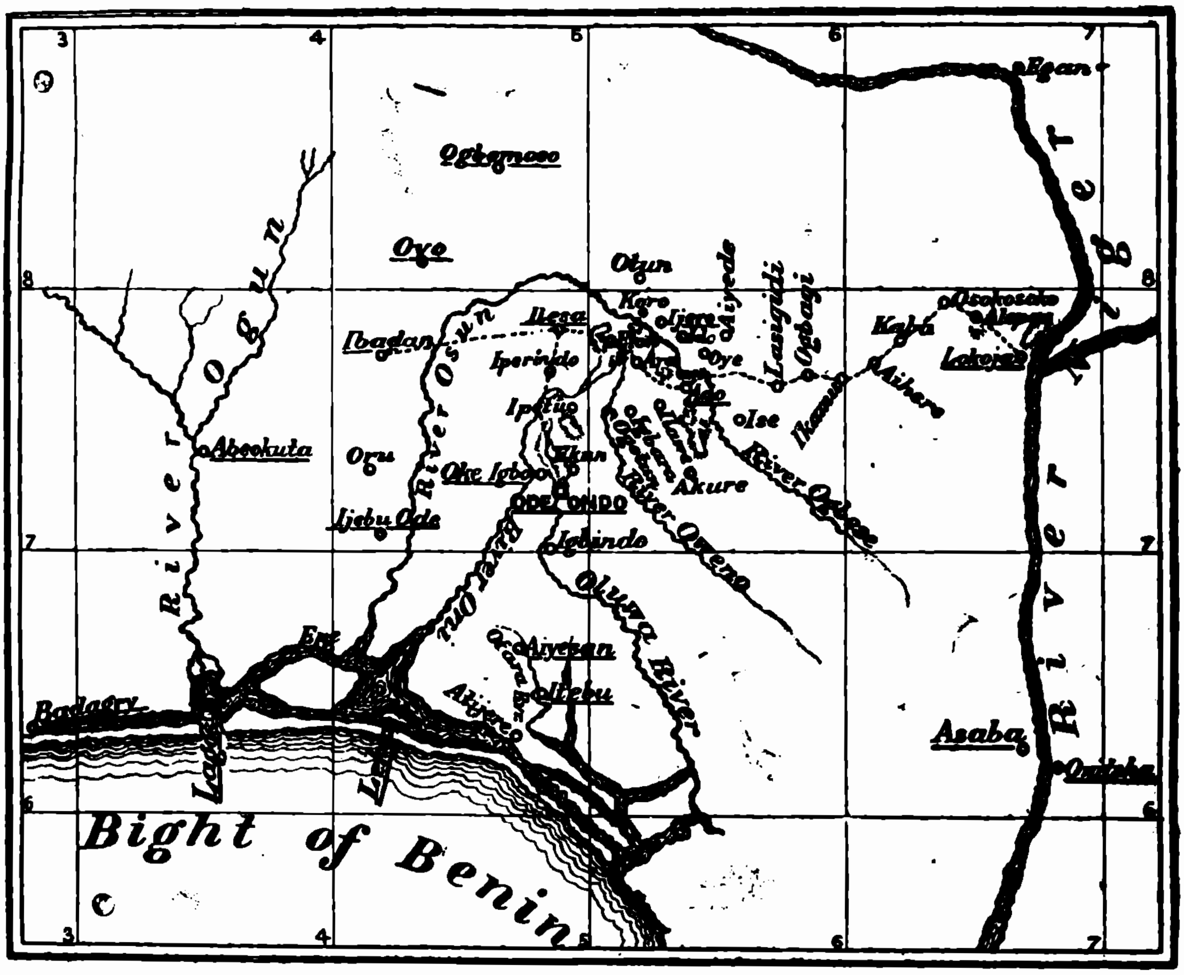
On that day I called on the king at 4 p.m. We read together in Arabic Romans i., which I explained to him and about 250 of his courtiers present. I bade him good-bye, as I resolved to start teaching in the farm villages along the way to Jebba. He was very sorry, and desired me to stay longer and read the Scriptures with him. I gave him my Testament in large-type Arabic, as he very much delighted in reading and promised sincerely to read it. I also promised him a copy of the Psalms, which he begged me to get for him. This I have fulfilled. The Lingila, or the New Testament, he said, was God's book. "It contains wonderful truths. I like it." He asked me to apologize to the Bishop and Mrs. Tugwell for not having been civil to them when they were there last.

Open doors.

At Jebba also Mr. Williams addressed about 350 people who came together in the evening to listen to the message of salvation, although the chiefs had said that it would be impossible to hold a meeting. And in one place after another which he visited on his return journey down the Niger River large crowds gathered round him, thus showing how widely open were the doors in that part of the country.

ODE ONDO, ILESA, AND EKITI.

Ode Ondo.



Bishop Phillips, who superintended the work at Ode Ondo, his headquarters, divided the Mission into three circuits, designing to place each under the care of an ordained man to whom the lay agents might look for guidance. The ODE ONDO circuit was under the Rev. E. M. Lijadu. He conducted three classes—one for communicants, which had seventy-five names on the roll; another for confirmation candidates and backsliders, the latter comprising one-third of the total of thirty-five members; and a third for catechumens, of whom there were over ninety. Seven of the twelve adults baptized during the year were members of the last-mentioned class. A new church, built at a cost of £52, of which £17 was contributed by the heathen chiefs in the form of manual labour, was opened at Oke Igbo by Bishop Phillips on October 18th, and was used on the following Sunday for the baptism of a priest who had delivered up his Ifa idols to the Mission agent in 1895, but had long hesitated to renounce polygamy. At the end of 1898 twenty young men came to the catechist, and said that they intended to be earnest about religion. In proof of their sincerity three of them gave up their idols to him the same day, and the others promised to bring theirs as soon as they could discover where their parents had secreted them.

A few months later a striking scene took place near the town, when a man cast away one of the most venerated idols of the country. Mr. Lijadu writes:— Idols forsaken.

I stood, surrounded by the inquiring youths, with the mysterious Igbá Odù in front of us. After a short address by me, the owner, Ojo Akiwamide, took up the idol, spat on it, and threw it into the stream with the words, "I forsake thee to-day." His companions then shouted together, "We also forsake thee too." This very man, with four of the women converts, was baptized on April 23rd, and is now a leading member of the church in Oke Igbo.

The work at Ekun, the second out-station in the circuit, was carried on by a man who was taken leave of in April, 1899, on the occasion of the first valedictory dismissal ever held in the Ode Ondo church. He met with a large measure of success, for the thirty catechumens in the place on his arrival increased before the middle of November to eighty-one.

SKETCH MAP OF THE YORUBA COUNTRY. (Scale about 60 miles to the inch.)

The Rev. R. S. Oyebode supervised the ILESA circuit. The king at Ilesa is said to be a professing Christian, but, since he refused to abandon polygamy and gave money for some of the heathen sacrifices, his example and influence were hardly helpful to the spread of Christianity. Two young men were led by a sermon preached by Bishop Phillips to offer themselves for spiritual work, and were placed in training, and many of the women and even of the children were zealous in making known the tidings of salvation. A new out-station was opened at Modakeke, where a temporary place of worship was speedily Ilesa.

built, and fifty-four people were enrolled as inquirers; while at Ora, a town in the Igbomina country, three days' journey from Ilesa, a chapel was erected through the exertions of a Christian repatriate, a convert from Ibadan, who after his return from slavery to his native place gathered together some thirty readers. Mr. Harding, who visited the village in December, says that this man was formerly a slave, and had saved nearly enough money to purchase his freedom when he heard tidings of his mother, who was in slavery near Ibadan. He obtained leave from his master to go over and see her, and, taking with him the money he had saved, he purchased with it his mother's freedom, and began afresh to work for his own redemption. Happily some people in England heard of this instance of filial affection, and before long the man, Lasinde, was his own master. The king of the place spoke of him as being "the lamp of his town." Five men, including a son of the king, and one woman were baptized on the occasion of Mr. Harding's visit, but unhappily, there was no teacher who could be spared to minister to them regularly.

A slave redeems his mother from slavery.

Ekiti Country.

The EKITI circuit, which was placed under the charge of the Rev. T. A. J. Ogunbiye, comprised the three stations Akure Ado, and Ise. Some complications with the authorities arose at Ise, in consequence of which the adherents were expelled from the town, but the aggrieved parties were soon mollified and the Christians reinstated. Not far from Ise is Emure, where the Rev. T. Harding found a good work being carried on by a man named Shadrach Mogun, one of Mr. Hinderer's converts at Ibadan. He says of him :—

"A veritable John the Baptist."

> He lives all alone with Jesus Christ—to use his own expression. His hut is scarcely high enough to stand upright in, and cannot be more than five by seven feet. He preaches to the farmers, and now and again visits the town to preach. He looks like an old prophet, and is a veritable John the Baptist preparing the way for Christ's second Advent.

Many invitations to undertake new work were received. Thus the Bishop writes :—

Urgent invitations

> From Iduani and from Owo, repatriates who are anxious for the conversion of their heathen relations have sent in urgent invitations. I am sorry that I have not yet been able to visit either of these places, though my mind has been set on doing so since 1896. From Afuji, in the Kukuruku Country, we have had appeals made in a tangible and touching manner. When I visited Ijero in May, I found a family of seventeen persons (i.e. four men, one woman, nine boys, and three girls), who migrated from Afuji (their native town, five days' journey beyond) simply that they might have Christian instruction. The men tried to earn their livelihood by making farms, and the children attended the day school regularly in the mornings, and in the afternoons they went to assist the men on the farms. At Igbobini and at Ayede (trading towns to the south of Ode Ondo), through which I passed in September, I saw that some of the Natives evinced a desire to learn by building small sheds as places for Divine service and Sunday-schools.
> With these movements all around, our Christian friends in England will be able to comprehend our solicitude and embarrassment because of the paucity of Christian teachers. Even the existing stations are still undermanned. and consequent embarrassment.

The need for strenuous effort in order that advantage may be taken of the day of opportunity is emphasized by the fact that Mohammedan aggression is fast becoming more general. Bishop Phillips says:—

The propagators of Mohammedanism are chiefly emigrants or traders from Lagos. At Ode Ondo they have erected a mosque near the market-place, alluring the people and trying to prejudice their minds against Christianity by preaching toleration of polygamy. At Ado and Ise they have also erected mosques at the market-places in the king's street. At Ilesa, the site for a mosque was granted by the Christian king in the thoroughfare leading to the king's palace. At Modakeke, Mohammedanism has already been established and recognized by the authorities. It is at Akure alone that they have yet failed to obtain a grant of land from the heathen authorities. NIGER MISSION.

In 1841 a Government naval expedition, accompanied by a C.M.S. missionary, the Rev. J. F. Schön, and by Samuel Crowther, a liberated negro slave (who in 1864 was consecrated Bishop of the Niger), explored the River Niger. In 1854 a second expedition penetrated up the stream 500 miles, finding the Natives everywhere ready to receive Christian teachers; and in 1857 Mr. Crowther accompanied a third expedition undertaken for commercial purposes, and laid the foundation of the Niger Mission by establishing three stations. One of these was Onitsha. Other stations were subsequently occupied—viz., Lokoja, 1865; Bonny, 1866; Brass, 1868; Asaba, 1875; Gbebe, reoccupied, 1879; Obusi, 1890; and the Basa country in 1897. Bishop Crowther continued to labour zealously in the Mission till the end of 1891, when he died at Lagos. (For account of Bishop Crowther's successors see notes at head of "Yoruba Mission.") In 1900 the Rev. James Johnson was consecrated as Assistant-Bishop to the Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa, more especially for the Niger Delta.

The superstitions of the people, and the demoralization caused by the increasing European liquor traffic and by the general low tone of Christianity on the West African Coast, have proved formidable obstacles to the spread of the Gospel; but more than 4,000 persons have been baptized, including several influential chiefs, and some of the converts have exhibited Christian fortitude in enduring persecution, and liberality in contributing to the building of Mission churches, &c. At Bonny the once famous idol temple, decorated with human skulls, has been destroyed. Nevertheless, a higher standard of Christian life is much needed.

In 1890 a party of missionaries went out under the leadership of the Rev. J. A. Robinson and Mr. G. Wilmot Brooke, with the idea of residing at Lokoja, on the Upper Niger, and thence making an effort to reach the Mohammedans of the Soudan. The climate shortly proved fatal to both the leaders, and drove the rest home, but others followed after a short interval, and itinerations have been made in the direction of Sokoto. A pioneer party, under the leadership of Bishop Tugwell, left England for Hausaland in 1899.

REFERENCE has already been made in the introductory chapter to the Africa Missions (supra, page 48) to the transfer of Nigeria from the Royal Niger Company to the British Crown. The Bill for the revocation of the Royal Niger Company's Charter received the Queen's assent on August 9th, 1899, and on New Year's Day, 1900, the Union Jack was run up at Lokoja, and Colonel (now General) Lugard assumed the office of High Commissioner of Upper Nigeria. The following from an article in the Times of January 1st describes the arrangements for the government of this vast territory:—

Political divisions of Nigeria.

The territory thus taken over will be redistributed for purposes of administration. A portion of it will go to the protectorate lying behind the Colony of Lagos. The remainder will be amalgamated with the strip hitherto known as the Niger Coast Protectorate, lying on either side of the River Niger as it flows into the Gulf of Guinea, and will be divided into the British protectorates of Upper and Lower Nigeria. Lower Nigeria will be the coast province, of which the inland frontier will pass east and west through Idda, on the Niger, till it meets the frontier of Lagos on the one side and the frontier of the German Cameroons upon the other. It will be administered by Sir Ralph Moor, with the title of High Commissioner. Upper Nigeria will compose the much more extensive inland territory stretching from the frontier-line of Lower Nigeria to the farthest limits of the British sphere of influence, reaching the lately-defined boundaries of Borgu and the northern line stretching from Say, on the Niger, to Lake Chad. This territory, which includes the kingdom of Sokoto and the lately-subdued state of Nupe, as well as the fertile and healthy districts lying to the north of the River Binué, will be administered by Colonel Lugard, who, like the officer administering Lower Nigeria, will have the title of British High Commissioner.

Consecration of Bishop Johnson.

A step of considerable importance in the development of the Church in West Africa was taken at Lambeth Palace Chapel on Sunday, February 18th, 1900, when the Rev. James Johnson was consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Bishops of Ely and St. Albans, and Bishop Ingham, to be Assistant-Bishop in Western Equatorial Africa. The new Bishop is the son of liberated slaves who were landed in Sierra Leone. For twenty-five years he was missionary and pastor to the Yoruba people, to two tribes of which his parents respectively belonged, and he was the chief instrument in arousing the missionary zeal of the Lagos congregations, which resulted in the remarkable movement among the Ijebus with which readers of recent Reports are familiar. It is expected that the principal sphere of Bishop Johnson's ministrations will be the Niger Delta, especially Bonny and its out-stations. The Native Christians there, who have built at their own cost seven churches on the coast, and twenty-three Mission chapels in the interior, have long been desirous to have a bishop for themselves, and for some time hoped to raise an endowment for an episcopal stipend; but finding that task beyond their strength they appealed to the Committee of the Society to appoint an assistant-bishop, evidently believing that a diocesan bishop could only be obtained when they were in a position to support him, but that an assistant-bishop might be provided by the Society. The nomination of such a bishop of course lay with Bishop Tugwell, and he, anxious to meet the wishes of the Delta Christians, not only endorsed their appeal to the C.M.S. for funds, but nominated as his assistant the particular African clergyman whose appointment was desired at Bonny. The Committee acceded to Bishop Tugwell's request on the understanding that they did not pledge themselves always to maintain three assistant-bishops in the Diocese of Western Equatorial Africa. Bishop Johnson was the preacher of the Society's Anniversary Sermon which appears at the beginning of this Report. This, the Society's 101st Anniversary, was the first occasion when the Sermon has been preached by a representative of one of the Native Churches raised up through the instrumentality of the Society.

Deaths of Misses E. S. Philcox

The deaths of four missionaries occurred on the Niger in rapid succession. On November 24th, 1899, Miss E. S. Philcox was called to her rest. She had been a Board-school mistress before offering to the Society, and when she went out to the Niger in January, 1899, she was engaged in school work at Onitsha. She had made unusual progress in the Ibo language, and had greatly endeared herself to her fellow-workers.

S. Hickmott,

A fortnight later, on December 9th, the death occurred of Miss Sarah Hickmott, who went out to Port Lokkoh, Sierra Leone, at the end of 1894. On her return to the West Coast after furlough in September, 1898, the revolt in Sierra Leone seeming to bar the resumption of her work there, she was transferred to the Niger Mission, and laboured at the Onitsha dispensary. Dr. Clayton, who was closely associated with her in her work, writes:—

> I can personally testify that never have I been privileged to meet with greater devotion and singleness of purpose in any with whom it has been my joy to work in the past. I bear a true witness when I say that those souls who during the past year have been brought into the Kingdom have been led into the light through her immediate instrumentality; while to many hearts both in connexion with the dispensary and hospital, as well as in Onitsha town itself, she has been the God-given messenger of the Gospel of peace, and the servant who has been privileged to bring light and hope where before was only the blackness and heavy drudgery of sin.

and A. C. H. Squires, and of Rev. E. A. Wise.

The third and fourth deaths were those of Miss Annie Caroline Harriette Squires and the Rev. Ernest Alfred Wise. Miss Squires' death took place at Brass on January 10th, 1900. She was trained at The Willows, and had been taken leave of at the valedictory meeting in October, 1899, and sailed on November 11th, so that she had barely been a month at her work. Mr. Wise, an Islington man, who was ordained deacon by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, 1898, and sailed for the Mission in August of that year, died on board the ss. Biafra at Warrie, on April 7th, 1900.

Reinforcements.

In addition to Miss A. C. H. Squires, whose death is recorded above, the following joined the Mission:—Mr. John Robert Burgin; Mr. James Norris Cheetham; Mr. Edward Dennis, of Islington College, a brother of the Rev. T. J. Dennis and of the Misses E. and F. M. Dennis, of this Mission; Miss Mary Bird, of The Olives; and Miss Minnie Louisa Haslewood Warner, of The Willows, a sister of Miss E. A. Warner, of this Mission. All the above sailed in November, with the exception of Mr. Burgin, who left a month later.

The Rev. T. J. Dennis is the Secretary of the Mission.

I. SOUTHERN NIGERIA.

Miss F. M. Dennis and Miss L. M. Maxwell came to England in June, 1899, sailing again in November; the Rev. S. R. Smith came home in August, and sailed in March, 1900; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. R. Wilson came home in October, 1899, and sailed in April, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. T. J. Dennis, Miss G. A. Bennett (invalided), and Miss S. A. Hopkins in December, 1899; Miss E. A. Warner in February, 1900; and the Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Bennett in May. Miss M. Hamlin and Miss A. L. Wilson left for the Mission in November, the latter sailing from New Zealand.

BONNY.

Bonny. Bishop Oluwole paid a visit in April to BONNY, and the other stations where the work is supported and managed by the Niger Delta Pastorate. A number of candidates were presented to him for confirmation; among them an old woman, said to be about one hundred years old, who at one time was a juju priestess. The Bishop was impressed with the excellence of the educational work at Bonny itself, and with the neatness of all the stations to which he went. The prejudice against Christian marriage appeared to be slowly dying out, and at Obonoma, which was reoccupied in 1898, the chiefs, formerly so antagonistic, subscribed towards the erection of a church.

BRASS.

Brass is the name given to a district about forty miles long and five to ten miles broad, situated amongst the creeks of the Niger Delta. The population is not very dense, but it is much scattered, the little villages being many of them so hidden away as to make them most difficult to find. The Congregation at BRASS TUWON showed some improvement. About 600 were present at a special English service in the morning of Christmas Day, 1898. The influence exercised by the Christians was manifested in the measure of success which was met with in the endeavour to procure the cessation of the country custom of dancing over the dead, with its usual accompaniment of heavy drinking. Two chiefs refused to allow it in connexion with the deaths of some of the converts, and another chief, a Christian, is said to have prohibited it entirely among his people. The most encouraging part of the work, however, was in connexion with the Schools, to which the Rev. H. Proctor devoted a good deal of time. A strike against vernacular teaching pointed to the desirability of forming an English side to both schools, but a fee was charged for all instruction in that language, so that the vernacular teaching, which was given free, might not suffer. The constant removal of the children by their owners, who frequently sent them to distant markets to trade, or made them work on outlying farms, was a real drawback. The training of pupil-teachers also had its difficulties, for although it enabled Mr. Proctor to influence some of the bigger lads, it was found that after a little teaching they were apt to become proud, to assume European dress, and to affect an attitude of superiority towards others. The Girls' School was managed by Miss G. A. Bennett, until her health broke down. Some difficulty was at first experienced in persuading the chiefs to send the girls to be taught; indeed, they laughed at the very idea, saying that "a girl was good for nothing but to fish, cut wood in the bush, and marry." By degrees the number increased, until there were thirteen boarders and eight day-scholars, who were taught washing, ironing, cooking, and sewing, as well as reading and writing. The pains expended over their moral as well as material welfare were not in vain, for a gentleman one day remarked how different the girls were from those in the town, and added, "You can see it in their very faces." Miss Bennett for a time carried on a dispensary, but experience showed that there was not much scope for that kind of work. There were two departments of the Industrial Work, which was supported by Diocesan funds, but the apprentices at the carpenter's shop were not numerous, and they appeared to have a great dislike of what they regarded as undue exertion.

"You can see it in their faces."

Brass Nembe.

During the absence of the native schoolmaster at Onitsha, whither he went for some additional training, Mr. Proctor and Mr. J. C. R. Wilson alternately resided at BRASS NEMBE for a fortnight at a time. The attendance at St. Luke's Church, which barely reached one hundred on Sunday mornings in 1896, averaged more than twice that number in 1899, and the characters of some of the members gave cause for thankfulness. One poor man, who joined the Government punitive expedition to Benin, on his safe return gave one shilling as a thank-offering, to be devoted to Mission work in that benighted city. Classes of candidates for baptism and confirmation were held every week, those for women being conducted by Mrs. Wilson, and eight men and seven women were baptized in June, 1899. Mr. Wilson twice went to a small heathen village which possessed a couple of juju idol-houses. He says:—

A poor man's thank-offering.

> It was some time before I was allowed to cross over to the village, therefore I was very glad when one of our pupil-teachers offered to take me and to interpret when I spoke. It is not encouraging to speak to an empty space, but God's words could penetrate into the huts where the people remained; they gave me leave to speak, but would not appear to listen.

ONITSHA AND ASABA.

The insalubrious climate of West Africa renders continuity of work difficult of attainment, since it not only necessitates frequent furloughs, but also from time to time, as during the year under review, removes from the scene of their labours those whom it often seems could least be spared. Consequently, although the increase of the staff of missionaries at ONITSHA a few years ago resulted in the greater efficiency of the operations, yet the need of more workers is continually felt, and is frequently referred to in the Annual Letters which are sent home. The Rev. P. A. Bennett (now at home) says that the present efforts can hardly be regarded as anything else than "marking time," with but little prospect of the future development of a "forward movement."

The Rev. S. R. Smith, until he left in July, 1899, was engaged in the training of native teachers. The Rev. T. J. Dennis, notwithstanding his multifarious duties as Secretary, found, or made time to prosecute the work of translating the Bible into the Ibo language. Bible translation.

The work at the Hospital and at the Dispensary was carried on by Dr. A. E. Clayton, the late Miss S. Hickmott, and four native helpers. The temporary building which served the purposes of a hospital was not of an imposing description, for it, with its contents, is described as follows:—

A primitive hospital.

> Four mud walls enclosing a space partitioned into three. A roof covering the whole composed partly of corrugated iron and partly of native mats, two or three pictures on the walls, and a clock. In the centre of the middle space a table, upon which are arranged a few bottles, and an old box to one side of which have been nailed four pieces of stick to keep it off the ground, the whole being used as a receptacle for dressings. A wash-stand, consisting of an old packing-case in one end of which a hole has been made to receive the lower half of a very mild and inoffensive-looking enamel basin. What else? Twelve wooden erections bearing the complimentary title of beds, and twelve black figures lying upon them constituting the patients. A grass mat covers each bed. A 1*s.* 9*d.* blanket covers each patient. This represents the stock-in-trade and the workable machinery of this elementary institution.

Corresponding with the primitive nature of the building and its furniture were the primitive ideas of the patients as to what their conduct should be, and great were the consequent trials of the medical missionary, and great the tax upon his patience. Dr. Clayton gives a graphic and amusing account of some of his experiences:—

Trying patients.

> As the doctor enters the door every one is in bed or, at least, he hopes so; or perhaps two or three more or less convalescent individuals are just hopping into position after some mutual conference on the early appearance of yam. They try to look innocent, and so strong is their appearance of injured innocence that you might be led to suppose you were judging them harshly but for the discovery of a familiar figure gazing up at the branches of a tree just at the back of the building. This is a man whose toe was amputated the day before, and who was specially requested, almost with tears, to lie quiet in bed. The assistant is peremptorily called, who explains that the aggressive individual must have left his bed while he (the assistant) was cooking his yam, or had gone to wash his clothes or exchange a word with a friend. The man himself explains that he was only looking for oranges, and wears an expression of innocent astonishment, implying that had he had the slightest idea that he was expected to remain in bed he would rather have lost his right hand than run counter to such expectation.
> After this dear soul is escorted to his couch, it is suddenly discovered that two others are missing, and after ten minutes' helpless consultation, inquiry, and search with the assistant, the sickening fact reveals itself that the man upon whose swollen knee a plaster-of-paris splint was placed the day before is taking a constitutional at the further end of the compound, and looking round upon the people going down the road to market with quite a fatherly and preoccupied interest. He is hustled back indoors, the assistant grins, the medical looks disheartened, while the man himself expresses profound regret in his countenance that things generally are not regarded from a more philosophical standpoint, and shows by unmistakable signs that he really does not understand the turn affairs have taken.

The third truant is a man whose leg was amputated two or three days previously, and who has escaped observation, although sitting contentedly in the middle of the compound, presumably taking the sun.

He proceeds to describe his visits to some of the patients :—

Here is a man with a diseased bone in his leg. It is only with the greatest difficulty he has been persuaded to lie quiet for a fortnight; even then one or two daily walks round the hospital premises are positively necessary for him, and he is not at all particular whether he gets out and returns through the door or window. At each examination he hints that in his opinion if the bone could be turned round it would soon get well, and that he considers that non-compliance with such a request on the doctor's part not only reveals grave ignorance of the subject, but amounts to a decided dereliction of duty.

You pass on to the friend with the toe. He wishes to know whether his wife can come to stay with him and cook his food in the middle of the hospital floor. On pointing out the inconvenience of this arrangement, he suggests that perhaps he might spend the day at home in his hut and return to the hospital at nights. This, of course, will never work, and after giving him permission to smoke with his head round the side of the door, you admire the healthy granulating wound, and pass on to the friend with the plaster-of-paris splint.

Only the day before you sat with tired limbs and aching head explaining to him the necessity of keeping his leg quite still till the splint had set. During this time he had seemed to be suffering from suppressed information; when you had finished he launched forth into an eloquent description of a tickling sensation in his throat, preventing him from swallowing his food. In the warmth of his eloquence his dark and dusky countenance fairly glowed with excitement—an excitement so comprehensive as to include his leg and render the splint hors de combat. Of course he looks very sorry, but explains that perhaps before you put on another splint it would be a fitting opportunity for him to go in search of a further stock of yam. You agree, and with a breaking heart you turn to a friend behind.

Classes for the benefit of the in-patients, as well as for the people who came to the dispensary, were held every week with an attendance of from twenty to thirty. In several cases it appeared that a real impression for good was made, and eight adults were baptized. The Industrial Work was hindered by a misunderstanding which arose with the officials of the Royal Niger Company concerning the land on which the brickmaking and bricklaying operations were conducted, and Mr. F. J. Mackett, the industrial agent sent out by the Committee, was compelled to confine his attention to sawing and carpentry. The printing press had to be closed for want of a qualified man to supervise the work. Miss E. A. Warner and Miss E. Dennis made two new departures at the Girls' School. The first consisted in taking up their abode on the premises, which was rendered possible when the completion of the new schoolroom set the old buildings free for the purposes of a dwelling-house. This change enabled them to teach the girls housework to a greater extent than before. The other novelty was the institution of fees, which were only demanded from those parents who it was thought were in a position to pay a little for the education of their girls, the question of their ability being decided by the local Committee. This step affected the number of pupils for a time, but by December there were thirty-six names on the school register. The conduct of the girls improved, and many of them displayed a conscientious desire to follow in the footsteps of their Saviour.

Congregations.

The congregation of Christ Church, at the Waterside, consisting of about two hundred adult Christians, half of whom are communicants, was ministered to by the Rev. T. J. Dennis (now at home), to whom the young native catechist, Mr. Nzekwu, rendered such assistance as was in his power. The salary of the latter was paid by the people, who thus made a movement in the direction of self-support. Early in the year Miss M. H. Holbrook went with the late Miss Philcox to reside at the Waterside, instead of living in the C.M.S. compound in Onitsha Town, and she found the advantage of the step, in that she was able to get into closer touch with the people. Various classes were maintained, and some encouragement was met with in the restoration of backsliders, of the wife of one of whom Miss Holbrook writes:—

A changed woman.

She was brought from the interior by one of our oldest Church members as his wife, and he was in consequence excommunicated. He sent her to the baptism class, but I have rarely seen a more indifferent, dull woman than she was. If you could see her now! Nothing but the Spirit of God could have worked such wonders. She is a new creature in Christ Jesus, and a few weeks ago was baptized, and then married to her husband. I believe he was truly sorry for his wrong-doing. He is a proud man, yet he came regularly for months to a class we had begun on Saturdays for backsliders. It is very hard for these people to make up their minds to come to this class, for unless they are truly repentant they will not own they have sinned, and are only very angry because their names are taken off the Church books. But he came, and after his marriage he was taken back into communion when he had confessed his sin before all the communicants.

Immanuel Church, situated in Onitsha Town, was under the pastoral care of the Rev. G. N. Anyaegbunam, who, with two schoolmasters, also looked after Umuaroli Village, within the township. There were but few baptisms, although a week's special Mission was held in April, 1899; those, however, who were admitted to that rite in 1897 and 1898 stood firm, and with the other Christians agreed, in combination with the Waterside converts, to find half the salary of their pastor. The ladies conducted meetings for women in the villages of Umudei and Ogbeoli, and were cheered by a manifest spirit of inquiry. The out-stations of Ogidi and Ogbunike suffered through the retirement of a native agent, for the work was too heavy for the one who remained. A branch was formed of the Scripture Union, in connexion with which monthly meetings were held. native agents are supported in the neighbouring towns of Oze and Little Nkpo by means of the self-denying gifts of the Onitsha Scripture Union, of which Mrs. Dennis was Secretary, whose members raised for this purpose no less a sum than £20. One boy from the former place was baptized in October.

It was stated in last year's Report (page 79) that the Committee had sanctioned the opening at Onitsha of a Crêche for children thrown away to die. The experiment was actually made at Obusi, where the Rev. and Mrs. P. A. Bennett resided. At first all went well, but the care of the ten children who were rescued proved too much for the strength of Mrs. Bennett, who broke down under the strain. One by one the babies died, in spite of all the care which was lavished on them, their decease being due in some measure to the lack of suitable food. But although this part of the work proved disappointing, there was much to cheer in connexion with the schools, which were attended by a largely increased number of children. The Dispensary also gave grounds for encouragement. In the last six months of the year 7,400 visits were registered, many of the people coming from a distance. One of the twelve adults baptized was brought in through this work, and there were several inquirers who appeared to be genuine. Those who purposed to embrace Christianity had to endure some trials, and one of them was tied up and flogged by the Heathen until eventually he promised to recant. Three of the converts unhappily relapsed into Heathenism, but on the other hand others of the Christians manifested increased evangelistic zeal. A preaching society was formed, the members of which held six regular services in five different towns every Sunday, with the result that in one town, named Mienwi, thirty inquirers came forward.

Dispensary at Obusi.

A preaching society.

With so much to be done in Onitsha itself extensive itinerations were obviously impossible, but Miss Holbrook and Miss Warner spent a few days at Anam, higher up the river than Onitsha, and on the opposite bank, where the people hold a beautiful kind of white heron in great reverence; four of the missionaries also, together with five Native Christian men, went in January, 1899, to Oka, a town in the interior Ibo country, about forty miles east of Onitsha.

Asaba.

At ASABA, the want of a European Superintendent for the Training Institution was met for a time by the appointment of the Rev. E. A. Wise, who had five students under his care. He paid attention to the characters as well as to the mental acquirements of the men, and found that the game of cricket was most useful as encouraging manliness, good feeling, quickness, whole-hearted obedience, and unity. When Mr. Wise was transferred to Onitsha, with a view to assuming the superintendence of the work there on the departure of Mr. Dennis, the men were sent forth to their work at Brass and Onitsha, and the Institution had to be closed. The Rev. J. Spencer, the native pastor of the Congregation, speaks in his report of many discouragements—the low ideals of the people, who seemed to have no higher motive in existence than to get money and possess many wives; their indifference to the advantages of education for their children; the steady hardening of their hearts against the truth; and the apathy of the freeborn among the Church members with respect to self-support. The poor widows and converted slaves paid their class fees regularly and made special offerings besides; but the wealthier members of the congregation, to use Mr. Spencer's expression, "desired to be grown-up babies and have everything done for them." The school prospered in the hands of the native master—"a man of unsullied character, patient, earnest, and faithful," and open-air preaching took place every week. The work at the out-stations was especially interesting. At Ugbolu, nine miles to the north-west of Asaba, the efforts of the man who was put there as caretaker of the little rest-house were rewarded by seventeen persons giving up idolatry in March, 1899, and publicly destroying their idols, charms, and medicine-pots. The event is thus described by Mr. Spencer:—

Idols given up and destroyed.

At three o'clock we assembled all the young men and some of the children, who were learning to read, and went to Maduagu's house. Many of the Heathen, drawn together by curiosity, came also to see. After singing and prayer, the work of destruction began. Maduagu's Ikenga—the chief idol that was believed to have endowed him with power to become a famous hunter—was brought out. It was armed with knives and matchets, with which it was to execute vengeance on Maduagu's enemies. It had also ornaments of several strings of cowries, horns of buffaloes, tusks and teeth of hippopotami, making it on the whole a hideous-looking object. The helpless idol was very soon deprived of these paraphernalia, put into a basket together with a number of other smaller idols, and sent to the Mission yard to await the public burning. From Maduagu's house we were invited to another, and then another, and another, to our great astonishment and gratitude. In every house to which we were invited, not only did we remove the wooden idols and destroy those of earth, but also every vestige of superstition. I cannot state correctly the number of medicine-pots that we smashed into atoms, but forty would be the lowest number. These had been prepared by the country doctors for various purposes; some for driving away witches, some for good luck, and some for driving away enemies in time of war, &c. The horrible stench emitted from some of these medicines was enough to cause fever.

By December there were thirty inquirers and readers, some of whom were asking for baptism. Nine miles further on in the same direction lies Akwukwu, where a large and substantial mud church, capable of holding two hundred persons, was erected by the converts, who were taught to consider self-support a duty and a privilege. An incident occurred, illustrating the cruelties of Heathenism, which is best narrated in Mr. Spencer's words:—

In the month of April my wife visited Akwukwu for a change, chiefly for the benefit of her health. A week after her arrival there Mr. Obimgbo, the catechist, became seriously ill, and for about a month she had to do her best to fill his place. Whilst Mr. Obimgbo was lying ill, a zealous inquirer brought to my wife's notice the cruel custom of twin-murder that was constantly going on in the town. With the help of that inquirer she succeeded in rescuing two children (born of different mothers, one of each couplet having died immediately after birth), and she also prevailed upon the mothers to go and live in the Mission-house to nurse them. Unfortunately, one of the mothers craftily throttled her child to death; thereupon my wife immediately took away the other child entirely from its mother, and nursed it during her three months' stay at Akwukwu. She brought the poor child with her on her return to Asaba, but a month after the dear little thing entered into rest. The anger and opposition that this attempt at saving twins stirred up amongst the Heathen at Akwukwu could be better imagined than described. My wife was boycotted, and no one would salute her, but all the converts stood firm by her and rendered her every assistance, and so she did not lose heart. At one time, when the opposition was at its height, I was obliged to go and spend about ten days at Akwukwu to strengthen my wife's hands, and to bring before the king and chiefs the awful sin of their inhuman custom.

Custom of murdering twins.

I am glad to say that one of our female inquirers who firmly supported my wife has given birth to twin girls, which has been a cause of great joy to all the Christians. Of course, the children are being carefully nursed in spite of the threats and execrations of the Heathen.

The work at Onitsha-Olona owed much to the faithfulness of one man, the only witness for Christ left in the town when the work there was abandoned a short while ago. Although his knowledge was very limited, yet he went on preaching and teaching others what he knew, entirely disregarding the taunts of his countrymen. During the year under review ten persons publicly abandoned idolatry, and seven of them went over to the Rev. T. J. Dennis in the spring to plead for a teacher. Their desire was gratified; and then they met with further encouragement, for the king, who formerly violently opposed the Christians when they proposed to build a church in his town, actually presented them with a site on which to erect one, and that in an excellent position.

II. NORTHERN NIGERIA.

Mr. E. A. J. Thomas returned to England on medical certificate in August, 1899; and the Rev. J. D. Aitken came home in March, 1900.

Party for Hausaland under Bishop Tugwell.

Under the leadership of Bishop Tugwell, the Rev. A. E. Richardson, the Rev. J. C. D. Ryder, and Dr. W. R. S. Miller, who were engaged in the study of the Hausa language at Tripoli, came home from that place in July, 1899, and sailed again for West Africa in company with Mr. J. R. Burgin, one of the year's recruits, in December.

LOKOJA.

Lokoja.

The major portion of the work at Lokoja itself was in the hands of the Rev. J. J. Williams, the native pastor. In commemoration of the Centenary, a prayer-meeting was held every day from April 2nd to 15th, 1899, special sermons were preached on the 9th, and on the 12th a meeting took place, the chief of the town being among the speakers. Later in the day a number of Mohammedans and Heathen were entertained at tea. The contributions of the district to the Centenary Fund amounted to £21. Classes were conducted for Christians and for inquirers. Twelve of the latter were baptized, three of whom, a man and his wife and sister, suffered persecution because they gave up their father's object of worship (kuti), their relatives predicting their shameful and sudden death, and invoking the wrath of the gods and of their deceased parents upon them. These dismal forebodings were by no means justified by events, for, so far from meeting with any disaster, the converts shortly after their baptism and marriage received a signal token of God's favour. Mr. Williams reports that two of the communicants yielded to the many temptations surrounding them, and fell into sin. On the other hand, striking testimony to the faithful life of one of the communicants, whose home was fifteen miles distant from Lokoja, was borne by the inhabitants of her village, who said of her: "She spoke to us, especially on Sundays, about Jesus Christ. She would not join in idol worship, nor partake of things offered to idols. She told us when dying that she was going to be with Jesus in heaven." Mr. Bako, who was in charge at Gbebe, left early in 1900 to join Bishop Tugwell's party for Hausaland. Mr. E. A. J. Thomas and the Rev. J. D. Aitken (both now at home), who resided at Lokoja for part of the year, rendered some help with the services, &c., but their work, especially in the case of the former, consisted largely in itinerating.

A faithful Christian woman.

BASA COUNTRY.

The work in the BASA COUNTRY is carried on among a people who worship the god Gbunu. Mr. E. A. J. Thomas says concerning this and similar objects of worship:—

Fetish worship.

A piece of white cloth is tied round the trunk of a big tree; feathers, arrows, &c., are hung near, and after harvest, bunches of ripe guinea-corn; at the roots of the tree fowls are sacrificed and the blood sprinkled on the cloth and the tree. Thieves and others are taken to Gbunu and judged and punished; sometimes it seems merely playing, with the usual amount of drumming, dancing, and drinking. Basa men say they believe in one who "passes (= surpasses) all," as they express it, and they call that one "Soko Basa," i.e. "the god of the Basas"; but it seems that they do not fear him or pray to him, but think that he needs propitiating, and so they offer sacrifices of fowls, corn, yams, cowries, &c., &c. In nearly every village, and almost every house, one sees kuti (idols) or juju (charms)—pieces of old iron, pots full of evil-smelling medicine, fowls stuck on sticks with many arrows attached, strings of money (cowrie-shells), broken calabashes, &c., &c., all intended to ward off sickness, danger, and trouble; and although they agree that the things are powerless to help, yet they will not readily remove them, believing that what was good for their fathers is good for them.

Kpata. The Rev. O. Thomas, the native pastor at KPATA, has no very striking events to chronicle. The king and his brother occasionally came to the services, and the open-air gatherings were fairly well attended, but love of money is the besetting sin of the people, who do not appear to have responded very warmly to the efforts made in their behalf. The names of ten adults were on the list of catechumens; and one of the readers, a boy seventeen years of age, was baptized, and at once began to help in the school. Mr. Thomas pleads for prayer that this convert, Toto by name, may be the means of winning many of his countrymen for Christ. Mr. E. A. J. Thomas (now at home) resided for a time at Kpata, making it his headquarters for work among the Basa Ngai. Many of them paid great attention while the "Old, Old Story" was being told, and once, after the death of Christ had been described, a woman asked, "Did the black people kill that good man?"

First-fruits at Akabe. At AKABE, the Rev. E. F. Wilson-Hill was greatly encouraged by witnessing earlier than he anticipated the baptism of the three first Basa converts. Ten earnestly begged to be received, but seven of them were deferred. One of those who were turned back brought his god and flung it on the table, saying that he had long ceased to worship it; and another man of influence declared that he should publicly destroy all his household gods, adding that for some time past they had been nothing to him, and that he only desired to tell his brothers that they might be witnesses of his rejection of Heathenism, and then he would burn the idols. The people were systematically visited both in Akabe itself and in the surrounding farms, and a number of young men returned Mr. Wilson-Hill's calls by coming every day about noon for conversation with him.

On the banks of the Binué. In December, 1898, Mr. Thomas went up the River Binué as far as Loko. Only a few extracts can here be given from his journal, which was printed at length in the C.M. Intelligencer of June, 1899:—

Dec. 9th, 1898.—Morning and afternoon we preached to large crowds in Yimaha market-place, and caused quite a tumult of excitement, so that we could scarcely make ourselves heard at times. By chance we sat in front of the katamba of the Lemam, a short, dark man, who came out arrayed in a fine blue tobe and a huge white turban. He was much interested; and, altogether, our preaching was well listened to.

Dec. 11th.—At noon we reached Omara (left bank), a place nearly as large as Yimaha. At first people seemed suspicious of us, and were slow to take us to the king; but when we told them we were teachers of God we were led to the king's house, and afterwards went to the market-place, where a very large umbrella-shaped tree—the Yorubas call it aba—formed a magnificent place, cool and shady, for our service. Over 250 people gathered round, and for nearly two hours we taught them of God's dear Son, and showed them the way of life, and were much encouraged by their attention and interest. At the close King Amelafia made a short speech, saying, "It is long-life medicine you have given us; the words are good, and we accept them." After teaching them a simple prayer, and ourselves asking God to bless the message to all hearers, we left, followed, as usual, by a crowd of youngsters—happy little people, free alike from clothes and care.

Dec. 13*th.*—We moved up to a Basa village, and preached there to a very large and excited crowd under a locust tree; over 250 people. Nearly every one had a big sword or a long spear and pipe—some all of these; a very fierce-looking lot of men, excepting Odunia, their chief, who had a nice intelligent face, and was very polite in his manner. I was seated immediately in front of a big kuti (idol) house, four poles, with grass roof and some sticks across the inside, on which were hung long strings of cowries, pieces of brass, iron, &c., &c., and then there were earthen pots full of leaves, and smeared with blood, dirt, and the feathers of the fowls brought for sacrifice. These people received our message most readily, and one said, "Tell us what we are to do, and what we are not to do." We answered, "God tells all men to follow Isa Almasihu, and pray to Him for the forgiveness of sin," and "God tells all men to put away their kuti, and worship Him only," &c., &c. A tremendous din followed, the people speaking to each other in their own tongue, which we could not hear. When all were quiet we spoke again, and the king said they received our words, and wanted to do as we said; he then asked several questions, which showed that he heard carefully and thought over what was put before him.

"Tell us what we are to do."

Dec. 17*th.*—Twice to-day it has been our happy privilege to preach Christ to two very large crowds in the market-place in Loko. We expected opposition, and were wonderfully surprised at the size of the crowds (about 300 to 350 in each case, exclusive of children) and the attention they gave. God answered the prayers we offered before going, and gave us willing hearers. I wish you could have seen the people to-day as Mr. Bako told them the story of "the Prodigal Son"; they literally drank in the words.

Dec. 20*th.*—The village, Uhe (in English: O! eh!), was full of idolatry, kuti houses on every side, and small jujus at the entrances to the dwellings. Mr. Bako told them simply, but plainly, of God and His love, and also of Jesus the only true way to Him. On leaving, the spokesman said: "May God bless you for coming so far to tell us this good word." Like other tribes, they have sacred trees, and we saw two. They had pieces of cloth fastened halfway round their stems, and some leaves attached; blood and feathers were at the roots.

Some months later Mr. Aitken (now at home) went over much the same ground, and proceeded two days' journey beyond Loko to a place called Nasarawa, where he had interesting conversations with the king and his court.

Mr. Wilson-Hill sends home an urgent appeal for more workers, stating that all the surrounding tribes are waiting for teachers, and adding that the Mohammedans are rapidly making converts, and that the whole country seems likely soon to give in its adhesion to the teaching of the false prophet. The recent transfer to the British Crown of the rule over the vast territories of Nigeria, with their population of some thirty millions, lends additional force to this appeal.

Appeal for men.

HAUSALAND.

The Hausa States are bounded on the west by the River Niger, on the north by the Sahara Desert, on the east by Bornu and Lake Chad, and on the south by the River Binué, and are said to contain fifteen millions of people, who have never had a missionary living in their country. Efforts have, however, been made in the past to reach them, by Bishop Crowther from time to time, and more recently by the Rev. J. A. Robinson, who as Secretary of the Niger Mission had been impressed with the claims of the Hausa country, and Mr. Wilmot Brooke. These two jointly led a party to Lokoja in 1890. After less than two years' residence at that station the two leaders died, Dr. Harford-Battersby and others were invalided, and for various reasons the remainder of the party returned home, good linguistic work in the meantime having been done. In 1896 Bishop Tugwell and Mr. L. H. W. Nott visited Keffi, viâ Loko, on the Binué. The Hausas are reported to be, physically and intellectually, a very fine race. Theirs is almost the only African race which possesses a literature of its own; and their enterprise, commercially and as manufacturers and travellers, is remarkable. Since an invasion, a hundred years ago, by the Fulah tribes, the country as a whole has become Mohammedan, but it is uncertain to what extent this faith prevailed in Hausaland before that event. A large number of people, especially in the villages, are still Heathen. The country is now included in the British sphere of influence.

Bishop Tugwell's party—consisting, as already stated, of the Revs. A. E. Richardson and J. C. D. Ryder, Dr. W. R. S. Miller, and Mr. J. R. Burgin—left Lagos on January 18th, 1900, and reached Jebba on February 15th, where they received much kindness from General Lugard, High Commissioner of the Upper Nigeria Protectorate. They started from Jebba on March 5th by way of Daba, or Debba, and hoped to reach Kano before Easter. The distance from Jebba to Kano is roughly estimated at five hundred miles.

EASTERN EQUATORIAL AFRICA MISSION.

In 1844 Dr. Krapf, having lately been expelled from Abyssinia, established himself at Mombasa, and in the following year was joined by the Rev. John Rebmann, who opened the station at Kisulutini (Rabai) in 1846, and laboured on the coast twenty-nine years. Their remarkable journeys into the interior led to all the subsequent geographical and missionary enterprise in East Africa. It was chiefly through the Society's efforts that the Parliamentary Committee of 1871 was obtained, which led to Sir Bartle Frere's Mission to Zanzibar in the following year. In 1874 the Rev. W. S. Price, formerly in charge of the Asylum for rescued slaves at Nasik, Western India, was sent out; some 200 African Christians from the freed slaves entrusted to his care were collected as the nucleus of an industrial colony; land was purchased for a settlement, which was named Frere Town, in honour of Sir Bartle Frere; and some 500 rescued slaves were, in 1875, received from H.M. cruisers, and housed, fed, instructed, and led to work for their living. Stations were opened in the Taita country in 1883; in the Chagga country, at the base of the snow-capped mountain Kilima Njaro, in 1885, but the Mission was removed in 1893 to Taveta, within the British sphere of influence as fixed by treaty with Germany in 1886; and at Jilore, in the Giriyama country, in 1890.

When in 1876 a Mission party was sent up country to establish a Mission in Uganda, the route adopted was from Bagamoyo, on the coast opposite Zanzibar, through Usagara, Ugogo, and Unyamwezi; and intermediate stations between the East Coast and the southern shore of the Lake were established in the Usagara hills—at Mpwapwa in 1876, at Mamboia in 1879, and at Nassa, in Usukuma, at the south end of the Lake, in 1888.

For these Missions a new bishopric was established in 1884, with the title "Eastern Equatorial Africa," and the Rev. J. Hannington was consecrated the first Bishop on June 24th of that year. He was murdered on October 31st, 1885, in Busoga, by the orders of King Mwanga. His successor, the Rev. H. P. Parker, previously a C.M.S. Missionary in North India, was consecrated on St. Luke's Day, October 18th, 1886, but his episcopal career was also of brief duration, for he died from fever on March 26th, 1888. His successor, the Right Rev. A. R. Tucker, was consecrated on April 25th, 1890. In 1897 the diocese was divided into two: that portion of the original diocese which falls within the Uganda Protectorate forming the Diocese of Uganda, and the remainder the Diocese of Mombasa. Bishop Tucker elected to retain the interior division, viz. the Diocese of Uganda, under his own episcopal supervision, and on June 29th, 1899, the Right Rev. W. G. Peel, formerly a C.M.S. Missionary in South and Western India, was consecrated Bishop of Mombasa.

The famine in East Africa.

As in last year's Annual Report, the terrible famine which for a protracted period has ravaged extensive districts of East Africa must again have prominent mention. Particulars regarding the distress it has caused, and the measures taken to cope with it, are given below under the various stations where its ravages were most felt. The following extract from the unpretending little record of the work at Taveta, which is published by the Mission Press, and bears the title of the Taveta Chronicle, shows the far-reaching nature of the calamity:—

In the coast district,

The famine has been exceptionally severe over vast districts of East Africa, extending from Jubaland in the north, far into the territories of the German Empire towards the south, and from the coast as far inland as Kikuyu. Throughout this whole district famine has prevailed, though it has been modified by local circumstances. In some places scanty crops were obtained last year, and again this year, but these have been by no means up to the average. At Mombasa, for instance, the crops this year were very fair, owing to local showers; but only a few miles further inland they were very insufficient, while over a great part of the Giriyama country they absolutely failed for the third year in succession. The result has been that vast numbers of these country tribes have flocked to the coast, where work and food were obtainable; but many, especially amongst the older people, clung to their homes until their strength was so exhausted that they fell down and died by the road, and those who did reach the coast were in a most pitiable condition, such that the ordinary expression "skin and bone," even taken literally, hardly conveys a true idea of their appearance. Men, women, and more especially children, might often be seen incapacitated for walking by horrible sores, brought on by insufficient and unwholesome food, or so reduced by starvation that they could only crawl towards the haven where they had learned to hope for help.

But although the condition of the coast districts is pitiable in the extreme, yet the sufferings of the people of the interior have been, if possible, even more deplorable. The officials of the Uganda Railway have rendered every assistance in their power, but these people are so helpless that the only kind of work they can do is that of carrying burdens, so that they could not be employed upon the ordinary work of railway construction. . . . A party of Taita men, whom hunger had rendered desperate, took to the bush a few miles from Mochi, and to killing for food solitary boys, presumably goatherds and the like, who passed near their lurking places. Their method of procedure, as described by a Native, was to shoot the selected victim with an arrow, and having killed him, to cut off and throw away the head, hands, and feet, as being portions most likely to betray them if found in their possession, and to smoke the remainder of the flesh for gradual consumption. Fifteen Mochi boys are missing, of whom seven are known by the officers there to have been eaten; and we understand that a man at present in the chain-gang there was caught with a freshly-severed human hand in his satchel.

Rendered desperate by hunger.

Terrible mortality.

Up to July, 1899, no less than 40,000 deaths, chiefly of children, had been reported by the medical officer, and it was said that in Ukambani fifty per cent. of the population died from starvation.

Consecration of Bishop Peel.

The Rev. William George Peel, whose appointment as Bishop of Mombasa was mentioned in last year's Report, was consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury and other Bishops in St. Paul's Cathedral on St. Peter's Day, June 29th, 1899. He sailed for his diocese in November.

Reinforcements.

The only recruits which the Mission received were Mr. Brandon Laight, of Islington College, and Miss Florence Topsy Austin, of the Highbury Training Home and The Willows; the latter left England in November, 1899, and the former in the following January. Dr. M. J. Eustace, of the Punjab Mission, was at Mombasa for a few months taking charge of the hospital during the absence of Dr. Edwards. He sailed from England in August, 1899, and returned home in March, 1900. Mr. V. V. Verbi, who has laboured in the Mission in local connexion since 1895, has been taken into full connexion. The Committee have regretfully accepted the resignation of Miss M. Bazett, tendered on account of her marriage.

Death of Mr. S. H. Seccombe.

The death of one who, though not in the full sense a missionary, was engaged in the Mission, and was led to Africa by missionary motives and for missionary ends, has to be recorded. It is that of Mr. Sydney Herbert Seccombe, assistant to the accountant and business agent of the Society at Mombasa. Mr.

Seccombe was on the staff at the C.M. House, Salisbury Square. He reached the Mission in December, 1899, and died on February 7th, 1900.

I. COAST DISTRICT.

Miss M. C. Brewer came home in May, 1899, returning to the Mission again in January, 1900; Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards in June, returning again in December; Mr. L. J. Vale in August; Mr. E. Luckock in September; Miss E. Lockett in October; and the Rev. H. K. Binns in May, 1900. Miss M. Watermeyer was obliged by her health to leave the Mission for the Cape at the end of July, 1899. The Rev. F. Burt and Mrs. A. G. Smith sailed to return to the Mission in November. Mr. W. E. Parker was married to Miss A. I. Grieve, of this Mission, in October, and Mr. J. Burness to Mrs. E. Gardener in December.

The Rev. H. K. Binns is the Secretary of the Coast District and Taita and Taveta. On his leaving for furlough, as just mentioned, the Rev. F. Burt was appointed Acting-Secretary.

FRERE TOWN.

Frere Town.

The Rev. H. K. Binns (now at home), in addition to the multifarious tasks which fell to his lot as Secretary of the Mission in the Coast District and superintending missionary at Frere Town, was called upon to take steps to alleviate the distress caused by the terrible famine. He says that almost the whole of the northern Wanyika tribes came to the coast in search of food. Relief works were commenced in September, 1898, and by the following May more than eight hundred persons were being employed on them. The amount paid as wages, or for food for those who were too weak to work, often exceeded Rs. 100 per diem. A large number of classes were set on foot for the refugees, many of the young people of Frere Town volunteering their help in conducting them, but a great deal of persuasion was required before the people could be induced to enter the schoolroom, and they frequently had to be taught in the open air. Perseverance and kindness, however, had their usual effect, and in December Mrs. Hamshere was able to write of a class composed of Wanyika women, who came regularly twice a day for instruction. The Rev. J. E. Hamshere reopened the Divinity Class in March, 1899, with two students who were sent from Taveta, one of them a Masai, and gradually the class increased until it contained seven full students, besides one man who spent his mornings teaching in school, and joined the class in the afternoons. Of one of the students Mr. Hamshere writes:—

Relief work and classes for famine sufferers.

Divinity Class.

> He is married, and has been servant to a lady who, on the voyage out, all unconscious that he would come to me as a student, praised him most highly for his sterling Christian work as her house-servant. And he gave up wages of twice the amount of the allowance we grant to married students. Neither threats nor promises of even higher wages kept him back from this work, to which, he said, he felt God was calling him.

Care was taken to give the men experience in spiritual work, and they went from time to time to preach in a village twelve miles from Frere Town, where a little church was built as a part of the famine relief work. An indirect testimony to the effectiveness of the efforts of the students was afforded by an invitation being received from the inhabitants of a village four miles further off for the teachers to pay them a visit. Mrs. Hamshere looked after the wives of the students, three in number, and speaks of them as bright, hopeful women.

Schools. Mr. G. Burns, of the New South Wales C.M. Association, assumed charge of the Boys' School when Mr. E. Luckock left for England. The average attendance in the morning was over eighty, that in the afternoon being much smaller, in consequence of the absence of the Wanyika boys, who then went out to work. Thirteen boys were admitted into the dormitory, which was reopened in the early autumn. The Girls' School and dormitory were managed first by Miss E. Lockett, and, after her departure on furlough, by Miss M. L. Mason. A few of the children gave trouble, and it was found necessary to expel the ringleader in the mischief, but some misbehaviour was hardly surprising considering the nature of the homes from which they came, and the sad history of many of them in the past. Miss Mason tells of one of those admitted during the year whose hands had, in the stress of famine, been terribly burned by her mother as a punishment for stealing a banana, only the thumb and little finger remaining on the left hand; and of another who was found by Mr. Hamshere sitting sorrowfully by the side of her dead mother. The laundry was continued, but on a smaller scale than in 1898, only six or seven being employed in it.

Work among Women. The Work among Women was engaged in by Miss Mason and Miss E. Mayor. A special Mission was held in the week of Easter, 1899, which was considered successful as regards the numbers attending the meetings. The various classes were conducted with but little incident. The service for the Wanyika held outside the house of Andreas, which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 88), took place regularly, one of the ladies usually being present, not so much for the purpose of speaking, but because the people came in greater numbers when a foreigner was there.

Intemperance and vanity. It cannot be said that the visible results of all these varied forms of work were great, for only one adult was baptized, the brother of Andreas just mentioned. Drink, in the shape of the native palm-wine, was a great snare to many, and also vanity; the latter took at least one curious form, for Mr. Binns refers not only to young men who would sit for a long time on the verandahs of their houses gazing at themselves in looking-glasses, but also to those whose aim it was to get the most creaky shoes that could possibly be obtained! Still, at the close of the year there were twenty candidates for baptism, who were being taught by Mr. Hamshere, and in addition several families of famine refugees arrived at the determination to abandon their heathen ways, and commenced to attend church regularly and to send their children to school.

MOMBASA.

Mombasa. The missionaries at MOMBASA during the whole or part of the year were the Rev. and Mrs. T. S. England, the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Parker, Miss S. Bazett, Miss E. C. Wilde, Mrs. Pickthall, Miss A. Higginbotham, and Miss M. Watermeyer.

Besides the death of Mr. S. H. Seccombe, the assistant-accountant of the Mission, which has already been mentioned, another sad event occurred. Mombasa is the base at the coast from which the up-country caravans for Uganda are despatched. The depôt which was being erected there for the storing of goods to be transmitted to the interior, collapsed in July, 1899; four Natives who were in the street were killed by the fall of the walls, and the Rev. G. H. Casson and other missionaries had a narrow escape, having left the building only a few minutes before the disaster occurred.

A fatal accident.

The Annual Letters received from Mombasa are full of the famine, which caused so much work of an abnormal character that some of the usual occupations were perforce abandoned for a time. The death-rate among the Wanyika, Wakamba, and others who fled to the town in search of work was exceptionally high, and the pauper cemetery was rapidly filled, so that it became necessary to add a large piece of ground to it. Many heartrending scenes were witnessed. The poor famine-stricken creatures could be seen by the roadside eating all kinds of refuse in order to satisfy their craving for food, and on every hand were heard piteous appeals for help. Miss Bazett writes:—

Heart-rending famine scenes.

> A woman used to come morning by morning, carrying her daughter, a girl of about sixteen, on her back; the poor girl was too wasted and weak to walk, or even to stand alone. Her sores were attended to and food given her, and she seemed to give hopes of recovery, but then she got dysentery and died; the father had small-pox at the time, and the poor mother was attacked by dysentery and was very near death's door herself, but finally pulled through.

Ravages of hunger.

Miss Bazett also tells of a little baby who under the treatment which was administered appeared to get a little better, but at length died in the Mission compound while tied on to its mother's back. No sooner had the famine somewhat diminished in intensity than the Natives were confronted with the horrors of small-pox. Very few houses escaped the scourge, and almost every third person met in the streets bore marks of the dreadful disease. In one house four children, the eldest only about ten years of age, all succumbed to the epidemic, and so prevalent was the malady, and so small the precaution exercised, that it was quite a common thing to come across young children just recovering from it lying out in the sunshine. The jiggers also (see last year's Report, page 96) proved a sore trial. Miss Bazett writes :— and disease.

> A woman brought a little boy of about five to me to have his toe dressed. He had lost one toe from these horrid jiggers, and a second was going. This second toe came off, and then the place healed up beautifully; the woman was so grateful, and used to say so brightly, "I know it is Jesus who has healed my boy's foot. I had another little boy whose foot was the same, and he died. I wish I had brought him to you, for Jesus Christ has healed this one." As soon as the child was better she left and went to her home, and I have only seen her once since.

It is indeed a cause for thankfulness that amidst such surroundings the missionaries on the whole enjoyed good health.

Although the interruption to the regular course of work proved in some respects to be a hindrance, yet it was not by any means an unmixed evil, for it rendered possible the proclamation of the Gospel to many who had not previously heard it, and the outlook is described as being "brighter all round." The Evangelistic Preaching at the Mission-hall on Sunday evenings was often attended by from forty to fifty people, who listened earnestly and even eagerly, and a great change was noticeable in the audiences at the open-air services, which were held twice a week. Sometimes as many as two hundred people would assemble round the workers, and Mr. Parker observed :—

Attentive hearers.

> I have been struck with the attitude of the crowds; the interruptions are there truly, for Satan is ever busy, but the earnestness of the people, the heart-hunger shown on the faces, is very manifest, as also the lack of restlessness shown by the crowd standing throughout the meeting, and the words, when the time is up, said almost hungrily, "We must go now," is very encouraging.

During the early months of the famine the Wanyika formed a large proportion of these audiences. The missionaries were not themselves able to speak to these people, but an earnest Christian came from Jilore, Yakobo by name, and in spite of the ridicule of the Swahilis, who laughed at him because he spoke in Kigiriyama, he persevered in his preaching, and was rewarded by close attention. Mr. England says that his noble example must have put to shame many of the old Mission boys, who know the truth, and who might do so much good if only they were not afraid to let their light shine before men.

Boys' School.

Some opposition was experienced in connexion with the Boys' School under Mr. Parker, where the sum paid in fees was slightly more than in 1899. Once, when five Beluchi boys began to attend, the heads of their tribe endeavoured, successfully alas! to draw them away by arranging a large native dance as a counter-attraction; and there were several similar cases. Another real danger concerning which special prayer is requested is one which is familiar to educational workers in India, namely, that of people losing their old religion and failing to get anything in its place. It was found at Mombasa that the Mohammedan boys were beginning to ridicule the Koran, thus indicating that they were losing their faith in Islam, while at the same time, terrified by the threats of their parents and their religious teachers, they were afraid to accept Christianity. The lad, Paul Kombo, whose baptism was described in last year's Report (see page 89), stood firm, and showed some desire to become a teacher. Another cheering incident was the calling in person of the Arab Governor to ask whether he might send his boys as pupils. Mr. Parker states that Mrs. Parker, who formerly as Miss Grieve worked for a time in the school, observes a great change for the better in the attitude of the boys. He mentions the following case:—

A real danger.

A Persian man named Fradoon came to the school in 1897; he was only able to stay a short time. He then asked many intelligent questions after hearing the usual addresses. I have met him several times since and had talks. In July of this year he came back to the school, but not only to learn English; he came half an hour before school-time to talk and pray with me. He said he wanted to know more about our Faith; that he really believed, and had not been to the mosque for five months. For a long time he has been coming day after day to see me, till ten days ago, when I understand he was taken ill. I called to see him, and he seemed to have fever. Both my wife and myself feel convinced of the man's reality, for apparently he has nothing to gain and everything to lose. He told me the head of his mosque called to see him, and said he would be either killed or persecuted by everybody, none would employ him, &c. What will be the ultimate result one cannot say.

A Persian inquirer.

The Bible-class for boys presented no features of special interest, though Miss Bazett, who conducted it, speaks of the time spent with the lads as the happiest of the week. The attendance was not so large as formerly, owing to many of the boys having gone up-country with the railway officials, but it was cheering to find that many when they returned to the coast recommenced coming to the class.

The presence of so many sufferers from the famine affected the Work amongst Women very considerably. Miss Bazett continued, however, to visit among the Beluchis, albeit there was little apparent result from her efforts, and the people seemed to become more and more prejudiced. Still, there was one ray of hope, for the Mwalinu, or teacher, an old man held in the greatest awe and respect by his disciples, accepted a Persian copy of one of the Gospels, and promised to read it. One of the women said that if the Mwalinu accepted the fact of the Divinity of Christ, the Beluchis as a whole would follow him, so great was their confidence in their teacher. There was unhappily much disappointment in connexion with the services held in the house of an Arab lady, the commencement of which was described in last year's Report (page 91). For a while it went on satisfactorily, although there was some manifestation of irreverence during the repetition of the Creed, which was promptly checked. The lady in whose house the services were held suffered from an illness, the sequel of which Miss Wilde relates:—

Work among Beluchis.

Services in house of an Arab lady.

> She was persuaded by her father and friends to undergo a native course of treatment. I offered to take her and nurse her, as she seemed very ill, fearing what this native treatment might result in. The father promised that if this course of medicine did not have the desired effect, he would let her come to me. Needless to say, she never came. But I was allowed by him to visit her during her long stay in a darkened room. This was a great privilege. Of course her illness made a difference to our Sunday gathering: it was never the same again. When she returned to the light her manner was very different. I feel sure she was under some kind of vow. Our little service was resumed, and although she was always ready at other times to listen to the Gospel, in the presence of her friends she appeared listless and indifferent, and would sometimes join in the frivolity of the others, not using her influence as before in getting them together. Yet, in spite of this apparent disappointment, the teaching still goes on.

Dispensary work.

The prevalence of so much sickness amongst the Wanyika and others led to the establishment of a small dispensary, which was at first carried on in one of the large rooms of the ladies' house, but afterwards in the compound adjoining the Mission-hall. Only simple cases were treated, the more serious being sent to the hospital; yet a great deal of suffering was relieved, and the Gospel was preached to the many who were attracted by the hope of bodily healing. One of those to whom medicine was taken was an old Arab-Swahili lady. She was always ready to listen to the Gospel message, but her sufferings had weakened her brain, and she was unable to comprehend in the least who the Lord Jesus of whom she heard was. On one occasion she even addressed the missionary by that holy Name, and no efforts appeared to convince her that she was mistaken, nor any explanations to lead her to realize the truth. Every Christian worker will join in the aspiration which this painful incident led the missionary in question to express, that "my life may truly speak of Jesus Christ, and that I may be His epistle, known and read of all men." Dispensary work was also carried on by Miss Higginbotham, who had over four hundred patients in October at the house in her district which she rented for the purpose. Some of them were boys from a neighbouring Mohammedan school. Dr. M. J. Eustace, of the Punjab Mission, was sent out to attend to the famine patients and to take charge of the Hospital at Mzizima, when Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Edwards came home in June, 1899, but no report of the medical work has been received. Mr. England resided at Mzizima for a time, and paid daily visits to the patients, and Mrs. England held a little school for small children each morning on the verandah of the dispensary.

There was a good deal of work accomplished outside Mombasa itself. The prayer-meeting for Christian women which used to be held in the town was transferred to Kilindini, and proved very helpful, and the sewing class for children there, and the men's class held on Wednesdays, seemed to be appreciated by those for whom they were intended. At another place, two or three miles from the town, a Bible-class for Christians had an attendance of nine or ten, and afforded a welcome change to Mr. Parker from the stress of work amongst Mohammedans.

RABAI.

Rabai. The Rev. A. G. Smith had as his European colleagues at RABAI, Mrs. E. Gardener, Miss A. I. Grieve (until October, when she was married to Mr. W. E. Parker), Miss A. J. Madeley, and (after October) Miss E. C. Wilde. The Congregation was under the care of the Rev. J. Deimler, the native pastor, who was privileged to baptize twelve adults besides five children. He mentions the death of an Arab convert, who had been baptized at Frere Town, and who, shortly before his death, repeated three times the words, "I will not leave my Master; all is bright." The Boys' School had a greatly reduced attendance in consequence of the prevalence of sickness at the station, and three of the teachers left in order to supply the needs of other places. Numerous Classes were conducted by one or other of the missionaries—an English class for teachers in the school, a night school for men, a sewing class for girls and for women, a mothers' meeting, a reading class, and two Bible-classes. During the first week in November these were supplemented by special evangelistic gatherings for women, some of which were in part conducted by Native Christians. Miss Grieve, and afterwards Miss Wilde, had a very busy time at the Dispensary, as many as from 150 to 300 people being attended to on one day, but the numbers were so large that it was impossible to ascertain them accurately. The pressure upon the space at the native house which was used as a sort of cottage hospital was so great, that first the baraza, or place of judgment, which stood empty, and afterwards two more native houses, were utilized as wards. Before long the supply of medicines and medical accessories ran low, and Miss Grieve was obliged to employ strips of banana leaves for bandages and the cotton of the usufi for wool. Every available piece of rag or old blouse was immediately seized upon, and some cheap Indian stuff soaked in antiseptic lotion proved useful for dressings. Many of those who came were attracted by the prospect of receiving food as well as of obtaining bodily relief, and the distress and sickness resulted in thousands being brought within hearing of the Gospel. When the attendance at the dispensary was most numerous, the people were made to sit in rows, and after each one had received a small measure of rice or millet, a Gospel address was given and texts of Scripture were taught.

Relief work at Changombe.

The famine at CHANGOMBE was severely felt. In July and August a little rain fell, but so many of the people were away from their homes in search of work that full advantage could not be taken of it on the farms. Several forms of relief work were initiated, the chief being the construction of dams in order to form reservoirs for the water. Five in all were made, only one of which was thoroughly successful, the water filtering through the bed of two others, and the remaining two having but small watersheds. Three little churches or preaching places were also built in different parts of the district. The people flocked to these works from all parts; at one time 400 were being employed, and it was calculated that in all 36,000 persons were relieved at Changombe alone. Among them were a blind man, a woman paralyzed in one arm, and even a few of the heads of villages. Care was of course exercised to take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded of teaching the Natives, and when the number in employment was very large they were divided into three contingents, one of which was taught while the others were working. It was found afterwards that the instruction thus given had led the people to take a much greater interest in Christianity than they did before, and that there was "a decided movement towards the light." The work consequent upon the famine was a great strain on Mr. J. Burness, who was chiefly responsible for the provision of relief and the supervision of its administration; but the ladies at the station, Miss M. L. Holmes, Miss F. I. Deed, and Miss A. K. Malone, had their share of the burden. The ordinary work was maintained with little change, excepting that the dispensary was in greater request than before, thirty or forty people sometimes coming to it in one day. The villages afforded much encouragement, especially when contrasted with their condition a few years ago. Miss Deed says:—

A "movement towards the light."

Desire for reading spreading in the villages.

> There is a widespread desire for reading, and a considerable part of the work consists in teaching the very necessary ABC. Our Lord's name is on many lips, and hymns are sung wherever one goes. Of course all this may mean no more than a mere external smattering of Christianity to many, but I think it means more to some. There seems a more intelligent interest in the things of God, less of the mere passive listening, and more response and heartiness about it all.

The villages within a radius of eight miles from the central station were visited by the lady missionaries and by the Bible-women. At Fimboni, a large village, two of the chiefs attended church on Sundays, and one of them cut a charm off his ankle, saying that he did not believe in it any longer; while at another village, which Miss Malone was only able to visit once a week, the people asked, "How are we to know the words of God when you come so seldom to teach us?" "You come so seldom."

JILORE.

As in other portions of Eastern Equatorial Africa the famine was severely felt at JILORE, where the Rev. and Mrs. D. A. L. Hooper are stationed; but it had one welcome result, in that through the help which the missionaries were enabled to give, many doors were opened which previously had been closed against them. Regular worship was held in thirteen villages within a radius of six miles, in nine of which there are churches built by the people themselves. While the number of adherents advanced, however, there was not a corresponding growth in grace on the part of the Christians, and much grief was caused by one of the earliest converts, who for eight years had led an apparently consistent life, falling into gross sin. The superstitious ideas of the Natives, too, have not been by any means completely overcome; for example, when a leopard broke into a house and carried off a child, the people were persuaded that the culprit was a man metamorphosed, and wished to take Mr. Hooper to him in order that he might tie the creature up. The difficulty was eventually overcome by the trapping of the leopard. On the other hand, even apart from direct spiritual results, it was evident that the work in the past had not been without effect, for it has become the custom among the Natives to reckon the days of the week by the Christian Sunday; they speak of so many days before or after Sunday, and keep that as the day of rest instead of every fourth day as formerly. The attendance at the day-school nearly doubled during the year, and a much larger church than that previously in use was built with the aid of the teachers and converts. Mrs. Hooper, who is a fully qualified doctor, was in charge of the Hospital, which has ten beds, and the dispensary. Writing of her work she says:— Jilore. Village churches. Observance of Sunday as a day of rest.

Among our surgical cases we have treated many patients who have been bitten by crocodiles, and one who had been attacked by a lion. We have also had wounds from poisoned arrows brought to us.

One day I was sent for to a neighbouring village to see a case; as I had been resting for a day or two in bed, it was proposed to carry me on a bedstead. On the way it was amusing to hear the following remark by some one passing us: "But you don't really think she comes here and gives medicine away for nothing? Why, every time she writes to Queenie" (Queen Victoria!) "and says, 'I have cured ten Natives,' Queenie sends her a present." A Native's idea of the source of missionary funds.

At one time, when a lion's foot-marks could be traced, a man thought he would earn an honest penny by "vaccinating" people against the probable bite of a lion, and, when remonstrated with, showed the vaccination marks on himself, which had been done by us for small-pox, and could not see the difference between his work and ours. Last year about eight hundred persons were vaccinated by us, after making it compulsory in our own village; only four took small-pox, and that slightly.

Lately a woman was brought to me who had been blinded by her husband. After some disagreement, he made a mixture of the juice of a plant and lime, &c., and rubbed it into her eyes, telling her that he would effectually stop her mischief-making. I was not able to do anything for her, but sent her to Mombasa with a certificate, and hope she will there get some redress.

It is difficult to gauge the definite results, but we feel sure that indirectly the medical work is a help. For instance, in the Wakambi village, where the chief first came for a small operation, and was quickly followed by many sick ones, we now have a native teacher stationed and a church, and only a few weeks before I left a woman came from there seeking baptism!

Then an old woman came from a long distance with my husband and his evangelists after an itinerating tour. She was unable to bend her fingers to pound or grind. She quickly got better, and then both she and her husband decided to stay to hear more of "the Book," and he has lately been baptized.

There were seven adult baptisms during the year, some of whom were of persons from the villages round Jilore. Mr. Hooper makes special mention in his Annual Letter of two cases:—

A woman soon after coming here with her husband a few years ago, left the village and returned to her heathen relations. Last June she was quite unexpectedly brought to the brink of the grave. Her heathen mother wanted her to resort to a sacrifice, and would have no more to do with her because she said she would just trust Jesus. She asked that Mrs. Hooper might be called, and then the only thing she asked for was prayer; as her life ebbed away she just rested in what Jesus was to her. Hers was an instance where the consistent life of the husband was used to the conversion of the wife.

A lad's punishment for not stealing.

The second case was of a lad whom I only heard of incidentally. When the famine was very bad his mother took him out to steal some food; he made her very angry by saying he could not steal, as God said, "Thou shalt not steal." He was kept without food some days, and for long could only read by keeping his book in an earthen pot in the forest, and going out to read stealthily. I baptized him by the name of Daniel, and have great hopes of him.

Translations.

The translation of the Bible was continued, the Old Testament being completed in the Giriyama language as far as the Book of Lamentations, and the Gospels of St. Mark and St. John being corrected and printed. A new Hymn-book and an enlarged Catechism were also issued from the press.

II. TAITA AND TAVETA.

Miss D. Mayor came home in May, 1899, and Mr. L. J. Vale in August. In the latter month Mr. R. A. Maynard, of the Victoria C.M. Association, left Taita for Australia. The Rev. A. R. Steggall was married on September 6th to Miss Dora Grace Mould, and sailed alone for East Africa four days afterwards. Mr. V. V. Verbi and Miss D. Mayor were married also in September at Blackburn, and left together for the Mission in January, 1900.

TAITA.

There is a sad monotony about the reports from the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission in that nearly all of them dwell upon the intensity of the famine during the year under review, and the steps which were taken to cope with the widespread distress which it caused. SAGALLA, where Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Wray were alone after the departure of Mr. R. A. Maynard in August, did not escape the general fate, though the scarcity of food there was due, not to any failure of rain, but to the devastation wrought by vast armies of locusts, which destroyed almost all the food in the country. Mr. Wray writes :— Sagalla.

I reckoned that the locusts covered 20,000 square miles, and were sixteen days in passing over us at the rate of four miles an hour. We had already for the previous six months been relieving the distress, but this and the failure of the following harvest—we have two harvests in the year—brought matters to a climax, and further relief had to be sought, for the people migrated from place to place in search of food. Many strangers found their way to this station, and many more perished wandering about. I formed a little settlement for those who came here, feeding them as best I could; but notwithstanding food and care 40 per cent. of them died. They had eaten grasses and leaves for so long that dysentery set in when they were given food, and, having no strength to cope with sickness of any kind, they succumbed; they seemed to drag themselves here just to die. The sufferings of the women and children have been truly awful. Visitation of locusts. Famine victims.

The District Officer found one woman selling her child at Voi, but he rescued it and handed it over to the missionaries, promising to provide for its support. Such a scene was sad enough, but there were even more terrible incidents. Mr. Wray says :—

Many of the little children have been murdered by their parents. One day I found a child of about three years old lying dead with its legs tied together; when I asked the father why he had done this, he replied that he had no food to give it to eat. Another child I picked up in a dying condition with marks of finger-nails on its throat, and a little further on was the father who had done the deed. Yet another case was that of a mother who buried her child alive. After she had left he managed to crawl out and overtake her, whereupon she killed him right out. A family of four came here, having eaten poisonous roots as food on their journey. Two of them died before morning.

Small-pox broke out in July, and a special camp was formed for the sufferers, 25 per cent. of whom died; the disease had not entirely disappeared by the end of November. A segregation camp.

The congregations at the Sunday services were invariably good, and from sixty to eighty children attended the school until Mr. Maynard left, when it had to be closed. Mrs. Wray conducted a Bible-class for women, which had an average attendance of over thirty; some listened attentively, and appeared to grasp a little of what was said, but it was necessary for the teaching to be very simple. There were but few visible results from the work, though the famine brought many within hearing of the Gospel, and one or two young men appeared to be Christians at heart. The people were characterized by a stolid indifference as to the future from which it was difficult to rouse them, and often a man who had been listening with apparent interest to the message of salvation would suddenly break in upon the conversation with some trivial question about food or clothing. At the same time Mr. Wray says that God is lifting the dark clouds of superstition that for so long have hung over the people, and that he can go on in sure confidence that the "coming again with rejoicing" will one day be his. There was, too, at least one incident which showed that steady work was having its effect, for Mrs. Wray wrote:—

> There was in one home a little time back a case of sickness, in which the medicine-men were called in to beat their tom-toms to drive away the evil spirit. I went to the house and saw the woman, who was shaking with ague and absolutely miserable, and spoke to the people of the folly of the drums, and begged them to pray with me for her restoration to health, saying that I would bring her medicine if they would. There and then the man who was beating the drum and the others knelt with me in prayer, and then he, the medicine-man himself, came home with me to fetch the medicine, and he came two days in succession, until the woman was well.

TAVETA.

Taveta.

At the commencement of the year under review the missionaries at TAVETA were Mr. A. W. McGregor, Mr. L. Vale, Miss D. Mayor, and Miss E. Mayor, but the two ladies were obliged to leave for the coast in February, 1899, in consequence of serious attacks of fever, and the former of them went on to England, where, as already stated, she was married to Mr. V. V. Verbi. Mr. Vale came home in August, his place being taken temporarily by the Rev. K. St. A. Rogers, but in October the Rev. A. R. Steggall returned to the Mission. But for the staff of efficient native agents, these changes would have seriously interfered with the continuity of the work; as it was, the various services and meetings were maintained. Mr. McGregor bears cordial testimony to the help rendered by these agents, and gives an instance of the faithfulness of one, Justin Lemenye by name, who was in charge of the out-station of Bikoro:—

Efficient native agents.

> I was very much struck with a little incident that came under my notice with regard to him. Owing to the great difficulty he had in getting food at his station, he came to me one day and asked that he might be allowed to send his wife back to Mahoo for a time in order that she might have the advantage of his banana-plantation, he himself to remain at his post. To this I assented, and was surprised that she did not turn up. Afterwards, when I asked him about it, he said that he had talked it over again with her, but it seemed to them that if they did so the people would say that in time of trouble the teacher had sent his wife away from them, and so they thought it better for both to remain at their post.

Steps were taken to provide for a supply of native workers in the future by sending two lads to the Divinity Class at Frere Town, one of them being a Masai, and the other hailing from Mount Kilima Njaro.

The people of the district had to endure many troubles during 1899, for locusts, drought, famine, and small-pox all visited them, and at the end of the year it seemed probable that rinderpest would soon be added to the list of evils. The famine was not so severe as in some other parts of East Africa, but the district was visited by numbers of people from neighbourhoods where food was particularly scarce, and the plantations of bananas suffered much from their depredations. There was a steady improvement in the Congregation at Mahoo, the attendance on Sunday averaging about 120 in the morning and 100 in the afternoon. Captain Temple Maxted, the Resident, whose cordial sympathy with the work was referred to in last year's Report, kindly helped by officiating at the harmonium at the second service. The most notable event in the year was the holding of a week's Mission in February, with the twofold object of deepening the spiritual life of the Christians, and of bringing out those who had long been hearers of the Gospel but had not apparently decided for Christ. The numbers present at the services were good, and the converts afterwards manifested an increased sense of their responsibility to evangelize those around them. Another special effort was the holding of a lantern-service on Good Friday, at which there was a gathering of about 250 people, including many professing Mohammedans, who listened to the address with great attention. The Centenary was observed on St. Mark's Day, April 25th, 1899. At 10.30 there was a special Morning Service with an address, which was attended by about 130 persons, and in the afternoon a feast was prepared for the lads of the dormitory and school. The great event of the day, however, was the evening meeting at 7 p.m. Captain Temple Maxted took the chair, and gave the opening address. He was followed by Filipo Madadua, who spoke about Taveta as it was previous to the advent of the Mission in 1898, and the progress that had since been made in evangelizing the people. Then came an address upon work in Africa generally, and afterwards Yohana Nene gave the concluding address on "Responsibility," which was intensely spiritual and practical. During the singing of a hymn a collection was made, which with the morning collection realized Rs. 32. This sum has been devoted to the new Soudan Mission of the C.M.S. The Boys' School was conducted first by Mr. Vale, and after he left by one of the Natives; the former was also responsible for the Industrial Work. The absence of the ladies affected the Work among Women, though Mr. McGregor was able to keep up the class for Taveta women, which had an average attendance of about twenty, and the class for Masai women and the Girls' School were carried on by some of the converts. One of the girls wrote to Miss E. Mayor that she and her companions were trying to work for God: they all went into the market-place to sing hymns, and some of the older Christians preached. She said those who could not preach were going to work in other ways, especially helping the old women by carrying for them their heavy loads of grass. Miss Mayor adds, "This practical proof of their Christianity is very cheering, because, though I have always found them generous enough in sharing their food, they dislike helping each other in their work."

There was little change in the work in the district. Services were regularly held in a number of villages, but in Taveta the congregations showed some falling off, owing to the greater time which the people had to devote to the cultivation of their ground. Eighteen adults were baptized during the year, and the number of adherents at the close of it was seventy-three.

III. USAGARA.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Doulton left the Mission for Australia in August, 1899, and Dr. E. J. Baxter came home in October. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. A. N. Wood and Miss R. Colsey left for the Mission in February, 1900.

The Rev. D. J. Rees is Acting-Secretary of the work in Usagara.

MAMBOIA.

Mamboia.

It was stated in last year's Report that shadow and sunshine had, during 1898, been intermingled at Mamboia, but during the year under review the missionaries, Mr. D. Deekes, the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. Rees, and Miss E. R. Spriggs, had greater experience of trials than of encouragements. There were both normal and exceptional difficulties. Among the former must be included that which arises from the diversity of languages spoken, for some of the villages are Kimegi and others Kinyamwezi, though Kiswahili is spoken by the majority of the people and is the ordinary medium of communication. The ignorance of the Natives constituted another drawback, and a sad light is thrown on the depravity and cruelty of Heathenism by the statement of Mr. Rees that two children were about, when he wrote, to be brought to the Mission who would otherwise be killed, the one because he cut his upper before his lower teeth, and the other because his parents neglected to observe some particular rite on the occasion of their marriage. The famine, although not so severe as in other parts of East Africa, was nevertheless sufficient to affect the people painfully. Such food as was obtainable was six or eight times its usual price, since it had to be carried several days' journey; many of the people were in consequence fain to subsist on roots, berries, locusts, and the like, and not a few of them died. The migration in search of food naturally told on the attendance at the various meetings, and an outbreak of small-pox further affected the work and necessitated the closing of two of the out-stations for some weeks. The absence of the catechist, Asani Mugimbwa, who has been spoken of in successive Reports, depleted the already small staff of native helpers, but happily those who remained proved themselves to be both efficient and earnest. Persisi (the native form of the name Persis), whose baptism was recorded last year, was engaged as a paid worker, and rendered most valuable assistance.

A prayer for pombe drinkers.

There was reason to fear that some of the inquirers were under the yoke of strong drink, and Persisi on one occasion prayed for those in danger of pombe that they might know that the only safe thing was "not to taste it with their lips even." There were two catechumens whose lives witnessed for Christ; and in some parts of the district a desire for instruction was manifested.

A church blown down.

Mr. Deekes was occupied during the greater part of the year with the superintendence of building operations, which are continually going on, for owing to the ravages of white ants a house has usually to be condemned after it has been in existence for about five years. The necessity for exercising care in this matter was sadly illustrated on December 31st by the collapse of the Valley Church during a storm, the depredations of white ants having weakened the structure. Five adults and two children perished, but the missionaries providentially escaped any serious injury. Mr. Rees thus describes the occurrence:—

We were assembled for Sunday-school, and had only just begun teaching, when a storm of terrific force came on. Suddenly there was a cloud of dust, not an unusual accompaniment of storms. There was a kind of panic in the church. Men, women, and children rushed for windows and doors. So simultaneous was the movement that we now conclude they must have heard a crack or felt some vibration of the building. We did not, and all as a matter of course remained at our posts in different parts of the church, thinking the people unduly alarmed. There followed a brief lull, but fortunately only a few returned to the church. Then came a rush of wind, and I saw the opposite wall beginning to fall in from above. I failed to clear the open window, less than six steps from me, when the whole building was so wrecked as not to leave even a single post standing. With a little help I was able to extricate myself, having sustained very little hurt. Search was immediately begun for the ladies, who had been covered by the fallen débris on the opposite side of the church. A few minutes, and to my intense relief they were rescued with no more serious injuries than bruises, of which Miss Spriggs was the principal recipient. She had been struck by a falling post and fell over Theo, the little outcast adopted by Miss Colsey, who had been sitting with her, and whom she was carrying out. He was killed. Having seen the ladies under cover I had immediately to return to the rescue of others. There was much that even the women could have done to facilitate and relieve, but neither persuasion nor remonstrance moved more than a very few of them to render what help they could—a fact which could not but impress one with the hollowness of much of the grief displayed. Nor were the men different. It was with the greatest difficulty that these could be induced to help in the rescue work. Some stood coolly with their hands behind their backs: others worked for awhile, and when opportunity offered withdrew. Company after company arrived, satisfied their curiosity, and retired. The entire indifference of the majority to the condition of their less fortunate brethren was to me one of the heaviest trials of that afternoon. The inhumanity shown was unworthy even of Heathen. It is gratifying, however, that those who worked hardest and longest were almost without exception those who had come under the direct influence of the Mission at one time or another.

In order to obviate the necessity for frequent rebuilding, it was found desirable to make bricks, which Mr. Deekes succeeded in doing for the construction of a Mission-house in the valley. Mr. Deekes conducted the services at the old church on the hill, and the school there was worked by one of the Native Christians. The valley school was under the care of Mrs. Rees, who reports a diminished number of scholars, owing in part to the famine and in part to several caravans taking off a number of men as porters. Progress was manifested chiefly at the out-stations. A small church was built at Tangalata, and that at Mabonta approached completion, while the erection of a third was commenced at Berega, nine or ten miles from Mamboia, which is the centre of a large population. Mr. Deekes and Yeremiya carried on the work at Nyangala.

MPWAPWA AND KISOKWE.

Mpwapwa

Mr. J. H. Briggs, and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Doulton (of the New South Wales C.M. Association) worked together at MPWAPWA until the end of August, when Mr. and Mrs. Doulton left for Australia. The year is said to have been one characterized by a deepening of the work rather than by any definite extension. The native teachers in particular afforded satisfaction, the bright consistent Christian life of one of them being a continual source of thankfulness. Besides the paid workers there were several young men who voluntarily assisted at the school, which, however, was not carried on without much difficulty, since the parents regarded the time which their children spent in learning to read as so much dead loss. Five adults were baptized in the autumn, but three Christians had to be suspended from Communion; some of the catechumens, too, proved unworthy, and of the eighty-nine inquirers on the roll at the beginning of 1899 twenty-five went back to Heathenism, showing how necessary it was to exercise care before admitting any to the catechumenate. Open-air work and visiting were persevered in, but extensive itinerations were out of the question, although Mr. Briggs with two of the teachers contrived to get away for a month and visit Ugogo.

Paid and unpaid teachers.

Kisokwe.

The Rev. E. H. Fincher reports the baptism of five adults at KISOKWE, and in December there were forty-one catechumens and thirty-three inquirers. A large number of those who were regarded as inquirers when the statistics for the year preceding that under review were made up, were removed from the register for irregular attendance or misbehaviour, and some of the catechumens were struck off the roll for grave offences. The attendance at the five schools dropped off, owing in part to the fact that the population of the villages in the neighbourhood of Kisokwe rapidly decreased, as the Wagogo went further inland into their own country. The Medical Work was under the care of Dr. E. J. Baxter (now at home). The most interesting part of the work was that among the Masai, a number of whom under stress of famine built themselves a kraal close to the hospital. Special services were held for them in one of the wards, and were attended by from fifteen to forty people. The total number of in-patients was over 200, and 5,678 attendances were recorded at the dispensary. Mr. Fincher made a short trip into Ugogo in the course of the summer, and like Mr. Briggs was deeply impressed with the desirability of undertaking systematic itinerating work amongst the inhabitants. He says, speaking of Kisokwe and Mpwapwa:—

A Masai kraal.

> These stations are just on the borders of Ugogo, and the Wagogo are not numerous here, the nearest thickly-populated places being about thirty miles away over a difficult country. For over twenty years we have been on the borders of the land. Shall we not with the new century upon us enter in to possess the land for Him who has bought the precious souls of those there with His own blood?

UGANDA MISSION.

The first impetus to the exploration of Africa from the East Coast was given by the Society's missionaries, Krapf and Rebmann. In November, 1875, in consequence of information sent home by the traveller Stanley of the readiness of Mtesa, King of Uganda, to receive Christian teachers, and of two anonymous donations of £5,000 each being offered in order that a missionary expedition might be sent to his dominions, the Society resolved, in dependence upon God, to organize a Mission in Uganda, and a well-equipped party proceeded accordingly to East Africa in the spring of 1876. The first leader, Lieut. G. Shergold Smith, R.N., and Mr. T. O'Neill, were killed, and several others, including Bishop Parker, died before reaching the country; but the Mission, in the face of tremendous difficulties, maintained its position in Uganda from July, 1877. A French Roman Catholic Mission arrived in 1879. King Mtesa died in 1884, and Mwanga succeeded to the throne. The new king was led, in 1885, to regard the missionaries with suspicion. He caused Bishop Hannington, while in Busoga, en route for Uganda from the coast, to be murdered on October 31st of that year, and the Mission was in danger. The storm reached its climax in the arrest of many Native Christians, several of whom were tortured and burnt to death. In August, 1888, King Mwanga was driven from the throne. In October, through the hostility of the Mohammedan Arabs, the English and French missionaries were expelled from the country. A period of revolution and bloodshed ensued. In October, 1889, exactly a year from the missionaries' expulsion, Mwanga reentered Uganda and regained his throne through the help of his Christian subjects, and the missionaries returned with him. King Mwanga accepted a British flag from the representatives of the Imperial British East Africa Company in 1889. Sir Gerald Portal reached Uganda, as Queen's Commissioner, in March, 1893, and in April, 1894, the British Government declared Uganda a British Protectorate. Mwanga fled from the capital and raised a rebellion in the summer of 1897, and his infant son Chwa, baptized by the name of David, was proclaimed king. A serious mutiny of the Soudanese troops broke out in September of the same year. Several European officers were seized and murdered; Mr. G. L. Pilkington, who in response to the appeal of the authorities was accompanying the Government forces as interpreter, lost his life; and for a time the situation was critical in the extreme. The mutiny was quelled in 1898. The country of Busoga first had a resident missionary in 1891; Toro was occupied in 1896; and Bunyoro in 1899.

In 1897, the Diocese of Eastern Equatorial Africa was subdivided, the Uganda Protectorate being formed into the Diocese of Uganda, which Bishop Tucker elected to retain, relinquishing the remainder to form the Diocese of Mombasa.

Reinforcements. THE following reinforcements have joined the Mission:—the Revs. George Henry Casson and John William Purser, of Islington College, who were ordained by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899; Mr. John Howard Cook, M.S., M.B., London, F.R.C.S., brother of Dr. A. R. Cook of this Mission, and Mrs. J. H. Cook, sister of Mr. H. Maddox; Mr. Henry Herbert Farthing, of Islington College, cousin of the Misses M. E. and M. J. Farthing, of the Punjab Mission; Mr. William George Steele Innes, formerly a missionary of the North German Missionary Society, and Mrs. Innes; Mr. Hugh Osborn Savile, of Islington College; Miss Annie Emma Allen, a cousin of Miss B. Allen of the Japan Mission; Miss Annie Beatrice Glass, of Newnham College, formerly travelling secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union; Miss Ruth Hurditch, of The Olives and The Willows, daughter of Mr. Russell Hurditch, a well-known evangelist; Miss Edith Constance Pike, of

The Willows; Miss Annie Henrietta Robinson, a cousin of the Rev. W. E. Burroughs, Central Secretary of the Society; Miss Helen Dorothy Ida Scott, of The Willows; and Miss Sophie Rose Tanner, of The Olives. The five first-named men, together with Mrs. Cook, Mrs. Innes, and the Misses Pike, Scott, and Tanner, sailed for Mombasa, viâ the Cape, in June, 1899, and the others left for the Mission in January, 1900. The Mission gained another recruit by the marriage on August 15th, at Leamington, of Mr. A. B. Lloyd to Miss Mary Ethel Masters. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leakey left England to return to Uganda, viâ the Cape, in June, 1899, and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lloyd in January, 1900. The Rev. G. R. Blackledge, and Messrs. T. B. Fletcher, R. Force-Jones (invalided), and H. B. Lewin came home in December, 1899; and the Rev. F. H. Wright in April, 1900. Mr. J. B. Purvis has resigned his connexion with the Society.

Ordinations.

On Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899, at Mengo, Bishop Tucker admitted the Revs. C. H. T. Ecob and S. R. Skeens to priests' orders, and Messrs. Silasi Aliwonya, Zakayo Buligwanga, Yosua Kiwavu, Isaka Lwaki, Nua Nakiwafu, and Tomasi Semfuma to deacons' orders. The Bishop gives the following interesting particulars regarding them :—

Native candidates for deacons' orders.

Tomasi Semfuma has served as licensed reader for the last six years. He is one of our older Christians, although still a young man. He is a man of very independent character and of considerable ability. He is a Church worker of at least ten years' standing and has done us yeoman's service. He was one of the first missionaries to Koki, and laid a good, solid foundation for the work there. More recently he has been engaged in the same kind of work in Bunyoro, where he has won the respect and esteem of not only the king and chiefs, but also many of the people.

Nua Nakiwafu is also a man of considerable experience. He has been a licensed lay reader for the last three years. He has been tested and tried in many ways. He, like Tomasi Semfuma, has been and is a missionary. His chief sphere of work has been in Toro, where he is greatly beloved.

Zakayo Buligwanga is a man of staid character and solid worth. He has been licensed to Gayaza. His return, after the completion of his time of training at the capital, has been hailed with great satisfaction by his flock. He too has been a licensed lay reader for the last three years.

Silasi Aliwonya is a younger man than either of the preceding, but still a man of considerable experience. He has been a Church Council teacher for more than six years, and a licensed lay reader for three years. I remember when on my way to select a site for the Mission station at Ngogwe, six years ago, coming upon him when engaged in his work, and being greatly struck with his zeal and energy.

Yosua Kiwavu is specially identified with the work in North Busoga. He went there as a missionary several years ago, and has a great influence over the Basoga in and around Iganga. His wife, Yokabali, is a most earnest worker amongst the Basoga women, and is a thorough missionary.

Isaka Lwaki has been licensed to Nakanonyi to work under Mr. Blackledge. This was his former sphere of work, and that his influence and teaching were valued is proved by an earnest request that he might be sent back again. He is an earnest, humble, and, I believe, a truly spiritually-minded man.

And concerning Tomasi Semfuma the Rev. A. B. Fisher adds:—

He is the Tomasi who carried the Rev. R. P. Ashe important news on May 22nd, 1886, and on many other occasions at the risk of his life. He is the same Tomasi who was condemned to be burned by Mwanga for his bright testimony for Jesus, and whose life was bought by Mackay for two tusks of ivory which were charged to the C.M.S. He is the hero of many hard fights for his religion, and one of the Ankoli refugees. In the great battle of Kampala, in 1892, a shot from the enemy ripped across his chest, but owing to the skill of Dr. Wright his life was saved, but the mark still remains.

Railway from the coast.

Steady progress was made with the railway from the coast to the Victoria Lake. By April, 1900, the line was in working order for a distance of 362 miles from the coast, and the remaining 220 miles to Ugowe Bay were in course of construction. A not inconsiderable carrying trade from the interior to the coast has been secured by the new line. Advance was also shown by the establishment of a mail from Uganda to the coast every two weeks, with a corresponding service up-country.

Restoration of peace.

But the bearing of such improvements as these on the welfare of the country was slight when compared with the final restoration of peace by the capture of the ex-kings Mwanga and Kabarega in March, 1899, which was recorded in last year's Report, and which permitted the Indian troops to return to their own land. The sojourn of these troops in Uganda was not without some influence upon them. There they came in contact with a people of whom, when on a military expedition, one-ninth knelt in prayer night by night, and what they saw so impressed them that some of them, Mohammedans though they were, on their arrival at Quetta, went to the missionary asking for Bibles, in order that they might discover what had led to the change which they witnessed in the heart of Africa.

The Special Commissioner attends service conducted by native clergymen.

A warm welcome was accorded to Sir H. H. Johnston, the Special Commissioner for Uganda, on his arrival at Kampala, the Government station at Mengo, on December 20th. The reception was held in a large native building put up by the chiefs themselves as a council chamber, the Commissioner addressing the three regents and the other Baganda chiefs in Kiswahili. On Christmas morning he attended the native service in the large church on Namirembe. There was an enormous congregation, and six hundred communicants. The entire service was taken by two of the native pastors, Henry Wright Duta and Bartolomayo Musoke.

Under the favourable conditions which prevailed, the work of the Mission moved rapidly forward. The statistics show that during the year ending September 30th, 4,772 baptisms took place, that the number of the native teachers increased from 980 to 1,498, and that the contributions of the people advanced in proportion. The sale of books, too, fell off but little, if at all. In the year preceding that under review, the last for which complete figures are available, 5,339 New Testaments and Bibles were sold, also 8,445 Gospels and portions of the Scriptures, 5,247 Prayer-books and Hymn-books, 225 copies of the Pilgrim's Progress, and a large number of tracts, reading-sheets, &c. Nearly all were paid for in the currency of the country, i.e. shells, to the number of 6,800,000, and the value of £1,443. There were some striking instances of anxiety to possess a book, one or two of which are mentioned by Mr. Hattersley :—

Nearly £1,500 paid for books.

Four men came from Ngogwe, thirty-four miles away, carrying in loads of sixty-five pounds weight, and agreed to carry similar loads back to Ngogwe from Mengo. I paid each man 800 cowrie shells, and two of them at once walked off to the bookseller's hut and paid 700 shells each for a Prayer-book, a third spent all his 800 on a New Testament, and the fourth was much disappointed because the Hymn-books were run out of stock, as he wanted to buy one.

Eagerness to possess books.

And again :—

Another day a dwarfed specimen of humanity, Kalasi, the king's tailor, who can sew very well, made me a waistcoat, and asked for a New Testament as wages, and when I next called I found him diligently reading it.

During the year a Translation Committee was formed by the governing body of the Uganda Mission, which proved of great value, but the major portion of the literary work fell to the Rev. W. A. Crabtree, who resided at Gayaza. The progress made in this important branch of the missionary enterprise was not so great as could be wished, owing largely to the difficulty which Mr. Crabtree experienced in connexion with his house. That in which he first lived at Gayaza was burned to the ground, the conflagration being due to the action of an incendiary, and for months he was obliged to dwell in a grass hut, a fact which involved him in some anxiety concerning the safety of his valuable papers. A new edition of the Hymn-book as well as one of the Prayer-book was issued at very short notice, thanks to the help afforded by Mrs. Crabtree; some slight progress was made with a Church History, and an exercise book was taken in hand. In connexion with the literary work, mention must be made of a commentary on St. Matthew's Gospel, written by an unordained man, named Ham Mukasa. Archdeacon Walker says of it :—

Translation Work.

It is only a first attempt, and others will try their hand at this kind of thing, and do it better very likely. But still Ham's attempt is valuable, because it shows us how to express ourselves in a way the people will understand; it is illustrated with proverbs from the native language. In many places the commentary seems very short and deficient. Some verses are not touched at all, and on some the comments are very obvious. Still, to any one who has been teaching for a long time it is most interesting to get such a view as this commentary gives into the mind of one who has been taught. Some such help is very much wanted by men who go away to distant places as teachers and have no books to help them and no teacher to ask when difficulties arise. And though this commentary seems so weak and watery in places, possibly there are some who could not stand a much stronger dose. I believe this is a mistake that we teachers are often in the danger of making. We pour into the native mind such a flood of light that they are bewildered, and the meaning we would convey is dark with excess of light.

Observance of St. Andrew's Day.

There were two general observances which originated at Mengo and affected the whole of the country. One was the observance of St. Andrew's Day as a Day of Intercession. A paper was drawn up containing suggestions as to subjects of prayer, and each of the one thousand native workers was supplied with a copy, so that at 500 centres at least the privilege of intercessory prayer was utilized on the day in question. The other observance was of a Sunday in February, 1899, as "Hospital Sunday." Letters were sent from the capital to all the country churches, so that the observance should be general. At Mengo Dr. A. R. Cook delivered an address in the Cathedral to some 3,000 Native Christians, pointing out that our Lord cared for and loved the sick, and that it is the duty of all Christians to do likewise. The collection amounted in all to 66,200 shells (=about £12).

"Hospital Sunday" in Uganda.

Native missionaries exempted from taxation.

Much of the success which was met with was to be attributed, under God, to the zeal for the spread of the Gospel which was shown by the Katikiro, and by others of the leading chiefs. Their sympathies extended beyond the limits of their own country, for they remitted the house-tax, which all married men had to pay, in the case of those teachers who had gone to other countries, such as Toro and Bunyoro; it was not possible however to grant the same privilege to those engaged in Uganda, and the work suffered somewhat by their being obliged to obtain leave of absence in order that they might earn the necessary shells.

A chief offers to support teachers at Dufile.

Another instance of missionary zeal was afforded by a chief named Mugema, who announced at a meeting of the Native Church Council that he was willing to entirely support two Baganda teachers, if the Council approved of the men who might offer, should they be sent to Dufile, a Government post on the Nile, some 200 miles outside the limits of Uganda, in which his interest had been excited through the accounts brought by some of his men who had been there as porters.

Appeals for the extension of the work reached the Committee of the Society not only indirectly, as in the above instance, but also from the European missionaries. Thus Archdeacon Walker, urging that a station should be opened in Kavirondo, wrote:—

Appeal for Kavirondo.

It has special needs, being a very thickly populated country lying near here, in which no sustained effort has been made to reach the people. Kavirondo offers special advantages just now for the opening of Mission work. There is peace in the country, and, owing to the Government stations, order and prosperity. Communication is regular and easy either by canoe or by road. The Baganda Christians are willing to go there and help a European missionary to open work. Kavirondo is being brought in touch with Europeans and with a kind of civilization, but not with Christianity. There are no Missions there at all. If we do not begin at once I am sure we shall find it much more difficult after the Natives have seen another side of European life other than that which the missionaries try to show them. There is no reason for not opening work in Kavirondo to-morrow, except that there are no men that can be spared from the work here. I think the needs of Kavirondo are greater now than they have ever been, owing to the approach of the railroad and to the establishing of European stations.

And Mr. Hattersley, pleading for Kikuyu, gives some interesting information concerning the customs and beliefs of the people. He says:—

Of religious observances there are few traces; and there is little or no idea of a Supreme Being, although there is a vague notion that rain can be withheld by some spirit. Dancing is often performed at night, accompanied by weird singing, to propitiate this spirit in times of drought. In common with other African tribes the Wakikuyu have no system of worship, no sacrificing to idols. The nearest approach to these is to call in the witch-doctor to make medicine in times of sickness; and the usual fetishes or charms are carried by most of the Natives, anything new or strange making a good charm. They are a noble race in many ways, and will some day make splendid Christians. They are very intelligent, quite different from their neighbours, but, like them, have few external evidences of a religion. They are very superstitious, and certainly believe in a Supreme Being who exercises control over mankind to some extent, as is evinced by the childless women going about at times in the village in procession, chanting mournful dirges to that spirit who has caused them to be barren. There is great need for missionary work amongst these interesting people, but the man who goes to them must at present be willing to live a good deal in his tent, as they are here to-day and gone to-morrow miles away. and for Kikuyu.

Government stations are established, the railway should be available up to that point very shortly, and settlers are beginning to arrive. Shall the Church be the last in the field? Surely not. Let us awake, brethren, to the call of our Father, and rescue our perishing brothers and sisters ere it be too late.

Archdeacon R. H. Walker is the Secretary of the Mission.

I. UGANDA.

PROVINCES OF KYADONDO AND BUSIRO.

The missionaries at Mengo during the year were Archdeacon R. H. Walker, the Rev. E. Millar, Dr. A. R. Cook, Messrs. K. E. Borup and C. W. Hattersley, and the Misses J. E. Chadwick, E. M. Furley, and K. Timpson. They were joined at the end of September by Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cook and Miss H. D. I. Scott, and towards the close of the year the Rev. J. Roscoe was obliged by ill-health to leave Toro and return to Uganda. Mengo.

The political changes of recent years, and especially the introduction of a civilized government, have naturally led to considerable modification in the conditions under which missionary work is prosecuted, as well as in the character of the people. Archdeacon Walker, who in his Annual Letter deals with the general state of affairs, as well as with his own particular work, writes :—

"A fragment of Petticoat Lane."

The sudden introduction of the Government troops and increased demand for labour of all kinds has created a desire to become suddenly rich. The chiefs are all anxious to be traders, and it is with some feelings of regret that I see a shop has been built just inside the royal gateway. Where armed men stood in barbaric splendour when I first came to the country you see now a shop with cheap calicoes for sale, a fragment of Petticoat Lane, but with more fun about it, as the lads who act as shopmen often try the clothes on. Some wretched trader brought up a load of hard felt hats, "billycocks," and these were worn with a string of cowrie shells round the place for the hatband. Others removed the brim as being unnecessary, and wore the brimless hat, making their black heads look abnormally enlarged. We are passing through a most curious stage, a revolution in everything, and it is very difficult for the people to know what is worth imitating and what is purely a Western excrescence on civilization.

An instance of probity.

A striking instance of the probity of the chiefs was given in connexion with their first attempt at trading with the coast, which in spite of the encouragement given by the Government proved a complete failure. The chiefs refused to hear of paying anything less than their servants had arranged with the Indian traders, and said, "We are bound by what our servants promised in our name, and we will pay it, though we lose by doing so." A large number of lives were lost on the new road to the coast, dysentery proving very fatal among the Baganda and Basoga porters while passing through Kikuyu. It was estimated that 900 of the former, most of whom were Christians, and about 1,600 of the latter died. Some hardship, though happily not much mortality, was caused by the comparative failure of the rains and the scarcity of food, which however had one good result, since it led the chiefs to have the ground in the neighbourhood of the swamps drained, and sown with rice and wheat, both of which became more plentiful than formerly. This rendered the prospect of future famines through the failure of the plantains or potatoes much less serious, while in addition it was a great comfort to the Europeans by affording them a change in their diet.

Responsibility for the discharge of the Pastoral Work rested mainly on the native clergy, the Revs. H. W. Duta and Z. Kizito, but some assistance was rendered to them by the European missionaries. An interesting incident was the baptism by Mr. Millar in June, 1899, of a young prince, a son of the ex-king, Mwanga, by the name of Yusufu. The godfathers of the prince were the Rev. S. Mukasa and Paulo Bakunga, the Mukwenda, a licensed lay reader, while an old princess, Dina Kiga by name, was the godmother. Another of those baptized was a retainer of the late King Mtesa. An account of her conversion, given in her own words, was printed in the C. M. Gleaner, and being quoted by the Rev. D. A. L. Hooper at Jilore was the means of blessing to several. A weak point in the Native Church was the lack of self-dependence among those who should be the leaders. Archdeacon Walker writes :—

Native leaders want self-reliance.

It is piteous at times to see how the work falls off if the European who has been in charge is removed, and to see that every advance has to be made by the European missionaries urging the Natives on. It sometimes reminds me of wheeling a bicycle uphill : as soon as you stop pushing, it stops going. The Native Christians are so ready to rely upon the European missionaries, as if the work were ours and they voluntary helpers. I am not sure that it would not be wiser to let things be done less well and be done by Natives than to give so much help. It was unlawful to yoke a camel and an ass to the same plough, and I fear that the more the Europeans do of the actual work itself, the less the Natives will feel their duty and responsibility in the matter. No doubt it is contrary to the native character to feel a sense of "duty" or any value as regards time, and therefore we have grave natural difficulties to overcome. There are marks of great improvement, and we earnestly look for more.

Divinity Class.

Four of the ten men who formed the Divinity Class at the close of 1898 were ordained on Trinity Sunday, 1899, as above mentioned, and the remainder went out as teachers in various parts of the country. Some of them were not ordained because they fell short of the intellectual standard. The Archdeacon, who carried on the class, says :—

Things are advancing rapidly in Uganda, and each year adds to the intellectual growth of the people and to the advantages that are afforded for gaining knowledge, so that unless a man has considerable natural gifts, he will find he is quite left behind by members of the congregation to which he is appointed as teacher. Therefore, the men who have been chosen for ordination are men whose devout life and energy as teachers and pastors is well known, and in most cases men who have the natural gifts that will enable them to keep in the front rank in this intellectual and social development.

Difficulties of Bible translators.

The new class at first naturally needed guidance as to what points in their study deserved special attention ; instead of looking at the beauty and meaning of a passage of Scripture as a whole, they were inclined to examine it in detail. And this "examination of the Scriptures to the square inch," as the Archdeacon observes, led to some valuable results, and at all events it prevented the students from hesitating to ask questions. Some of these questions were attributable to the difficulty which occurs in making translations when one word has to stand for a variety of things. One day a man asked how it came about that the city of Sodom was burnt down with matches, which he had been told were only a modern invention, and inquiry showed that the mistake had been caused by the word for brimstone being the same as that for matches !

The Archdeacon tells of another question, which showed the thoughtful character of the people :—

Thoughtful questions.

We were reading the collect that speaks of God's never-failing providence ordering all things, and a man called Samsoni Konde asked how it came about that children were born deformed. He said he had been telling a lame man of God's love and power, and the man asked him to explain to him how it came about then that he was born lame. Which had failed, the love or the power? Samsoni told me that he had not been able to explain the matter to the man. Though the Natives do not often argue with us European missionaries, yet I gather from the above and from other suchlike things I have been told that they do argue with the teachers who are their fellow-countrymen.

School Work.

Few things were more remarkable at Mengo than the rapid growth of the Educational Work, which was fostered by the care of the Katikiro, who sent a number of his children and retainers to the schools. The majority of the young people came willingly, but there was at least one exception, for the Katikiro had occasion one day to ask Mr. C. W. Hattersley to give his son five strokes with a stick if he did not conduct himself well. Happily it was not found necessary to introduce corporal punishment. The school for boys had an average attendance of nearly 150, and the progress made by the seniors, among whom some of the chiefs were included, was very striking. They were especially quick at arithmetic, and by December the first class, who fifteen months before had scarcely mastered the multiplication table, were successfully grappling with such questions as the following, which has a strong tinge of local colouring :—

Quick at arithmetic.

Forty canoes go to Usukuma to fetch loads, each canoe carrying twelve bales, the rate of pay for each of which is five rupees plus 200 cowrie shells. The Katikiro takes of this one-fifth, the chief of the canoes takes one-seventh, another under-chief takes one-twelfth part, and the headman takes one-twentieth. Each canoe has twelve paddlers. How much does each paddler get when the balance is divided amongst them? One rupee = 16 annas, or 64 pice, or 600 cowrie shells.

The spread of the desire for knowledge was shown by the fact that during the five months from July 7th no less than 27,350 copies of the First Reader were sent out from the book-store to the different Mission centres. Great difficulty was experienced in providing teachers for the children, and with a view to meeting it half-a-dozen of the boys were selected for training, being provided with food by the Church Council, and with clothes and lodging by the Katikiro. They were placed under the charge in their home of an ordination candidate named Jacob the Elephant, who when asked whether he would undertake the responsibility replied, "Is it for me to choose my work? You tell me what to do, and I am ready to obey." Teaching in a Sunday-school, which was commenced, and had about 270 pupils, was helpful in enabling them to gain experience. A new school was formed for girls, separated from that for boys, because there was a danger lest the former, being intellectually backward, should be pushed aside and neglected in the crowded classes. Unfortunately they had little desire to be taught, and book-learning appeared to be distasteful to most of them, which was hardly surprising seeing that digging, cooking, and gossiping had for so long been the sole occupations of the Baganda women. Miss Chadwick says that the educational ambition of the girls did not extend further than to read sufficiently well to attend a baptism class, and so "acquire a Christian name," and as soon as one could read, and had learnt the first catechism by heart with a certain number of Scripture proofs, she joined the class of candidates for baptism, and finding it difficult to attend both that and the school disappeared entirely from the latter. Miss Chadwick started a Sowers' Band among the senior children, and before the end of the year two of them were engaged in Mission work. The women's Gleaners' Union also went on satisfactorily, the members being "simple and earnest" in their prayers for those in distant lands. Girls' schools.

Work among Women was materially affected by the scarcity of food, for very little of the cultivation of the ground was done by the men. When famine threatened, the women "set themselves to drive the hunger out of the country," but doing so involved their working early and late in the fields and swamps, with the result that many of them suffered severely from fever, and that their presence at classes was attended with great difficulty. Under the circumstances it was remarkable that there was a great increase in the number of candidates for baptism: six hundred were enrolled as such in the course of the year, one-third of whom were from Mengo itself, and the remainder from the gardens around the capital. The classes for these women were arranged by Miss Furley, but conducted by native teachers. She says of these native female teachers that it is impossible to speak of them too highly, and that some of the elder ones have a wonderful grasp of spiritual things, while those who are younger worked steadily and conscientiously. A few of the best teachers took up their abode in the country districts, and one volunteered for missionary work, and went into Busoga. Miss Furley carried on two special classes, the one for candidate teachers and their wives, and the other for women in general. She writes:— Classes for female inquirers.

It was strange, when the new Prayer-book arrived in the country, that the part which seemed to have the greatest attractions for the native mind was the Calendar, and you found both men and women spending hours poring over it and striving to puzzle it out; and certainly when I taught the Prayer-book in my women-teachers' class we spent some days over the Calendar, as they would not be satisfied to go on without understanding it; the only thing I really stuck at explaining in Luganda being the Sunday Letter and Golden Number, which I must confess beat me! The movement of the Sundays and feast days in the Church's year we got clear to every one's satisfaction by the help of bits of different coloured paper laid out in a long line in front of us on the floor. Did any one ever teach the Calendar in an English Bible-class? Certainly I never did.

About two hundred women were reading for confirmation in December.

Advance of Medical Work.

The advance made in the Medical Work under Dr. A. R. Cook and Miss Timpson, who were reinforced at the end of September by Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Cook, is conclusively demonstrated by the following statistical table:—

	January—October
	1897	1898	1899

Native treatment.

The ignorance of the Natives concerning the proper treatment of the weak and suffering was specially shown in the case of new-born babies, the practice being to "harden" them by placing them on a cold plantain leaf, and pouring cold water over them, while those suffering from whooping-cough or bronchitis were brought out on cold windy days without any covering. There was a constant tax on the patience of the missionaries, arising in part from the unbounded faith of the people in European medicines, which made them think that if a friend, living ten or twelve miles away, was ill with a pain in his chest the doctor could immediately give them a pill or a draught which would restore him to health, and partly, as in other parts of the Mission-field, from their slowness of comprehension. Thus Dr. A. R. Cook writes:—

Difficult patients.

This is the sort of dialogue that goes on with irritating frequency in the consulting room. Perhaps there are seventy or eighty patients waiting to be seen, and only an hour and a half to see them in:—

Doctor. What is the matter with you?

Patient. My name is so-and-so.

Doctor. Yes, but where is your disease?

Patient. I want medicine to drink.

Doctor. Where are you hurt?

Patient. I don't want medicine to swallow, but to drink.

Doctor. WHERE IS YOUR ILLNESS?

Patient. Oh, it goes all over me; it cries out "Ka, ka." Will you listen to the top of my head with your hearing machine? (stethescope), &c.

All uncivilized Natives seem to reckon alike. If one dose of medicine taken three times a day can cure me in a week, twenty-one doses will cure me straight off—here goes!

And Miss Timpson gives specimens of the usual style of conversation :—

You say, "My friend, this medicine is very strong, you are only to take one pill, morning, noon, and night, and the supply is to last you three days." After repeating this more than once, you may look up and say, "Well, my friend, do you quite understand?" The patient will say, "I did not hear, I was listening to what that boy was saying." This means spending a little more of your time upon him only to find that, as you turn to another, your patient with the strong medicine is in the act of swallowing all the three days' supply at once; you rush at him to rescue as many of the pills from his mouth as you can, but, alas! sometimes all have disappeared.

Then another will say, "My sickness is in my feet, and I care not for medicine to drink, but I want something to rub upon my feet." You try and explain that if he drinks what is prescribed for him he will soon get well, because the medicine will relieve the pain; he looks at you kindly, but with pity, and says, "My friend, my wisdom tells me that there is no profit in drinking medicine, but only by rubbing the mixture upon my feet can I be cured." You reply, "Well, well, go away now, and drink this as I have told you, and come back in three days, then see if you are not better." At last he leaves you sorrowfully, and still unbelievingly, for I have heard him telling a friend outside that he cannot make me understand that his illness is in his feet.

New hospital.

Great improvement was made in the premises of the Medical Mission. A substantial building was erected as a dispensary, and in March, 1899, a commencement was made with the new hospital, the building of which was carried on, under the superintendence of Mr. Borup, by men provided without charge for the purpose by a number of the chiefs at the instigation of the Katikiro. The hospital is 120 feet long in the shape of a double Maltese cross, and is planned to accommodate fifty beds; and the magnitude of the task of erecting it may be estimated from the fact that 112 tons of grass were used for thatching the roof! The majority of the patients were of the peasant class, and suffered either from bullet wounds or tumours. The surgical work was very heavy, but it made a greater impression on the Natives than anything else, for although they did not consider it wonderful for any one to recover from an attack of pneumonia or dysentery, they were dumb with astonishment when a tumour of any size was removed. Every day a short service was held for those who came to the dispensary, and a prayer-meeting took place each Wednesday evening in the men's ward of the temporary hospital. The Roman Catholic patients at first demurred to attending the services, but they were told that no exceptions could be allowed to the rule which required that all patients should at least hear the Gospel message. The migratory nature of the population made it difficult to follow up the patients and continue the teaching which they began to receive from the medical workers, but still there was some encouragement, and one woman was baptized, who for the first six weeks after she was admitted as an in-patient had refused to be present at the prayers and daily Bible-readings. Dr. Cook saw reason to modify his opinion recorded in last year's Report concerning the fearlessness with which the Christians met death, not because they showed any terror of it, but because the Heathen, doubtless through some belief in "fate," or else through absolute ignorance, manifested a similar absence of fear. Every Thursday a visit was paid to some neighbouring village, where the Gospel was preached and the sick were treated, great help being rendered in this country work as in that at the capital by the six dispensary boys, concerning whom cordial testimony is borne, one being described as "unselfish, clever, and always cheerful—a beautiful living example of a humble and unostentatious, but really Christian life."

Native dispensary helpers.

Industrial Work.

It remains to mention the Industrial Work, of which Mr. Borup was in charge. Six baptized Protestant apprentices were sent by the Katikiro for training in various handicrafts, a number which, it was hoped, would soon be doubled, the boys being bound for two years. Mr. Borup describes the daily routine as follows:—

> We have morning prayer together at 7 a.m., which is followed at 7.30 by a class in writing, lasting till 8.15, when the work in the shops begins. Three boys go to work in the printing office and three work in the carpenter's shop. They work thus until twelve o'clock, noon, then rest until 1 p.m., when we have a class on arithmetic. This class is usually over by about 1.45, when the work in the shops begins again as during the morning hours. The work in the shops ends at 5 p.m. Then the apprentices are free to go where they like until it is dark. They all sleep on the Mission premises, and it is one of our rules that no boys may remain out after dark.

The only trades taught during the year under review were printing and carpentry, but in these good progress was made, the lads being entrusted with some printing by the British Government. Care was taken to instruct them in Divine things, a Bible-class being held every evening, which all the apprentices attended.

Gayaza.

The missionaries stationed at GAYAZA were the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Crabtree, Miss B. Taylor, and Miss M. S. Thomsett, and they were joined in the autumn by Miss E. C. Pike. The chiefs, drunken and immoral men, were a great hindrance to all efforts to win the people to Christ, but the work among the women was encouraging, a larger number being baptized and confirmed during the year under review than in any that had preceded it.

A Women's Committee.

A Women's Committee was formed after the June Conference to hear all charges brought against women candidates for either baptism or confirmation, and at the same time a prayer-meeting was commenced. Steps were taken to grapple with the problem as to the supply of teachers by instituting a class in which women likely to make good workers were trained; an appeal to the communicants resulted in ten coming forward, to whom careful Bible instruction was given. Unfortunately the women were rather tied by their own work, and were unable to leave their homes for more than three or four months at a time, which made the course of instruction shorter than was desirable. In June, 1899, an effort was made to compile a list of those children whose parents consented to their being educated, and this was followed by the springing up of a school in connexion with every church in the district; but most of the native teachers had little capacity for either the managing or imparting knowledge to the young. For a time the daily attendance at the school at Gayaza itself was 150, but decentralization in the form of opening schools in the district, combined with scarcity of food, diminished the numbers. A good proportion of the children attended the special services which were held for them on Sundays, coming into the centre from the surrounding gardens. With the aid of her bicycle Miss Taylor was enabled to visit nearly all the thirty-eight district churches, and hold meetings for the women, followed by gatherings for the young people.

PROVINCES OF BULEMEZI AND BURULI.

Waluleta.

The Rev. C. H. T. Ecob was transferred from WALULETA to Toro at the beginning of 1899, but the Rev. N. Mudeka resided there for work in the southern portion of the province. Mr. H. B. Lewin (now at home), who was stationed at KIKUBIRA, in the northern portion, speaks thankfully of his preservation from harm at the beginning of the year when the district was overrun by the rebels prior to the capture of Mwanga. One skirmish took place in his immediate neighbourhood early one afternoon, in which two Christians chiefs, who had been present at the morning service, were killed. A couple of instances connected with the war are given as affording testimony to the character of the Native Christians, and the confidence reposed in them:—

Kikubira.

Testimony to trustworthiness of Christians.

After a defeat of a small detachment of our troops, through falling into an ambush, the European officer who went to the rescue had a Native Protestant Christian as his guide. When the officer heard of the disaster, he sent for a Muganda, and on seeing him asked, "Are you a reader? Are you baptized?" for he said he could only trust his life in the hands of such a one, knowing that he would not prove false; nor was his trust misplaced, and in due course he safely arrived. Again, after a defeat inflicted by rebels in Buruli, some of the chiefs took refuge in the fort, and as the accustomed evening hour of prayer approached, one of the under-chiefs said to his superior, "Let us have prayers." The chief answered, "No, we have been defeated, we shall only be laughed at if we pray." But the other said, "Whatever you do, I shall pray," and he went and did so with all his people.

A bright example.

Mr. Lewin speaks warmly of the character of Timtewo Baliyokwabwe, the licensed lay reader, a man untiring in teaching, visiting, and exhorting, full of simple trust, and a bright example to the converts. Many of the people thought that it was beneath them to do any manual work after they were baptized, and therefore it was particularly helpful that Timtewo had no scruples in the matter, but early in the morning before teaching commenced would be found busily cultivating the ground, thatching his house, or engaging in some similar occupation. A noteworthy missionary meeting was held in December, 1898, after which the teachers met in conference and considered two subjects—"Collections," and "How to reach the Young." The outcome of the discussion on the former subject was distinctly cheering, for the contributions during the year increased to such a degree that the Christians were able to support their teachers without any of the help previously given from Mengo. Some of them were very liberal. One chief, Simiyoni Sebuta, when the war terminated, sent a cow as a thankoffering—a gift the value of which can only be appreciated when it is known that it would support six workers for six months; while one of the teachers, on receiving his pay, regularly gave a tenth of it back to God. Nor was the consideration of "How to reach the Young" fruitless, for the native deacon, the Rev. S. Mukasa, built a school, which commenced with twenty-five children, and threw himself heartily into the work, teaching day by day until he was called upon in his capacity as chief to attend the king at Mengo. The school then passed into other hands, and by October from 150 to 200 children were coming regularly to be taught reading and the elements of the Christian faith. Some were under instruction at other places, the total number on the books being over nine hundred, a remarkable increase above the fifty scholars of 1898. The injunction of St. Peter to honour the king, as well as to fear God, was evidently impressed upon the Natives, for the Queen's birthday was kept at Kikubira with great rejoicing. In the morning a procession of some 200 chiefs and people paraded along the road, halting under a flagstaff in the open court before the chief's fence where, after prayer, the English flag was hoisted, in the midst of great shouting and firing off of guns; a big feast afterwards was partaken of by all, then sports were indulged in, and in the evening there was a grand torchlight procession in which some 500 people took part.

Liberal offerings.

Nine hundred children under instruction.

The Queen's birthday at a remote station.

An incendiary's punishment.

A chief sits up all night to guard a missionary.

Four new churches were opened in the district, but three others were burnt down by the rebels. In one instance the offender was caught, and was punished in a novel way, for he was ordered to build the church again with his own hands, only being allowed the assistance of the members of his family. Mr. Lewin met with great kindness when he visited the north-western portion of his district in February, 1899, although the Roman Catholics were strong in that neighbourhood. At one rather lonely spot, at times infested by bands of rebels, the chief sat up all night guarding the house which he had placed at the disposal of the missionary, and at another, after a hearty service in church, a great fishing match was got up, and forty large fish and three immense jars of honey were presented to Mr. Lewin. An excellent work amongst the young was carried on in the west, but there was one dark spot in the district, of which Mr. Lewin writes:—

A "dark spot."

I found Heathenism in its most naked and degraded state still reigning. I slept in the chief's house, which was literally smothered with charms; he is an elephant hunter and a Munyoro, but as several of his people wish to be taught, we approached him as to building a little room in his village for them. He said, "I am an elephant hunter, as my father and grandfather were before me, and I" (showing charms) "worship these, and do not intend to change. If my people want anything else, let them go elsewhere; they shall not be taught in my village."

In another district, which was formerly part of Bunyoro, the people were very superstitious, and devil-worship was prevalent, but there were reasons to hope that better things were in store under the rule of Simiyoni Sebuta, the chief who has already been mentioned. A good church was in process of erection, and a congregation of forty, including six Banyoro, had been gathered together.

The people of Kikubira took an affecting farewell of Mr. Lewin when he left for England, the teachers meeting to commend him to the favour and protection of God, and many of the converts following him along the road, clasping him by the hand and wishing him God-speed. Indeed, he says that it was far harder to part from the converts to go home than it was to leave home and go to Uganda.

A new station was opened at NDEJE, whither Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Leakey went to reside on their return from England.

PROVINCES OF SINGO AND KITUNZI.

No account of the work in the province of Singo has come to hand. The Rev. H. W. Tegart and the Rev. Y. Muyira were stationed at MITYANA, and the Rev. B. Musoke at BAMUSUTA.

Kasaka.

A new church was opened on April 11th, 1899, at KASAKA, in the province of Kitunzi, the services being conducted by the Rev. E. Bakayana and Mr. T. B. Fletcher (now at home). Twenty-eight persons were baptized on that day, and some fifty were confirmed a few weeks before. The Native Christians are described as having been faithful and loyal during the troubled years of 1897 and 1898, during which the church was twice burned to the ground, and the Mission-house three times.

KOKI AND BUDU.

Although the Rev. H. Clayton had no European colleague during the year, he was able in October to write most encouragingly of the progress of the work. He spent about one-half of his time in the province of Koki, and the other half in that of Budu. At Rakai. RAKAI, Kamswaga, the king of Koki, justified the hope which was expressed in last year's Report (page 125) by giving up polygamy and several other heathen customs, and becoming a candidate for baptism. Three of his former wives were baptized, and some others were under instruction with a view to receiving that rite. The country districts of the province were rather unsettled in consequence of raids made by some brigands, but notwithstanding this hindrance three new out-stations were opened, and fifty-nine adults were baptized. The Bishop confirmed over fifty candidates in April, 1899, when he paid his first visit to Rakai. Mr. Clayton speaks highly of the lay reader, and describes him as "a man of real power, and admirably suited for his post."

Work in Budu. All the chieftainships in Budu being in the hands of the Roman Catholics, the work in that province lay almost entirely among the poorer people. There were some trifling cases of petty persecution at the hands of the chiefs, but the Rev. Seduraka Kibuka, the native deacon, was most successful in obtaining the redress to which the converts were justly entitled, since the law of the land provides for religious freedom. Besides the central station at KAJUNA, there were seventeen out-stations with small churches. Fifty-six adults were baptized, and there were signs that the Word of God was spreading through the province. The Rev. G. H. Casson, one of the year's recruits, has been assigned to Budu.

Efforts to occupy Ankole. In May, 1899, Mr. Clayton went to Ankole for the purpose of placing two native teachers at the capital. The king, Kawaya, who is a great believer in charms and evil spirits, said that any of his people who wished to do so might learn, and that he and his princes and chiefs would wait and see whether any calamity overtook those who began to read. After a short stay the teachers returned to Uganda, reporting that there was no work in Ankole for them to do. Later in the year, the Kangao, one of the three regents of Uganda, and a permanent deacon of the Church, paid a visit to Kawaya, and tried to persuade him to become a reader, with the result that the king asked for a European to come and teach him, and gave a good site for a Mission station close to his capital. Bishop Tucker went to Ankole in December, accompanied by a youth who was carried to Koki as a slave in 1896, and there was taught to read, and became a candidate for baptism. His father proved to be one of the four most important chiefs of the country.

Invitation to occupy Ankole.

SESE ISLANDS.

Bukasa. The Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Gordon received an enthusiastic welcome on their arrival at BUKASA, the island on which they made their headquarters, though for the effective supervision of the work it was necessary to have a house on Kome as well, and also a hut on Babembe. The congregations were cared for by the Rev. H. Mukasa, the native pastor, a sincere and steadfast Christian, who identified himself with his people, and was deeply grieved by the low standard of spiritual life among some of the baptized converts, and by the fall of a few of the teachers into gross sin; he also shared in the work of training teachers, which was carried on at different centres. The contributions of the people to religious work gradually increased: besides paying for the forty-five Basese teachers working on the islands, they sent out and supported a married native missionary on one of the Buvuma islands; but the salaries of the four Baganda workers labouring among them were paid by the Church at Mengo. The zeal in behalf of the children which was manifested in other parts of Uganda was also shown on the Sese Islands. Five men and four women were specially set apart to carry on the Sunday-school, which was held every week on Bukasa, eighty being present on the first occasion. On Babembe also a considerable number of young people came daily to be taught. During a stay of a fortnight on the last-mentioned island, Mr. Gordon interviewed over eighty candidates for baptism and confirmation. Good work was done on Kome by a former member of Archdeacon Walker's class, who was too young for ordination, and on the Roman Catholic island of Bugala one of the Basese laboured faithfully, and with much acceptance.

Gospel sent from island to island.

PROVINCE OF KYAGWE.

The staff at NGOGWE consisted of the Rev. G. K. Baskerville, the Rev. Y. Kaidzi, the native pastor, the Rev. S. Aliwonya, previously a teacher in the district, who was ordained deacon on Trinity Sunday, 1899, and the Misses G. E. Bird and E. L. Pilgrim, and it was reinforced in September by the arrival of Miss S. R. Tanner. In the spring of 1899 Mr. Baskerville moved into his new house, and welcomed the rest from building operations, which however was likely to prove only temporary, since a permanent church was in contemplation. He describes the celebration of the Centenary as follows:—

Ngogwe

A very fair number of people came to the meeting. We began with a hymn, "Thy kingdom come," then at 2.12, i.e. 12 in London, we knelt and repeated the General Thanksgiving and an extempore prayer, remembering the past and asking for blessing in the future. Then we read Ps. cxv., after which Yonasani Kaidzi, the native pastor, gave us a résumé of the work in Uganda since the early days. After this came the collection, the people coming up and putting their shells in a basket on the communion steps. They amounted to 10,000 shells = about 2*l*. Yonasani then returned to the desk and told the people that they had given of their goods, and now they could give themselves; would any stand up who were willing to do so? On which some ten people rose as willing to do work in the Church; six were old workers, but four had not previously done any active work at all.

A Centenary meeting.

We then had general prayer from the congregation, and then I spoke, contrasting Uganda ten years back with the present day, and briefly mentioning other countries.

Bishop Tucker visited the station at the latter end of June and confirmed ninety-one candidates, twenty-nine of whom were women. Amongst those confirmed was the Sekibobo, the leading chief of the province, for whom special prayer is requested. Every effort was made to shepherd and instruct the Native Christians. With a view to the future Mr. Baskerville persevered in the compilation of a Commentary on St. Matthew, based on the Cambridge Bible. Prayer-meetings were held weekly, and communicants' and missionary meetings once a month; while, in addition, the local preachers and other teachers were instructed every week in homiletical subjects. A large number of voluntary women teachers, about fifty, came forward, and were carefully trained by Miss Bird. During the three months' course the classes were well attended, and many of the women showed such a keen interest that it was a pleasure to teach them. But although progress was made in many different respects, the most remarkable advance was in the work among the young. There was, it is true, only one regularly organized school, that at the head station, for which a new building was erected during the year; but there were a large number of children under instruction throughout the district, 3,353 in all. A good deal of difficulty was experienced owing to the lack of properly trained teachers, which rendered it necessary for the ordinary teachers to do their best to add this to their other work. At Ngogwe itself the school had an average attendance of two hundred, double that of the year 1898. This increase was mainly due to the action of the chiefs, who issued a proclamation that every child was to attend school, for although it was practically impossible to enforce the rule in the country districts, yet it brought many under instruction who would not otherwise have come. Miss Pilgrim was assisted by twelve women teachers, and one boy monitor, who was able to take classes in writing and arithmetic. Besides the school, Miss Pilgrim carried on the dispensary, having on the average from thirty to thirty-five patients every day, and an open-air meeting was held in the neighbourhood every Wednesday, by means of which many were reached who would not visit the missionaries.

Work among the young.

Mr. Baskerville made several itinerating tours, on one occasion being accompanied by the lady missionaries. The plan adopted was for them to go to one of the eight district centres, each of which had about twelve churches connected with it, and to make it a base, from which the ladies visited the places near at hand, returning each night to the centre, while Mr.

Baskerville went to the more distant churches, spending several nights away. The number of adult baptisms is given as 340. The women candidates were first of all taught the Gospels and the Catechism by some of the voluntary women teachers, then they received a month's simple doctrinal instruction from Miss Bird, and finally were examined by the native pastors. Their names, like those of female candidates for confirmation, before being submitted to the Church Council had to be approved by the Women's Committee, which was formed to assist the Church Council in dealing with matters concerning the women.

Advance at Nakanonyi.

The Rev. G. R. Blackledge (now at home), who resided at NAKANONYI, in Bukoba, the northern district of Kyagwe, reports that in 1899 there were 584 baptisms and 650 communicants, as compared with 323 and 331 respectively in 1898. An advance of just 50 per cent. was also made in the contributions of the people in the same period. The names of some 2,000 children were on the school registers. The Native Christian workers and elders co-operated with him loyally, but the rapid growth of the Christian community involved the danger of a merely intellectual conviction, and also of unworthy adherence from the pressure of public opinion, which began to make it a shame not to be baptized. Mr. Blackledge paid an interesting visit to the Bakedi, a people inhabiting the Nile Valley. After he had spoken to a group of some 500 rough and wild Natives, encouraging them to receive missionaries, several of their leaders got up and spoke, saying that since the Gospel had been such a blessing to the Waganda, they themselves were willing to be instructed, and would welcome a white teacher.

The Bakedi promise to welcome a missionary.

II. BUSOGA.

Sir H. H. Johnston in Busoga.

SOME helpful words were spoken by Sir H. H. Johnston, the Special Commissioner for Uganda, to the people of Busoga, when he passed through that country on his way to Mengo. He communicated to them his plans for their future government, and when closing his remarks said, "Tell them how interested the Queen is in their welfare! how she wants them to improve themselves and their country;" and added, "Long ago we English were like the Kavirondo, and wore no clothes, and smeared our bodies with paint, but when we learned Christianity from the Romans we changed and became great. . . . We want you," he said, "to learn Christianity and to follow our steps, and you too will be great." Many Basoga afterwards remarked that they had never before heard such words from any "Musungu" at the fort.

BUKALEBA.

The Rev. H. W. Weatherhead, who was obliged to leave Bukaleba. Bukaleba, in South Busoga, on account of his health, in November, 1898, was permitted to return after an absence of a few months, and had the joy of receiving as a colleague the Rev. Martin J. Hall. The latter, much of whose time was occupied with necessary building operations, did not, however, stay very long, for on the arrival of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. S. Innes in the early autumn he was transferred to Koki. The remaining member of the clerical staff of the Mission was the Rev. N. Kikwabanga, of whom Mr. Hall speaks as "a humble, earnest worker, and a consistently good man." A beginning was made on a small scale with a class for teachers, for it was felt to be most desirable to have Basoga to instruct their fellow-countrymen rather than to rely on Baganda missionaries. There were only two lads belonging to the class when Mr. Weatherhead wrote his Annual Letter, but it was expected that they would soon be joined by two others. The need of earnest endeavour to raise up and train workers was shown in various ways. In the course of a tour through South Busoga which the Bishop undertook in August, accompanied by Mr. Hall, it was found that the population was even more dense than had been supposed; indeed, the Government officer who for some time was in charge of the country stated that Busoga, though not of much greater area than the single province of Kyagwe in Uganda, nevertheless had nearly as many inhabitants as the whole of Uganda, including Budu and Koki. The darkness of the prevalent superstition and Heathenism also constituted a plea for more teachers. Mr. Weatherhead writes:— A dense population.

The Basoga are intensely superstitious. Wisps of straw blown high up into the air by the wind are "spirits." Rocks, trees, and hills everywhere are sacred and have their Lubare. On the lake shore close to here a curious ceremony was gone through not long ago. Rain was needed, and it was decided to make a sacrifice of importance to the Lubare. Accordingly crowds gathered at the shrine, and a young girl was brought, chosen for her beauty, and dragged before the priest. While others kept her from struggling, the priest with a knife made slight incisions right round her throat. After a short interval the bleeding was stopped and the wounds closed. But the girl is in a sense considered dead—dedicated to the Lubare, and so may never marry. The ceremony is doubtless the relic of actual human sacrifice in days not so very remote. It is not often we hear of these customs and superstitions of the people, for they try to keep them from us. Intensely superstitious. A relic of former human sacrifices.

One day I visited a most sacred hill where there is a shrine that has offerings sent it from all parts of Busoga. The priest is an exceedingly wealthy man. On my approach he came to defend his shrine, two enormous upright slabs of rock. In front of these, on a smaller rock, he sat on his haunches, poising a spear in his right hand, whilst a small boy sat behind him with the sacred shield. He spoke in an affected, indistinct drawl, but got a bit interested when I told him about our God who made the heavens and earth and all mankind, &c. Some bystanders actually argued, a most unusual thing here, and rather refreshing, although the argument was hardly new—viz., "You white men have your God, and we have ours." I want to see this big shrine overthrown one day.

Incursion of Roman Catholics.

The work among such people was not facilitated by the incursion of the Roman Catholics, so long threatened, which during the year under review became an accomplished fact. They did not appear to be much appreciated in the country, but the reason for that was probably political, for they were known as "French," and the majority of the chiefs were strongly "English." The chief, Luba, himself gave them a good piece of land, but steadily refused to have anything to do with their religion. But notwithstanding these difficulties, there was much to call forth thankfulness. Luba was very friendly, and encouraged his people to read, and it was hoped that some of the boys from his household would shortly be baptized. Other candidates for baptism came forward, and the Bishop, after his tour through the country, wrote that the prospects were most cheering, and that large numbers of people appeared to be really seeking after God; while Mr. Hall, too, observed that the heathen prejudices against Christianity were fast breaking down. Mr. Weatherhead was rather less sanguine, yet he quotes the Baganda proverb, "Don't grumble because it is raining a long way off"—i.e. for the rain will come to you in due time—as tersely expressing his belief that the blessing experienced in North Busoga would before long be manifested in the South as well. Four new out-stations were opened, one of them being at the place of Luba's eldest son, and a tour through the Buvuma and adjacent islands was full of interest. Several were reading for baptism on the island of Bagaya, and the interesting fact is noted that the resident teacher was an islander, a Musese, sent and paid for by the Sese Church in response to an appeal made by Mr. Hall. In the course of this tour some islands were visited on which no white man had ever before landed, but in every case the people were friendly, and listened eagerly to the proclamation of the Gospel.

IGANGA.

Iganga.

IGANGA, which is situated in North Busoga, became during the year a place of greater importance than before in consequence of the transference of the seat of Government thither from Bukaleba. The efforts made there and in the district to win the people for Christ were vastly facilitated by the death of the chief, Miro, who had always secretly opposed the spread of Christianity. One of his sons, a boy five years of age, named Oboja, was elected to succeed him, two guardians being appointed to administer the affairs of the country during his minority. Mr. A. Wilson, who with the Rev. S. R. Skeens was responsible for the work in North Busoga, says:—

A young chief and his Christian guardian.

One of these guardians is a reader and a regular attendant at church; the other is an old man, opposed to any departure from the ancient customs. Through the influence of the first-mentioned we secured permission to bring up the child as a Christian, for the accomplishment of which a Christian teacher was selected to take up his abode with the young chief, and to prohibit the use of drink and bhang-smoking in the enclosure, to conduct family worship, and teach the child, as well as all others who wished to learn. As a further precaution, eight Christian youths were chosen to be in special attendance on the chief, so that, as far as possible, a healthy atmosphere might be secured for his upbringing.

This arrangement was made with the approbation even of some who were not Christians, for an old heathen chief remarked concerning Oboja, "We want him brought up in the new customs." The causes already indicated combined with others to bring about a great increase in the attendance at the Sunday services, which nearly doubled, while the contributions of the people also materially advanced, and in North Busoga alone reached almost three times the amount given in 1898 in the whole of the province. The pastoral work was placed in the charge of the Rev. Y. Kiwavu, after his ordination on Trinity Sunday. He was formerly a lay reader, and it is said that his kindness of heart and faithfulness in dealing with souls are only equalled by his indomitable perseverance. Mr. Wilson adds:— "His wife is no less keen in teaching the women, and as husband and wife they are probably the brightest example of connubial bliss in the whole Uganda Church." Two women teachers from Uganda were sent to work among the members of their own sex, who became specially accessible after the death of Miro. That they as well as male teachers were required is shown by the rapid increase in the number of readers, for whereas in March, 1899, there were 400 of them, by September 1,400 were enrolled, and by the end of November 1,610. The success was not limited to the capital. The out-stations, the less distant of which were visited in turns by the two clergy and Mr. Wilson, shared in the general advance, and it was found possible to man some of them by Basoga teachers. One of the latter built a church, capable of holding 250 or more persons, in the country of the chief Gabula, of whom Mr. Wilson writes:—

A faithful and persevering dealer with souls.

Increase of readers.

When two teachers were sent to him some years ago he did not even allow them to sleep within his enclosure, lest they should bewitch him. This year he readily consented to have a teacher, and he even reads himself and attends the services, and has built a large church at his place, and encourages reading. Books have been bought up in hundreds, and reading goes on apace. Recently he ordered all the Lubare (devil) houses in his country to be destroyed, and has asked for Christian teachers for his chiefs and people; but, alas! owing to the lethargy of the Church of Uganda, it is to be feared that many of those people will return to their forbidden Lubare worship, as teachers are not forthcoming.

Bishop Tucker visited Iganga in August and confirmed twenty-six candidates. The number of adult baptisms was twenty-nine, and from nearly every out-station the first fruits were gathered into the Church. This in-gathering was a definite answer to prayer, for it was discovered afterwards that the Gleaners in Ireland who support Mr. Wilson had agreed together to pray for an outpouring of the Holy Spirit on Busoga, and that not only at their public meetings, but also in their private daily devotions. A fact such as this should lead to a large response to the request for prayer which is preferred by Mr. Skeens, who says:—

An answer to prayer.

> We feel that now is the time that more definite efforts should be made to reach the people. The tide is turning; let us take it at the flood lest we find that the ebb of indifference and carelessness sets in, and lest by-and-by we discover that doors which are opened now have been closed because of our tardiness in entering them.

III. BUNYORO.

Until recently little was known of the customs and beliefs of the Banyoro, for although the country had been visited from time to time, no lengthened stay had been made in it by any capable observer until the Rev. A. B. Fisher took up his abode at Kawola in the year under review. In a deeply interesting journal printed at length in the C. M. Gleaner for October, 1899, he describes in some detail the life of Kabarega, the ex-king, and the religion of the people, which latter he speaks of as devil-worship pure and simple. He writes:—

Devil-worship in Bunyoro.

> The Banyoro believed in a great devil, called Byachwezi, and his ten angels, called—(1) Nyabuzana, (2) Kyomya, (3) Kagolo, (4) Mulindwa, (5) Ndaura, (6) Ebona, (7) Mugenye, (8) Mukasa, (9) Lubanga, and (10) Namutali. When these angels were consulted, the priest placed on his head the crown peculiar to each; otherwise the oracle was dumb. The ritual of devil-worship in Bunyoro was most horrible. Propitiation at the favourable time was the remedy for every evil or disaster. This took the form of (a) human sacrifice, (b) cutting with sharp knives, (c) burning with fire, (d) extracting teeth in lower jaw, that the life, the blood, the smoke of human flesh, and the dedication of human teeth might turn the great devil from his stern purpose. The moment a baby is born it is scarred with a sharp knife and dedicated to the devil. If it has a pain in the head or chest and cries, the devil is angry, and the little creature is burned with a red hot iron on the head and chest, that the human smoke may drive away Lubare. When the poor baby's teeth arrive, instead of being a cause of delight to the mother, she painfully extracts them. Amongst my daily patients is a little girl with a deep wound in her forehead, caused by her mother firing a blunt arrow at the child's head that she might draw the blood and cure the pain.

Slavery was widely prevalent; a mother would sell her children for a trifle, and herself submit without any complaint to being sold to a new husband the next day, and even in April, 1899, a little girl was rescued from a man who had bought her for 5,000 shells. At the beginning of the year the country was in a very disturbed condition, for Kabarega was still at large, and demanded taxes and provisions from the chiefs under his influence, while raids were of frequent occurrence. In April, 1899, Kabarega was captured, and soon afterwards human sacrifices were completely abolished, slave dealers were made an example of by the Government, and the terrible Lubare ritual was vigorously combated. It could not, however, be expected that the superstitions of the people would at once be abandoned, or that all would welcome the preaching of the Gospel. Some of the old chiefs were not very friendly, and a few of them in November went privately to Colonel Evatt begging him not to withhold the rain any longer, but to bring down a plentiful supply, "for," they said, "are you not our rainmaker now since Kabarega's capture?" The country was visited by a severe famine, but there was a good fall of rain towards the close of the year which promised speedy relief.

Human sacrifices abolished.

Masindi.

Masindi, the capital of Bunyoro, is twenty-seven miles from Mruli, and thirty-five from Kawola, the second Mission-station in the country. Bishop Tucker accompanied Mr. Fisher when the latter went to open the Mission in February, 1899, and during his stay baptized the king by the name of Yosiya Wiliamu Kitaimba, and his sister by that of Vikitoliya Miria. The king, who is thirteen years of age, and his sister, who is ten years his senior, learnt the truth in Uganda, whither they were taken as captives some years since. Both of them attended the services and classes most regularly, and Mr. Fisher says of the latter:—

> She continues her excellent work among the women. She is exceedingly clever, and can write very well indeed, after only a few lessons. The three and a half years which she spent in Uganda, together with the boy king, were a great blessing to her. She told me that when Miss Taylor first told her about Jesus she would not listen or answer her, but now she is her greatest friend, and I am frequently asked to post her letter to "Mukyala Tela."

A young king uses revenue from taxes to buy New Testaments.

The young king discovered a novel and probably unique way of disposing of his taxes, for it is said that he spent them all in buying New Testaments to give to his people. Great help was rendered to Mr. Fisher by the Rev. T. Semfuma, one of the newly ordained deacons, and by a young fellow whom Mr. Fisher met in 1895 when he visited Kawola in the course of an itineration; he then spoke to him of the Saviour, and gave him a reading-sheet, but did not again come across him until the year under review. Mr. Fisher, writing in March, 1899, of this lad, who was called Fataki, i.e. "gun-cap," because of his fire and energy, said:—

An energetic evangelist.

> He preached his first sermon yesterday with great simplicity and power. Said he, "People told me, 'If you become a Christian you will lose everything'; but what have I lost except my evil habits? They told me I should become dumb if I did not worship the devil, but my mouth is now wide open. They fled in terror from around me as I took the devil and his ten angels and burned them with fire, because they thought if they stood by they would die with me, but here I am alive and talking to you in this church. My friends, put yourselves under Jesus: He is a good Master. Leave Lubare: he is a bad master."

It was splendid to watch the enthusiasm of Fataki, with his burnt face and toothless lower jaw, as he stood there for thirty minutes commending and pleading for Jesus, his Master, before his countrymen. He is now my right hand. He puts me to shame sometimes when he sees God's hand in little things.

Progress of the work at Kawola.

A new church, capable of holding eight hundred persons, was built at the second station, KAWOLA, where the Rev. N. Nakiwafu was placed in charge in June, 1899. The work which commenced so auspiciously made rapid advance. By the end of April there were 1,200 persons attending the schools, ten baptized converts, and twelve candidates for baptism; and when the statistics were made up towards the close of the year there were no less than twenty out-stations, which were worked by four Christian chiefs, two local teachers, and twelve Baganda missionaries, and the number of baptized converts had risen to twenty-nine. Among them was Paulo Byabachwezi, the great chief of Bugaya, who was married soon after his baptism to Damari Kalijuka, a bright Christian princess, and cousin to the king. Several of the late king's adult sons and daughters were among the Gospel readers, and one young prince publicly burnt his charms opposite the church, thus setting a good example which was speedily followed. Mr. H. H. Farthing has been assigned to Kawola.

But the account of the Bunyoro Mission is not complete without a description of the Centenary celebrations, which is best given in Mr. Fisher's own words:—

Native speeches on Centenary Day.

Although we are the youngest station of the C.M.S. in East Africa, I venture to state that our meeting was unique. It was held at 9 a.m. in the church, all dressed in their best, and the place was crowded, with about an equal number outside. I gave the opening address, explaining the object of our meeting, giving a short history of the C.M.S. during its hundred years' work all round the world. Thomas Semfuma was the next speaker.

Thomas' address was full of fine feeling, power, and pathos as he pointed out to the Banyoro what the early missionaries had to endure in Uganda, and how the Church grew out of fire. "God," said he, "chose the Jews to tell the world about Him, but they refused. Has He not now called the English nation to bear witness for Him, and us through them, to this great country of blackness? God sent the English to tell us about salvation, and I now tell you from my own experience—Banyoro! slaves!! you are free. I tell you the blood of Jesus shed for us on the cross breaks the cords and sets us free from sin and Satan. Let this be a great day in your lives."

"God sent the English to tell us about salvation."

The next speaker was another historical character called Semu Kagwa. He described how Mwanga caught him with about a hundred others. He asked them one by one if they still wished to follow Jesus? Every one answered "Yes." The king was perplexed. "Shall I lose all my slaves?" said he. Then he got chiefs to beg their lives that he might not have to kill them, and so Semu was spared. "We have medicine-men," said Semu, "but did you ever hear of them going to another country in search of new cures? No; because they do not want to cure: they do not believe in their cause. But here we have men who believe in Jesus, who has proved able to save, and have come all the way to us, to tell us He is the only medicine for the soul."

The next address was, I think, the most interesting of all. It was given by Mika Fataki, the first Banyoro convert. My heart rejoiced and my eyes filled with tears as this lad, with his bright face shining so as to hide the fire marks, told us about how he found Jesus. "What have they come to tell us about? Peace on earth, goodwill to men. Born a Saviour who is Christ the Lord. That He said to Satan, Get thee hence (get out). It is finished. There is now no condemnation (Rom. viii. 1). Jesus shall reign, and we with Him." He concluded by saying, "If these Europeans had come to tell us a lie, we should have found them out long ago."

Several others in the meeting got up in succession and gave testimony for Jesus. One of them quoted John xv. 13, and remarked, "Europeans lay down their lives for us. God tells them to do it, they must do it, they are compelled to do it in order to preach the Gospel to us." Then, throwing his arms in the direction of the Soudan, he said, "There is still a little bit left to witness in. What is our share in it?" "What is our share in it?"

IV. TORO.

The missionaries in Toro were the Rev. J. Roscoe, whose health compelled him to return to Mengo in September, 1899; the Rev. T. R. Buckley, who was transferred to Bukoba at the beginning of 1899; the Rev. C. H. T. Ecob, who came to Toro from Bulemezi on Mr. Buckley's removal; and Mr. H. E. Maddox. At Kabarole a Centenary meeting was held in April, 1899, the value of the collection after which amounted to about £5. Exceptional drought was followed by acute famine, and though but few deaths from starvation occurred, the scarcity of food caused the people to disperse about the country, and led to a great diminution in the attendances at meetings and services. The condition of the Church was not quite satisfactory, and there was reason to fear that many of those who sought baptism did so from unworthy motives. Mr. Maddox completed the translation of St. Matthew's Gospel into Lutoro. Mr. Ecob went in July to Butiti, a new station, situated in a large district; and Mr. Roscoe paid a visit to Mboga, which is familiar to readers of the Annual Report from Bishop Tucker's graphic description.

V. USUKUMA.

The staff at Nassa was reinforced by the arrival of the Rev. J. W. Purser in the autumn, but on the other hand a severe attack of hæmaturic fever obliged Mr. R. Force-Jones to go to Uganda, and ultimately to return to England. The Christians began, it is said, to realize the duty and responsibility of almsgiving, but their poverty and the scarcity of food were so great that the Rev. F. H. Wright (now at home) and Mr. A. Whitehouse decided to request the authorities in Uganda to withdraw their teachers, and allow their places to be filled by Natives of the country. A small church was built in memory of the late Nassa.

A chapel in memory of missionaries.

Messrs. Hubbard and Nickisson, not however with the aid of foreign money, though friends of the deceased missionaries were ready to provide it, but by the efforts of the converts themselves.

Grievous disappointment was experienced through the lapse of a few of the young people into sin, but, on the other hand, the missionaries were cheered by the hopefulness of the educational work, about 550 children being under regular instruction either at the main station or at one or other of the outposts. There were also several signs that some impression was being made upon the people. The king, Kapongo, attended the service every Sunday morning; the heathen women composed a song which they used as they ground the corn, calling upon one another to listen to the "Words of eternal life, words of God who is our Father in heaven"; and a young fellow was one day heard singing the hymn "Jesus loves me" while he was engaged in his work. A number of the people, too, appeared to be losing faith in their old superstitions, for they confessed that they no longer believed that the king could make medicine to bring rain and keep the locusts from destroying the corn. Some, however, were more earnest and more courageous, and the number of baptisms was about the same as in 1898. Mr. Wright concludes his Annual Letter by calling attention to the fact that on every side of Nassa are districts containing Wasukuma, or members of other tribes, who have never heard the Name of Christ.

MOHAMMEDAN LANDS.

So many voices have been raised from time to time in defence of Mohammedanism, proclaiming its suitability for many races, and also declaring the futility of all efforts to Christianize Moslem races, that it is well to place on record the opinion of the Rev. D. S. Margoliouth, Laudian Professor of Arabic in the University of Oxford, concerning the character of Mohammedanism, expressed in an article on "The Failure of Islam," which appeared in the C.M. Intelligencer for April, 1900. Speaking with an intimate acquaintance with Arabic literature, he declares his conviction that "if the Bible and the Church were everywhere willingly substituted by Mohammedans for the Koran and the Mosque, there would be nothing to regret in such a transformation, but only cause for rejoicing." After describing the character of the founder of Islam, and of Mohammedan rulers who have succeeded him, he speaks of the difficulties by which missionaries are confronted, and says:—

Professor Margoliouth on "The Failure of Islam."

The manifold and irksome ceremonies that constitute part of the daily life of a Mohammedan not only mean a return to that bondage from which mature man should be free, but they are thought to constitute an obligation to be repaid by the Deity. The fact that a Mohammedan will probably have performed them regularly from boyhood constitutes a serious bar to missionary effort; for it turns him who would fain bring good tidings into a messenger of bad news. His message is that all this credit is imaginary; the sum amassed by such long exertions does not exist. Go and tell the bankers in Lombard Street that the gold coin in their vaults and in those of the Bank of England is all counterfeit; that the slightest test will expose it; that in a few days or hours no one will give commodities in exchange for it. He who brought such a message now would simply incur ridicule: for the owners of the coin could immediately convince themselves that the tale was false. But supposing they knew in their secret hearts that it was true; that they dare not go down into the vaults or test the coin for fear it should show base colour; that numerous incidents coming into their memory all confirmed the news. What in that case would happen to such a messenger? Even to-day he would not be safe from pistol or dagger. And it is precisely such a message as that which the Christian missionary brings to those who all their lives have supposed that the five daily prayers, and the fasting month, and the pilgrimage to Mecca are the service which God desires.

The Christian missionary's message to Moslems.

Professor Margoliouth takes a hopeful view of the prospects of missionary work among Moslems. He says:—

The slowness with which missionary enterprise proceeds in Mohammedan countries ought not to discourage, though it may well sadden. It would seem to have been peculiarly the function of our country to show to Eastern nations what the fruits of the Spirit are; to prove to those who were fast bound in misery and iron that God has cared for their liberation. The rigid impartiality which our Government displays to all creeds, so far as they abstain from barbarous and inhuman practices, its firm refusal to make it to any man's interest to turn Christian, seems to provide the conditions under which the Gospel message will, if I may so say, receive the most favourable hearing. When once the nations of the world begin to recognize as indissolubly connected with the name of Christian those virtues which we call the fruits of the Spirit, progress will be more rapid. Thus when a traveller in the heart of Arabia tells us how for two whole years he was not safe for a single day from the spear of the fanatic because he avowed himself a Christian, we fancy that country to be hopelessly lost; but presently when he tells us how those same fanatics thought he could be trusted where they would not trust their own co-religionists, and thus considered a Christian to be one who would not deceive, the prospect is not without a gleam of hope. And just as in Egypt for many centuries the proximity of dominant Mohammedanism degraded Christianity, so in those countries in which England is dominant, a consciousness of the need for something better seems to be making itself felt among the non-Christian populations. Difficult, therefore, as the work is to approach, it is probably far easier now than even half a century ago; even in countries where Christian powers are not dominant, education is spreading, and it is well if, as the old beliefs die and are discredited, there be teachers ready to introduce the good spirit into the vacant breast.

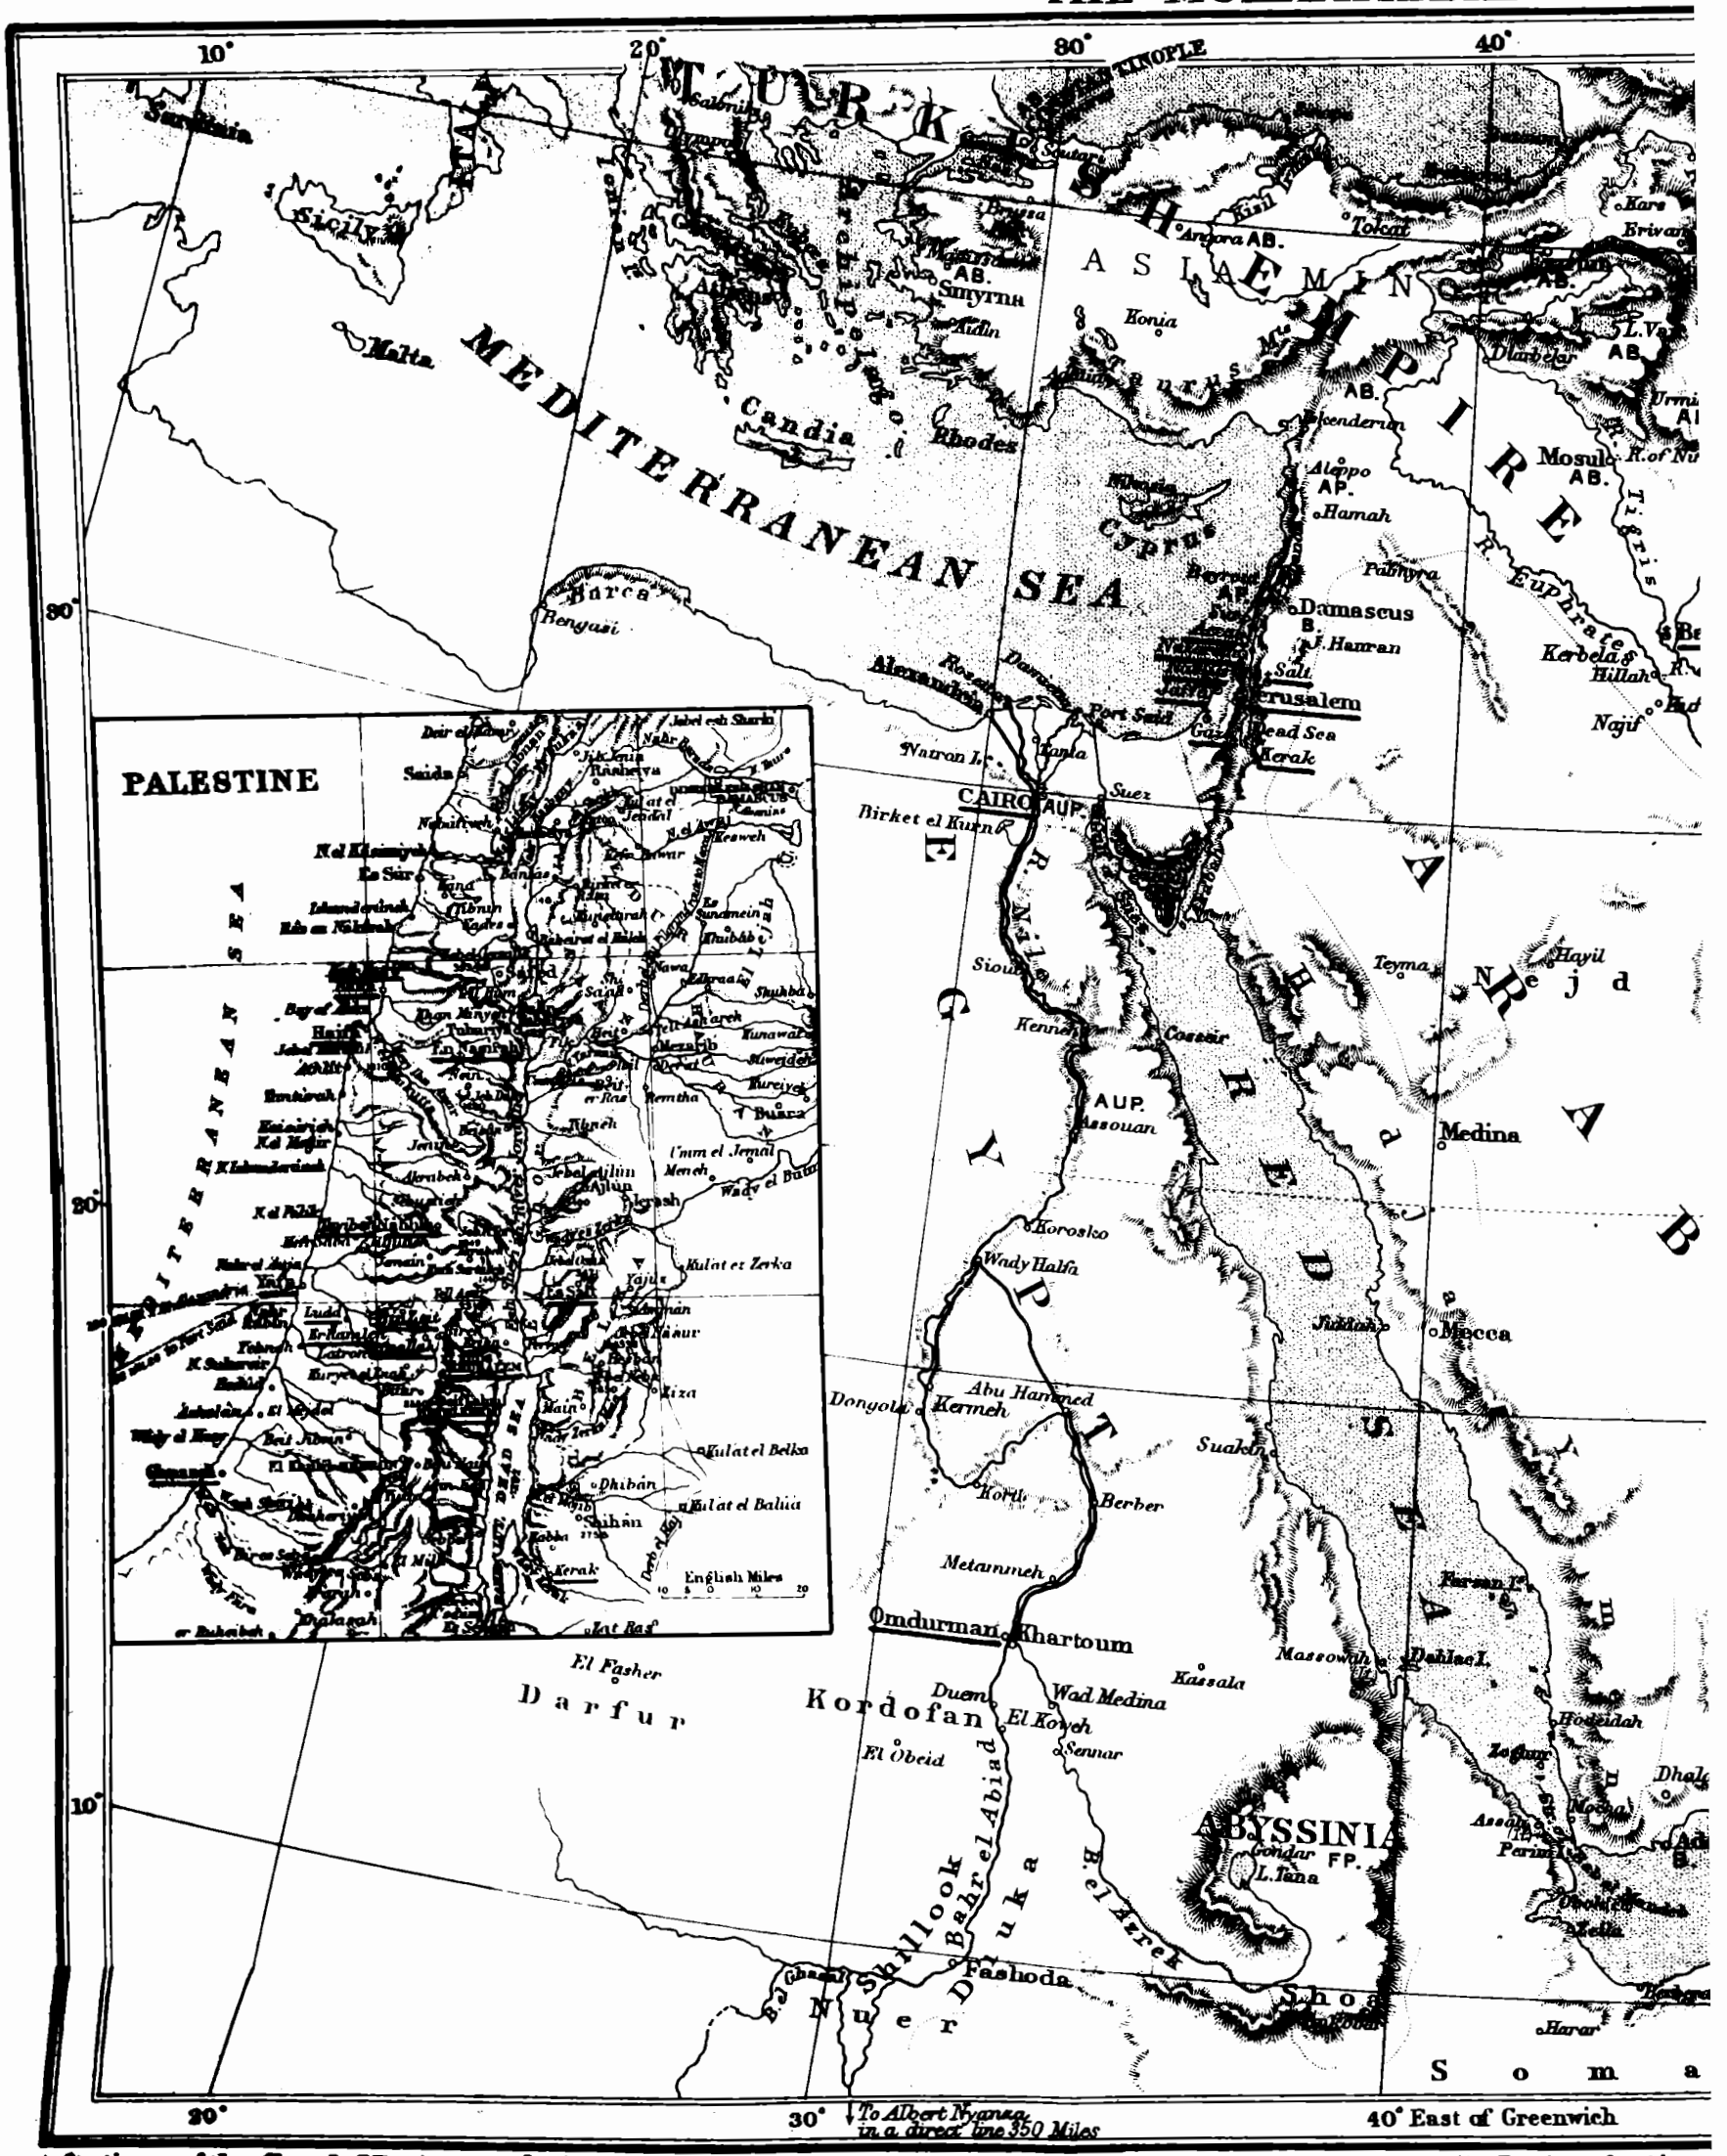
Restoration of order in Egyptian Soudan.



It is a matter for congratulation that the power of the Khalifa in the Eastern Soudan has been finally and completely shattered. On November 24th, 1899, fourteen months after the battle of Omdurman, Colonel Sir F. R. Wingate overtook the fugitive Khalifa at Om Debrikat, and entirely annihilated the Dervish army, whose leader as well as his principal Emirs were among the slain; and a little later the notorious Osman Digna, the cause of so much trouble in the past, was surrounded and captured. Thus were brought to an end the misery and devastation wrought by Mahdism in the once prosperous region of the Soudan. The nature of the Khalifa's rule can be estimated by the facts that the Shakurich tribe, who formerly pastured 80,000 camels, had the number reduced by Dervish rule to about 1,000, and that immense numbers of the Hadendowas, who were kept as prisoners in Osman Digna's camp, died of starvation. The work of restoring order and good government in this region, which may be regarded as recovered from barbarism, proceeded rapidly; the importation and exportation of slaves was absolutely forbidden, taxes were levied upon the staple products of the country, and the Soudan was thrown open to traders in the month of September.

Reforms in Egypt.

In Egypt, too, the organization of the Government made progress, much good being done by the judicial reforms of recent years. A striking evidence of the value of these reforms is afforded by the fact that the fees for legal business increased from £78,000, with a very high tariff, in 1891, to £115,000, with a very low tariff, in 1899.

Work among ancient Eastern Christians.

Great interest has always attached to the survivors of the ancient Christian Churches in Mohammedan lands, and efforts to lead them to a purer faith have been made, among the Copts in Egypt chiefly by American missionaries, and among the Nestorians in Turkey and Persia by the Assyrian Mission set on foot by the late Archbishop Benson. In the latter country some success was gained, but the advent of a Mission organized by the Russian Church, the members of which persuaded many of the Nestorians to desert their own Church altogether, has affected the progress of the Assyrian Mission, the existence of which in Persia depends on the request of the Nestorians that work may be prosecuted amongst them.

EGYPT MISSION.

The original object of the Missions formerly grouped under the heading of the "Mediterranean Mission," which were begun at Malta in 1815, at the close of the great war, and were afterwards extended to Egypt, Abyssinia, Greece, Turkey, Asia Minor, and Palestine, was twofold: firstly, to revive the Eastern Churches; and, secondly, through them to evangelize the Mohammedans. Some very able and devoted missionaries were employed in this work—Jowett, Gobat, Krapf, Pfander, Koelle, &c. But the hopes of the founders of the Society were not fulfilled. Oriental Christendom manifested no readiness to be quickened into life by emissaries from the West; and Moslem fanaticism, which barely tolerated Greek and Armenian Christianity, utterly repudiated the Gospel when presented in a pure form. Despite treaties and concessions on paper, missionary effort among the Moslem population of the Turkish Empire is carried on under the most vexatious restrictions, and a Mohammedan can only become a Christian at the imminent risk of liberty and life.

As above stated, the Society had formerly a Mission in Egypt, as part of its scheme for the revival of the Eastern Churches. Many of the Coptic clergy, and one Bishop, were trained in the C.M.S. Seminary at Cairo; but the visible results were small. In 1882, in response to the appeals of the late Miss Whately, and in consequence of the British occupation of Egypt, the Rev. F. A. Klein, formerly of Jerusalem, was sent to Cairo to begin a new Mission among the Mohammedans. A Medical Mission was opened in 1889, and ladies were added to the staff in the following year.

Reinforcements.

THE staff of the Mission was reinforced by the addition of the following:—the Rev. William Henry Temple Gairdner, B.A., Trinity College, Oxford, formerly Travelling Secretary of the Student Volunteer Missionary Union, who was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London, in St. Paul's Cathedral, on October 8th; the Rev. Rennie MacInnes, M.A., Trinity College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of St. Matthew's, Bayswater, and Mrs. MacInnes, M.B. London, sister of the Rev. E. S. Carr, of the South India Mission, and of Dr. D. W. Carr of the Persia Mission; the Rev. Llewellyn Henry Gwynne, London College of Divinity, Vicar of Emmanuel, Nottingham; Miss Louisa Elizabeth Dimond Braine-Hartnell, of The Olives, sister of Miss P. Braine-Hartnell of the Persia Mission; and Miss Geraldine Mary Western, of The Willows. All the above, with the exception of Miss Western, who sailed in October, left for Egypt in November. Miss F. M. Sells came home in April, 1899, returning to the Mission in October; the Rev. and Mrs. J. G. B. Hollins (the latter invalided) came home in May; the Rev. and Mrs. F. F. Adeney, and Miss E. A. Lawford in July, the two former returning in October; Dr. A. C. Hall in August, sailing again in December; Miss E. S. Shields, on medical certificate, in October. Dr. F. J. Harpur left England for the Mission in October.

Ordination.

The Rev. D. M. Thornton was admitted to priest's orders by Bishop Blyth, of Jerusalem, on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899. Mr. Thornton was married in November to Miss Elaine Anderson.

Death of Mrs. J. G. B. Hollins.

The Mission suffered a great loss by the death of Mrs. J. G. B. Hollins, at Bournemouth, on January 17th, 1900, after a prolonged illness.

The Rev. F. F. Adeney is Secretary of the Mission.

CAIRO.

Cairo.

The Mission staff at CAIRO during the year under review consisted of the Rev. F. F. Adeney, who resided at Helouan, the Rev. J. G. B. Hollins (until May, 1899), the Rev. D. M. Thornton, Mrs. Bywater, Miss J. E. Bywater, Miss H. Adeney, Miss M. J. Greer, for a time, and Miss E. S. Shields.

Centenary celebrations.

On the day of the Centenary, by permission of Dean Butcher, a bright and hearty English service was conducted in the English church. The Dean kindly allowed the missionaries to arrange and conduct the service; he read the lessons, and the Rev. W. E. Taylor preached. In the afternoon a Social Meeting for all Mission workers was held at the Old Cairo school, when an Arabic translation of the Committee's Letter to native workers was read. Centenary offerings amounting to £87 were presented, to be used towards the purchase of a piece of land and the erection of a Mission room thereon, and objects of interest and curiosity to be forwarded to the Loan Department at the C.M. House were brought together by the native teachers. In the evening a public missionary meeting for Arabic-speaking Christians was held in the American church, the first, the Rev. F. F. Adeney thinks, which had ever been held in Egypt. Some 400 were present, Copts and Protestants in about equal numbers. Mr. Adeney presided. The speakers were the native pastor connected with the American Mission; a Coptic Christian, the editor of the largest Coptic paper; the Rev. Dr. Watson, of the American Mission; and the C.M.S. native catechist. The brotherly kindness of the members of the American Presbyterian Mission was most marked.

A steady improvement was noticeable in the number of persons attending the Services, but there was some disappointment in connexion with them, for the young adherent, Iskandar, who at one time appeared so hopeful, gradually ceased to attend and eventually fell away altogether.

Schools.

No report of the Boys' School has been received from Mr. Thornton, who superintended it, but the Secretary of the Mission states that there were fewer pupils than in 1897, that the teachers were far from efficient, and that neither of the two boys who sat for the Government Examination for the Primary Certificate succeeded in passing. The poor condition of this school and that at Old Cairo was greatly regretted by Mr. Adeney, who expresses his opinion that in work among Mohammedans schools are quite as important, and need quite as much attention, as Medical Missions. Greater satisfaction was given by the Girls' Day School, though it was small, and by the Girls' Boarding-school, which was under Miss Bywater and Miss Greer. Two deaths of former pupils occurred: the one of a Bible-woman, named Anisa, who passed away quietly and happily, and the other of a little black girl, who a year and a half before had for some time been in the Old Cairo Hospital. Miss Bywater writes of her:—

She was visited several times during the last sad days, and those who saw her were much struck with her growth in grace, and the refining influence of her faith in Jesus Christ. She had long talks with Lydia, of whose baptism she heard with the deepest interest, and she herself expressed a wish to be baptized. Her life was ebbing away, but she was spared till by God's grace she was received into the visible fold of Christ. Mr. Taylor, who lived near, was asked to baptize her, which he did, after satisfying himself that her mind was clear, and her trust firm in the Lord Jesus Christ. Three days later this dear child went home to the Saviour, the first ripe sheaf gathered from among our Moslem girls.

"First sheaf from among Moslem girls."

Lydia, who is mentioned by Miss Bywater in the above extract, is the girl whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report. Two girls were under preparation for baptism; they had been in the school for eight years and were old enough to understand the nature of the step which they proposed to take, and their mother willingly gave her consent to their openly confessing Christ. Miss Greer visited as far as possible among the parents of the children, usually being accompanied by one of the elder girls, a custom which was useful as affording the latter some sort of training in spiritual work. Once when it happened that the people wanted were not at home, Miss Greer sat down on a doorstep, and devoted herself to the crowd of children who gathered round her, with the result that some time afterwards a bright little girl arrived at the school saying that "she wanted to come and learn about Jesus," and mentioning the fact of the lesson on the doorstep. House-to-house Visiting was continued by Miss Adeney, who describes the difficulties in the way of gaining the attention of the women:—

A lesson on a doorstep.

They are often busy washing, or baking their bread, or preparing food, and people come and go even when the mistress of the house, perhaps, wishes to give us her attention. Often, too, the live-stock sharing the apartment cause interruptions. The other day the pigeons that were flying about the room had to be caught for the next meal just as the group of women seated on the floor with us were beginning to take in what we were saying. Another time a fierce ram nearly got itself loose from its corner, and there was a general scattering of our audience till the ram had been seized by the horns and the nail which secured it had been firmly hammered into the wall. Then there are the daily troubles of life, quarrels and sicknesses, poverty and death, which incline the women to be full of talk about themselves, and unwilling to turn their attention to what we are most anxious they should hear.

Distractions in house-to-house work.

Sometimes, however, she was warmly greeted, as when a Soudanese woman left her washing, insisted on making coffee, and listened attentively to what was said; or when an old Mohammedan woman bade her welcome by kissing her on both cheeks. The class held on Sundays for fellaheen girls proved disappointing, for the attendance fell off greatly after the summer, so one day Miss Adeney, finding the girls would not come freely to her, tried the experiment of going to them, and though at first she was received with shouts of "Christian! Christian! she wants to make us unbelievers," she was able eventually to gather a fairly attentive audience. The Book Depôt continued in its old prominent position, and was frequented by many Mohammedans, with whom the agent had more or less profitable conversations. The Rev. B. Baring-Gould, when in Cairo, was struck with the number of Moslem sheikhs and others who greeted the agent as a friend when they met him in the streets, or even in El Azhar University. The number of Bibles and other religious books sold during the year was 1,174, and in addition many tracts were distributed by the various workers. The Rev. W. E. Taylor, who though attached to the Eastern Equatorial Africa Mission, in connexion with which he was responsible for revising Swahili translations, yet resided at Cairo, and in the absence of Mr. Hollins superintended the Evangelistic Work carried on by the two catechists. After the Centenary celebrations referred to above, a special effort was made to reach the Mohammedans by means of a series of daily open-air and evening indoor meetings, but the former were attended with so much commotion that by the request of Lord Cromer they were discontinued, and the latter were disturbed to such an extent that the police had to be asked to keep order in the street outside the door. At length, only one evening gathering a week could be held, and that often took place, not indoors in the strict sense of the word, but in the open courtyard. Eighteen inquirers, not counting those whose motives on investigation proved to be utterly unworthy, came forward as a result of this and similar work; among them a house-agent, a custom-house official, a medical student, two clerks, a grocer, a baker, a seal engraver, and a black slave in the household of a person in high position. There were also some sheikhs whose attitude afforded grounds for hopefulness.

OLD CAIRO.

Old Cairo. Such time as he could spare from the study of the language was devoted by the Rev. J. L. Macintyre, formerly of the Niger Mission, to the Boys' School, in which he taught for an hour each day, while every week he held a meeting for the four masters, with whom he went over the lesson for the Sunday-school. The great majority of the pupils at the Girls' School, under Miss E. F. Waller and Miss E. S. Shields, were Mohammedans, for towards the close of 1898 the Copts commenced the education of their own children, and nearly all the older girls at the C.M.S. school were forced to attend the new institution. The regret which the loss of these children caused the missionaries would have been modified had they had reason to believe that satisfactory Christian teaching would be given them, but it was impossible to entertain any such hope, for many of the Copts are even more ignorant of Christianity than Mohammedan women are of Islam. At the time of the special preachings to Mohammedans in the open air, and the consequent agitation against the missionaries which was set on foot by a native paper, the attendance at the Sunday-school dropped from ninety to one! Some of the parents said that the children were becoming Christians, and that therefore they were afraid to let them attend, while others declared that the missionaries wanted to kill the young people, but it was difficult to ascertain which prospect caused the most alarm. The Medical Work was under Dr. A. C. Hall (who was absent in England for some months) and Dr. F. O. Lasbrey, assisted by Miss L. Crowther and Miss E. K. Brown. Miss F. M. Sells, after her furlough, rejoined the staff at the close of the year, and Miss L. E. D. Braine-Hartnell joined it a few weeks later. There was good reason for hopefulness about one little girl, who was for a time a surgical patient in the hospital and afterwards attended the Sunday-school, to which she always brought four or five of her companions. A great change also was witnessed in a Mohammedan boy about eleven years old, of whom Miss Brown says:— Medical Work.

> The lad, who was in the hospital for six or seven weeks, did not know the difference, when he came in, between God and Mohammed; he thought God was Mohammed and Mohammed was God. Soon he seemed most interested, and begged me to give him a Testament to take home with him. He could not read himself, but said he would get somebody else to read it to him. He went off to his far-off village, carrying his book, and said to me, "I will never forget Jesus—never." We have not seen him since. "I will never forget Jesus."

An effort was made to systematize the Visiting and pay greater attention to those districts not actually in the town, and this was rendered more feasible by the employment of a second Bible-woman and the assistance which Miss Greer, of Cairo, gave to Miss M. Cay and Miss Waller, who carried on this branch of the work. They met with every sort of reception. In some cases, though happily they were the exception to the general rule, it was impossible even to gain a hearing; in others the missionaries were baffled by the dense ignorance of the people and by their apparent incapacity to grasp or remember the simplest teaching; and in others, again, they were warmly welcomed. One or two instances will be of interest. Miss Waller writes:—

In a very poor house I found a woman who had been ill. Her child had only attended the school a very short time, and I had not known where she lived, but found the mother in a house where I had gone to look for somebody else. She had never heard of the Lord Jesus, not even by the name of Saeedna Eesa, by which the Moslems usually speak of Him. When I had explained who He was, I read to her the story of His casting out the evil spirit in the synagogue (St. Mark i.), and of His healing Simon's wife's mother. She was intensely interested. I have often seen the women listen before, but never devour the words as this one did. At last when I asked if she would like to pray to our Lord, and ask Him to save her, she was much astonished. "Can I pray to Him? I don't know the right words to say, and ought I not to put on a clean dress to pray in? He will not like me dirty like this." When I suggested that it was no use trying to make oneself better before going to the doctor, and that she had better come just as she was, she consented to pray, and said the words after me.

"Can I pray to Him?"

And Miss Cay says:—

In one house the women were quick to understand, so much so, that when one of them repeated what was said for the sake of an old woman who was present, the latter told her she need not do so, for she could hear and understand quite well. Presently a remark was made which I treasure up, partly for its pretty Eastern expression, and partly for its deep truth as regards the Gospel we preach; one of our hearers said, "Their words are so sweet that the thirsty may drink from them."

"Sweet words."

On another occasion a woman was met who remarked, "Tell me something like what you said when I saw you before"; and when the missionary replied that she had forgotten what that was, the woman was able to refresh her memory. Such an experience must have been specially cheering, for as a rule the women when questioned as to what had been said to them would answer, "We are like donkeys, we do not understand reading." Something was done to influence the women in the villages, the people of which were usually very hospitable. At Tulbeah, near to the Pyramids, Miss Crowther and Miss Waller made their way to the Omdeh's house, and spoke to the ladies of his harem, one or two of whom seemed to be interested as they heard for the first time of the love of God in giving His Son to die for sinners; and at Bes-adeen a large number of people were reached, the women who were of an industrious turn of mind bringing their sewing with them to the meeting. Several of the villages within reach of Old Cairo were visited by the missionary Gleaners, who devoted some of the Saturdays on which they were free from the ordinary routine of the Mission to this form of evangelistic work.

Visiting the villages.

Many of the missionaries make earnest requests for prayer, and mention subjects for intercession which cannot be recorded here; but there is one particular topic, the importance of which is not generally realized, to which Miss Waller refers in the following terms:—

The Native Christians need prayer.

Please remember that the Native Christians need prayer quite as much as those who are not converted. I wish the idea could be got rid of—that once someone is converted, he needs nothing more, but is done with. I had almost said the Native Christians need more prayer than the others. They are exposed to temptation, and one has to remember that they have no public opinion on the right side. It takes very real Christianity to stand the atmosphere of wrong all round. Some of them have terrible falls, and these bring disgrace to their religion.

THE EGYPTIAN SOUDAN.

The difficulties in the way of carrying out the projected advance to Khartoum, which were mentioned in last year's Report (page 128), were not removed until almost the end of the year, when at length the requisite permission to go up-country was received by Dr. F. J. Harpur and the Rev. Ll. H. Gwynne. It was on St. Andrew's Day, November 30th, the Day of Intercession, after a little service had been held at Old Cairo in the large tent which was then consecrated to God for His work in the Soudan, that the official permit arrived, and six days later the missionaries mentioned, together with some native helpers, started for the scene of the death of Gordon. They reached OMDURMAN after a journey of eight days, and soon had interviews with Lord Kitchener, then on the point of leaving for South Africa, and with Colonel Maxwell, who was left in command. Before long they succeeded in obtaining a house in Omdurman, fourteen feet square, in the centre of the so-called Christian quarter, where the unhappy Christians who denied their faith under the Mahdi's rule drew together, the walls within walls and the many strong wooden doors speaking eloquently of the terror in which they lived. Khartoum itself is four miles from Omdurman, and Dr. Harpur and Mr. Gwynne wrote on February 2nd, 1900:— Omdurman.

Every available workman has been pressed into the work of building the Gordon Memorial College, the Sirdar's palace, the Government buildings, the hotel, and a magnificent mosque. The whole place is mapped out into streets and squares, and is gradually assuming the aspect of a new town. The bulk of the population, however, numbering 20,000, is still at Omdurman. The markets and streets thronged with people carrying on their business prove how quickly the new control has told. The Soudanese are as happy as can be, and look upon the British as brothers. They or their friends fought with them, and saw them fight at the Atbara and Kereri.

Concerning the prospects of missionary work, and their immediate occupations, they added:—

As far as we can judge, after six weeks' residence, there seems to be very little fanatical Mohammedanism here except among the Egyptians who have re-entered the country with us. The faith of the Soudanese has been rudely shaken by the downfall of the Khalifa. The memory of Gordon was never more fresh to these dark minds. Mahdism, wrong, and tyranny triumphed for a little while, and Gordon's work was destroyed and buried; but they have seen it rise again in the beginnings of liberty, equity, and righteousness set up by his countrymen, and the splendid memorial of his great life now being built to benefit themselves. To us it seems strange, as perhaps some day it will seem to them, that all knowledge for the building up of a man and a country should be taught in Gordon College save the knowledge of God through Jesus Christ, which was the foundation of the true greatness of General Gordon. People not fanatical.

Service in the house of the late Mahdi.

Though unable to do any direct missionary work, we have our time fully occupied. Soon after our arrival we were permitted to hold a service for British officers and non-commissioned officers at Omdurman. Our first service was held on Christmas Day in the house of the Mahdi, now used as the officers' club. It was most probably the first Church of England service ever held here, and brought together nearly all the British residents. These services have been continued every Sunday morning, and the attendance increased lately by the presence of visitors from Cairo. The ladies of the party attracted the wonder and surprise of the Natives, most of whom had never seen an English lady before. On Sunday afternoon Dr. Harpur holds a service for Christians in our own compound. Last Sunday there were more than forty present, including the Coptic priest and other orthodox Copts, as well as the Presbyterians. They are all most anxious to be helped, especially those who have denied their faith and are now waiting to be reinstated into the Christian Church.

The late Khalifa's boy a missionary's servant.

While one of us has to spend much time in acquiring the language, the other finds his time fully occupied. Our two boys we took from the military hospital. One was the Khalifa's boy, whose duty it was to carry water for his master. He was found sitting by the dead body of the Khalifa. The other was a poor little Baggara, only six years old, picked up on the last campaign and brought by some kind officer to the hospital. Both these needed the attention of a doctor. In addition to these, two or three patients regularly appear every day to be treated.

From personal observation and from information gleaned from others it seems evident that Khartoum must eventually be the centre of all missionary work in the Soudan. On the north, within easy distance by rail, are Berber and Dongola; on the east, Kassala; on the south, Koweh and Duem up the White Nile, and Wadmidna and Senaar up the Blue Nile—all with still flourishing markets, and all within easy reach by boat. On the west, the inhabitants round the once flourishing district of El Obeid have all disappeared, and our officers report the place as deserted. El Fasher, the capital of Darfur, is still garrisoned by the Dervishes, and will not be occupied until late this year. It is our opinion that with a small steamer we might establish stations amongst the Shilooks, the Dinkas, and the Nuers, with Khartoum as a base. However, we hope with the permission of our Committee to visit these tribes at the close of this year and report from actual knowledge.

But, unhappily, it did not appear in March, 1900, as if the Government agreed with the principle that the admission of "all comers" to the Soudan included missionaries. Full permission, it is true, was given for a colporteur of the Bible Society to work in Omdurman, and to open a Bible-stall in the covered market; but, on the other hand, a notice was posted in prominent places prohibiting missionary work, and warning all against attempting to change the religion of the people by talking in the streets or by opening schools for such a purpose.

PALESTINE MISSION.

The Society commenced work in Palestine in 1851, in response to an invitation given by Bishop Gobat. The following places are occupied by European labourers: Jerusalem, 1851; Nazareth, 1852; Salt, 1873; Jaffa, 1876; Nablous, 1876; Ramallah, 1877; Gaza, 1878; Haifa, 1884; Acca, 1890; Kefr Yasif, 1892; Bir Zeit, 1892; Ramleh, 1894; Kerak, 1894; Bethlehem, 1899. In 1887 the Society commenced to send unmarried ladies to this Mission, and their work among Mohammedan women has been greatly blessed. Medical Missions also have done much to diminish prejudice. The first Mission hospital was opened at Gaza in 1891. Since then Nablous, Acca, Salt, and Kerak have been made centres of Medical Missionary work. (See also Headnotes to "Egypt," p. 145.)

Reinforcements.

THE following reinforcements joined the Mission during the year:—Miss Ethel Mary Burnaby, of The Olives; Miss Florence Elizabeth Neale, of The Willows; Miss Helen Mary Elizabeth Scott, of The Olives; Miss Beatrice Hassall, of the New South Wales C.M. Association; and Miss Isabella Murray McCallum, of the New Zealand C.M. Association. Miss Hassall and Miss McCallum reached the Mission in December, and the other ladies left England in November. But the Mission received a yet larger reinforcement by the transfer of the work of the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East to the C.M.S., in consequence of which the following ladies were added to the staff of the Society, the date given after each name being that of the year in which the missionary commenced her work under the F.E.S.:—Miss Harriet Lee, 1882; Miss Mary Ann Eliza Newey, 1884; Miss Minnie Beverlyn McConaghy, 1890; Miss Mary Hicks, 1891; Miss Annie Cooper, Miss Kathleen Patten, and Miss M. Rosenhayn, 1896; Miss Florence Moore Biddington, 1897; Miss Fanny Cooper, 1898. Mr. F. T. Ellis, who has worked in Palestine since 1888 as a missionary in local connexion, has been received into home connexion.

Miss M. C. S. Adamson was invalided home in April, 1899; Mrs. A. Liggins returned to England in May, Dr. J. Cropper in August, the Rev. Dr. S. Gould, Miss E. A. Cooke and Miss F. L. A. Roberts (invalided) in September. Mrs. R. Sterling sailed for Palestine in October. The Rev. Dr. S. Gould, who was married on September 20th at St. Paul's, Old Ford, to Miss M. C. S. Adamson, of this Mission, left for the Mission with his wife and the Misses A. and E. C. Wardlaw-Ramsay in November; the Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Wolters and Miss F. Nuttall in December; Misses A. M. Elverson and M. A. Daniels in March, 1900; and Miss M. B. McConaghy in April.

The resignations of Dr. and Mrs. J. Cropper, Mrs. A. Liggins, and Miss S. L. Barker have been regretfully accepted.

Death of Rev. S. Gibbon.

The death on July 19th at Jerusalem from fever of the Rev. S. Gibbon, who had been admitted by Bishop Blyth to priest's orders only seven weeks previously, removed from the Mission one whose Christlike character had given promise of a fruitful ministry. He sailed for the Mission in November, 1898, and even in the brief period of active service which was allotted him succeeded in gaining the respect and affection of his colleagues and of those amongst whom his lot was cast. Shortly after his death the Rev. J. R. L. Hall wrote:—

> He had a special talent for work amongst children and young people, and was able to exercise an influence over the young which none of the rest of us, his brother missionaries, have been able to obtain. It was truly wonderful to see the way in which our young people were attracted by him and really influenced. I believe that he has been the means of the conversion of several of them, although his stay amongst us was so very short. Eternity alone will show how large a work he was permitted to do in the few short months of his life in Palestine.

A little memoir of Mr. Gibbon was prepared by the Rev. W. J. L. Sheppard, Assistant-Secretary of the Society, and published under the title, Accomplished at Jerusalem.

Centenary celebrations.

The Spring Conference of the missionaries of the Society in Palestine was held at Jerusalem in April, and synchronized with the Centenary celebrations. Special sermons were preached in St. Paul's Church (C.M.S.) in Arabic, and in Christ Church (London Jews' Society) in English, on April 9th. On the 11th the Holy Communion was administered at St. Paul's Church at 10 a.m., and a Devotional Meeting was held afterwards at which the Rev. J. H. Sedgwick gave an address. On the 12th the Holy Communion was administered at St. Paul's Church at 7 a.m., and the Rev. J. Zeller gave an address; a special service was held later, at 10.30, at which Bishop Blyth was present, and the Rev. J. R. Longley Hall preached from Psalm cxxvi. A children's meeting was held in the open-air under the olive trees in the afternoon, which was attended by the children of all the English Mission schools in Jerusalem. In the evening a public meeting was held in the C.M.S. Iron-room at which the Bishop presided, and Mr. T. F. Victor Buxton, a member of the Parent Committee, and the Rev. Montague Harris, who were then visiting Jerusalem, were among the speakers. The Rev. J. H. Sedgwick preached a special sermon at St. George's Church, by invitation of the Bishop, on Sunday, April the 16th. Mr. Hall wrote:—

> Our Centenary was, I think, a great success, and we have very much to thank God for. There was great enthusiasm and much interest, and I earnestly trust that we have all been stirred up to press forward in the work with greater energy and with firmer faith. We are sometimes inclined to mourn the small results in work, but when I look back upon the twenty-three years that I have been in the country, I am simply wonderstruck at the very great results. In 1876 the Moslems were bitterly opposed to us and did not want to listen to the Gospel. Now (1899) we have comparatively small opposition from the Moslem people, although the Government is nervously antagonistic. There is no difficulty in setting the Gospel before the Moslems, provided the Government officials do not intervene. There is no doubt that the door to the Moslems is opening more and more, especially here in Jerusalem. The upper-class Moslems in Jerusalem are far more numerous than in any other city in this country, and they are not only most friendly but many of them are really anxious to know what we believe and teach—not because they want to become Christians, but because they are inquisitive and are interested in religious subjects. There is a splendid field for work amongst these intelligent Moslem gentry if a missionary could be appointed specially to this work, and we look forward to a very rich harvest from amongst them, with the Lord's blessing. Our hearts are full of praise for what the Lord is doing. We believe that large numbers of Moslems as well as Christians here in Jerusalem, and also in Gaza and other parts of the Mission, have definitely accepted Christ as their Saviour.

"Splendid field for work."

JERUSALEM.

The staff of the Society at JERUSALEM consisted of the Rev. J. R. L. Hall, the Secretary of the Mission, and Mrs. Hall, the Rev. J. Zeller, the Rev. J. H. Sedgwick, the Rev. I. Baz, the native pastor, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Ellis, Miss A. Welch, and Miss J. Wenham. An interesting manifestation of gratitude for the work of the Society occurred in connexion with a prayer-meeting of the workers which was held on January 7th, 1900, with the object of interceding for the British troops in South Africa, and of humiliation for personal and national sins. The day before the meeting a Syrian lady, the wife of one of the principal members of the C.M.S. congregation, came and asked if the Natives might join in the meeting, saying that they fully realized that but for England's influence at Constantinople, missionary work in the Levant would have been impossible, and that they desired earnestly to pray that nothing might be allowed to weaken that influence and power.

Two members of the first class at the Preparandi Institution completed their course during the year and left to take up work as teachers at Gaza and Nazareth respectively. There was no difficulty in filling the vacant places, for seven applications for admission were received. The men were carefully examined in October and two of them failed entirely, but were allowed to stay on for a time in order that they might be more fully tested as to their Christian character and their intellectual capacity. Mr. Zeller, who was over the Institution, observes that new pupils furnish a good criterion of the spiritual life in the Churches, and also, by their intellectual capacities, of the efficiency or the reverse of the teaching in the day-schools. Educational rivalry was very keen in Jerusalem, Greeks, Russians, Roman Catholics, Jews, and even Mohammedans having their own schools; but the Bishop Gobat School easily held its own, and there were more applications for admission than could be favourably received, although the removal of the Preparandi Institution to a separate house made it possible to increase the number of boys from fifty to eighty-two. A Sunday-school was held in connexion with the school every week, and several of the boys went in for the Scripture Competition in the Children's World, two obtaining prizes and the remainder certificates. Cricket and football were very popular and promoted the health of the lads. The late Rev. S. Gibbon before his death took part in the games, and his genial presence was greatly missed in the playground. Mr. Ellis says that he often received encouraging communications from old boys, one of whom he found was a Sunday-school teacher, while another at a critical period of his life sought the counsel of his former master. An attack was about to be made one night on a teacher in the school by a Mohammedan, but the companions of the latter restrained him, saying that the teacher was their neighbour. As a general rule the people living in the neighbourhood of the school were quite friendly to the missionaries, although bearing by no means a good reputation. No report has been received of the Girls' School, nor of the other forms of work carried on at Jerusalem, excepting that it is stated that a book for children was issued from the Printing Press, which was about to be closed, and that other translations were being prepared for publication.

Work on Mount of Olives

For a time Miss M. M. Jacombs was alone at Et Zur, the station on the Mount of Olives, but she was eventually joined by Miss M. Brown, whose time was almost fully occupied with the study of the language. Until the latter's arrival visiting was practically impossible, for Miss Jacombs did not think it wise to leave the rather nervous teacher alone at the school, where the children were often frightened by the report that the Government was about to send some one to take the names of all who attended with a view to having them punished. But after April, 1899, some of the people in the villages were visited in their homes, an old pupil of the late Miss Attlee accompanying Miss Jacombs, who was as a rule kindly received. In one village a number of men came into the room where the missionary was sitting and inquired who she was, and where she came from, and proceeded to say that while they were very glad to have the medicines, she had no right to mention her religion to the inhabitants of the village, since they were Mohammedans. At the end of July measures were taken by the authorities to put a stop to the work. Miss Jacombs, writing on November 29th, says:— forcibly interrupted.

> An enemy had given the names of about fifty girls who were coming to us, the young woman who went with me visiting being included in the list. A horseman was sent to this village to demand a mejeedie (a coin worth about 4*s*.) for each girl, big or little, with a threat that a second offence would cost two mejeedies, and a third would involve being sent to prison! A watchman also was set at our door to prevent all Moslems, men, women, or children, from entering our house. We hoped that by the time our holidays were over he might have been removed, but I am sorry to say he is still here.

Bethlehem.

The familiar name of BETHLEHEM appears for the first time in the list of stations of the Society, which has adopted the work formerly carried on there under the auspices of the late F.E.S. It was commenced in 1878 by Miss M. M. Jacombs and the late Miss Stainton, who after a delay of three months contrived to rent a house and begin a day-school for girls, as well as commence visiting with the help of a Bible-woman, who is still engaged in active service. In November, 1879, Miss Stainton was called to her rest, but her death aroused much interest in the work, which gradually extended, a couple of girls being taken as boarders, and placed under training as teachers. Many women and elder girls commenced to read the Bible, and openings appeared on every hand. Funds were raised for the purpose of obtaining permanent premises, and application was made to the Sublime Porte for the necessary Firman, but for three years no reply was received. Miss Jacombs describes the interesting sequel:—

Firman obtained through intervention of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh

At the end of that time H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh paid a visit to Jerusalem. A native Protestant dragoman endeavoured to get him interested in our cause. Two sisters (our native teachers) did all they could in their simple way by writing a letter to His Royal Highness, with which he was much pleased, and after Mr. Moore had told him our great need of influence to obtain the Firman, he most graciously said that if we would write a letter to the Ambassador in Constantinople stating exactly our need, he himself would hand it to the Ambassador on his arrival there. His Royal Highness did not succeed in getting it at the time, but this kind act of his was the means of calling special attention to our application, and about a year after that time the precious document was sent to us through the British Consulate without costing us one penny.

The house was eventually opened in December, 1888, by the late Bishop French, though it was not fully completed until two years later. Miss F. Cooper and Miss Neale are stationed at Bethlehem.

Ramallah.

Mrs. A. Liggins and Miss E. Molineux, who were with Mr. and Mrs. G. Nyland at RAMALLAH at the beginning of the year under review, left in the spring, their place being taken by Miss A. N. Jarvis, who visited many of the villages with a Bible-woman and conducted classes for women and girls. As at other places, the efforts of the missionaries were hindered by the attitude of the Government, and the people were treated with great injustice, for disputes were decided, not according to right, but according to the degree in which the various parties in the suits were able to offer money to the authorities and so increase their insufficient salaries. The services, Bible-readings, etc., were regularly held, and the Boys' School prospered, the attendance being good and the teaching efficient. The Book-shop, too, continued its useful work. The Congregation increased at Bir Zeit, where Miss G. F. Tindall and Miss E. Molineux resided, and the schools flourished, but at Tayibeh there was some dissatisfaction among the people because of the removal of their pastor, the Rev. H. Musa, to Nablous. Better progress was made at Abood than in 1898, and a cheering report is given concerning Jiffna. Mr. Nyland suffered much through ill-health during the year.

JAFFA.

Jaffa. The European workers at JAFFA were Miss F. Brownlow and Miss F. E. Newton. Miss E. A. Cooke, who with Miss F. L. A. Roberts (both now at home) was stationed at Ramleh, reports that there was little change in the congregation, but that the schools did well, the children, both boys and girls, satisfying Mr. Longley Hall, who examined them in August. The medical work was greatly appreciated. The ladies refused to take up some of the cases which were brought to them because there was a native doctor in the neighbourhood, but the refusals sometimes only made the people more urgent, and a parent would frequently say, "Just come and look at my boy: you will bring a blessing." A Mohammedan lady often sent patients, because she said the medicines brought "good and blessing." Miss Roberts remarks that even during their fasts the women came and told the story of their ailments, although they were not allowed to take medicines at such seasons, and she mentions the case of a woman suffering from bad ear-ache who, because she was fasting, would not allow any drops to be put into the ear. The schools at Lydd kept up their numbers, but the weekly meeting for women was not well attended, though those who came appeared to take a real interest in what they heard. Miss Roberts writes:—

"You will bring blessing."

> Most of them are still very ignorant, but three are bright and intelligent, remembering the lessons week by week, and constantly asking questions. They love to hear how God cares for women as well as men, and when at Easter they were hearing how Jesus appeared to Mary first, and sent her on a message for Him, one said "Oh, I wish our men knew these things; will you not tell them?"

GAZA.

Gaza. The staff at GAZA consisted of the Rev. Dr. R. Sterling, who was joined by Mrs. Sterling towards the close of the year, the Rev. Dr. S. Gould (until September), Miss E. E. Brodie, Miss E. E. Watney, Miss M. Tiffin, and Miss G. Harrison. Miss Watney was transferred to Kefr Yasif in November.

NABLOUS (DENIS CROFTON MISSION).

Nablous. The Rev. C. Fallscheer is the veteran superintending missionary at NABLOUS. A meeting for Bible study was conducted by the Rev. H. Musa, the native pastor, and was evidently appreciated. The Schools gave great satisfaction. That for boys had more pupils than all the other institutions of the place put together, while that for girls had fifty-five scholars, in spite of the action of the new Governor, who, immediately he took up his residence at Nablous, prohibited any Mohammedan girl from attending it. Since, however, at his expressed wish, Miss E. G. Reeve began to teach his daughters French, it was hoped that the bitterness of his opposition would speedily diminish. The Work among Women was in the hands of Miss Reeve and Miss A. A. M. Bedells. The former conducted a meeting for women, which was not very successful so far as numbers were concerned, and also took the Bible-class for elder girls, which kept up well. The contributions of these girls towards Foreign Missions, combined with the proceeds of the sale of their work, were applied to the support of a couple of girls in the Hang-Chow Boarding-school. Visiting among the Mohammedan women was carried on from house-to-house chiefly among those who had attended the hospital as out-patients.

Syrian girls help to support a Boarding school in China.

The long-deferred Firman for building a new Hospital has at length been received, but during the year the Medical Work was prosecuted on the old premises. There was no doubt that the people valued the presence of a skilled doctor in their midst, for more than £200 was paid in small fees, and there were over 16,000 visits of out-patients and nearly two hundred in-patients. In addition, Dr. G. R. M. Wright, who was assisted by Dr. Daoud, a Syrian, of whom he speaks in high terms, went to see a number of patients in their own homes. The presence of a second medical man made it possible to devote greater attention to the spiritual side of the work; addresses were given to both the out-patients and the in-patients, and prayers were taken daily in the men's and women's wards. Dr. Wright himself frequently gave the address to the men in the morning, sometimes continuing as long as an hour, reading and explaining the Gospel to them. Of course, those who actually resided in the hospital were more effectually reached than those who simply came as out-patients. Many of the former heard the Gospel again and again, but the soil on which the seed was sown did not appear to be altogether good. Dr. Wright says:—

Hospital.

> The first time they hear of their need of a Saviour the idea is entirely foreign to them; in fact, they do not think they are sinners at all, and if they do acknowledge themselves as such, they say, "God is gracious and merciful." But more often they think that God is much obliged to them for their fasting and almsgiving, and especially if they have been to Mecca on a pilgrimage. This will enable you to understand some of the difficulties we have to contend with. It is a well-known fact that all Orientals are great liars, and the people of Palestine are not one bit behind other Orientals in this respect. They do not consider it a sin to lie, in fact, they think nothing of it; nor can we be surprised at this, when we remember they have been brought up from their earliest childhood to lie, and when sayings are common among the people such as "If the truth will not help you, a lie will," or, as one of their poets expresses it, "The salt of a man consists in a lie; it is a shame to tell the truth." Oh! we need your most earnest prayers that the Gospel may have free course and prosper, and that we may shine for Jesus with no uncertain

Self righteous, mendacious, light in this wicked city, in which bribery and corruption, deceit and wickedness, false witnessing and murders, are the order of the day. Surely this is where Satan's seat is!

And Miss Bedells writes:—

and very superstitious.

A blue bead, a piece of alum, one of the vertebræ of an animal, a verse of the Koran engraved on a piece of metal or written on paper and enclosed in a leathern or metal case and tied on the hair or suspended about the person, are relied on by both Moslems and Christians for the cure or the prevention of real or imaginary diseases or other evils, while with their lips they will be confessing the almightiness and mercifulness of God.

Dr. Wright says that many of the inmates of the hospital on leaving took a copy of the Bible with them, and Miss Bedells writes:—

Notwithstanding difficulties, there are no doubt many of the in-patients who have grasped the facts of Christianity as never before, and what is more, they are comparing our teaching with our lives, and that not silently, as we English are inclined to do, but openly. Do pray for us that our lives may ever witness to the truth which it is our privilege to proclaim, and that in nothing we may offend these little ones for whom Christ died.

Jews and Samaritans treated in the hospital.

Amongst those who came for treatment were a number of Samaritans, as well as a good many Jews. The Bookshop was useful, although but few books were sold, for it gave many opportunities to the man in charge of speaking to the Mohammedans, who sometimes assented to the Christian truths proclaimed. They often came primed with hard questions which had been prepared for them by their learned men, and manifested a keen enjoyment of argument. Mr. Fallscheer mentions the fact that two meetings for the people were held every day in each of the nine mosques in Nablous, and that the subject of the teaching was always opposition to Christianity.

Opposition to Christianity inculcated in the mosques.

The out-stations were five in number. The schools in Rafidia prospered, and a meeting for women was maintained during the winter; similar work was carried on at Nusf el Jebel and Bourka, and at Zebabdeh the year witnessed an advance attributable in some measure to the wife of the teacher. Miss Reeve frequently went over to teach the Fellaheen women, but since they worked in the fields from sunrise to sunset it was not surprising that they displayed no particular inclination for teaching when the evening arrived. The Rev. H. Musa visited Tobaz from time to time, and was encouraged by good attendances at the meetings.

NAZARETH DISTRICT.

Nazareth.

The Rev. H. Sykes was in charge of the work in the north of Palestine. At NAZARETH the native congregation is under the Rev. C. Jamal. The work of the late F.E.S. at this station is now carried on in connexion with the C.M.S. There is an important Orphanage, containing about seventy girls, which was under the care of Miss M. A. E. Newey, who superintended the school department, and Miss F. M. Biddington, who presided over the domestic arrangements; and a number of schools, under Miss H. Lee, Miss M. Hicks, and Miss K. Patten. Interesting accounts of the work of the F.E.S. at Nazareth in the past have been furnished by some of the ladies. Commenced at the instigation of the Rev. J. Zeller in 1864 with a little day-school, it was not long before the desirability of a Girls' Orphanage was recognized, and after some difficulty in raising the necessary funds, which were surmounted largely through a generous donation of £1,000, a building was erected, and opened in 1875. The Orphanage was honoured in 1882 by receiving a visit from the late Prince Albert Victor and the Duke of York, and in 1897, on the occasion of the Diamond Jubilee, the girls worked some silk lace and sent it to the Queen, receiving in return a gracious letter of thanks. In 1888 a branch school was opened in the town at the request of the people, which bears the name of the Warfield School; this was followed five years later by a second branch institution. Several of the girls were trained as teachers, and are now employed either in Nazareth or in one of the six village schools which have been formed as off-shoots from the parent school. These schools are at Reush, opened in 1885; at Yafa, in 1886; at Cana, in 1887; at Mjeydel, in 1887; at Malool, in 1890; and at Shagerah, in 1894.

Shefamer.

About twelve miles from Nazareth, on the direct road to Acca, lies SHEFAMER, one of the stations formerly occupied by the F.E.S., where medical and evangelistic work was carried on. At Abilene, an out-station to the north-east, there is a school for girls.

Acca.

The missionaries at ACCA were the Rev. and Mrs. C. A. Manley, Dr. J. Cropper, and Miss M. I. Kitchin, the two latter being specially engaged in the Medical Mission, of which the Rev. Dr. S. Gould assumed charge on his arrival in Palestine in December.

Kefr Yasif.

Miss L. W. Lewis, of KEFR YASIF, on the eve of her furlough, reviews in her Annual Letter the time she had spent in Palestine, and bears her testimony to the goodness of God, saying:—

> There have been so many answered prayers—one is humbled indeed to think how many more there might have been but for failure in laying our needs before our prayer-hearing God, and though one is filled with thankfulness at "the memory of His great goodness," yet, on the other hand, the retrospect humbles one to the dust, when one thinks of opportunities lost and of failures in using the mighty grace and power which He has put into our hands. I suppose every missionary feels the same when the first period of service closes, but yet I would like to add my tribute to that of others and say that His faithfulness and mercy, in view of my shortcomings, "exceed the fame that I had heard," and to add, in order that others may be encouraged to go forward, "There remaineth yet very much land to be possessed." I never had such a happy five years in my life, and I could not have believed it would have been so difficult to tear myself away from the people for a short time.

The members of the congregation joined warmly in the celebration of the Centenary, the women and many of the men, at the suggestion of Miss Thompson, an independent worker, giving a day's earnings to the Centenary Funds. Some of the children were formed into a Sowers' Band, the girls, as in England, being easier to enroll than the boys. More than 400 attendances were registered at the dispensary up to the end of November; the addresses given by the catechist are said to have greatly improved, and he met the difficulties of the Mohammedans, Greeks, and Druses with much tact. With the large number of other things requiring attention systematic visiting was out of the question, but Miss Lewis managed to go to several houses, and also to Yerkah, a Druse village. There was practically no opposition on the part of the villagers in the district, and fresh openings for work in them constantly presented themselves.

Miss M. A. Daniels (now at home) was the only European missionary of the C.M.S. at HAIFA, where the Native Christians were cared for by the Rev. Y. Zorab.

SALT AND KERAK.

Salt.

The long-delayed enlargement of the Mission-house at SALT was completed during the year, and the Rev. D. M. Wilson was therefore free to devote himself to the solution of the problem of providing additional accommodation for the congregation. The church did not afford more than sufficient room for the men only, and the pressure on the space was so great that many of the boys had to sit on the floor of the chancel. Bishop Blyth held a confirmation in March, 1899, when thirteen men and two women were presented. There was little change in the various classes, and the Sunday afternoon catechizing of the men in church was continued uninterruptedly by the native pastor, the Rev. Nicola abu Hattum. The Schools in the district contained an aggregate of 269 names on the registers, more than two-thirds being those of Christians. The greater part of the work of addressing and conversing with the patients who came to the Dispensary fell to the lot of the catechist, who discharged his duties efficiently. The catechist at Kefrenji, which is on the Mount Gilead of the Old Testament, where operations were commenced in 1898 (see last year's Report, page 146), was supported by the Japanese agents in connexion with the C.M.S. in the diocese of Hokkaido, who promised to give for the purpose, in commemoration of the Centenary, one-hundredth part of their salaries.

An agent on Mount Gilead supported by Japanese Christians.

Dr. and Mrs. F. Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Harding, who resided at KERAK, did not meet with so much opposition in 1899 as in the preceding year. The official class was comparatively friendly, and when some people who had belonged to another church, of their own accord presented a petition to the Governor praying that they might be recognized as Protestants, he returned a gracious reply, giving them full liberty to worship as they pleased, and assuring them of his protection. The attitude of the more educated classes is depicted in a typical case of a man fairly well versed in the Christian religion, who admitted that it excelled all others, but added that in his view its precepts were unattainable whilst in the flesh, and that Mohammedanism was consequently more suitable for men in this present world. The illiteracy of the common people was a great hindrance, and there was little prospect of any improvement in the matter, for few of the children excepting the Mohammedans receive any education. Possession was obtained of a new Mission-house in July, and some improvement in the congregations at the services was at once discernible; people, too, came more freely than before for religious conversation, and many visits were paid to them in their own homes. The Dispensary, which was open on four days in the week, was little frequented by Mohammedans during the first six months of the year, but then the restrictions appeared to be relaxed, and they came with greater freedom. Both Dr. Johnson and Mr. Harding went to several native encampments, almost invariably obtaining an attentive hearing for the message which they had to deliver; but unfortunately that form of work could only be carried on during a limited period of the year. PERSIA MISSION.

Persia, though one of the youngest of the Society's Missions, was one of the first countries thought of by the Committee, and was mentioned in each of the first two Annual Reports. Henry Martyn stayed ten months in the country in 1811. Since 1834 an American Mission has laboured with much blessing among the Nestorian Christians. In 1869 the Rev. R. Bruce, of the C.M.S., visited Persia on his way back to India, and finding the Mohammedans of Ispahan and its neighbourhood not unwilling to discuss religious subjects, he took up his abode there, and gathered round him some few of these, and a considerable number of Armenian Christians who were dissatisfied with their corrupt form of worship. He also opened schools, &c. In 1875 the Society formally adopted his work as one of its Missions. Ladies were added to the staff in 1891. Kirman was occupied in 1897, Yezd in 1898, and Shiraz in 1900.

THE Rev. C. H. Stileman, the Secretary of the Mission, calls attention to the fact that during the ten years since he joined the Mission in 1889, the staff of European missionaries has increased from six to twenty-two. During the year under review the following reinforcements were sent out:—the Rev. Alfred Knox Boyland, B.A., Trinity College, Dublin, Curate of Dromore, co. Down; Mr. Alfred Hume Griffith, M.B., Ch.B., son of the late Rev. E. M. Griffith, of the Ceylon Mission, and brother of Mrs. W. Welchman, of that Mission, and Mrs. Griffith, sister of the Rev. W. Welchman, of the Ceylon Mission; and Miss Mary Ellen Brighty, of The Olives. Another recruit was gained by the marriage at Sheffield, in August, of the Rev. W. A. Rice and Miss Clara Colliver Hammond. Mr. and Mrs. Rice, Mr. Boyland, Miss Brighty, and Miss A. Stirling left for Persia in October, 1899; and Dr. and Mrs. Griffith in March, 1900. The following returned to England: Miss P. Braine-Hartnell in October, who since her return has been placed in home connexion; Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Carr (the former invalided) in November; Miss H. L. Conner in January, 1900; and the Rev. and Mrs. W. St. Clair Tisdall in April.

Reinforcements.

The work was carried on without any hostile interference of a serious character, although there was some display of fanaticism in Ispahan, connected primarily with the Mission of the London Jews' Society, but which might easily have extended to the work of the Church Missionary Society. The prompt intervention of the British Consul, by checking the illegal action of an unfriendly mullah, damped the rising flame, and affairs soon resumed their normal aspect. Some trouble, too, arose, as will be seen, at Kirman, but the opposition there also subsided before long. Bishop Stuart writes:—

Work jealously watched.

> We are still jealously watched, and in these days of the wide circulation of papers and magazines much circumspection is needed. The work in this and, I imagine, in all other Moslem lands still under Mohammedan rule is only carried on by sufferance. Our very presence and continuance in the country is under the same limitation.

made, it may still be said, as was said years ago by Dr. Bruce, that we are "as yet only gathering out the stones" from the field we hope to sow with Gospel seed—the stones of prejudice and ignorance and misconception, and, alas! not seldom, stones of stumbling which the corruptions of Christianity and the inconsistencies of Christians have cast up. Or, to vary the figure, we are engaged in the siege of a well-garrisoned stronghold (the little army entrenched outside the walls of Delhi!). It may be a long time before we are able to make an effective assault, and there is little to report save that we are "holding on." "Holding on."

What may be termed the settled work of the Mission is described under the headings of the various stations, but there was a considerable amount of effort in different places, which were reached now and again by means of Itinerating Tours, or visits of comparatively brief duration. Thus Bishop Stuart, accompanied by his daughter and Dr. Urania Latham, went to Qamsar in the hot weather, and both there and in the surrounding villages had much intercourse with the people; and at another time some of the missionaries spent a few days at Najifabad, and met with a ready hearing when they attempted to speak to the villagers of the things concerning their peace. But the most important effort in this line of work was made by Mr. Stileman, who, in connexion with a visit to Yezd and Kirman at the commencement of the year under review, went to a large number of villages in the neighbourhood and had many opportunities of converse with the Natives. A few extracts are appended from a letter describing his experiences, which was printed in the C.M. Intelligencer of June, 1899:— Itinerating

In one large village I stayed in the house of one of the chief mullahs, who was most kind and friendly. After some reading and a good deal of conversation with this man, he took me to the mosque (a very ancient one of which the qibleh is not Mecca, but Jerusalem!) and there allowed me freely to preach the Gospel to some thirty or forty people who followed us into their sacred building. The Gospel preached in a mosque.

In another large village I was preaching the Gospel to a number of people in my room in the caravanserai when suddenly a tall, stately, elderly man with an enormous white turban and a long beard entered the room and was greeted with profound respect by all present. He took up his position on my travelling bed, sitting in state, with his feet drawn up under him, and I was informed that he was the big mullah of the place, who had come to see what I was about. There was a sort of flutter of expectation when the great man opened upon me with some of the heaviest artillery of Islam, viz., that the Gospel is entirely abrogated by the Koran, and that there is therefore no necessity to trouble about the former and its teaching. I replied quite politely that I could not accept that statement, for the Koran itself testifies to the fact that the Gospel is for the direction of men, and Christ said that His words should not pass away. The mullah leaned forward and said with some surprise, "Did Christ say that?" "Certainly," I replied; "He said, 'Heaven and earth shall pass away, but My words shall not pass away;' and it is also written, 'Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.'" I was plied with questions for the next half-hour, and then turned the tables upon the old man and pointed out the utter impossibility of Mohammed being the promised Comforter, because (i.) the world could see him; (ii.) he did not come "not many days hence," but after "Did Christ say that?"

centuries; (iii.) the disciples could not have remained in Jerusalem till he came 600 years later; (iv.) he was not a spirit dwelling in the hearts of men; (v.) he did not abide with the disciples for ever, but died in Arabia; (vi.) the promised Comforter descended on the Day of Pentecost, &c., &c. The mullah remained very silent for some time and then took his leave.

For about an hour after he left (taking with him St. John's Gospel, Testimony of the Quran, and Friendly Dialogues) I was preaching to the people on the forgiveness of sins, and I then received a letter from the big mullah as follows: "Oh, servant of Christ, your conversation has made a great impression upon me, and I am in perplexity. On account of the number of people present in the assembly I could not say anything. If you are remaining for a time, well and good, but if not, please come and see me at my house. Should this be impossible, I must come to-night and give you further trouble, for I have something I must say to you." I at once sent a message to say that, if convenient to him, I would come to his house at sunset, which was about half-an-hour afterwards, and at the appointed time his son came to take me to the house. I was there received most kindly, and taken to an upper-room where we could be undisturbed, and we had a most interesting two hours together. The mullah told me that in the interval he had been reading some of the Friendly Dialogues, that he had never in his life before had any doubts as to the truth of the Mohammedan religion, that he had never turned aside to join the Sheikhis or Babis, or any other sect, but that now his ideas were thoroughly upset, and he wanted to know if I had any more books, and could tell him more about the Gospel. I was very thankful that I had one Persian New Testament left, and one copy of Sweet First Fruits. These I most gladly gave to him, and told him about the convert Paulus who had written The Means of Salvation (of which I had not a copy left), and about other converts from Islam who had found salvation in Christ. He promised to write to me to Ispahan, and when I left him I came away with the full conviction that the Spirit of God had begun His gracious work in this man's heart, and that He who has begun the good work will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ. God grant that this man, who has been the great preacher of Islam in his village, may become in the same place a faithful witness for Christ and preacher of the Gospel!

Conversation with a mullah.

I will only add one further incident, which occurred on a Sunday afternoon. I was spending Sunday quietly, as usual, in a good-sized village, and after having a little service with my servants, I went out into the village with some Persian Gospels and books in my pocket. A Sayyid took me into one of the mosques, and after pointing out the direction of Mecca, asked me to which point of the compass we turned our faces in prayer. I, of course, pointed out to him that the matter of real importance was that our hearts should be truly directed towards God. But I added that I had a Gospel in my pocket and would read to him what Christ said about it. I then turned to St. John iv. 20–24: "Neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem . . . but . . . in spirit and in truth." Others came into the mosque after seeing us enter, so I took the opportunity of reading the earlier part of the same chapter and pointing out that Christ alone can give us the living water to quench our souls' thirst. When I came out, did the people wish to stone me for reading the Gospel in the mosque? No; on the contrary, they said that others would like to hear the same words. They accordingly brought out a small carpet and spread it on the ground for me to sit on, others went round and told the people to come and listen, the women came and sat on one side and the men on the other, one or two of the more influential men sat on the carpet with me, and I spent a considerable part of that Sunday afternoon reading and preaching the Gospel to the people there in the open-air. The principal mullah of the place, whom I afterwards saw in another mosque, accepted a copy of Friendly Dialogues and was most polite to me, in spite of the fact that I had been preaching Christ to his people! He was aware of this, for he asked me what I had been reading to them.

An open-air Bible-reading.

JULFA AND ISPAHAN.

"Both in JULFA and Ispahan the work is growing steadily," wrote Miss Bird on her return after furlough. She observed that Moslems came to the services in greater numbers than formerly, that there were more inquirers, both male and female, and that the medical missionaries were not merely tolerated but actually welcomed. The greatest joy of all to her was to meet the women converts whom she had known before she left for England, and to find that they were leading consistent lives. She says of Sakineh, whose name is familiar to readers of the Annual Report:— Julfa.

A Christian waiting-maid in zenana of a Persian prince.

She is still a waiting-maid in the prince's zenana, but is now permitted (like the other married servants) to come out about once a month to her husband's house for a few days, and sometimes gets out on Sundays as well to come to church. In the zenana Sakineh has not much opportunity of telling of her Saviour. Sometimes when she returns from church the ladies will ask what she saw and heard; but if she begins to repeat the sermon they turn away. In her husband's house she is freer to speak to her neighbours, three of whom listen to her, and she brought them on Easter Sunday to the Bible-class. The husband of one of them is now reading the Gospel.

A convert's aspiration.

Another convert, Hamêdeh (see last year's Report, page 154), continues to grow in grace, and of her own accord has taken up the work of a Bible-woman. At real personal risk she visited and read to six of her own friends and neighbours, and one day gave utterance to words which express what should be the aspiration of every Christian: "God grant that we may not go to Heaven alone." Miss Braine-Hartnell adds, "If that were the cry of more Christians in England, there would not be so many vacancies in the Mission-field or in home work!" Hamêdeh suffered much persecution. One day she was beaten severely for venturing to draw some water from a well, and so defiling it, but although in great pain, all she said was, "It does not matter; if I can do nothing else for Jesus Christ, I can suffer for Him. I am glad." The last reports tell that she has been forced against her will to marry a Moslem, and therefore specially needs the prayers of the Lord's remembrancers.

"If I can do nothing else for Jesus Christ, I can suffer for Him"

Services were conducted in three different languages:— in English, for the benefit of the small European community, and of those Armenians to whom it was intelligible; in Persian; and in Armenian. The Persian services were taken mainly by Bishop Stuart and the Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall, and the Armenian by the Rev. M. George, the Armenian pastor, and by the Rev. C. H. Stileman, who diligently endeavoured to qualify himself to speak to the people in their own tongue. Efforts were made by means of a Temperance Society to remove one of the great stumbling-blocks in the way of Mohammedans, viz., the drinking habits of the Armenians, but some difficulty was experienced in getting up the monthly meetings. A large number of children attended the Sunday-school, but the Sowers' Band did not altogether flourish, most of the members being very half-hearted.

Baptisms. On one occasion five converts were baptized on the same day: a father with his son and daughter; a schoolboy (with the knowledge and consent of his parents); and a middle-aged man who had been under instruction for some months. The last-mentioned received his first impressions of Christianity through a tract given to him in his native town by a missionary who happened to be passing through; this tract was read to him by his son, and led to his seeking further instruction. Concerning the first three Mr. Stileman writes:—

A family of Persian Christians.

> We are now for the first time rejoicing over a whole family of Persian Christians. The mother was one of the women baptized more than a year ago, and having remained a bright, happy Christian and a true witness to the saving power of Christ, she has now had the joy of seeing her husband and two children admitted into the Church. The children's ages are about fourteen and eleven years respectively. They all seem very happy together, "one in Christ Jesus"; and I need not say what a joy it is to the dear woman to have her husband and children with her as fellow-Christians, for too often in this and other Moslem lands the foes of the convert are those of his or her own household, and it is seldom that husband, wife, and children are all one in the faith of Christ. To bring her husband to Christ by her consistent life, earnest prayers, and constant testimony, has been by no means the only work of this good woman since her baptism. The lady missionaries tell me that she is a most brave and faithful witness for her Master, never ashamed of Him, but instant in season and out of season, labouring to bring others to His feet. In fact she is a true missionary amongst her own people.

There were several interesting inquirers, and among them a man who was first drawn to Christianity by noticing the marked contrast between the lives of the professed leaders of Islam and the life of a poor old convert in his own village who had frequently been beaten, and had suffered much persecution for Christ's sake. It seemed to him that the religion of the one was but a mere outward shell, whereas the faith of the other was a living reality. After the old convert's death, this inquirer had a dream in which the old man appeared, and beckoned him to follow the path he had taken; and this led him to seek the missionary. The cases of some other men are briefly described by the Rev. W. St. C. Tisdall:—

Influence of a consistent convert.

> ——, a most interesting man, about fifty, came repeatedly, bringing some poetry (composed by himself and written down for him by a professional writer) in praise of Christ and confessing His Deity. This man often brought others with him. His whole family profess themselves Christians, but fear to come out. He was led to seek the truth through a dream.
>
> —— and —— are brothers, the latter a fine young soldier. The elder brother had a dream, which resulted in the conversion of both. After careful instruction I was able to recommend them for baptism.
> A young Mirza, who was at one time in my employment at the press, came several times with an interesting young friend of his for teaching. Both acknowledged the truth, and the Mirza was accepted for baptism, but his courage failed, and he has not yet come out boldly for Christ.

The Armenian Schools, one for boys and the other for girls, had on their rolls the names of children belonging to the three sections of the Armenian community—the Gregorian, the Roman, and the Reformed or Protestant, the attendance of the Gregorian pupils being noteworthy since a free education was offered at the schools of that community, whereas fees were charged at those belonging to the Society. The boys, 212 in number, were under the management of Mr. Johannes; while the education of the 197 girls was superintended by Miss L. Stubbs, assisted by Miss L. Buncher. Mrs. Stileman helped in the teaching, and also kept up the work of the Children's Scripture Union. Schools.

The Literary Work was diversified and important. Committees were engaged in the revision of both the Armenian and Persian Prayer-books, and Bishop Stuart translated into the latter language a short treatise entitled, "Moslems invited to read the Bible," which was written at his suggestion by Sir W. Muir. But the brunt of this form of work fell upon Mr. Tisdall, who made considerable progress in the translation of the Gospels and Psalms into Kirman-Kurdish, and of the Manaru'l Haqq—a work which deals with the testimony of the Koran to Christianity—into Persian. He also wrote two original compositions. The English name of the first was The Philosophy of the True Religion, and its object was to deduce from Natural Religion and from the demands of the human heart and conscience a system of philosophy which leads to the conclusion that man needs just such a Revelation of God and of the way of salvation as is to be found in the New Testament, and especially in our Lord Himself. The second book was an answer to the objections urged against Christianity and the Bible by an apostate Syrian at Teheran. Mr. Tisdall says:— Literary Work.

> His book professes to be an accurate account of an oral controversy between himself and some American missionaries at Teheran, in which their principal part, according to him, consisted in turning all the colours of the rainbow when they could not answer his objections! The book was brought to me by some Moslem theological students and mullahs, who defied me to answer it.

Since the renegade just referred to contracted the habit of sending to Mr. Tisdall by the hands of his friends open letters in Persian, full of objections against the authenticity and genuineness of the Bible, a correspondence with him was commenced, the replies being forwarded in the same semi-public manner as the objections. A Loving Letter of Advice was written to the Bahais, and was warmly welcomed by them. A new type press, presented by an anonymous friend in England, was a great boon to the Henry Martyn Memorial Press, from which a large number of important works were issued, though those of a controversial character had to be printed in India. Mission Press.

Men's Hospital.

When Dr. D. W. Carr left on sick leave it became necessary to close the Hospital for Men, but some medical work was carried on amongst them by the head Armenian assistant. Some of the native agents, too, visited the more distant villages, taking with them well-stocked medicine chests, and staying in each place for two or three days. Paul Aratoon, formerly catechist at Kirman with the late Rev. H. Carless, took a prominent part in this work, and made good use of his opportunities of preaching the Gospel. Still there was urgent need of a European missionary who could devote himself to spiritual work among those who were attracted by the hope of obtaining healing for their bodies, and Dr. Carr writes:—

> Under our present arrangements we have all the machinery in motion for an extensive evangelization movement, but the most important part of the work, that for which the costly machinery is primarily set in motion, has to remain largely undeveloped for want of a worker.

New Hospital for Women.

The new Women's Hospital proved a great boon; indeed, it had become almost a necessity, for in Mohammedan countries there is always the risk of doing more harm than good if arrangements cannot be made for the entire seclusion of women patients, for a handle is given to those who watch eagerly for the chance of bringing scandalous charges against the missionaries. The Misses H. L. Conner, A. Stirling, P. Braine-Hartnell, and G. E. Stuart worked among the patients. The dispensary was open two days in each week, the actual medical work being carried on by Dr. Emmeline M. Stuart, and, for a time, by Dr. Urania Latham, whose chief occupation was language study. Collective Bible-readings as well as individual conversations were held with those who came for treatment at the dispensary, and there were also daily readings in the hospital. Two women were baptized as the fruits of this work, and it is stated that the face of one told of the new hope that had come into her life.

Some of those who were impressed were lost sight of for a time, and there was always some anxiety as to whether they would be able to stand alone. Consequently it was cheering to the missionaries to find that a girl, whose husband and mother-in-law were bigoted Mohammedans, and who for nearly a year did not see the face of a Christian, was able to declare that she was "keeping the faith in her heart," and that she prayed daily that she might not be allowed to forget the teaching that she had received. The advantage of being in touch with the people for some time is indicated in the following case:—

"Keeping the faith in her heart."

> I went to the house of —— in the early spring to visit a girl who was ill. She required an operation, but both she and her mother were terrified at the idea of coming into the hospital, and we heard no more of them for some weeks. Then they appeared in the dispensary one day, and we persuaded them to stay. The girl underwent the operation, which, though partially successful, was not wholly so. But during the weeks she lay here she and her mother lost their fear of us and became much attached to us all, and showed some interest in the teaching. A second and a third time I operated, and earnestly we prayed over the case, but still failure met us. Our hearts were sorely disappointed, but we began to see God had His appointment in it. The prolonged residence in the hospital, which these failures rendered necessary, made the old mother familiar with the Gospel teaching, and her heart was opened to receive it. It was an inspiring sight to watch her dear old face as she sat drinking in the words of life. When first she came to us she seemed so stupid and ignorant, but in this case, as in so many others, the Holy Spirit enlightened the understanding as well as touched the heart, and the change in her power of grasping what she was taught was marvellous. Every evening when it was possible she would slip in from the hospital to our house through the door between the two compounds, and come to me for special teaching. She has now left the hospital, but the other day she hurt her arm and made this the excuse to come back to us for a few days, but stipulated that if she came I should read to her every night. She is to bring her daughter back in the spring for a final operation, and I believe it will be successful this time, for I feel the purpose for which God brought them to us has been accomplished, as —— is a true Christian at heart, though she has not yet been baptized. Please pray that she may have courage to take this final step and confess before men the faith that is certainly in her heart.

Drinking in the words of life.

The enforced return of Dr. Carr to England was a great blow to the medical work at ISPAHAN, which prior to his departure had made good progress. When Dr. Carr left, Bishop Stuart and his daughter moved into his house, and Dr. Emmeline Stuart opened a dispensary for women, of whom increasing numbers came for treatment, until in December as many as 115 attended on one day. Every Wednesday and Saturday, Miss Stuart held a meeting for women, and on other days of the week she received visits from ladies of higher social position. The Bishop, too, frequently had Persian gentlemen come to see him, as well as former pupils in the Julfa Persian school.

Ispahan.

YEZD.

The Rev. N. Malcolm and Dr. and Mrs. H. White were joined by Miss M. R. S. Bird at YEZD in April, 1899, and by Dr. Urania Latham and Miss M. E. Brighty later in the year. The people, especially in the villages, often appeared to know but little even of their own religion, and their general ignorance was extremely dense, as is evidenced by the case of a shepherd girl, who having been taught one evening something about prayer, came the following day to ask whether God heard and answered prayer in the morning as well as at night! Nevertheless, the persevering efforts of the workers made some impression, and they were cheered by the statement of the Bible Society colporteur, made just before he left the town, to the effect that during the many years he had visited Yezd and the surrounding district he had never before had such a large sale of Bibles and Scripture portions. An English service was held for the benefit of the European community every Sunday afternoon, and services in Persian each Sunday morning, the addresses at the latter being given alternately by Mr. Malcolm and Dr. White. The numbers present varied from 150 in the summer to from sixty to one hundred in the winter. The congregation was composed of people of all classes—mullahs, with their large white turbans; Mohammedan students, eager to hear, and sometimes to dispute; merchants; Sayyids, with their green turbans and self-satisfied aspect; Dervishes; poorer people, and patients from the hospital. These services were attended by many women, some of whom came merely out of curiosity, while others listened attentively, and a few showed signs that the preaching was to a certain extent understood. There were many other methods by which evangelistic work was carried on, and that not only among the Mohammedans, but also among the Jews, who appeared fairly friendly, and the Parsis, who were at first difficult to reach, but two of whose schoolmasters eventually expressed a wish to have a school opened for their girls. Miss Bird opened a Class for Women, but it was not very successful to begin with as far as numbers were concerned. One day, after she had tried to explain the meaning of the title "Emmanuel," one of the class suddenly got up, saying, "I am so glad you told me this; I have always thought Jesus Christ would not come to me because my room is not whitewashed." As the work was only in its infancy there were not many visitors, although there was little, if anything, in the attitude of the authorities to keep them away, for the principal mullahs were very friendly, many of their households, as well as that of the Governor—a most able man—having experienced the advantages of the establishment of the Medical Mission in the town. The friendliness of the Governor meant much, for, had he opposed, it would have been impossible, humanly speaking, to obtain possession of the large caravanserai and house so generously given by a Parsi gentleman for the purposes of medical work, or to erect the hospital on the site. By December the out-patient department had been in use for some time, and the hospital sufficiently approached completion for the Prince Governor to pay a State visit of inspection. Two men's and two women's dispensaries—the latter for a time under Miss Bird, and subsequently under Dr. Urania Latham—were held weekly, the total number of attendances increasing from 5,000 in 1898 to 24,600 during the year under review. This was hardly surprising considering the barbarous nature of much of the native treatment, of which Miss Bird gives the following instance:—

Site for hospital presented by a Parsi.

> Cruel native treatment. This week we had a case of a child only two years old, whom we think must have had nephritis. The mother took him to a Persian doctor, who for fifteen days pricked all the instep of both feet with twelve large sewing needles. Though a great deal of fluid was discharged, the feet still remained swollen, so he lanced them both. Finding the mother had only black money (coppers), and no white (silver), he dismissed the case without any dressings.

For a week the mother rubbed some native ointment on the wounds. When he was brought to me gangrene had set in, and all our efforts to save his life were in vain.

Miss Bird tells the following story of the occupants of two beds in one of the Mission hospitals:—

Parents taught and won in the children's ward.

When I arrived, the only in-patient was a village boy, A——, who had just undergone an operation. His mother was nursing him, and as Dr. White kindly gave me permission to teach any women, I began a daily Bible-lesson in which both she and A—— took a keen interest from the very first. A week later, my first little patient, B——, and her mother were admitted. The child was terribly burnt. It made my heart ache to hear her screams when the dressings had to be changed, and to see the little white drawn face put up so soon as they were finished to be kissed, and hear her ask if I were angry with her. For some days the mother sat silent during our Bible talks, and only appeared interested when we united in prayer for the invalid's recovery, if it should be God's will. But the story, new to them, of love passing knowledge won its way, and before ten days were over she was the keenest for teaching. When A—— was well, his father and brother came to take him home. They arrived early on Sunday morning, and the whole family came to the Persian service, "that we may give God thanks." They invited us to visit and teach them when we go, as we hope to do, to the villages. After they left B——'s mother said, "It is difficult that you should come to read for a widow and orphan. May we come to prayer on Sunday?" It is needless to say how glad I was to have the privilege of teaching them! They were always ready, with the woman's chuddah spread on the ground for me to sit on. Last week B—— was well enough to be put on the out-patients' list. Before they left the mother definitely asked for teaching, saying she wanted to be a Christian. She is so attentive during the Bible talk and prayer with the out-patients every morning. She came to service last Sunday and remained for a Bible-lesson afterwards.

"That we may give God thanks."

Gospel addresses were given to all who came, and it was interesting to find that the people recognized the part played by prayer in the work. A woman, who one day arrived late to have her child's foot dressed, remarked to Miss Bird, who was doing the bandaging, "You have not prayed to-day. To-morrow the child will be no better." She was told that prayer had been offered before she came, but that a special blessing should be asked for her child. To this she readily agreed, telling the other women to maintain silence. Among those who seemed to receive the message was a negress who had been brought to death's door by native treatment. When Miss Bird tried to tell her of God's love, she pointed to her black skin, saying, "They say if God had loved us He would not have made us black." Stress was then laid on the love of God for all, and the next day, when asked if she remembered, she replied, "You said God is love—your God—my God." In the course of a couple of itinerating tours two large towns and many villages were visited, and more than three thousand patients treated. As soon as it was known in any place that a Feringhi Hakim had arrived, the people flocked to him and often invited him into their houses.

A negress questions God's love.

KIRMAN.

Kirman.

It was stated in last year's Report that the outlook at KIRMAN, in old days the seat of a Nestorian bishop, where the Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Blackett are stationed, was full of promise, but it was added that at any moment the aspect of affairs might change. This foreboding was unhappily justified by events, for whereas at the end of November, 1898, the mujtehids were at least outwardly friendly and the congregations on Sundays numbered several hundreds, a year later all had changed: the priesthood had sounded the alarm, the congregations had fallen to a tenth of their old proportions, and former friends no longer dared to manifest their favourable disposition. The change appears to have begun from December, 1898. In that month Mirza Israel, mujtehid, instigated the people in a sermon preached in one of the mosques to oppose the European who was "destroying our faith." The position became worse the following May, when the friendly Governor was deposed. The new Governor, Amir Nizam, sent a verbal message to Mr. Blackett forbidding preaching, and at the same time had it proclaimed in the bazaars that those attending the services would be beaten or fined. The visit of an English officer to Kirman soon afterwards brought about a change for the better in the attitude of the Governor, but the congregation had not recovered its former strength when Mr. Blackett wrote his Annual Letter. In spite of the risk attending the action in some places, many of the people persisted in coming to the services, and one young girl of the better class is specially mentioned who was present on seven consecutive Sundays, at length being accompanied by two young brothers. Pressure was apparently then brought to bear upon her, and for a time she absented herself; but eventually she reappeared, although she anticipated that a beating would be the probable consequence of attending the service. Various steps were taken by the inquirers to disguise their intentions, and keep their proceedings secret from the opponents of the work. One lad, Jonathan-like, made shooting his ostensible aim, and when out apparently in quest of sport ventured near to the missionaries for a talk; another for the same purpose followed one of the Mission agents into a quiet shop; while others, bolder, dared all consequences, and disregarded the orders of the Mohammedan authorities. A youth who was baptized on May 25th, 1899, was one of these, the son of a man of repute: Mr. Blackett says of him:—

People forbidden to attend the services.

Timid inquirers.

A brave young convert.

> In the presence of several hundred of his countrymen he used to kneel bare-headed by my side and repeat the responses. (The removal of the hat during Christian worship is a most significant action, and ipso facto brands a Mussulman as being not far short of a renegade already.) In October, 1898, he asked for baptism and began to receive special teaching. He fully realized the gravity of the step he was taking, and knew that the mujtehids would put him to death if they could. For this he professed to be quite prepared. May I specially commend this young man to the Lord's intercessors at home, so that he may be filled with the Spirit, and shrink from no cross or trial to which his new life may expose him?

The Persian Boys' School was carried on with fluctuating numbers owing to the persecution, on one day only four lads venturing to put in an appearance; but before the troubles commenced a successful "breaking-up" took place, the Governor, who was afterwards deposed, being present, and within a few days sending a cheque for fifty tomans (£10) for distribution among the scholars. Some of the neighbouring villages were visited, a kind reception always being accorded to the workers, whose medical skill, limited though it was, was in great request, and gave many openings for conversation on religious topics. Thus a man, seeing Mr. Blackett try to relieve a sufferer with a sore hand, made the remark, "You will acquire merit by this," which led to an explanation of the one true ground of merit and salvation.

SHIRAZ.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Rice arrived at Ispahan in December, having experienced much kindness at the hands of the American missionaries at Salonica and Teheran on their journey. After a brief stay with Bishop Stuart they moved on to SHIRAZ, and on January 3rd, 1900, took up their residence in that town, which is famous as the scene of the translation of the first Persian New Testament by Henry Martyn, but has been left unoccupied by any European missionary during the eighty-eight years that have elapsed since the death of that noble pioneer. A month or two later they happily succeeded in renting a house. Shiraz.

TURKISH ARABIA MISSION.

Baghdad, which is in the Turkish Empire, is in the immediate neighbourhood of the sacred places of the Shiah Mohammedans. Thousands of pilgrims flock to it from all parts of Persia, and in order to reach them the city was first occupied by C.M.S. missionaries in 1882. A hospital was opened in 1897. In 1898 the work, previously carried on in connexion with that in Persia, was constituted an independent Mission.

Reinforcements. THE Mission was reinforced by Miss Ada Edith Clarke and Miss Emily Gertrude Butlin, of The Willows. They sailed for Baghdad in October, 1899, and January, 1900, respectively. The Rev. J. T. Parfit and Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Sutton sailed for the Mission in October.

Baghdad. The only missionaries at BAGHDAD during the greater part of the year were Dr. P. S. Sturrock, and Miss E. E. Martin, of the Victoria C.M. Association, and their work was interrupted by the necessity of escorting Miss A. Phillips, whose illness was briefly mentioned in last year's Report, on her way to New South Wales, Miss Martin accompanying her as far as Bombay. The Congregation of Native Christians neither increased nor diminished, but the attendances at the services and the Sunday-school were well maintained, though instruction in the latter was a matter of difficulty, for some classes were so mixed as to have as members boys of ten years of age together with colporteurs of the British and Foreign Bible Society. A special service was held in the church on the occasion of the Centenary, and the school children were given a holiday, while the Native Christians in the employ of the Society were taken to spend the afternoon in one of the date gardens across the river where tea had been prepared. The Schools were a source both of interest and anxiety. That for boys did not prosper so well as could be desired, for several of the teachers were not altogether satisfactory, and the number of children showed some falling off. Most of the pupils did well in the examination, the weak point being the important subject of Scripture, but steps were taken which should conduce to improvement in this respect. The girls' school was more prosperous. One of the teachers during part of her time acted as Bible-woman, and arrangements were made to enable her to devote herself entirely to work among the Mohammedan women and girls.

Hospital. Dr. Sturrock in his Annual Letter furnishes an interesting report of the Medical Mission. In the absence of the Residency surgeon there was no other European doctor in the city, and accordingly the patients of high social position who wished for the services of a skilled physician were obliged to have recourse to Dr. Sturrock, many of them, he says, being people whose friendship it was wise to cultivate. The number of in-patients at the primitive cottage-hospital was 304; 6,449 people were treated at the dispensary, of whom 3,808 were Mohammedans, and 1,141 Jews; and 1,266 visits were paid to patients in their homes, the majority of them being Europeans. Partly as a result of the fees paid by the latter, the Medical Mission is entirely self-supporting. The obstacles which were met with arose from the overwhelming number of patients, from two hundred to three hundred frequently coming day by day to the dispensary, and from the inconvenience of the so-called hospital. The nature of the medical work is illustrated by the following cases described by Dr. Sturrock:—

Patients from distant villages.

Some time ago a boy was brought to the dispensary, after a journey of some 300 miles, suffering from a severe compound fracture of the foot, necessitating partial amputation. He stayed in hospital twenty-six days and returned home happy in once more being able to run about. In June of this year, one morning there arrived at the dispensary an old Arab woman, who, to my surprise, gave me a warm greeting, though I had never seen her before. It turned out that she had been brought by the mother of the boy referred to, and had heard of his recovery, being a friend of his family, though living in a different village. Poor soul, she begged me to make her well too, as for many weeks she had had little sleep on account of the pain arising from a cancerous growth. I am glad to say she is on the convalescent list, and her gratitude knows no bounds, though even before anything was done for her, her heart was as it were at our feet. What blessed opportunities these are to tell of the precious love of a dying Saviour!

A two hundred miles, walk to the hospital, aided by a crutch.

In 1898 we had as an in-patient a man called "Captain" Abdullah, who came from a village situated between Baghdad and Mosul, and was most grateful for the treatment he received. At the beginning of April a poor boy of fourteen, an orphan, homeless and friendless, begged his way from this village to Baghdad, with the aid of a crutch, limping the 200 miles. Notwithstanding his destitution and suffering, I have rarely seen a happier or more contented person. By the removal of a piece of dead bone from his leg he was able on his return to leave his crutch in Baghdad. Shortly afterwards an old man of over sixty arrived from the same village and was admitted as an in-patient. While he was convalescent a third patient found his way to Baghdad from this place, and it must have been a very trying journey for him, as he was exceedingly ill from an abscess in the liver.

Not only was the medical and surgical work unopposed, but the daily reading of the Scriptures and preaching in the hospital was carried on with almost as much freedom as it could be in England. Miss Martin, who visited the women at the dispensary three times a week, describes a typical day as follows:—

Bible talks in the wards.

At 8 a.m. Sara [the Bible-woman] and I go upstairs to our usual corner on the verandah, and after giving a general "Good-morning," seat ourselves on the floor. On my left hand are two gaunt-looking men stretched on beds or the floor, but recovering from severe illness; with them are their wives. I inquire after the patients and hope for their speedy restoration. On my left is a boy restored to health and leaving that very day. With him are his mother and another woman speaking Turkish. We call up some others from the court below, and they sit around while we read and explain the parable of the Lost Sheep, and the 23rd Psalm. The Arab women grasp the meaning at once, being so well accustomed to a shepherd's life. The Turkish woman finds it more difficult, as Arabic is a foreign language to her; but she becomes very interested and follows every word. When we have finished, some more of her friends come to see her, and ask us to read it over again to them, which we do; and those who have heard it once seem delighted to hear it a second time. Those women will not be here to-morrow. It is most likely that they will never again hear the Word of God. Think what it means, only one hearing. Only one little seed of truth dropped in the heart in a life-time! Sara and I sit there about an hour, and then with a silent prayer for the Divine blessing return to our other work.

But sometimes we have more difficult times than yesterday. Perhaps a woman who knows something of her own religion perceives that our teaching does not agree with it, and starts arguing. We need considerable tact and patience to declare the truth and yet not give needless offence. Sometimes the women are very stupid and indifferent, which is still more trying; but often the most stupid will brighten up on a second visit, and show some interest. While the out-patients are waiting for their turn to see the doctor, one of our Mission assistants reads and preaches the Gospel to them. Not, perhaps, exactly what you would call preaching, for that is forbidden by the Turks; but he sits among them and talks to them, and he speaks so loud that all can hear.

Many of the patients displayed more than a passing interest in the Gospel story, coming again and again to hear it, and visiting the colporteur in his book-shop in the bazaar so as to learn more about the Way of Salvation. The influence of the medical work extended, as already indicated, far beyond the limits of Baghdad. Some of the people travelled for a fortnight in order to reach the doctor, and the latter had among his in-patients representatives of Busrah, Mosul, and Kurdistan, besides some fifty to seventy other towns and villages. Dr. Sturrock mentions a Sayyid from an adjoining city, who came to the colporteur at the dispensary saying he wished to embrace Christianity; for some days he was instructed, and then had to return home, but was provided with a complete Bible and a few helpful books. The case of another Mohammedan also deserves to be recorded:—

Representatives of many cities.

A wealthy Mohammedan, upon whom I operated more than a year ago has ever since been a very close friend, and comes several times a month to see me. On one occasion he brought some relative to the dispensary for treatment, and the patient was getting on satisfactorily after coming for some weeks. My friend then asked me not to treat the patient any more, as in a transaction over the sale of a garden the patient had cheated him, at the same time expressing the desire that the disease would increase and death would soon follow. I explained to him that if God treated us as we deserved, our punishment would indeed be severe. A few weeks later he told me he had been reading the Gospels and found them very beautiful, and added, "Perhaps I am like the man with the beam in his eye; since you spoke to me I am nearer Heaven than I have been before."

Vindictiveness rebuked.

INDIA.

Development of India during nineteenth century.

THE wonderful development of India during the nineteenth century was admirably sketched in a paper read by Sir W. Lee-Warner, K.C.S.I., at the Imperial Institute in January, 1900. In 1812 the Commander-in-Chief thought that he accomplished the journey from Calcutta to Cawnpore in rapid time when he performed it in eleven weeks, and it was not until forty years later that the first railway in the country was opened; whereas at the present day 23,000 miles of railway are in general use. During the period in question the letter rate from England has been reduced from ten rupees for a single letter to one penny, and there are now 52,000 miles of telegraph wire in the country. Indeed, the century has been marked by a general growth in prosperity, and pari passu therewith, by an increase of population too. The condition of the people, also, has enormously improved. Reforms such as the prevention of the sacrifice of children at certain places on the Ganges, the abolition of suttee, of the practice of illegal duress and of domestic and agrarian slavery, and the stamping out of the gangs of Thugs, have been carried out, and the principle of religious toleration throughout British India has been extended by the enactment that the renunciation of, or exclusion from, caste should not affect rights of property or inheritance.

Plague and Famine.

India was not left without grave public calamities during the year under review. The plague, which seems to recur annually, was responsible for considerable ravages; a terrible landslip at Darjeeling in September brought about by phenomenally wet weather, caused the death of about four hundred people, including five children of the Rev. D. H. Lee, of the American Methodist Episcopal Mission, Calcutta; the failure in some districts of the rain which was so disastrously plentiful in others led at the commencement of 1900 to anticipations of grievous famine among a population of about fifteen million souls in the Central Provinces, Rajputana, and South-East Punjab—anticipations which have since been more than realized, for the famine of the present year is pronounced by competent authorities to be the worst that has ravaged India during the nineteenth century.

Plague and famine naturally affect missionary operations to an appreciable extent, but there are other things which touch them more closely, and constitute distinct difficulties. Among these must be included the Hindu reaction, of which Dr. Fairbairn, of Oxford, who visited India on a lecturing tour in the winter of 1898–99, wrote in the Contemporary Review:—

Hindu reaction.

> The Hindu reaction is the antithesis to the Brahmo Samaj, but is quite as distinctly due to Western influences, though to these resisted and resented rather than adopted, adapted, and modified. It is the assertion of the Hindu mind over against the spirit which is its negation; and the assertion is most definite where the negation is most direct, in the sphere of religion. The English rule is an immense disintegrative and levelling force; it does not spare, even where it means to be most conservative, the ancient institutions of States, or the customs and beliefs of the people. The Civil Service and the railway system, education and the competitive examinations, bear hardly upon the laws and the regulations of the castes; the Sudra may be set to judge the Brahman, or the low-born may in the Honours list stand high above the twice-born. English policy and justice may combine to secure its endowments to the temple or the mosque, may protect Hindu and Mohammedan alike in the exercise of their religion; but in doing so they change the whole historical situation and create a condition of things where nothing is as it was before.

Now, the people instinctively feel a revolution to be in process and to be irresistible, and they do not love the power by which it is being effected. Their own customs and institutions become the dearer to them that they are threatened with extinction or radical change. . . . Why, the Hindu asks himself, should he accept this Western religion? He has one of his own, ancient, potent, elastic; it embodies his instinctive genius, suits his special needs, is older than the Christian, rests on thought he has elaborated and many Western men have learned to admire. To surrender his religion would be to make a complete surrender of himself, his past, his separate mind and being, and to become a mere echo of the civilization he despises. The Hindu reaction is thus a very real force, moved by reasons we cannot but respect. Patriotism lives behind and within it; in it the Orient stands up against the Occident, defies it, challenges its right to come East and impose itself on what is older, more congenial to the Oriental nature, and too deeply rooted to be plucked up by alien hands.

Attempted Buddhist revival.

Simultaneous with the Hindu reaction there has been an attempted Buddhist revival, the leaders of which issued in the summer the following announcement, which incidentally throws a strange light on the "Light of Asia" itself:—

The 2,488th Anniversary Celebration of the Establishment of the Kingdom of Righteousness on Earth will be held at the Albert Hall to-morrow, Sunday, July, 30th, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. A collection of Buddhist relics from Ceylon, Gandahar, Siam, Japan, Burma, Tibet, India, and China; the Royal Edition of the Pali Pitakas, presented to the Maha-Bodhi Society by the King of Siam; the Japanese cup presented by the Emperor of Japan; paintings, pictures, bells, lacquer-ware, &c., will be exhibited on this occasion. All those who wish to attend the celebration should abstain on that day from destroying any life, stealing, sensual indulgence, lying, and taking intoxicating liquor. They may bring fresh, sweet-scented flowers, taking care not to inhale their fragrance. All are invited. Peace and blessings to all.

Anglo-Indians and missionary work.

Another and perhaps more serious hindrance to missionary work is the indifference, if not antagonism, with which it is regarded by many of the Europeans resident in India. The Contemporary Review published not long since a satire, by Professor Fairbairn, on this attitude, in which the following passage occurs:—

The orthodox Anglo-Indian, though possibly himself a Christian, must believe that Christianity produces the most disastrous effects in India. He should remember that the Natives already possess two excellent religions of their own, i.e. Hinduism and Islam. He should point out that almost invariably converts to Christianity spring from the lowest orders of the people, and that the hope of financial gain is the main inducement towards baptism rather than any real conversion of the heart. He should himself as an official be very careful to abstain from even a suspicion of in any way favouring Christians; and, as they are of course worse than other Natives, he will neither employ them as household servants himself nor suffer others to do so without warning them of their folly. In all these ways an orthodox person can maintain a proper position with regard to missionary efforts; though of course the ne plus ultra of orthodoxy was in vogue in the glorious Georgian era, when all missionaries from England were excluded from British India.

With regard to financial help to Missions, facetious remarks should be made with reference to the cost per head of each convert, and the probable time that must elapse before India will be converted. Those who prefer the Creed of Christendom to that of Anglo-India may reply with certain tiresome arguments. They may allude to the fact that certain parts of Europe, notably Prussia and Poland, were not converted for more than a thousand years after Christ, and that Christian efforts in India are comparatively modern. They may point out that when Paul preached it was the slaves and poor people who were specially drawn to Christianity, and that not many mighty and not many noble were Christians first of all at Corinth; they may say that the Christian leaven is working now even as it worked then—upwards rather than downwards. They may even dare to assert that they believe that Native Christians are quite as good as servants as are their heathen brethren; they will perhaps point to the fact that in the market they command higher wages in clubs, restaurants, and private houses. But though the fresh arrival may have obtained high marks both in history and political economy, he must treat all such arguments as mere devices to shake the faith of the orthodox, and unworthy of serious consideration.

Undermanned Missions.

Another difficulty consists in the undermanned condition of the field. A single missionary is sometimes left with two or three native helpers to engage in the impossible attempt to effectually evangelize a district of forty miles square with a population of 100,000 souls; and even in some of the more fortunate portions of the country it is true, as a missionary once stated, that a Native who always happened to be at home when Christian preachers visited his village, and who was invariably able to devote the whole time of their stay to listening to their words, would only hear the Gospel for two or three hours once in three years. Well may another missionary remark that to work on such a scale is "like sending a child with a pop-gun to storm a fortress."

Hindus and education.

It is, however, obviously the duty of the Church to do the best she can, even though that best is not so good as it might and should be, and amongst the most effectual of the agencies for making known the message of Salvation to the upper classes of Hindu society are the Educational Institutions of the C.M.S. and kindred Societies. The Mohammedans have proved accessible to this particular agency in a far less degree, because they have not as a community shown a readiness to acquire Western education. This was evidenced by a matter which was brought under the notice of the Viceroy, shortly after his arrival in Calcutta. It was represented to him that during the last half century the lot of the higher classes of Mohammedans in the land had been a hard one, for, though they were formerly the rulers of the country, they had been largely crowded out of official life by the free competition of the Hindus. The explanation of the fact is to be found in education. After the creation of a system of public instruction on a grand scale in 1854, intellectual attainments took the place of the prescriptive claims to which the Mohammedans had been indebted under the rule of the Company for their possession of public offices. These attainments were lacking among the Mohammedans, not so much in consequence of any lack of ability on their part, as because of their religious and domestic obligations, which rendered it extremely difficult for them to accept the purely secular system of education offered by the State. The Hindus, with their religious training at home, were troubled by no such scruples, and thus grew up on the Government pattern, and, having attained through the State schools and colleges the exact qualifications requisite for official employ, ousted their former conquerors from the positions which they used to regard as belonging to them by right.

Mission Colleges.

In recent years, however, the Hindus have had formidable competitors from among Christians, and, it may be added, from among those trained in Christian institutions who remain nominally Hindus, but whose influence is in some respects distinctly favourable to the progress of Christianity. Illustrations of this fact are afforded by the appointment of Kanwar Sir Harnam Singh, K.C.S.I., a well-known member of the Indian Christian community, to a seat on the Imperial Legislative Council. Some recently-issued statistics of the Madras Christian College also bear on the same subject. From 1869 to 1894 inclusive there went out from the College 880 students who, so far as was known, were alive in 1899. Of that number, 390 were in the employment of the British Government; 160 were making their way in the world as lawyers of various grades; more than 100 were principals, professors, tutors, or teachers in non-Government colleges and schools; and about eighty were employed in different capacities by local bodies and native noblemen. Some, though far too few, were traders or contractors on their own account; others attended to the cultivation of their own lands; and others again were engineers, medical practitioners, editors or sub-editors of newspapers, or were employed by banks and railways. Although but a small number of these 880 graduates, only thirty, were actually professed Christians, yet it cannot be doubted that the majority of them are at least favourably disposed to Christianity, and that, whether converts or not, the influence which their positions enable them to exercise will be used rather in favour of than in opposition to the efforts to win India for Christ.

Christian literature.

The provision of Christian literature for the people of India, and particularly the translation of the Word of God into their own languages, is closely allied with that form of missionary effort which has been briefly referred to above. The work of Bible translation suffered by the death of the Rev. Dr. Kellogg, of the American Presbyterian Church, who was one of the colleagues of Dr. Hooper, of the C.M.S., in discharging the great task of revising the Hindi Old Testament. He had done good literary service in other ways, and published a book, The Light of Asia and the Light of the World, in reply to The Light of Asia. Amongst the important agencies for publishing and disseminating Christian books and papers is the Christian Literature Society for India, which brought out 132 new books in the course of the year, and also sixty-eight new editions of books previously issued.

Disabilities of Christians in Native States.

The treatment to which Native Christians are subjected in Native States in India calls for earnest consideration, and several State papers have been issued concerning the matter, which is one of great intricacy, owing to the variety of the laws and customs which prevail. Thus, in Travancore, there is a large class, from which have come thousands of converts, whose inheritance is regulated by descent in the female line. There no person can theoretically hold any separate property, but must have all things in common with the whole family. These privileges can only be enjoyed by those who are in a position to render corresponding services to the family, as, for instance, performing certain ceremonies of a more or less idolatrous nature. Obviously converts cannot do this, nor can they be permitted to share the common meal in a family whose other members are still bound by rules of caste. There are ways of evading these difficulties in cases where the religious disability is not involved, and these ways are freely followed. But when a convert's rights are in question he can claim nothing but the strictest letter of the law, and the Courts of a heathen Government will make none of those concessions which are readily allowed in other cases. The confusion and difficulty are increased by the fact that at first the Syrian Christians did not—and the Roman Catholics still do not—join in the representations made to the Native Government in this behalf; the former, because they have been for so many ages a separate body that they are only in a small degree affected by the disabilities; the latter, partly, no doubt, from the same reason, and also partly from the fact that the Pope's dispensing power is understood to be sometimes used where the Protestant rules would insist on the highest standard of social morality.

There are, moreover, in the position of the native converts disadvantages which are more general in their application than those of a political nature, which latter prevail only in the Native States. Their profession of faith in Christ serves to isolate them from their former co-religionists, while the Europeans, with the exception of the missionaries, pay but little heed to them, and the fact that they are drawn from different castes and different vocations furnishes a difficulty in the way of bringing about that union amongst themselves which is so earnestly to be desired. At present, too, the Native Churches are passing through a phase of what has been termed "grotesque transition," and are neither fully Oriental nor fully Occidental. Problems connected with them are numerous and difficult, but there are circumstances in which great haste is little short of folly, and it will probably only be very gradually that the problems will be finally and satisfactorily solved.

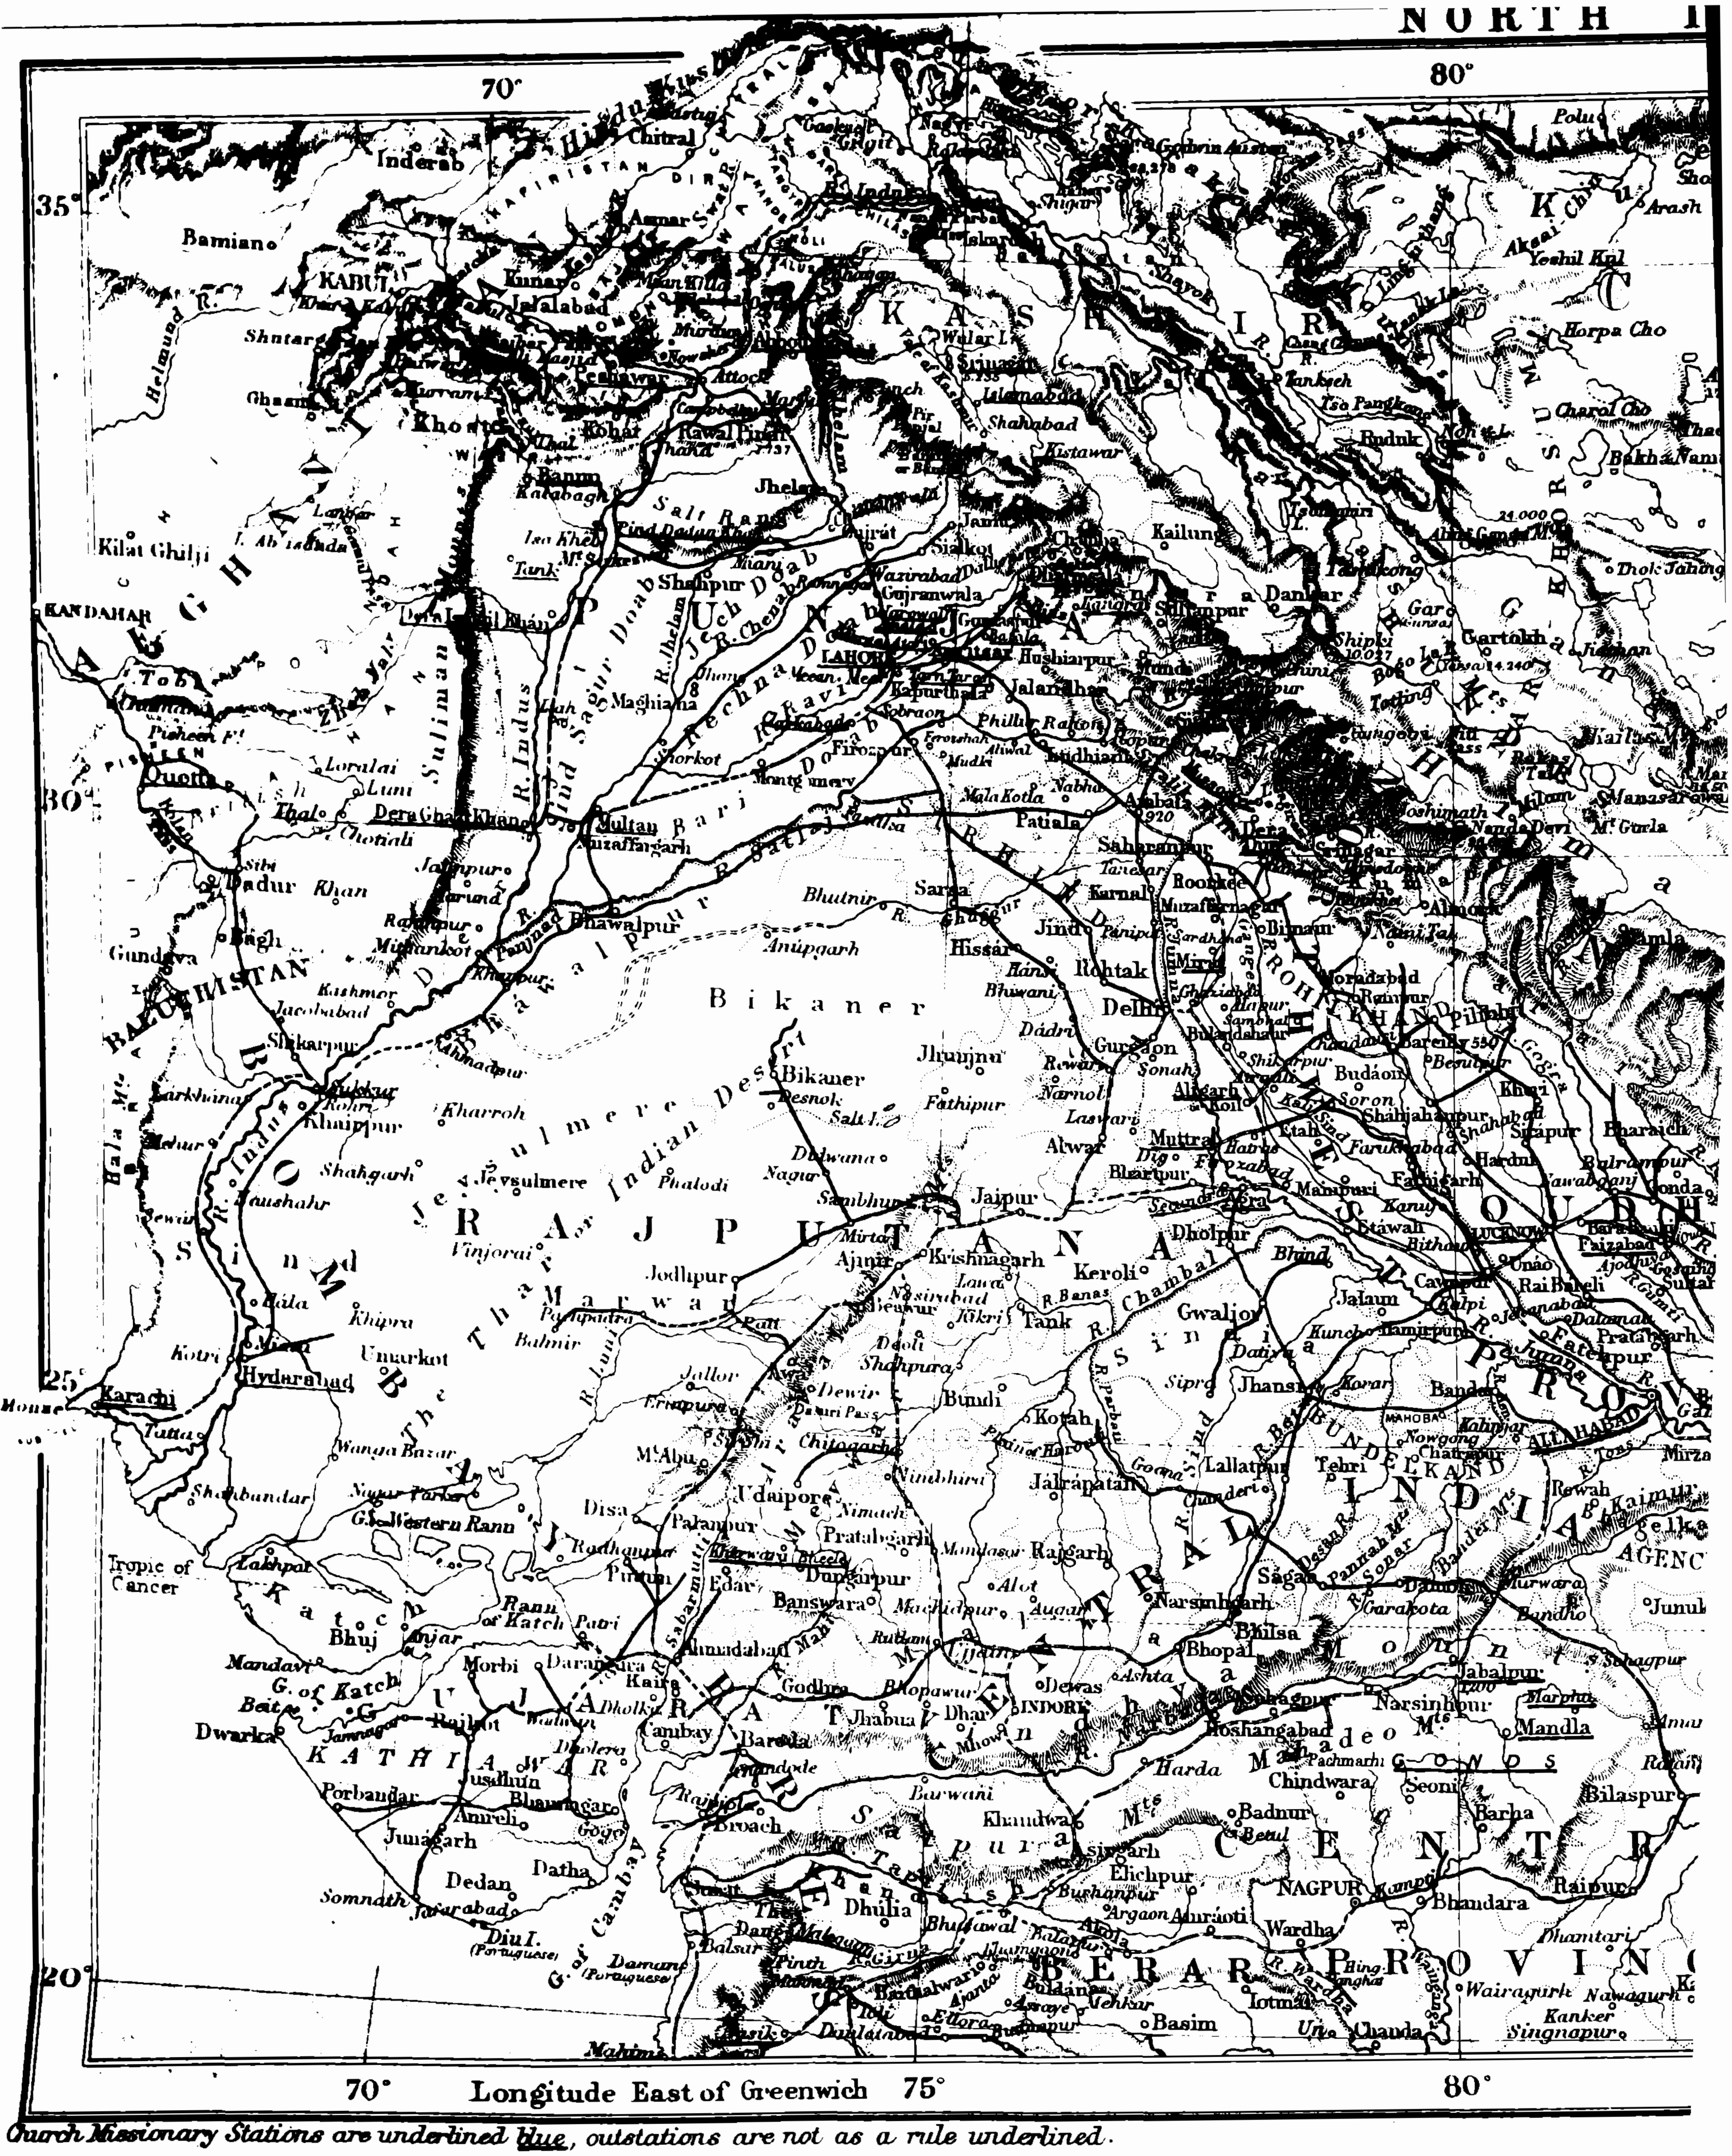
Conference of Indian Bishops.

The eighth Conference of Bishops holding jurisdiction in India, Burmah, and Ceylon was held in Calcutta in January, 1900, those present being the Bishop of Calcutta (the Metropolitan), and the Bishops of Bombay, Madras, Colombo, Rangoon, Lucknow, Lahore, Chhota Nagpur, and Tinnevelly and Madura. Bishop Hodges of Travancore was prevented from attending by a serious indisposition. Amongst the subjects on which Resolutions were passed were The Use of Consecrated Churches, The Development of Missionary Work, Indian Clergy, Purity, Translations, Grievances of Native Christians, Relation to different Christian Bodies, Commentary in Vernaculars, and The Observance of Sunday. Under "Grievances of Native Christians," the Bishops urgently represented to the Government of India the importance of redressing, at the earliest possible time, the grievance under which Native Christians are placed by the Succession Act of 1865; and under "Commentary in Vernaculars," they recognized the urgent need which exists of a commentary, in the various vernaculars, on the Holy Scriptures, in accordance with the teaching of the Church of England. The Encyclical Letter which the Bishops issued was cordially welcomed by the Hindu, the organ of the Hindus, of South India, which said:—



A Hindu organ on Christianity and the missionary duty.

> We are glad that the great Christian ecclesiastical dignitaries of India recognize the important truth that to labour for the secular well-being of non-Christian people is not inconsistent with their duty to win them over to their own faith. What of this secular well-being the people of this country enjoy at present they thankfully acknowledge as the result of the beneficent work of the great Christian power that controls the destiny of their land,—a result in which they perceive the influence of the humane and progressive qualities which the ruling race owe to the great faith they profess.

Day of Prayer for India.

A special Call to Prayer for India was issued in the autumn by the Bishop of Calcutta and nine other missionary leaders of various Christian denominations. Sunday, December 3rd, was the day proposed, and it was suggested that special public services and meetings should be held, and that individual Christians should devote some part of the day to secret prayer and self-examination in order that by reviewing in the presence of God their own spiritual life and their efforts to spread the Gospel they might discover by the help of the Holy Spirit any hindrances in themselves to the speedy evangelization of India.

BENGAL MISSION.

Lutheran missionaries under the S.P.C.K. laboured in South India in the last century, and many thousands of converts were baptized; but the Missions, after the deaths of Schwartz and other leaders, languished, and at length only a few Christians remained. For some years prior to the renewal of the East India Company's charter in 1813, no missionaries were allowed to reside within the British Dominions, and Carey, the famous Baptist Missionary, and his companions, had to take refuge in the Danish settlements. Among the Government chaplains, however, there were men like Brown, Buchanan, Henry Martyn, Corrie, and Thomason, who did what they could to prepare the way for future workers. The C.M.S. had an important share in the establishment of the Bishopric of Calcutta in 1814, by its publication of Claudius Buchanan's work on the subject; and it granted the first Bishop, Dr. Middleton, £5,000 towards the cost of Bishop's College. His successors have been: Heber (1822), James (1826), Turner (1829), Daniel Wilson (1832), Cotton (1858), Milman (1867), Johnson (1876), Welldon (1898).

Before India was open to missionaries, a Corresponding Committee of the C.M.S. was formed at Calcutta, of which the above-named chaplains and several influential laymen were members. Two English missionaries were sent to Calcutta in 1816; Burdwan was occupied in 1817; Krishnagar (Nadiya) in 1831; and Bhágalpur in 1850. Great interest was aroused by a remarkable movement in the Nadiya district in 1838, when some 3,000 persons forsook Heathenism, and on one occasion 900 were baptized in the presence of Bishop Daniel Wilson. Work was begun among the Santals, an aboriginal tribe in Bengal, in 1860.

Missionary Conferences.

THE half-yearly Conference of Bengal C.M.S. missionaries was held from March 13th to 17th, 1899. The first day was devoted to the work of committees, when many questions were discussed more thoroughly than they can be in a large conference. The 14th was kept as a "Quiet Day," and two very earnest addresses were given by the Rev. I. W. Charlton on the subject of "Faith." On the 17th the Rev. E. T. Butler preached the Conference sermon, and the same evening there was an "At Home," at which Bishop Welldon and many friends of the C.M.S. were present, including missionaries of other societies working in Bengal.

Reinforcements.

Only two recruits joined the Mission during the year: Mr. Alfred Ernest William Gwyn, who sailed in December; and Miss Margaret Katharine Wolley, who left England in November. The Committee have accepted with regret the resignation of the Rev. H. Kitley.

Ordinations.

The Rev. E. Cannon was admitted to priests' orders by the Bishop of Calcutta on December 24th, 1899, and the Revs. Santi Bhusan Biswas, Solomon Biswas, and Jiban Chandra Mallik on March 11th, 1900.

The Calcutta Corresponding Committee consists of the following:—Right Rev. Lord Bishop of Calcutta, Mr. A. F. Cox, Mr. W. Dobbie, Mr. R. M. Gurney, Hon. J. A. Bourdillon, Mr. R. T. Greer, Mr. F. E. Pargiter, Lieut.-Col. B. Scott, R.E., Dr. P. D. Bose, the Revs. A. G. Lockett, E. T. Butler, and E. T. Sandys (Acting-Secretary).

I. CALCUTTA AND BURDWAN.

THE Rev. C. L. Olsen was married at Calcutta to Miss Edith Mabel Fanny Sibley in November.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Parsons sailed to return to the Mission in October, 1899, the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Cullen in November, and the Rev. and Mrs. E. T. Sandys in January, 1900. There returned to England the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Bourdillon (invalided) in October, 1899; Mr. A. C. Kestin in December; the Rev. and Mrs. H. Gouldsmith in February, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Ball, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Parker in April; and Mrs. C. Grant (on medical certificate) in May.

CALCUTTA.

Calcutta.

The Centenary celebrations at CALCUTTA began nearly two months before the actual completion of the Hundreth Year of the Society, for on February 28th a meeting was held in the Town Hall, at which the Bishop of Calcutta presided, and the Bishop-Designate of Madras, Mr. James Monro, C.B., and the Rev. A. G. Lockett were the other speakers. This, however, was for the Europeans before they left Calcutta for the Hills. The Centenary observances for the Bengali Christians took place from April 9th to 14th. On the 9th, special sermons were preached in all the churches connected with the Calcutta District Church Council, and the collections were for a much-needed church-room at Mukhum Wallah Gully, a new C.M.S. district. On the 10th a prayer-meeting was held in Trinity Church. On the 11th, at 3 p.m., there was a children's meeting in Trinity Church, and a thanksgiving service took place at 6.30 p.m., with a sermon by the Rev. A. Le Feuvre. On the 12th there was a special administration of the Holy Communion in the Old Church at 7.30 a.m., which was followed in the afternoon by a crowded meeting for women only, while in the evening a public meeting was held in Trinity Church, with addresses on "Missionary Work in Bengal, Past, Present, and Future." On the 13th there was an administration of the Holy Communion at 7 a.m. at Trinity Church, with an address by the Rev. D. Biswas; a Bible-reading at noon by the Rev. A. G. Lockett; and a meeting in the evening. A service was also held in the evening at the Old Church, at which the Rev. W. H. Ball was the preacher. On the 14th, at Trinity Church, a prayer-meeting was held at 7 a.m., and a public meeting, presided over by Mr. Ball, in the evening.

Centenary celebrations.

The Rev. H. Gouldsmith (now at home) had the Rev. C. L. Olsen as his colleague in the work at the Old Church. It was in 1715, some twenty-five years after the advent of the English, History of the Old Church.

that the first church was built in Calcutta by the merchants and seafaring men whose affairs called them to trade there, and in those early days the services were often conducted by young merchants, who received an allowance of £50 per annum from the East India Company for their work. In 1737 the church was destroyed by a cyclone and earthquake, but was soon afterwards rebuilt, only to be destroyed again nineteen years later by the soldiers of the Nawab of Bengal. There were then two chaplains in Calcutta; one perished in the Black Hole, and the other during the mortality which broke out at Fulta among the fugitives from the town. John Kiernander, who was expelled from Cuddalore when it was taken by the French in 1758, was treated with great kindness by Clive when he arrived in Calcutta, and a house was given to him rent free. He assisted the chaplains in their ministerial duties among Europeans, and in December of the last-mentioned year opened the Mission School, which existed until 1789, when it was incorporated with the Charity School, founded in 1732, to form the present Calcutta Free School. By 1760 Kiernander's congregation numbered 231, some of them converts from Hinduism, and others destitute heathen children who had been adopted by Europeans. In 1767, having to remove from the house lent him by Government for the use of his church and school, he determined to build a church. This was commenced in May, 1767, and was finished on December 23rd, 1770. This is now known as the Old (or Mission) Church. The congregation was not quite so large as usual during the year under review, and the offertories showed a certain falling off, but the number of communicants was good, and the missionary interest was well maintained, more than Rs. 3,400 being contributed in connexion with the Church Missionary Association. In the autumn the church was fitted up with the electric light, and arrangements were made to introduce electric fans, so that the people might have a good breeze in the intense heat. As a memorial to the late Mr. Stephen Jacob, whose death was recorded in last year's Report (page 169), a tablet and tombstone were erected, the balance of the money subscribed, Rs. 3,500, being applied as an endowment for the Free Day School, which has the names of 180 scholars on its roll. A site for new premises for that school was obtained, not without much difficulty, and the permanency of the school was secured by means of two endowments besides that just mentioned, the one a sum of Rs. 40,000, which came as a deed of gift from Mr. G. H. Kiernander, the great-grandson of the founder of the church, and the other a legacy of Rs. 3,100 from the head partner of a large Calcutta firm. The Welland Memorial School also had 180 children, all of the so-called better classes, and by the aid of the fees and the Government grant was entirely self-supporting. The increased number of applications for admission necessitated the enlargement of the Hebrew Mission School. The Jewish children, even those who had been to schools provided by members of their own faith, were found to be very ignorant, but under competent teachers they made rapid progress. Mr. Olsen conducted services at the Sailors' Home, and paid special attention to temperance work. Concerning this he mentions the interesting fact that some of the soldiers of the Gloucester Regiment who went to South Africa were members of the Temperance Society, and adds :—

Temperance Society.

> Many of these were really godly men, and it was a joy to see their earnest faces at our meetings. Not long before they left Fort William at Calcutta for Allahabad, from whence they shortly afterwards returned to Calcutta to embark for the Transvaal War, two or three of them gave short addresses at one of our meetings.

At the commencement of 1900 Mr. Gouldsmith was compelled by the state of his wife's health to resign the incumbency of the Old Church and return to England, his place being temporarily taken by a former incumbent, the Rev. A. H. Bowman. Before he left Mr. Gouldsmith was presented by the congregation with a testimonial and a purse containing Rs. 900.

Divinity School.

The work at the Divinity School was carried on by the Rev. A. G. Lockett, the Principal, and the Rev. C. Grant. The functions of the School were extended by the opening on July 3rd of a First Arts class with four pupils, and by the appointment of two Bengali lecturers on Sanscrit, mathematics, and science. Both the Bengali teachers unfortunately are Hindus, it having been impossible to find Christians who were qualified for the work. The various requirements having been complied with, the class has been affiliated to the University. The students in the School during the year under review were but few in number. There were six members of the Bengali class at the beginning of the year, but two of these proved unequal to the work, and went, the one to a post on the East Indian Railway, and the other to village school work. Two others left at the end of the autumn term, owing to failure in the examinations. Mr. A. C. Kestin helped with the Hindi class, which, though small, was eminently satisfactory, for two of the three students passed their final examination with credit, and Mr. Lockett says that they "quite rejoiced his heart by their keenness." There was one other probationary student reading at the College during the autumn term, a graduate of the Calcutta University, who it was hoped would become a member of the proposed English Theological class. The three native clergy who were admitted, as already mentioned, in March, 1900, to priests' orders were former students of this class.

Boarding-schools.

The value of the Christian Boys' Boarding-school was demonstrated by a list which was published, showing the occupations of old boys. From this, which was not complete owing to the difficulty of tracing the former pupils, it appeared that of those who had passed through the school twenty-nine were in Government employ, thirty-nine were in offices or in business on their own account, and forty-six were engaged in Mission work. The Rev. C. B. Clarke, the Principal of the School, reports that in 1899 the number of scholars rose to over one hundred, that the receipts from fees were greater than ever before, and that all the five boys who sat for the Matriculation Examination passed, two in the first class, and three in the second. He refers with thankfulness to the fact that the staff is almost entirely composed of Christians, there being seven Christian masters and only one Hindu, the Sanscrit Pundit, as compared with two Christian and six Hindu masters in 1895. The gymnasium was enlarged and the library renovated, thanks to the kindness of friends in England who supplied the necessary means. Care was taken to provide the boys with healthful recreation, and it was a particular pleasure to find the lads engaging in gardening as a recreation, since the tendency in India is to regard manual labour as degrading.

The Girls' Boarding-school, under Miss H. J. Neele, had 120 scholars. A death occurred at the school for the first time on Christmas Day, 1898, when malarial fever carried off one of the girls after an illness of a few weeks' duration. Miss Neele says of her:—

> She was quite a little girl when her mother, a convert, first brought her from her heathen home to Barrackpore. Little S. very early gave evidence of a real change of heart; and when her mother, against the advice of her friends, married a Brahmo, her little daughter said, "You may forsake Christ, but I will not"; and she did live a very consistent life until she was taken from us at the age of seventeen. I believe her words and example were much blessed to a young companion who helped to nurse her during her last illness.

With this exception there was comparative immunity from sickness, though influenza, happily of a slight form, caused a good deal of trouble. Some difficulty was experienced in the tuition, owing to Miss Farler being transferred to Krishnagar, but Miss A. M. Sampson efficiently seconded the efforts of Miss Neele, and Miss M. K. Wolley, one of the year's recruits, has been added to the staff. Six pupils were sent up for the Matriculation Examination of the Calcutta University, the largest number in the history of the school, and five of these were successful in passing (two of them obtaining Government Scholarships), four in the second division, and the other in the third. The one who failed passed in every subject excepting English. Three of the successful girls joined the F.A. classes at the Bethune College, one continued at the school in the capacity of teacher, and the fifth, together with the one who failed, went to the Ludhiana School of Medicine in the Punjab, where they gave great satisfaction. The junior classes did very well in the Senate House Examination, and carried off three Government Scholarships, but the seventh standard was disappointing. Although it was not possible to have lectures by friends from outside with any degree of regularity, several were given on various subjects, including two on a tour in Palestine, and one on "How we got our Bible," the latter by Mr. Edmunds of the Bible Society. Miss Sampson carried on the work of the Gleaners' Union Branch, of which occasional meetings were held, and by which a school for Hindi-speaking children was supported, and a parcel of clothing, made by the girls at a voluntary weekly working-party, was sent to the Katni-Murwara Orphanage.

Christ Church.

There were no adult baptisms in connexion with the work at Christ Church under the Rev. P. T. Biswas, although every effort was made to reach the non-Christians. Three bands of men proclaimed the Gospel regularly in a chapel just in front of the church building, and had some constant listeners from among the Hindus, some of whom were convinced, it is said, of the truth, but hesitated to confess themselves as Christians. After the celebration of the Centenary, an association, composed partly of Mission agents and partly of voluntary workers, was formed under the title of the "Bengali Missionary Union for Prayer and Work." The rules provided that every member should pay something to the Union, and in the Government holidays join in open-air preaching outside the city. The members, forty in number, assembled every month for prayer, the leaders meeting weekly for that purpose, and also engaging twice a week in preaching in the chapels. In October a band of nine men went out into the Howrah district, remaining five days at a village named Dombur, and speaking there and in the surrounding market-places. There were many tokens of God's favour. They had no tents with them, but the Hindus gave them lodgings in their own houses; they had no servants, but yet they experienced little difficulty from the lack of them; and they met with but small opposition from the common people, though the Brahmans were prominent in urging a variety of objections to their message. Of the converts Amrita and Bamacharan, who were mentioned in last year's Report (page 173), Mr. Biswas writes :—

Voluntary evangelists.

Lodged by Hindus while on a preaching tour.

> Amrita has resigned his secular and lucrative post, and depending on a donation, much less than his salary, has gone to his country people to preach the Gospel to them and to live an exemplary Christian life before his relations. And the other man, Bamacharan, is still working as a pressman, but he also is very willing to be a preacher to his own people, and is praying to God that he may have that privilege. He often comes to preach with our band, and preaches very acceptably to Hindus, showing with very great courage the folly of Hinduism and the true way of salvation through Jesus Christ.

Trinity Church.

The Rev. I. W. Charlton, the Chairman of the Calcutta

District Church Council, was in charge of the pastorate of Trinity Church and was assisted in his work by the Rev. Shanti Biswas. He writes:—

I am afraid it is true that the Bengali Christian Church here as elsewhere is suffering from the effects of a deep-rooted tendency to look upon Christianity as God's method of excusing sin, rather than God's means of removing it. The result is a low ideal of Christian possibility and attainment fatal to real aggression and usefulness. Joined with this there is an unwillingness on the part of God's own children to come out and be separate from the ungodly, and so some otherwise useful lives are weakened by unworthy associations and friendships.

A special attempt was made to influence the young men of between sixteen and twenty-five years of age, connected with the congregation, by arranging a series of addresses for them on the lives of well-known men of God, such as Lord Lawrence, Moody, &c. The gatherings were held in Mr. Charlton's house, there being no church-room, and there were good attendances and well-sustained interest. Mrs. Charlton conducted Bible-classes for the women. A Missionary Association, the membership of which is not confined to those who attend Trinity Church, was set on foot by some of the most earnest Bengali Christian men, who manage it without the aid of any European. Each member pays a fixed sum monthly, and every week two preachings are held, and also a meeting for prayer and mutual encouragement and advice. Among those baptized were a young man, a servant in the Divinity School, and two inmates of the Leper Asylum.

Out-stations.

Work is carried on at several out-stations under the supervision of the Calcutta District Church Council. One of the most hopeful was St. Mark's, Mukhum Wallah Gully, where the Rev. D. Biswas is pastor. In this district many families of Christians were found living close together. Since the room in which the Sunday services were held was often overcrowded, the congregation of Trinity Church raised a special Centenary Fund in order to provide a proper church-room and school-room. Barnagore is a suburban parish, and the major portion of the congregation is drawn from the inmates of the Zenana House and Converts' Home. Considerations of health necessitated the abandoning by the Rev. W. P. Parker (now at home) of his labours amongst the men of the gun foundry and jute mills, and one of the native agents having resigned, and two others having been transferred on account of sickness, the work which was described in last year's Report entirely lapsed. At Krishtopur, three miles out of Calcutta, Akra, ten miles from the city, and Diamond Harbour, thirty-four miles distant, the work is on a small scale. The condition of Thakurpukur is a low one. Mr. Charlton describes the people as suffering from sickness of body, on account of the malarious nature of the neighbourhood; ignorance of mind, owing to the want of any real wish or effort for education for the children; and spiritual deadness, in spite of the efforts of many Bengali and European workers in years gone by. The evangelistic work of the Church Council lies at Andul, a considerable place, inhabited largely by well-to-do and highly educated Bengali business men, amongst whom two steady and faithful catechists labour.

Mohammedan work.

In connexion with the Mohammedan Mission under the Rev. A. Stark, there was a small congregation of about forty people. At the close of the year the Garden Reach High School had 290 names on the books, as compared with 220 twelve months earlier. A new head-master was appointed, Mr. H. W. B. Moreno, B.A., a Eurasian gentleman, who was partly educated at Murchiston, and graduated in Calcutta; besides him, there were four other Christian masters and seven Hindus. The Hon. W. B. Oldham, C.S.I., member of the Bengal Council, presided at the annual prize distribution in May, 1899. It was found that several changes in the staff of the Muttia Burj School were desirable, since only one of the masters was a Christian. In the third school, that at Burtola, the work is carried on in the vernacular among the sixty-seven Mohammedan boys.

When the Rev. H. Kitley left for home early in the year under review it become a misnomer to speak of the Band of Associated Evangelists so far as Europeans were concerned, for Mr. A. C. Kestin (now at home) had only one brother, and he a Native, the Rev. M. D. Biswas, associated with him. But at this juncture the Rev. W. P. Parker was transferred with Mrs. Parker from Barnagore, and placed in charge of the Evangelistic Work among Bengalis. He describes the open-air preaching as follows:—

Evangelistic Work among Bengalis.

> Taking our stand underneath a tree close to one of the canal bridges, we begin our meeting by singing a Bengali hymn, which at once arrests the attention of passers-by and draws a crowd. The people are mainly those of the lower classes. Babus and educated men will seldom allow themselves to be seen standing in a crowd with low-caste men, unless it be to view some degraded, mind-polluting heathenish rite. With a cynical sneer on their faces, and occasionally an obscene jest on their lips, they pass contemptuously by the Christian preacher who proclaims his message to coolies. Truly the self-conceit of the educated young Bengali erects a fearful barrier between his soul and Christ. When the hymn is ended an address follows. The people listen well enough up to a certain point, but when they hear of Christ as the only Saviour from sin, many of them become restless and move impatiently away. They are willing to acknowedge that they have all been guilty of a large amount of wrong-doing, but, so far as I can see, they do not appear to think it matters very much. I have often been astonished at the vivid and, to me, convincing manner in which some of the Bengali preachers set forth the horrors of sin's consequences and the safety of the Christian believer; but still more astonishing, perhaps, is the apparent apathy with which nearly all the people listen. Here and there one will seem genuinely interested; some will stay all through the meeting and ask a few questions afterwards. Very seldom do we meet with any opposition. Whenever a man tries to make a disturbance, the other people are almost certain to drive him away. As darkness sets in, the people go away one by one.

Apathy, but little opposition.

Several inquirers came forward, but in the case of most of them it proved that the desire was to obtain board and lodging, or higher education, or an introduction to an influential man who would procure for them some lucrative post. Many too who were more or less in earnest, and who unhesitatingly confessed the superiority of Christianity to Hinduism, were deterred from becoming Christians by the fear of being outcasted, and the difficulty of giving up the ancient customs which had been handed down through countless generations. Only three of the inquirers appeared to be genuine. The colporteur, who went out every day by himself, sold over 5,000 Gospels in the course of the year. In connexion with the Hindi work, and itinerating was undertaken by Mr. Kestin on a larger scale than usual, and nine persons resident in various villages were baptized. The difficulty in obtaining a good preaching-place in the Bara Bazaar, experienced in past years, continued with but little diminution. A small room opening on to the main thoroughfare was occupied for a few months, but at last the landlord requested the evangelists to move, as he had been exposed to persecution on their account. After some time new premises were secured, but the length of tenure remains to be proved. The attitude of the people manifestly changed for the better, although opposition was not unknown, and there were several regular and attentive hearers. The first convert of the Bara Bazaar work, who was baptized in 1894 (see Annual Report, 1895-96, page 170), returned during the year under review bringing his wife and infant child for baptism; and in November a youth, a servant in Calcutta, who was formerly a scholar in a Mission school in the North-West Provinces, was received into the visible Church. He took the name of David, his master kindly acting as one of his godfathers. At the beginning of 1899 the converts were gathered together as far as possible for a season of thanksgiving, prayer, and testimony. The five Chamar Schools, attended by 125 boys, made good progress, and the Sunday-school in connexion with them was thoroughly organized. The Government grants-in-aid for these schools doubled in eighteen months, and, best of all, six of the boys expressed a desire for baptism, and other lads boldly stated that they never now bowed their heads to idols. Mr. Kestin in his Annual Letter refers with thankfulness to the fact that whereas in 1895 he had not a single Hindi-speaking co-worker, there were fifteen such at the time of writing.

Hindis.

Chamar Schools.

Two causes conduced to a diminution in the number of children in the Agarpara Orphanage under Miss E. M. Hall: the one the institution of a fee of one rupee per mensem, and the other, referred to in last year's Report, the rule that country girls might not be admitted. Ten of the children were too small to be drafted into any of the existing classes. One of them was found on the road; another was the child of a Hindu woman who was under instruction; a third the daughter of a woman who was a convert of the C.E.Z.M.S. Mission, and died after much suffering when the child was a little baby; while of a fourth, which belongs to a family of religious beggars, Miss Hall writes:—

> The mother had carried her child round begging until she could do so no longer, and some neighbours had said if she would take her child to the orphanage we would love it and care for it. Some days after she came, bringing her child. A few words were written, signifying that she handed her child over to us. The poor creature was so famished that after exclaiming what would her folks say if she ate from the hands of Christians, she gave in and ate of our food. When asked to consider that her gods did not help her in her distress, she said it was because she was sinful. She has heard the Gospel, but does not accept it. Some days she sent begging a few coppers; she was in great distress. At first the little one would not look at me, but soon her love and gratitude were overflowing. She saw the others trusting me, and her little arms would be stretched up as she ran forward when I appeared, crying, "Hé! mem."

Miss Olliver, a Eurasian lady, renders great assistance in the care of the children.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in Calcutta consisted of five missionaries, seventeen assistant missionaries, eleven Bible-women and nurses, and twenty-five native teachers. Of this total twenty-two are engaged in the Mohammedan Mission, in connexion with which there was one baptism, although the woman was not actually an adherent of Islam. At Barnagore there were three missionaries, four assistant missionaries, three Bible-women, and fifteen teachers; and at Howrah three missionaries, two assistant missionaries, and eleven other workers. Four Hindu women were baptized on Easter Monday, the fruits of the work at Barnagore. One of them, a girl of seventeen, had been married as a child, but her husband found someone who suited him better, and never came to claim her. When in Calcutta she met with an accident, and was taken to a hospital, where she first heard the Gospel message.

BURDWAN.

Burdwan.

The unhealthiness of BURDWAN constitutes a great hindrance to the work among its 40,000 inhabitants, and this, together with the indifference and even opposition of the people, and the anti-Christian influence of the Rajah, renders the station a rather disheartening one at which to labour. The Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Bourdillon broke down in health and were obliged to return home in April. A Native Christian, who in past years had given much trouble, relapsed into Heathenism, and altogether there was but little apparent result of the faithful efforts of many years.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in the town and district consisted of one European lady, two assistant missionaries, two Bible-women, and eight native teachers.

II. NADIYA DISTRICT.

The Rev. J. F. Hewitt was married in August, 1899, to Miss Frances Hilda Blenkinsop, B.Lit., at Newcastle-on-Tyne; and in February, 1900, the Rev. H. M. Moore was married at Barrackpore to Miss Florence Amy Smith, of the C.E.Z.M.S. Mrs. L. A. McC. Newbery left for the Mission in November, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Hewitt in the following month. On the other hand, Mrs. Moore's state of health necessitated her husband's bringing her home in April.* Besides these, the Rev. A. Le Feuvre came home in August, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. L. A. McC. Newbery (on medical certificate), and Mr. E. T. Noakes in March, 1900.

The Centenary was observed in the Nadiya district during the week beginning April 16th, 1899. The following suggestions had previously been agreed upon by the Native Christians:— (1) That every worker under the C.M.S. and the District Church Council should return to the Society at least one day's salary. (2) That flags should fly from all church buildings for a fortnight in honour of the occasion. (3) That churches which had not hitherto received a name should now receive one. (4) That a tree should be planted in every church compound, to be known as the Centenary Tree, and that the profits accruing therefrom should in future be devoted to Church purposes. (5) That meetings for children and adults should be held at every important centre. (6) That the children should be feasted after these meetings, and that there should, when possible, be a display of fireworks in the evening. On Sunday, April 16th, there were collections in the churches towards a Centenary Converts' Fund. On the 17th the whole band of workers united in holding meetings at Kapasdanga. On the following day they divided into two parties. One of these went in a south-westerly direction and visited on successive days Ranabanda, Bohirgatchi, Chupra, and Krishnagar. The other went north-east and visited Ratnapur, Bollobhpur, Shola, and Joginda. Special hymns, composed for the occasion, were sung, and portions of the letter from the Committee were read at the meetings of adults.

Native Pastorates

The Native Pastorates are under the superintendence of the Rev. E. T. Butler, who resides at Bollobhpur. He says of the work in general:—

The Pastoral Missionary called upon to bear much disappointment

I have been cheered during the year with more than one account of the way in which a simple peasant has tried to win over his non-Christian fellow-workers when away from home. With all this, I have felt this year more than in the whole of my missionary experience that the pastoral missionary is destined to bear a large amount of sorrow and disappointment. His laments over the backsliding of one who promised well, the sighs wrung from him during his rounds, as too frequently he is made to realize that superstition dies hard, the sleepless nights caused through the quarrels which often have to be settled, not to mention other anxieties, all unite to make the work a heavy burden.

Various gatherings were held with the object of deepening the spiritual life of the agents and others: in April, 1899, a conference of teachers took place at Chupra, which was followed by the Centenary meetings; in June the Rev. A. G. Lockett of the Divinity School, Calcutta, conducted some devotional gatherings. The task of influencing the teachers is of importance, because on them depends so much of the success of the school work, which Mr. Butler describes as "again our best work during the year." The secular results gained in the numerous village day-schools were distinctly encouraging: of seventeen boys sent up for the Upper Primary Examination, fourteen passed; and ninety-four of the 107 who entered for the Lower Primary Examination were successful, the majority of the latter being placed in the first division. It is said that but for the unhealthy state of the district during the months of September, October, and November even better results would have been obtained. The Church Council Orphanage at Bollobhpur, which was under Mrs. Butler, had thirty-two inmates. Of the particular pastorates, only a few isolated facts culled from the native pastors' reports can be given. The Rev. G. C. Biswas, of the Chupra Pastorate, was privileged to baptize seven members of one family, and also a Mohammedan woman who was brought under instruction by her Christian relations. The service on the occasion of the family being received into the visible Church is thus described by Mr. P. H. Shaul:—

A family baptized by immersion.

On our arrival at the little village church we found a goodly number of men, women, and children, looking quite bright and clean in their "Sunday best," awaiting our coming. Soon a procession was formed, led by the children singing "Victory to Jesus," and accompanied by dhol (drum) and kortal (cymbal), played with earnest fervour by other weavers who had come from different villages to take part in the joyous ceremony. The pastor, accompanied by our brother about to be baptized, followed; then came a goodly band of Christian workers, while Atal's wife and children, surrounded by a number of our women, brought up the rear. As we passed through the bazaar and along the high road our numbers increased rapidly, owing to the Hindus and Mussulmans who accompanied us in order to see the unwonted sight. Arrived at a small inland lake near the roadside, the Baptismal Service was read by the Rev. Gopal Biswas, who then went down into the water, accompanied by Atal and his wife, who were in turn baptized by him. The christening of the four children followed, and then, after prayer for our Father's richest blessing on these members of His flock, we all returned to the church, making the still evening air ring out with songs of praise and thanksgiving.

In the Bollobhpur Pastorate the Rev. K. C. Dey, who had the Rev. K. L. Biswas as his colleague, baptized two Mohammedan women at Tetulberia, and prepared another woman for admission into the Church. But there were some disheartening cases. A Hindu gentleman, with whom several of the converts had relations in secular matters, invited all the male members of the congregation to a feast on the occasion of some idolatrous worship, and in spite of the efforts of their pastor to dissuade them from going a few of the poor people proved unable to resist the temptation to obtain a good meal. This led to their excommunication, but before long they showed signs of true repentance, and were received back into Christian fellowship. Mr. P. H. Shaul, who rendered occasional help with the services at Bollobhpur, gives a bright account of his trying experiences on one occasion :—

Compliance with heathen customs.

Conducting a service under difficulties.

What moved our animal friends to come to church that morning I know not, but certainly they came. The pastor had seized the opportunity to visit one of his smaller churches and had left me in charge. All doors and windows were wide open as usual. The service had no sooner commenced than a flock of turkeys marched in; I made a sign to a little boy, and on seeing him rise the turkeys strolled out with easy grace and quiet dignity. During the reading of the lesson a huge centipede was to be seen crawling fast towards the naked feet of the little boy seated in the front pew. I had to come down from the reading desk and vigorously stamp on the creature, in order to prevent a stampede of the children; already their very toes were curling up in sheer fright. The next intruder was a large dog, who would insist on strolling from pew to pew, and resisted all efforts to induce him to remain outside; he proved a great attraction to the little Adams and Eves crawling up and down the aisle. Swallows and sparrows of course were with us, "they had found them a house where they could lay their young," but to my horror a larger bird appeared before me. During the prayers a man had brought in a live sturdy cock as an offering, and had laid it at my feet; soon, however, with one jump it had burst its bonds, and to my relief was crowing outside. I had no sooner mounted the pulpit and given out my text, than I found the cock had proved too much for the children, who had given chase and driven the chanticleer into church again through the chancel window. Our friend found an easy resting-place on the Communion rails, and whenever any sentence of the sermon seemed a little loudly pronounced, he faced the congregation and crowed right lustily and long.

Some young men in the Kapasdanga Pastorate, which was under the Rev. L. H. C. Dey, made vows to offer cocks to the Mohammedan Pirs (deity), and some of the people secretly engaged in secular work on Sundays, but with these exceptions the conduct of the Christians was satisfactory, and the church was sometimes overcrowded. In the Solo Pastorate, also, there was one case of a man who privately observed the Moslem festivals. The Rev. M. Biswas states that the backslider on being reproved repented of his sin, and just before his death, which took place shortly afterwards, showed faith and love to Christ. The average attendance at the Sunday services in the Ratnapur Pastorate, under the Rev. T. C. Tarafdar, was about 350, but the communicants were rather under fifty in number. Fourteen villages, with about 500 Christians, were grouped together to form the Ranabanda Pastorate, of which the Rev. S. Biswas took charge in February, 1899. He describes the members of his flock as cold in spiritual matters: many of them failed to observe the Day of Rest and showed that they did not care for religious ordinances, and others displayed much ignorance and prejudice. Their connexion with the Heathen in business affairs unhappily led to their adopting several of their manners and customs.

Evangelistic Work.

Evangelistic Work was carried on by Mr. P. H. Shaul, who made Bollobhpur his headquarters, and itinerated in the surrounding district. He depicts the nature of the task before him and his fellow-missionaries under a figure obviously borrowed from the war in South Africa, and writes:—

> We still see before us the seemingly impregnable position of Hinduism, bristling with the machine guns of custom, caste, and creed; the masked batteries of Brahmoism; the forts and citadels of Mohammedanism; and everywhere trenches of vice and iniquity, with barbed wire entanglements of spiritual pride, arrant bigotry, and religious hatred. The magnitude of the opposing force often oppresses us, and we ask, and ask again, "Who is sufficient for these things?" Again, and yet again, the answer comes sharp and clear, "God is able!"

He divides his work into three divisions according to the periods of the year. During the cold weather he itinerated in the Choadanga sub-division, touring in a northerly direction parallel to the line of railway, and found that that outcome of civilization (the railway) had been the means of destroying much of the ignorance and superstition usually so prevalent in India. Many educated men were met with who had renounced idolatry, and lost all belief in popular Hinduism, and the members of the Brahmo Somaj who were encountered were uniformly friendly. Mr. Shaul says:—

Members of the Brahmo Somaj friendly.

> One man, the inspector of police for the division, had given up his sacred thread and his all to become a Brahmo. While in our neighbourhood, he accompanied us to our preachings, and was always an eager listener; one could not help thinking that if he had heard the Gospel of Christ instead of the message of Brahmoism, he might have stepped right out instead of half-way.

In the hot weather the work was prosecuted from the rest-house at Meherpur as a centre, a good deal being done among the Mohammedans, with whose Moulvies several public discussions were held. Sickness was extremely prevalent during the wet weather, and the boat work was consequently very trying; indeed, Mr. Shaul was compelled, by an attack of dysentery, to abandon it after a short time, and leave the Rev. E. Cannon, of Burdwan, who had joined him, to get on as best he could without a European companion. The latter reports that usually his message was well received, and mentions that some Babus visited him for religious conversation, one of them travelling seven miles for the purpose. Several inquirers came forward during the year, but all fell away while under probation, the fear of mockery and persecution being the usual cause of the defection. Mr. Shaul gives an interesting account of a young schoolmaster, who though he drew back from baptism, yet used his influence in favour of the religion which he was afraid openly to profess. Writing of a visit to the village where this man resided he says:—

A Babu travels seven miles to converse on religion.

He had spread such a good report of the Chistian religion and the Christian missionary through the village, that wherever I went I was received as a friend and a brother. Instead of having to preach by the wayside, I was invited alike to the houses of the rich and poor, high and low, and every afternoon a large number assembled at my tent for religious teaching. Never were my days more fully occupied. At daybreak we started in Apostolic order, two-and-two, to preach in the distant villages. On my return about mid-day I always found a crowd of patients, and often this young man would sit among them and preach the Gospel simply and earnestly; the able way in which he met their objections was striking, but he would always say, "The Sahib would answer this and that." After dealing with the patients there remained time for bath and breakfast before the arrival of several young men who came to me daily at 3 p.m. to read the Bible. About 4.30 p.m. our evening meeting would commence outside the tents, and would continue long after dark. The smaller after-meetings inside my tent were most solemn times; I have never had such meetings before among the Heathen. A Hindu remarked the next morning, after attending one of them, "I never slept a wink last night through thinking of my sin;" another said, "Truly the Holy Spirit was working among us."

Solemn meetings.

KRISHNAGAR.

The missionaries at KRISHNAGAR were the Rev. A. Le Feuvre, the Rev. L. A. McC. Newbery, the Rev. H. M. Moore, and Miss K. Farler. From the first three, who are all now at home, no report has been received, though Mr. Le Feuvre, in an article on Bengali Boys and their Schools, which appears in the C.M. Gleaner for February, 1900, stated that some of the lads of the Normal School were as keen on going into the bazaar to help in the singing, and sometimes to add a word of witness, as they were to hold their own on the football field against all comers. The health of the children ofthe Girls' Boarding-school was on the whole good, though at one time a wave of malaria seemed to pass over the district, the ill effects of which were felt by many of the girls. The books contained the names of from forty-six to fifty children; four passed the Calcutta Girls' Scholarship Examination in the first division, and the Inspectress of Schools expressed herself as satisfied with what she saw when she paid a visit in August. In August the Lieutenant-Governor paid a hurried visit, and afterwards showed his sympathy with the work in a practical way by sending Rs. 10 to be spent for the benefit of the pupils. Miss Farler believes that some of the elder girls are really earnest Christians, trying to serve and please Him whose name they bear.

Krishnagar.

Girls' Boarding-school visited by Lieutenant-Governor.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has three European ladies, three assistant missionaries, six Bible-women, and nineteen native teachers working at Krishnagar. The workers were not left without encouragement, for at the close of 1898 a woman who in childhood had heard of Christ in a Mission school was baptized with her two children, and the wife of the pundit of the missionaries and her boy were also received into the visible Church.

CHUPRA.

Chupra.

Under the novel form of question and answer the Rev. C. H. Bradburn gives in his Annual Letter much valuable information concerning the Boys' Boarding-school at CHUPRA. It was originally established as a village school about fifty years ago; in 1888 a boarding department was attached, and the standard of education raised; and seven years later a European missionary was placed in charge. It is now a Secondary School of the Middle standard, i.e., one step below a High School, for boys cannot matriculate directly from it. It also includes the Upper and Lower Primary standards. Many of the likely boys are passed on to the Normal School, and eventually become teachers, and Mr. Bradburn states that within the last fifteen years it has been possible in almost every case to replace Hindu masters by boys trained in the educational institutions of the Society.

Boys' Boarding-school.

The new buildings which were spoken of in last year's Report were completed during the year, and in addition the church was restored. The Boys' School now consists of six class-rooms, three on each side of a central hall, which was built in memory of the late W. W. Shaw, Esq., of Blackheath Park, by his widow and daughters. The Infants' School, which is a memorial of the daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Paynter, of Guildford, proved too small within six months of the day when it was first opened. There were 147 names on the books, as compared with 124 in 1898, and 111 in the preceding year. The increase was mainly in the Lower Primary stage, but the number in the Upper Primary stage increased in two years from sixteen to thirty-one. When Mr. Bradburn wrote at the beginning of December the result of the Final Examination of the first class boys had just been received. Two lads were entered, of whom one obtained a first class in the Middle English section, and the other a second class in the Middle Vernacular. The Director of Public Instruction expressed himself as particularly pleased with "the evidence of earnestness and thoroughness which he saw in all branches of the work." Mr. Bradburn says:—

Nadiya Christians as mission agents in all parts of Bengal.

Notwithstanding all I have said and might repeat, bemoaning the state of the Church in Nadiya and in this village in particular, yet we confess there is not a society (Church or otherwise) in Bengal which does not draw agents from among our people; they are to be found all over India, from Kashmir to Assam, and occupy places of more or less responsibility.

SANTIRAJPUR.

The Associated Evangelists in North Nadiya, Mr. S. W. Donne, Mr. E. T. Noakes, the Rev. J. W. Knight, and Mr. J. H. Hickinbotham, were not privileged to witness any adult baptisms in their district, but a Mohammedan girl, the half-sister of one of the converts, who was sent to the Bollobhpur Orphanage, was there baptized at her own request. Nevertheless the problem of the supervision of the Native Christians was already pressing for attention, with the result that one member of what was intended to be a purely evangelistic band was obliged to devote himself to pastoral work, and became a fixture at SANTIRAJPUR. Some of the Christians who were not regular preachers formed themselves into a band which met three times a week—once for prayer, once for preaching, and once for study of some Scripture subject or of the work in some part of the Mission-field. Sixteen boys and one girl from the Schools were presented for the Lower Primary Examination in November, but when Mr. Donne wrote his Annual Letter the results were not known. Much sickness prevailed in consequence of the exceptionally heavy rains, and the attendances at the Dispensary were over 16,000, more than half as many again as had been estimated. There were nearly six thousand new patients, and those who were prescribed for came from 197 different villages, thus showing how extensive was the influence of the medical work.

Santirajpur.

Dispensary.

The villages near Santirajpur were selected as the field in which to commence Evangelistic Operations in April, 1899, because a man had endeavoured to stop the work in two of them by ordering the people not to allow the missionaries to sit down in their houses or shops. It was felt to be best to take the bull by the horns, and accordingly the two villages in question were the first to be visited, and as no difficulty was experienced in them there was afterwards little fear of opposition in that neighbourhood. A good many warm discussions with Mohammedans took place, one man declaring that if he had the power he would kill Mr. Noakes. It was found that the Mohammedans required different treatment from that accorded to the Hindus, for they did not appreciate parables, or anything which called for thought, but preferred to be told plainly what they ought to do and believe. The mela at Murutia was visited as usual, and Mr. Knight, accompanied by one of the schoolmasters, went to the Durga Puja. The magic-lantern continued to be a great attraction. In one place a Brahman sent a man round with a drum to call the villagers to the meeting, and in another an audience of from three hundred to four hundred persons came together, who, feeling that some apology was due for attending a Christian meeting, at its close gave three cheers in honour of their own gods! Mr. Noakes tells of one man whose case was specially interesting because he came to inquire without having heard the missionaries preach. He writes:—

Mohammedans do not appreciate parables.

> As we passed through the bazaar he noticed me with a few babus passing. It then occurred to him that that was the Padri Sahib. He then began to think that the Padri Sahib's religion was not the same as his own. After a good deal of thinking in this way, he decided to come to find out what the Christian religion might be; so he came after dark one day. I conversed with him for about an hour, and then he went away. He came several times afterwards. I arranged with the zenana ladies, who were camped some six miles off, to visit his wife. We had to pass on, leaving a New Testament with him.

Kushtia.

Mr. W. V. R. Kamcké had his headquarters at KUSHTIA, and was greatly disappointed at being prevented by an attack of fever from itinerating during the cold season. A primary school was opened, and one man was to have been baptized, but his courage failed him at the last moment. His withdrawal was due simply to timidity, and not to that insincerity which was common in the district, and was apt to make the workers suspicious, and to lead them to form harsh judgments of genuine inquirers. Mr. Kamcké visited Kumarkhali every Friday afternoon, and also went to many villages further afield, in some of which the white man was gazed at as a curiosity. He found that the people came more freely to see him while he was living in a tent than when he was in a house. In several places he was unable to gain a hearing for his message, but this only happened among the Mohammedans, who were taught by their Moulvies to regard the Christian workers as followers of Satan—an appellation which was used to their faces. Mr. Kamcké closes his review of the year with an earnest appeal for prayer, and says:—

> One reads of 5,000 baptisms in Uganda during the past year, and then thinks of the few in Lower Bengal; one cannot but be interested in the lives of our missionary brethren in N.-W. Canada and Cumberland Sound; one cannot but be keenly interested in the Soudan, nor fail to thank God for removing restrictions to work in Khartoum; one's heart must needs be drawn out in pity and prayer for the plague and famine-stricken in other parts of this land and in East Africa. Is there not a danger that prayers for Bengal may suffer with all these interests, not to speak of Imperial ones? I know prayer is made for us; I had proof of this one Saturday last month. I was walking alone in the evening, when suddenly the Lord seemed very near and heaven's peace very real. I instinctively said "Some one is praying for me," and then thought, "Why specially to-day?" A moment later I remembered it was the 9th inst., when Gleaners pray for Bengal. And yet just because there has been nothing exciting or especially encouraging during the year, we need your prayers more.

"We need your prayers."

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. Nadiya Village Mission consisted of ten European ladies, one assistant missionary, eight Bible-women, and two native teachers.

III. SANTALIA.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. Hughesdon came home on medical certificate in April, 1900.

The report given by the Rev. F. T. Cole, the chairman of the Santal Native Church Council, states that the old beliefs of the people are defunct, and that Heathenism is undermined and only continues to exist because of its connexion with drinking and feasting. Owing to the plenteous harvest there was even more drinking than usual among the Heathen, and many of the Christians were led to join in it, with the result that there was a low state of religion, and several sad cases of immorality. A spirit of rebellion, too, sprang up among the young people, who declared their determination to dance and be merry like other people, although dancing had been forbidden by the Native Church Council as leading to gross sin. Mr. Cole says that many of the young people, Christians of the second generation, but Christians only in name, easily fall into sin, and adduces as an instance the case of a man named Paulus, of whom he writes:—

Backsliders.

> He was a Taljhari school-boy, but even there his character showed itself as anything but satisfactory. On returning to his village he became utterly careless of holy things. There he mixed with the Heathen, became entangled with a heathen girl in the village dances, and married her with heathen rites. He has left his mother and lives like a Heathen. The catechist writes in his diary the result of his interview with him: "Paulus said to me, 'I have married her with heathen rites because I believe in them. If I had not put sindur (vermilion) on her forehead, she would not have become mine, neither should I recognize her in the next world, and even if I should I could not claim her as my own; the putting on of a ring would give me no claim there. Our forefathers have handed down from the beginning of the race the fact that if we put vermilion on the foreheads of our brides, they will be ours for ever.' He further said, 'If you will allow me to remain as I am, without putting me under discipline, I will call myself a Christian; but if you say anything to me I will become a Heathen outright.'" The catechist read to him Eph. v. 1–14, and left him impenitent.

Happily some of the backsliders were restored, and all those who left the Church rather than conform to the rule concerning dancing afterwards returned. There were sixty-six adult baptisms during the year, the figures being affected by the absence of some of the agents at the Divinity School. The rice harvest festivals realized the largest amount known in the history of the Mission, but the Indian corn festival was not held, owing to the fact that the crops had been destroyed by the too-abundant rain. Some of the converts, too, were conscientious, as is shown by the following quotation from the North India C.M. Gleaner, which does not give the writer's name :—

I send the following extract from a letter just received, which gives encouragement concerning the consistency of Native Christian brethren under certain circumstances :—

"When travelling with H——, of S——, yesterday, he told me a rather good thing. He and some others at S—— generally have shooting parties on Sundays. They had arranged to spend a Sabbath recently near M——, and when making inquiries among the Natives about beaters they said, 'We cannot come on Sunday, but if you have the sport on a week-day we shall all turn up and lend you a hand.' Well done for the Santals! H—— felt, as he said, 'rather small' at such a rebuke, and said he 'admired them for their steadfastness in not breaking the Sabbath,' and added, 'the Mission at Taljhari seems to be doing good.'"

"We cannot come on Sunday."

The writer adds: "I reasoned with H—— on the point" (viz. of Sunday desecration), "and showed him what evil effects such conduct had."

TALJHÁRI.

Taljhári.

TALJHÁRI was happy in the possession of two veteran missionaries, the Rev. J. Brown, who has completed thirty-one years in the service of the Society, and the Rev. J. Blaich, who laboured in India for nine years before he became connected with the C.M.S. in 1876. The former was engaged during the year in conducting the Divinity School. A class of five men was formed, consisting of one senior catechist reading for ordination, three catechists sent by the Native Church Council, and a junior reader set free from school teaching in order that he might study divinity. Instruction was given to these men, and to two others who came in for a short time each day, in the subjects fixed for deacons' examinations, viz., the Old and New Testaments (generally); the Psalms and the First and Second Epistles to the Corinthians (specially); the Introduction to the Bible; the Prayer-book and Thirty-nine Articles; Pearson on the Creed; and Robertson's Sketches of Church History. At the end of October the three catechists returned to their work, but the other men continued their studies. In June and October all the agents were examined in the Bible and Prayer-book, and the results showed, as indeed might be expected, that while some were intelligent and apt learners, the intellectual attainments of others were not of a high order. Mr. Blaich superintended the

Divinity School.

Boys' Boarding-school, which had 149 names on its roll, fifty of the scholars being Heathen, and their ages ranging up to twenty-two years. He also supervised the work of a small school for girls and one for infants. The educational results were very creditable. From the Hindi branch of the school, the head teacher of which was a dwarf and was mistaken by the Director of Public Instruction for one of the scholars, three boys passed into the first division, while from the Bengali side nine Upper Primary candidates were successful. Concerning these figures Mr. Blaich says:— Boys' Boarding-school.

> They are the more cheering as this year there were no less than 500 examined in our circle alone, amongst whom hardly twenty were of the Santal tribe, the overwhelming majority being Bengali and Behari boys (i.e. Hindus and Mohammedans); so that the despised tribe has successfully taken its place in educational competition. It must not be overlooked that our Santal boys and girls have to pass in a foreign language, whilst the others are examined in their own, Bengali, or Hindi, or Urdu.

Thirteen young Santal men and boys from the school were baptized in November, after preparation lasting for more than a year, and sixteen others were under instruction in the following month. A novel plan was adopted in teaching the Bible, for instead of an explanation being given of each verse or passage as it was read, the boys were encouraged to ask one another questions about the lesson, and, if possible, themselves to supply the answers; only when they failed did the missionary intervene. Twenty-seven youths were confirmed, and the general conduct of the lads was good. Mr. Blaich in his Annual Letter gives an instance of their extreme conscientiousness:— School-boys' conscientiousness.

> About three months ago, two youths of my school asked pardon for a great sin they had committed on a Sunday. On inquiring, it turned out they had spied a crab when they were bathing, and had brought it with them to have it cooked with their evening meal. It seemed almost ludicrous, but nevertheless I was much pleased with the earnestness of those two boys.

BARHÁWÁ.

In celebration of the Centenary, April 12th was observed as a general holiday at BARHÁWÁ, where the Rev. and Mrs. F. T. Cole are stationed. There was a service of thanksgiving at midday, when an address was given on the opening of the Mission. Mr. Cole writes of the offerings on the occasion:— Barháwá.

> The plate was placed on a chair near the Communion rails, and the people came streaming up the aisle with happy faces to present their offerings, and then knelt down and offered a short silent prayer before returning to their seats. For some time nothing was heard but the clinking of pice and other coins as they were dropped into the plate. Many things were rolled up in paper, and great was the interest at the close of the service to see what they contained. The boarding-school girls gave splendidly, and numbers of handkerchiefs were embroidered by them and marked in the centre with the letters C.M.S.; one of them contained a rupee given by a girl as an offering.

Centenary offerings from heathen boys.

Another most interesting paper contained four annas in pice with the words written on it, "From the schoolboys of Kusum School." These are all heathen boys! Another paper told us that a cow was given, another that a fat capon fowl was devoted. These did not come to church, but we were rather amused to see a fine big calf peeping in at the door. Another packet contained over seven rupees, the results of a weekly working-party, which was started a few months ago on behalf of the Centenary. The offerings at this one service amounted to about sixty rupees, exclusive of European offerings. This includes the value of the cow and calf.

Our senior pastor, the Rev. Bhim Hansda, in recognition of the help and blessing he and his family have received from the Mission, collected from his family Rs. 100 towards the fund—(a month's salary, Rs. 22, in his own name, Rs. 10 on behalf of his wife, Rs. 40 from his second son, who is in Government service, Rs. 20 from his daughter, and Rs. 8 from his daughter-in-law).

Baijun, one of the earliest converts, and a man who is looked up to as the father of the Mission, has given Rs. 20, saying that for nearly forty years God has wonderfully blessed him, and that Christianity has been a very real thing to him. When asked why he gave such a large sum he said, "I am growing old, and I may not have another opportunity of showing my thankfulness."

Girls' Boarding-school.

The average number of pupils at the Girls' Boarding-school, under Mrs. and Miss Cole, was 108. Sickness was rather prevalent; one girl died in the school, and another at one time appeared to be lifeless, but ultimately recovered. There were over 5,000 visits recorded at the Dispensary. Mr. Cole translated the Book of Daniel and the Minor Prophets into Santali, and revised and carried through the press the Occasional Services of the Prayer-book. He took part in a representative meeting of the three different Missions working amongst the Santals, in order to form a plan for the translation and revision of the Old Testament.

Bible translations.

The Rev. C. Hughesdon, who was stationed at BHÁGÁYÁ, has been invalided home.

GODDA.

Godda.

The staff at GODDA consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. F. Etheridge, and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Jessop. As soon as possible after the return of the first-named to his station in November, 1898, he visited the congregations, interviewed the Christians, and inspected the schools. On the whole he was encouraged by his experiences, and was specially impressed with the improvement in the Pahari Christians at Ratnapur. Nearly 5,000 attendances were registered at the Dispensary during eleven months, some of the patients coming great distances. Mrs. Etheridge conducted a sewing-class for girls, which had an average attendance of twenty-five, and also superintended the Sunday-school. There were thirty boys in the Pahari Boarding-school, six of whom avowed their faith in Christ, and asked to be instructed with a view to baptism.

Out-stations.

The out-stations were three in number. At Mohonpur the congregation was small and the work unsatisfactory, but at Bhatonda progress was manifest, and one adult was baptized. Bhaowani is a new out-station, of which the catechist, who suffered considerably from the malarious nature of the district, gives a cheering report.

The village schools over and over again proved their value, both as educational and evangelistic agencies. Mr. Jessop gives the following description of the three adults baptized during the year, two of whom had formerly been pupils in these schools. He writes:— Village schools.

Last February a young man about twenty-four years old followed us in camp and said he desired to become a Christian. I had a nice talk with him, then took his name and address. After camp season he was made over to the nearest catechist for instruction, and a short time back we had the joy of baptizing him in a tank at his own village before a large number of his relatives and friends. It was indeed a joy to witness the change in his countenance as the Light dawned upon him. This young man was educated in a village school and from that time he had been studying the Scriptures. We are now praying that his family may be brought in. On another occasion we had the joy of baptizing a Santal widow and her son; the latter, about twenty-two years old, was also educated in a village school. They were under instruction before we returned to Godda; the daughter was baptized last Easter in the Barháwá Girls' School, but as the former two were rather backward in the knowledge of truth we kept them back, that they might be further instructed and that more light might dawn upon them; and we believe that, with the teaching, the Light of Life has dawned into their souls. On this occasion, also, quite a number congregated on the banks of the river to witness the baptism; we took the opportunity of preaching, and explaining the meaning of baptism.

The evangelistic work was hampered by the lack of agents, but Mr. Jessop and his native helpers went from village to village preaching the message of salvation, and were greatly aided by the use of the magic-lantern, and by distributing medicine. The evangelists managed to thoroughly work an area of 250 square miles, but it was calculated that at that rate of progress it would take six years to evangelize the district once!

Mr. and Mrs. Jessop were removed to Bhágáyá at the end of the year.

IV. BEHAR.

BHÁGALPUR.

It was mentioned in last year's Report (page 187) that a number of alterations were comtemplated at the High School at Bhágalpur; many of these were successfully made by the Rev. S. R. Morse during the year under review. Six changes took place in the teaching staff, competent masters being substituted for those concerning whose capacity there was reason to doubt, but unhappily the dearth of Christian teachers was so great that only four of the twelve employed in the school were converts. The antiquated text-books in use were replaced by modern works, and improvements were made in the building and in the furniture. Mr. Morse reports more than 15,000 visits to the Dispensary, and a total of 231 minor operations; and there was Bhágalpur.

one baptism at the Leper Asylum. The Rev. C. G. Mylrea, the superintending missionary at the station, says that the evangelistic work in the city was carried on steadily, a new departure being made by the appointment of a Bengali B.A. to work among students and men of education, which resulted in the reaching of a large circle which was untouched by the ordinary missionary methods. A new catechist, a Hindi-speaking Bengali, was placed in charge at Jamalpur. Mr. Morse paid a pastoral visit every other month to Forbesganj, where the Christians were densely ignorant, but the work at Purneah had to be abandoned, owing partly to the lack of any catechist who could be put in charge, and partly to its distance from Bhágalpur, which prevented it from being properly superintended from that town. Two evangelistic tours were made by Mr. and Mrs. Mylrea: the first, in the spring of 1899, was to the south of the district, and the second, in November, to the west. On both tours traces of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies were found.

That Society (the C.E.Z.M.S.) has eight European ladies, two assistant missionaries, seven Bible-women, and seventeen native teachers at Bhágalpur and Jamalpur.

NORTH-WEST PROVINCES MISSION.

The Society's first agent in India was stationed in the North-West Provinces. He was a Native, Abdul Masih, Henry Martyn's solitary convert from Mohammedanism, and he was placed, under Corrie's auspices, at Agra in 1813. Abdul Masih was ordained in 1826 by Bishop Heber, being thus the first Indian clergyman of the Church of England. Meerut was occupied in 1815; Benares, 1817; Gorakhpur, 1823; Azimgarh and Jaunpur, 1831; Jabalpur, 1854; Lucknow, 1858; Allahabad, 1859; Dehra Dun, 1859; Faizabad, 1862; Aligarh, 1863; Muttra, 1878; Mandla, 1879, and Marpha, 1892 (both Gónd Mission); and Kherwara (Bhîl Mission), 1880. A remarkable work was done by W. Smith and C. B. Leupolt at Benares, which began in 1832. In 1853, St. John's College at Agra was opened by T. V. French (late Bishop of Lahore) and E. C. Stuart (late Bishop of Waiapu, now in Persia). The Sepoy Mutiny of 1857 destroyed much of the Society's property, but the deep interest aroused by it caused a great extension of the work afterwards. Lucknow was occupied immediately on its re-conquest, on the invitation of the Chief Commissioner, Sir R. Montgomery. Allahabad was also occupied, and Christian villages established there and at Gorakhpur. In 1892 a new diocese (Lucknow) was formed for Oudh and the Jhansi Division of the North-West Provinces, the Bishop (Dr. A. Clifford, previously a C.M.S. missionary at Calcutta) having also, by consensual jurisdiction, episcopal supervision over the whole of the North-West Provinces.

Reinforcements.

THE following joined the Mission during the year:—the Rev. William Edward Sladen Holland, M.A., Magdalen College and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of St. Martin's, Birmingham, a grandson of the Rev. Canon Tristram, of Durham; Mr. Leonard Ashby, B.A., Christ's College, Cambridge; Mr. Ernest Peters, of Islington College; Miss Rose Carter, of The Willows; Miss Agnes Mary Cox; Miss Catherine Elizabeth Rogers, of the Highbury Training Home and The Willows; Miss Lucy Sheldon, of The Olives; Miss Eleanor Worthington; and Miss Emily Anne Yate. All the above sailed in the autumn with the exception of Miss Sheldon, who left for India in January, 1900. The Mission was also reinforced by the addition to the staff of the following ladies transferred from the Female Education Society, the years mentioned after their names indicating the time when they severally joined the F.E.S.:—Miss Sophia Bland, 1875; Mrs. Emily Rait, 1893; and Miss Helen M. Forbes, 1893. Miss Eugenie Mary Doyle, who went out to the Punjab under the C.E.Z.M.S. in 1897, and Miss Mary E. Schneider, were taken into local connexion. On the other hand, the Rev. E. A. Causton, Miss A. F. Wright, and Miss K. C. Wright have been transferred from the Punjab to the North-West Provinces Mission; the Rev. J. S. Gray has retired in consequence of broken health; and the Rev. N. Solomon, native pastor at Jabalpur, retired in 1899, after nearly half a century of service as catechist and pastor. The Rev. H. Mould has resigned his connexion with the Society.

Death of Rev. Yakub Ali.

The Rev. Yakub Ali, the native pastor of Aligarh, died after a brief illness on July 30th, 1899. He was born at Delhi, where his father held some official position, and he attended school until the age of eighteen, when he became an inquirer. After due instruction he was baptized, and worked as a catechist in Aligarh for some time, on one occasion nearly losing his life by a plot of the Mohammedans, who arranged to kill him in the mosque. He was ordained in 1878.

Missionary Conference.

The Conference of C.M.S. missionaries of the North-West Provinces was held at Allahabad from October 31st to November 3rd. The Conference began with a "Quiet Day," during which three addresses were given by the Rev. I. W. Charlton, of Calcutta. The conference sermon was preached by the Rev. J. W. Hall.

The following are the members of the Allahabad Corresponding Committee:—the Right Rev. the Bishop of Lucknow, the Hon. Justice Knox, Captain Gibbon, R.E., Captain W. A. Mosse, Mr. F. E. Elliott, the Revs. P. H. Chapman, J. W. Hall, A. H. Wright, A. W. Baumann, and C. H. Gill (Secretary).

I. NORTH-WEST PROVINCES.

THE Rev. J. M. Paterson came home in August, 1899, leaving again for the Mission in the following month, and returning to England with Mrs. Paterson in March, 1900. Miss E. M. Bazeley came home on medical certificate in August, 1899; Rev. T. F. Robathan (invalided) in October; the Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Ellwood and Miss A. H. R. Bull in April, 1900; and the Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Challis in May. The Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. Hooper went to Australia on furlough in January, 1900, and the Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Pargiter went on medical certificate in February. On the other hand, the following sailed for India:—the Revs. W. Seetal and S. Nihal Singh in June, 1899; the Rev. J. M. Paterson in September; the Rev. and Mrs. A. I. Birkett, Mrs. E. T. Pegg, and Miss E. B. Durrant in October; the Rev. and Mrs. W. McLean, and Miss E. M. F. Major in November; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Bowlby, the Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Haythornthwaite, the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Wright, and Miss E. M. Beyts in December. Mr. W. Holloway was married to Miss L. A. Wilson, of this Mission (both of the Victoria C.M. Association), in September, 1899; the Rev. A. Butterworth to Miss A. E. Banks, of this Mission, in October; and in December the Rev. R. Baker was married to Miss Cameron, of the Z.B.M. Mission, the Rev. E. A. Causton to Miss Kathleen Adelaide May Barthorp, of the C.E.Z.M.S., and the Rev. C. C. Petch to Miss Grace Rose Dean.

Ordinations.

At All Saints' Cathedral, Allahabad, on March 11th, 1900, the Bishop of Lucknow admitted the Revs. J. W. Goodwin, W. Walton, and H. Bennett to priests' orders, and Mr. G. Emmanuel to deacon's orders.

ALLAHABAD.

Several changes took place in the staff of the Divinity School, ALLAHABAD, of which the Rev. J. N. Carpenter is Principal. At the beginning of the year under review the Rev. S. N. Singh acted as assistant lecturer, giving valued help, but in February he left Allahabad to visit England, and in the following June the services of the Rev. E. H. M. Waller, the Vice-Principal, were lost for a few months, during which he was in charge of the educational work at Lucknow. The students consisted of one man who was reading for deacon's orders, six men in preparation for the grade of catechist, and eight who were training as readers. One member of the readers' class was quite blind, but he was a zealous student and an earnest Christian worker, and his musical talent made him a valuable assistant to the other preachers. The behaviour of the men was most exemplary, and though the year was one of much sickness, yet many of the men and their wives looked on their sickness as a season of real spiritual progress. A little reflection will show how great a boon even a short residence at the School must be to men each of whom, as Mr. Waller says, "lives for two or three years in a heathen village, with a service, perhaps, once a month in church, dependent upon himself for all spiritual instruction and help, and at the same time expected to bring forth treasures new and old for others." Arrangements were made for the students to carry on systematic district visiting, and much time was given to practical training in preaching; but, as usual, opposition was experienced in the open-air work, particularly from the members of the Arya Somaj. Mr. Waller writes:—

Allahabad Divinity School.

What can a man do in the face of such objections as I heard the other day— "Christ did not suffer willingly, for He cried, 'My God, My God, why hast Thou forsaken Me?'" Or, again, "Christ did not know the future, for He said to the twelve (including Judas), 'Ye shall sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel'; now we know Judas went to hell and never will judge the tribes." It is a great pity that ingenuity should be exercised in such a wrong direction. Of course, if the objection can raise a laugh, so much the better for their purpose, and the strength of their lungs is only equalled by the stolidity with which they refuse to see an answer or to admit the possibility of an explanation for a moment.

Vain objections.

The Trans-Gangetic district was selected as the scene of the annual itineration, which was marked by the thoroughness and heartiness of the men's work, and by their deep and earnest spirit of prayer. During this tour Mr. Waller devoted special attention to the distribution of books, with such success that by one alone of the four parties of preachers more than 170 Gospels and books were sold in the three weeks that the itineration lasted. One schoolmaster, nominally a Mohammedan, but at heart a Christian, promised to teach St. Mark's Gospel as an Urdu class-book, and at another place where a number of books had been disposed of seventeen boys came together for a Scripture lesson. But while on the whole the School had a very prosperous year, there was one great cause for anxiety, which Mr. Carpenter, writing to the Committee, expresses as follows :—

Prayer asked for supply of native agents.

We need your urgent prayer for a further supply of godly men for the humbler orders of catechist and reader. Let us ever bear in mind that these are the mainstays of your work. Death and advancing age are depriving you of your best men, and the young men are not coming forward to supply their places. With regard to catechists, no men have received this grade since 1896, and to meet an urgent need one man has just been appointed to that grade a year before the end of his course. Three men will (D.V.) rise to it in one year and two in two years, but not a single candidate has offered himself for the vacancies in the first year. Through your generous support I was able to offer three scholarships, but not one was taken up. So we have now only three men coming forward for the grade of reader. The constant applications for trained men show that this block is a real difficulty.

Holy Trinity Church.

The years 1894 to 1899 witnessed great extension in the work at Holy Trinity Church under the Rev. T. Russell. The number of those who received the Holy Communion during the year increased from 1,087 in the former to 1,626 in the latter year, and the offertories from Rs. 1,244 to Rs. 3,078, about one-third of the latter sum being devoted to evangelistic work in the North-West Provinces. The branch of the Gleaners' Union raised sufficient funds to enable a Hindustani school for boys to be carried on, but the chief educational work in connexion with the Church was at the Holy Trinity Day-school, which was reported by the Inspector of European Schools in the North-West Provinces to be one of the best elementary institutions in his district. Every week a service was held by a lay helper at the Government workhouse, and Mr. Russell himself ministered among the European prisoners in the Naini jail, and was cheered by receiving letters from some of the men after their release, telling of spiritual benefit received at the services. One of the men remarked: "Sir, while you are preaching to us, my mother is praying for a blessing on the Word," and Mr. Russell adds that doubtless this was the secret of any success which was met with. A Hindu inquirer who was sent to Calcutta on business died there suddenly before he was baptized, but no doubt was entertained as to the genuineness of his faith. On his deathbed he urged his wife to return to Allahabad and embrace Christianity; his exhortations were heeded, and she and her family, with the exception of one married daughter, were baptized before the end of the year. Mr. Russell left in February, 1900, to take up work at All Saints' Church, Mussoorie, and was succeeded by the Rev. E. A. Causton, formerly of the Punjab Mission. Dr. Welldon, the Metropolitan of India, visited Allahabad early in November, and addressed a large and representative gathering, including missionaries of all Protestant denominations, which assembled at the invitation of Ministrations to European prisoners.

Bishop Clifford. Later in the same month the Rev. A. H. Bowman held some special meetings for educated Indians, of which the following account is given:— Lectures to educated Natives.

Mr. Bowman delivered his first lecture in the Mayo Hall on Thursday, the 16th, to a large audience, consisting chiefly of graduates, undergraduates, and other students. The subject of the lecture was "Christ, or Materialism, or Theosophy for India." Numbers of the men crowded round him afterwards, the secretaries of debating societies desiring to secure him to lecture to their clubs. They were evidently much struck by the lecture, and certainly Mr. Bowman demonstrated the absurdity of Materialism and the hollowness of Theosophy in a most striking manner.

On Thursday, the 23rd, we had a most unique gathering. No efforts have been made here, as in other parts of India, to bring the English and Indian gentry together. At the invitation of the Bishop of Lucknow and Mrs. Clifford, the leading Indian gentlemen—the purdah system is too strict in these Provinces to allow of Indian ladies going out into society—assembled at Bishop's Lodge, where some English officials and officers had been asked to meet them. After a pleasant hour spent in conversation, with music at intervals, Mr. Bowman gave a brief address—"Some Thoughts on the Nineteenth Century." The tendency of the lecture was to illustrate how civilization advanced most where it went hand in hand with Christianity.

On Friday, the 24th, at the invitation of some students of the Muir College, he lectured in the Convocation Hall on "Is Life Worth Living?"—to all appearances a limited subject, but the lecturer soon made it clear to his audience how full it was of food for thought. He made the students long to spend and be spent for God and their fellow-men.

But the best wine came last. On Saturday, the 25th, the subject, at the request of the students, was advertised as "How Best can the Spiritual Needs of India be Satisfied?" They had also especially requested that discussion might follow the lecture. The hall began to fill an hour before the appointed time, and by 5.30 p.m. was crowded, several men standing. The Bishop of Lucknow presided. It would be hard to describe the intense earnestness with which Mr. Bowman presented to his audience the Lord and Master as the sole Satisfier of the human soul. They followed with deep attention, and when his lecture ended not one rose to commence the anticipated discussion. They seemed to feel discussion would be out of place in the face of such real religion. A leading Indian pundit expressed the thanks of the meeting to Mr. Bowman, and begged him and the Bishop not to think they were bigots and blind. They did wish to seek the truth. Such a crowded meeting of Indian gentlemen, especially when convened to hear a religious lecture, has never been known in Allahabad.

At the Christian village of Muirabad, where the Rev. J. B. Ventura was the pastor, the Centenary celebrations took place on April 12th, 1899. The day was ushered in by salvoes of booming fireballs. Two banners floated from the steeple of the church, and on the gate was inscribed the welcome, "Come, O ye faithful, joyful and triumphant." The Rev. J. N. Carpenter preached at the morning service, and the Holy Communion was administered. A meeting for children was held in the afternoon; and at 5.20 p.m., which corresponds with noon in London, a service of thanksgiving was held, when the church was "crowded to suffocation," all the prominent members of other Churches being present, and a considerable number of Europeans and Eurasians. This service was followed by a meeting in the The Centenary at Muirabad.

church compound, presided over by the Bishop of Lucknow, at which the speakers were the Hon. G. E. Knox, the Honorary Treasurer of the Church Council; the Rev. C. H. Gill; and others. Bishop Welldon visited Muirabad in November, and received an address from the Native Christian community, and a young Brahman was baptized in the church there in the same month. The latter first came in contact with Gospel teaching in a school carried on by Miss Fallon of the Z.B.M. Mission in Faizabad, and afterwards entered an Anglo-Vernacular Boys' School of the C.M.S. in the same city. He was attracted by Christianity in his early childhood, and in spite of the opposition of his relations always sought the society of Christians. The name of Istiphan was given him at his baptism.

The Evangelistic Work was under the Revs. S. Nihal Singh and W. G. Proctor. The former was responsible for that in the city and in two tehsils across the Ganges, his wife, in company of a Bible-woman, assisting by visiting the zenanas. An itinerating tour lasting five weeks was commenced in November, in the course of which the Gospel was proclaimed in more than one hundred villages, and that not without encouragement. Several people asked for teachers in order that they might learn more about the Saviour, and in some villages the women inquired how and with what offerings they should worship the Lord Christ. Two men were baptized during the tour, and on Christmas Day a third man was received into the visible Church. He originally belonged to the Kshatriya (warrior) caste, but became a religious mendicant, and assumed the name of Dhunigiri (Monk of the Fire). He came in contact with Mr. Nihal Singh at the time of the six-yearly bathing at the confluence of the Ganges and Jumna, and at once sought baptism. He received the name of Prem Singh. The schools for Chamars and the Sunday-schools were in a flourishing condition, and a new school was contemplated in the village of Kutwa, where the headman promised a large piece of land for a church. The Trans-Gangetic Evangelistic Mission, which was under the charge of Mr. Proctor, was carried on in a district on the north side of the Ganges, covering an area of not less than 1,000 square miles. According to the census report of 1890-91, the population of this tract of country was 1,097,771, and of all this vast multitude only ninety-five were returned as Christians, the remainder being Hindus or Mohammedans. The C.M.S. and the Z.B.M.M. are the only evangelistic agencies at work. During the two itinerating tours which were made much opposition was experienced, some of it of a bitter and even blasphemous nature; but, on the other hand, many people were met with who had abandoned idolatry and adopted a simple monotheistic worship, or who, while retaining pantheistic views, had discarded the outward observance of idol-worship. Mr. Proctor adduces the following case as an illustration :—

We had been preaching in a village where a market was being held, and on our way back to camp we met a company of five or six men of a very well-to-do and respectable appearance. I asked them whether they desired salvation, and remarked that the worship of idols and the things of nature, and washing in the Ganges and other so-called sacred rivers, would never make them holy, nor win the favour of God. They replied, "Sahib, we don't do any of these things." "Then what do you believe in?" "We believe in one great God and worship Him."

Many of the educated classes appeared to have a real conviction of the truth of Christianity, but found the cost of confessing Christ more than they were prepared to meet. One day a young Bengali who had passed his F.A. Examination and was studying for the degree of B.A. expressed his determination to thoroughly investigate Christianity, but said that he must first get through his examinations; and another case which shows how worldly affairs held some men back is thus described by Mr. Proctor :—

An English-speaking Babu convinced of the truth of Christianity.

We recently met a young man in a village where resides the brother of a rajah. We had left the village and got some distance away, when a man came running after us to ask us to go back and see "the Babu." On returning I found the Babu to be a very well-educated young man, possessed of a good knowledge of English, and able to converse fluently in it. He had acquired a lot of information of all sorts from the perusal of English papers and magazines (there was a Review of Reviews lying on his table), and asked me many questions about the various sects, the Greek Church, the Lutheran Church, and the Roman Catholic Church, wishing to know the essential points of difference between them and the Protestant Church of England. I had a long conversation with him about Christianity and pressed home upon him his need of Jesus and the claims of Jesus upon him. Four days later, when about eighteen miles distant from his village, I received a note from him asking me to visit him again. This I did at the first opportunity. We had another conversation of fully an hour, in the course of which he admitted that he was convinced of the truth of the Christian religion, and also revealed what was holding him back. It appears the rajah, whose brother he is with, has promised to help him to go to England and study for the law, and if he becomes a Christian it will mean giving up this prospect. Before I left he asked me to get him an English Bible, which I have done and sent it to him. He sent me a short note in acknowledgment, and said he had been reading it and "can say that the standard of ethics which it inculcates is higher than any other which I ever heard or read."

There are only two out-stations, and one school in the vast district, but it is hoped to open other centres before long.

The Z.B.M. Mission had five European missionaries and twenty-one native teachers on its staff at Allahabad. Several baptisms were the outcome of their labours.

BENARES.

Benares.

Benares, the sacred city of the Hindus, so holy that the salvation of any one who dies there is considered as assured, no matter how evil his life may have been, is said to contain 600,000 idols and thousands of temples and shrines, and to be as notorious among the Hindus for its moral corruptions as it is proverbial for its "sanctity." The Brahmans in the district number 100,000, almost one-eighth of the total population; a large proportion of these are priests, and obtain their living from the pilgrims who flock to the city. They are reputed to be neither very scrupulous nor very merciful in their exactions, and in at least one case a mother and son were led to inquire into Christianity and eventually to become Christians by their disgust at the shameless way in which the Brahmans took from them every coin that they possessed.

Exactions of Brahmans.

The missionaries of the Society in the city were the Rev. and Mrs. J. J. Johnson, the Revs. A. W. Baumann, R. Baker, and A. Butterworth; the Misses E. Bedford and A. H. R. Bull (the latter now at home), and, until her marriage in September, Miss G. E. Withers. Mr. Baumann was obliged to devote much time to the care of the Christian village of Sigra, in consequence of the increasing age and infirmities of the native pastor, the Rev. D. Solomon. He also had the management of Jay Narayan's School, of which Mr. Baker acted as Principal until the beginning of 1900, when he was transferred to Gorakhpur, and the Rev. J. M. Challis took charge of the school, but he has since come home. The number of pupils, 360, was smaller than in some previous years, owing to several teachers who had been dismissed opening classes in their own homes and taking away with them some of the boys. The Inspector's report spoke of the improvement noticed in 1898 as having been well maintained, and said that there was only one really weak class, and that was one in which the boys were exceptionally dull rather than the teaching inefficient. The efforts to procure a suitable field for cricket and football were in vain, but drill was introduced as a recreation, and was eagerly welcomed by the lads. Although no convert nor even inquirer came forward, it was evident that the religious instruction was not without effect, for "a higher tone was cultivated and practised, questionable habits gradually gave way, and better things came in their place." The Girls' Normal School was worked by Mrs. Barr and other ladies of the Z.B.M. Mission and Miss Bedford of the C.M.S., and gained a larger Government grant than any other school in the N-W. Provinces. There were eighteen girls in the Training Class for teachers, and six of the children were under instruction with a view to baptism.

Girls' Normal School.

"Real spiritual growth" among the children of the Girls' Orphanage is reported, and instances occurred which showed that at least they knew something of the grace of giving. Miss Bull writes:—

Orphan children's contribution to Centenary Fund.

> As proofs of gratitude to God, our teachers and matron sent a large slice out of their earnings to the Centenary Fund. Again, on another occasion when there was to be a special collection in our church for the Bible Society, big and little ones alike willingly gave up their leisure and play hours for a whole week in order to earn each one pice, by doing garden work, and so be able to help in the distribution of God's Word. At this Christmas time, too, all very gladly gave up a good part of their treat so that the money might go to help the famine-stricken ones in Kherwara, Rajputana. We have, too, our tithe-book, and month by month all those who earn anything have contributed their tenth to the Lord's work in Sigra.

The secular work, too, prospered, and both teachers and children gained the commendation of the Government Inspector of Schools. The services of Miss Goetze have been lent by the Berlin Ladies' Society to carry on the Orphanage during the period of Miss Bull's absence in England.

Discussions in monastery colleges.

Much of Mr. Johnson's time was occupied with the secularities of the Mission, but he was also engaged in studying the philosophical systems of Hinduism, and carrying on discussions in the monastery colleges with the learned professors of that religion. These pundits, to the number of over two hundred, gathered on their own initiative to meet the Bishop of Calcutta when he paid a visit to Benares in November, and presented him with an address, in which after referring to the Bishop's profound learning, liberality of heart, and respectful and sympathetic attitude towards the different religions of India, and explaining their own beliefs, they expressed their earnest desire that God would give to all the people living in the land the spirit of true devotion and religion. In his reply Dr. Welldon said:—

Pundits of Benares present an address to Bishop Welldon.

> It is with peculiar pleasure that I have received the address of your learned and influential body. I cannot but regard it as an event of happy augury that you should spontaneously accord so kind a welcome to one who is known as a Christian and a Bishop of Christ's Church. But you do me no more than justice when you recognize my "respectful and sympathetic attitude towards the religions of India," for I have fully learnt that the freedom of individual conscience is a law of moral and spiritual progress, and in the manifold expressions of religious belief, however alien some of them may be from my own mode of thinking, I discern an imperishable guarantee for the vitality and necessity of religion itself.
> Gentlemen, there are serious points of difference between you and myself. I cannot accept all your speculative doctrines; for it is not in the Vedas but in the Bible that I find "the supreme and infallible authority" upon religion; nor can I look forward to the discussions and decisions of your proposed philosophical conference as likely to supply the final word in religious controversy; but wherever the love of God and the faith in immortality are doctrines which possess the souls of men, there I seem to find the elements of sympathy and the hope of an ultimate co-operation.

Encouraging instances met with in itinerations.

Towards the end of the year, Mr. Butterworth devoted himself to Evangelistic Work, and in the course of his itinerating tour was able to sell a large number of Christian books. Several people came to see him, many of them doubtless actuated by idle curiosity, but some by a sincere desire to know the truth. One man, a Brahman by caste and a lawyer by profession, who had read the Bible thoroughly, had a long conversation on the subject of the New Birth; another man, the lambardar of a certain village, purchased a Gospel for himself, and also one for some of his people who were too poor to buy a copy for themselves; while at another place the following incident occurred:—

While on our way to one of the villages, we saw a number of men at work in the fields. I spoke to the master and told him why we had come. He at once ordered his men to stop work and come and listen to the good news. Some passers-by were astonished and said, "You pay your men to work; why do you let them stand idle?" "I want them to hear this good news," he replied. Afterwards, several of the men bought copies of the Gospel.

Out-stations.

Thirty-six miles from Benares lies Jaunpur, one of the out-stations, a heathen city with 30,000 inhabitants, which was visited by Mr. Baumann once a month. The small Christian congregation was superintended by the headmaster of the flourishing High School, and two Scripture-readers and one colporteur did what they could to win the people for Christ. There were abundant opportunities for work at Ahraura, a place through which large numbers of the pilgrims pass on their way to Benares; the catechists in charge there carried on the school and also maintained evangelistic preaching. The town has some 15,000 people, of whom only two, a man and his wife, are Christians. In December, when Mr. Butterworth went there, the Natives listened readily, especially some "Doms," who are of the lowest caste, and who marvelled that any one should think them of sufficient value to have the good news told to them. Great progress was made at the Anglo-Vernacular Middle School at Chunar, which is three and a half hours from Benares by rail, and was formerly a military station and a place of considerable importance. One of the lads gained a prize of Rs. 15 in the Scripture Scholarship examination, being the first boy in the North-West Provinces to do so, and the Government grant was almost half as much again as in 1898. Mr. Johnson pleads earnestly for a man to take charge of this out-station, for although the native congregation is but small, there are great facilities for the work of a rural Mission. Something was done to influence the people by Miss A. B. Davis, who resided at Chunar, with an Indian fellow-worker named Alethia Nathaniel. Arrangements were made to visit one village each day, and there were several interesting experiences in the twenty villages with which the missionaries were in touch. Miss Davis writes:—

Teaching by pictures in the villages.

In one village, when we were showing the picture of the Prodigal Son, a Brahman, who was looking patronizingly on at the ignorant women, inquired loftily, "what were the names of this father and son." His question opened the way to give a very straight application of the parable, "Have I not wasted my Father's goods? Am I not that son?" Silence gave consent. In another village of Chamars we got a nucleus of three or four women at their own door, and took the charpai they offered us, though we would have preferred our own strip of carpet. Gradually, as the sound of our singing reached them, others appeared by ones and twos, till we had some fifteen listeners. We told them the parable of the Lost Sheep, and showed them a big picture of it. They grew so interested, and took in the Gospel in a way we do not often meet with—so simply and readily. They did not say continually "yes, yes," but they explained or commented on the story as we went along. Next week we passed through that village to visit a new one beyond it. It was an idol festival, and the women were decked in their best. Our friends there had several visitors, and entreated us to stay. We had brought a picture of the Good Shepherd carrying a lamb in His arms. We were indeed guided to bring it, for there had been much discussion since our last visit, whether they were to worship God or the Good Shepherd. We explained joyfully that it was God manifested in the Good Shepherd whom they should worship.

In September Miss Davis was laid aside by malarial fever, but happily careful nursing resulted in her restoration to health.

AZIMGARH.

Azimgarh.

Miss E. A. Luce and Miss A. M. Tottenham worked together at AZIMGARH until July, 1899, when the latter was transferred to Muttra. Until the end of November, when the Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Collins, previously at Meerut, took up their residence at this station, it was dependent for clerical ministrations upon a monthly visit from the missionary at Gorakhpur. The staff of the Mission was strengthened at the same time by the arrival from England of Miss E. A. Yate, one of the recruits of the year. There was much sickness among the little Christian community in the hot weather, and four deaths occurred, while an outbreak of measles caused the temporary cessation of the work. The school in the Mission compound and that in the city were continued, the children of the former paying eager attention to the Scripture lessons; but the girls' school in Sidhari village had to be closed, for the teacher left to be married, and there was no one to take her place. The number of zenanas open to the workers increased, but the visiting was hindered by the departure of Miss Tottenham, and by Miss Luce having to go to Benares for September and October, in order to take charge of the Girls' Orphanage during Miss Bull's absence. The Bible-woman, however, carried on the work, and there were signs of a coming harvest from the seed sown by her. Miss Luce and Miss Tottenham have since returned to Azimgarh.

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission at Benares and Jaunpur consisted of sixteen European missionaries, one assistant missionary, three Bible-women, sixteen native teachers, and thirteen native workers in connexion with the hospital. They were permitted to see some fruit of their efforts. A deformed Mohammedan girl, twenty-two years of age, who had heard the Gospel at the hospital on various occasions since 1890, was baptized in September, and in the following month a Bengali widow confessed herself a Christian, and gave every evidence of sincerity, but it was felt wise to allot her a further period of probation. An old woman who was baptized in January, 1899, though very ignorant, was most earnest in her endeavours to win the patients in the hospital, and made the most of her limited talents and opportunities.

GORAKHPUR.

Gorakhpur. The Rev. and Mrs. J. P. Ellwood (now at home), and the Rev. C. C. Petch were stationed at GORAKHPUR throughout the year, and they had the Rev. T. F. Robathan as their colleague until he was invalided home in October. After Mr. Robathan's departure, the Rev. W. Walton, and, later, the Revs. H. B. Durrant and H. Mould went to Gorakhpur to give assistance in the school and with the English services. The Bishop of Lucknow paid a visit to the station early in 1900 and confirmed forty-eight candidates. Classes for women and children were conducted by Mrs. Ellwood and by Miss Hayward of the Z.B.M. Mission, and the former superintended the schools for girls and infants, in which encouraging progress was made. The industrial work, which was introduced at the time of the famine, proved a great success. Some of the women of the poorer classes engaged in jharan weaving, and those who were more expert made a sort of open-thread work, in which they excelled to such a degree that a table-cloth worked by one of the school-girls was forwarded by Sir Bindon Blood to the Queen, and graciously accepted by her. At the beginning of 1899 Mr. Ellwood and Mr. Petch itinerated to the north of Gorakhpur, travelling to the borders of Nepal, and even crossing the frontier and preaching the Gospel in a village beyond the border. They longed to reach the Gurkhas who reside in that State, at present closed to the messengers of Christ, and appeal for the institution of a Medical Mission near the frontier, with a view to the attainment of that end. In the course of the itineration a village was visited whence certain inquirers had come, but it was found that the Zemindar was a bitter opponent of Christianity, and threatened to turn the people out of the village if they came to the missionaries, so although one or two of them mastered their fears sufficiently to seek an interview, it was evident that they were disinclined for instruction. The workers were however cheered by a young Brahman visiting them afterwards in Gorakhpur, and saying that he had listened to them when they preached at Nichlaul, and was anxious to possess a copy of the Scriptures. Mr. Ellwood says that he was evidently a sincere seeker after truth, and that he seemed to be deeply interested in the Gospel message. The Rev. A. H. Wright has succeeded Mr. Ellwood in the charge of the station.

The Queen accepts a sample of industrial work.

The Z.B.M. Mission has five European ladies, six Bible-women, and eighteen native teachers working at Gorakhpur.

LUCKNOW AND FAIZABAD.

Special sermons were preached in all the churches in LUCKNOW in connexion with the Centenary, the Bishop being one of the preachers, and during the week beginning April 9th, 1899, a drawing-room meeting and several public meetings were held, and a sale of work took place, which realized about Rs. 1,000. The Rev. A. I. Birkett ministered to the English Congregation, which maintained its numbers; the branch of the Gleaners' Union in connexion with it was managed by the Rev. W. Walton, and collected Rs. 1,353 for local work during the year. The Native Congregation, under the Rev. T. Noah, undertook in future to support their own pastor. From April to October, while Mr. Birkett was absent in England, the charge of the educational work at Lucknow lay in the hands of the Rev. E. H. M. Waller and the Rev. W. B. Collins. At the beginning of the year under review there were five students on the rolls of the Normal School for training teachers. One of these, who had spent a year in the High School and one in the Government Training College, obtained a teacher's certificate, as did the headmaster of the training school, who prepared for the examination in his leisure hours. Of the remainder, two failed in the University Entrance Examination, which is the lowest which qualifies for the Government Training College, one of whom left, and the other remained to make another attempt; a third ran into debt, and the last suffered from mental disorder and was placed in an asylum. Three new students were admitted, but the antipathy to Mission work, which unfortunately is so common among Indian Christians, told against any great increase in the numbers of the school. Thirty of the 150 boys of the High School are Christians, and these are said to be far ahead of the non-Christians in skill and enthusiasm in games. The lads were fairly successful in the public examinations. Four lectures on the Evidences of Christianity were given by interpretation to the boys by the Rev. A. H. Bowman.

Lucknow.

Normal School.

The evangelistic work in the city of Lucknow and the vast surrounding district was in the hands of the Band of Associated Evangelists, which was composed of Mr. J. C. Harrison, Mr. H. Blackwood, Mr. J. McIntosh, and the Rev. W. Walton. Occasional interruptions were met with, chiefly at the new places in the city at which preaching was commenced, but there was no opposition of a serious nature. At the commencement of 1899 Mr. Blackwood went to a district in which as far as he could ascertain the Gospel had never before been preached, though some of the people had heard it at melas or in distant villages. Within less than a three miles radius there were no less than thirty-five villages of various sizes, all of which were visited twice, a ready sale being found for Gospel portions among those who could read. Mr. McIntosh mentions a Baba Ji, or religious teacher, whom he discovered living in a jungle, and writes:—

A Hindu religious teacher.

> We found a few of his disciples around him. He is reputed to be extremely holy. He does not believe in idol worship, but, what is far worse, he allows the people to worship him. We saw several approach him after removing their shoes, and prostrate their bodies in the dust before him. Then they sat down some nine or ten yards away from him. We sat on the ground and were courteously received by him, and he asked several questions. He especially wanted to know the definition of the Sabbath day. When it had been explained he replied, "I thought Christians did all their worship on one day, and did not think about God at all on the other six days." The Baba Ji's notion would certainly hit some Christians very hard if they were to hear it.

Mr. Blackwood resided for three or four months at Nigohan, one of the out-stations, twenty-four miles from Lucknow. Mrs. Birkett, who is a fully qualified doctor, took over the medical work from the Z.B.M. Mission ladies. Several inquirers came forward. One was a Sufi, who appeared to be really a seeker after truth; another an old Mohammedan, whose faith in Islam had been shaken by his diligent study of the Old Testament; and a third a Brahman, whom it was hoped to baptize early in 1900. The Brahman who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 195) as listening with pleasure to the Gospel, advanced to an intellectual conviction of the truth, but was not prepared for all that baptism would involve, and others besides him were kept back by their timidity. Their attitude was illustrated by the remark of a friendly Babu, "If Christ has already died on the cross for sinners, then I am saved, so what need is there of taking any other step?" The Dispensary is said to have been a great source of blessing, the attitude of the people having completely changed since it was opened, and greater facilities for preaching the Gospel having been obtained.

Inquirers.

Attitude of the people changed through dispensary.

Faizabad.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Pargiter were stationed at FAIZABAD, but were compelled to leave early in 1900 by the failure of the health of the former, their place being taken by the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Bowlby. The fees paid at the schools considerably increased, and encouraging progress was made, especially in Scripture knowledge, many of the boys gaining prizes in the Sunday-school examinations. Little opposition was met with in the conduct of the evangelistic work, but although the people were content to allow that the truths proclaimed were excellent, yet they dreaded the loss of worldly necessaries and comforts which they would experience if they embraced Christianity. The populous suburbs, and many of the more accessible villages, were visited by the Bible-women, accompanied by Mrs. Pargiter. They usually received a hearty welcome, and one instance which is quoted by Mr. Pargiter serves to show that some impression was made by this work:—

"Never heard anything like this before."

There is a Mohammedan woman who is always delighted to have a visit, and seems to be in heart and soul a real Christian. On the last visit she had her old mother, who had come from a distant village, staying with her, and it was pitiful to hear her say, "Listen, mother, you have never heard anything like this before—how Jesus Christ, the Son of God, came to die for us, and wash us from our sins." And then, almost comically, she said, "She is a great sinner; she tell lies so often." She then explained to her mother what the Bible-women had been saying in a way which showed how thoroughly she herself had understood and taken in the Gospel message.

The large melas or religious fairs at Ajodhya were regularly attended by the workers, and many of the villagers from the more remote districts listened eagerly to the preaching. Mr. Pargiter says:—

A religious mendicant's confession of motive.

Even the Sadhus, or religious mendicants, are sometimes constrained to own that Christianity is better than their own superstition. At a large mela in Ajodhya recently, one of these men attempted to prevent the people listening, ordered them away with much vehemence, and tried to create a disturbance, as they so often do. Afterwards, when the preachers were resting under a grove of mango trees, this same man came up and said, "All that you have just been saying is very good and true: I only acted as I did for my stomach's sake," meaning that if the people no longer believed in his mummeries, he would get no more presents of rice, fruit, and money.

Two extensive itinerating tours were made, the one to the south of Faizabad, and the other to the east of the River Gogra, where the people incidentally reproached the apathy of the Church of Christ by saying that although many sahibs had come to their neighbourhood to shoot wild fowl, no missionary had ever paid them a visit. A pundit, who was interested in what he heard, came to Mr. Pargiter in order to learn more of the Gospel, and finally departed with the words, "If this is what you people teach, I shall certainly become a Christian."

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission at Lucknow and Faizabad consisted of fourteen European ladies, three associated workers six native assistants, twenty-seven native teachers and nurses, and six Bible-women. There was an interesting convert at Ajodhya, a Brahman pundit, who was brought into contact with the missionaries through the book-shop. He endured much opposition from his relatives before his baptism, and at one time it appeared as though their influence would prevail. They tried every means to hold him back: first they locked him up; then they released him, and had recourse to flattery, begging him to remember what a big pundit he was, and how many disciples he had; and finally they threatened to lame him by breaking one of his legs, so that he might not escape. Happily he contrived to elude their vigilance, and was duly received into the visible Church.

AGRA AND SECUNDRA.

St. John's College, AGRA, had on the whole a successful year

Agra.

St. John's College.

under the Rev. J. M. Challis, the Acting-Principal, who also acted as Chaplain to the English congregation, and was assisted at the College by the Revs. H. W. V. Birney and H. B. Durrant. The number of students was rather greater than in 1898, being 111, thirteen of whom were Mohammedans and seventy-five Hindus. The examination results were very fair. Of the twenty-four who sat for the B.A. Examination, ten passed, three of them in the second division; twenty-one of the thirty-nine who went in for the F.A. Examination were successful, nine being placed in the second division; and six of the students passed the Intermediate Examination. In estimating the merit of these results it must be remembered that the authorities of the Allahabad University changed the starting point of the academical year from July to March, and therefore the students were deprived of about three months' study, and had to do the most arduous part of their work, viz., the revision of the two years' course, during the most trying season of the year. The College distinguished itself in the Inter-School Sports of the district, and won the Cricket Championship Shield for the third year in succession. Amid all the care which was exercised to develop the physical and intellectual capacities of the students, their spiritual needs were the chief concern. Scripture teaching was of course given every day, and in addition special evangelistic addresses were delivered during the first hour on Saturday mornings both in English and Urdu, such subjects as "Sin, Sacrifice, and Salvation," "Sowing and Reaping," and "Man's true Destiny" being taken. During the year a new class was commenced by Mr. Durrant, for "picked" students, in which more advanced religious instruction was given. It began with three or four members, but the numbers soon doubled, and the "strong reverence combined with a healthy spirit of inquiry" which was displayed was a good augury for the future. There were twenty-three members of the Y.M.C.A., in connexion with which weekly prayer-meetings, Sunday-school work, and bazaar preaching were carried on. The Christian masters met for prayer every Monday morning before the opening of the College. Although no baptisms took place, yet there was a steady improvement in the tone of the students, and cheering incidents were not wanting. Mr. Challis told of a former Hindu student who wrote to him as follows:—

A Hindu presents a prize to encourage Bible study.

I shall feel much obliged if you will kindly accept the book (Pilgrim's Progress) herewith sent, and hand it over as a prize to the non-Christian student of the entrance class who stands first in the Scripture examination. I have proposed this plan only in order that the study of the Bible may increase among non-Christians.

Mr. Durrant asks for prayer on behalf of an interesting young fellow who was socially ostracized because he had married a widow; he was troubled with many doubts, but as far as could be judged was earnestly seeking the truth. Mr. Birney superintended the Christian Hostel, which had the names of fifty-six students on its roll, twelve of whom belonged to the College, and the remainder to the Collegiate School. With but one exception the conduct of the youths was good, and it is said that those from the College were "most helpful, not only in setting a good example and keeping up a high tone of behaviour, but also in their ready assistance and their loyalty." Bible-classes and confirmation classes were regularly conducted, and six of the students were confirmed by the Bishop of Lucknow in February, 1899. The four Branch Schools, including the Collegiate School, which are affiliated to the College, had the names of 566 boys on their rolls, and at two of them the pressure on the space was so great that enlargement of the premises became most necessary.

Christian Hostel.

Miss A. E. Banks was over the Girls' High School until her marriage in October, and had Miss E. F. Bazeley as her colleague for part of the year. Miss A. M. Cox, one of the year's recruits, joined the school staff in the autumn. Miss Banks reports that one girl passed the Middle Examination held in December, 1898, and two the Entrance Examination. One of the latter was appointed head mistress of a Mission High School at Surat, where her chief work was to teach Scripture to Parsis and high-caste Hindus. The children earned a good report from the Government Inspectress, and did fairly well when tested in their Scripture knowledge. Miss Banks was greatly cheered by the evident earnestness of the girls, and gives two instances which illustrate the zeal of some of the seniors:—

Girls' High School.

> One of our little ones had been guilty of grave misdemeanour. From time to time I had talked to her, prayed with her, punished her, but all in vain. At last her "mother" (we put each little girl under the care of an elder one called her "mother") took her alone, showed her her fault, and led her to seek forgiveness; and never since has she offended. Another occasion of rejoicing was when one night, being detained, I was too late to take the Communion Preparation Class. The girls were in bed, and I thought they would have to go to the Lord's Table for once without due preparation; but next morning the senior girl came to me and said, "I hope you don't mind, but as you were late last night, I took the Preparation time; I spoke for a few moments on 1 Cor. xi. 23–29, and then we had a prayer-meeting."

Zeal of senior girls.

The educational work of the Society was increased by the incorporation of that formerly carried on by the Female Education Society, which maintained ten schools with 320 children, four of them being for Mohammedan girls. In two of these schools the staff was entirely Christian, and in each of the remainder the Bible lessons were given by a Christian teacher. These schools were managed by Miss S. Bland, who has seen twenty-seven years of work in Agra, having joined the Mission eight years after its commencement by Miss C. L. Campbell (afterwards Mrs. C. E. Vines) and Miss Ellwanger. Mrs. E. Rait, Miss H. M. Forbes, and Miss C. E. Fry visited a number of zenanas, in which they had about two hundred pupils under instruction.

Ten girls' schools added to the Mission.

The Native Congregation, which numbered 550 souls, was nominally under the charge of the Rev. W. Seetal, but owing to his absence in England, and subsequent deputation work in India, the pastoral work was actually carried on by the Rev. B. Tobit. Twenty-one persons were confirmed by the Bishop of Lucknow in February, 1899, and the converts partially supported a couple of evangelists. The day-school had but a small attendance, and gave cause for some anxiety, but the Sunday-school prospered under the care of Miss Bland.

Ingathering from the village work.

The Evangelistic Work under the Rev. J. M. Paterson (now at home) and the Rev. J. W. Goodwin was extremely encouraging, for no less than fifty-one persons, including children, were baptized during the year as the outcome of it, a large number of whom were from the district just outside the city. Several of them, seven adults and a boy, were the fruit of the Hingkimandi Mission, which was under the immediate supervision of Munshi Yusuf Gajju, who was also known as the "Bishop of Hingkimandi." These converts were entirely taught in the "Bishop's" two little bazaar schools. Mr. Paterson writes as follows of a large town called Semra, near the out-station of Khandauli :—

A number of families apply for instruction.

> We received a call from thirteen families to send them a teacher, as they wished to become Christians. Such an appeal was imperative, and we at once sent out a man and his wife, trusting that God would provide the means and keep the teachers faithful in their witness for Him, not only with their lips, but in their lives also. We found that in all sixty-three persons were willing to be taught. After ten months' teaching nineteen had learnt sufficient about the way of salvation to enable us to baptize them on the Sunday before Christmas Day. The remainder are still under instruction in their own village. These converts are no burden to the Mission beyond instruction, as many of them possess fields of their own, and all of them have work in the villages; they are quite prepared to live in their own village and remain in the calling in which we found them.

There were prospects, too, of future ingatherings. From the villages around Agra came a great demand for Mission-schools, the desire for which led several Thakoors to ask Mr. Paterson to send some one who might settle amongst them and teach them the Bible. In certain cases, however, there was a deeper reason for the request for instruction, for it was found that the men in some places had been led by the preaching of the catechists to abandon idolatry, and wanted to hear more about the new religion, and about Isa Masih (Jesus Christ). Mr. Paterson says in his Annual Letter :—

> At the village of Narki thirteen persons gave their names to the catechist who was preaching there, and said that they were ready to become Christians.

In another village the catechist met a man from a place in which we had worked last year and in which we had also preached this year, and this man said that there were seventeen persons in his village who desired baptism. Not only amongst the lower castes is the Word spreading and leading men to Christ, but also among the Thakoors we find a strong inclination to read the Bible and throw over the influence of the Brahman priest. There is not the same willingness to accept Christ as the only Saviour as amongst the lower classes, but still the Word has a great deal of influence over their religious convictions.

Unhappily the lack of native workers possessing the necessary qualifications made it impossible to utilize all the openings which presented themselves. The work amongst the women was under the supervision of Mrs. Paterson. There are Girls' Schools at Firozabad and Khandauli, and new work was commenced at Jalesar, where about twenty zenana pupils are under instruction by the resident Bible-woman. Whilst moving among the villages in the cold weather Mrs. Paterson came across many of Miss Bland's old pupils, and found that as a rule the presence of one ensured a good hearing, and a better sale of books than usual. The Rev. W. McLean resumed charge of the evangelistic work on his return at the end of the year.

Secundra Orphanages.

The Secundra Orphanage, which was originally founded in 1837 to provide for those children who were left destitute in consequence of the famine of that year, received large accessions during 1898 and 1899 from a similar cause, the number of inmates rising from 189 in 1897, to nearly 400 two years later. The Mission now consists of Orphanages for boys and girls respectively, and an industrial department, and efforts are also made to evangelize the people of the district and to visit the zenanas, the latter portion of the work, as well as much of the care of the Girls' Orphanage, being in the hands of ladies of the Berlin Society. The educational work progressed satisfactorily, and care was taken to brighten the lives of the children as much as possible; the Centenary of the Society, the Queen's birthday, and Christmas being occasions of high festival. Most of the inmates of the Orphanages received training in book-binding, printing, carpentry, weaving, shoe-making, tailoring, lacemaking, masonry, domestic service, or cultivation. The Rev. E. T. Pegg, who, with the Rev. P. Webber, was stationed at Secundra, describes the method of weeding a field which had the merit of simplicity combined with that of effectiveness. The plan adopted was for 200 children to stand in a straight row at the edge of the field, and then for each child to march straight across, clearing the ground in front of him as he went. The efforts for the spiritual welfare of the children were not in vain, for there was a perceptible improvement in their moral tone, and instant obedience became the rule instead of the exception. Some alarm was caused to the boys by the Dacoits, who having attacked the houses of a number of wealthy people in the neighbourhood, at length paid a visit to the village bazaar in order to obtain food. Two of them were detained by the people, who sent for the police, but before the latter could arrive, some of the other Dacoits, who had been lying in ambush, came to the rescue of their comrades. Most of the people fled, and the robbers seized the Mohammedan teacher in the C.M.S. school, believing him to be a police officer, and severely handled him. The evangelistic work was conducted mainly by the catechists, four in number, and the colporteur.

MUTTRA.

There were only two missionaries resident at MUTTRA throughout the year under review, the Rev. P. M. Zenker, and Miss M. Stratton. Miss E. M. F. Major was invalided home in March, 1899, and was unable to return before December, and Miss V. H. Latham left for New Zealand in June. Miss C. E. Fry was with Miss Stratton for six weeks; when she departed Miss A. M. Tottenham took her place temporarily, and in November, Miss E. M. Worthington, one of the year's recruits, was appointed to the station. Mr. Zenker was selected by the N.-W. Provinces Missionary Conference to succeed the late Rev. Dr. C. Baumann as chief editor of an Urdu Commentary on the Bible, but he found, to his regret, that the task was beyond his strength. He was able, however, to supervise the work of the Mission, which proceeded uneventfully on the usual lines. On Christmas Day, 1898, there was an entertainment for the Christians, followed on the next day by one for heathen ladies and children, with a lantern lecture on the life of Christ. Nearly four months later the Centenary was celebrated by a special service at 6.30 a.m. on April 19th, and a feast in the evening. The schools connected with Muttra are six in number, four of them being in the city, one at Brindaban, and the sixth, the only one for Mohammedans, in the Sadar Bazaar. The local holidays were found to be a great hindrance to school-work, and Miss Stratton says that everything that Krishna is supposed to have done seemed to be commemorated. The Zenana work was "most hopeful and encouraging." One woman is spoken of as specially near to the Kingdom, and the death of a little bride, after an illness of two years, was used to soften her mother, and lead her to put herself under instruction. Miss Stratton had two short experiences of camp life. In February, 1899, accompanied by one of the Bible-women, she went to the neighbourhood of Gokul, the place to which Krishna is said to have been taken by his father to escape being killed by Kansa, and where the water receded before his feet when he had to cross the Jumna. Several houses there were visited, and some of the people when passing Miss Stratton's tent were heard to exclaim, "Jesus Christ has begun to come here too!" In the winter two other villages across the river were visited. The Zenana Mission-house, the purchase of which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 201), was occupied in January, 1899, a letter written by Mrs. Durrant, who has since been transferred to Aligarh, having been largely instrumental in raising the necessary funds.

ALIGARH.

Aligarh.

Advance in almost every respect characterized the year at ALIGARH, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. F. Pemberton, Mrs. E. Durrant, and Miss J. E. Puckle are stationed. The number of zenanas open to the missionaries, and of children in the school, increased; the contributions of the Native Christians were larger than in 1898; and at some of the out-stations real progress was manifested. The Native Congregation suffered a great loss through the death of the Rev. Yaqub Ali, which has been already mentioned. The Centenary was observed with much rejoicing, the various agents of the Society, each of whom became an honorary worker for the day, i.e. April 12th, 1899, telling the story of their efforts to win the Heathen. The English celebration took the form of a meeting on the Collector's lawn, at which a noteworthy testimony to the genuineness and usefulness of the work was borne by those who were in a position to estimate its value. Mr. Pemberton writes:—

A Centenary meeting.

Interest of English residents in the work.

All the European residents were present, including Mr. Beck, the Principal of the Anglo-Mohammedan College, and there seemed to be a real interest displayed in our work. At this meeting a statement was made that will bear repetition. In speaking of the interest that English residents take in C.M.S. work in Aligarh, it was stated that for the Hindustani Church every representative of the Government had done something. In the Church record-book there is an entry about the opening of this church, and it is on record that all the civilians and European residents attended the opening ceremony, and the Judge, Collector, Civil Surgeon, District Superintendent of Police, and two engineers contributed gifts, such as lectern, holy table, sanctuary chair, &c., and it was pointed out that this was not merely an ephemeral enthusiasm, but that at this very time nearly every one in the station subscribes to our local funds.

Work taken over from the Z.B.M.M.

The Society has taken over from the Z.B.M. Mission the Work among Women at this station. Miss Powell, of the latter Society, when handing over the work introduced the ladies to more than eighty zenanas, and they soon found their way into others, so that before long twenty mahallas (districts of the town) and about two hundred houses were being regularly visited, either by the missionaries or by the five Bible-women. In most cases a favourable reception was met with, and in only one instance was Mrs. Durrant requested not to repeat her visit. She writes:—

The husband and father denounced all teaching about the Lord Jesus as blasphemy, and said he could not allow it. I replied at once, as gently as I could, that I should not think of coming without his full consent and approbation, but that I had travelled all the way from England to tell the women in India about my best Friend and Saviour, and that I could not visit where I was not allowed to speak of Him. His manner instantly softened, and he gave me a courteous farewell, but did not retract his prohibition.

She proceeds to narrate experiences of a different nature :—

I found a very superior looking man waiting for me one day outside a zenana into which he had seen me enter, and he said, in broken English but with Hindustani fervour, that he had heard of the great condescension and kindness with which English ladies were coming into their homes to teach, and that he was most anxious his family should share the benefit; that he saw and understood what Government meant when they urged the great importance of the women receiving education alongside of the men; that his women knew absolutely nothing; and would I come to them regularly? They have proved an earnest and intelligent group of listeners, and their efforts to show their gratitude, by preparing food for me which they thought I could eat, &c., have been quite touching.

In another case the husband is a tinsmith, and always there at work when I give my weekly lesson, and his interest in his wife's progress is most amusing. Poor thing, she is very slow in mastering even the simplest words, but when she happens to say one right, he calls out so eagerly, "Very clever, is she not?"

Efforts in behalf of policemen's wives.

Work was commenced among the wives of the policemen, several of whom learned to read, in spite of the prognostication of the District Superintendent of Police, "I do not think that you will get an entrance into their houses, because they are so very bigoted." Some difficulty was experienced at the School, for the children who attended at the beginning of the year were quite unable to read, and had formed habits of "utter inattention, carelessness, and disobedience," but efficient and prayerful Christian teachers were obtained, and Mrs. Durrant was able to report in December that a great improvement had taken place in the sixty-five children then on the rolls. Forty of these were taught in Urdu and Hindi, and the rest in Bengali. A school for upper-class Mohammedan children was opened early in the year, but its success was affected by a rival institution opened by an opponent, a Moulvie. The Mission school at Bulandshahr gained better results in the Government inspection than any other primary school in that district, and the appointment of a capable and reliable headmaster to the upper-class school at Sikandrabad led to the doubling of the number of boys in attendance in the short space of two and a half months. Eleven men and boys came to the Bible-class held by the headmaster, who also went about preaching from village to village in the vicinity. Soron was occupied during the year, and Mr. Pemberton gives an interesting account of his visit to the place, noticing incidentally the superstition of the Heathen. He writes :—

Illiterate Christians and their "daily services."

The Christians of Soron are different from many Christians of other places. They are very poor and ignorant, and as they cannot read they meet together every night for prayer and Bible instruction. Our first acquaintance with these "daily services" was interesting. We were not quite certain of the whereabouts of the meeting place, but our steps were guided to it by the song of praise that rose from these poor people in this heathen city, and one felt thankful indeed that even in Soron, this place on the Ganges to which the Hindu pilgrims in vast numbers resort, there was a little colony of Christians who were testifying in their simple way to their belief in Christ, and their participation in His saving grace. The superstition which abounds in these parts was vividly brought before our notice when we were going to Soron. We overtook on the road a poor Hindu who was performing a most painful and laborious task. He was measuring his length in the dust of the roadway. He would lie full length in the road, then scratch a mark at the farthest point beyond his head that he could reach, then, rising, he would place his toes on this line, and lying flat down, he would repeat the same proceeding. We inquired why he was doing this, and, in reply, he said that he had no son to attend to him on his death bed, and ensure for him a safe passage across to heaven, so he thought he might please his god by performing this kind of penance and be rewarded by having a baby boy. We, I need not say, told him of a surer way to heaven, but having listened eagerly, as it seemed, for a few minutes, he then, lest he should lose time, resumed his strange journey to the Ganges.

A Hindu pilgrim.

In striking contrast to this I have just received a most interesting and inspiring testimony of the reality of faith amongst the Soron Christians. One of their number has lately been called home, and on his death-bed, when all hypocrisy is absent, he calmly said, "Merá pár lagánewálá Masih Khudawand hai," i.e., "The Lord Christ is my ferryman." For such a faith and testimony we may thank God.

"The Lord Christ is my ferryman"

The need of constant supervision of the out-stations was shown by the discovery that at Soron the schoolmaster had discontinued teaching the Gospel to his Hindu and Mohammedan pupils because of the opposition of their parents, who threatened to remove their children if the religious instruction was continued. It was soon made clear to the people that the opportunity for giving religious teaching was the sole motive for carrying on the school; but other difficulties existed as well, and the influence of caste prevented the school from making much progress.

The only adult baptized was a blind man, who had been kept back because of the perversion of his relatives to Mohammedanism. But there were some promising inquirers, including two women in the zenanas and one girl in the school at Aligarh, and the schoolmaster at Sikandrabad, a Hindu, whose parents expelled him from his home because he attended a Bible-class, ate with the Christians, and accompanied them in their bazaar preaching. Mr. Pemberton itinerated in the district and visited several of the out-stations. Something, too, was done for the village women in the cold season by two of the Bible-women.

MEERUT.

The continuous success vouchsafed in recent years to the workers at MEERUT is clearly shown by some statistics given by the Rev. J. W. Hall. He points out that in 1894, the year in which he took up his residence at the station, the Native Christian lay workers numbered thirty-four, and the baptized Christians 256, but in 1899 the corresponding figures were forty-seven and 488 respectively. Six adults were baptized in 1894, and thirty-three during the year under review, while in addition there were 300 names on the roll of catechumens at its close. The Congregation at Meerut, under the native pastor, the Rev. M. Drummond, celebrated the Centenary by a special service, which was followed in the evening by a feast in a brightly decorated tent, after which a number of speeches were delivered. Some special services were held in October by the Rev. I. W. Charlton, which were a means of much blessing, and there were signs of deeper spirituality among the people, and of a fuller sense of the privilege and responsibility of giving. A new verandah was added to the church in memory of the late Rev. J. Whiting, who worked at Meerut from 1832 to 1841; it was built with funds supplied by friends at Royston, where Mr. Whiting was afterwards vicar for many years.

Schools. Seventeen of the 200 boys of the High School entered for the Matriculation Examination, eleven of whom passed, a higher percentage than was gained by any other school in the town. The Christian Hostel had fifteen inmates, and the hostels for non-Christians about the same number. The Christian Girls' School was under the superintendence of Mrs. Hall.

From the middle of March until the end of October, with the exception of the oppressive month of June, Evangelistic Work was carried on at the eleven preaching-places in the city; there was a great deal of controversy but not much violent opposition, although on one occasion a crowd of about 300 Mohammedans wore a rather threatening aspect. The members of the Arya Samaj were to the fore with objections, and the Mohammedans as usual stumbled at the doctrine of the Divinity of our Lord. One of the former was met with who affirmed that salvation consisted merely of making personal efforts to get rid of sin gradually, and in response to interrogations did not hesitate to declare that he himself had attained perfection. The Rev. W. B. Collins, who has since been transferred to Azimgarh, and Mr. T. A. Carmichael, attended the fair at Nauchandi and the mela at Garhmukteshwar, but the numbers at the latter were smaller than in 1898, partly because of the opinion that the Ganges was losing its sanctity, and partly because of the expectation that the end of the world was at hand. The most noteworthy successes, however, were met with in the villages around Meerut, from which numerous applications for teachers were received. Mr. Collins visited more than 250 of them during the first ten weeks of the year, experiencing less opposition than usual, and in many places being earnestly requested to come again. There were many examples of the sad superstition of the Hindus. At one place was met a Sadhu, or ascetic, who for several years had held his left hand aloft as a penance; at another, the hand of a young man could be seen counting the beads of a rosary, the rest of his body being underground; while at a third was a young man in a sitting posture, who represented Krishna, and had in front of him some idolatrous emblems, and strange to say, also a copy of the Gospel of St. Mark! A copy of God's Word was found in another unexpected place, for one day Mr. Carmichael entering a village discovered a Mohammedan, who was held in esteem as a doctor, holding in his hand the Gospel of St. John, of which he had just read the first fifteen chapters. Such incidents demonstrate the importance of circulating the Word of God, since it may reach many who never see a missionary. In some villages the converts were called upon to endure severe persecution, scarcely a month passing without some effort being made to prevent the growth of the Church. While the new church at Khejuri, which was completed during the year, was in process of erection, a number of Thagas one night pulled down a portion of the walls. At Jeyi (see last year's Report, page 204) two houses were burned, and the Rangars (Rajputs converted to Mohammedanism), fearing that they might get into difficulties, accused the Christians of themselves being the incendiaries. Mr. Hall writes :—

Ascetics.

Persecution of village Christians.

As soon as the Christians discovered that the Rangars had told the inspector, they went over themselves to tell the true story, stating, however, as they had already done to me, that they had not actually seen the suspected man set fire to the house. The inspector, wishing probably to help us and earn the good will of his officer, inserted in his report that the culprit had been caught in the act, hoping in the meantime to succeed in persuading the Christians to say what he wished. In court the Christians told the simple truth, and thereby incurred the wrath of the magistrate and the inspector, both of whom made fruitless efforts to punish them.

There was a somewhat similar experience at Dhanpur, but at Sona the plot against the converts was more formidable and more elaborate. Mr. Hall describes what happened as follows :—

A Christian, whose story I have every reason to believe true, was journeying in the early morning to a village some three miles away, and on his person he carried about Rs. 100. Suddenly he was attacked by a Rangar, who had followed him from Jeyi, and having been severely beaten about the head, he was robbed. The Rangar was almost immediately joined by three village policemen (relations), who were either cognizant of the plot, or who, having found the man insensible, feared the consequences, and determined to save their friend if possible. They dragged him to the road and waited until six bullock carts drew near, when they startled the half-sleeping occupants by raising a cry of "thieves" and beating the road as though defending themselves against an invisible foe. The sham-fight ceased and the wounded man was produced as one of a gang of dacoits. The rest had fled! In the early morning the inspector was passing, and he soon fell in with the plan, because it offered an opportunity extinguishing Christianity from the neighbourhood. The man was one of a gang of Christian dacoits; the rest had been recognized and must be secured! Such was the plot hatched in a mango grove close by the scene of the attack. And so they carried the injured man to the police station at Paritchatgarh and arranged for the issue of warrants for the arrest of two Christians in Jeyi. The same Thannahdar went with his police to the Christian quarter in Jeyi, and they roughly and rudely handled the women after having seized and bound the men then present. I was on the spot in a few hours, and spent the whole night in an open field gathering all possible information before returning to Meerut. The Collector most kindly arranged for the trial before the English joint magistrate. The Christians were remanded to jail until the close of the trial, which lasted for the best part of a month. They were finally released, and the inspector was degraded, while the policemen were dismissed. On June 17th, at about midday, I heard voices at the compound gates singing "Jai Prabhu Yesu" ("Victory to Jesus"), and I saw the little band of Christians marching towards the house with the released men in their midst. They were soon in the house, and we knelt together to thank God for His great goodness in vindicating His own. "What did you do in jail?" I asked. "Sang Christian songs and nursed the wounded man, who we believe would have died if we had not been there to help him." The Rangars had said among themselves, "If we prevail, then our god is the true god; but if the Christians are freed, then their God is God."

Singing Christian songs in jail.

Two new villages were added to those occupied by teachers, and at a third, Agwanpur, where no converts had been made for about thirty-seven years, a number of people were under instruction. Mr. Hall baptized in April, 1899, a man of the Kyasth caste, of whom the headmaster of the High School, a convert from the same caste, remarked, "This is real fruit; I like to talk with him, he is so real; his case is just like mine."

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Meerut consisted of three European ladies, two assistant missionaries, four Bible-women, and nine native teachers. They found the women very ready to receive teaching, and were specially hopeful about one zenana pupil, the wife of a doctor, who expressed her desire to become a Christian, and was severely beaten in consequence. The C.E.Z.M.S. has since withdrawn from work at the station.

Ghaziabad.

Good progress was made at Ghaziabad, where Miss G. L. West had Miss E. M. Doyle as her colleague. The schools for boys had about 160 names on the rolls, and quite held their own, and the girls' schools had an aggregate of forty-eight pupils. In the zenanas there were more women learning to read than ever before, and the Bible-women were trained to give more systematic instruction, which resulted in a better comprehension of their message by those amongst whom they laboured. Something of the nature of a check was experienced in the work of the Dispensary, for Miss Jonathan, Miss West's native helper and friend, left to continue her medical studies at Lahore before Miss Ventura, a native qualified hospital assistant, was ready to take her place, and could be introduced by her to the people. Miss West describes the consequence as follows:—

Dispensary work.

> Some would come to the door, pop their heads in, and when they saw a stranger there, would rush off again, some saying she would poison them; others that they were sure she did not know anything, &c., without giving her a chance to speak to them. Twice men have stopped me in the street and asked me how long she was going to remain. I replied I could not say, but I hoped all her life. They said, "Oh, if she remains our women will have faith in her, but they do not like to have those whom they have learnt to love go away." Miss Jonathan also had much to contend with when she first opened the dispensary, just in the same way. One woman looked in at the door and ran off, telling everybody that the Miss Sahib was sitting with a dagger in her hand ready to kill the patients. After a while they would say, with the greatest surprise, "Oh, she speaks kindly to us." So we do not despair, but feel sure that we shall soon have their confidence the same as before.

Two new dispensaries were started in the district, each being open on one day in the week. The first was at Moradnagar, a country town, nine miles from Ghaziabad, and the other at Mosuri, a village not quite so far distant. Miss Doyle writes of the power of the medical work in winning the confidence of the people :—

When we have first gone into the villages, the people have stood and looked shyly at us, and have asked our matlab (i.e. motive) for coming, and when we have said, "We have come to make friends with you and tell you about our religion, and have also brought medicines" (the last is a magic word), they will draw near and say, "What sort of medicines?" and we reply, "For fever and coughs and sore eyes and bad ears, and ointment for ulcers." The tone is then completely changed, and they say, "Come, Miss Sahib, we will show you a place to sit down," and leading the way to the house of the headman of the village they introduce us; bedsteads are dragged forth for us to sit on, and in less time almost than it takes to tell we are literally thronged. When something like silence is established we sing a bhajan (hymn with a native air) to them, and then by means of a parable or miracle we give them the message of "Jesus and His love." There is no love or peace or comfort in their religion; it is all uncertainty and fear, and dread or propitiating offended deities. Often, when I have finished telling the story of the "Prodigal Son," there have been many streaming eyes around us; they have never heard such words. While the Bible-woman takes up the singing and teaching, I begin giving medicines. In a village the other day, nine miles distant, as we washed and dressed a woman's finger which had been bad for six weeks and had been lanced by a barber (in the absence of any one more competent), the women standing by said, "We feel as though an angel had come into our midst." The patient's sister hurried off to her garden and brought a cauliflower and some radishes as an offering to show her gratitude.

"Medicines" is a magic word.

"We feel as though an angel had come in our midst."

Twenty-five villages in all were visited by Miss Doyle, around whom gathered sometimes crowds of from 100 to 150 persons, and at others only a little group of two or three, but to all alike the Gospel message was proclaimed. She mentions a case which shows the hopelessness of Hinduism. A woman had lost her son, nineteen years of age, and when asked "Have you no prospect of seeing him again?" replied, "Oh no, he is lost to us; his spirit may enter some animal; or if we do see him, he will not know us, but will look coldly on us." How strangely must have fallen on the ears of that woman the words of Christ which told of the resurrection of the dead!

ANNFIELD, MUSSOURIE, AND DEHRA.

Annfield.

The Rev. and Mrs. T. Carmichael were assisted at ANNFIELD for a few months by the Rev. A. Butterworth, who looked after the pastoral work at the head station and some of the villages connected with it. Several improvements were made in the church building and furniture, and the Hindustani services were well attended. Weekly prayer-meetings for adults were held in three different villages, and one for children took place twice a week in the church; a number of meetings for Christian women were also carried on by Mrs. Carmichael, with the aid of the Bible-woman. One adult was baptized, a young Hindu of the Ahir caste, who was influenced by the kind treatment which he received at the hands of his Native Christian master. The work at Chakrata was hindered by the immigration of some unworthy converts of a Mission not belonging to the C.M.S., and also by the impossibility of giving the inquirers any regular instruction, but Mr. Carmichael mentions that a Hindu shopkeeper invited all the school children and their teachers to a feast of sweetmeats on Christmas Day, and requested them to sing Christian hymns at his house. The reason for this apparently strange proceeding was that, having lost all his children in their infancy, he had resolved at the birth of the next to ask the Christians to assemble at his house and pray for the preservation of the child's life. This had been done, and now that the boy was about three years old the father expressed his thankfulness in the manner recorded. Mr. Carmichael, who suffered from a painful affection of the right hand, was able to make progress with his translations into Jaunsari, and spent some time among the people speaking that language, the hut which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 207) proving very useful. Several new villages were reached, and a considerable number of people heard the message of Salvation. In November, Mr. T. Law, of the Gónd Mission, took up his residence at Annfield with a view to working among the Jaunsaris, whom he describes as most sinful, and their habits as appalling. They were, however, willing to listen to the Gospel; and both a headman of twenty villages, and a Hindu schoolmaster, accepted New Testaments and began to read with the catechist. Some itinerating work was accomplished in the Tiri-Gahrwal country (see last year's Report, page 208) by the Rev. J. M. Paterson, while on his holidays, who was led by what he saw to realize the promising openings for work among the hillmen. He camped for four days in a place through which many pilgrims passed on their way to different shrines, and often had groups of them at his tent listening to passages read from the New Testament, or to bhajans, or to some chapters from the Dharmm Tula, "Religion weighed."

A Hindu invites children to sing Christian hymns at his home.

Among the Jaunsaris.

Cordial testimony to the joy of missionary work is borne by the Rev. Dr. W. Hooper, of MUSSOURIE, who at the close of his fourth period of service in India, before leaving for Australia, wrote:— Mussourie.

> Whereas each of my periods of service in India has been happier than the preceding, this has been by far the happiest of them all. And let me add that among the causes of this happiness is a growing satisfaction, and I may say pride, in belonging to C.M.S., feelings which lengthening experience has always and only enhanced.

The Work among the English was continued as in previous years. The weekly Bible readings were on the Epistle to the Hebrews, and a summary of them was given by request in the form of a lecture at a large conference of missionaries held in September. Courses of sermons were also preached on some of the "new" things mentioned in the Bible, such as the new Covenant, the new Commandment, etc., and on those sayings of Christ which He introduced by the word "Verily," used singly. The importance of this work was recognized by the appointment of the Rev. T. Russell, of Allahabad, to All Saints' Church, Mussourie. The work among the Natives lay chiefly in the hands of the Rev. H. Bennett, who was greatly helped by the resident catechist and his wife, and also by a worker from the Gónd Mission, who visited the station for the benefit of his health. Much appreciation was shown of a special meeting for men only, which was attended by good numbers, and the schools in the district were also encouraging. Work among the English.

Village work was carried on from DEHRA, where Mr. Bennett had his headquarters, and was cheering because of the ready welcome which was extended to the messengers of the Gospel. The congregation at Dehra itself was increased by the advent of Christians from other places, and the contributions of the Native Christians showed a gratifying upward tendency. A few cases of back-sliding occurred, and unhappily it became necessary to publicly excommunicate a man who for several years had been an agent of the Society. But on the other hand five adult converts from Hinduism were baptized, and there was reason to think that not a few persons were Christians at heart, for Mr. Bennett tells of a man who on his death-bed sent for the catechist, and told him that he believed that Jesus Christ was the Saviour, and that he was trusting Him for his soul's salvation. A feature of the work at Dehra was the generous support accorded to it by the English residents. Dehra.

The continual need of the revision and re-revision of existing translations of the Scriptures is shown by the interesting account given by Dr. Hooper of his Translation Work. Almost all his time was occupied with the revision of the translation of the Old Testament into Hindi, and he says:— Revision of Hindi Old Testament.

> This revision was begun on December 22nd (1898) last year, and it was soon found that a task had been entered on which might well occupy two, if not three years. This was because we soon discovered that the revision would have to be much more radical than we had at all expected; and this, again, was due to three distinct causes:—

(1) We ourselves had, in the course of the translation, grown very much in our knowledge of Hindu idiom, so that the work of the last two years was very different in this respect from that first done; and we were not prepared to find the difference so great as we did.

(2) Our non-Christian native helpers cannot have learnt their own language better as they proceeded, but the effect was the same as if they had; for in the revision they took an interest which they had never taken before, and corrected things they had never touched before, and gave us new rules we had never known before.

(3) This might have perplexed as well as helped us, had we not had the advantage of another helper this last year, viz., a native missionary of the Baptist Society, a very good Hindi scholar as well as intelligent Christian. He confirmed all that the pundits taught us new, and besides, his presence was exceedingly valuable in this way, that he could always tell us whether it was safe to adopt some idiom which they pressed on our acceptance, i.e. whether it contained any taste or odour of Hinduism or not.

Slow progress.

Owing to these three causes our progress was so slow that as it was impossible, for various reasons, for any of us three members of the Committee to continue in the country after this winter at latest, we were fain to divide the books of the Old Testament into two classes, viz. those we had translated first (which included all the more important ones), and those we had done last, and to hand over all the latter class (quite half of the Old Testament) to me to correct as well as I could by the light of the new rules which we had accepted, and were still accepting, since those books had been translated.

With the books belonging to the former class the Committee has gone steadily on through the year, with no special difficulty arising till we began the Prophets, which was on August 9th. But then the whole aspect of things changed, for we found that the translation, which had satisfied us well enough a few years ago, and which was (by testimony not our own) an enormous improvement on the current version of the Prophets, was yet on the whole unintelligible to the ordinary Hindu reader, for whose benefit the whole work was mainly intended. Consequently, our work since the above date has been practically a new translation of the Prophets, and one deviating from literality to an extent which I should formerly have shrunk from as a corrupting of the Word of God, but which I have been slowly driven to regard as inevitable at present, if one is to make God's Word intelligible to the mass of the people of this land.

This arrangement naturally threw a great deal of work on Dr. Hooper as chief reviser. By Christmas only the books from Joshua to Ruth, and from Ezra to Job, and parts of the books of Jeremiah and Daniel remained to be done. It is mentioned incidentally that although Ezekiel is the most difficult of all the Prophets to understand, he proved the easiest to translate. Dr. Hooper refers in feeling terms to the sudden death of Dr. Kellogg, of the American Presbyterian Church, with whom he was associated for many years in the work of revision.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES AND RAJPUTANA.

The Revs. H. J. Molony and C. S. Thompson left England for the Mission in October, and the Rev. E. P. Herbert in November, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Hensley in January, 1900. The Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Price, and the Rev. J. A. F. Warren came home in March, 1900. The Rev. A. Outram was married in September to Miss G. E. Withers, of this Mission.

JABALPUR.

Jabalpur.

The Rev. J. A. F. Warren (now at home) had the Rev. R. Hack as his colleague at JABALPUR. The retirement of the Rev. N. Solomon, and the feebleness which necessitated it, threw the care of the Congregation upon Mr. Warren, who was responsible for the preparation of the confirmation candidates, of whom seventeen were confirmed by the Bishop of Calcutta in November. The Bishop, who was able to give an address in Bengali within six months after landing in India, conducted the service in Urdu, and spoke to the people in that language. Some of the congregation took part in the teaching at the Sunday-school; and Mr. Warren's class of young men had between fifty and sixty names on its rolls. One of the members of the latter asked for baptism, but receiving a post under the Government he was removed from the station before his request could be acceded to; another youth openly confessed himself as a believer in the Saviour, but was unwilling to be baptized. The Educational Work was on a large scale, no less than 1,190 boys attending the nine schools. Those who went in for the Entrance Examination failed to distinguish themselves, but the Middle School results were better, twenty-five out of thirty-five boys passing the examination, while in the Upper and Lower Primary Examinations more than fifty per cent. were successful. Such increase in numbers as occurred was chiefly in the High School department, the boys in which have doubled, and the paid fees more than doubled in the five years since Mr. Warren assumed charge. The lads did well in games, winning every important cricket match which they played, and retaining the Fuller Challenge Shield for athletics. Last year's Report spoke of the unsuitability of the Hostel buildings for the purpose which they were designed to serve, but the defect was remedied during the year under review by the erection of new premises, which were opened by the Bishop of Calcutta in November. After a short dedicatory service the Bishop was conducted to a marquee in which were assembled the Commissioner and Deputy-Commissioner of the Jabalpur Division, the General commanding the Nerbudda District, and many other friends. The proceedings were opened by six students of the High School singing a Sanscrit ode, and then Mr. Warren read an address of welcome, in which the history of the Hostel from its inception ten years before was sketched. After the Bishop had replied, the Commissioner proposed a vote of thanks to him, in which he spoke highly of the alumni of the High School serving under him in various capacities. Mr. Hack found the city and district a hard field for Evangelistic Work, the ignorance of the villagers being very dense. Thus Mr. Hack writes:—

Terrible ignorance of villagers.

In time of trouble it is by no means uncommon to hear people reviling their deities. During the last famine some people took their god and, plastering it over with mud, set it in the hot mid-day sun, with the idea that to relieve its own agony it would call down the much-needed rain. Others hung a frog up by its leg to a long pole that its cries might have the same effect.

While Mr. Warren says that in one place he was asked with all seriousness whether Isa Masih (Jesus Christ) was a bird! Surely such a question constitutes a reproach to the Christian Church, for had Christians been faithful to their commission such ignorance of the Son of God and Saviour of the world could scarcely be found in a land accessible as India is to the evangelist. Nevertheless there were many indications that the labour of the missionaries was not in vain in the Lord. Numbers of people abandoned their old religions who yet lacked the courage publicly to confess Christ, and Mr. Hack mentions a well-to-do Brahman landlord who openly expressed his belief in the Saviour, but said he could not face the consequences of becoming a Christian. He adds:—

Borderers.

We have been told several times on this tour that "it is wrong to worship stones, rivers, and trees, but that the one great God should be worshipped." In one village a Brahman received our native brethren with every mark of respect (this is not usual), and stated before all the people that he neither did obeisance to stones and false gods, nor wore caste marks; he then exhorted his wife so vehemently to give up her superstitious practices that she began to cry. On another occasion a woman openly cursed her gods. The people then taunted her, saying, "You had better become a Christian," upon which she replied, "Well, if I do they have the right religion." The women in their ignorance are usually the strongest opponents to Christianity. Others said they were afraid to leave off worshipping their idols lest the gods should become angry and punish them. Others, again, while admitting that the Lord Jesus was all powerful and good, yet declared that He was an English God and only for the English. This idea is very prevalent. The villagers in one place begged our preacher to stay longer and tell them more about the Lord Jesus, as we visited them so rarely, and they could not remember our words.

Sale of Christian books.

The two colporteurs were very successful in selling the Scriptures and tracts, one boy about thirteen years of age spending his pocket money on a New Testament and some other Christian literature, in spite of the efforts of his friends to prevent him from doing so, and their warnings that he would be beaten by his father. The head catechist at Katni-Murwara, a "faithful worker and splendid bazaar preacher," a man much respected by the non-Christians, was called to his rest during the year. Mr. and Mrs. W. Holloway took up their abode at this out-station in the late autumn, with the object of itinerating in the neighbouring villages during the cold weather. Eight girls belonging to the Murwara Orphanage were baptized in October.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Jabalpur consisted of five European ladies, six assistant missionaries, sixteen Bible-women, and seven native teachers. One of the children in their schools received terrible injuries through the falling of a lamp, to which she eventually succumbed, but not before, in touching words, she had declared her faith in the Lord Jesus.

MANDLA, MARPHA, AND PATPARA (GÓND MISSION).

The success which attended the efforts of the missionaries working among the Gónds in 1898 was happily continued during the year under review, although the conduct of some of the catechists, two of whom had to be punished for drunkenness, occasioned much sorrow. The number of baptisms, 107, exceeded by thirteen that of the preceding year, but some of them were the fruit of work done in the early days of the Mission. The Rev. E. D. Price (now at home) tells of a man who was servant to the late Bishop Parker, of Eastern Equatorial Africa, and often showed some desire for the truth, but died unbaptized in 1897. His two brothers and his sister went to see him during his last illness, and then first heard the Gospel; all of them afterwards became Christians, and his nephew was appointed a teacher at one of the stations. Amongst those baptized were two ahirs (cowherds), a brother and sister. Their mother was very angry at their embracing Christianity, and as they were returning to their home she met them, brandishing a big stick, barring the pathway, and daring them to enter their abode. The girl, therefore, spent a few days with a Christian neighbour, while the brother went to a little hut in the fields, but as he was the mainstay of the house the woman was soon obliged to withdraw her opposition. Inquirers were fairly numerous and included a girl, who one day came to Mrs. Price weeping bitterly because she was not ready for Christ's second coming.

Gónd converts.

Mr. and Mrs. Price resided for some time at MANDLA, and succeeded at length in obtaining a place in the town suitable for a girls' school and a Mission-hall.

Mandla.

The workers at MARPHA included Mr. W. Holloway, Mr. E. Walker, and the Rev. F. E. Markby; but before the year was out the first-named was transferred to Murwara, and Mr. Markby went to Muttra because of ill-health, and also for language study. Mr. Walker, who received a hearty welcome on his return from his holiday in South India and Ceylon, held a Sunday class at a village one mile from Marpha, which was attended not only by children but also by men and women. He mentions a pathetic incident concerning one of the adults:—

Marpha.

I asked an old Christian man how long it was since Jesus came into the world, and with all the earnestness he could command he said that he did not know, as he was an ignorant Gónd, but that he knew this much, that He came into the world when Padri Williamson came to his village and told him about the love of Jesus for poor Gónds.

"The love of Jesus for poor Gónds."

Early in January, 1899, a week's Mission was conducted by Mr. John Lampard, of the Balaghat Mission to the Gónds, which was encouraging so far as the numbers present at the various services and meetings were concerned. Several of the missionaries itinerated among the villages of the district, not without some measure of risk to themselves; on one occasion, when on their way to a Baiga woman who was very ill, they were lost in the jungle, which, they knew, was infested by tigers and cheetahs. Comparatively few of these Baigas appear to have survived the famine of 1897, and it was found that they had almost entirely disappeared from the village —Pandripani—which they used to frequent, forty households having died during what the people termed the "knocking-down year." While travelling about Mr. Price met with several instances which proved how ignorant the Gónds were. He says:—

'knocking-down year."

A work of merit to visit a Mission-station.

While riding alone once, I asked the guide, named Ganesia, of Donpamandla, if he had ever been to Patpara. "Yes," he said, he had once. I asked him why he went there. He very much surprised me by saying, "To get my sins forgiven." I asked, "How was that?" He replied that the people of his village considered it a work of merit to go to Patpara and see the sahib there. He went once, and to his great joy saw the sahib, and joining his hands he touched the ground before him. He informed me that the mere act of saluting the Patpara sahib was sufficient to cover a multitude of sins. I, of course, tried to point out to him the better way; with what result I do not know. It appeared, too, that others went with him on his pilgrimage. At another village an old lady, who considered herself very "travelled" and worldly wise because she had once been to Jabalpur, asked me what sort of insect was inside my watch that buzzed and caused the hands to turn!

And an amusing description is given of the impression which a magic-lantern lecture made on the headman of a village called Jara Surang. The lecture in question must have been one given by the Rev. H. D. Williamson, now on the Home Staff of the Society. Mr. Price wrote:—

A Native's description of a magic-lantern lecture.

The headman said that a "Government" messenger came to his village from the neighbouring one of Khatigahan, ordering the people to attend there in the evening. This announcement caused great commotion in the village. At last the chief men decided that they had better turn up, or "the Government" might be angry. On arriving at the place, they were greeted by many acquaintances from surrounding villages, but they discovered, to their consternation, that none of the inhabitants of Khatigahan had turned up. This was strange, and looked very suspicious. Perhaps they had got an inkling of some nefarious design on the part of the sahib. No doubt they were as afraid as other villagers, but finding the padri sahib a pleasant-mannered man, they risked staying away. Just then the people present were asked to sit in front of a big white sheet. The first thought that occurred to them was that there was no possibility of jumping over it. What could it be for? Why this anxiety to get them to sit right in front of it? Why this politeness instead of being ordered to sit there? It was uncanny. At last one man passed the whisper round that it was a big net, and soon side-nets would be put up and they would be enclosed, with no chance of escaping. Just then the lantern, a thing with a muzzle like a gun, appeared behind them, just where they could not see what was going on. The question was whispered round, What could it be? As the lantern was being lit up, one wiser than the rest muttered, "It is one of the English cannon, and all who are in front will be certainly shot dead!" The audience became very uneasy. The headman of Jara Surang got up and politely asked one of the babus if he might go away for a minute. Leave, of course, being granted, he at once bolted, followed by three belonging to his village. I asked him if any one stayed behind. He said, "No one belonging to my village." But some did, because he heard next day that the machine did not go off, but made visible all sorts of strange things from different parts of the earth.

The simple medicines which Mr. Walker carried with him enabled him to relieve much suffering, and brought large numbers of people together, who listened attentively to his message. A new church was opened in April, 1899, at Diuari, which is fifteen miles from Marpha, and there the Gónd Christians assembled at Christmas from all parts of the Mission with the exception of Patpara. No less than 253 guests came together, all of whom had travelled at least fourteen miles in order to be present, and were greeted by the Rev. E. P. Herbert, who had just arrived from England. The use of the church, which was too small to contain all the people on this occasion, suggested a contrast with the days not so very remote when the drawing-room at Marpha was large enough to hold not the adult Christians only, but all the Sunday-school children as well. Thankfully did the workers acknowledge that it was the Lord who had done such great things.

Christmas at a Gónd out-station.

The advance of recent years was specially evident to the Rev. H. J. Molony, who returned to his old sphere of work at PATPARA, accompanied by the two recruits, Mr. L. Ashby and Mr. E. Peters, and he describes the change which he observed by saying that "the station formerly so dry and fruitless had been turned into a blaze of hope and light." A new church was built during the year; nearly one thousand patients were received at the Hospital; and the work in the Leper Asylum continued to be encouraging, half of the twenty-four inmates having become Christians. One of these, and he the most afflicted of all, is said to have shown wonderful joy in his spiritual life. Many of the baptisms recorded above were of children belonging to the Orphanage, but they do not quite come in the ordinary category of non-adult baptisms, since the children were only baptized at their own request, and after careful examination as to their fitness. The care exercised before admitting any into the visible Church is well exemplified by the following extract from Mr. Molony's Annual Letter:—

Patpara.

Orphanage.

I have lately examined thirty children who desired to be Christians; seven boys and eight girls I passed and baptized on Christmas Day. Each one I had separately for a quiet talk; I found most of them very open-hearted and willing to tell me whether they still told lies, whether they said their prayers, whether they quarrelled with the others, &c., and also to answer simply my questions about faith in the Saviour. I found that they knew practically nothing about idolatry, sorcery, and witchcraft, but that all their ideas were Christian; they are, in fact, growing up under Christian instead of heathen influences, and the result is as marked as when a child is fed on good instead of bad food. They are healthy in mind, and I believe wonderfully healthy in soul too. We are not blind to faults; there is, we know, lying and quarrelling and idleness, but as far as we can judge there is no wilful practice of deception, malice, or discontent. They all agree that they like their life, and that they much prefer their daily work, constantly varied as it is, to the sitting still all day long, as was the lot of many in Government poor-houses. All those baptized know the Lord's Prayer, Ten Commandments, and Apostles' Creed, and satisfied me that they had grasped for their own souls the essential truths of sin and of salvation through Jesus Christ. They also had a good report as to character, conduct, and knowledge from the catechists in charge. I rejected some because I was told that they were quarrelsome, disobedient, or idle, and others because they seemed to be wanting in knowledge of the truths of salvation, or not to be quite straightforward.

"All their ideas were Christian."

Some of the elder children were not Christians, but no distinction was made between them and the others as regards the efforts made to give them a start in life when they left the Orphanage. Four of the senior girls were trained to look after the sick, who were accommodated in a small hospital built by Mr. J. Fryer, and situated in a separate compound. Village work was diligently prosecuted by Mr. T. Law, of the Victoria C.M. Association, until he was compelled by fever to seek a more salubrious climate, when Mr. Molony took up the work. The former tells of a young man who asked for baptism. When he informed his wife of his decision to become a Christian she refused to live with him, and his brother tried by violence to dissuade him from carrying out his purpose. When the Annual Letters were written the prospect of famine was serious. The rainfall of the year having been only half the average, the crops were very scanty, a fact which, combined with the demand for grain in other parts of India, was likely to lead to great scarcity of food. At the time of the failure of the rains bands of girls went about some villages singing wedding songs in honour of Bhimsen, the Gónd god of rain, hoping in that way to propitiate him, and at other places the village ahir (cowherd), was seized, bound, and thrown into a stream (which the people took care should not be too deep), in order to make the god think that the man had been drowned in his honour.

Prospect of famine.

KHERWARA (BHĪL MISSION).

Famine among the Bhils.

The famine was even more pronounced in the Bhīl Mission than among the Gónds. What is described as a 2½ per cent. crop was all that was expected for the year, and the usual improvidence of the people, together with the distance of their country from any source of supply, not only caused terrible distress, but also led to disturbances and loss of life through looting expeditions. By December six hundred persons were in receipt of relief, of whom ten per cent. were dying every month. A month later the Rev. C. S. Thompson,* on his arrival from England, took steps to supplement the efforts already made by his colleagues, the Revs. H. Mould and A. Outram, to cope with the existing want. The Rev. C. H. Gill, who visited many of the stations, wrote in February, 1900:—

At each of the out-stations Mr. Thompson found himself surrounded by hundreds of Bhīl children and many adults, who already showed in a greater or less degree the awful ravages which an insufficient and an unwholesome diet had wrought on their bodies and constitutions. Having neither work to do nor food to eat, nor even water to drink except at great distances, the people, at all times lacking in natural resources, were absolutely helpless. Many were fleeing from their abandoned villages in search of food, leaving wives and children behind. Many had already succumbed, helpless and exhausted, to an early death. Mr. Thompson appeared among them as their one source of hope. . . . He at once conceived the idea of utilizing the out-station schools as centres of relief, especially for the children. Beginning at once, and travelling about from place to place on foot, by the middle of January he had opened six of these children's kitchens, attended by some 700 Bhīl children and a few adults connected with them. During the tour just concluded he has been obliged to add considerable numbers to his lists at each place. To-day he has seven centres open, where 1,357 children are being fed. And I am only stating sober truth after personal investigation when I say that but for his efforts the majority of these children would be either dead or slowly dying. He hopes to open two more stations near Kherwara, and three more to the south. These would make a total of twelve kitchens, not counting Kherwara itself. We fear that by the end of March the numbers on his rolls will be not less than 2,500 children to be fed daily. . . . The great difficulty anticipated in supplying grain has been largely met by the most valuable help of Colonel Bignell and Major Dawson, political officers, who provide transport for our grain as well as for their own by means of their camels, some 500 animals being in this service to-day.

Over 1,300 children on relief in Mission camps.

The School at KHERWARA had a daily attendance of about eighty. Mr. Outram was responsible for teaching the Scriptures to the boys as well as for the general supervision of the school, and Mrs. Outram taught the girls and also looked after the Girls' Orphanage, which was inaugurated during the year. It was not undertaken without some misgivings. Mr. Outram writes:—

Kherwara.

The law or custom here differs from that of other parts, in that apparently not only the actual parents, but the uncles, &c., have a share in a girl, and at marriage she is sold for from Rs.120 to Rs.150, and the spoil divided. So that, though the parents of the girl may be dead, we may have a hard time with the remaining relatives; and besides this, we have to reckon with the innate restlessness and independence of the Bhīl, so that when famine disappears we may find the girls disappearing also.

The religious teaching in the schools in the district was not altogether satisfactory, for the paucity of Christian agents made it necessary to employ heathen masters, but Mr. Mould, on his tours of inspection, did what he could to remedy the state of affairs.

Dispensary. The Dispensary, which was reopened after an interval of some months, had but a small attendance to begin with, but the people soon commenced to flock to it in increasing numbers. The scarcity of food naturally caused much sickness, and earnest prayer is asked that grace may be given to the missionaries faithfully and wisely to avail themselves of all the opportunities presented to them of telling the people of One who is both the Great Physician and the True Bread from Heaven. The old father of Isa Das, one of the native agents, was baptized in September.

PUNJAB AND SINDH MISSION.

The Punjab Mission was begun in 1851, soon after the annexation of the province to British India. The first station occupied was Amritsar, the sacred city of the Sikhs; Kangra was occupied in 1854; Peshawar, 1855; Multân, 1856; Narowal, 1859; Dera Ismail Khan, 1861; Kashmir, 1863; Bannu, 1864; Lahore, 1867; Clarkabad, 1869; Pind Dadan Khan, 1876; Batala, 1878; Dera Ghazi Khan, 1879; Tarn Taran, 1885; Quetta, 1886; Abbotabad and Simla, 1899. At Lahore, the capital of the province, the Divinity School was founded in 1870 by the late Rev. (afterwards Bishop) T. V. French. Mr. Gordon (who was killed at Kandahar, August 16th, 1880) established, mainly at his own expense, stations at Pind Dadan Khan and Dera Ghazi Khan, the latter as a base for work among the Beluch tribes. Several other stations fringe the British frontier, the most important of which is Peshawar, where a Mission to the Afghans was established in 1855 under the auspices of Sir Herbert Edwardes, then Commissioner of the Division. In the valley of Kashmir a Medical Mission was started by Dr. Elmslie in 1865, which has been a great blessing to the people, especially at the time of the famine in 1880, and the earthquake in 1884. The work in the Punjab is deeply indebted to men like Lord Lawrence, Sir H. Edwardes, Sir R. Montgomery, Sir D. Macleod, Generals Lake, Taylor, and Maclagan, Colonel Martin, and others, who nobly exerted themselves to bring the Gospel to the people under their administration.

The Sindh Mission is older in date, having been begun in 1850, but is far behind in progress, owing mainly to its having always been quite undermanned. Yet important fruit has been granted to the patient labours of the Rev. J. Sheldon and others at Karachi (commenced 1850) and Hydrabad (1856), and more recently (1887) at Sukkur, on the Indus.

The Diocese of Lahore was founded in 1877, the Rev. T. V. French, a C.M.S. missionary, being the first Bishop. He was succeeded on his retirement in 1887 by Dr. H. J. Matthew; and he in 1899 by the Rev. G. A. Lefroy, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission.

Consecration of Bishop Lefroy.

THE consecration of Dr. George Alfred Lefroy as third Bishop of the diocese of Lahore took place in Lahore Cathedral on All Saints' Day, November 1st. The Metropolitan was assisted by the Bishops of Bombay, Lucknow, Madras, and Chhota Nagpur. The ceremony of enthroning the new Bishop followed very closely on his consecration. In the course of the service the Bishop gave a short address, dwelling on the Divine grace by which alone he could be enabled to discharge the duties of his responsible office, and ended by turning to the gathering of Indian Christians and addressing them in Urdu in a few heartfelt words. The Bishop, who has accepted the office of Vice-President of the Society, met the Committee in June, 1899, and after speaking with much sympathy of the Society's work, alluded to his warm friendship with many of their missionaries.

Ordinations.

The Rev. Talib Masih was admitted to priest's orders in Lahore Cathedral on December 21st, and Messrs. Jaswant Singh and Qutb-ud-din were admitted at the same time to deacons' orders.

Deaths of Mr. W. Stobie,

The Mission sustained a loss through the death of Mr. W. Stobie on July 24th, 1899. His history was an interesting one He was the son of a soldier, and himself enlisted in the army. He volunteered for a regiment which was going to India, hoping to come into contact with missionary work, having been influenced by reading the life of Alexander Mackay, of Uganda. After a residence of two years in India he took his discharge, and from 1894 to 1896 laboured in local connexion with the C.M.S. in Amritsar. In 1896 he came home, and after training at Clapham and Islington went out again in 1898.

and of Rev. Kharak Singh.

A faithful evangelist passed away on February 5th, 1900, in the person of the Rev. Kharak Singh, whose story is thus told by the late Rev. R. Clark :—

> While a youth living with his grandfather he met with a Hindu fakir, and through his influence he left the Sikh religion, when he was eleven years old, and became a Hindu Sadhu (religious devotee), taking the Hindu name of Narain Das. He practised various austerities, ever seeking after God. During the Indian Mutiny he became a Sowar in his father's cavalry regiment, and fought four battles with his father and brother against the mutineers. He received two medals, one of which was for saving an officer's life when he was surrounded by rebels. The first person from whom he heard of Christ was the late Rev. Nehemiah Goreh, who was then preaching in the Mahratta country. He went solely to confute him and to stop his mouth. Subsequently, in order more effectually to oppose Christianity, he bought a Hindi New Testament at the Amritsar bookshop, and began to study it, and afterwards the whole Bible. He found one text which absolutely suited his case, "Come unto Me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden." Before this he had read the Bible merely to try to find flaws in it and to contradict it, but now he read it to find peace with God and rest for his soul. He yielded himself to the teaching of Christ and was baptized by the Rev. R. Clark in Amritsar on March 1st, 1874, when he was fifty-two years of age. Mrs. Elmslie was his godmother. He studied for some time at the Lahore Divinity School, and was ordained by Bishop French on December 21st, 1887. He was very active in the propagation of the Gospel, and besides preaching in most of the large cities, his lectures were circulated very widely in English, Urdu, and Hindi, and are said to have done incalculable good.

Reinforcements.

The following joined the Mission during the year :—the Rev. James Reuben Fellows, of Islington College, who was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899; the Rev. Charles Edward McQuaide, M.A., T.C.D., Incumbent of Kilcommon-Erris, Ireland; Mr. Henry Tristram Holland, M.B., Ch.B., Edin., a grandson of Canon Tristram; and Miss Minnie Gomery, M.D., C.M., Montreal, and The Willows. The staff was also reinforced by the addition of five ladies already experienced in missionary work under other Societies. Four of them were previously connected with the Female Education Society, viz. :—Miss Annie Wilhelmina Eger, M.D., Philadelphia, U.S.A.; Miss Lina Eger; Miss Marian Jessie Taylor; and Miss Fanny Lea Wadsworth. The fifth, Miss Catharine Amy Newnham, who for some years has been working in connexion with the C.M.S. Mission-hospital at Srinagar, Kashmir, originally went out under the C.E.Z.M.S. Mr. Fellows and Mr. McQuaide sailed for the Mission in October, 1899; Miss Taylor and Miss Wadsworth in November; Miss Newnham and Miss Gomery in March, 1900; and Dr. Holland in April. The Misses Eger were already in India. On the other hand, over against these reinforcements—some of which are not additions to the band of workers in the field, only to the list of C.M.S. missionaries—must be put the loss of the Rev. E. A. Causton, and the Misses A. F. and K. C. Wright, who were transferred during the year to the North-West Provinces Mission; and of the Rev. D. C. W. Harrison, who has resigned on grounds of health. And a further loss has been sustained by the appointment of the Rev. H. G. Grey, the Secretary of the Mission, to the important post of Principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, vacated by the Rev. F. J. Chavasse on his promotion to the Diocese of Liverpool. The Rev. Philip Ireland Jones, who after holding posts of great influence in the Bengal Mission between 1885 and 1893, became a Secretary of the Society in 1894, and when his health obliged him to resign that office in 1897, went to India to visit the Society's Missions, and in 1899 was appointed to the charge of the work at Simla, became Acting-Secretary on Mr. Grey's coming home.

The following are the members of the Punjab Corresponding Committee:—the Right Rev. the Bishop of Lahore, Col. J. E. Broadbent, R.E., Lieut.-Col. J. B. Hutchinson, Lieut.-Col. J. A. L. Montgomery, Major H. Hendley, I.M.S., Major C. F. Scott-Moncrieff, Mr. C. F. Elliott, Mr. J. Harvey, Mr. J. Sime, the Revs. T. R. Wade, H. W. Griffith, R. Bateman, Dr. H. U. Weitbrecht, and P. Ireland Jones (Acting-Secretary).

I. PUNJAB.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Jukes came home, the former invalided, in December, 1899; the Rev. and Mrs. E. Corfield and Mrs. T. R. Wade in March, 1900; and the Rev. H. G. Grey and the Rev. and Mrs. J. Tunbridge in May. The following returned to the Mission:—Miss B. H. Nevill in September, 1899; the Rev. R. Bateman in October; the Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Gough and the Rev. and Mrs. E. Guilford in November; the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. H. U. Weitbrecht, Miss M. E. Farthing, and Miss M. J. Farthing in January, 1900; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Ball in February. Dr. A. Lankester was married to Miss Alice Grace Fox, daughter of the Hon. Clerical Secretary of the Society, at Putney, in September, 1899, and they sailed to the Mission in November. Dr. C. Lankester was married to Miss Cécile Florence Archibald, at Karachi; and the Rev. W. F. Cobb to Miss Jessie Richardson, at Jandiala, both in November, LAHORE AND JHANG BAR.

Lahore Divinity School.

There was an influential assemblage at LAHORE on November 7th, when the foundation stone of the new buildings in connexion with the Divinity School was laid by Bishop Welldon, for among those present were the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab and Lady Young, and, besides the Metropolitan, the Bishops of Lahore, Bombay, Lucknow, Madras, and Chhota Nagpur, who had come to Lahore to assist in the consecration of Bishop Lefroy. The Principal, the Rev. E. F. E. Wigram, reports that eight students were in the School during the year; two of whom were candidates for priests' orders, and one for deacon's; three read in the vernacular class, and two in the English. This latter class was opened during the year, and the Rev. J. A. Wood, who lectured to the men twice a day, says that the continuous teaching proved a much more severe test of doctrinal position than did even his interviews with the Candidates Committee at home. Two members of the vernacular class passed out in the spring of 1899, one staying to work in Lahore, and the other going to Dharmsala.

Hostel.

A high tone prevailed at the Hostel, where the advantages of Christian community life were evident; the inmates comprised three divinity students, four medical missionary students, eleven art students, two men who were reading law, three clerks, three press hands, and a few others. The supervision which Mr. Wigram exercised over the congregation of Holy Trinity Church was only nominal, the pastoral charge really being in the hands of the Rev. J. Ali Bakhsh. The attendance at the morning services and the contributions of the people alike showed an advance, but even greater encouragement was afforded by the reclamation of some backsliders, and the character of certain of the converts. Just before Christmas, a family of five—father, mother, two boys, and a girl—were baptized by immersion, and several inquirers were under instruction more or less definite. A new school for the children of the poorer Christians was opened, for it was found that they were becoming affected by contact with unhealthy non-Christian influences.

The Z.B.M. Mission had at Lahore seven European ladies, three assistant missionaries, and fifteen native teachers.

The Jhang Bar.

The Rev. Rowland Bateman was appointed by the Committee to take charge of the Mission in the JHANG BAR, and shortly after his arrival in India he paid a preliminary visit of inspection to the district, in order to decide upon the best centre for work. In December he again went to the Bar, but without giving notice to the people that he was coming, for he had heard of the prevalence of disputes among the Christians, and he did not wish for rejoicings when there was so much cause for sorrow. He writes:—

I walked over alone on Sunday, and the first thing I saw as I stepped across the boundary on to Christian soil was a man hard at work with his spade in the middle of his field. Here, thought I, is a case for an immediate remonstrance. But it was not easy to deliver it, for on seeing me approaching he did not run away like a naughty boy, but rushing forward, dropped his spade at my feet, and clasped me to his dusty bosom with irresistible enthusiasm. All very well; but how about the Fourth Commandment; did he not know that it was Sunday? Yes, he did, and he had attended morning service; but it was his field's turn to receive canal water, and he was bound to be there to guide it from pasture to pasture, or else some would be swamped and others left dry, and the water would escape, and the Government would be down on him. Moreover, he would have to be there till midnight and could not come to evening service. Would I hold service there and then? Meanwhile, several other Christians had run up, and so we had a service out in the field, neither the water nor the spade making us ashamed or afraid. Indeed, without them it would have been mockery to ask for the kindly fruits of the earth in due season under the conditions that must obtain in irrigated tracts of land in India. I am glad to say that approaching the village across lands where water was not actually pouring in, I saw nothing inconsistent with the Sabbath rest. On the other hand, I found there were many signs of material prosperity and determined industry. Almost everybody came to evening service, and I was told that the quarrels had been composed and that peace reigned. I stopped in the village by night for more than a week, going out into the district in search of stray sheep during the day. Almost every day I found some, and when I left I had nearly 100 down on my list, apart from and mostly unknown to the people of Montgomerywala, though some of them had been found by Mr. Wigram residing two or three marches away, and registered there by him. This illustrates one of the great difficulties which have to be faced in the Bar. Our Christians move with their families wherever and whenever opportunity of work offers. Some are specially attracted where bricks are in demand, others will go almost anywhere to hire a bit of land on moderate terms from the proprietor. It is therefore a risky thing to start a school in a village where a Christian community plainly needs one. Next month, perhaps out of, say, twenty families, five will have gone south, brick-making. Next harvest, five more will be turned out of their holdings by the zamindars. Five more will have returned to Narowal, or Gurdaspore, or elsewhere; and of the five remaining you have no security of scholastic tenure. Obviously, it is still more risky to build a church for such a population. And yet all the while such are the very people most in need of the ordinances of religion, to say nothing of elementary instruction.

Industry and prosperity of Christian colony.

He says that the remarks just quoted do not apply to Montgomerywala (see last year's Report, page 217), where there is a settled Christian community of about 500 persons, and proceeds to describe the service on one Sunday for which some 400 people assembled:—

While the Christians were gathering together, the precentor gave out a hymn. Unhappily for me he said, "Brethren, let us bare our heads and sing." Had he merely said "Let us sing," I could have kept my hat on till the regular service began. The Christmas sun was unbearable, and I had to perform all services under an umbrella. They were not long in themselves, but they had to be repeated. I had walked in ten miles myself to church, and with the help of a watch and a cook, and having no babies, had managed to be there early. Many of the worshippers had to walk still further with babies and without watches or any one to cook their bread, so it was impossible to be sad when the late ones came in and required ministrations which had already been held for others. Who could refuse an extra churching or baptism because the mother was belated by a journey which few, if any, of our European women would have attempted?

Further acquaintance with the district revealed a number of practical difficulties which required to be met and overcome, but Mr. Bateman was encouraged to face them confidently by the memory of the sure promises of God. Mr. Wigram paid three visits to the village, and Mr. Ali Bakhsh two, during the year.

AMRITSAR AND CLARKABAD.

Amritsar.

The following European missionaries of the Society were stationed at AMRITSAR during the whole or part of the year:—the Rev. and Mrs. R. Clark,* the Rev. and Mrs. T. R. Wade, the Rev. and Mrs. D. J. McKenzie, the Rev. A. C. Clarke, Dr. and Mrs. H. M. Clark, Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Browne, Mrs. Grime, Miss B. H. Nevill, Miss A. F. Wright, Miss M. H. Millett, and Miss A. E. Bunn. The services of Miss Millett were lent to the C.E.Z.M.S. for evangelistic work in the Narowal district at the close of 1899. The Congregation was under the care of the Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din, to whom the Rev. Fath Masih, transferred from Fathgarh, rendered valued help. It was largely composed of members of institutions, contingents coming to the services from the Alexandra High School for Girls and the Middle Class Girls' School, and also from the hospital carried on by the ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., but a number of young men attended as well, and were increasingly regular and most eager for instruction. Such progress as was made is attributed by Mr. McKenzie, the superintending missionary, to the daily prayer in church, for the ordinary shortened service was always followed by private prayer for the work and for special individuals.

High Schools.

Writing of educational work in general, Mr. Clarke emphasizes the great need for missionary schools and colleges which are capable of holding their own with well-equipped Government institutions, and expresses his surprise that more men do not offer for what he considers to be happy, interesting, and promising work. At the Boys' High School, of which Mr. Clarke was in charge, no baptisms were recorded, but there were signs that lives were being shaped and characters moulded by the Christian teaching which was given. In secular matters there was some disappointment owing to the poor examination results, but these did not affect the popularity of the school, which at one time had over 280 names on the roll. Partly because of the good attendance the Government grant for the High School and four other schools in the district was the largest on record, amounting to Rs. 450 per mensem. During the year a boarding-house for non-Christians was opened and placed under the care of a young Christian, a former pupil of the High School. Miss Cooper, of the C.E.Z.M.S., was Acting-Principal of the Alexandra High School for Girls during the absence of Miss Saw, of the same Society, who returned from furlough in the autumn. Efforts were made by Miss Wright, with considerable success, to improve the drill of the girls, who at first disliked, but eventually welcomed, the exercise, and household classes were instituted, in which instruction was given in a variety of practical matters. In order to develop interest in Missions a weekly lesson on some missionary subject was given, and some of the girls were led to commence a monthly missionary meeting among themselves, which they kept up with fair regularity. Mrs. Grime continues in charge of the Middle Class Girls' School. Most of the children, over eighty in number, enjoyed good health, and Miss Bunn mentions that their sympathies were aroused on behalf of those less favoured than themselves, and that the girls gave up their weekly treat of fruit, and the teachers one-third of their monthly salaries, in order to render assistance to those who suffered through the famine.

School-girls' help to famine sufferers.

The Medical Work is under Dr. H. Martyn Clark and Dr. A. H. Browne. The former sends an interesting account of the results of the Mohammedan controversy which was described in the Annual Reports of 1893–94, pages 119–121, and 1894–95, pages 167–170. He says that of the nine who were baptized soon after the controversy, six apostatized, one died, one lost his reason and fell into the hands of the Mohammedans, whose life, until he went out of his mind, was that of a consistent Christian, and the first and most notable of the converts continued steadfast. He adds:—

Two notable books by an Indian D.D.

Turning to subsequent results, I must refer to two notable books, the outcome of this controversy. Both are by the Rev. Moulvie Imad-ud-din, D.D. One should be widely known were it only for the proofs of the doctrine of the Trinity and of the Divine Sonship of our Lord from Mohammedan sources. The other has a magnificent future before it. It is a translation of the Koran for the first time into simple, idiomatic Urdu. The people have now the book divested of the veil of Arabic in which it has with masterly foresight been so long enwrapped. It has already told its tale to some hearts. Two of the writers who were preparing the book for the press revolted from Islam as a consequence. I venture to say this is perhaps the most telling of all the many blows which this veteran has dealt Islam in a life devoted to the enlightenment of Mohammedans.

Mohammedans "more reachable, teachable, and tractable."

Since the controversy, whether as a result of it or not, it is a fact that special blessing has rested on our work amongst Mohammedans. I find them more reachable, teachable, and tractable than ever before. In a large measure this is doubtless a result of the influence and reputation won by years of work in Amritsar and the district as a medical missionary. In addition, however, to the personal courtesy, deference, and even affection which cheer me, the spiritual horizon has also its encouragements. A steady stream of inquiry and effort goes on, and many happy experiences fall to our lot. Of direct results as shown by baptism there have been thirty-two to the close of 1899, exclusive of the baptisms to which I have already referred. I am speaking only of converts from Mohammedanism, and only of those who, in one way or another, have been connected with the work under my special care. One of this number died unbaptized. He was a young man of singular promise and of notable family. His baptism would have made considerable stir. He fell ill, the disease was rapid, and he was powerless to help himself. His last letter to me told me of his faith in Christ, and asked me to arrange for his baptism. Of those baptized, one has apostatized; of him I have hope that God will yet have mercy on him. Another was abducted and fell away. Of the rest, one passed away in the faith. The others are for the most part now established in the faith, and many of them are active Christian workers. In addition, five apostates to Islam have been reclaimed, one only of whom had been baptized in connexion with us, and as I write we have nine inquirers under instruction for baptism from amongst Mohammedans. I wish friends at home could have seen one of these the other day. He was sent to us by one of the workers in the Church Council. As I talked of the family troubles which would ensue on baptism his face lit up with a joy touching to see. "I do not know much about Christ," said he; "but this I know, He is more to me than father, or mother, or aught beside."

Moslem converts.

"Christ is more to me than aught beside."

During the year under review a discussion somewhat similar to the controversy above referred to took place, for a number of Mohammedans declaring to the Rev. Fath Masih that the Gospel of the Christians was not the original Word of God mentioned in the Koran, he suggested that he and his opponents should read in public the Bible and the Koran alternately, each for half an hour, and let the people judge for themselves. At first they agreed to this proposal, but afterwards the Moulvies asked that certain subjects should be selected, and accordingly the following were chosen: (1) Proof of the existence of God; (2) the unity of God; (3) the Divine attributes; (4) God's relation to man; (5) man's salvation; (6) the call to repent and believe; (7) the duties of man to Almighty God; (8) the principal duties of Christians and Mohammedans; (9) the life to come. The sequel was thus described by Mr. Fath Masih in October:—

Public discussion with a Moulvie.

We began in a mosque, where over 300 men were assembled; but the Mohammedans finding that their Moulvie could not readily cite passages from the Koran, desired that this kind of comparison should be discontinued. We decided therefore to carry it on at the Moulvie's own house. This arrangement had also to be abandoned, for there was not room enough in his house for people to assemble. Dr. Clark very kindly put his hospital at our disposal, and made all the necessary arrangements. At the hospital some 400 to 600 people used to assemble, and the comparison was carried on for a fortnight. (We used to meet only twice a week.) But the Moulvie, knowing full well that the Koran could not stand comparison with the Bible in this way, suggested that we should have discussions instead. To this I did not agree, consequently the Moulvie began to behave in an ungentlemanly manner. And so the thing ended. In connexion with this, I was very pleased to meet, only last week, a Mohammedan who had acted as president at one of these meetings. This Mohammedan said that he believed the Bible to be really the Word of God, and that he would come to my house to learn more about it. Several other Mohammedans have also expressed a desire to come to me for similar purposes.

Dr. Browne says of this series of meetings:—

It was a deeply interesting and memorable sight to see time after time the throng of opponents of Christ—some of them noted for their hostility—sitting there listening intently without a single interruption while our representative was reading the selected Bible portions. The Koran teaching on "Salvation" was baldness itself; in fact, the whole of the references given in the Koran completely evaded the question and dealt with the state of Paradise, the sensual joys and pleasures, the houris and the wine, &c., there to be provided for the faithful Mussulman. Even with all this the poor Moulvie was at his wits' end to fill up the time, as there really was nothing in the Koran that he could read on the subject. It is noteworthy that the intercession of Mohammed for sinners was not even mentioned; only those who know Islam can realize what a change of front this means.

Nothing in the Koran about salvation

I do not think I say too much when I record my belief that in Amritsar such gatherings of such people, for such a purpose as related above, were only possible in the Medical Mission (as compared with the other missionary forces here), and because the Medical Mission has been working for years in this place.

In confirmation, let me relate what happened at one of the meetings. The Mohammedans smarted under the sense of having been worsted, a slight indiscretion on the part of a Christian was as a spark to the powder magazine, and in one moment the assembly was ablaze with such wrath as perhaps only Mohammedans can show; turmoil, hubbub, and personal altercations reigned, and things looked as bad as bad could be. At this juncture a few words from Dr. Clark were as oil on the troubled waters, and from angry looks and threatened violence, in a moment the men passed to smiles and polite apologies, and were the same orderly, quiet, good fellows who had been listening all along.

This method of work was continued after the hot weather at the request of some Mohammedans, who expressed a desire to have some religious discussions. At first the meetings were held in Mr. Fath Masih's house, but after a time it was thought advisable to hold them in the Ram Bag, a public garden, and there they were carried on in a perfectly friendly manner.

Mr. Fath Masih, in company with the late Mr. Stobie, visited some of the villages around Amritsar, and in one place met a number of Sikhs reciting the Granth, their sacred book, who, when they finished, asked the Christian preachers to speak to them. At Jandiala the Rev. D. S. Dyal was in charge, and the Rev. Q. K. Nehemiah at Majitha, but the only Christian residents were those connected with the Mission. At the last-mentioned place the school, which is under the supervision of Mr. McKenzie, was so popular that it became necessary to enlarge the existing building, which only had accommodation for twenty boarders, whereas these already numbered thirty-three. The total number of pupils was 170.

The Central Punjab District Native Church Council has Mr. Wade as its chairman, and he reports on the work in the three districts for which it is responsible. Vigorous itinerating work was carried on in the Ajnala Tahsil by the Rev. M. Sadiq Masih and his staff of ten readers. They had plenty of scope for work, for the Tahsil, which has an area of 405 square miles, contains 826 villages, and 224,836 persons. All but eleven of the villages were visited by the evangelists, and seven adults were baptized. The Bahrwal district contains 120 villages, and 216 Native Christians, among whom the Rev. W. Mull laboured. The adult baptisms numbered twelve.

Clark-abad.

The third district under the Church Council includes the Christian village of CLARKABAD, which is situated in the Chunian Tahsil. The Rev. T. Howell is the native pastor, and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Claxton, who were joined at the beginning of 1900 by the Misses M. E. and M. J. Farthing, also resided there. During the year the church was enlarged for the third time, and the new portions were dedicated by the Bishop of Lahore, who also laid the foundation stone of a new church at Chota Clarkabad, and confirmed forty persons. The Rev. R. Bateman, who knew Clarkabad in its early days, was impressed when he visited it again towards the end of 1899 with the improvement which had taken place. He found the church filled with an attentive congregation, and on week days he saw more industry and order, together with the fruits of both, than he had witnessed before. The Missionary Society, which was formed in connexion with the Native Church Council, undertook missionary work in the vast Chunian Tahsil, with its 1,135 square miles and 447 villages. A house was rented in the town of Chunian, and there two native agents were placed, who were encouraged by several inquirers coming forward.

The C.E.Z.M.S. is represented in Amritsar and the neighbourhood by twenty-three European ladies, eight assistant missionaries, three native nurses, nineteen Bible-women, and twenty-nine native teachers. Several new high-class Hindu and Mohammedan houses were opened to the workers, and a general desire for education was manifested, of which full advantage was taken. A great loss was sustained by the death in June, 1899, of Miss H. Scamell after a short term of service.

BATALA.

Batala.

The Committee are again without any information from the Rev. T. E. Coverdale as to the progress of the work at BATALA, where he is the superintending missionary. A new chapel for the Baring High School, of which the Rev. E. Corfield (now at home) is the Principal, was dedicated by the Bishop of Lahore on November 30th. The clergy present included the Rev. Dr. Imad-ud-din, the Revs. R. Clark, T. R. Wade, and H. G. Grey. The native pastor, the Rev. N. C. Dass, assisted in the teaching at the school, and also carried on evangelistic work in the form of bazaar preaching. He reports that a sweetmeat maker was convinced of the truth, but was held back by the cares of the world.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Batala and Fathgarh consisted of four European ladies, five assistant missionaries, three Bible-women, and eight native teachers.

NAROWAL.

During the greater part of the year the Rev. H. F. and Mrs. Rowlands were the only missionaries of the Society at NAROWAL, a town of 6,000 inhabitants, situated about thirty-six miles from Amritsar, but at the end of November the Rev. and Mrs. C. M. Gough returned to the station in company with the Rev. R. Bateman, and were greeted with every sign of rejoicing. About a mile from the city the horses were taken out, and the carriage in which the missionaries were travelling was pulled by the Christians right up to the Mission-house. In reply to the address of welcome, Mr. Bateman said that though in future he would not be connected with Narowal as his field of work, yet as he loved his old friends and the people he would never forsake them, but would try to come and see them from the Jhang Bar, his present sphere of labour. On the following day a special service of thanksgiving was held in the church. Early in 1899, Mr. and Mrs. Gough itinerated through nearly the whole of their district, and observed that the state of the Native Christians left much to be desired. No report has been received of the work at the Anglo-Vernacular Middle School and the Christian Boarding-school. The Rev. H. F. Rowlands has been transferred to Dharmsala. Narowal.

The C.E.Z.M.S. staff of missionaries at Narowal consisted of four European ladies, four assistant missionaries, the same number of Bible-women, and three native teachers. Much of their work lies at the Hospital, where sixty-four in-patients were received, while many people derived benefit at the dispensary. Both the sweeper and cook at the hospital received baptism during the year. Amongst the operations was the removal of a tumour from a Hindu woman, who when the wound was being dressed inquired, "How is it that such high-caste people as you will touch these dirty bandages and wounds?" and when she was told of the love of Christ constraining, remarked, "There must be something in Christianity, for the Hindus and Mohammedans never would do these things, even for each other, and you do them for us black people!" "There must be something in Christianity."

TARN TARAN.

One of the saddest features of the work at TARN TARAN, where the Rev. A. H. and Mrs. Storrs resided, was the prevalence of quarrels among the Christians, which were so serious that Tarn Taran.

Dissensions among Native Christians

more than once it became necessary to forbid the men to go out preaching, since it was impossible under the circumstances to expect any blessing on their work. The leper converts also failed to agree, with the result that several families left the place, and the already small congregation was further reduced in size. Mr. Storrs had daily classes for the agents during the early part of the hot weather, and in February and March, 1899, visited from fifty to sixty of the villages in the district. The magic-lantern proved remarkably attractive, and in some villages the men almost fought for places at the "show," as it was generally called. Soon after their return to the station at the end of the year, the Rev. and Mrs. E. Guilford went on an itinerating tour.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has four European ladies, four assistant missionaries, five Bible-women, and six native teachers working at Tarn Taran.

MULTAN.

Multan.

The Rev. E. Johnson-Smyth, who prosecuted his language studies with some difficulty owing to the constant change of teachers, was struck with the earnestness of the native agents at MULTAN and with their grasp of the truths of the Gospel. The character of the teachers always tells upon those amongst whom they labour, and therefore it is not surprising under the circumstances to read that some of the Congregation appeared to be really growing in grace, and that the attendance at the services steadily improved. No details are given as to the progress of the High School, although it is stated by the Rev. W. F. Cobb that the boys again won the cricket belt after an interval of eleven years, a creditable performance, seeing that in the Government school there are 800 boys from whom to select a team, while the C.M.S. school has only 150 scholars. Mr. Johnson-Smyth started an English class with a view to getting into closer touch with the senior lads, but the venture was hardly a success. The Bazaar-preaching was maintained on four days in the week, and the audiences were both larger and more attentive than in former years. Several inquirers came forward, three or four of whom stayed in the "house for strangers" during the month of October. Mr. Cobb says of them:—

Inquirers.

> These young men, especially when they came to church, were regarded by the curious as a tamasha, by the evil-disposed as a "mark for missiles," and by their relatives as "stolen property to be recovered by force or fraud." We could not help saying to one another that even if they did not become Christians they advertised our work well, and their treatment by us compared with that by their co-religionists would at all events make them think. For different reasons they have now left us or been taken from us, but we feel fairly certain that in two cases (both of young men of good family) what they have learnt has made a lasting impression on them, and that eventually they will become Christians. One of them wrote to us saying, "My family have taken me away, but my heart remains still the same, they cannot alter that."

By virtue of the adoption of the agencies of the late Female Education Society, both medical and zenana work are now included in the operations of the Society at Multan. Through a variety of causes special difficulty has attended the work of the Dispensary in the past, and the opposition of the Mohammedan Moulvies, who preached against the hospital both in the mosques and in the bazaar, while affording a testimonial to the value of the work from the Christian point of view, at the same time served to lessen the number of patients. The fears of the Mohammedans were accentuated by the fact that some women of their persuasion were heard to sing hymns in their own houses. Nearly ten thousand visits of out-patients were recorded in 1898, and the number was even higher during the year under review. Dispensary.

A new out-station was opened at Mozaffargarh, twenty miles from Multan, which was occupied for six or seven years from 1886, but afterwards abandoned. Mr. Cobb, with the native pastor, the Rev. Talib Masih, spent nine weeks in camp at the beginning of 1899, first visiting the Mozaffargarh district and afterwards going to the south of Multan, where the Gospel had not been preached for twelve or fifteen years. At one of the villages such a large crowd assembled for the magic-lantern exhibition that it was difficult to find a place where all could see, and eventually recourse was had to a large, dry tank, where the Natives sat in tiers all round. At another place some old pupils of the Society's school were met with who held Government posts; they took part with the missionaries when members of the Arya Somaj, which was very active in the neighbourhood, commenced to argue.

DERA GHAZI KHAN.

The European missionaries of the Society at DERA GHAZI KHAN were Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Adams, Dr. H. A. Smit, and, for a few months, Dr. and Mrs. A. Jukes (now at home). The anticipated destruction of the town by the River Indus, which was mentioned in last year's Report (p. 229), happily did not take place, but the work was affected in some degree by the uncertainty as to the action of the river, since it prevented steps being taken to build the new church which is urgently required. The Congregation was cared for by the aged native deacon, the Rev. M. H. Izhaq, who also carried on evangelistic work in the city and district, while the two medical men took part in the bazaar preaching from time to time, and were joined by a number of Christians to whom their presence gave the requisite courage. A certain amount of opposition was experienced. On one occasion a Mullah wished to harangue the people in the hospital, but the missionaries naturally objected to that, and on the mullah stating that he Dera Ghazi Khan.

had studied medicine at Lahore, advised him to commence a Mohammedan medical mission by way of showing what a good thing his religion was. Mr. Izhaq spent some weeks in itinerating from place to place, and visited several villages for the first time. Of one place, Daira Din Panah, he gives the following account, which illustrates the ridiculous tales believed by some of the Natives :—

Native account of origin of an Indian village.

The people state that Saiyad Shah Din Panah had performed pilgrimages seven times, and he could do miracles. He used to boat in the Indus, and if ever he came across sandy rocks, the boat floated on them just as it did on water. On both sides of the Indus his followers are in great numbers. He died about 300 years ago, and was buried on this side of the Indus. The people living across the river devised a plan to remove his skeleton from the grave, and bury it on the spot close to them. They saw the fakir in vision, who forbade them removing his remains, but ordered them to prepare a box, and he himself would get into it. They prepared the box, and after a short time, on opening it, they were astonished to see the remains of the fakir in the box. They buried him across the Indus, and built a tomb there. Now both his tombs still exist, one on each side of the Indus. Every year in the month of April a weekly urs (fair) takes place. About 5,000 people assemble there. His followers extend to remote places. The priests receive the offerings, and by means of them supply food to everybody who goes there. The name of the place derived its origin from the name of the fakir.

A Mohammedan fakir supports a Gospel preacher.

A Mohammedan fakir accosted Mr. Izhaq at this place, saying that he had heard him preach at Dera Ghazi Khan some time previously, and had since been inquiring into Christianity. He remained with the pastor during his stay of three days, accompanying him wherever he went, and assisting him by supporting what he said. The lumbardar of another village also appeared to be a real seeker after truth. The interest of the Medical Mission lay rather at the out-stations than at Dera Ghazi Khan, where the number of out-patients diminished to some extent, owing to the abnormal healthiness of the year. Sakhi Sarwar was visited by large numbers of people, attracted to the shrine of the dead chief and saint in the belief that they would there obtain relief from various bodily ills. The descendants of the saint carefully fostered this belief, since the incursion of pilgrims brought them considerable gain, but Dr. Jukes says that they did not themselves altogether place faith in their ancestor, since many of them came to the Mission hospital for treatment. The Government made a grant of Rs. 1,500 towards the erection of a new hospital, saying that they recognized the good work being done by the C.M.S. in affording medical relief to persons on the frontier. Dr. Adams speaks highly of the medical assistant at Sakhi Sarwar, as well as of the house surgeon at the head station. He writes of the former :—

The Government recognizes the value of a Mission hospital.

A Beluch chief impressed by consistent life of an agent.

That he is appreciated, and that not only medically, is evidenced by the fact of a leading Beluch chief secretly writing to say he had watched his consistent life, and wanted to know more of the Christian religion. He dare not come openly nor could he well read Christian books, so it was difficult to help him much.

In the hot months the dispensary was transferred to Fort Monro, where half Beluchistan is said to be represented before the Deputy-Commissioner in September. From seventy to eighty persons were prescribed for every day, and some inquirers were met with amongst the clerks interested in Christianity, who came to the daily prayers and exposition of Scripture in the hospital verandah. Dr. Adams writes:—

An old Mission schoolboy reads his Bible regularly

One clerk went so far as to say that when he got leave he would come to us in Ghazi for baptism. He knows the Gospel well. He was a Batala Mission schoolboy, and now regularly reads his Bible in Loralai, Beluchistan, where, so far as I know, no missionary has ever been. Another, a chief clerk and Sikh gentleman, came to us most regularly, and could often be seen at his tent door reading his Testament. He was most interested, but said he was not yet convinced that our religion was better than his own. He loved to join us in singing hymns and bhajans, and as a parting gift begged for a hymn-book, which we gladly gave.

Two adults were baptized by the Rev. W. F. Cobb, who came over from Multan for the purpose, viz., Munshi Umar Din and his wife. They had for long been convinced of the truth, but had lacked the necessary courage to confess Christ in baptism. In the midst of all the encouragement which was vouchsafed to them, the missionaries felt acutely the need of reinforcements. Dr. Adams pleads for a resident clergyman, and Dr. Smit strongly urges the importance of educational work, which was pressed upon him by several conversations he had with young men brought up in Mission-schools, who astonished him by the difference between their point of view and that of the ordinary babu.

DERA ISMAIL KHAN, BANNU, AND TANK.

Dera Ismail Khan.

The Rev. and Mrs. F. Papprill welcomed the appointment of the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Storrs and Dr. W. B. Heywood as their colleagues at DERA ISMAIL KHAN. The last-named was transferred from Bannu in order to commence medical work among the men, that among women being already carried on by the missionaries of the C.E.Z.M.S.; but the difficulty in obtaining suitable premises prevented him from opening a dispensary before the close of the year. The obstacle, however, appeared likely soon to be removed, for the Municipality were so anxious to have the women's hospital in the city itself that they gave a splendid site for the purpose, thus setting the building formerly occupied by the C.E.Z.M.S. at liberty for a dispensary for men. There were many trials and disappointments in connexion with the work, but on the other hand there was much to encourage. A suitable Christian headmaster was found for the important High School, and another Christian master for the Secondary department, and under their care not only was the religious teaching efficiently given, but the secular instruction also was of a high order. This was shown by the remarkable success met with in the Government examinations. Twenty-five of twenty-nine boys who went in for the Middle Examination passed, and seventeen out of nineteen who sat for the Entrance Examination; while in addition six Scholarships were carried off by the lads. The physical development of the boys was duly cared for, and their moral tone is said to have improved. The boarding-house connected with the school had forty-two inmates, who were looked after by a Christian superintendent, an arrangement which it was anticipated might lead to some difficulty, because all the boarders were non-Christians, but happily the quiet, consistent Christian life of the master won the respect and confidence of the lads. The stress of famine began to be felt in the district by the month of October, and from that time onwards Mr. Papprill fed some two hundred to three hundred persons, his example being followed by some of the richer people in the city.

Success of High School.

Famine relief.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Dera Ismail Khan consisted of two European ladies, three assistant missionaries, and one Bible-woman.

"We are still sowers rather than reapers." Such is the report given by Dr. T. L. Pennell of the nature of the work at BANNU, where for a while he had Drs. Heywood and Smit as his colleagues. Great progress was made at the High School, which contained 340 boys, thirty of whom were in the High department, and the fees amounted to Rs. 105 per mensem, exactly three times as much as in the year 1895. Some buildings in the compound were adapted to serve as a temporary boarding-house for those lads who came from distant villages, and twenty-three of them were by its means preserved from the evil influences of the city. The boys were taught the necessity of developing their bodily as well as their mental powers, and the admonitions did not fall unheeded, for the lads won the inter-school cricket tie of the district. The printing and book-binding establishments were carried on as usual, and the Hospital continued its beneficent work. The number of in-patients, 550, was greater than in any preceding year, and more than 36,000 visits were recorded in connexion with the out-patient department. Many patients were seen at the out-station of Esa Kheyl, which was under the charge of a native assistant. Several persons who either in school or hospital had been brought under the influence of the workers expressed themselves as Christians at heart, but for various reasons did not openly confess Christ as their Saviour. Three adults were baptized during the year; one of them was an Afghan religious student, and the other two were boys reading in the school.

PESHAWAR.

Peshawar. The European staff of the Society at PESHAWAR consisted of the Rev. A. E. Day, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hoare, and Dr. C. Lankester; and it was reinforced by the marriage of the last-named, and the return of Dr. A. C. Lankester, accompanied by his bride, at the end of the year. In addition, the Hon. Montagu Waldegrave, a younger son of Lord Radstock, proceeded to Peshawar to work in connexion with the Medical Mission, though not enrolled as a C.M.S. missionary. There was a decided advance in the number both of attendances and operations at the Hospital. The workers were greatly encouraged by the provision of a Röntgen-ray apparatus, obtained mainly by means of a generous donation given for that purpose by Dr. Welldon, the Metropolitan of India, after visiting the station in November. One lad is spoken of who came from a village near Cabul with a miserable sore on his knee-joint, which had denuded the front of his leg of flesh, and rendered the limb useless; happily the treatment was successful; the wound healed, the limb was straightened, and the boy's affection won. In the country districts strange ideas are entertained by the people.

Gift of a Röntgen-ray apparatus.

Lundi Kotal Dispensary. The dispensary at Lundi Kotal was visited by the late Sir William Lockhart, through whose influence permission to open it was obtained, and also by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. Dr. C. Lankester went up there from Peshawar several times, staying for three or four days on each occasion, but the work was mainly carried on by a Native Christian assistant, to whose faithfulness striking testimony was borne by the non-Christian servant of the missionaries, who declared, "He is working as a man works who is building his own house." More than five thousand different cases were treated at Lundi Kotal in the course of the year. A Native Christian assistant and a catechist are in charge of the branch hospital at Nowshera, one of the European doctors paying a visit to the town every week.

"Working like one who is building his own house."

The C.E.Z.M.S. has two European lady doctors, three other European ladies, seven assistant missionaries, two Bible-women, and three native teachers at Peshawar.

ABBOTABAD.

Occupation of Abbotabad. The Rev. and Mrs. T. Bomford took up their residence at ABBOTABAD, which is situated in the Hazara, about one hundred miles north-east of Peshawar, at the end of March, 1899, but Dr.

A. Jukes, who was appointed to reside at the station, and engage in literary work, was taken ill while paying a visit to Srinagar, and eventually was invalided home. Some unexpected difficulties were met with. An incident which occurred some years previously caused the people to look upon all missionaries as kidnappers; and the want of a suitable Mission-house, and of a place in which to carry on evangelistic work, constituted a serious hindrance. The congregation was very small, varying in the summer from three to sixteen, but the converts appeared to be leading consistent lives, although many of them had but a slight acquaintance with the Scriptures. Mr. Bomford, who endeavoured to remedy this by holding a Bible-class for Christian men, writes:—

> If the Christians have looked at a book once they think they know it, and, leaving the Bible, they plunge into our theology to the confusion often both of their own understandings and of those that hear them. One of the most prominent of our Indian Christians the other day said to me, "It appears to me that all your preachers go about things in the wrong way. They all preach far too much about the Trinity and the Atonement, subjects which do not appeal to the people of this country. Why do they not preach more about Christ and His teaching? The people of this land naturally turn to teachers such as Christ. If you once get them interested in Him, then they will in time themselves ask what relation such a teacher holds to God, and how it is possible for us, who fall so far short of His standard, to be "at one" with God.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Abbotabad consisted of three European ladies and one Bible-woman.

KANGRA, KOTGUR, AND SIMLA.

Kangra.

Cloud and sunshine alternated during the year in the work at KANGRA and in the district around, of which the Rev. J. Tunbridge (now at home) was in charge; but on the whole the sunshine seems to have predominated. Mr. E. Rhodes reports that the Upper Primary and Middle Classes of the School were larger than ever before, and that an increased Government grant was earned, and he records the words used by the Inspector, an old man, whose visit was the last before his retirement: "I am an old Mission-schoolboy. I owe my success in life not so much to the education gained as to the moral training I received by daily coming in contact with missionaries. All the highest and most trusted native officials I know were educated by missionaries, and we are most grateful to English and American gentlemen who are spending their lives to improve us." Fifty heathen lads from the surrounding villages lived in the Mission-compound, and the Home for Christian Boys had sixteen inmates, to whom some industrial training was given. Some encouragements are spoken of by the Rev. B. L. Datt, the native pastor. A Hindu of high caste, who was a staunch follower of the false gods, and had spent all his fortune in their service, was so convinced of the truth of Christianity, that he abandoned them; and a coolie who observed the contempt with which the pastor treated some idols in the compound of a Hindu family, after the death of two of his brothers burnt on their funeral pile the gods with whom he had in vain interceded for their recovery. There was a marked decrease in the population of the town of Kangra, and also in the number of pilgrims visiting it, and a heathen priest told Mr. Rhodes that the temple did not pay its own expenses, and that the priests were starving, alleging as the reason the spread of education, of the Arya Somaj, and of Christianity. One distinguished man, however, came to the temple as a pilgrim, viz. the Rajah of Nabah, who arrived with a retinue of cavalry and infantry, and with six elephants, to offer sacrifice. Mr. Rhodes says of his visit :—

A coolie burns his idols.

> On the day appointed I went to the temple to witness the ceremony. The idols were fed; before one was placed five or six cwts. of currie and rice; then were brought a young buffalo, a goat, a ram, a fowl, and a vegetable marrow. While these were being bound and prepared, the Rajah invited me to come forward for a chat. We conversed for nearly an hour, and I gained an opportunity of telling him about Christ, the Lamb of God, the appointed sacrifice to take away the sins of the world. He afterwards asked me to call at his camp in the evening, when he and his Ministers accepted copies of the New Testament in Punjabi, and as we were leaving, the Prime Minister handed me Rs. 125 to aid our work.

A Rajah hears of Christ.

The distribution of Christian literature was prosecuted with energy, a copy of the four Gospels being given to each of the boys who came to Kangra from the district for the competitive examination. Several incidents demonstrated the value of this form of work. A chemist wrote from a distant place asking for more books, and saying that he had been much interested in some which he had received; a police sergeant to whom tracts had previously been given came to ask for a New Testament; and a policeman living in Amritsâr, who was the recipient of a Bible in 1896, requested that arrangements might be made for him to learn about Christianity. The one adult baptism, too, which took place at Kangra, was that of an old man, a shoemaker, to whom ten years before some unknown friend had presented a copy of St. Mark's Gospel.

Effects of circulation of Christian literature.

The Congregation at DHARMSALA, where Mr. and Mrs. Tunbridge and Mrs. Däuble resided, was not in a satisfactory condition at the beginning of the year under review, for secret drinking was common, and some of the Mission agents were implicated. A determined stand was therefore made against the use of intoxicants; one of the native workers was convicted and degraded, and another summarily dismissed. A sermon preached one day by Mr. Tunbridge was used to lead to much searching of heart, and on the following Sunday the chief offender came out, renounced his drink and evil ways, at once won over his brother, and afterwards was earnest in Christ's cause, his example being as potent for good as it was formerly for evil. The brother started a temperance band on native lines, which gained a useful influence. The consequence was that the attendance at the services and classes, and the contributions for religious work all improved, and an old couple who had long been separated were reconciled. But though much was thus done, there remained great need for the work of grace to transform the natures as well as the habits of the people. A complete change was made in the staff of the School, an experienced Christian headmaster being appointed; but the opening of two private schools, combined with the imperfections of the buildings in use, prevented any great numerical advance. Mrs. Däuble, who was dangerously ill in August and September, opened a girls' school among the Ghurkhas, which had an average attendance of just over twenty. She also took an important part in the Itinerating Work, visiting the women in several new places as well as in the villages which were familiar to her. A friendly reception was almost invariably accorded her, and she came across a number of people who were more or less in earnest—an old Mohammedan woman, who said she believed in Christ as her Saviour, though she did not see her way to be baptized; a doctor's young wife, who wished to hear more about Christianity, and to learn to read; a young woman who was a Christian at heart, but was prevented by her marriage as a child from confessing the Saviour; and a husband whose wife was not quite ready to become a Christian with him. Mr. Tunbridge spent altogether more than six months under canvas, but even then was unable to reach more than half his district. In Kulu he went up the Parbatti Valley, and had a remarkable reception. He writes:—

Friendliness of village population.

> The Gospel, written and preached, medicines and the magic-lantern, drew wondering crowds. Many, and sometimes touching, were the expressions of gratitude. The Brahmans especially were most friendly, and many a copy of the Word of Life was left to scatter the darkness of that beautiful land. Almost everywhere they begged us to renew our visit later on. They vied with each other to get us to camp in their villages. Once we were waylaid during our return journey and dragged up a steep hillside, where the Brahmans cut down some unripe wheat to pitch our tent in their fields. At night it was a picturesque sight to watch the pine-wood torchlights of the people coming to and from our magic-lantern exhibitions on dark nights. What this means only those who know the dangerously precipitate nature of these hillsides and the many prowling beasts about can estimate. One night, before the crowds had fairly dispersed, a leopard came rolling down the bank into our camp with a dog he had just seized. At Pulga, near the snows, the people had heard of us beforehand, and would not rest until I sent back to Manikaru for medicine chest and magic-lantern.

Brahmans very cordial.

Mr. Tunbridge's cold season tour was also encouraging. At Krota, where he stayed for a week, he and Mrs. Tunbridge scarcely had leisure so much as to eat. From dawn to dusk they were besieged with patients, some of whom came thirty-five miles in order to get treatment for their friends, and one Brahman family were so grateful that they almost kept the missionaries in food during their sojourn amongst them. Three adults were baptized during the year—a leper in the asylum, and a man of the Yogi caste and his wife, who had long been inquirers. A few persons were admitted to the catechumenate, and many inquirers came forward, the majority being of high caste. Mr. Tunbridge writes of the inquirers:—

Besieged with patients.

Rajput inquirers.

> One is an old Kangra school-boy, now a Government servant. Several hopeful cases are connected with our work in the tea plantations, besides many low-caste men near Sidhpur. The most notable, however, are some thirty Rajputs of the highest caste. A copy of the Hindi New Testament seems to have commenced the work; dreams and remarkable answers to prayer have strengthened it. The leader has royal blood in his veins. He gathers his people on Sundays for Christian worship, and, like Daniel, prays to God (through Christ) three times a day. He has ceased to wear the caste marks on his forehead and to feed the Brahmans—all this alone in a bigoted Hindu city in a Native State. He now seeks a way of deliverance from the fear and wrath of man, that he may confess Christ in baptism. Another Rajput in the same State is earnestly seeking the truth and teaching his two boys. A Brahman of the capital also is seeking and teaching.

Mr. Tunbridge concludes his Annual Letter with an appeal for honorary workers, "some of those not over-robust ones so often refused by the medical board," for he states that there are many healthy localities in the Kangra district where such might work in comfort, provided they possessed good heart and lungs to stand the elevation and mountain climbing.

Kotgur.

The work at KOTGUR was continued on the old lines by the Rev. H. F. Beutel, who wrote his Annual Letter on the thirtieth anniversary of his landing in India after a three-months' voyage round the Cape. The Week of Prayer was duly observed in January, 1899, and monthly meetings were held for the native agents, two of whom had to be suspended for constant quarrelling. Besides going to a number of villages in the neighbourhood of Kotgur, Mr. Beutel paid a visit to Ani in Kulu, where is a little congregation numbering fifty souls who for eighteen months had had no one to look after them. He also went to the Rampur mela, at which the attention to the preaching of the Gospel was more marked there than ever before. Amongst the congregation one evening was the Rajah of Bisahir, who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 237). The Rev. Jaswant Singh, who was ordained deacon in December, again paid a visit to the Rajah, who received him with much kindness, expressed his wish that a Mission-school could be established in his country, and when the leader of a party of the Arya Somaj became angry in the course of controversy, dismissed him, and had a quiet conversation with Mr. Jaswant Singh on the subject of Christianity. Some of the Heathen themselves bore witness to the efficacy of missionary work, for in one place a man addressed the crowd assembled at the preaching in the bazaar and urged them not to listen to the padris, for their doctrine could "break hard stones"; and in another a silversmith asked what it was that the padris blew into the people to cause them to follow after them, and added, "They blew something into my brother and he followed them."

Gospel preaching credited with "breaking hard stones."

In accordance with the resolution of the Committee to occupy SIMLA during the whole year, and not only during the hot season, the Rev. P. Ireland Jones took up his abode there in May, 1899. His former work lay for some years in Calcutta, and he describes Simla as a miniature Calcutta on the hills, with 37,000 people scattered about the beautiful hillsides. The work is both pastoral and evangelistic, the latter being carried on by means of preaching and visiting in the bazaar, and by discussion meetings for educated non-Christians. A number of these gatherings were arranged in private houses for those who spoke English, the subjects considered being "The Knowledge of God," "Self-sacrifice," "Reconciliation with God," and "A Righteous Life: Obstacles and Helps." Of the meeting at which the second subject was dealt with Mr. Ireland Jones writes:—

Simla.

Discussions with educated non-Christians.

> The discussion was opened by Mr. K. R., a Punjabi and a worthy local Brahmo leader. His subject was "Self-sacrifice," and he had not been on his feet for five minutes before he was in the midst of an earnest exposition of the sacrifice of Christ as the supreme example of all self-sacrifice, misunderstood and mistaught by Christians as vicarious and propitiatory, but in its true meaning affording to India the highest type of a Life given up for others, as the Bearer of human sorrow, and the tender, sympathizing Friend of all in need. To Christian hearers this eager testimony to the transcendent virtue of our Blessed Lord, though familiar, was of deep interest. But in the speaker's address, and in the words of subsequent non-Christian speakers, the "aching void" was only too painfully manifest, which exhausts human language to exalt the Lord's beneficent goodness and is blind to His claim as the Divine personal manifestation of God. But to Christian hearers, and we trust to every non-Christian also, the interest of the occasion lay specially in the opportunity given to Mr. Fraser, the secretary of the Indian Christian Association, to reply to the speaker. With sympathy and the justly-tender regard for life-long convictions which every speaker to non-Christians should manifest in word and tone, Mr. Fraser briefly and comprehensively stated some aspects of the Christian doctrine of the self-sacrifice of Christ, so far as the opener had dealt with the subject. . . . A very interesting discussion followed, and a meeting of one hour stretched out to two hours almost before we were aware.

The concluding meeting of the series was held in the Town Hall in October, when about 450 persons assembled, including some 200 non-Christians, to listen to an address by the Bishop of Calcutta on "Jesus Christ as the Master of Souls."

II. KASHMIR

The Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Barton were instructed, on their return to the Mission in the autumn, to join the staff in Kashmir. They sailed in November, 1899, and Miss C. A. Newnham and Dr. Minnie Gomery in March, 1900. The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Knowles came home in April, 1900.

The chief religions of Kashmir are Mohammedanism, Hinduism, and Buddhism. Roughly speaking, the Mohammedans claim seventy-five per cent. of the population, the Hindus twenty per cent., and the Buddhists, who live almost entirely in Kashmiri-Tibet, five per cent. The Mohammedans belong both to the Shiah and Sunni sects, but there are very few of the former. As they are so mixed up with the Hindus, and occasionally intermarry, they have adopted some Hindu ideas—such, for example, as not eating with Christians. They pray to saints a great deal, putting flags and burning lights at saints' graves, very much as the Hindus do at their holy places. Nearly all the converts of the Mission have been from among the Mohammedans. The work of the Society amongst these people in Srinagar was carried on by the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Knowles (now at home), the Rev. and Mrs. C. E. Tyndale-Biscoe, Drs. A. and E. F. Neve, and Miss M. N. Neve. The number of boys in the important High School under Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe suffered some diminution from the raising of the fees and the greater freeness in administering fines, and the insisting on a higher standard of cleanliness among the lads than that attained by the average Kashmiri did not increase its popularity. Success, however, attended the efforts in this latter direction to a degree which could not have been anticipated, the plan of fining not only dirty boys, but also the form masters, who were held responsible, proving most efficacious. About 150 lads left because of the rule which made daily swimming parades compulsory, but there was compensation in the fact that more than three hundred lads learnt to swim. Mr. Tyndale-Biscoe writes in a passage which indicates the reason for this and similar rules:—

Srinagar.

High School.

Swimming parades.

> Twenty boys started one day to swim through the city, two and a half miles, six accomplishing the distance. Three swam the lake, a distance of three miles, one swam four and a half miles down the River Jhelum. So we have started records this year for the boys to live up to, which I trust will be beaten next year. We have only lost one boy by drowning, and that happened at his home; he had just pluckily saved a drowning boy, and a few minutes afterwards was drowned himself. That Kashmiris are not noted for their bravery is a well-known fact. From the behaviour that I have seen this year on the part of many of our boys in helping fatigued swimmers to keep afloat and rescuing sinking comrades, another spirit is gradually being born in this despised people.

The new-found aquatic skill of the lads was utilized to give a novel form to the prize distribution, which took place on, in, and under the water, in the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjab. Lady Mackworth Young distributed the prizes on the water, the others being handed over by a master, who dived under the water to meet the prize winners, who, in their turn, dived from a boat among the weeds!

It was specially necessary to lay stress upon such matters as bodily exercise among the Kashmiri boys, not only because by nature there is so little manliness among them, but also because they are always ready to profess great things with their lips, and consequently words mean little to them. Happily it is reported that the morale of the school grows fast in many ways, that "sneaking has almost disappeared, and that hypocrisy and lying are well on the wane."

Leper Asylum.

Visits were paid by the missionaries to the Leper Asylum, which is maintained by the State, and usually has more than sixty inmates. These appeared to be interested in the religious teaching which was given them, but none of them sought baptism, for they were afraid of the sacrifices demanded by Christianity. Steady growth continued to characterize the Medical Work, and necessitated a further addition to the hospital buildings, which, when complete, will, it is estimated, give accommodation for twenty extra beds. How urgently these are required is evident from the fact that at times several patients had to sleep on the ground. These in-patients listened quietly to the message, and the Rev. T. R. Wade, of Amritsar, a former colleague in Kashmir of Dr. Elmslie, the founder of the Mission, who visited Srinagar in the summer, mentions that he had several interesting conversations in the hospital with a Moulvie from Persia, who had met Dr. Bruce, and had read the New Testament. But while attention was paid to the message proclaimed by the doctors and others, and the daily Bible instruction was gladly received, Miss Neve says, by the women, yet comparatively few came out as converts, and much disappointment was caused by the recantation of a young man who joined the Christians in 1898.

Extensive itinerations.

More than 41,000 visits of out-patients were recorded, and in addition a large number of persons were seen by Dr. E. F. Neve in the course of his itineration to Skardo, Shigar, Khapallu, and the Indus Valley in Ladak, when he was accompanied by Mr. Gustafson and the Rev. H. Francke, of the Scandinavian Alliance Mission. In the spring he visited the Sindh Valley, and had a busy time, though the people were at first rather shy, in consequence of rumours that an Englishman was coming to brand all their children with red-hot copper! Mr. Knowles also itinerated with one of the two native doctors employed at the hospital, going to fifty or sixty villages which had not before been privileged to receive a visit from the missionaries.

Steps have been taken to obtain a site at ISLAMABAD for a new John Bishop Memorial Hospital, as a successor to the hospital for women in Srinagar; the latter was built by Mrs. Isabella Bishop, but destroyed by a flood some years since. Dr. Minnie Gomery, of the Canada C.M. Association, has been appointed by the Committee to this station. New station at Islamabad.

Many houses, especially of Mohammedans, were opened to the four European ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., with whom were associated two assistant missionaries and one native teacher, and both the schools and dispensary afforded much encouragement.

III. BELUCHISTAN.

THE only station of the Society in Beluchistan is at QUETTA, where Dr. and Mrs. J. O. Summerhayes carried on the work during the year. There being no clergyman in the place, Dr. Summerhayes was compelled to devote a good deal of time to the shepherding of the native converts, though the Rev. A. E. Redman paid periodical visits from Sukkur in order to administer the Sacraments. Most of the Christians are Punjabis, earning their living as servants, soldiers, bandsmen, shopkeepers, &c., and many of them were converts of other Missions. The average attendance at the services was eighty or ninety, and the usual number of communicants twenty-eight. A difficulty was experienced owing to the insufficient accommodation, for the church would only hold eighty-five persons, while the Christians numbered two hundred. There were two cases of backsliding—the one of a young woman, a merely nominal Christian, who became a Mohammedan; and the other of a woman, an inquirer, who for a time read the Kalima, but happily saw the error of her ways. On the other hand, testimony was borne by non-Christians to the honesty and veracity of the poorer converts, and Dr. Summerhayes tells of one, a Government servant, to whom a Sikh assistant in the Government hospital showed great kindness when the man was taken there ill. On the Sikh being thanked for what he had done, he replied: "Oh, I have known him a long time. I can thoroughly trust him; he has never deceived me. I am only too glad to do what I can for him. My children all love him." Amongst the seven adults baptized was an Afghan from Kandahar, an old soldier of the Ameer's bodyguard, who had been under instruction for four years, and proved himself a useful worker. Excluding children, there were twelve catechumens, for whom two night-schools were held by the catechist, since their work rendered it difficult for them to come for teaching during the day. The uneducated converts were taught to read, and a school for boys of the sweeper class was Quetta. An old soldier of bodyguard of Ameer of Afghanistan baptized.

conducted by Mrs. Summerhayes, with the aid of a Christian master. The Hospital attracted patients from all parts as soon as its reopening was known. Among those who came were people from Gazni, Kandahar, and Herat, and no less than five tongues were in common use in the out-patients' rooms, viz., Urdu, Pushtu, Persian, Punjabi, Beluchi; while Sindhi, Brahui, Jakti, Hindi, Hazari, &c., were occasionally heard. The number both of in-patients and of out-patients exceeded those of several previous years. Some thousands of tracts were given away at the book-shop, which is connected with the Lahore Bible and Religious Book Depôt, and the Christian in charge went out daily with a wheelbarrow, selling tracts and Bible portions.

Five languages in common use in the hospital.

Dr. H. T. Holland has been assigned to Quetta.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has three missionaries, one assistant missionary, and two native teachers at Quetta.

IV. SINDH.

THE Rev. and Mrs. R. Sinker sailed for the Mission in November, 1899. The Rev. A. E. Redman came home in May, 1900.

KARACHI.

Karachi.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. J. Abigail were alone at KARACHI from the departure of the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Ball in February, 1899, until the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. J. Redman, transferred from Hydrabad, at the close of the year. The changes in the staff which have characterized recent years, combined with the recurrence of the plague for the third year in succession, made everything rather unsettled, and prevented any great advance in the work. Some time was devoted to the care of the English congregation; and the Native Congregation under the Rev. B. N. Ghose, who retired in January, 1900, called for much attention. It is described as "by schisms rent asunder," for the Gujerati Christians, who formed a large proportion of the converts, felt themselves looked down upon, or at least not understood, by the pastor and the Hindustani-speaking members of the congregation. Charges and recriminations mutually preferred were the consequence, and though when Mr. Abigail wrote his Annual Letter in January, 1900, a better feeling apparently prevailed, yet he says that the root of bitterness still remained, and as descriptive of the state of affairs quotes the proverb, "In a cord that has been broken you may always feel the knot, conceal it as you will." Preaching and visiting were carried on by the catechists, in spite of the lack of encouragement, and there were some hopeful signs about the work among servants. A noteworthy event at the High School was the baptism of one of the lads, a young man, the first of his caste to declare himself a Christian. Mr. Abigail writes :—

A disunited congregation.

A high-caste schoolboy baptized.

There was of course strong feeling aroused. The young man was the first of his caste to declare himself; many others are more or less secret believers. Now, it is their great fear (and our great hope) that some of these may follow his example. To prevent this about thirty have been withdrawn from the school, and a rule has been made that any one found speaking with "the Christian" shall be fined. This, however, does not deter some from visiting their old friend. For a time he was permitted to remain with his family (a most unusual thing), but the caste objected, and for the sake of his unmarried sisters I thought it best to withdraw.

The work of the Book Depôt was continued, but there was some reason to doubt whether its usefulness was very great.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had four European ladies, seven assistant missionaries, two Bible-women, and twelve native teachers at Karachi.

HYDRABAD.

Hydrabad.

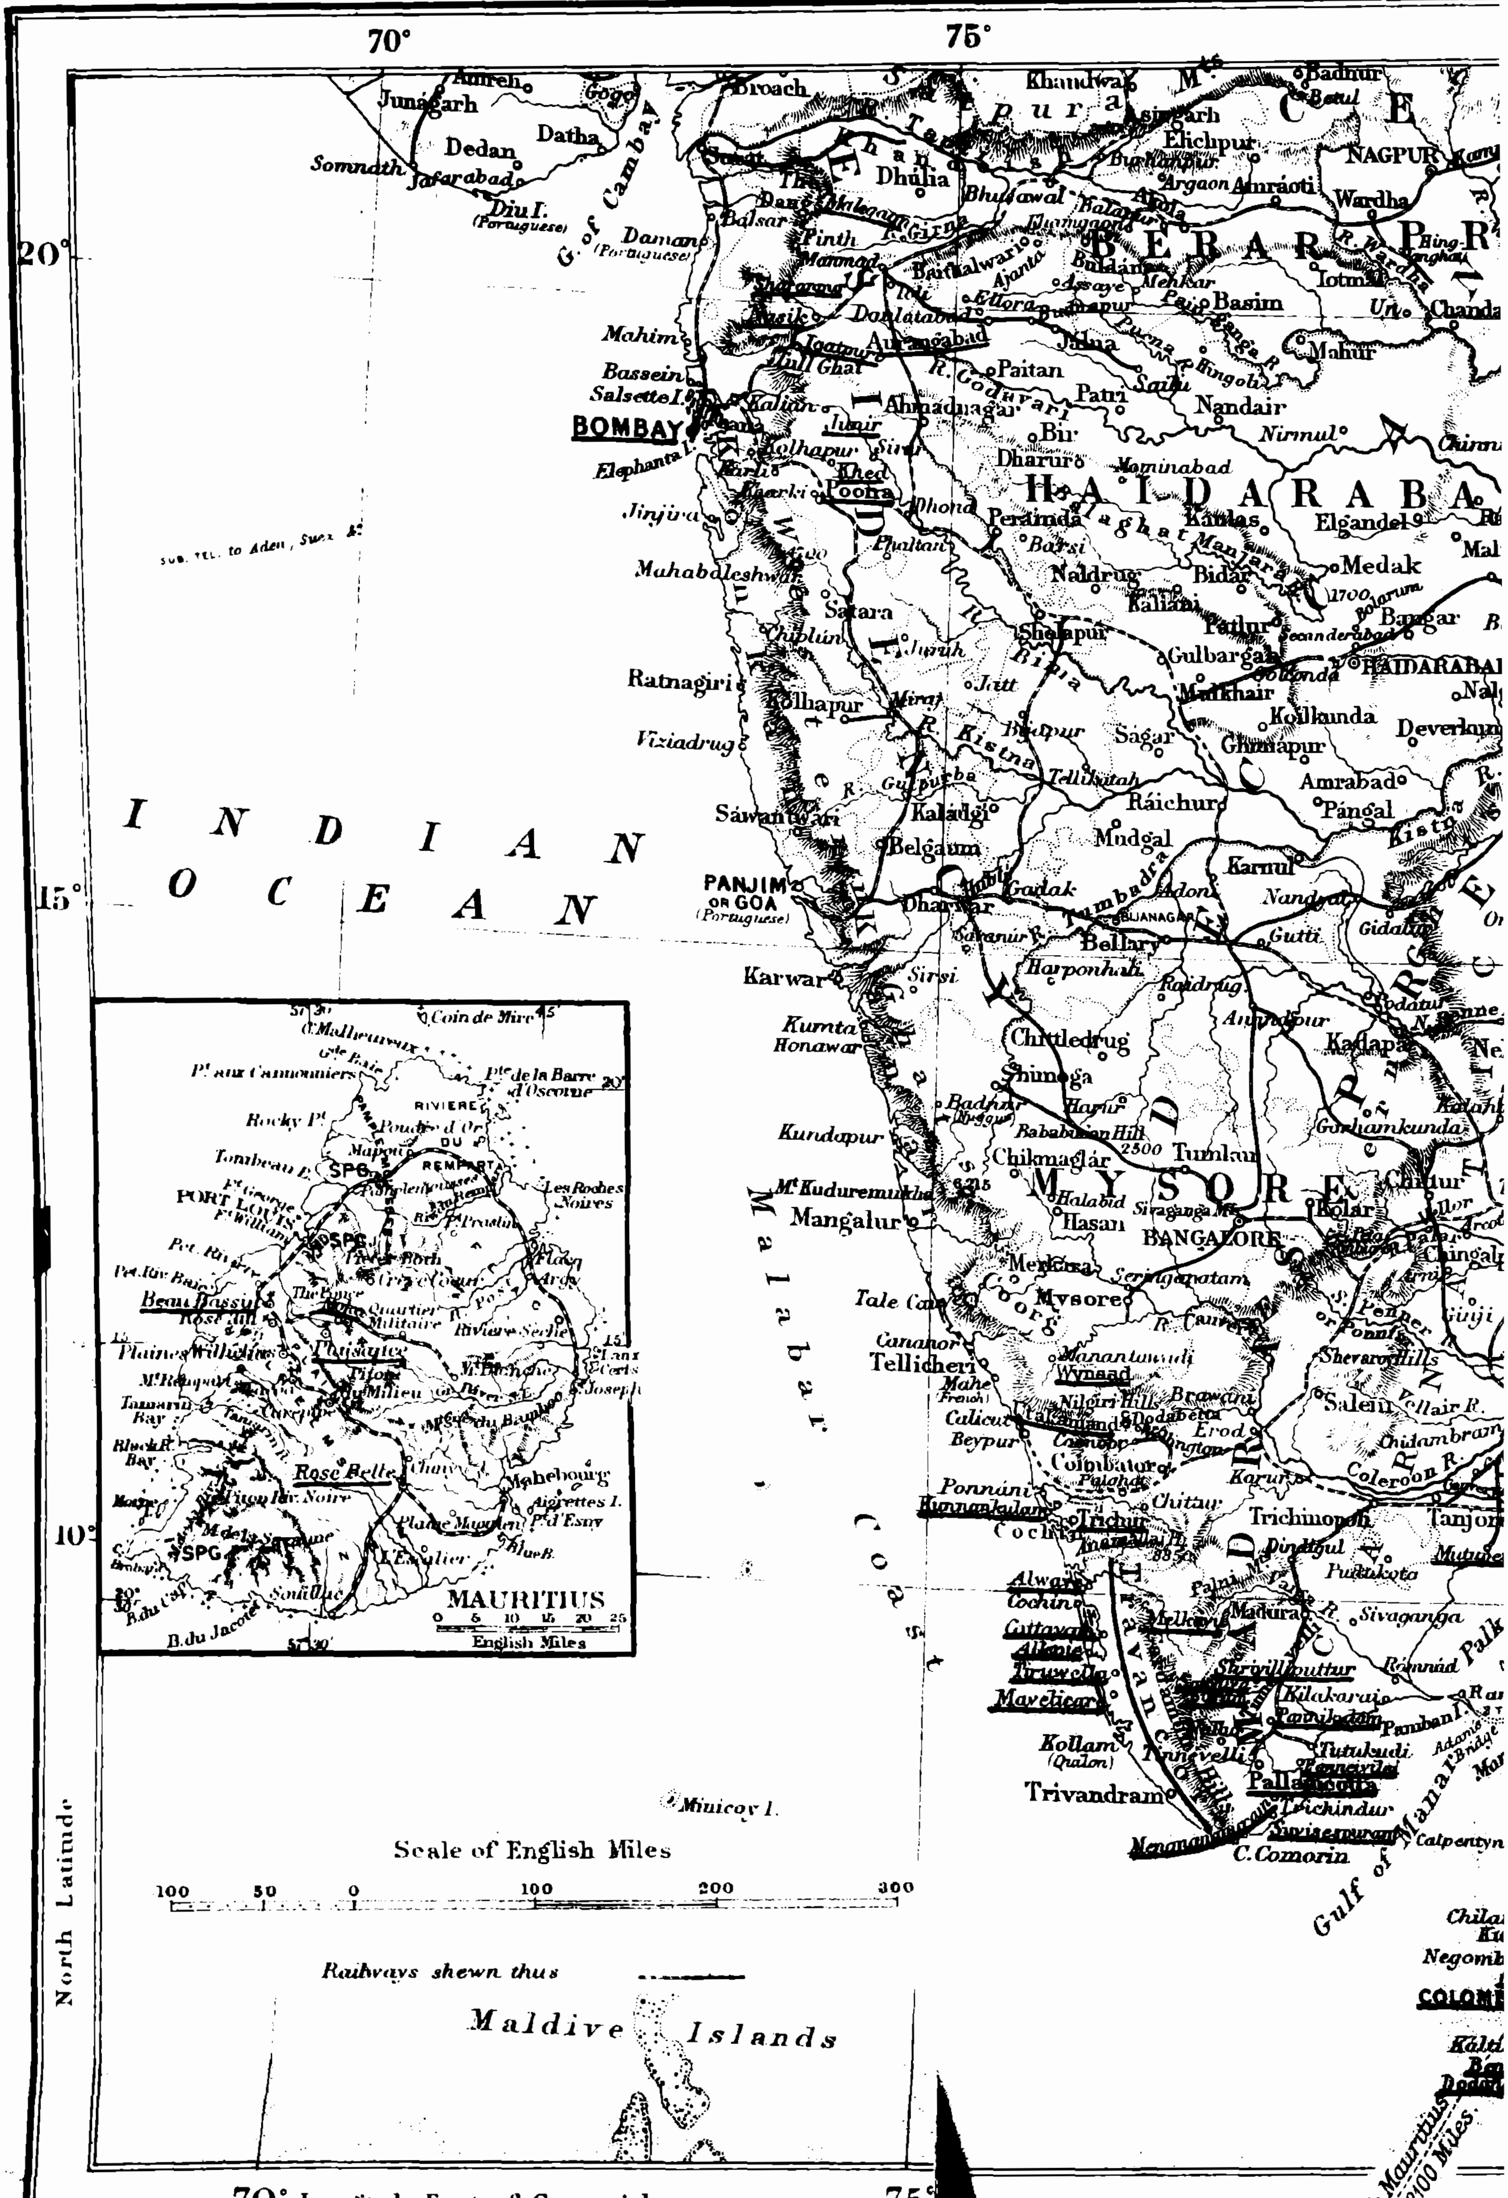
The work at HYDRABAD, with its population of 60,000 souls, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. Redman were stationed until December, when their place was taken by the Rev. and Mrs. R. Sinker, was greatly interfered with by the two outbreaks of plague which occurred, the one in the spring and the other in the autumn. The latter caused the Schools to be closed from September to December, much to the detriment of the scholars, of whom 80 attend the High School, and 180 the Vernacular School. An experiment was tried by opening a girls' school at Tando Mahomed Khan, in which from twenty to thirty pupils gathered, but the growing prejudice against Christian teaching, which was fostered by articles in the native newspapers, was detrimental to the success of the educational work. Special attention was devoted to the Gujerati-speaking depressed classes in the south of the district, many of whom were driven by famine into Sindh, whither they came in search of a livelihood. The members of one family were admitted as catechumens, of the head of which Mr. Redman writes :—

A Hindu religious teacher becomes a catechumen.

He is a Bhil Bhagat (religious teacher), a man held in much esteem by the people amongst whom he lives, in spite of his not being able to read! He appears to be recognized as an upright, good living man. For some time after he had heard of us he had been expressing a wish to hear our teaching, and when the opportunity for visiting him arrived, he appeared gladly to receive the Gospel message. He lives at an out-of-the-way place, and so is difficult to reach. However, I went there on one occasion, and was much pleased with his manifest sincerity. This man has many followers to the east of the district, and he has been out with the Christian teacher to carry to them the good news he himself has heard. We trust that many may be led by his means to faith in Christ. Seven of the Bhagat's chelas have expressed a wish for Christian instruction.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Hydrabad consisted of four European ladies, two assistant missionaries, and three native teachers.

SUKKUR.



Sukkur. During the week November 5th to 12th a special series of services was held in SUKKUR for the help of the local congregation and the agents of other Sindh stations. The Rev. T. Bomford commenced the work by preaching at the Holy Communion service on the morning of Sunday, the 5th, and the Rev. J. Redman preached on the evening of the same day. On Monday, agents from Karachi and Hydrabad arrived and were joined on Tuesday morning by others from Quetta. These were entertained by the Native Church Committee during their stay. Tuesday and the two following days were devoted to services, three assemblies being held each day. As already mentioned, the Rev. A. E. Redman came home in May, 1900.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had five European ladies, two assistant missionaries, and three native teachers labouring at Sukkur and Shikarpur, and in the surrounding district. One of the missionaries states that in Upper Sindh there are 4,800 towns and villages, in 4,600 of which the Gospel has never been proclaimed.

WESTERN INDIA MISSION.

For fifty years after Bombay became a British possession the English had neither church nor chaplain in the city, and it was not till a century later still that any effort was made for the evangelization of its inhabitants. The first Protestant missionaries, agents of the American Board of Foreign Missions, arrived in 1813. It was in 1820 that the C.M.S. work was inaugurated in Bombay by the Rev. Richard Kenney. The operations of the Society there have been very limited, but in 1832 the work was extended to Nasik; Junir was occupied in 1843; Malegâm, 1848; Aurungabad, 1860; and Poona, 1882. Special efforts are made to reach the Mohammedans and Parsis. The first Bishop of Bombay, Dr. Carr, was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been: Bishops Harding (1851), Douglas (1869), Mylne (1876), MacArthur (1898).

A FORMER labourer in this Mission, and two whose names appeared in the list of missionaries in last year's Report have been removed by death during the year under review. At the close of 1899 the Rev. J. G. Deimler was called to his eternal rest. Educated at the Basle Seminary and at the Church Missionary College, he went forth in 1854, assigned to the East Africa Mission. Afterwards transferred to Western India, he continued in a long and earnest missionary course with great devotion to his Master and with much blessing in his work. He was in charge of the Mohammedan Mission from 1887, and retired in 1896, after forty-two years' service.

Deaths of the Rev. J. G. Deimler,

The Rev. W. H. Dixon died at Bombay from fever on January 31st, 1900. A Scholar of Hertford College, Oxford (1st Class Mods.), he graduated (2nd Class Final Classical School) in 1886, and was ordained to the curacy of Crewkerne in the following year. In 1893 he was accepted by the Society and went out to Western India. The Bishop of Bombay, in a sermon preached in Bombay Cathedral, referred to him as follows:—

the Rev. W. H. Dixon,

> He was one who had given his life without reserve to the work of Christ in India. As a missionary he was earnest, self-denying, and efficient. His death is a serious loss and heavy blow to the Church Missionary Society under which he worked, and a loss which it is impossible to estimate to the community of Indian Christians, for whom he possessed a singular attraction and by whom he was greatly beloved. A life such as his is a valuable witness to the power of Christianity and to the work which Christianity may accomplish in this land.

His colleague, the Rev. C. W. Thorne, says, "He was a true-hearted missionary, loving and gentle in all his ways, and ever anxious to bring home to men the love and the claims of Christ."

Lieut.-Col. T. A. Freeman received his home-call in February, 1900. He was a graduate of Christ Church College, Oxford, and on his retirement from the Army he offered to go out as an honorary missionary to labour among the English-speaking Natives of India. He joined the Mission in 1894, and has laboured through the five intervening years with unflagging zeal and unswerving devotion. He had been unwell for some time, and went to Nasik and Lieut. Col. T. A. Freeman.

on January 17th. The change at first seemed to revive him, and he was able to get about for a few days, but a sharp return of his illness occurred, which in his weakened state he was not able to bear, and he succumbed at mid-day on February 20th. The Rev. W. A. Roberts (C.M.S. Secretary at Bombay) wrote on February 24th:—"His death is a great loss, and he will be much missed, not only by us but by many good agencies in Bombay in which he took an active interest. He seems to have almost neglected self for the good of others." The Rev. A. Manwaring, with whom Col. Freeman stayed at Nasik, says:—"During the past five weeks we had been permitted to minister to him in his weakness, and we had learned to honour and love him very deeply. His life in India has been a simple and wholly unselfish one. He was 'a good soldier of the Lord Jesus Christ.'"

"Neglected self for the good of others."

The Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji has retired from active work on account of failing health, after faithful missionary service extending over a period of forty-four years.

Reinforcement.

The only recruit assigned to the Mission was the Rev. James Punnett Butlin, B.A., Corpus Christi College and Ridley Hall, Cambridge, Curate of St. Mary's, Laister Dyke, Bradford, who sailed for Bombay in January, 1900. But the staff was increased by the marriage on January 16th, 1900, at Girgaum, of Mr. G. H. Hodgson to Miss Marian Barbara Watney, sister of Miss E. E. Watney of the Palestine Mission, and of the late Rev. C. E. Watney of the Niger Mission. Mrs. L. B. Butcher sailed for India in October, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. A. Manwaring in the following month. Mrs. E. J. Jones came home in October.

The Rev. W. A. Roberts is the Secretary of the Bombay Corresponding Committee, of which the following besides himself are members:—the Rt. Rev. Bishop of Bombay, Sir Andrew Wingate, K.C.I.E., Major T. Butcher, R.A., Major W. F. Cahusac, Mr. H. E. E. Proctor, Mr. P. B. Savile, Mr. Rivers G. Currie, and Rev. F. G. Macartney (Secretary).

Centenary celebrations in Bombay.

The observance of the Society's Centenary synchronized with the Thirty-Eighth Conference of the Western India missionaries, which was held in Bombay from April 13th to 15th, 1899, and was preceded by a "Quiet Day" on the 12th. The Holy Communion was administered at 8 a.m., and an address was given by the Rev. C. W. Thorne. At 11 a.m. the Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. C. Goldie, Incumbent of Holy Trinity Church, Bombay. A prayer-meeting was held at 4 p.m. In the evening a public meeting took place in the C.M.S. Hall, Girgaum, over which the Rev. W. A. Roberts presided. The Rev. R. S. Heywood reviewed the first fifty years of the Bombay Mission, from 1820 to 1869, distinguishing the decades respectively as one of Disastrous Unity (1820–9), when there was only one missionary and one station; as a Sowing Time (1830–9), where there was not one baptism, but continuous preaching of the Word of God; First-fruits (1840–9); First Ordinations (1850–9); and Steady Work (1860–9). The chairman continued the review, he having joined the Mission in 1869. The Rev. D. L. Joshi then read a thoughtful paper on the Native Church in Western India. The Rev. W. C. Whiteside was the last speaker. On the 16th the Rev. W. A. Roberts preached in the Cathedral to a large congregation, and sermons were also preached in a number of other churches; the offertories amounting to Rs. 1,740. On the 17th, the Native Christians connected with the C.M.S. congregations celebrated the Centenary by a mass meeting in the Mission Hall, Girgaum, which was adorned with flags. The Rev. D. L. Joshi presided. Mr. Ahmad A. Shah gave a brief sketch in Hindustani of the Society's early history, and other Indian and English speakers followed. A second Conference was held at Girgaum from September 20th to 22nd. An address was given by the Rev. W. C. Whiteside, and the Conference sermon was preached by the Rev. C. W. Thorne.

Progress of the work.

The progress made in the Mission is well illustrated by the following comparative table taken from the paper read by the Rev. D. L. Joshi at the former of these Conferences :—

	Baptized Converts	Communicants	Income Rs.
1880	1,038	479	222
1885	1,736	847	700
1890	2,195	989	1,127
1895	2,588	1,189	1,661

The Parsis take alarm on account of women's work.

From this it appears that in fifteen years the number of baptized Christians and of communicants increased two and a half times, and the income eight times. An indirect confirmation of these cheering figures is furnished by the agitation of some of the non-Christians, alarmed by the efforts which are put forth to win their co-religionists for Christ, and the subjoined translation of an article in the Jam-i-Jamshid of January 30th, 1899, on "Parsi Women and Christian Education" is of interest in this connexion :—

> Parsi brethren! what blindness is this? My Parsi readers will forgive me for asking the above question in such hard terms, but it cannot be denied that it really seems as if not physical but mental blindness had attacked some Parsi brethren. Just as women become hysterical when some dreadful thing happens, so Zoroastrians are carried beyond all bounds by their feelings; but when people begin to talk about stopping the dreadful thing, they do not know what to do.
> Just lately some lady graduates have come from England to give higher education to native women, and especially to Parsi girls. All honour to them that they have not concealed their purpose, but openly say that their aim is to spread the Christian religion and to teach it to Parsi girls. In spite of this frank avowal, some careful parents do not seem to realize what they are doing, and send their children to learn from the aforesaid English ladies. They seem to imagine that their children will only learn English, and will not pay any attention to the teaching of Christianity. It is our duty to sound the trumpet of warning, that by so doing the very foundations of the peace and happiness of many are being slowly undermined. If matters go on thus, some day the cry will be raised that such and such a girl is converted, and then see what confusion will arise among the Parsis! We are not opposed to education, but if you desire higher education for your sisters and daughters, then your purpose would be served by employing some of the numerous Parsi lady graduates for the work. Parsi women, beware! We consider it our duty to publish these words of warning, from the particulars we have heard of the doings of these English women.

BOMBAY.

Bombay.

The European missionaries in BOMBAY were the Rev. and Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. J. Jackson, the Rev. T. Davis, the late Colonel T. A. Freeman, the Rev. L. B. Butcher, who was joined by Mrs. Butcher in the autumn, and Mr. G. H. Hodgson. Sickness was very rife during the year under review, and at the commencement of 1900 it was said that eight diseases were widely prevalent, while on February 7th no fewer than 408 deaths took place. The ravages of the plague were great, in consequence of the large number of people who were driven into the city by the distress which existed in the country districts, but comparatively few of the Native Christians were attacked, a fact which is attributed to their better modes of living, their cleanly habits, their readiness to avail themselves of English treatment, and their absence of fear. Nearly 700 schools in the Presidency had to be closed on account of the scourge, and the numbers of boys and girls in the Society's schools showed great diminution. The attendance at the Robert Money School fluctuated between 90 and 170, but the Government report was satisfactory, and the results were as good as could be expected, considering the difficulties with which Mr. and Mrs. Jackson and their helpers had to cope. The boys showed greater earnestness than usual, and visitors were often impressed with the thoughtful answers which they gave to questions about such subjects as sin and redemption. Miss Harris, of the Z.B.M.Mission, superintended the C.M.S. Girls' Schools, three in number. The pupils at the Vernacular School consisted almost exclusively of Hindus, but their attendance was very irregular, because their parents removed them from the city during the various epidemics, and the girls, of course, could not travel backwards and forwards by train. The number of names on the roll in December was 180, the largest in the history of the school. The numbers at the Anglo-Vernacular School also grew during the year. The last of the three schools contained the boarders, nearly all of whom were baptized Christians, two orphans being the only exceptions. The Sunday afternoon Bible-class for the seniors amongst these is said to have been specially encouraging, for many of them demonstrated by their daily conduct that they were striving to be not only hearers, but doers of the Word. There were other classes besides those connected with the educational institutions, and the monthly meetings of the Scripture Union, which gained about one hundred new members, were well attended.

The Secretary of the Mission, Mr. Roberts, was in charge of the Girgaum Church with its English congregation, receiving assistance from Mr. Butcher. Several of the young men attending the church met together week by week for Bible study under Mr. Hodgson, taking it in turn to open the subjects chosen for consideration. A number of lectures to the English-speaking people of the city were delivered by the Rev. A. H. Bowman, of the Society's Home Deputation Staff, formerly Incumbent of the Girgaum Church, who was on a visit to India for the purpose of giving lectures to English-speaking Natives and other classes. From October 15th to 20th he took as his subjects, "Life's Problem in the Light of Christianity"; "The Incarnation, or God Manifest in the Flesh"; "The Sinless Sufferer"; "The Twice Born"; "The Resurrection of Jesus Christ, the Hope of the World"; "Christ, or Materialism, or Theosophy for India"; and during the following week spoke three times on Temperance and twice on Purity, these five lectures being specially intended for soldiers, and being delivered under the patronage of the officer commanding the district.

Lecture to English-speaking Natives.

The Marathi Congregation, composed of all sorts and conditions of men, ranging in the social scale from a High Court vakil and medical men to mechanics and domestic servants, was under the pastoral care of the Rev. D. L. Joshi. The people contributed liberally to the Pastor's Fund, besides making a contribution in aid of the Bhīl Mission. There were two adult baptisms, and some interesting inquirers. One of the latter was a young Brahman, the priest of a village, who steadfastly endured the persecution which fell to his lot; and other Brahmans were under instruction. Mr. Joshi was a member of the Prayer-book Revision Committee, and was also engaged in other literary work. The Marathi Evangelistic Work was supervised by Mr. Butcher, who felt the insufficiency of the provision made for reaching the vast population. Three native agents were engaged in this work, one of whom devoted nearly all his time to the Servants' Mission, visiting the bungalows where the masters were willing for him to do so, and in several of them having regular prayers with the servants on fixed days in each week. There were some hopeful cases among this part of the community, including Mr. Butcher's own head-servant, who, with his wife, seemed "almost persuaded." The other agents preached in the streets in various parts of the city, sometimes joining forces with the representatives of the Free Church of Scotland Mission and other Protestant denominations, and supplementing the open-air work by lantern services in one of the Mission-halls. A large number of tracts were distributed, and some hundreds of Gospels sold, but there were no actual baptisms to be recorded.

Mohammedan Mission.

The staff of the Mohammedan Mission, with Mr. Davis at its head, was strengthened by the addition of two paid Hindustani workers and several voluntary helpers, but even then it was hardly sufficient for the requirements of the Mission. Concentration rather than diffusion of the available forces was aimed at, the most densely populated part of the Mohammedan quarter being selected, and worked as thoroughly as possible. In January, 1899, a small hall was obtained in the locality, and opened for the sale of books, for reading, and for discussions, to which the people were invited by the workers when they were visiting or speaking at the open-air meetings. Mr. Davis says of the result:—

Religious discussions.

> It has been far beyond our expectations, for during the whole year twice every week the hall has been full to overflowing at the religious discussions, in addition to the numbers who have attended daily for reading and private inquiry. This we regard as the most hopeful evangelistic work we have yet done in Bombay. Many Mohammedans have attended nearly all the meetings, and have taken an interested part in the discussions. We were therefore able to have continuous discussions on one subject, sometimes as many as six meetings being devoted to the consideration of one selected subject. To bring such a discussion to a close, we have on several occasions resorted to our larger hall and given two or three lectures, and in them gathered up the lessons learnt in a conversational manner. Invariably our practice has been to study various phases of Christianity and objections arising therefrom, carefully avoiding as much as possible any controversy on the Mohammedan religion. Our work, then, has been constructive rather than destructive, and our use of Mohammedan tenets and writings has been illustrative rather than critical.

Mr. Davis' opinion as to the usefulness of the hall and the value of the discussions held in it received unwelcome confirmation while he was writing his Annual Letter by the handing in of a notice to quit the premises, which could only be due to strong pressure brought to bear upon the landlord. Another illustration of the fears with which the Mohammedans regarded the efforts of those who sought to win them for Christ was given by their employment of an expert controversialist to champion Islam in the discussions. Eight open-air gatherings were held every week, one of them, which took place in the suburbs, being a continuation of the lantern services referred to in last year's Report. Frequent visits were also paid to a locality much frequented by pilgrims, in order to engage in private conversation with them. Mr. Davis' responsibilities included the care of the Urdu Congregation with its 197 members, thirty-five of whom were confirmed early in 1899. They proved themselves alive to their responsibility to pass on to others the good news they themselves had received, and either as visitors, or as helpers in the distinctly evangelistic work, endeavour to spread the knowledge of the Saviour. Only one adult baptism took place in connexion with the Mohammedan Mission, but the workers were cheered by the steadfastness of one of the converts of 1898, a young man who, while in the hospital suffering from the plague, resisted all the endeavours of his relations, by means of persuasions and bribes, to induce him to recant. There is a small out-station at Sion, with a little band of twenty-five converts. One of the agents who went to hold a service there in October lost his life through trying to enter the train while it was in motion.

Urdu Congregation.

The Z.B.M.Mission was represented in Bombay by thirteen missionaries, twelve assistant missionaries, one pundit, twelve native teachers, and three Bible-women. Two of the girls (sisters) at the school were baptized, and their mother and brother afterwards put themselves under instruction.

NASIK.

The missionaries at NASIK during the year were the Revs. E. J. Jones and C. W. Thorne. Great anxiety was caused by the plague, which was even more deadly than before. The streets, usually teeming with life, were deserted; whole rows of houses and shops were shut up and left without inhabitants; Hindus hurrying along with the corpses to the burning-ghâts by the river, and Mohammedans carrying their dead to an enclosure near their mosque were constantly met; and Mr. Thorne says that the missionaries themselves seemed to be perpetually in the little cemetery reciting the last sad offices for the departed. In previous years only isolated cases occurred at Sharanpur, although Nasik was severely affected, but in 1899 the plague took a firm hold at the former place, and a number of people connected with the Orphanages were attacked. As early as possible steps were taken to have everyone connected with the Mission inoculated, but reports to the effect that as soon as inoculation was performed the person dropped down insensible, and that many through it lost a limb, rendered the task one of much difficulty. Happily scruples were successfully overcome, with the result that in six weeks the disease was stamped out. Two of those who were inoculated died. The first was Mr. Yohann Yewaji, the head-master of the Vernacular School, an earnest Christian and a good worker. He was the leader of the Voluntary Preachers' Band, and on Sunday, August 13th, asked whether he should take his colleagues out for work. It was thought best, as the plague had just broken out, to forego the usual preaching, and before the next Sunday he had passed into the presence of the King. The other who died was the son of a recent convert, and the bereaved father, who had previously hardly grasped the doctrine of the resurrection of the dead, was amazed at the prospect of meeting his boy again in a better and brighter world. "How beautiful it all is!" was his exclamation as the contrast between his new religion, the religion of hope, and his old Hindu tenets of despair dawned upon him. The nine Vernacular Schools were of course affected by the plague, and some of them were for a time closed altogether. The Industrial Work at Sharanpur, which was under Mr. Jones, was carried on as usual, and one of the apprentices left to begin work for himself; excepting at the time of the plague, the health of the children was remarkably good. This branch of the work has been handed over to the Industrial Missions Aid Society. Mr. Thorne, who was in charge of the Itinerancy, was struck on his return from furlough with the signs of extension which he witnessed. The little Christian communities appeared to be growing in independence and self-reliance, and while the majority of the converts were from the lower classes, yet an increasing number of men of better social position were enrolled as members of the Church. Mr. Thorne gives a typical instance of the disheartening experiences with which many missionaries meet:—

The Christian's hope—"how beautiful it is."

Christians growing in self-reliance.

People apathetic.

> The first little town I visited on my return from furlough was Thakurwadi, in the Igatpuri taluka. The day was hot and close, and we had a long walk from camp there, to find the people busy manuring the little open spaces in front of their dwellings. We told them we had come with God's message of salvation, and asked them to leave off work and give us half an hour of their time. But to our surprise we found that they were so intent on their small projects that no arguments prevailed to make them desist and give us their attention. So we did the best we could under the circumstances. We sang and preached, and endeavoured to interest them, but, alas! all to no purpose. At length their work was finished, and exhausted, I suppose, by their unwonted exertions, for they are not remarkable for industry, they reclined at length in shady corners of their huts or slunk away altogether. And yet we had come from a distance, and with no small fatigue in the heat, to tell them of the way of Life. Indeed, it might be said that I had travelled 6,000 miles to reach them with the glad tidings of the Gospel, as this was my first preaching since arriving from home. What an opportunity was theirs had they but known it; but it was hidden from their eyes. The cares of this life so filled their minds that they had no time for better things, and so they went off and left us, the messengers of Heaven, deserted and despised.

The colporteur at the railway station, to whom reference was made in last year's Report, was called to his rest after a long illness, during which he showed great patience and strong faith, and his place was filled by his brother, who was enabled to accomplish some good work. The itinerating tours and the efforts put forth at the nine out-stations resulted in several coming forward and expressing a desire for baptism, but Mr. Thorne felt the importance of exercising caution in the matter, and only two adults were admitted into the fellowship of Christ's religion. Of one of them, a young Gujerati Brahman, he writes :—

A Brahman led to decision for Christ by Dr. Fairbairn's lectures.

He was educated as a boy in the Irish Presbyterian Mission School at Surat, where he learned from those honoured missionaries the saving truths of the Gospel. For years he had read and prayed over the matter, now deciding to throw in his lot with Christ, and now growing cold and indifferent. At length, aroused by Dr. Fairbairn's lectures in Bombay last cold weather, he came to Nasik determined to become a Christian. Mr. Jones was at Sharanpur at the time, and sent him on to me in the district, where he lived with me in camp for some time under instruction. I wrote to his old friends in Surat, and received a satisfactory answer from them; and eventually he was received into the Church on Trinity Sunday. He has since obtained work in Bombay as a journalist, and he is, I have every reason to think, a true and earnest disciple of the Lord Jesus. Please pray for him.

It is evident from what has been written that the workers in this portion of the Mission-field are confronted by many hindrances; the enemy is indeed strongly entrenched. But Mr. Thorne realizes that trials must be expected in work for Christ, and he remarks: "One gets no good by thinking too much of difficulties; rather let us thank God and take courage. The work is His, and the strength to accomplish it also comes from Him."

On the arrival of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Manwaring at the station after their furlough, Mr. Thorne was transferred to Poona.

The staff of the Z.B.M.Mission at Nasik consisted of two European ladies, one Parsi assistant, fifteen native teachers, and three Bible-women; one of the latter was among the first victims of the plague.

POONA AND JUNIR.

Poona.

The virulence of the plague at Poona may be inferred from the fact that at one time as many as two hundred deaths occurred daily. The hospital was crowded; the nurses were too few for the work of attending to the patients whom the building was called upon to accommodate; and the special correspondent of the Bombay Gazette described the city as "the abomination of desolation," and said that it would require the pen of a Defoe to depict the horrors which occurred. A Day of Intercession for the removal of the scourge was held on August 18th. The evening service at St. Mary's Church, at which the Bishop of Bombay delivered an address, was attended by his Excellency the Governor. The workers rightly felt that pains were needed as well as prayer; accordingly, the Rev. D. K. Shindé volunteered to join those who were endeavouring to combat the disease, and others of the staff of the Society visited the hospital. There were several interesting cases, and the people were found to be ready to accept Scripture portions and tracts, but the impressions in favour of Christianity appeared to die away when the immediate danger was removed. Still the self-denying efforts of the Europeans met with some recognition, for many spoke with gratitude of the kindness they received, and one man remarked, "the English are God-like people." It may be that after many days fruit will be seen of the seed sown by the living voice and the printed Word during the time of trouble. Famine, too, began to make itself felt at the close of the year; in one village two persons died from want within a fortnight of one another, and in another place a man lay down in the field to die but happily, by the use of restoratives, he recovered.

The English services at Poona seemed to be appreciated, and the little branch of the Gleaners' Union did a useful though quiet work, regular monthly meetings being held. The Rev. A. H. Bowman preached at the parade services on October 29th, and during the rest of the week lectured to the soldiers, but the meetings of educated non-Christians had to be abandoned because of the plague. Five students were in residence at the Divinity School under the Rev. R. S. Heywood, three of whom studied for the Junior Catechist's Grade, and two for the Senior Reader's. Happily all connected with the school were preserved from sickness, although the bodies of rats whose deaths had been caused by the plague were twice found in the students' quarters.

Divinity School.

The Rev. G. Yesudian was in charge of the Tamil Pastorate. Twenty-two candidates were confirmed in March, 1899, and three adults received baptism. Four of the eleven Christians who were attacked by the plague succumbed. Mr. Yesudian writes of two of them, a boy and a woman:—

"Jesus is my Rajah."

"I bow the knee of my heart."

> The boy was the son of one of the members of the Pastorate Committee, and was well taught to pray and sing and to love his Saviour. His favourite song was "Jesus is my Rajah," and on his death bed he said to his father, "I am going to Jesus." His end was peace. The other was Grace Ammal. This eminently pious woman's death was merely a translation from earth to Heaven. When I heard that she was ill I went to see her. The first word she said to me was that she had no fear of death; and she added, "Forgive me if I have done anything wrong to you," and then she began to sing Tamil lyrics and requested us to sing "Nothing but the blood of Jesus." I asked her, "Shall we pray?" She, thanking me, answered in the words of Manasses, "'I am suffering and cannot kneel,' so now I bow the knee of mine heart." This she had heard some months previously in a sermon. When reminded of the Holy Communion she said, "Make haste, please, for the time comes near when my mouth will be shut." . . . The last days of her life seemed to us as if she was making ready to meet her Lord. She set a good example to our people during her lifetime. In whatever difficulty she was she never failed to pay her subscription to the Pastorate Fund on the first day of every month, and if I ever failed to visit her on that day, she would keep it in a separate place till I should come. More than once she gave special offerings that something substantial might be bought for the church.

The Marathi Pastorate, under the Rev. D. K. Shindé, also lost some of its members, who numbered 146, about two-thirds of whom were adults. Some heathen children began to attend the Sunday-school, and evangelistic meetings in the open-air were held notwithstanding the death of the layman who took a prominent part in their management. A Mohammedan lad of good family was baptized.

Mr. Whiteside says that there is little that is encouraging to report concerning the Evangelistic Work, excepting the improvement in the arrangements, and the increase in the staff of native helpers, who yet were not sufficiently numerous to occupy all the places where a worker was called for. The experiment which was tried of sending the native workers to reside at different centres, and itinerate in the surrounding country, was eminently successful. Four centres were occupied, and it was found that when the outlying villages in their neighbourhoods were visited, several people came forward to welcome the preacher as a friend. At Kirkee a night-school which was commenced showed signs of being most useful, and by its means the big boys and men who worked at the powder factory in the place were influenced. Two new schools were opened, the one in a village six miles from Khed, where a young sadhu (saint), who had been an inquirer for six years, but could not make up his mind to forsake all for Christ, frequently came for religious conversations with the master of the school, and the other at Mangari, where the use of a schoolroom was given by a member of the Marathi congregation in Poona.

The operations of the Z.B.M.Mission were supervised by Mrs. Sorabji, who had as her colleagues one European missionary, two assistants, ten native teachers in the Victoria High School, thirteen in the vernacular schools, and four Bible-women. She had the joy of witnessing the baptism of a pupil who had been under her care for some time, but had left the school two years prior to his baptism.

A melancholy interest attaches to the letter descriptive of the year in the JUNIR ITINERANCY, a rough copy of which was found among the papers of the late Rev. W. H. Dixon. Writing on December 16th, he said that the district in which he was at work was forty miles square; that Junir, the headquarters of the Mission, was a town with 12,000 inhabitants; and that there were eight other towns under his charge, each containing several thousand people. A large proportion of the population lived in the three hundred villages which the district contained, most of the villagers being Mahrattas, excepting in the extreme west, where hill tribes were found. He described education as being fairly widespread, since there were schools in all the larger villages, but the spread of Western education (the schools in question are not connected with the Mission) did not make much impression upon the superstitions of the people, since it (the education) was extremely superficial. Efforts were made to reach the people by means of two preaching-halls, a school for low castes, a Sunday-school with an average attendance of 150, exhibitions of the magic-lantern, the visits of a Bible-woman, and Saturday cricket matches; the latter being included in the list because through them many Brahman young men were met who could not otherwise be reached. Itinerating was carried on during the dry season in the neighbourhood of a place called Alkuti. Mr. Dixon came across traces of the work of the late Rev. C. F. Schwarz, who died in 1878. He wrote:—

"Not to-day—another time!"

He stayed there on one occasion for three months, and produced a strong impression on some of the Mahars and Mangs. It is now thirty years ago, but some of the old men remember him, and one old Mahar, who came to my tent, described with tears in his eyes how he had been trained for baptism and the day fixed; but when he came on the appointed day, there came also the head-man of the town with a party of his friends, and they so threatened the poor man, declaring that he was disgracing the town, and they would take away his hereditary land, that he cried out to Mr. Schwarz, "Oh Sahib, not to-day —another time!" So he remained unbaptized, and Mr. Schwarz leaving the district soon after, he has never obtained his wish. But he still repeats the Lord's Prayer daily, as far as he remembers the words. We hope to visit this town again and form an out-station there, if the Lord will.

And Mr. Heywood also, who paid a visit to the district, found that the message delivered in former years was well remembered. The schoolmaster in one of the villages on three occasions walked several miles to see him, and appeared to be a true inquirer. Mr. G. H. Hodgson, of Bombay, says that while the people welcomed the missionaries, they did not seem to want their Master! Mr. Dixon did not deem it expedient to say much about results until they were fully matured, but he laid great stress on the importance of an efficient native agency, saying:—

Plea for sympathy and prayer on behalf of native agents.

The work of the European is mostly that of superintendence, and the evangelization of the Heathen depends far more on our native brethren. On them falls the burden of the preaching; they are able to appeal more convincingly to their fellow-countrymen than the Englishman can, and on their number and efficiency largely depends, under God, the success of the Mission. Yet they scarcely gain the recognition that is due. They are seldom mentioned in reports; they have not the romance of sailing to foreign lands after enthusiastic farewells; they are often cumbered with many sordid cares; if there is success the credit goes to the Mission; the drudgery falls on them; they are only agents. Surely it is important for the Church at home to be kept more fully informed about the native workers, and in closer touch with this body of fellow-labourers on whom so much depends.

Although it is obviously impossible to give an adequate account in the Annual Report of the work of six thousand native agents, yet there can be no doubt that earnest prayer is needed and should be offered on behalf of those for whom Mr. Dixon so touchingly pleaded.

One of Mr. Whiteside's workers resided at Khed, where a low-caste man with his wife and child, and also another man in fair circumstances, desired baptism. The school work was seriously interrupted by one thing and another, but a pleasing esprit de corps was shown by the boys, which was fostered by the practical sympathy with them in their games which was shown by the headmaster.

MALEGÂM.

Malegâm. The famine caused much unrest at MALEGÂM, where the Rev. and Mrs. F. G. Macartney resided. Every boy who could earn a little bread, or a few annas a month, was withdrawn from school; the villagers left their homes in large numbers for the Government relief camps; the cattle were sent away to obtain fodder and water, thus rendering it difficult to get bullock carts for travelling purposes; and dacoity was a thing of daily occurrence. Happily there was no second outbreak of the plague, although almost every other place in the Presidency of any considerable size was attacked. The Pastorate was under the care of the Rev. L. M. Joshi, who reports the confirmation of forty-one persons, and the baptism of three adults, besides a number of infants. A school was supported by the local branch of the Gleaners' Union, and the agents of the Pastorate carried off the first three of the Scripture prizes given annually by the Missionary Conference. But the spiritual advance among the people was not so rapid as could be wished, although Mr. Joshi impressed upon them the importance of testifying to the Heathen by a holy life. The Schools in the district numbered fourteen, one less than in 1898, and contained more than six hundred children, but the need of better trained Native Christian schoolmasters was greatly felt. Evangelistic Work was steadily prosecuted, the preaching-hall proving of much use, though the audiences were smaller than in former years owing to the migration of many of the Mohammedan weavers, who chiefly frequent the place. Opposition, of course, was experienced; on one occasion when a young Mohammedan convert was speaking, his former co-religionists endeavoured to mob the band of preachers; while at another time a similar occurrence was only prevented by the presence of Miss Clark, of the Z.B.M.Mission. Grievous disappointment was caused by the apostatizing of Abdul Khalif, the man whose history was given in full in last year's Report (pages 252, 253), for the patience with which he had endured persecution for the sake of the Gospel had certainly afforded strong presumptive proof of the genuineness of his profession. His fall occurred in Bombay, whither he went after his baptism.

Apostacy of a recent convert.

A forward step was taken in the district by opening another preaching place in a central position at Dhulia, the capital of Khandesh. The rooms also served for the purpose of a dispensary, which was carried on by the evangelist in charge, who in his non-Christian days was for some time under a well-known Poona herbalist. The treatment given was that of Yunani medicine or herbalism, and it proved attractive to a large number of people, more than a thousand a month visiting the place. Reading and exposition of Scripture always preceded the treatment of the patients. It is interesting to note that the expenses of fitting up the rooms were defrayed by the residents in the town. The colporteur and two Bible-women, whose salaries were provided by the British and Foreign Bible Society, met with some success in their work, and in two at least of the houses visited there were women who seemed to be decidedly influenced by the teaching which they received. Amalner, the central town of Khandesh, was occupied during the year, a suitable house having been obtained with a well in the compound; the latter fact is one of importance, since so much trouble in getting drinking water is often experienced when new out-stations are opened owing to the caste prejudices of the people. Evangelistic work was also carried on at Nandurbar and in the adjoining country, which is inhabited by the Bhīls. Hundreds of their settlements were visited, but none of these aboriginals who heard the Gospel were admitted as catechumens. A few other adults, however, were baptized in this part of the district. At the beginning of 1900 the famine was terrible in the vicinity of Nandurbar, and Mr. Macartney wrote on February 22nd :—

Heathen towns-people fit up a Mission dispensary.

> The depressed classes, Bhīls and others, are in an awful and shocking condition. Eight or ten die daily in the streets of Nandurbar. There are many children in the last stages of emaciation. Some can only crawl along the roads, they have no strength to stand on their feet. I could have gathered together fifty helpless and abandoned children during the few days I was in Nandurbar. Girls are sold for a rupee and less. Mohammedans and bad women are buying them. . . . Government are doing what they can, but a great many people must inevitably perish. . . . Can we not save some of these little ones?

Terrible mortality among Bhīls.

The staff of the Z.B.M. Mission consisted, in addition to Miss M. Clark, of three associated workers, the same number of native teachers, and four Bible-women.

AURUNGABAD.

Aurungabad.

The year was eventful at AURUNGABAD for the retirement from active service of the Rev. Ruttonji Nowroji, which has already been recorded. In a retrospect of the work at the station and in the district he writes :—

A retrospect of thirty years.

> For thirty years I have been in charge of this Mission, and I cannot take a retrospect of the past without praising God for His great blessing which has rested on it. It was without church, schools, or any necessary buildings, and the few Christian families living in the surrounding villages were like sheep without a shepherd. Our preaching to the Heathen excited their bitter opposition, and few, if any, could be prevailed upon to approach us or to accept our books or leaflets. But by the blessing of God these drawbacks have all been one by one removed. We have now two substantial churches, boarding-schools for boys and girls, and other useful buildings in connexion with the Mission. There have been 2,086 baptisms, 355 deaths, and 152 marriages within the thirty years of my incumbency. Our work among the Heathen has also met with much success. Those who once showed indifference and contempt have given us an attentive hearing, and we count hundreds and thousands among those who are friendly disposed towards us. I believe that brighter days for this Mission are at hand, and we shall have converts from them, not by tens and twenties, but by fifties and hundreds.

On the retirement of Mr. Ruttonji Nowroji, the Rev. W. C. Whiteside was placed in charge of the work. Mr. Ruttonji, who has selected Panchgani as his future home, asks for prayer that he may be enabled to labour for his Divine Master until the day of his death.

The usual work was continued at the central station, the one new departure being the formation of a branch of the Children's Scripture Union, which was managed by the Rev. S. Umap. The Christian families scattered about in fifty different villages were cared for as far as possible, and open-air preaching both in the city and in the surrounding country was persevered with. There were 166 adults baptized, most of them belonging to the Mang caste; a few members of other castes were inquirers, but they lacked the necessary courage to openly confess themselves as Christians. Mention is made of a village headman who expressed his desire for baptism, and of a schoolmaster, some members of whose family were prayed for by the native pastor, and who in gratitude for their recovery sent some donations to the Pastorate Fund. The Rev. J. P. Butlin, the year's recruit, has been assigned to Aurungabad. Mang converts.

There were eleven Bible-women at Aurungabad in connexion with the Z.B.M. Mission.

SOUTH INDIA MISSION.

The Tamil country south of Madras was the scene of the S.P.C.K.'s Missions in the last century. But the first two clergymen of the Church of England who went to India as missionaries were sent to Madras by the Church Missionary Society in 1814. The East India Act of 1833 made provision for a new bishopric of Madras, and Daniel Corrie was consecrated in 1835. His successors have been Bishops Spencer (1837), Dealtry (1849), Gell (1861), Whitehead (1899). Work was commenced at Ootacamund, on the Nilgiri Hills, in 1870.

The Telugu Mission was begun in 1841 by two of the most devoted men on the roll of missionaries, Robert Noble and Henry Watson Fox. Noble started the famous English school at Masulipatam, now known by his name, worked it for twenty-four years, and died at his post in 1865. Many Brahmans trained in it have embraced the Gospel, and it has sent forth several native clergymen to labour among their countrymen. Fox was a preaching missionary, and set the example of those itinerating and rural missionary efforts which have resulted in the foundation of an increasing Telugu Native Church, chiefly drawn from the Malas and other low-caste or out-caste people. Ellore was occupied in 1854; Bezwada, 1858; Raghavapuram, 1872; and Khammamett, 1888. A Mission among the Kois, a non-Aryan tribe on the Upper Godávari, was founded by General Haig in 1860.

In 1820 the Rev. J. Hough, Chaplain at Palamcotta, drew the attention of the Society to the claims of Tinnevelly, where there was already a community of 3,000 professed Native Christians, an offshoot from the S.P.C.K.'s Lutheran Mission in Tanjore. Two missionaries were at once set apart for this work, and from that time to this, through the labours of Rhenius, Pettitt, Thomas, J. T. Tucker, Hobbs, Sargent, and others, the Gospel has not ceased to spread among the Tamil population, chiefly among the Shanars, or cultivators of the palmyra tree. In North Tinnevelly a vigorous Itinerant Mission was established by Ragland, D. Fenn, and Meadows. Dr. Sargent and Dr. Caldwell were consecrated in 1877 as Assistant-Bishops to the Bishop of Madras for the Native Churches. The former died in 1889 and the latter in 1891. Dr. Morley was consecrated in 1896, his jurisdiction (consensual) extending over Tinnevelly and Madura.

Consecration of Bishop Whitehead.

THE resignation of Dr. Gell, the late Bishop of Madras, took effect, as mentioned in last year's Report, in February, 1899, and his successor, Dr. Whitehead, formerly Head of the Oxford Mission to Calcutta, was consecrated in St. Paul's Cathedral on the 29th of the following June, and installed in St. George's Cathedral, Madras, on October 5th. In the course of his first sermon in the Cathedral ten days later he referred in feeling terms to his predecessor, and to the "rich legacy" that he had left behind him "in the inspiring example of Christian life and character, of gentleness, patience, sincerity, love, and burning zeal for the salvation of souls and the extension and building up of Christ's Kingdom." Before he left England, Bishop Whitehead met the Committee, and after referring in warm terms to the work of the Society in Bengal, said that he hoped to labour in sympathy and co-operation with it in his new diocese.

Deaths of Rev. A. B. Valpy.

Two former workers in the Mission were removed by death early in 1900. On February 19th, the home-call came to the Rev. A. B. Valpy, who in 1855 went out to work in Tinnevelly. He retired in 1861, and from 1864 till his death he held the Incumbency of Stanford Dingey in Berkshire. Two of his daughters were given to missionary work, one to the C.E.Z.M.S., and the other to the C.M.S. The latter died at Baghdad a few weeks after arriving there in the autumn of 1890.

Mrs. W. Gray,

The death of Mrs. W. Gray took place on February 22nd. She was a daughter of Mr. Peter Royston, of Barnsbury Park, and accompanied her brother, the Rev. P. S. Royston (now Assistant-Bishop in the Diocese of Liverpool) when he went to India as a C.M.S. missionary in 1855. Three years later she was married to the Rev. W. Gray, and was the first lady missionary in India to live in tents and move about among the village people. After their furlough to England, the doctors declined to sanction their return to India, and Mr. Gray was eventually appointed a Secretary at headquarters, to take charge of the India Missions; and he continued in that post twenty years. When, in 1887, the Society began to accept women missionaries, Mrs. Gray became the first Hon. Secretary of the Ladies' Candidates Committee; and not a few of those who were accepted as far back as eleven or twelve years ago will recall the sound judgment, the motherly sympathy, the gracious friendliness, and withal the practical capacity of the first Lady Secretary. Illness prevented her continuing in office, to the regret of all her colleagues. After Mr. Gray's death in 1895 she lived at Nottingham with a son and daughter. Another son is a C.M.S. missionary in Japan, and Mrs. Tisdall, of Persia, is one of her daughters.

Mrs. Thomas,

By the death of the venerable Mrs. Thomas, of Tinnevelly, on December 4th, the oldest link with the far distant past of that Mission was removed. Mary Davies was married to John Thomas in 1838, and shared in his manifold labours during the whole thirty years of his life at Mengnanapuram, the oasis, both physical and spiritual, in the midst of the sandy plains. After his death in 1870 she continued to reside at Mengnanapuram, where, with her daughter, she carried on the Elliot Tuxford Girls' Boarding-school. She entered into rest in her eighty-eighth year, after sixty-one years of missionary life amongst a people who learned to love and honour her. Her funeral was attended not only by several of the European missionaries, and by the C.M.S. and S.P.G. native pastors, but also by a large number of the people of the district, some of the women travelling many miles through deep sand in order to be present.

Rev. A. Asirvatham,

The Society lost one of its oldest pastors in the Tinnevelly Mission by the sudden death, on December 16th, of the Rev. Athidásen Asirvatham. He was ordained in 1874 for work at Palamcotta, and some seventeen years later was transferred to North Tinnevelly. Two months later the Rev. D. Perinbam was called to his rest in the sixty-seventh year of his age. Born of Native Christian parents, he was employed as a catechist and schoolmaster, and ordained deacon by the Bishop of Madras in 1869, and admitted to priest's orders in 1876. He was stationed first at Satthankulam, and subsequently at Anandhapuram. He became an honorary pastor in 1892. On March 11th, 1900, the death of the Rev. S. Paul occurred at Sachiapuram, Tinnevelly, at the age of fifty-seven years. Son of a devoted and gifted native clergyman, the Rev. Daniel Paul, he was educated at Palamcotta Preparandi Institution, and was ordained by the Bishop of Madras in 1874. He was the first to organize the Tamil Mission in Ootacamund, where he had previously worked as a catechist. Afterwards he was connected with the Northern Pastorate, in the city of Madras, and did a great deal for the development of the congregation at Black Town. Subsequently Sachiapuram, in the Tinnevelly district, was his headquarters, and he was appointed Vice-Chairman of the Native Church Council in Tinnevelly, and Chairman of the Sachiapuram and Vageikulam Circles. Mr. Samuel Paul also did a good work for Tamil Christian literature. He prepared for publication a large number of important works—original and translations—which have been widely read by Tamil Christians. Chiefly for his literary work he was honoured by Government not long ago with the title of "Rao Sahib" ("Rao" is a Hindu title for a chief or prince). In his death the Native Church loses a faithful and devoted worker.

and Rev. S. Paul.

Reinforcement.

Only one recruit was sent to the Mission during the year, viz., the Rev. Edgar Ernest Hamshere, of Islington College, who was ordained by the Bishop of London on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899, and sailed for India in October.

About 160 missionaries, representing the Protestant missionary societies working in the Presidency, met for conference in Madras on January 2nd, 1900. The meetings, which extended over four days, were held in the new Y.M.C.A. building, which was dedicated by Archdeacon Elwes a few weeks later in the presence of the Governor of Madras and Lady Havelock. The Rev. Dr. Miller, Principal of the Madras Christian College, presided at the opening meeting of the Conference.

The Madras Corresponding Committee consists of: the Right Revs. the Bishop of Madras and Bishop Gell, Archdeacon Elwes, Mr. A. W. B. Higgens, Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot, Mr. W. B. De Winton, the Revs. A. A. Williams, W. Scott, H. D. Goldsmith, E. Sell (Secretary).

The Bishop of Madras has appointed the Rev. E. Sell as one of his examining chaplains, and the Revs. D. Anantam and W. D. Clarke as honorary chaplains.

I. MADRAS AND THE NILGIRIS.

The Rev. W. D. Clarke, native pastor of Zion Church, Madras, sailed for the Mission in June, 1899, after his visit to England on the Committee's invitation to be present at the Centenary celebrations; the Rev. M. G. Goldsmith sailed in October; and the Rev. H. D. Goldsmith in February, 1900. The Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick came home on medical certificate in May, 1900.

MADRAS.

Centenary at Madras.

The Centenary celebrations at MADRAS began on Tuesday, April 4th, when a largely attended Communion Service was held in Tucker's Chapel (C.M.S.), Black Town, at 8 a.m. In the evening of the same day a large mass meeting, which was described as very enthusiastic and stirring, took place in the Victoria Hall, and was presided over by Mr. W. R. Arbuthnot. Addresses were delivered in Telugu, Hindustani, Malayalam, and Tamil. On the 10th, 11th, 13th, and 14th there were special services in the C.M.S. churches at 6 p.m., with addresses on the origin and development of the Society. On the 12th, at the same hour, a women's meeting in the Memorial Hall was presided over by Mrs. S. Satthianádhan, B.A.; and three days later a children's meeting was held in the Memorial Hall, at which the Bishop of Tinnevelly was the chairman. On Sunday, the 16th, Bishop Morley preached at the English service in Christ Church, and the following day presided over a meeting of Europeans and English-speaking Indian Christians in the Victoria Hall.

Divinity School.

The work at the Divinity School under the Acting-Principal, the Rev. E. A. L. Moore, was on a small scale, for there were only two students, both from the Tinnevelly Itinerancy. The smallness of the numbers made teaching an easier matter, and enabled the Principal to get into closer personal touch with the men. With his duties at the Divinity School Mr. Moore combined those involved in the charge of the small Eurasian Congregation in the poor part of the city.

Harris High School.

In the absence of the Rev. T. H. Fitzpatrick at Hyderabad, in the Deccan, the Harris High School for Mohammedan boys was under the care of the Rev. J. S. Peter, who had the Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh as his colleague. The former reports that the pupils numbered 234, but that the results of the public examinations were not up to the standard of the year preceding that under review. Nevertheless there were encouraging signs, for the interest in the study of the Bible grew keener, and some of the lads were even willing to learn passages by heart. After ten years spent in connexion with the school, Mr. Peter is qualified to express an opinion concerning the special needs of the boys. He writes:—

Natives' lack of independence.

I have found out that one reason why they do not come out boldly for the truth is the spirit of dependence that clings to them. This, however, is not their fault. Their poverty, their long years of training in servile fashion, and the arbitrary modes of thought which their religion inculcates, combine to form this spirit in them. Unless we combat this spirit by our methods of training, we cannot get good results, intellectual, moral, or spiritual. It is because they are dependent on others for their own line of conduct and thought that they have no courage to openly declare what I am sure some of them inwardly believe. Habits of independence can only be taught by manual labour.

The former students in the school provided a special treat for the boys on the occasion of the Centenary celebration, when addresses were given both in English and Hindustani. The Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh was in charge of the small congregation connected with the school. The bazaar preaching was continued daily by a little band of Hindustani workers, and a new departure was made by the establishment of a Mission with the object of reaching the fishermen.

Attitude of educated Hindus.

While there was but little apparent result of the work among the Educated Hindus in Madras, yet the Rev. S. John observed many symptoms of the impression which Christianity is making on them. He says that caste is not now maintained with the same rigidity as of old; that the educated classes frequently make proverbial use of Biblical expressions; that less contempt for Christians is manifested by Hindus; and that Christian pamphlets and tracts are received with thanks, and promises made to read them carefully. He is of opinion that those among whom he labours are dissatisfied with the teaching of their own religion, and are straining every nerve to find some purer form of belief.

The Pastorates.

The Rev. J. Satthianádhan is in charge of the Northern Pastorate, in connexion with the Madras Church Council. The aggregate number of members of the two congregations, the one at Black Town and the other in the Tinnevelly Settlement, was 624, including children, and of communicants 352. Bible-classes were held both for men and for women, and the cottage prayer-meetings, which were spoken of in last year's Report, were continued three times a week. The branch of the Gleaners' Union, composed of young men and managed by one of themselves, met every Saturday for prayer and the study of the Bible, and contributed to the Native Church Fund. The church was crowded to excess in February on the occasion of the thirty-first anniversary of the pastorate, and a collection amounting to Rs. 40 was made. Special attention was paid to the children, for whom regular meetings were held, and it was cheering to note that they were accustomed to induce others to attend the gatherings—a sure sign that they themselves appreciated them. It was found necessary, in consequence of lack of funds, to take the regrettable step of closing one of the four schools. In the remaining three, 317 boys and girls received instruction, and eighty-six of the 111 who went up for the Government Examination met with success. A new building was erected for the school in the Tinnevelly Settlement, part of the money for which had been given by the late Rev. A. H. Arden. The adult baptisms were twelve in number. One was of a man who had for some time felt the burden of his sins, and had visited Hindu temples in the hope of getting rid of them; another was of a woman whose experience was somewhat similar, for she one day said, "I have long been depending upon Kolatchi-amman (a heathen goddess) for the removal of my burden of sin, but since I heard from you the power of Christ to remove sin, I have given up my belief in the goddess and made up my mind to trust in Christ."

More than self-supporting.

The Rev. W. D. Clarke, of the Southern Pastorate, found that steady progress had been made by the congregations of Zion Church and Trinity Chapel during his absence in England. The contributions from the 800 members amounted to nearly Rs. 2,000, and Mr. Clarke points out in his Annual Letter that his pastorate has advanced beyond mere self-support, since more than enough money to maintain all their spiritual agents is collected from the people. The large amount mentioned above is raised by means of monthly subscriptions, Sunday collections, handful-of-rice collections, missionary boxes, annual ingathering offerings, and special thankofferings, besides the contributions of the children. Only one adult baptism was recorded, that of a man of whom Mr. Clarke writes:—

> He comes from a respectable Hindu family, and in regard to intellectual attainments he is equal to an ordinary Indian undergraduate. As far as I was able to see, he has no worldly motive in becoming a Christian. He is employed as a clerk in the Government Press and gets a decent income to support himself and his family. You may remember a special Mission which Dr. Pentecost conducted in Madras in 1891 for the benefit of higher-class Hindus. Rajuveloo seems to have attended Dr. Pentecost's meetings regularly, and received favourable impressions about Christ and His divine religion. He has been an inquirer, therefore, for the last eight years. I hope that his young wife and a child will soon follow him. They seem to be rather obstinate in their old ways, but Rajuveloo is pleading with his God for their conversion. I am also glad to say that Rajuveloo has a number of Hindu friends over whom he is exercising much Christian influence.

Preachers' Association.

The Preachers' Association, which was strengthened by twelve members of the congregation of Zion Church, and six of that at St. Thomas' Mount, besides preaching twice a week at important centres in Madras, made two more extended tours in the district. Twenty-nine men took part in the first, which lasted from January 10th–14th, 1899. Manimangalam, a large village twenty-five miles to the south-west of the city, was the centre, and going out in four bands the preachers were enabled to visit thirty-three villages, and reach more than 2,000 people. The second tour in June was on a rather smaller scale. Eighteen men went forth under the leadership of the Rev. D. A.

Peter to Mevalur, a Christian village twenty-two miles west of Madras, and besides preaching during the days, held lantern evangelistic meetings in the evenings. Shortly after his return to India Mr. Clarke gave several addresses descriptive of his experiences in England, and at the conclusion of the course appealed to his people to make some forward missionary movement. Of the outcome of this appeal he says:—

A children's "missionary shop."

The younger members of Zion Church have started a "missionary shop." They have engaged the services of an evangelist, who is in charge of the shop from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., every day except Sunday, and who goes about preaching the Gospel in the mornings and evenings. They propose to pay his salary from the proceeds of the missionary shop.

Women's Missionary Association.

There is a movement also among the female members of Zion Church. I thank God for this, for I believe that if the women of a congregation are deeply interested in any cause, we may almost rest assured that the whole congregation will heartily join in it, for the women are a power in every nation, and exercise such a wonderful influence over others, either for good or for evil. In my addresses I remarked more than once that the Christian women in England took an equal share with men in all missionary enterprises, and that sometimes the former took a leading part in Christian work. The female members of Zion Church had a devotional meeting, and after a little talk over the subject, asked God to show them what He would have them to do. As a result of their prayer they have formed themselves into a kind of missionary association, of which almost all the ladies belonging to the leading and independent families have become members. I am thankful to see that a few ladies not connected with Zion Church have also joined this missionary movement. They have arranged to meet together once a month in the house of one of the members in turn and to talk about missionary work. They are anxious to do some definite work for their Lord and Master.

Mr. E. S. Hensman, B.A., Secretary of the Madras Native Church Council, has been elected to a seat in the Municipal Council of the City of Madras.

Of the C.E.Z.M.S. workers, one European lady, two assistant missionaries, and nineteen native teachers laboured among the Hindu population; and two European ladies, four assistant missionaries, and sixteen native teachers were engaged in the Mohammedan Mission.

NILGIRI AND WYNAAD TAMIL MISSION.

Ootacamund.

The celebration of the Centenary of the Society aroused much interest and enthusiasm among the people at OOTACAMUND, where the Rev. and Mrs. A. H. Lash reside. The proceedings commenced in the early morning with a celebration of the Holy Communion, followed by the baptism of three adults, one of whom was the fruit of the work of the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies. Services and meetings continued throughout the day, and included a social gathering at which more than 300 persons were present. The members of the Congregation contributed Rs. 245 as a special thankoffering to the funds of the Parent Society. Early in the year the death occurred of Sarah, the wife of the young Brahman whose baptism, and the events which were connected with it, were fully recorded in last year's Report (p. 262). Her end was most peaceful, and the Rev. G. Swamiadian, the native pastor, who attended her on her death-bed, speaks of her as having been "a very pious and hopeful woman." There were thirty members of the Young Men's Christian Association, who met not only for lectures and debates, but also for Bible-readings. Mr. Swamiadian superintended the schools, five in number, carried on the evangelistic preaching, and supervised the work of the Servants' Mission. He paid four visits to Coonoor and some of the adjacent out-stations, administering the Holy Communion, and seeing the Christians in their own homes.

Converts in the Wynaad.

During his autumn tour in the Wynaad Mr. Lash baptized twelve adults as well as several children. Amongst them were a Kuricher, the first adult of that hill-tribe to embrace Christianity; an educated Buddhist from Ceylon; a third was Veeramal, the widow of a convert of 1896, named Nursyan; and a fourth was Govinda Nair, a man belonging to one of the high castes of Travancore.

The C.E.Z.M.S. staff at Ootacamund consists of four European ladies, eight Bible-women, and seventeen native teachers.

II. TELUGU MISSION.

Mrs. J. Harrison left for the Mission in August, 1899; the Rev. and Mrs. C. W. A. Clarke in November; and the Rev. and Mrs. A. E. Goodman in February, 1900. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. R. W. Peachey and the Rev. J. Stone came home in April, 1900; the Rev. and Mrs. J. Cain and the Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Penn in May.

On February 18th, 1900, at Masulipatam, the Bishop of Madras admitted to deacons' orders Messrs. Medikayala Sadhuvu and Christian Paramasagayam Gnanamani, and to priests' orders the Revs. Maramudi Jivaratnam and K. Ephraim.

MASULIPATAM.

Masulipatam.

The Centenary meetings and services at Masulipatam took place between April 6th and 15th, 1899, the most important being held in the evening of the 12th, when a large and influential gathering assembled in the Noble College Hall, over which Mr. R. Morris, the Collector of the District, presided. The meeting was opened with the reading of a passage of Scripture and prayer by B. Seenayya Garu, one of the Rev. J. Sharp's converts. The Rev. W. C. Penn then sketched the Society's work during the century, more especially in India. Mr. Venkatachelam Pantala, ex-Deputy Collector, one of Robert Noble's converts, gave reminiscences of his spiritual father; and the Rev. L. L. Uhl, Ph.D., of Guntur, President of the Conference of the Lutheran Evangelical Mission, gave expression to some hearty congratulations in the name of his brethren. Mr. J. D. Samuel dwelt on the importance of women's work, and referred to Miss Ratnam Krishnamma, present at the meeting, "with her blushing honours thick upon her," she having won a first class in the English language division in the Madras University B.A. Examination, in company with only six others out of nearly 1,000 who competed, and also a first class in the second language division, with Telugu as her optional subject. Mr. S. V. Ross, B.A., in the closing speech, referred to the enthusiastic loyalty of the Native Christians to the British Government. Another interesting meeting was one which took place at the College, arranged by the former pupils. One of the speakers pointed out the numberless ways in which the Society throughout the world was working for the benefit of the despised classes of society, for their moral, physical, and spiritual welfare, and expressed a hope that the example of Christians would soon be followed by the professors of other creeds. Another referred to the high ideal of loyalty to principle and the strong sense of duty shown by the men whom the Society had sent out as constituting a standing rebuke to the worldly ideals of advancement and material prosperity so common in India as elsewhere.

Centenary celebration.

Noble College.

The Rev. W. C. Penn (now at home), when the Rev. C. W. A. Clarke came home on furlough, was left in charge of the Noble College, with its branch schools and the Bezwada High School. A most encouraging report was read on the occasion of the annual prize distribution in April, 1899. It announced that the first place in the F.A. Examination had been gained by one of the students, and that the first three prizes in the Peter Cator Scripture Examination of 1898 had fallen to the alumni of the College; this latter success was repeated in some degree in 1899, for news was received in December that the first prize had again fallen to the Noble College. The Rev. E. G. Roberts, who suffered much with his eyes, refers in his Annual Letter to an extra subject in which he was able to give some instruction:—

Prizes obtained for Scripture knowledge.

Hindu astrologers and the Leonid showers.

Much perturbation was caused in the Hindu mind this year by the predictions of the astrologers who foretold that some great catastrophe to the world would be the result of a conjunction of planets on November 13th. Among the English-speaking classes additional anxiety was caused by the proceedings of the well-known notoriety hunter, Herr Falb, who announced that the earth would come into collision with Biela's comet on November 13th. I did my best to counteract this pernicious nonsense, and was most ably seconded by some of the native graduates on the staff of the College. The greatest interest was taken in the little I could tell of the nature of comets and meteors, so much so that a large number of the teachers and students joined together to observe the Leonid shower then expected, and secured a number of observations, which have been sent to the British Astronomical Association.

The stir which was made in the College by the special Missions conducted by Mr. G. S. Eddy (see last year's Report, page 264) had one result which probably was rather unexpected, for the students seemed shy of coming for private talks with the missionaries, and some antagonism was manifested in the Scripture classes. The Christian Evidence Class, conducted by Mr. Penn, had an average attendance of ten, all of them Hindus. One of the two students who appeared in 1898 to be desirous of baptism fell away altogether, and the other was called upon to encounter much opposition at home, which he hardly had the strength of character to endure.

Prayer before examinations.

It was evident that many of the young men recognized God's intervention in human affairs, for from twenty to thirty of them, at their own desire, met with one of the missionaries for a few moments of prayer every morning before the matriculation examination, and one was found to have written on his scrap-paper the words: "Oh Lord, Father of all, let me have Thy blessing." Mr. Roberts expresses himself confidently concerning the benefits conferred by the religious education given. He writes:—

Tone of the College.

I might quote from the letters and speeches of unwavering Hindus the most grateful testimony to the blessings that the students receive morally and spiritually from the training given in the missionary colleges. And comparing the recollections of my own school-days with my knowledge of the students here, I do not hesitate to declare that there is a far higher tone in the Noble College, Masulipatam, than there was in the school where I spent my youth. There are some of the students here who are honestly guided by the noblest ideals of duty towards God and man. How these will last in days to come God knows, but it is something to be thankful for that they exist, at any rate now. So in face of all disappointment we may thank God and take courage. The students of this College have their Purity Societies, which meet every week during term. Their sense of honour and truthfulness is being developed. Let me illustrate. Your Anglo-Indian members will recollect that the chief papers are supplied to different people at prices varying according to the income of the person receiving it. At a certain Reading-room Committee it was suggested that the Madras Mail should be ordered by a person whose salary was very low, in order to get it at the lowest price. The idea was at once denounced by an old College student as dishonourable, and was rejected. I know of many professing Christians who would not have scrupled to accept the plan which was thus repudiated by members of the race which has been stigmatized as "the lying Hindu."

The Branch Schools connected with the College were six in number. The Preparandi Institution and the Practising School were under the Rev. H. J. Tanner, from whom, however, no Annual Letter has been received.

Sharkey Memorial School.

There was, happily, but little sickness at the Sharkey Memorial School, with its sixty-two boarders, and Mrs. Eales, who superintended it, rarely had to punish any of the girls. Five of them went up for the Lower Secondary Examination, and the same number for the examination in connexion with the Training Department, but the results were not known at the end of December. All the ten who were presented passed the Practical Test Examination, and good results were obtained in Scripture, one of the girls, the daughter of the native pastor, winning the first prize in what is known as the Second Evangelists' Examination. A number of the children were prepared for confirmation in view of the approaching visit of the Bishop.

Public discussions with Mohammedans and Hindus.

In July, 1899, Mr. Penn took advantage of the presence in Masulipatam of the Rev. L. S. Dhan Singh, of the Harris School, Madras, to arrange for a public discussion with Mohammedans, but little good appeared to result from the meeting, which only showed the gross ignorance of the Mohammedan mind about everything outside the Koran. A similar effort in the village of Pedona had a like result, but the discussion with the Hindus which followed that with the Mohammedans led to many interesting and thoughtful questions. Mr. Penn says that weekly visits of two native workers to this village had evidently been appreciated, and that when they reached the place after an unavoidably prolonged absence of a fortnight, they were requested by an old man not to fail to come again, for, said he, "what you say does us good." But there, as elsewhere, many forces were arrayed against the teachers, and there was a tendency to regard Christianity as being anti-patriotic as well as opposed to the old religions of the country.

Pastorates.

The Rev. H. W. Eales was Acting-Chairman of the Masulipatam Church Council, with its seven pastorates, and says that the Centenary celebrations were joined in eagerly by the Native Christians. The rolls of the Masulipatam Pastorate contained the names of 543 baptized persons and sixty-five inquirers, and though several deaths occurred among the Christians, the vacant places were more than filled up by the accessions during the year. The number of adult baptisms, twenty-six, was the largest on record for the pastorate. Four whole families, whose heads were missionaries' servants, were received into the visible Church, the fruit of family prayers; and five other families of Chuckler origin, the members of which had long known the truths of Christianity but had been held back by the fear of persecution, were influenced by the visit of a Christian young man and his wife, and at last came forward for baptism. The harvest festival was again successful, and the Rev. M. Devanandam, the native pastor, is able to report that his pastorate not only continued to be self-supporting, but was in a position to contribute to the funds of the District Council. Much assistance in the work was rendered by voluntary helpers, some of whom taught in the Sunday-school, the highest prize in which was gained by a non-Christian, while others, banded together in a Y.M.C.A., drew large concourses of listeners from time to time by what is termed "processional preaching." The advance in the district was very marked. Saccapilly, twelve miles west of Masulipatam, where special efforts to reach the caste people were made, was occupied towards the close of the year by the Rev. M. K. Ramiar, and at two other places, Peddapatuam and Veyavaka, several families begged for teachers, and placed themselves under instruction. The number of village schools increased from thirty-six to forty-one, and both the attendance of children and the Government grants were greater than in 1898.

A non-Christian obtains the highest prize in a Sunday-school.

The work of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Masulipatam was carried on by seven European ladies, four assistant missionaries, fifteen Bible-women, and forty-nine native teachers. Several promising inquirers came to them for instruction.

BEZWADA.

Bezwada, once but a small village, has now a population of 20,000, and is the junction of the East Coast and other railways, as well as the centre of the extensive irrigation system of the Delta of the Krishna River. The growth of the Native Christian community has more than kept pace with the increase of population, for the Rev. J. Harrison, who for twenty-nine years has been in charge of the work, points out that whereas on his arrival in September, 1870, the number on the rolls of the Mission was thirty-eight; ten years later it was 602; ten years later again, in 1890, it was 1,216; and after twenty-nine years it had risen to 3,125. During the year under review more than 700 names were added to the list of adherents, and the third thousand was commenced on the roll of those baptized since 1870. Before the names of any are written on the list of catechumens they have to promise to abandon idolatry, as to the folly of which they are instructed, and they are taught the elements of Christian truth, as well as how to worship the living God. They next make a formal renunciation of their old religion at a special service which goes into particulars about devil-worship, witchcraft, charms, &c., and solemnly declare their desire for baptism, which is not administered until after they have passed a satisfactory examination in the Creed, the Ten Commandments, and the leading principles of Christianity. It may be asked, and the inquiry is both natural and justifiable, "What is the character of these converts?" The reply is that while year by year there is a distinct growth in spirituality, yet at present there is a rather low standard of Christian living. Many of the people think that renunciation of idolatry combined with a small amount of Christian knowledge is sufficient, and do little to remove their ignorance, for the majority of them being completely illiterate, even a little study is a weariness to the flesh. One of the native clergy says that the converts from the Mala sect do not generally eat or intermarry with those of the Madiga sect, though both belong to the degraded non-castes of Hinduism, and that in villages they draw their drinking water from separate wells. The principle of self-support, too, is but partially grasped: some advance, it is true, was discernible in the contributions of the people, which in view of the prevalent scarcity and distress was satisfactory, but it is said that many who before their baptism were liberal donors to their temple worship and expensive heathen rites, pleaded poverty as an excuse for not contributing to the support of their pastors. On the departure of the Rev. G. H. Asirvatham to Ellore, the Rev. K. Adam, the son of the first convert in the district, was placed in charge of the Bezwada Pastorate, with its twenty-five villages in which Christians were found. Most of them were coolies and farm servants, but a few petty cultivators were among them. There was an increase of 292 in the number of inquirers. The Bolapad Pastorate, under the Rev. K. Naganna, contained 916 adherents, of whom nearly 200 were communicants. The want of agents was severely felt, and several people were deterred from embracing Christianity by the fear of man. The Rev. B. Daniel, of the Tiruvoor Pastorate, gives several examples to show that the opposition of the Heathen is gradually diminishing. He says, too, that certain Vedantists in the district were found to be comparing the doctrines of their Guru, or teacher, and the doctrines of Christianity concerning the power of remitting sin, but that the elders amongst them endeavoured to check this spirit of inquiry.

Pastorates.

The Centenary was celebrated at Bezwada on April 12th, 1899, by a large gathering of the C.M.S. congregations from villages far and near. It began with a Communion Service at 8 a.m., when a thanksgiving and humiliation address was given by Mr. Harrison, bearing on the sixty years' work of the Society in the Telugu country, and it closed with a grand demonstration in front of the Mission-house on the hill at 5 p.m., when a number of addresses and prayers were followed by a general treat and fireworks. A torchlight procession was then formed at the foot of the hill, and the whole assembly marched along the main streets of the town, singing and proclaiming the Gospel.

The Centenary.

The High School and its two branch schools were supervised by the Rev. W. C. Penn of Masulipatam. With the exception of a few primary schools, the whole of the education in the town was in the hands of the Society, and on this fact Mr. Penn bases a strong appeal for a European graduate to give all his time to it.

Itinerating Work was carried on by the Rev. R. W. Peachey, the Rev. J. Gnanapragasam, formerly headmaster of the Bezwada High School, and afterwards pastor of Poonamalee, Madras, four native agents of the Society, and two other men who were on probation. Large numbers of people gathered to listen to the preaching, attracted partly by the playing of the violin by Mr. Gnanapragasam, but little fruit of the work was visible, and bigotry was still alive and active. Other difficulties consisted in the prevalence of superstition, the misrepresentation of the message delivered, and the like, of which Mr. Peachey gives the following instances :—

Perverse misrepresentations

A farmer said to us one day, "How is it that, when my neighbour puts up a stone in his field and does puja to it, he gets a splendid crop, while another man who does not do so gets much less? There must be something in the stone, or else God is pleased." I have been asked if it is true that we worship the Queen; and again, "Has not all America embraced Hinduism?" Again, a Kernam informed those near him that 400 Brahmans had joined us, and were made to eat beef. Another village official gave as a reason for our labours the statement that I got Rs. 100 reward if a Brahman became a Christian, less for a Komati, and still less for one of Sudra origin. The following are examples of the curious twists given by the Hindu to facts he has heard. This one explains itself. "You try to be more merciful than God, for He lets people suffer for their mistakes, but you try and bring them out of their errors." One day we were told that our preaching was quite wrong: Jesus Christ did not come to save the world, for He Himself said, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel." Truly a little knowledge is a dangerous thing!

And he adds :—

The saddest part of all is the indifference which we see around us and seemingly total lack of a desire for anything more spiritual or purer than they have. Men are content, and although for a time perhaps, while listening, they are apparently impressed, any longing for a change quickly dies away, especially should the bogey "caste" crop up.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. consisted of two European ladies and four Bible-women. A Mohammedan school was handed over to the missionaries by the Government, and the village work was encouraging in spite of the existence of many adversaries.

ELLORE.

Ellore.

The sanguine expectations entertained at the close of 1898 by the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander, the veteran missionary of forty-two years' completed service, were fully justified during the year under review. There was more spiritual fruit in the Ellore district, which is under his charge, than in any previous twelve months; baptisms were more numerous than ever before; and there were abundant opportunities of reaching the Heathen. In spite, therefore, of the prospect of severe famine, Mr.

Alexander is able to send a hopeful Annual Letter, with an account of what he terms "a wonderful year's work."

Centenary celebrations.

The Centenary was celebrated during the week of April 9th, 1899. Special sermons were preached on the Sunday by the Revs G. Krishnayya and W. J. Williamson. On the 11th a cricket match was played by the High School eleven against young men of the Pension Lines; and later a number of Hindu gentlemen took part in services in the High School compound. A public meeting in the High School Hall, presided over by the Rev. W. J. Williamson, was largely attended by non-Christian gentlemen. On the 12th there was a Telugu service, with Holy Communion, and an address by the Rev. M. Jeęvaratnam. In the afternoon the boarding-school children and others were entertained with games and sweetmeats in the Rev. F. W. N. Alexander's compound, and in the evening a united meeting for Europeans and Indians was held under the chairmanship of the Rev. W. J. Williamson, which was addressed by Mr. J. Gnanamutha, B.A., L.T., and the Rev. E. S. Tanner. A Centenary offering, amounting to Rs. 331, was sent to the C.M.S.

High School.

The Rev. W. J. Williamson reports "unmistakable signs of progress and improvement" in the Ellore High School, to the efficiency of which both the Rev. E. Sell and the Government Inspector bore testimony. Ten of the twenty-two boys who sat for the Matriculation Examination passed, and in the Primary Examination twenty-seven of the twenty-nine boys from the Hindu Department, and all the ten lads from the Mohammedan Department were successful, three of the Hindus obtaining first-class marks, and one of them being at the top of the list for the Ellore centre. In the Peter Cator Lower Grade Examination, a prize of Rs. 15 was won by one of the boys for the first time in the history of the school, and nine others obtained certificates of merit. Mr. Williamson describes the spiritual work as of a two-fold nature—pulling down the stones of opposition and prejudice, and laying the foundation of the faith. Although definite results were not apparent in the form of actual baptisms, yet it was evident that some of the boys were being influenced, though caste, like a chain, held them back from Christ. Mr. Krishnayya, who taught Scripture in the school, mentions as a very rare occurrence the refusal of a Mohammedan lad, fresh from Hyderabad, in the Deccan, to read the Gospel, and adds that his opposition was overcome by the influence of the Moslem teachers. The Rev. E. S. Tanner lived in the school compound while studying the language, and was able to have quiet talks with some of the lads.

Pastorates.

The Rev. G. Krishnayya, of the Ellore Pastorate, was obliged to visit Madras in the summer in order to undergo an operation for cataract. Unhappily it was not successful, but grace was vouchsafed to bear the trial patiently. Two new organizations were set on foot—a Dorcas Society and a Young Women's Christian Society; and a Harvest Festival took place for the first time at Ellore in March, 1899, the contributions amounting to over Rs. 200, which sum was sent to London as a Centenary Offering. Mr. Krishnayya found several openings for work among men of the upper classes, but many of them, while professing admiration and even reverence for our Lord, were kept back from confessing Him by the "cares and riches and pleasures of this life." The value of educational work was illustrated by the case of a Mohammedan of good position, formerly a pupil in the High School, who in the course of conversation frequently expressed his thankfulness for the religious instruction he had received, and said that he found God to be a prayer-hearing God and a very present help in trouble. Much of the extension of the year was in Ellore itself, there being adherents in five hamlets besides the main town. In one of these, where Mr. Alexander had three times previously endeavoured in vain to gain a footing, several families were enrolled as inquirers, while thirty children attended the school, which was inaugurated with great circumstance. Many other new places in the district were similarly occupied. The Rev. K. Ephraim is in charge of the Chintalapudi Pastorate. On April 12th Mr. Alexander laid the foundation-stone of a new church in the Polsanipalli Pastorate, which was under the Rev. M. Jonah. The veteran missionary says of the Centenary gifts:—

Spontaneous Centenary gifts.

It is the first united effort made in our Mission to contribute to the general funds of the C.M.S. It was entirely spontaneous and popular, everyone—young and old—brought something of their very own, not money only, but offerings of grain, stock, and personal apparel made by the donors. All offerings were sold by auction among the people themselves, and generally fetched more than their intrinsic value. It was a grand thing for the people to hear of great things done in the world near their own shores, and to learn how God had visited and redeemed their own sons and daughters at the beginning of things, forty years ago. It was a great occasion, and I believe a singular blessing will follow it.

The Peddapad Pastorate, having no ordained pastor of its own, was superintended by the Rev. G. H. Asirvatham. Forty-three persons were baptized after a prolonged catechumenate. Centenary gatherings were held at Nayadugadem, where there was a special Communion Service on Sunday, April 9th, 1899, while on the following day some three hundred Christians of the pastorate assembled, formed a procession in the village, and walked to the church singing lyrics. The church was decorated, and two of the native clergy spoke of the history and progress of the Society to a crowded congregation. The gifts of the people were afterwards sold by auction.

Forebodings of coming evil.

Mr. Asirvatham was in charge of the Polaveram Itinerancy, to which he paid three visits. Great forebodings of coming evil were entertained by the Hindus in November, which were of assistance to the workers in delivering their message. Twenty people were baptized during a single tour, and some members of the upper classes appeared to be earnest inquirers. The Lower Secondary Caste School at Polaveram itself contained from fifty to seventy boys, many of them Brahmans and high Sutras. Mr. Alexander says that it was splendid to see these fine boys answering in their Bible-lesson, while parents and friends sat near them listening, and adds:—

Caste people present at baptism of Chucklers.

> In the same town we have a Chuckler school and congregation, and the very next day several of these poor and despised people came to be baptized in the very same schoolroom. I was surprised to see a number of caste people gathered together on that occasion. Two rows of caste boys were seated on my right, and a number of Christian women and children on my left. The Chuckler candidates for baptism were in front, and a mass of Chuckler and Mala Christians behind them. Behind these again were a number of caste men and women who came out of curiosity to see the service; they listened most attentively to the preaching and watched the service to its close. We cannot say what impression was made on their hearts by the searching questions addressed to the candidates, "Dost thou renounce the Devil and all his works?" "Wilt thou keep God's holy will and commandments?" &c. One would think these questions were framed specially for India, so appropriate are they to our need.
> Two other caste schools have been arranged for in very important towns, and have actually been begun, and thirty-five children are under instruction. Another has been provided for; a teacher has been found and a school site purchased. These caste schools give us a great hold over the higher orders, and open the door for preaching the Gospel to that class in a way not otherwise to be secured.

The C.E.Z.M.S. has three European ladies, one assistant missionary, six Bible-women, and twenty-four native teachers engaged at Ellore.

RAGHAVAPURAM AND KHAMMAMETT.

Raghavapuram.

"The Centenary in the Jungle" is the title placed by the Rev. F. B. Maule at the head of his account of the celebration at RAGHAVAPURAM, for the nearest "town" where the common necessities of life may be obtained is twenty-eight miles distant, and the nearest railway station is twelve miles off. On April 12th a Thanksgiving Service, with Holy Communion, was held in the church. One of the Mission workers had carefully picked out from Mr. Stock's One Hundred Years the facts regarding the Telugu Mission, and these had been rendered by one of the Brahman converts into a lyric. With the singing of this the service opened. The Rev. A. Sabbarayudu preached to a congregation of some 560 people, and 134 partook of the Lord's Supper. The collection, which consisted of money, fowls, grain, &c., amounted to Rs. 24. A second service was held in the afternoon, the same "historical" hymn being used, and the Rev. James Stone told the story of the origin of some C.M.S. Missions, especially that to the Telugus. The forty native agents present took careful and copious notes of this, with a view to reproducing it to the congregations in the remote villages where the Centenary was celebrated the following week. The day concluded with sports in the Mission Bungalow compound. But although the people joined heartily in the Centenary celebrations, the Rev. J. Stone (now at home), who was in charge of the district, was not able to regard the condition of affairs as by any means satisfactory. He speaks of the work as almost at a standstill when compared with previous years, only thirty-seven adults having been baptized since 1896, and says:—

Caste troubles.

There has been a great deal of caste trouble, and even now one has to continually meet it. This seems to have brought with it a spirit of indifference with reference to Christian instruction and the ordinances of the Church. But what has saddened me perhaps more than this has been the ignorance of some of the agents and the almost utter lack of earnestness in others in their work. However, I have endeavoured to secure regular instruction for the catechumens and Christians. The names of many of the so-called catechumens, who showed no desire whatever to learn about Christ, nor even to attend the services, have been struck off our list, and periodical classes for instruction of the workers and services have been held. I trust that in a measure there has been an awakening. I thank God that we are not without some tokens of the work of His Holy Spirit among us.

Still, the apparent lack of desire to become communicants, as compared with the almost eagerness of former times, the great difficulty we have had in getting the baptized to come forward for confirmation and to attend the classes arranged for such, the actual refusal, occasionally, of an agent to work amongst those who were supposed formerly to be of a lower caste than himself, all show how much more remains to be done.

The Rev. M. K. Ramiar, the native clergyman, has sixteen agents working under him in the sixteen villages of the Raghavapuram Pastorate. The majority of the Christians are Malas or Madigas; happily there were no disputes between them, but the boys and girls of the two classes met freely, and had their meals together in the boarding-schools. The children decidedly advanced in their knowledge of the Bible, and there was a marked improvement in their truthfulness and in their character generally. The converts throughout the district, who are very poor, have not been accustomed in the past to give much towards religious work, but the year witnessed an advance in that respect, and there were some cases of real self-denial. Thus Mr. Stone, writing in January, 1900, says:—

A poor widow's gift.

In September last a poor widow, who had no means of living beyond what friends gave her, brought me Rs. 40, which she wished to be spent in providing lights, &c., for the pulpit in the church at Raghavapuram. When I expressed my surprise at her giving so large a sum, she said that she had been saving it ever since the church was opened, March, 1884—fifteen years—and that nothing she had done in her life had given her greater pleasure.

A chequered account is given by the Rev. A. Sabbarayudu of the inquirers in the Jaggiapett Pastorate. Several who had been on the roll for many years were struck off as unworthy, but on the other hand two Sudras made considerable progress in Scripture knowledge. One of them in particular, a potter, in eight months taught himself to read the Bible, and showed his earnestness by preaching the Gospel to his relatives and neighbours, with the result that a washerman and his family, living in an adjacent village, put themselves under instruction. Mr. Stone describes the events which led to the conversion of the potter as follows:—

A Sudra influenced by his faithful Christian employé.

About six years ago he had a poor inquirer working for him who refused to work on Sundays. When asked why, the only answer he could give was that it was God's day. Nothing that the potter could do or say moved the man to work on Sundays, and so the potter sent for the evangelist living in the neighbourhood, and had a long talk with him as to why the man would not work on Sundays. He then talked the matter over with his heathen mother, who pointed out that even amongst Hindus (Sudras) many would not draw milk on Sundays, and many others would not spin cotton, &c. At last the potter came to the conclusion that his people had only tiny bits of the truth, and, starting with the idea that Sunday was God's day, he began to seek for light; the spark, so to speak, smouldered; gradually it was fanned into a flame. The man learnt to read; he now spends most of his leisure time in reading God's Word and singing Christian hymns. To hear him read a few verses in the Bible, and to see the happiness depicted in the man's face as he speaks of Christ as his Saviour, do one good.

Evangelistic work was carried on by the usual methods, but it was evident that false ideas concerning Christianity were prevalent, for such questions as "Is not Krishna the same as Christ?" "Is not the Hindu doctrine of transmigration the same as the Christian doctrine of the New Birth?" and the like, were sometimes asked at the close of the meetings. Language study occupied practically the whole of Mr. Maule's time, and he was unable to accomplish much other work.

Khammamett.

The Centenary was celebrated at KHAMMAMETT with enthusiasm. Nearly every village was represented at the gatherings at the central station, and the time spent in considering the work at other stations and in other Missions is said to have been especially profitable. The Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Panes were largely engaged in "building up" in a two-fold sense. There was first the erection of a new church, the foundation stone of which was laid on Centenary Day, when Rs. 265 were contributed to the building fund. The church, which is intended to accommodate three hundred people, is to consist of two transepts connected with the nave and chancel by stone arches; the material used for the walls is blue granite, and the roof is to be made of the best teak wood, covered with pantiles of local manufacture. The estimated cost is Rs. 5,600, of which all but Rs. 1,000 has been raised. In the other form of building up, viz., the edification of the Native Christians, Mr. Panes was assisted by his native helpers, whose number he was able to increase by five, four of whom had been trained at Masulipatam. The school made good progress during the year, there being an improvement both in the numbers taught and in the regularity of attendance. Amongst the seventy pupils were several Mohammedan boys, but only two or three high-caste Hindus; one of the latter showed marked interest in the Scripture lessons.

Foundation-stone of a new church laid on Centenary Day.

Pastoral work.

The work among the congregations in the Khammamett Pastorate is described as "very satisfactory," though there were not many baptisms; several took place, however, in four of the villages belonging to the Gopavaram Pastorate. Mr. Panes visited this last-named pastorate in November, accompanied by Mrs. Panes and one of the Zenana ladies. When it was known that the latter had brought medicine, the people flocked round her, and on one day as many as eighty patients were treated. The adherents in the Kalakudem and Govindapuram Pastorates, under the Rev. K. David, numbered about four hundred, and were distributed over nineteen villages. Two of the new workers were assigned to the Nadigudem Pastorate, houses for their residence being provided by the people. A good tiled prayer-house was in process of erection in the town of that name, and in one of the villages the head-man, a leading official, was reading the Bible regularly with the teacher.

When Mr. Panes wrote his Annual Letter there were signs that another famine was imminent. The rainfall was only a little over half the average, and even so early as December the majority of the water tanks were empty, and the chief food of the villagers was double the normal price. In the course of the year thirty-one adults and forty-nine children were baptized. One of the former was a Mohammedan widow, "a quiet, humble, intelligent woman," the first-fruits of the work of the two European ladies of the C.E.Z.M.S., who had two Bible-women and one native teacher associated with them.

DUMMAGUDEM.

Dummagudem.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. Cain were cheered by the arrival early in the year of a colleague in the person of Mr. A. J. Carr, of the New Zealand C.M. Association, but unfortunately his stay at DUMMAGUDEM was brief, through illness, and he has been located at Palamcotta, in Tinnevelly. Mr. Cain was fortunate, however, in the character of his native helpers, of whom he says that he cannot speak too highly. The Schools vindicated their existence by being the means not only of training up children to become agents of the Mission, but also of raising the whole tone of the Church in their neighbourhood, and spreading a knowledge of the life of our Lord. The village schools had a prosperous year, but a determined attempt was made to close one near to Dummagudem, which was however frustrated by the transference to another place of the antagonistic official. In the absence of Miss Graham, of the C.E.Z.M.S., the Dispensary work was carried on by Mrs. Cain. One day two Mohammedan women appeared who had come a distance of sixty miles in order that they might have the advantage of the kind and careful treatment of which they had heard. Among the patients was a caste man who, after listening with great attention to the story of the Saviour's love for sinners, remarked, "It is a beautiful story, and I believe it all, but I am now too old to leave all my relations and be baptized; but when I see Him I will clasp His feet and tell Him all, and don't you think that He will receive me?"

Moslem women travel 60 miles to dispensary.

"It is a beautiful story, and I believe it all."

The Centenary was celebrated, but only in a quiet way, the special offerings which were made at that time being devoted to building a school in a neighbouring village where there were some earnest inquirers. The Church Committee observed the event by sending evangelists out at its own expense on special tours. The prospects of famine in the district were very alarming in November, for the River Godavári was then only the height which is usual in the month of May; indeed it was said to be lower than at any time during the last century, while in the Malkanagiri district there was such a scarcity of water that some of the Christians were compelled to emigrate. Even then, although the famine was only beginning, the distress was great. Mrs. Cain wrote on November 24th:—

Feeding on roots and grass-seed gruel.

There was a poor woman at the dispensary a few days ago; I gave her some medicine and told her she must drink some warm gruel. The tears came into her eyes as she said, "Gruel! why we had nothing but roots yesterday, and to-day I felt too ill to dig, and this is all I have to eat," showing some little pieces of lily root. Again yesterday a poor young man was here with a child. He was trembling very much, and I asked him if anything were the matter. "No," he said, "only I am very hungry. There was so little grass seed last night and the children wanted it all for gruel, so I have had nothing since mid-day yesterday." I asked, "And then what did you have?" He said, "Grass-seed gruel; it is very nice, only the seeds are so small it takes such a time to gather the seed and beat it out."

Of the crying of the Heathen, in response to which there was "neither voice nor any to answer nor any that regarded," Mr. Cain says:—

The pathetic crying of the Heathen in prospect of famine.

The Hindus and Kois made frantic efforts to induce some Devata to intercede for them; processions were made to the idols under green trees, fowls and goats sacrificed, repetitions from sacred books were encouraged by large donations to the readers, and even the tomb of a merchant who died in 1891 was visited and offerings there made. But all these efforts were in vain, and the predictions of terrible disaster this year, which have been in the air for many months past, were declared to be fulfilled.

A good deal of trouble fell to the lot of the Christians during the year under review as in former times, a fact which it is said deterred others from becoming adherents.

The importance of shepherding Christians in view of the trials and temptations by which they are surrounded was emphasized by the fall of a prominent convert at Rampa, who was guilty of grievous sin. But there was a striking instance of faithfulness as well as of defection. An earnest Christian died in a distant corner of the district, and his wife and a newly-married young girl were the only Christians at the place, but nevertheless, when the corpse was carried to the grave, the young girl bravely read the Burial Service before the crowd of heathen friends. At Malkanagiri the pastor, the Rev. M. Gnanasigamoni, suffered a severe trial through the dangerous illness of his wife, which hindered him from visiting the scattered Christians in the district under his charge.

A brave Christian girl.

The work among the Kois, one of the aboriginal tribes of India, for whose benefit this station was originally occupied, proved disappointing.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. at Dummagudem consisted of Miss Graham (absent on furlough) and Miss Fröhlich. Mrs. Dowling also worked among the women and girls.

III. TINNEVELLY.

Mr. Martin Browne, who laboured for many years in the Telugu Mission, was transferred after his furlough to Tinnevelly. He sailed in November, 1899. Mrs. R. F. Ardell and Mrs. H. J. Schaffter came home in May, 1899; the Rev. R. F. Ardell, on medical certificate, in July; the Rev. and Mrs. A. N. C. Storrs, after a prolonged stay in Australia, returned again to England in October, owing to the critical state of health of the former; and the Rev. J. McL. Hawkins and Miss Thomas came home in April, 1900.

At an ordination in Tinnevelly, on December 24th, the Bishop of Tinnevelly and Madura admitted to deacons' orders Messrs. Savarimuttu Mathirendram Devadas, Yesudiyan Gnanapragasam, and Arulappen Devadas.

Ordinations.

Careful and extensive preparations were made for the celebration of the Centenary in Tinnevelly by a special Sub-Committee of the District Church Council, which was entitled "The Centenary Observation Sub-Committee," the most noteworthy feature being the organized effort to preach the Gospel to every man, woman, and child in the district during the closing three months of the first century of the Society's existence. The suggestion was warmly taken up; detailed arrangements were left in the hands of the authorities of the different circles, who eagerly welcomed the idea; and though it was impossible to believe that every individual heard the Gospel message, yet it was indubitable that many were reached, and that a number of the Christians were stirred up to greater zeal in evangelistic work. In the Sachiapuram Circle, for instance, it was calculated that there were more than half a million hearers in 1,327 different villages, and thirty-six people put themselves under instruction, thirteen of whom were afterwards baptized. The Rev. E. S. Carr, Chairman of the District Church Council, says:—

> We have heard of definite results here and there. In the west we hear of half a village who have put themselves under instruction; and also of two influential men in another village who have done the same. In the south we hear of a man who had backslidden after being a Christian for several years, and had become a terrible devil-dancer. This man was convinced of his sin, and has expressed his desire to come back to Christianity.

Concerning the plans made by the Sub-Committee the same missionary writes:—

Celebrations in Palamcotta.

> For the actual celebration in Palamcotta three days were set apart, Tuesday to Thursday, April 11–13. As the church is too small for the numbers we expected to be present, it was decided to erect a large pandal (a roof of cocoa-nut-leaf mats on a framework of poles and cross bars), open at the sides, sixty yards long and thirty-five yards broad, thus covering nearly half an acre of land. It was erected in the High School compound, by the kind permission of the manager, between two beautiful banyan trees, which would give a certain amount of shade in the mornings and evenings. It was difficult, nay, impossible, to seat so large an area; so it was at first decided that seats should not be provided except for those who chose to pay for them. A considerable portion of the cost of the pandal was met by the income from reserved seats. But before the day came we had unusual rain till Sunday the 9th, which made the ground so wet that it was impossible to think of sitting on it. On Monday, therefore, we went round to all the institutions and schools, and by the kind permission of the managers we took all the seats available, including those from our church, and were thus able to accommodate about 2,000 people.

There is no space to give a full report of all the meetings which were held; it must suffice to append the description furnished by Mr. Carr of the proceedings on April 12th, the central day of the festival:—

> It opened with a celebration of the Holy Communion in the Tamil church. The seats having been removed to the pandal, we all sat on the floor. A special arrangement was made that the administration might be the more easily and quickly effected, there being over 600 communicants. The sermon was preached by the Bishop, and the whole service was orderly and reverent, thanks to the arrangements made beforehand, and well carried out by the stewards. As all could not possibly be accommodated in the church, a special service for children was held at the same time in the pandal.

An offertory service.

> The offertory service was held at 11 a.m., the preacher being the Rev. E. S. Carr. After the sermon the collection was taken. It amounted, including some cheques, some sacks of grain, four or five jewels, and a box containing Rs.100, to almost Rs.1,000. The box mentioned was in reality given the day before. On opening it we found a Centenary gift indeed. A paper at the top showed that it contained the following:—

	Annas		Rs.
From the head of the family . . .	100 × 8	=	50	0 0
From his wife	100 × 4	=	25	0 0
„ eldest child	100 × 2	=	12	8 0
„ second „	100 × 1	=	6	4 0
„ third „	100 × ½	=	3	2 0
	pies
„ fourth „	100 × 3	=	1	9 0
„ fifth „	100 × 1½	=	0	12 6
„ servant	100 × 1	=	0	8 4
From the box	100 × ½	=	0	4 2
Total Rs. . . .			100	0 0

This showed much ingenuity and care, and though the one-anna pieces, one-and-half-pie pieces, and half-pie pieces, which do not exist, were accounted for by fifty two-anna pieces, fifty three-pie pieces, and fifty one-pie pieces, it was a unique Centenary gift, and a handsome one, too.

At 5.15 p.m. the clergy met in the Usborne School to put on their surplices, and we walked in procession, to the number of about fifty, to the site for the new hall close by, where the foundation stone was ready prepared for being laid. A form of service for the laying of a foundation stone was used, and the stone was laid by the Bishop. It was of black granite, the face being polished and bearing the inscription: "C.M.S. Centenary, April 12, 1899." A bottle containing a copy of the programme of the meetings and a copy of an address which was to be presented at the next meeting to the Home Committee, of which more below, was placed underneath it. After the stone had been laid the Bishop gave an address to the assembled crowd.

Address to the Home Committee.

The day's proceedings closed with a praise meeting in the pandal at 7 p.m. At the commencement of the meeting an address was presented by some of the leading men of the congregations (all the graduates of the Madras University present, about twenty-five in number, being arrayed in their academical robes) to the Home Committee. It was contained in a beautiful casket of sandal-wood, was presented by Mr. Martin Luther, B.A., the headmaster of the Palamcotta High School, and read by Mr. M. D. Devadas Pillay, B.A., B.L., a leading lawyer. It was received by the Chairman of the District Church Council on behalf of the Home Committee, and forwarded to the Home Committee through the C.M.S. Secretary, Madras. A large number of signatures have been appended, and it expresses the thanks of the Christian community for what has been done and their loyal adherence to the principles of the C.M.S.

Faction riots.

In strange and sad contrast to the scenes which have just been described were those connected with what have since become known as "the faction riots." For some years the relations between the Shanars (palmyra climbing caste) and the Maravars (thief caste) have been very strained, the former being a thrifty and pushing set of people, and having greatly increased in wealth, thereby incurring the jealousy of the other castes, of whom the Maravars are said to have been the tools. The ill-feeling culminated in a dispute concerning the right of the Shanars to enter certain caste temples, and led to a number of most serious riots, of which the Rev. P. G. Simeon says:—

to place carrying fire and bloodshed to every village inhabited by the Shanars for about three weeks. It is computed that 150 Shanar villages were devastated, 4,000 houses were pillaged and burnt and razed to the ground, numerous gardens, plantations, and fields were destroyed, and a loss of more than four or five lakhs of rupees was brought about, besides numerous unspeakable acts of violence, cruelty, and outrage.

The most serious mischief was done at Sivagâsi, where, after the fighting, twenty-three corpses, many of them headless, were found, representing, probably, less than half the number killed, since the Maravars, the attacking party, always carried off their dead and wounded for fear of recognition. The Christians, of course, were not involved in the dispute, and so the Mission property in Sivagâsi itself escaped untouched in the midst of the destruction of some eight hundred houses by fire. At first, too, the converts themselves were spared, and indeed the chief of the rioters promised that they should not be molested. Thus, the late Rev. S. Paul wrote:—

Mission property respected.

"This is a Christian's house."

> Many Christians wrote in front of their houses, "This is a Christian's house," and thus escaped from looting. A few hung up Christian pictures, so that the mob might leave their houses free from molestation. However, as the mob grew strong they became unmanageable, consequently our Christians in two villages suffered much.

And Mr. Carr mentions a curious incident:—

> In one village a man's house was unmolested, as he was said to be a Christian, but after leaving the village the Maravars heard that he was not then a Christian, so returned and looted his house. He turned out to be an excommunicate!

But he adds:—

> This exemption did not extend to the western part of the district. There the Christians came in for their full share of trouble. I went round a few days after the riots to most of the villages where Christians had suffered, to show sympathy with the sufferers and to see what could be done for them. In one place the attacking party had not been content with looting the whole village and then burning it, including the house occupied by two poor Christian widows, but they had also cut down all the palmyra-trees standing by the houses, so that they might fall on the mud walls, which were still intact, and break them down! Their rage passes description. One curious fact is that there was a wide-spread report that the Queen (awful libel on her love for her Indian subjects!) had ordered the destruction of the Shanars for six weeks, and there is no doubt that many of those who joined in the riots were induced to do so by this report. The Maravars further threatened to burn the houses of all those who did not join with them in their work of destruction, so it practically came to be the world against the Shanars!

A catechist killed by the rioters.

The actual riots were soon stopped by the calling out of the military, but unhappily the ill-feeling did not subside, but broke out in occasional acts of violence, of one of which Mr. R. Muthusamy, a catechist of the Society, was the victim. He was suspected of having reported the movements of the robbers to the Government authorities, and one day, while he was bathing in a well, three Maravars threw huge stones down upon him, breaking his skull and ten of his ribs. The efforts made to turn these troubles to good account resulted in a large number of inquirers coming forward, some six hundred placing themselves under instruction in the Surandei Circle; it was necessary, however, to exercise great care in receiving them, since many people entertained the idea that relief was brought indirectly through the Christians.

Preparandi Training Institution.

The Rev. T. Kember reports on the work at the Preparandi Training Institution, PALAMCOTTA, of which he was Principal. The year under review began with sixteen students in the Senior Theological Class, but one died in February, 1899, and another who had scarcely sufficient aptitude for study to make it worth while for him to go through the full course, left in the following month for employment. The men did well in the quarterly examinations, but the results in the Bishop's Bible Prize Examinations were hardly up to the average, although all but one passed in the first class, and the third prize was gained. All the men took part in the special effort to reach the Heathen which was made in connexion with the Centenary, and regularly engaged in evangelistic work in the streets in order that they might have practical experience in the discharge of the duties of a catechist. The usual custom in the past has been for the members of the Junior Theological Class to have a course of study lasting for one year only, but the special preaching interrupted their ordinary work so much that all of them remained until the end of June, 1899, instead of leaving six months earlier. One of the ten men, who appeared to be a promising convert, was treacherously led into sin by his relatives, who knew that if he fell into their snare he would not dare to continue to profess himself a Christian. This of course was a great sorrow to the missionaries, but on the other hand they were cheered by the steady progress made by Abraham, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 262). He experienced a heavy trial through the death of his wife, who was carried off by cholera, but Mr. Kember speaks of him as "advancing in the knowledge of Divine things, and learning in the school of suffering many lessons of spiritual experience." Good examination results were obtained in the Normal Department, in the Primary Class of which there were nineteen students, and in the Lower Secondary fifteen. As the course of training only lasts for a year, a total of thirty-four teachers left for employment in various spheres of work. Seventy-seven of the ninety on the rolls of the Practising School were Christians, and the teachers are described as "painstaking and faithful." In order that the students might be equipped as fully as possible for the work before them, a class was established for the benefit of their wives, with a competent Bible-woman as teacher, but their mental calibre differed so much that it was not easy to instruct them very satisfactorily.

High School.

The High School continues under Mr. E. Keyworth, who reports two deaths—the one of a schoolmaster who for twenty-seven years had been engaged in "kindly, faithfully, and ably" teaching the Gospel to his fellow-countrymen, and who patiently endured a most painful illness; and the other of an orphan boy, who in his delirium spoke of Christ as his Saviour. All the lads who were sent up for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination passed, and in the University Entrance Examination nine out of thirteen were successful. Sixteen out of twenty-six passed the Lower Secondary Examination, and fourteen out of fifteen the Primary Test. Some of the Hindu boys boarded with Christians, and joined daily in the games of their Christian schoolfellows. Of the nineteen pupils of the Dohnavur Boys' Boarding-school who were sent up for the Primary Test all but one succeeded, while from the Mary Arden School eight out of ten passed the Lower Secondary Examination, and ten out of ten the Primary Test. Mr. Keyworth, who in all had 160 boarders and 300 day-boys under his care, says that several Mohammedan boys in the last-mentioned school learned the Bible daily. The father of one of them came seeking baptism, the first Mohammedan, it was believed, to do so at Palamcotta; the consequence was that his co-religionists came to his house, broke his scanty furniture, tore his clothes, destroyed his Christian books, abused him foully, and threatened his life. His household being terrified, ceased to receive Bible instruction from the pastor, but the boy continued to attend the school both in the week and on Sundays.

A Mohammedan persecuted for seeking baptism.

Mr. Keyworth found many opportunities of speaking about religion, even when engaged in teaching a Shakespearian play and other English books, for the many noble Christian sentiments expressed rendered it easy to lead up to instruction in Scriptural truths.

Sarah Tucker College.

Miss A. J. Askwith, of the C.E.Z.M.S., who superintended the Sarah Tucker College of the Society, writing in May, 1899, expressed herself as disappointed in the secular results of the year on which she reports. A detailed statement of the examination returns would be somewhat confusing, so numerous were the tests for which the pupils were entered. The most disappointing was the examination of the Matriculation Class, in which only one out of ten succeeded, and the most encouraging the Tamil Lower Secondary Examination, which eight out of ten passed, two of them in the first class, and the Tamil Lower Secondary Training Class Test, in which seven out of eight were successful. The numbers in all the departments continued to increase, and it became a serious problem how to accommodate all the girls. The Industrial Class in connexion with the Institution proved useful, and the work in the Deaf and Dumb Schools and in the Blind Deaf and Dumb and Blind Schools.

School, to use Mr. Keyworth's words, "was marvellous in successful philanthropy, and a noble example of self-denial for the glory of God and the good of man." One of the blind boys was the only one in the Primary Board Examination who obtained full marks in arithmetic! It need hardly be said that the manifold secular organizations were not carried on at the expense of care for the spiritual welfare of the children. By means of the Daily Bible Reading Union, the Children's Scripture Union, the Gleaners' Union, the Sowers' Band, and the Y.W.C.A., diligent efforts were made to win the pupils for Christ, and to lead them to exert themselves for the amelioration of the spiritual and temporal lot of others less fortunate than themselves. The official report which Mrs. Kember received after the annual inspection of the Girls' Boarding-school spoke favourably of its general efficiency. The Bible was carefully taught, and the secular work was equally well done, for all passed who sat for the Primary Examination, and two-thirds of those who entered for the Lower Secondary Examination. A confirmation class was held for several months, twenty-seven of the members of which were confirmed in October. Twenty-four girls left during the year: two of these went to the College for normal training in English, and seven for that in the vernacular; one went to the Sarah Tucker College for higher education; three were married; and one returned to the school in the capacity of assistant-mistress. The number on the roll in December was just over one hundred.

Girls' Boarding-school.

The Rev. H. J. Schaffter was sore pressed in the work of the College in Tinnevelly Town owing to the breakdown of the Rev. R. F. Ardell, which necessitated his return to England, but Mr. Keyworth came to the rescue until the arrival of Mr. M. Browne, formerly of the Telugu Mission, restored the staff to its usual strength. The year was memorable at the College for the best results that have been known since Mr. Schaffter became Principal. Fourteen of the students passed the Matriculation Examination, and the same number the First in Arts, seven of the latter being Christians. Mr. Schaffter mentions the case of a young man from one of the branch schools who joined the High School at the beginning of the year with an earnest desire to confess Christ, and says:—

The College.

> The headmaster of the branch school, a most earnest worker, told me that he has been asking for baptism for the past three years. The pastor here saw a good deal of him, and on Easter Sunday he was baptized, and at the last visit of the Bishop he was confirmed. What is rather noteworthy about his baptism is that, though of a good caste, his father continues to support him. I have never known such a case before. When his father, who lives forty miles from here, came to see me, I asked him if he knew of his son's desire to be a Christian. He said he had known it for over three years. Had he any objection? None at all. He could not for family reasons become a Christian himself, but he was quite willing his son should be one, and he would continue to support him; and then he gave this strange reason: "I have noticed Christians are coming to the front, and I want my son to come to the front!" I am thankful to say this is not his son's idea. He sets a bright example in the College; punctual, hard-working, and always wearing a beaming smile, he has won the good-will of all, and never fails to bring one or other of the Heathen to the services.

Itinerating Band.

A prominent part in the special evangelistic effort which was made at the beginning of the year under review was taken by the Itinerating Band, under the Rev. J. C. McL. Hawkins, who was joined in July by the Rev. Ll. G. S. Price. The latter was present at Vallioor on the occasion of the festival in honour of Valli, the wife of Subramanian, son of Siva, and says that from early morning crowds of men, women, and children went round the great rock on which the temple stands—a distance of about half a mile—prostrating themselves, and measuring their length on the ground. One of the holy men connected with the temple came to the missionaries, and had a long talk with them, but it was evident that he wished to identify Christ with Subramanian. In another village five young men came forward, saying that they wished to embrace Christianity.

Spiritual state of the Native Church.

Special importance attaches in heathen lands, even more than elsewhere, to the condition of the spiritual life of those who profess and call themselves Christians, and therefore all who desire the spread of the Gospel must regard with intense interest the reports of such missionaries as are engaged in the endeavour to deepen the spirituality of the converts, and lead them to shine as lights in the midst of the crooked and perverse generation among whom they live. The Rev. T. Walker, who devoted himself chiefly to direct evangelistic work in the villages of Tinnevelly, had special opportunities of gauging the condition of the Native Church, and the impression left on his mind by what he witnessed was not by any means favourable. He says:—

What appears to a superficial glance.

Winter visitors to the Tinnevelly district see in a few main centres large substantial churches, filled with congregations of Tamil Christians looking bright and happy, and singing heartily. They are also taken the round of imposing educational institutions, where large classes of boys and girls are being trained for the work of life. They hear further, it may be, that, in certain parts of the district, there are considerable congregations at frequent intervals (though they fail to realize that this is not the case in the more extended tracts, but chiefly in two or three corners of Tinnevelly). Perhaps they are present at mass gatherings of Tamil agents, and are struck by the number of native clergy, catechists, and schoolmasters who have assembled together to bid the visitors welcome. All this is pleasant to the eye and cheering to the mind. True, it is only a superficial glance at things, but the visitor immediately jumps to the conclusion that Tinnevelly has been already won for Christ, and that what he has seen is typical of the work all through the district. Alas! he little realizes that the main fortresses of Hinduism are, as yet, scarcely touched, and that the chief towns of the district are almost as heathen as they were 200 years ago. He little suspects that there are thousands of Hindu women who have never heard or seen a Christian missionary, and that there are many villages where the presence of an English lady proves for the time being one of "the wonders of the world." The proud

Brahman stalks along the street with the utmost contempt for the religion of Christ, and can boast that the Tinnevelly converts, from his community at least, during the whole period of our missionary operations, can be counted on his ten fingers. After more than 100 years of earnest missionary work, we can only claim in our Native Church (I use conventional language) "a sprinkling from the higher classes."

But what shall be said of those who are professed followers of Christ? Native Church statistics look imposing. It sounds promising to hear of 50,000 Tamil Christians and 800 or 900 Tamil workers. To the superficial observer all seems fair and hopeful. It has taken some of us missionaries a long time to look under the surface to the inner reality of things. There is a sensitive plant in South India which is green and fair, and bears a flower of lovely hue. In some places whole beds of it stretch far and wide, a delight and a refreshment to the eye. But if you touch it the flowers droop and the leaves curl up into a shapeless skeleton. The "vision of beauty" has disappeared. I have often thought of that shrinking plant as, in some respects, an emblem of the Tinnevelly Church. How much that is fair to all appearance shrivels at the touch of truth! A look under the surface.

There was, alas! but too good reason to believe that some of the converts, influenced either by bribes or by threats, gave false evidence during the inquiries which were instituted after the riots. But there were several signs of promise for the future. Some who had been excommunicated in past years showed repentance for their sins and were restored; a few young men here and there gave evidence of real earnestness and spirituality; and there were some individual cases which afforded cause for rejoicing. Thus in one village Mr. Carr found a man who had been led to Christ by the consistent behaviour and persistent prayers of his Christian wife; in another, a girl whom the missionaries had not seen, though they knew of her and had prayed for her, came out from Heathenism in spite of the hostility of the Hindus; and at Panneivilei, where Mr. Walker resided, the work among the children was decidedly encouraging. Mr. B. Herklots, of the Children's Special Service Mission, accompanied for part of the time by Mr. Price, went to the various Circles, and conducted a number of meetings, which were generally well attended. Signs of promise. Work among children.

There are a few interesting passages in the Annual Letters of the native clergy, who on the whole refer hopefully to the work under their charge. The Rev. V. Gnánamuttu, of Arumuganêri, tells of a man, over one hundred years of age, who became a Christian in the time of the late Rev. J. Thomas, and who was accustomed to give liberally towards the Native Church and other funds. In 1899, when the time came for the collections to be made in the village where he lived, he caused himself to be carried to the church, in order that he might have the joy of paying his annual contribution with his own hands. An aged Christian's Centenary contribution.

There was a rather remarkable conversion in the Suvisêshapuram Circle, of which the Rev. P. G. Simeon writes:—

An old man of nearly seventy, a great swaggerer, in the village of Suvisêshapuram, picked a quarrel with the Mission agent of the same place.

He wanted to carry a complaint to me against the Mission agent, but the day being Sunday he was informed that the pastor could not be seen on such a matter. He was loitering in Suvisêshapuram when he heard the church bells ringing, and saw the people clean clad going to the church. Out of curiosity he also stepped in, and remained there during the whole service. The sermon on the occasion was about certain works of the Holy Ghost convicting and comforting the sinner. The Word of God touched his heart and entered deep into it. The man returned to his village silent and quiet, but the next morning he came back to me, not to complain against his Mission agent, but to request me to accept him into the Fold of Christ. Taking advantage of his altered state of mind, I instructed him and prayed with him. Afterwards he came regularly on Sundays to the church in Suvisêshapuram. After testing his faith and putting him under further instruction, I baptized him with the name of Simeon, in remembrance of my own great-grandfather who was converted and baptized at the age of eighty with the same name.

Convicted by a sermon.

A branch of the Gleaners' Union was set on foot in the Sâchiâpuram Circle, which met monthly, and had forty-nine members on the roll in December; and a similar organization was established for the benefit of the Vâgaikulam Circle.

The Rev. E. A. Douglas, who assumed charge of the work at MENGNANAPURAM on his return from furlough at the end of 1898, found that there was much lost ground to be recovered, but he was encouraged by the way in which the people responded to his efforts and his exhortations. A week's mission conducted by Mr. Herklots, who addressed the young people in the mornings and the adults in the evenings, was productive of much good, and led to the revivifying of the Sunday-school, twenty-two classes of adults being formed, and eight of children, in addition to those in connexion with the boarding-schools. Several of the converts, too, commenced to engage in evangelistic work.

Elliot Tuxford School.

The Elliot Tuxford School was under the late Mrs. Thomas, Miss F. E. Thomas (now at home), and Miss E. C. Vines. Three of the six girls who entered for the Peter Cator Scripture Examination obtained certificates, and ten out of the eleven who sat for the Government Lower Secondary Examination passed. The opening of a new school in the neighbouring heathen village of Manad was manifestly an answer to definite prayer. Miss Vines for some time had in hand the money for the purpose, sent from some friends at home, and the people promised a schoolroom, but they so long delayed to provide it that it hardly seemed right to continue to leave the money unutilized. In the emergency some of the girls and teachers agreed with Miss Vines to pray about the matter for ten days, and on the day before the expiration of the appointed time a boy suddenly appeared, saying that his uncle had a room suitable for the purpose. The work was commenced almost directly, and when the Bishop went over and examined the children, he was well pleased with the progress which had been made.

During the year Mr. Douglas contrived to visit every congregation in the district, besides conducting two Missions at Satankulam, the one for Christians and the other for Hindus. Concerning the question of Sunday observance, which was taken up by the Church Council, he writes:—

After the death of Mr. Thomas, the evil custom of climbing the palmyra trees thrice a day on Sundays as well as on other days crept into the church. (In his time two climbings only were allowed on Sundays, these being considered necessary.) Can we wonder if many of the palmyra-climbers are cold and dead in spiritual things, when for three months in the year at least they do not attend service on Sundays? I am glad to say that when the matter was put before the people of this pastorate they readily gave up the Sunday climbing, and the movement is spreading widely. This year we are arranging to make careful experiments on Mission trees to see whether even climbing twice on Sundays is, as the people strongly hold, necessary. Question of Sunday work.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had twelve European ladies, sixty-two Bible-women, and fifty-six native teachers on its staff in Tinnevelly. A young widow of good caste was baptized, and her cousin was under instruction.

TRAVANCORE AND COCHIN MISSION.

The Mission in the semi-independent Native States of Travancore and Cochin, which occupy a narrow strip of country on the south-western coast of India, between the Ghaut mountains and the sea, was established in 1816 at the invitation of Colonel Munro, the British Resident. For twenty years it was worked by Benjamin Bailey, Joseph Fenn, Henry Baker, sen., and others, mainly with a view to the reform of the ancient Malabar Syrian Church, which claims to have been founded by the Apostle St. Thomas. Since 1837 the missionaries have worked independently, the result of which has been not only the adhesion of many Syrians to the purer worship of the Church of England, but an active reforming movement within their own Church, which was much fostered by the late Metran, Mar Athanasius. The labours of Peet, Hawksworth, H. Baker, jun., and others, among the Heathen, particularly the lowest castes and the Hill Arrians, have been also greatly blessed. Allepie was occupied in 1816; Cottayam, 1817; Cochin, 1817; Mávelikara, 1839; Trichur, 1842; Pallam, 1845; Tiruwella, 1849; Kunnankulam, 1854; the Arrian Mission, 1855; and the Alwaye Itinerancy, 1881.

On July 25th, 1879, the Rev. J. M. Speechly, a C.M.S. missionary and for some time Principal of the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, was consecrated first Bishop of Travancore and Cochin. On his resignation in 1889 the Rev. E. N. Hodges, who had previously been Principal of the Noble College, Masulipatam, and of the Trinity College, Kandy, Ceylon, was nominated to See, and was consecrated in 1890.

Deaths of Archdeacon Koshi Koshi,

ONE of the pillars of the Travancore Mission was removed by the death at Cottayam, on November 19th, 1899, of the Ven. Koshi Koshi, D.D., Archdeacon of Mávelikara, after more than forty years of faithful missionary service in connexion with the Church Missionary Society. A Syrian Christian, educated in the Cottayam College, he was ordained deacon in 1856, and priest in 1859 by the Bishop of Madras, and thereafter for a period of forty-three years he laboured assiduously as pastor in various C.M.S. stations in Travancore. He distinguished himself for his valuable literary work, particularly in connexion with the translation of the Bible into the Malayalam language, for his services in connexion with which he received in 1891 the degree of D.D. from the Archbishop of Canterbury. The European missionaries who were most closely associated with him testify both to his personal holiness and to the exceeding value of the work which he was permitted to accomplish. Thus the Bishop of Travancore writes:—

> He held a unique position among the clergy, and the Church has lost a support and an ornament. It was a great satisfaction to him to see the revised New Testament in circulation, and the result of the T.Y.E. filled him with grateful wonder and praise. . . . The example of a life of holy consistency and devotion to evangelical truth has left its mark behind it.

The Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards, who spent much time with the late Archdeacon as a fellow-member of the Malayalam New Testament Revision Committee, says:—

> He could not forget all he and his owed to the C.M.S., that handmaid of the Anglican Church, and at times he has, in his public utterances, given vigorous expression to truths which some of his own Syrian race, not yet reformed, were keen to feel and to resent. His example in continuing as a Mission worker on small pay and in comparative obscurity is a striking evidence of his sincerity. He felt very deeply that the Divine blessing rested upon the C.M.S., and he has noticed to me that it was a remarkable proof of this, that there was no man who, even upon such a small salary as five or six rupees a month, had faithfully worked in the Mission who had not left his family well provided for. When the T.Y.E. was started in 1896, he at once put down his name to subscribe a month's salary for each year, and then at the end vowed the same for his life. Archdeacon Koshi was a man of prayer and very humble before God, and I have often noticed his firm belief in the efficacy of prayer.

and Mrs. W. Clark.

Mrs. W. Clark, wife of the Rev. W. Clark, who laboured in Tinnevelly from 1848 to 1866, in Ceylon from 1868 to 1879, and in this Mission from 1880 to 1884, died on January 27th, 1900. Mrs. Clark was a daughter of the Rev. Henry Baker, senior, and a sister of the Rev. Henry Baker, junior, who laboured for 47 and 35 years respectively in Travancore.

Appointment of a native Archdeacon.

The Rev. Oomen Mámen, who was ordained in 1856, has been instituted Archdeacon of Mávelikara in place of the late Dr. Koshi.

Ordinations.

On September 24th, 1899, at Christ Church, Cottayam, the Bishop of Travancore and Cochin admitted Messrs. Wattacherie Cherian Cherian and Kallur Philip Varkki to deacons' orders. Three other Natives were ordained at the same time, but they are not working in connexion with the Society. On March 11th, 1900, Messrs. Cherikal Chakko Thommen and Elannikal Varkki Mani were ordained deacons.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Bishop sailed for the Mission in November, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. E. Bellerby in March, 1900.

In few parts of the Mission-field was the Three Years' Enterprise more cordially worked than in Travancore, and at the closing meeting in August the Secretaries of the T.Y.E. Fund reported that, after deducting all expenses, a sum of more than Rs. 10,000 was in hand to form a "Central Fund" for the Diocesan Council, the interest to be applied to supplement the Council funds, and to relieve the Society as soon as possible of the payment of grants towards the salaries of pastors and other agencies of the Council. But the amount of money contributed does not represent the full benefit which the Church in Travancore and Cochin received through the Enterprise, for Bishop Hodges, writing of the meeting referred to, says:—

The Three Years' Enterprise a spiritual uplifting.

Stress was laid on the spiritual effects of the movement, which, if real, will inevitably result in an increase of liberality, and continued efforts to go forward. It is with unfeigned gratitude to God that I record that the T.Y.E., under the good hand of our God upon us, was the occasion of inaugurating a real spiritual uplifting throughout the diocese, though more marked in some places than others, and it is the general desire not to recede from the new level attained, but from it to go up higher from strength to strength, and to call nothing which is a manifest duty impossible.

Pastorates.

Few reports, excepting concerning the Centenary celebrations, have been received about the work of the native pastors. The COTTAYAM CHURCH COUNCIL has ten pastorates connected with it. In the Olesha Pastorate, which is under the care of the Rev. E. V. John, who has been appointed one of the Bishop's junior chaplains, special Centenary meetings took place on April 11th, 1899, and on the 12th a service was held in the church at 9 a.m. After the service there was a meeting for children, and at three o'clock a special missionary meeting was held in the church; there was not so large an attendance as in the morning on account of the rain. A missionary address was given by the pastor, and special Centenary lyrics were sung. In the evening there was a magic-lantern exhibition in the schoolroom. Allepie Pastorate, with its congregation at the central station and at eight out-stations, under the pastoral care of the Rev. T. Koshi, was fully taken into the Native Church Council system in October, 1899. The free-will offerings of the people amounted in 1898 to Rs. 1.1 per head, which means that each family, allowing five persons to a family, gave twenty-one days' wages of a man to Church purposes. Amongst the means used for collecting gifts was an adaptation of the English method of missionary boxes. The congregation at Trichur, under the Rev. A. E. David, was increased by the admission of a Roman Catholic family residing in Alwaye. Among the baptisms was that of a man of the Naidu caste, of whom the Rev. C. E. R. Romilly writes:—

The equivalent of three weeks' wages given by every family in a pastorate.

A caste man baptized.

> He had been employed on the Nilgiri Railway, and after leaving it, had come down to Trichur. For two months he had been ill in hospital, where he had met and been visited regularly by one of the High School masters. Although when he came to me he did not seem very much in earnest, yet it did not seem right to deter him. He was put under instruction by the pastor, and his wife was instructed by one of the Zenana ladies' Bible-women. The great question was his livelihood, when an opening occurred. Through the influence of one of the Zenana ladies he was taken in the Survey Department on trial. A little later on, when the examination took place, he passed high up in the first class out of more than fifty candidates. This was a great relief and cause of thankfulness. A fortnight or so after, as he was to be moved elsewhere, he with his wife and child were baptized, he taking the name of Sathiyadasen ("Servant of the Truth"). We have since heard of him, and in spite of adverse surroundings and much opposition from his caste people, he is remaining firm and satisfactory, and is evidently grateful and sincere.

There are three pastorates in connexion with the MELKAVU COUNCIL. Centenary meetings were held on April 12th, 13th, and 14th, 1899, in the Mankompu Pastorate. At the first meeting, at 7 a.m., it was resolved to celebrate a festival called the "Seed Festival" on April 12th every year in commemoration of that day, and fourteen parahs of paddy were contributed as a thankoffering. At 10 a.m. a special service was held, and the letter sent by the C.M.S. Committee was read. At 1 p.m. there was a Bible study on "New Life and New Work," followed a little later by addresses on "Humility" and "Spiritual Growth." Evening service was held at 5 p.m., which was attended by people from the out-stations. On the 13th there were three devotional meetings. On the 14th children's meetings and services were held at the out-stations and at Mankompu. The Bishop visited Mankompu in November, and confirmed fifty candidates, and Dr. Richards, who accompanied him, baptized an adult and a family of three generations, at the request of the native pastor, the Rev. P. A. Samuel.

No information has been received concerning the three pastorates of the TIRUWELLA COUNCIL.

Gatherings somewhat similar to those already described were held in connexion with the Centenary in the Mallapalli Pastorate of the MÁVELIKARA COUNCIL, and the Bishop confirmed twenty-five candidates in the autumn. Great blessing has been experienced in the Mávelikara Pastorate of recent years, dating from the special Mission conducted there by the Rev. B. Baring-Gould in 1887. The contributions of the people have advanced, and increased zeal in evangelistic effort has been manifested. The year under review was no exception to the happy rule, for the Rev. Oomen Mámen (now Archdeacon) reports that two new out-stations were opened, and that there was a great change in the recent converts, who, he trusts, will be able to influence the people belonging to the higher castes, amongst whom a large number of English books and tracts, the gift of the Religious Tract Society, were distributed. A powerful enemy of the Zenana School was prematurely removed by death.

COTTAYAM AND PALLAM.

Few changes took place in the work of training native agents at the Cambridge Nicholson Institution, COTTAYAM. The Rev. J. J. B. Palmer had four theological students under his care at the commencement of 1899, who were joined by an experienced catechist, selected to go through a short special course of instruction. The five men sat for the Theological Preliminary Examination in October, 1899, one passing in the first class, one in the second, and one in the third. Two of this number, and a former student, were among those whose ordinations have been recorded above. The class of catechists and evangelists was continued. Seventeen students of the normal classes left at the end of April, twelve of whom passed their public examination, and their places were filled by fifteen others. Open-air preaching and the Sunday-school gave experience in practical work, and evangelistic trips to the various heathen festivals were of use in the same way. Arrangements were made for the lower classes of normal students to have in future a more extended course of theological training.

Cottayam College.

The Rev. F. N. Askwith was without any European colleague at the College, with its 508 boys, a considerable proportion of whom were Hindus. Eight first classes were secured in the four examinations at the end of 1898 for which candidates were sent up, and several scholarships were won, while in the year under review forty-five out of seventy-six passed the Lower Secondary Examination, and fourteen out of twenty-four the First Arts Examination. The Dewan of Travancore presided at the prize distribution on March 6th, 1899. The college classes were re-arranged for the Scripture hour, the Hindus being placed together in the one and the Christians in the other, in order that the Principal might get into closer touch with the former. Thirty of the boarders were confirmed in September, and the Hindu Hostel, which was nearly completed, bade fair to prove most popular. It is interesting to note that the Syrians have been roused to emulation in educational work, each of the rival parties maintaining a large school.

Girls' Boarding-school.

The Girls' Boarding-school, under Miss M. F. Baker and her sister, Miss I. Baker, suffered from an outbreak of measles and chicken-pox, which caused the temporary absence of many of the children. Efforts were made to train some of the girls as teachers, and a few of them presented themselves for examination. It is proposed to erect a new school as a memorial to the late Mrs. Baker, senior, and Mrs. Henry Baker, who for sixty and fifty-three years respectively did excellent work in the cause of Christian female education. One of the branch schools had to be closed, but another was opened in its stead at a place four miles up the Cottayam River, where the people begged for a teacher.

Mission Press.

Mr. Palmer supervised the work of the Mission Press, from which three monthly magazines were issued in the vernacular, besides much Scripture and other Christian literature.

Buchanan Institution.

The Buchanan Institution at PALLAM for training girls was under the charge of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. W. J. and Miss K. Richards. The results of the examinations which were held in 1898, and were not known at the time the report of that year was written, showed that the three girls from the senior training-class who entered for the Junior Peter Cator Scripture Examination all passed in the second class; while five of the six who went up for the Madras Lower Secondary Examination were successful, three being placed in the first class and securing the fourth, ninth, and twelfth places respectively, and the remaining two in the second class. Four girls from the elementary class sat for the Vernacular Elementary Examination, but only one of them passed. In April, 1899, three girls from the junior training class, and four from the senior class, entered for the written test of the Teachers' Examination, of whom four were successful, the three juniors and one senior. At the commencement of the year under review 177 girls had their names on the books of the Institution, 120 being boarders. The special care which was taken with the teaching of singing met with its reward, and some of the pupils, at the pastor's request, joined the choir of Pallam Church. The branches of the Scripture and Gleaners' Unions continued their useful work, and the Wednesday evening Gospel meetings were held with regularity, the addresses being usually given by the pastors. Thirty of the girls were confirmed after preparation by the headmaster and the native pastor. Miss Richards speaks with thankfulness of the good conduct of the girls and of the almost complete absence of sickness among them. Dr. Richards paid visits at irregular intervals to all but two of the Branch Schools.

ALLEPIE.

Allepie.

The Rev. Dr. W. J. Richards, who is in charge of the work in ALLEPIE and the surrounding district, regards educational work as second in importance to no other form of missionary effort, not so much because of the converts immediately gained, but because of its value as a preparatory agency. He does not anticipate sudden and numerous conversions in masses from among the people of India—at all events not for some time—since he believes that there is much preliminary work to be accomplished among the Natives before any extensive gathering in of converts can be looked for. The boys' school in the Mission compound lost its grant from the Travancore Government under circumstances which Dr. Richards explains as follows:—

Mission-schools at a disadvantage.

During the year it had been "recognized" for the Lower Secondary Examination, and was receiving a grant from Government amounting to Rs. 15 monthly. This was taken away and given to our Roman neighbours, who do not teach religion. The reason assigned was, that we were too near the Travancore Government High School; but the Romanist school was much nearer! In order to carry on the school we thought it wise to amalgamate this with our school a mile and a half further off at the book-shop. Then the school building was condemned, and also, it was too near where the Government school was going to be placed; and, by the connivance of our Roman neighbours, a charge of breach of inter-school rules was laid against us. Having remonstrated and shown the falsity of the charge, founded though it was on a cunningly-devised plot, I was at length forced to complain to the Dewan—the highest official next to the Maharajah—with the result that I was justified and the stain on the school removed. Wherever a school is aggressive on Hinduism, it is very difficult to get grants-in-aid. For Christian schools among Christians there is no opposition. This is quite in accordance with the Hindu policy and common saying, "Christianity is good for you and Hinduism for us."

There were over ninety boys in daily attendance at the amalgamated school, and the girls' school, in the same compound, carried on by the agents of the C.E.Z.M.S., had nearly the same number of pupils, all drawn from the highest castes. The two schools in Allepie have been placed in corporate connexion with the Cottayam Church Council. The district schools were efficiently carried on, and a new one for the freedmen class was opened. Six men and one woman were confirmed in October in the Leper Asylum, which was visited every month. No fewer than seven lepers died during the last half of the year, three of the number being Christians. Dr. Richards' Literary Work included the revision of the translation of the chapter on Baptism in Dr. Ryle's Knots Untied, and also the preparation for the press of translations by native clergymen of the S.P.C.K. Commentaries on the Epistles to the Romans and Galatians. The Union Revised Malayalam New Testament was published in 1899.

Literary Work.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had two Bible-women and five native teachers at Allepie.

TIRUWELLA AND ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY.

Archdeacon J. Caley (now at home) resided at TIRUWELLA, and was in charge of the evangelistic work in the district, of which he speaks hopefully. Four new congregations were formed, and many other openings presented themselves, of which it was trusted that it might be possible to take advantage. There was one high-caste convert—a Congani Brahman widow, twenty-five years of age, of the same caste as the Indian Senior Wrangler of 1899. Her striking history is thus described by the Archdeacon:—

Tiruwella.

A Brahman widow convert.

> She never went to school, so the master of our Hindu girls' school wrote for her the letters of the alphabet on a palm-leaf, and with this help she taught herself to read. She then became possessed of a copy of the Psalms, which she often read. A Syrian Christian neighbour used to lend her his New Testament, which she had to return every night. During all this time she had no thought at all of becoming a Christian; but being of a quick and inquiring turn of mind, she read for her own amusement. But she was being led by a way which she knew not. She had to leave her own home when she had learned thus far, and go to live with her late husband's family. Then she heard whispers of austere ceremonies, such as cutting of the hair, &c., in honour of the departed. With the light she had received, she questioned the necessity, and thus was compelled, perforce, to think of Christianity more than she had previously done. All that she saw in it at first was a freedom from the galling ceremonies which she feared. At last she determined to leave her home and join the Christians. Her first attempt, however, did not succeed, for she had not gone far before she was seized and brought back. Although watched very strictly, she again effected her escape, and reached Tiruwella when we were away for our holiday. The distance was twelve miles, a difficult journey for a woman of her position; but she arrived safely, and took up her abode with the school-children awaiting our return. She is now being taught carefully by my wife, and will soon, I trust, be baptized. She is a striking instance of one whose eyes have been gradually opened.

The staff of the ETTAMANUR ITINERANCY consisted of the Rev. C. A. Neve, who with his wife resided at Cottayam during the greater part of the year, the Rev. M. C. Chakko, two itinerating evangelists, and about thirty schoolmaster-catechists. Some of the latter showed themselves to be both earnest and efficient, and Mr. Neve thinks that the type of men in the employment of the Mission is gradually improving. The total number of out-stations was twenty-four. At Kanam, of which Mr. Chakko is pastor, the chief man of the congregation, who had behaved badly in a dispute about some land, repented and was reconciled. The Bishop visited this place in January, 1899, and confirmed over one hundred candidates, and at Pamysadi 163 men and women were accepted for confirmation. Mr. and Mrs. Neve went to Tambalakada in July, and were much pleased with the congregation, numbering seventy or eighty souls. Although the harvest had been an almost complete failure, the people contributed liberally towards the support of their church, some of them even subsisting on roots in order that they might give the whole of their rice as an offering at the time of the harvest thanksgiving. The work at Thedanada, which is situated at the eastern extremity of the Itinerancy, was carried on amidst many difficulties, one of which was the insalubrious climate; yet real good was accomplished, for Mr. Neve was able after careful examination to baptize fourteen of the people who were recommended by the teacher. At Kunnysalli, a new out-station twenty-three miles north of Cottayam, the first-fruits, consisting of five persons, were baptized in June, 1899, but on a subsequent visit it was necessary to reprove and send away one or two adherents who had shown themselves unworthy. The Salvation Army caused trouble at Kangazha, for its agents enticed away nearly half the congregation, including the son of Patros, who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 290) as a generous donor to the church funds. Mr. Neve justly remarks :—

Ettamanur Itinerancy.

Self-denial and liberality.

> We regret that the Salvation Army should have come amongst our congregations, causing dissensions, whilst there are all around so many Heathen to whom they might go without interfering with the work of other Christian bodies.

Intrusion and consequent dissensions.

A gift of a piece of land was received at Ayarkunnam, on which a teacher's house and a schoolroom for the use of the congregation of eighty Pulayan converts were built. Several more members of the goldsmith caste were admitted to baptism at Tiruvanchur. The year was uneventful as concerned the schools, excepting for a slight increase in the amount of the Government grants-in-aid.

The Rev. M. Nallathambi was the pastor at Permaad, which had the advantage of two visits from Mr. Neve, each of several weeks' duration, the one in the spring and the other in October,

The Centenary was celebrated by a service for Europeans in the morning and a meeting in the evening, when the church was well filled with writers and servants from the various tea estates. A new schoolroom was opened during the year, and the Native Church Committee, influenced partly, it is said, by the Three Years' Enterprise, displayed greater readiness than before to push forward the matter of self-support. The Bishop visited Permaad in November, and besides holding a confirmation, presided over a meeting of the European Church Committee, at which promises of further subscriptions in aid of the work of the Society were made.

ALWAYE ITINERANCY.

Alwaye Itinerancy.

The Rev. and Mrs. C. E. R. Romilly, on their return from furlough, though residing at Trichur, once more took up their old work in the ALWAYE ITINERANCY, in which they were assisted by the Rev. J. I. Macdonald so far as his study of the language would allow. A steady improvement was noticeable in the schools, which contained both boys and girls, Hindus, Mohammedans, and Christians. The one drawback was the insufficiency of the accommodation, for the growth in numbers rendered the existing buildings inadequate. Mr. Romilly visited each of the out-stations, on which he reports in detail. There was little to encourage at Perumbawoor, where the school fell very low, though Mr. Macdonald had an attentive audience when he visited the place; but at Moowattapura the educational work was most satisfactory, some of the boys, most of whom were high-caste Hindus, being passed on to the College at Cottayam, whence creditable reports concerning them were received.

Opposition and persecution.

The teacher at Koothattakolam was transferred to Mollakolam, where several catechumens were under instruction in spite of the opposition with which the commencement of the work at that place was greeted. At first threats and even violence were used in order to deter the people from coming to the Christian agents; one man was severely beaten, and for a time was dangerously ill in consequence, and the temporary shed in which the meetings were held was burnt down. But eventually the persecutors, being alarmed at the lengths to which they had gone, ceased to actively oppose, and when Mr. Romilly went to the village he found more than fifty people gathered together to listen to his message. He was requested, too, by a Namburi Brahman living not far off to undertake the charge of a school, the buildings and ground and scholars of which he was willing to hand over to the Mission; but unhappily no teacher was available, and so it was impossible to take advantage of this unusual offer.

An unusual offer.

Wykium, an important town, suffered a great loss in 1898 by the death of the catechist stationed there; he had laboured patiently and faithfully for many years, but was not permitted to see many results of his work. It is said, though, that many who formerly were bitter opponents manifested a willingness to listen to the Gospel. Both Malayalam and English services were held at Ernakolam, where two agents had their residence, and carried on house-to-house visitation as well as open-air preaching. The first railway in that part of India was commenced in October, 1899, and it was hoped that within three years it would be possible to travel by rail from Madras to Ernakolam, touching Trichur and Alwaye en route.

COCHIN: TRICHUR AND KUNNANKULAM.

The evangelistic work at TRICHUR—as distinguished from the pastoral, which is under the Cottayam District Church Council—was under the superintendence of the Rev. C. E. R. Romilly, during the absence on furlough of the Rev. J. H. Bishop. The English services were maintained, with a fair congregation composed of Europeans, Eurasians, and English-speaking Natives; and the Scripture Union class for Eurasian children continued, with an average attendance of twelve. The High School passed an uneventful year, and the same might be said of the Girls' Boarding-school, of which Mrs. Romilly had the oversight, had it not been for the discontinuance of the Government Lower Secondary Examination, the effect of which was to render it impossible for any candidates from the State of Cochin to enter for examinations elsewhere. There were two evangelists, supported by the Walter Jones Fund, who visited the houses of many of the Brahman population, taking copies of the Scriptures to the Namburis, and four Bible-women, besides a colporteur and a salesman in the town Book Depôt. The ill-feeling which prevailed at Uragam at the close of 1898 concerning the erection of a school building in the compound happily subsided, owing to the kindness of a friend holding a Sircar appointment, who was able to speak to the Peishwar about the matter. There was little change at Iringalakuda, Peringorakara, and Mala, though the evangelist at the last-named place experienced a good deal of trouble and annoyance. The work at Kannattupatam among the Hill Malayars, the interesting commencement of which was described in last year's Report (page 291), progressed hopefully under the two Hill Arrian teachers. Trichur.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had three European missionaries, one assistant missionary, thirteen Bible-women, and twenty-two native teachers at work at Trichur and in the neighbourhood. They were cheered by witnessing the baptism of a woman of the highest rank of Sudra caste, who brought her two children with her, since, according to Sudra custom, they were her property and not her husband's.

Kunnankulam.

The Rev. F. Bower, who is stationed at KUNNANKULAM, reports on the interesting work of Visiting the Namburi Brahmans. Copies of the Bible were willingly, and in some cases gladly, accepted by 237 householders of this class. There were, happily, several indications of the fact that the Scriptures were not only accepted, but also read and even studied. Sometimes the Syrian Christians, many of whom have a good knowledge of the Word of God, were asked by these Brahmans to explain difficult passages, while the Bible-women reported that the Namburi Brahman women, as well as the men, were reading the Scriptures, and even committing certain verses to memory. There was a considerable amount of sickness among the children of the Boarding-schools, which caused a good deal of anxiety; but much earnest thoughtfulness was manifested by the seniors among the sixteen boys and twenty-seven girls. There were only six boys in the Industrial School, who were taught carpentry by a Christian master, and in addition received an elementary education. The report of the Primary Schools in the district has both light and shade. At Blangarda a new school was opened for children of the fishermen caste, which was attended by more than seventy boys, including some Mohammedans; and a similar number of lads were enrolled at Choughout. The school for caste girls at Wandakanchary afforded much satisfaction, but it had to endure vicissitudes, for the efforts of a few Brahmans resulted in half the pupils leaving, and some of the elder girls were severely beaten by their parents for attending the Bible-lesson. The similar school at Guruwayoor, one of the strongholds of Hinduism, where there is a celebrated temple visited by large numbers of pilgrims, suffered from opposition, as well as from the distractions consequent on frequent heathen festivals.

Book Depôt.

The Book Depôt continued to prove most valuable. Over Rs. 230 was realized by the sale of portions of the Scriptures, besides Rs. 320 from that of books and tracts, while, in addition, the colporteurs of the Christian Literature Society disposed of books published by that Society to the value of Rs. 149. Mr. Bower writes:—

"Christian books the pith, Hindu books the bark."

> The printing-press is doing a splendid work throughout the district. One good sign of the times is, I think, that although Hindu books are becoming exceedingly cheap, they are not sold anything like as easily as they were a few years ago—and no marvel, since there is nothing in them which can satisfy the cravings of an immortal soul. Some of the Hindus are beginning to see and acknowledge the superiority of our books to theirs, and say that while our books are the pith of the tree, theirs are only the bark of it.

The magic-lantern was of great assistance in the Evangelistic Work, in the discharge of which Mr. Bower had a number of native helpers associated with him, of whose earnestness he speaks appreciatively. Both Hindus and Mohammedans listened attentively to the preaching. The message of Salvation through Christ alone was not treated with so much contempt and ridicule as in former years, and there was a general impression abroad that Christianity would in the future be the prevailing religion of India. Concerning the attitude of the Mohammedans and the needs of his district Mr. Bower says :—

Mohammedans willing to listen.

As a rule, the majority of them are more or less proud, rude, and bigoted, but during the last year or two there has been a change in them for the better. Some will now listen to the Story of the Cross most attentively for a considerable time, and even rebuke those who try to put a stop to the preaching. Several excellent hand-bills in Malayalam on Islam and Christianity have not only been read by the Mohammedans, but have been stitched together so that none of the series may be lost. Some of the educated Mohammedans have recently bought New Testaments, and are reading them. We want many more evangelists for this large district. We have five, but what are these few workers amongst the many thousands who are still in darkness? Though much has, by God's blessing, been done, much land still remains to be possessed.

The diversity of operations which have been briefly described resulted among other things in the baptism of ten adults, the conversion in nearly every case being the gradual outcome of the seed sown by the evangelists. Many of the converts led consistent lives, and forty-two of them, including a Namburi Brahman woman, were confirmed in March, 1899. The Rev. M. P. Matthan is the native pastor at Kunnankulam.

CEYLON MISSION.

Ceylon, which became a British possession in 1796, was one of the first fields to which the fathers of the C.M.S. turned their eyes. It was not, however, until 1817 that the Mission was commenced among the Singhalese and Tamils, the two races (with distinct languages) which formed the population of the Island. For the Singhalese population work was begun at Kandy in 1818; at Baddêgama, 1819; at Cotta, 1822; and at Kegalle, 1880. For work among the Tamils Jaffna was occupied in 1818; Colombo, 1852; and the Tamil Coolie Mission was begun in 1855.

The first Bishop of Colombo, Dr. Chapman, was appointed in 1845, and has been succeeded by Bishops Claughton (1862), Jermyn (1871), and Copleston (1875).

Reinforcements. THE following reinforcements joined the Mission:—the Rev. John Ireland Jones, M.A., Trinity College, Dublin, who had already spent thirty-four years of service in the Mission, from 1857 to 1891, re-offered his services, which were thankfully accepted by the Committee; the Rev. Arthur Ashfield Pilson, B.A., Exeter College and Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, Curate of Chivelstone, South Devon; Miss Eva Julia Howes; Miss Lucy Mabel Leslie-Melville; Miss Lilian Nixon, B.A., Royal University of Ireland; and Miss Elizabeth Whitney, of Montreal, Canada. All the ladies were trained at The Willows, Miss Nixon spending some time at The Olives as well; they sailed in November and December, 1899. Mr. Pilson sailed for Ceylon in January, 1900, and Mr. Ireland Jones in April. There also left for the island:—Miss H. E. Payne in May, 1899; the Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Balding in November; and the Rev. A. E. Dibben in April, 1900. Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Carus-Wilson (the latter invalided) came home in July, 1899, and have since retired from the work; the Rev. J. Ilsley came home on short furlough in August, and sailed again in January, 1900; the Rev. J. Carter and the Rev. and Mrs. L. G. P. Liesching (Mr. Liesching on medical certificate) in August, 1899; and Miss L. A. Case and Miss M. L. Young in October (the latter, who was invalided, has since retired from the work). Miss K. Heaney has been transferred to the Mauritius Mission, and the resignation of Miss M. Saul, on her marriage, has been accepted by the Committee. The Rev. H. C. Townsend was married on October 31st to Miss Mary Edith Grace Young, and the Rev. W. J. Hanan on November 1st to Miss Miriam Clarke.

Death of Mrs. J. Carter. The death of Mrs. Carter, the wife of the Rev. J. Carter, Principal of St. John's College, Chundicully, which occurred on June 8th, 1899, was mentioned in a footnote in last year's Report. She began work in Kandy on her arrival in 1893 by starting a successful Bible-class and a branch of the Gleaners' Union. When Mr. Carter was appointed to Jaffna, at the close of the year 1894, a Gleaners' Union, uniting both European and Tamil people, and a largely-attended young ladies' Bible-class were soon established there also. At the beginning of 1896

Mrs. Carter also undertook the control of the Girls' High School then opened at Chundicully.

Ordination. The Bishop of Colombo admitted Mr. A. Sathianathen to deacon's orders at the Cathedral, Colombo, on June 11th, 1899.

The half-yearly Conference of the C.M.S. missionaries in Ceylon took place at Kandy in January, 1900. The 3rd of that month was observed as a "Quiet Day." It opened with a celebration of Holy Communion, when the sermon was preached by the Rev. S. M. Simmons. Subsequently devotional addresses were given by the Rev. S. Coles and the Rev. J. I. Pickford on the "Exaltation of Christ by God, by the Church, and in Creation."

The Rev. E. T. Higgens was the Secretary of the Mission during the year, as for many years past. He is, however, on his way home with the expressed purpose of retiring from the work after about fifty years of service, a few of them spent in this country as an Association Secretary. The Rev. A. E. Dibben has been appointed to succeed him in the office of Secretary of the Mission.

I. WESTERN AND SOUTHERN PROVINCES.

COLOMBO.

Colombo. Galle Face. THE work at Christ Church, Galle Face, COLOMBO, has an indirect as well as a direct importance, for, situated as it is within two hundred yards of the leading hotel in that town, it affords a good opportunity of reaching the many travellers who touch at this port by means of the English services, while twice each Sunday an object-lesson about Foreign Missions is afforded by the large congregations of Singhalese and Tamil Christians who gather in the church, and there are ministered to by clergymen of their respective races. The Rev. J. Thompson, who had the oversight of the English congregation after the departure of the Rev. A. E. Dibben in April, 1899, reports that two special Missions were held, the one being specially addressed to Christians, and the other, which took place in December, being of an evangelistic description. The latter led to a regular weekly Mission service being conducted by several members of the choir. The annual sale of work was held under the patronage of the Lieutenant-Governor in September, the amount realized being Rs. 2,700, a great increase over the total of Rs. 300 which was taken when the sale was first instituted in 1884, with the object of raising funds for the support of additional agents and schools.

Centenary observance. The Centenary was celebrated at Colombo by special sermons on Sundays, April 9th and 16th, 1899, while on the 12th there was a Tamil service at 8 a.m. in Christ Church, Galle Face, and at Borella; an English service at noon in Christ Church, at which the Rev. J. D. Simmons was the preacher; and a service in Singhalese in the same church in the afternoon. A large public meeting was held at Galle Face Church in the evening. The church was decorated for the occasion, and the approach to it was lighted with Chinese lanterns. The Bishop of Colombo presided, and addresses were given by the chairman and by the Hon. W. W. Mitchell, and the Revs. E. T. Higgens and J. D. Simmons.

Tamil Work.

The Tamil Work in Colombo was under the Rev. J. I. Pickford, who also conducted the English services in St. Luke's, Maradana, and took a class composed of three men reading for ordination. He speaks of the year as having furnished a good deal of encouragement, not only because of the number of adult baptisms, but also because of the growth of a spirit of independence among the Native Christians, and the increase in the amount of their contributions, an adverse balance of Rs. 101 having been exchanged for one of Rs. 23 on the right side. This result, however, was not attained without strict attention to economy, and Mr. Pickford refers in grateful terms to the cheerfulness with which the pastor and pastoral catechists submitted to a reduction in their allowances. Four adult baptisms are reported in connexion with the Slave Island congregation, of which the Rev. R. Virasinghe was pastor, and one at Maradana Junction, where the state of the church building caused some anxiety. The school at the latter place did fairly well in the Government examination. There was only one baptism at Hultsdorf; but at Negombo, almost the brightest place in the district, two adults were received into the visible Church. Mr. Pickford was much pleased with the attendance at the services when he was there, especially when he called to mind that several of the people had to walk ten or twelve miles in order to be present. The number of Christians showed a considerable increase at Negombo, but the advance was due in some measure to immigration from India. Three adults were baptized at Galle from the estate which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 296). Evangelistic work was prosecuted as in former years by the different catechists, and the work among domestic servants made good progress. The Work among Women was under the supervision of Miss A. E. M. Thomas, who had twelve Bible-women associated with her, each of the latter visiting some forty-seven houses regularly throughout the year. Now and again opposition was shown by the Mohammedans, some of whom on one occasion closed the wooden shutters of a house in which Miss Thomas was teaching a woman of their persuasion to read, in order to render the continuation of the lesson impossible. At another time some Mohammedan women testified to the success of the work by remarking to one of the Bible-women that they did not mind listening to Bible stories, but were unwilling to learn any Scripture by heart, for when they had to repeat the Koran they could think of nothing but the texts which they had learnt, and therefore were beaten by the priests. One of the pupils of the Bible-women, the wife of a Christian, confessed Christ by baptism, and the workers found some earnest but secret believers amongst those to whom they went. The Bible and the Koran.

The educational work is of great importance, some 600 children altogether being under instruction; 117 of these are in the Boarding-schools, which were under Mrs. Thomas (now at home). All but nineteen of the children for whom she cared were Christians, though not all Protestants. It was mentioned in last year's Report that the Government grant obtained by the boarding-schools was larger in 1898 than ever before, but even that record was surpassed by Rs. 232 during the year under review. The children were most successful in the Government examinations, for fifty out of the fifty-three boys presented, and thirty-six of the thirty-seven girls, managed to pass. The two lads who were baptized in 1898 were satisfactory, and Mrs. Thomas was cheered by hearing of a lady missionary up-country who, when talking to a heathen woman about the Saviour, was surprised to be told, "Oh, I know all about that; a woman comes and reads to me and tells me about Christ." Inquiry revealed that she referred to one of the old boarding-school girls, who having married and settled down in that remote district, did what she could to spread the good news. Boarding-schools. A former pupil spreads the Gospel tidings.

The Rev. J. D. Perera is the pastor of the Singhalese Congregations, the number of Christians in which was reduced slightly by removals and deaths. A girl, formerly a member of St. Luke's Church, Maradana, who was married to a Buddhist, proved that she was steadfast in her faith by refusing to visit a pansala for the purpose of making offerings of flowers, although she was repeatedly urged by her husband and mother-in-law to do so. The Singhalese Evangelistic Work was superintended by the Rev. E. T. Higgens, and was carried on by means of street-preaching, visiting, and schools. The Buddhists continued their antagonism, frequently occupying the ordinary preaching-places of the Christian workers, who accordingly had to content themselves with the distribution of tracts, though at one station they were fortunate enough to meet with no interruption. The three catechists visited the jails, but were only allowed to speak to the prisoners who were of their own denomination; that being the case, it was satisfactory that they had but a limited sphere of work! They had greater freedom in the hospitals, to which also Miss A. Higgens and her Bible-women went from time to time, meeting Singhalese work. Efforts in jails and hospitals.

with some encouragements to cheer them on their way. Thus, once when the people were asked whether any of them wished to give their hearts to Christ, one girl answered "Yes," and another woman, dreadfully disfigured, quite broke down, while a third several times exclaimed, with tears in her eyes, "I cannot come to your religion," meaning that the trials she would be called upon to face would be more than she could endure. House-to-house visiting was attended with even more difficulty than usual, not so much through any particularly active opposition, but through the distraction caused by the prevalent expectation that the end of the world would come on November 13th. Miss Higgens writes:—

Expectation of the end of the world.

> Crowds of people made their way to the temples, that, by offering gifts to the priests, they might gain kusal (merit), which would stand them in good stead in that awful time. In the early morning of that day two great Buddhist processions, one of boys and men, and another of women and girls dressed in white, and carrying cocoanut flowers, went in different directions through Colombo, with cries and beating of tom-toms. All this upset the people very much, and some were very unwilling to listen to our message of salvation, since they had made their peace, as they thought, by their offerings. Others seemed more anxious for a time, but when the day came and passed away as others have done, they could laugh at their fears and put off repentance to a more convenient time. It was extraordinary how the idea held them; many refused to go to their work on that day, and friends and relations gathered together from all parts, that they might die together. It was a grand harvest-time for the priests, as offerings in kind and money poured into the temples. No doubt they will tell the people now that all this merit has put off the evil day. All sorts of rumours were prevalent as to the manner of the destruction. Some said that a tidal wave would come; others, that the stars would all fall and burn up the earth and lick up the waters of the sea; others, that even if Ceylon were spared, all other countries would be destroyed.

The Singhalese Vernacular Schools for girls suffered through the opposition of the Buddhists, the attendance at that in the Mission compound falling from 100 to seventy; and at the second school at Kolonnawa, a village three miles from Colombo, being reduced from seventy to twenty. Mrs. Higgens and her youngest daughter took full advantage of what are called "valuable opportunities of imparting Gospel knowledge" to the children of heathen parents.

Translation work. Most of the time of the Rev. S. Coles was occupied with literary work, which consisted chiefly in revising the existing translations of the Bible and Prayer-book, and in translating tracts, a large number of which were circulated under the auspices of the Children's Special Service Mission. Mr. Coles found leisure, however, to join the catechists in their open-air preaching, and also paid several visits to the Kandian Western Itinerancy.

COTTA.

Cotta. The work at Cotta and in the surrounding districts, which was under the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin, was conducted in the face of many obstacles. The pronounced opposition of the Buddhists on the one hand, and, on the other, the size of the pastorates, which rendered it almost impossible for one man adequately to supervise the work and at the same time to evangelize the Heathen, militated against rapid progress. Nevertheless, when the survey of the past takes a somewhat extended scope there is found much cause for thanksgiving. Mr. Dowbiggin compares the statistics of the year 1870, when his work at Cotta commenced, with those of 1899, from which it appears that the number of pastors and catechists advanced from four to fifteen, the Native Christians from 874 to 1,503, the communicants from 144 to 505, and the contributions from Rs. 750 to Rs. 3933.

Progress in thirty years.

The Rev. G. S. Amarasékara, who was over the Cotta and Nugegoda Pastorate, reports that there was but little increase in the number of Christians in Cotta itself, and that the people were not very regular in their attendance at the services, the average number of adults present on Sunday mornings having been seventy. At Kirillapona, a Roman Catholic family was admitted to the Protestant Church. Fourteen adults were baptized in the Talangama and Welikada Pastorate, three of whom were the wives of Christian husbands. In the course of the year the fiftieth anniversary of the Upper Welikada Church was celebrated. Special meetings were held to commemorate the event, and thankofferings to the amount of Rs. 50 were made. The Rev. T. G. Perera, the pastor, carried on the evangelistic work on the customary lines, the only novelty being the use of a magic-lantern, presented to the pastorate by Mr. E. J. Carus-Wilson. The year is said by the Rev. W. E. Boteju to have been one of slow but steady progress in the Mampe Pastorate. The satisfactory figures of 1898 were maintained both with respect to the average attendance of the Christians at public worship and their contributions towards the pastorate and other funds. Two members of the congregation were called to their rest. One of them, a few days before her death, handed to Mr. Boteju a collecting-box which she had obtained during her illness, and which, when opened, was found to contain more money than had been collected in boxes by any person save one. This was the more remarkable since the woman was in very straitened circumstances, often being destitute of even the bare necessaries of life. Of the two adults baptized, one had for five years been prevented by the strenuous opposition of her mother from openly avowing herself a Christian, but during the whole of that period had not been absent from the Sunday services on more than three days, although she lived two miles from the church, and was under the necessity, from considerations of propriety, of finding some friend to accompany her.

Mr. Dowbiggin expresses himself in his Annual Letter as much discouraged about the Schools in his district. The grants-in-aid fell off by no less than Rs. 1,000, and the diminution in the attendance at the vernacular day-schools, which was reported last year, continued and even increased, the aggregate number of children being 171 less than in 1898. One of the schoolmistresses died during the year, of whom Mr. Dowbiggin writes :—

Death of a schoolmistress.

> When a young girl of not more than eighteen she took charge of the school, and worked in it up to the time of her death, a period of at least ten years. She was very quiet and unassuming, but had great force of character, and exercised considerable influence in the village and neighbourhood. This teacher, Elpie, was one of the few women who have taken part in our prayer-meetings, and her petitions were always those of one who was thirsting after righteousness, and I liked to hear her pray. About three years ago she went through a period of trial and temptation, and by God's grace she was victorious. She was married to one of our young catechists, perhaps two and a half years since, and there seemed every prospect before her of a happy, useful married life, and she still carried on the work of her school. Her health, however, began to give way, and in July last she was very ill. Everything possible was done for her, but she fell asleep in Jesus on October 2nd, 1899. To be near her friends and relatives, and also to consult medical men, she came to her village, near Colombo, and her Buddhist relatives were very anxious that devil-ceremonies should be performed; but when told of it she said, "My hope is only in the Lord, and I have no belief in anything else. If He wishes, let Him restore me to health; if not, let me die. If you love me at all, do not mention that again. I am not of double heart." She felt the parting from her husband and baby of ten months old, and for their sakes wished to live. Her trust was in the Lord.

English School.

Such retrogression as there was existed only in the case of the vernacular schools, for the English School for Boys had 261 names on the list, and an average attendance of 192, as compared with the corresponding figures of 222 and 175 respectively for the previous year. Eighty-three of the boys were Protestants, four Roman Catholics, and the remainder Buddhists—twice as many non-Christians as Christians. Two of the scholars were baptized, and four others were put back for a time, but the headmaster laments that there were not so many lads in the class of candidates for baptism as in former days. The examination results both in this school and in the Girls' Boarding-school were good. The latter prospered under the management of Mrs. Dowbiggin, and it is interesting to note that with the exception of the headmistress all the teachers were "old girls." There was one baptism, and a real spiritual work was accomplished, for Mrs. Dowbiggin writes :—

All the teachers of Girls' boarding-school "old girls."

"The glad room."

> Pointing to the room where the girls gather, a few or more, at any time they wish for prayer, a little child one day said, "That is the prayer-room, the glad room"; and "We prayed" is often the glad response when news is brought of a language examination passed by one of our Mission party, or a journey safely accomplished, &c. This habit does not pass away when they leave Cotta, to judge by the letters we constantly receive mentioning how the school and all in it are remembered before God. Very loving our children are, both those who are with us and those who have left. One of the latter lately wrote, "Dear friends, more than friends, who led us in the way of truth."

The girls were eager to make a thankoffering to the Society at the time of the Centenary, but had little money, so, to get more, they occasionally gave up having a meat, fish, or vegetable curry, their teachers and the Bible-women willingly joining in their acts of self-denial; they would gladly have done this more frequently, but for reasons of health it could not be allowed. A Centenary thankoffering.

The Evangelistic Work was prosecuted with vigour by the eleven catechists and readers, the latter being men and women who went round to the homes of the Natives and read the Bible to them, in some cases teaching the people to read for themselves. Their reports are full of interest, instancing difficulties as well as encouragements. Among the former, besides those already enumerated, must be included the dense ignorance of the men and women, which makes it, humanly speaking, impossible for the old folk to grasp the truth, and emphasizes, so Miss Dowbiggin says, the importance of influencing the children; and also the unrest which prevailed in consequence of the expectation of the people that the end of the world or some great calamity would take place on November 13th. Among the encouragements are the following: the intervention of the president of a village tribunal in order that the customary preachings at the time of the meeting of the court might not be interrupted; the reclamation of a young woman who had married a Heathen and fallen away, and whose request for prayer for her husband led to his attending the church services, and expressing his willingness to be baptized; and the testimony to a convert borne by one of his former companions, who said, "He who with us stole cattle and killed them, has now forsaken all that; it is a great wonder. Though he does not do that now, his family is not poor as it was then, and the God that he believes in must be a true God." The following incident also is recorded by Miss Dowbiggin:— Evangelistic Work. "A great wonder."

One day, as we approached a house to which we had never been before, a man sitting near picked up his baby who was playing at his feet, and rushed into the house. We found that he had gone to tell his wife that we were coming. She seemed so pleased to see us, and we soon learnt that she had been to one of the vernacular schools connected with the Cotta district when a child, and had there learnt about and believed in the Lord Jesus as her Saviour. She has never been baptized; her parents being strict Buddhists would not allow it, but took her from school and married her to a Buddhist. Her husband is willing for her elder boy and girl to attend the Mission-schools, and she teaches them to pray and tells them Bible stories at home. Some time ago, when she was very ill, she utterly refused to have devil-ceremonies performed over her or to have charms tied on. An old school-girl teaches her children Bible stories.

In one district the first convert was baptized, and in another a mother and five children were received into the visible Church, the husband having been baptized some three years previously. Their story is thus told:—

While learning and preparing for baptism great efforts were made by the neighbours to turn the woman away from the faith. When they threatened to set fire to the house at night, her reply was, "You may kill me, but I will not give up my belief." About this time the people of the village banded together to form a league against the Gospel and to guard Buddhism, and wanted this woman and her husband to join it. Because they refused the washerman was not allowed to wash for them, the native doctors would not attend them, and they were not allowed to buy in the bazaars. It was also said that no midwife would be allowed to attend, nor would they suffer a stranger from another village to be brought in. At this stage the attention of the Mudaliyar and Muhandiram of the korale was called to this state of things, and through their interference the boycotting came to an end.

In order to complete the record of the work at Cotta, mention must be made of the baptism by Mr. Dowbiggin of a woman sixty-nine years of age. About forty years ago she was married to a Christian, but held steadfastly to her old religion in spite of the influence of her husband and children. She was morally a good woman, and had great faith in her own meritorious actions. In 1897 she was suddenly taken ill, and for some time little hope of her recovery was entertained. The devil-ceremonies were performed over her, but by degrees her faith in Buddhism waned, and at length she asked for baptism, which was administered to her after a probation of six months.

BADDÉGAMA.

Baddégama.

Proficiency of boarding-school girls in religious knowledge.

The Rev. S. M. Simmons speaks of the year at BADDÉGAMA as one of "quiet progress." There was an improvement in the attendance at the Girls' Boarding-school, which for the first time obtained a first-class certificate in the Diocesan Examination in Religious Knowledge, being the first vernacular boarding-school in the island to gain that distinction. Several of the teachers of the thirty-five Day-schools appeared to realize their responsibility concerning the souls of the children under their charge, but some of them were unsatisfactory, and had to be dismissed. One school, which in the past was amongst the most successful in point of numbers, had to be closed, because the master, who was dismissed by the Government for dishonesty, took all the boys with him to a neighbouring Buddhist school, where he became head teacher; and another school was greatly interfered with by a former teacher, whose connexion had been severed on account of immorality. The Sunday-school was conducted by Miss M. S. Gedge, who also visited with the two Bible-women. They were rejoiced by the baptism of a Singhalese girl, and by the willingness with which they were received, particularly in one district, where the women requested that they might be taught regularly. Unfortunately, causes for sorrow were not unknown. Some professedly Christian girls allowed themselves to be married to heathen husbands, and one who in 1898 expressed a desire to be baptized, left off attending the class. Miss M. L. Young was prevented from taking any active part in the work by her serious illness, which compelled her return to England. Her place was filled by Miss L. M. Leslie-Melville.

Writing of that portion of the Native Church with which he was concerned, Mr. Simmons speaks of fairly good pecuniary support, but adds that the people who were best able to contribute gave in proportion less than their poorer brethren. In the Balapitiya Pastorate, which was under the Rev. G. A. B. Perera, many of the Christians entirely unconnected with the paid agencies of the Society took an appreciable share in the work of their pastor. The Bishop held a confirmation in the pastorate in the summer, although only three candidates were presented, and every fortnight a meeting for the deepening of the spiritual life was held under the auspices of the Church Committee. The Rev. J. P. Kalpagé was over the Dodanduwa Pastorate, but the work was much hindered by a variety of causes.

Pastorates.

Dodanduwa.

The Evangelistic Work was not attended with much success, in spite of the care which was taken to fit the catechists for their duties, for only three adults were baptized. The anti-Christian feeling was very strong in the district, and Bentotte was bereft of its resident workers by the failure of the health of Mrs. E. J. Carus-Wilson. Nevertheless, there were a few cheering cases. Mr. Simmons says:—

Inquirers.

> One catechist writes hopefully of a girl and two women in his district. The girl is still attending our school, and reads her Bible and prayers daily, but her step-mother will not allow her to come to church. The two women are married, and one of them is anxious to be baptized; the other is an inquirer. Another catechist writes that there are several timid inquirers in his neighbourhood, and instances two men who are reading the Bible at home, and an old couple who listen well and are very friendly, but are frightened to come boldly forward because of their neighbours, and of another big girl in one of our schools whose parents oppose her request for baptism. In two of the pastorates there are some twenty school children willing to receive instruction with a view to baptism, and in the third the pastor says, "There are four candidates for baptism, and a few inquirers."

Miss Phillips, of the New South Wales C.M. Association, with whom were associated Miss S. H. M. Townsend and Miss Loxton, an independent worker from Sydney, resided at DODANDUWA, a fishing village, and the centre of one of the pastorates. The lack of a Bible-woman put a great obstacle in the way of visiting, and the plumbago industry occupied so many of the women that it was useless to look for them in their homes. Miss Phillips therefore resolved to go to the women at the plumbago sheds, and try to speak to them there. Altogether she visited nine different sheds and endeavoured to deliver her message while her hearers were at work. This was not accomplished without some rather disheartening experiences, for the women were not allowed to look at a picture for more than a moment at a time, and they had to be addressed while they were sorting or crushing with hammers, or rubbing the plumbago with their hands. The increased opposition of the Buddhists constituted another hindrance. In the summer a great preacher came to Dodanduwa, and taking up his position close to the house of the native pastor, holding a picture of Christ with a crown of thorns in one hand, and a Bible in the other, with terrible blasphemies stirred up the people against Christianity, even urging them to throw stones at Mr. Kalpagé and turn him out of the house. After this gathering, the Buddhists or Theosophists regularly held anti-Christian meetings in the village, the notorious Colonel Olcott being one of the speakers, and, amongst other antagonistic measures, adopted that which is described by Miss Phillips as follows:—

Blasphemies of Buddhist preachers.

Deeds of merit.

> For two months before November 13th, the supposed date of the end of the world, the people were most excited and busy doing great kusals (deeds of merit). The kusal which has affected us the most has been the opening of an opposition Buddhist school exactly opposite to our little C.M.S. church. All parents who send their children there are doing a great kusal, and the Buddhist who has given his new house rent free, and money for the teachers (his cousins), is doing the greatest possible kusal. The school was opened on November 8th, so that these kusals might bring a blessing on the last day of the world. They succeeded in drawing away about fifty of our youngest girls and boys, but had to use much force in getting them. They say they are teaching these little children true Buddhism. They have to take pansil (Buddha's five vows) every day before beginning and at the end of school. Strange to say, exactly one fortnight after the school began, the schoolmaster got the measles! They failed in finding any one to help them, so the schoolmistress had to teach the boys as well as the girls. However, the schoolmaster got over the measles well, but went to bathe too soon and caught a chill, which made him ill again, and he got a bad attack of chicken-pox, from which he is only now recovering. Every one has been struck with the fact that no other case of either measles or chicken-pox has so far been heard of in the village.

A Buddhist appeal for funds.

A little later an appeal was put forth for funds for a new Buddhist schoolroom, which concluded with the words: "All blessed Buddhist gentlemen who wish the extension of Buddhism are requested to help in this religious good, and become partners of heavenly Nirvana blessings." Although the numbers at the Schools were considerably affected by this effort, yet some eighty boys and forty girls continued to attend. Some encouragement was vouchsafed to the missionaries in connexion with the educational work in the outlying villages, for the parents of a former pupil in the Tirranagama school, in which Miss Townsend taught every week, allowed their daughter to be baptized, and several of the scholars at the Industrial School were desirous of baptism, and only awaited the consent of their parents. There was an attendance of from fifty-five to sixty daily at the school just mentioned, which earned a Government grant of Rs. 660, and in addition received Rs. 671 in payment for work done during the last nine months of 1899. The girls were specially successful in their lace-making. At the instigation of the Government agent they sent some of their work to the Galle show in July, 1899, and gained a medal as well as a certificate. More than that, they were asked by the Judges to send some lace to the Paris Exhibition, and received a good order for that purpose. Miss Phillips says :—

Mission lace sent by Ceylon Government to Paris Exhibition.

> To carry out such an order, I persuaded seven of our old girls to come back for the three months till November, when we were to send it in, and so the Paris Exhibition has been doing real missionary work here; for those old girls received again a daily Bible-lesson, regularly learning their texts by heart. Thus their old Bible knowledge was refreshed, and we trust also that new seed was sown, which will in God's good time bring forth fruit. We asked our kind Government agent's wife, Mrs. Wace, to inspect our work, and she spent a whole day here judging and pricing every piece of lace that we were sending to Paris, and Government has already paid us according to Mrs. Wace's prices. These old girls have all gone back to their homes, where Buddhism is being taught more than ever just now.

The boys carried on their tailoring, carpentry, book-binding, and printing, their spiritual interests being looked after by the superintendent, Miss Josolyne's old pundit, who opened and closed the school every day with prayer, taught in the Sunday-school, and helped in a number of other ways. The lads printed 2,700 little Singhalese books, besides a number of leaflets for distribution, meeting with the compliment of imitation in the latter respect from the Buddhists, who displayed much energy in tract production and distribution. The Christian Industrial boys contributed Rs. 24 towards the Centenary Funds, and Miss Phillips writes hopefully of all those who have been baptized. Mr. C. R. Walsh, Hon. Secretary of the New South Wales C.M. Association, who visited some of the Society's Missions before returning home from England, inspected the Industrial Mission at Dodanduwa, and wrote in terms of high appreciation of what he saw.

II. CENTRAL PROVINCES.

KANDY.

ALTHOUGH it might have been expected that the work at Trinity College, KANDY, would suffer materially by the seizure of the Principal, the Rev. H. P. Napier-Clavering, with typhoid fever on Christmas Day, 1898, yet it was so effectively carried on by the Revs. R. W. Ryde and W. J. Hanan that the examination results in 1899 were markedly in advance of those of the preceding year. More passes than ever before were gained by the College in the Cambridge Local Examination, though only one boy obtained honours; the latter fact, however, was partly due to the removal, just before the examination, of the most promising student, who won a scholarship and joined the Medical College. In the First Arts Examination of Calcutta University all the three candidates who were presented passed, and in the Entrance Examination two boys of the College were placed in the first class, two in the second, and three in the third. The numbers in August were rather lower than at the same time in the previous year, but there was an unusually large entry at the beginning of the following term, and in December the names of 371 lads were on the roll, 112 of whom were boarders. Mr. Napier-Clavering is able to speak thankfully of the spiritual work at the College, the success of which must be attributed largely to the short daily prayer-meeting of resident masters and senior boys. Four of the students were baptized—two of them orphans with Christian guardians, the third the son of a Christian father and Hindu mother, and the fourth a lad whose parents were Buddhists, but his two elder brothers converts to Christianity. Four others desired baptism. One of them was sent by his father to take his place as speaker at a large Buddhist meeting, but instead of dwelling on the glories of Buddha, he took one of our Lord's miracles and from it preached the Gospel. Mr. Ryde was transferred to the charge of St. John's College, Chundicully, in August, 1899. The Rev. A. A. Pilson has been appointed to fill his place as Vice-Principal of the College.

Women's Work.

The Work among Singhalese Women, which was in the hands of Miss A. M. Denyer and Miss A. L. Earp, was exceptionally difficult in consequence of the temptations to which the Natives were exposed, and the missionaries were constantly saddened by incidents of sin and sorrow which forced themselves upon their notice. So strongly did they feel the need of having some place in which they could afford shelter to those who were tempted that they determined to abandon the Mission-house in the town, and take a larger bungalow than that which they inhabited. Miss Denyer mentions two instances which illustrate the need; the one of a young woman who was baptized in a Christian boarding-school, and after wrong-doing pleaded to be allowed to live with the missionaries; and the other of a child converted, so it appeared, at a village school, who desired to lead an upright life, but whose parents declared their inability to protect her. The first half of the year was marked by great deadness and indifference, but later on the prospects became brighter, and on the first Sunday in Advent five servants were baptized. There was at least one hopeful inquirer—a woman who was decoyed away from home by a so-called Christian when she was thirteen years of age, and afterwards abandoned. Miss Earp met her in the course of her visiting and was struck with her eagerness to listen, for the woman put the children out of the room when the workers called, so that she might give her undivided attention to what she heard. Week after week this occurred, until at length she declared that she could not go to the temple any longer, but desired to embrace Christianity.

Pastorates.

The Congregation of Holy Trinity Church, Kandy, consisting of 112 adults, who were under the pastoral care of the Rev. H. Gunasékara, contributed Rs. 500 as a Centenary offering, which sum was formed into a capital fund for the needs of the pastorate. A great improvement was manifested in the girls' school at Kattukalle; one of the elder girls is mentioned as going without her mid-day meal in order that she might have the advantage of the afternoon teaching. The Sunday-school, too, in that village prospered, and the children asked for a missionary box, which had to be opened before the end of the year, because it was too full to admit of the insertion of another coin. At Gaetaembe, Gampola, and Nawalapitiya, the centres of the other pastorates, work was carried on in the usual manner, the magic-lantern meetings being very attractive.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in Kandy consisted of three European ladies and one native teacher, who were engaged at the Clarence Memorial School.

KANDIAN SINGHALESE ITINERANCY.

Singhalese Itinerancy.

In consequence of the absence in England of the Rev. H. E. Heinekey, the Rev. J. G. Garrett was called upon to supervise the missionary operations in both the NORTHERN and SOUTH-EASTERN DISTRICTS of the itinerancy, and in his Annual Letter he deals with the two together, reporting that the funds needed for the support of agents were wonderfully supplied, but that few adult baptisms took place. A special effort was made to render spiritual help to the scattered and isolated native agents by holding little conventions in the different districts. In one instance an empty house being the best available place for the gatherings, the workers were requested to bring their own pillows and mats. Some of them demurred to this, but when they were reminded that the Buddhists would walk hundreds of miles to obtain merit, getting nothing at the end of their journey, but having to supply the priests with food, while they were complaining because mats and pillows were not provided for them as well as food at the end of a ten miles' walk, the ice broke, and for three days a happy and helpful convention was held. Several new Schools were opened, and the educational work continued to demonstrate its usefulness as an evangelistic agency. At one place a catechist expressed his doubts on this point, but they were soon dissolved, for the young master, himself a convert from the school, got up and declared that a true convert had been given at his school quite recently. Special classes were held for Buddhist lads who were not old enough to be baptized, and Mr. Garrett tells of one boy who came to such a class with his clothes all wet with his own blood, the result of a beating by his elder brother, inflicted because the lad insisted on being present.

Major G. H. F. Mathison resided at Wattegama, and itinerated in the Lower Dumbara district. Several false inquirers came forward, but there were also one or two who appeared to be genuine. Among the latter were a blind man, who suffered a good deal of persecution; a young man, who seemed to be a true believer but was deterred from coming out by the opposition of his father and brothers; another man, who when visited by the catechist was found reading St. Luke's Gospel, and declared his conviction that "it contained the truth"; and a fourth man, who confessed that he knew that Buddhism was wrong and declared that at heart he was a Christian. The Temperance Society which was set on foot at Wattegama was joined by every English-speaking man, and proved a blessing to somé. At Anuradhapura a middle-aged woman was baptized, who while in the hospital was so impressed by the joy and gladness of a Christian woman occupying the bed next to hers that she asked for the Bible to be read to her. She appeared really to receive and grasp the truth, and was received into the visible Church by the native pastor, the Rev. J. Colombotantorige, who writes:—

> Her simple faith was very strong. She had some charmed threads and vows to certain gods round her neck, and she allowed me to cut them off, as she learnt that gods could not help her. On the last two days I found her always praying and committing herself to God, and when her time came she slept in Jesus.

At Kadugannawa the new church building with the school and house adjoining proved very useful, and in Kandy the preaching-room was well attended.

Several other encouraging cases occurred at places which are not specified. An old headman, a backslider for fifty years, was reclaimed, and became a real helper in the spiritual work; a woman was so charmed with the story of the dying love of the Lord Jesus that she begged the catechist to write "the Name" on the wall of her hut, so that her little girl, who could read, might remind her of it; and a man who for five years had been an inquirer, but was held back because of his drunken habits, found God's grace sufficient to keep him from his besetting sin, and was baptized with his two children, though unhappily it is said that afterwards he showed great weakness. The prevalent expectation of the approaching end of the world, which was so great a hindrance to some of the work in Ceylon, rather helped it forward in the districts under Mr. Garrett's care, for the workers were stimulated to renewed efforts, and when the day came and passed without any striking event there were abundant opportunities of testifying about the coming King.

"The Name" written down, to be remembered.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. Gampola Village Mission consisted of three European ladies, two Bible-women, and eleven native teachers. Mr. Garrett in his Annual Letter pleads earnestly for the extension of women's work to the districts north and east of Kandy.

The WESTERN DISTRICT of the Itinerancy was under the Rev. L. G. P. Liesching until the end of July, 1899, when he left for home on sick leave, his place being taken for a time by the Rev. R. T. Dowbiggin and Major G. H. F. Mathison, and ultimately in December by the Rev. S. M. Simmons. The Rev. S. Coles also paid several visits to the district. Writing his Annual Letter quietly at home, Mr. Liesching takes the opportunity of reviewing the progress of the work during the seventeen years that he has been connected with it, and arrives at the conclusion that in spite of many hindrances real advance has been made. Among the difficulties enumerated is the lack of cohesion between the different pastorates, the two chief towns of the district being twenty miles apart and situated in different provinces, facts which necessitated the duplicating of the monthly meetings for the native helpers, and involved a severe tax on the strength and energies of the superintending missionary. The schools maintained their standard of efficiency, though there was a falling off in the number of children presented for examination, and consequently in the amount of the Government grant. Several of the baptisms of the year were of those who had thus been brought up under Christian influences. On Mr. Liesching's departure the boarders at the Girls' Boarding-school were temporarily transferred to Cotta. Three of the pupils at Kegalle were baptized, one of whom was afterwards exposed to great temptation; also three boys and one girl from the day-school. An English school for boys was begun at Kegalle, which had twenty-eight pupils at the end of the year. A happy feature about it is the fact that it is entirely self-supporting. The congregation at Kegalle, of which the Rev. F. W. Daundesekera is the pastor, increased slightly, owing in part to the baptism of seven adults, all but one of these being the fruit of educational work. Unhappily the contributions of the people showed a falling off. Open-air preaching was continued as usual, and the usefulness of the magic-lantern was continually demonstrated, for good audiences gathered whenever it was shown. At Kurunegala, four adults were baptized during the year. The village congregations, seven in number, are composed of members of the Duraya caste. The oldest is at Talampitiya, where the Christians are said to have contracted the excellent habit of making regular contributions to the Native Church Fund. Several baptisms took place there before Mr. Liesching left, and there were six others in October. The converts at Hewadiwela are described as quarrelsome and given to litigation, but the schools there and at Kudagama did good work. At Mitanwela there was an absence of growth and spiritual progress, but at Ja-kaduwa and Diwela the progress was marked. Four lads from the school at the latter place were baptized in 1899. The school at Kobbewela showed signs of stability, but in other respects this out-station was hardly satisfactory. There are catechists at other places besides those already enumerated, and several converts were gathered in. Mr. Liesching was able before he left to carry out a long-cherished scheme, by setting apart two catechists to work among the high-caste Kandians. They were located at opposite extremities of the district, and were enabled to gain a good deal of influence among the people, some of whom anticipated that the November shower of Leonids would bring about the destruction of the world. This belief led to much religious activity on their part, and also gave the preachers of the Gospel a valuable opening for pressing home their message. Mr. Coles baptized six adults in the itinerancy.

TAMIL COOLIE MISSION.

Tamil Coolie Mission. Kotagala District.

While the Rev. J. Ilsley was absent from Ceylon on short furlough the Tamil Coolie Mission in the KOTAGALA DISTRICT was superintended by the Rev. H. C. Townsend, who was joined in the summer by the Rev. W. J. Hanan, and the newly-ordained native clergyman, the Rev. A. Sathianathen. Some of the teachers became so accustomed to the horrors of the surrounding Heathenism that they were not so zealous as they should have been in seeking to save the children from the "untoward generation," but on the other hand there were cases in which the masters were real missionaries, and one man is mentioned who, besides teaching in the school, was accustomed to hold a night-class for adults, and also to preach on the neighbouring estates when he could obtain permission to do so. Mr. Sathianathen, too, speaks of a boy who was brought to Christ at one of the schools, and who when being instructed with a view to baptism astonished the native pastor by his boldness and evident sincerity. Three people, all belonging to one family, and formerly zealous Hindus, were baptized, and there were other tokens that the work was not in vain in the Lord. The need of caring for the catechists was appreciated, and every two months meetings for them were held, at which addresses were delivered and mutual counsel given Kandy District.

The Rev. J. I. Pickford took temporary charge of the KANDY DISTRICT when the Rev. W. Welchman was ordered to England on medical certificate, but his responsibilities in Colombo prevented him from devoting that attention to the Tamil Coolie Mission which he desired. Some work was accomplished by the Rev. A. Gnánamuttu, the retired pastor in Kandy, where Miss H. E. Finney and Miss V. M. L. Franklin resided, the latter engaged chiefly in language study. The Schools in the district, some of which are supported by the planters, contain nearly 900 pupils, more than three-quarters of whom are boys, the most important of the educational institutions being the lace and embroidery school, which was superintended by Miss Finney, and received a grant from the Government for the first time. Special opportunities of influencing the children were afforded by the thought of the speedy approach of the end of the world, and one child who used to seem possessed by the spirit of the Evil One, so haughty were her words and ways, completely changed in the hope of being ready when the Saviour should return. Five Bible-women were at work visiting, some of them in Kandy, and others in the outlying districts. A typical morning's work is thus described by Miss Finney :—

Lace and embroidery school.

House-to-house visiting.

In the first house, no chair being forthcoming, I sit on a rice-box, while the pupil, a girl of about ten years of age, and a few of her relations crouch on mats around. She has only been learning a short time, and between fear and excitement at the lady's visit, answers are very difficult to get from her. She has no mother, poor child, and looks neglected and uncared for. After a little talk with her, and a hymn on the autoharp, which delights them all, we say good-bye, and with a whispered prayer go on to the next house. This is in the Police Lines, where we have several learners, but our friend is ill and suffering and cannot read to-day. However, we have a talk and a hymn with her, and cheer her by telling her of the place where there shall be no more pain. The other neighbours have greater opportunities, spiritually, than most of our women, as a Christian girl who was educated at Borella School is living here for a time, and often comes in and reads and talks about the Saviour. But it is not this so much that is attracting as her humble, loving Christian life. "Though so clever and so learned, she will come and sit on a mat with us and talk like a sister," they say. Truly "the dear Lord's best interpreters are humble human souls, and the Gospel of a life is more than books or scrolls." In the third house the children are noisy and fractious, and the new baby's attractions are great, so amid many interruptions we hear the mother's lesson and her texts, and see what progress has been made since the last visit. Then after a little Bible-reading and explanation, and a story for the children, we leave for the next house. This is of quite a different class from the others, for the owner is a rich Mohammedan of high caste, whose wife and daughter receive and entertain us with tea quite in English fashion. Here, too, after repeating their lessons they listen attentively to the message of the Saviour. In the next house we enter we can see nothing for a few minutes, so dark is the inner room into which we are led. There gradually appears a poor little bride, who seems very pleased to show us her pretty wedding clothes and jewels, so heavy that she must be weary with the weight of them. She will not read to-day, but we may sing and talk to her about the wedding feast prepared in heaven for all who will come. We are not allowed to enter the last house, for here one of our girls has died, and the mother and sister will not see or speak to one of our religion for four months and fourteen days. After that time we may visit them again.

The reports from the out-stations give cause for thankfulness. At Dolasbage there was a vigorous church, in which the young men of the district took much interest, and at Yataderia the efforts of an earnest Tamil Christian resulted in the building of a church, and the gathering together of a little congregation. A man and his wife were baptized at Wariagalla, and the work of the two Bible-women at Gampola resulted in some becoming believers who yet were afraid to ask for baptism. Two Hindu girls of eighteen and nineteen years of age did desire to be baptized, and their grandparents gave their consent, but the difficulty presented itself that unless Christian husbands could be found with sufficient money to satisfy the relations, the girls would be compelled to marry Hindus. At another place the daughter of a Mohammedan priest loved her Bible and delighted in hearing about Christ, but on account of the displeasure of her friends she was obliged to discontinue her lessons. The preaching at muster on the various estates, and visiting the lines, were continued, and the ladies sometimes went to the estates, and laboured among the women and children.

Haputale District.

Some discouragement was felt by the Rev. J. D. Simmons,* who was in charge of the HAPUTALE DISTRICT, at the "hope deferred," for only three adults were baptized during the year, and the Brahman widow, who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 312), proved disappointing, and failed to come forward for baptism. On the other hand Mr. Simmons rejoiced at the return of his old friend and fellow-worker, Moses David, the brother of the well-known Tamil evangelist, as his colleague. Two backsliders were reclaimed at Madulsima, but some apparently earnest inquirers turned away, and in the Badulla district one adult was received into the visible Church. The Bishop held a confirmation at Haputale in December, when seven candidates were presented. The only convert at Balangoda was a girl, a servant in the catechist's house, who attended the school. Her desire to embrace Christianity was caused by her observing that when the schoolmistress prayed that more children might come to the school the prayer was answered. A woman who was a pupil in the Boarding-school at Panneivillie in 1872 was found to be still leading a consistent Christian life in the isolated district of Ratnapura, which has only twice been visited by a missionary, but the Christians in the district naturally suffered from the lack of spiritual help, as also did those at Morowaka.

III. NORTHERN PROVINCE.

JAFFNA is a large peninsula in the north of Ceylon, about ninety miles in length, and contains a population of 200,000 Tamils, of whom one-tenth live in Jaffna town. The work is superintended by the Rev. H. Horsley, who speaks of the year under review as memorable for the unprecedented amount of sickness which prevailed, and also for the calamities which were foretold,

* As these pages are passing through the press the sad news is received of the death of Mrs. Simmons on May 15th.

some people declaring that there would be a great tidal wave by which a large portion of the low country would be destroyed. The death of Mr. A. Hensman, Proctor of the District Court, Jaffna, must be noticed. He was a son of the late Rev. J. Hensman, native pastor of Kopay, and belonged to a family of which several members are in positions of trust and influence in India and Ceylon. For many years the deceased was a member of the Jaffna District Church Council, and for some time secretary of it. The Centenary celebrations were held at NELLORE on April 4th, 1899, and took the form of special gatherings and a breakfast for 500 persons. The Congregation under the Rev. S. Morse was not entirely satisfactory, for the Christians were unprepared to come out and be separate, and their intermingling with the Heathen led to some grievous falls. Mrs. Horsley managed the Girls' Boarding-school, but the number of children attending it was not so great as in past years, being affected in some measure by the existence of the High School at Chundicully. The three young women who were baptized in 1898 all relapsed into Heathenism, one selling herself to a life of sin. The number of Vernacular Schools was increased by one, but the attendance suffered from the prevalent sickness, which led to a reduced grant from the Government. Regular Bible-classes were held for the benefit of the schoolmasters, and monthly meetings for the catechists and readers.

Death of a leading member of the Native Church.

Nellore.

At CHUNDICULLY, the congregation under the Rev. G. Champion, the native pastor, duly celebrated the Centenary, and was strengthened by the baptism of three adults. Two backsliders were restored, both of them living on the island of Mandativo, where the work appeared to be very prosperous. The Rev. R. W. Ryde took charge of St. John's College when the Rev. J. Carter went home. In October half the roof of the College collapsed, and the other half on investigation was found to have many rotten rafters. Towards the necessary repairs promises of both money and materials were received, the latter coming from those parents who could not afford to give money but could spare from their compounds the palmyra trees which were needed for the beams of the roof. About half of the 280 boys are Heathen, and three of these when Mr. Ryde wrote were under instruction with a view to baptism. The Girls' English High School, which works up to the Entrance Examination of the Calcutta University, suffered a severe blow by the death of Mrs. Carter, but the arrival of Miss H. E. Payne at the end of June relieved in some measure the pressure on Miss A. C. Goodchild. The school slowly but steadily increased in size, a knowledge of English being regarded by parents as a sort of make-weight in the dowries of the girls, and by the end of the year seventy-three names were on the roll. Good progress was made in Scripture knowledge, and one of the boarders was anxious for baptism, but was deferred because it was feared that her father would arrange a heathen marriage for her. Amongst the pupils was the daughter of a man connected with the management of the principal heathen temple, a strict Heathen and a vegetarian, who allowed her to attend the school contrary to the wishes of all her other relations. The Training Institution at Copay was without a resident European missionary, but was carried on by a native master under the supervision of Mr. Horsley. A favourable report of the students is given by the native pastor, the Rev. G. Daniel. Miss L. A. Case continued her work in the village and district, and was much encouraged by the increased sales of Scripture portions and Bibles; the Bible-women, too, were able to tell of several hopeful cases, and the work among the children of the fifteen schools went on satisfactorily.

Training Institution.

At Pallai a Centenary thanksgiving service was held on April 14th, at 10 a.m., and the Holy Communion was administered to over fifty communicants. Sir W. Twynam and his daughter, Mrs. Mortimer, then entertained 150 Christians at midday breakfast, and in the afternoon over 100 people received tea and cakes. The native pastor, the Rev. J. Backus, reports five adult converts, four of whom experienced much opposition to their baptism. One of them was actually turned out of the house by her mother-in-law, and the relations of another attempted to kidnap her. The twelve schools in the district were attended by more than 400 children. The Wannie is still a terror, "a sort of West Africa," Mr. Horsley says, to the native agents, but the Rev. A. Matthias holds the fort at Vavoniya, and the Rev. C. T. Williams was transferred from Kokoville to Tanniutto to act as assistant missionary.

MAURITIUS MISSION.

Though geographically more nearly connected with Africa, the little island of Mauritius is, in a missionary sense, a dependency of India. Two-thirds of the population are immigrants from Bengal and South India, brought hither to work on the sugar plantations; and among these are labouring Bengali and Tamil-speaking missionaries, whose work has been much blessed. Over 5,000 have been baptized, the majority of whom have returned to their own country. The Mission has owed much to successive Bishops of Mauritius, especially to Dr. Ryan, Dr. Royston, and Dr. Walsh. The present Bishop, Dr. Pym, was consecrated in 1898.

THE first Diocesan Conference of the Church of England in the colony of Mauritius took place on December 2nd, under the presidency of Bishop Pym. There was a service of Holy Communion at 10 a.m. in Holy Trinity Church, Rose Hill, and after the service the assembly, numbering some 300, proceeded to the Royal College buildings for the reading of papers and discussion. One of the papers read was by Archdeacon Buswell, and amongst the selected speakers were the Rev. C. A. Blackburn and the Rev. J. Ernest.

Reinforcement.

The vacancy caused by the lamented death of Mrs. Buswell was filled by the transference of Miss K. Heaney from the Ceylon Mission, and in addition the staff was reinforced by Miss Margaret Brookes Gwynn, who sailed from England in October. Miss Heaney sailed in August, 1899; and the Rev. and Mrs. V. W. Harcourt in May, 1900, to return to the Mission after furlough.

Archdeacon H. D. Buswell, the Secretary of the Mission, who took up his residence at Quatre Bornes, was occupied with a variety of duties, which were not lessened by the absence at home of two of the clerical members of the Mission. He was cheered by the arrival of Dr. Pym, the new Bishop, who held a number of confirmations shortly after his arrival in the island, at which seventy-eight candidates were presented from the congregations in connexion with the Society. The number of C.M.S. day-schools in the island was less by one than in 1898, but the aggregate number of names on the rolls and the average attendance were greater than ever before. During the year the question of the desirability of maintaining Church schools was mooted, since the clergy had the right of entrance to all the Government schcols for the purpose of religious instruction, but careful inquiry showed that "the most intelligent, most satisfactory, and most useful of the converts were those who had been baptized as the result of instruction in Mission schools." The Archdeacon worked as far as was possible amongst the people in the camps and villages in the neighbourhood of ROSE BELLE, and he was impressed with the fact that "listening seemed to be developing into inquiry, and that there were indications of a readiness on the part of some to put themselves under instruction." Only one adult was baptized in the district, but a few others who had been partly instructed at Rose Belle were received into the visible Church at other places.

Girls' School and Orphanage.

On the death of Mrs. Buswell in May, 1899, Miss H. A. Wilkinson took charge of the Girls' School and Orphanage, until the arrival of Miss K. Heaney. Much sickness prevailed among the sixty-eight children, and one of them died, but the sorrow was not without beneficial results, for as far as could be judged it was the means of leading several of the girls to give themselves to Christ. It was not possible to devote so much time as formerly to the Dispensary, at which nearly one thousand attendances were registered, and the Work among Women also suffered from the temporary transference of Miss Wilkinson to the Orphanage, as well as from the plague regulations and constant quarantine which affected the operations of the seven Bible-women. The meetings for Native Christian women were, however, continued with the help of Miss Buswell and Miss M. L. Penley, the addresses being given in Creole, while the prayers and singing were in English, French, and Hindi. Miss Wilkinson mentions a couple of instances which showed that the work in the past had not been altogether in vain:—

> One Sunday I was just starting out with the Bible-woman when three men arrived—a Hindu bringing two Mohammedans who wished to have a little talk, they said. They stayed two hours, and one proved to be a man whom I had met and had a talk with in the Hindu's house a year or more ago. A few days after coming out of church from our English service I found two Hindu men and a boy standing by the door. They said they had been listening, but, of course, could not understand anything. So I invited them to stay and have a talk. I found they had come from a place about six miles distant on purpose to hear. It seems, more than a year ago, they had listened with others when I was visiting there with my Bible-women, and had not quite forgotten.

There was a hopeful meeting for heathen women at Vacoas, and at Mahebourg the work progressed in a quiet way.

Plaisance Boys' Orphanage.

The Boys' School and Orphanage at PLAISANCE were under the care of Miss Penley, who was encouraged by often seeing the lads in the dormitories kneeling in prayer, and by two of the boys, who did not possess Bibles of their own, coming to her with the request that she would lend them copies, so that they might read them when at home for the holidays. The Orphanage contained fifty-six inmates, an increase of twelve in spite of the death of two during the year. There were several applications for admission, which could not be entertained because of the lack of funds. Thirty-eight names were on the register of the school, the majority of the lads being Heathen or Mohammedans. All but four passed the annual examination, and one of the elder boys gained his fourth class master's certificate.

The Rev. C. A. Blackburn, at BEAU BASSIN, suffered the loss of his daughter, who passed away after a long and painful illness. Mr. Blackburn, enjoying better health than in 1898, was able to make sixty-seven missionary journeys, but the most important part of his work was the holding of public meetings for controversy, which were attended by large crowds, and fully justified the expenditure of much time both in preparing for and in conducting them. That some impression was made upon the Hindus is evident from the following cases:—

Discussions with Hindus

At one of the conferences, after it had been clearly shown from the Ramayana itself that Ram was not a Saviour, and after an earnest appeal had been made to all present to accept Christ in order to obtain salvation, some of the more educated Hindus, who had been arguing the point with us, answered that though they were now convinced, to their great sorrow, that the "King-God" could not save them, yet they would not forsake him in whom their forefathers from generation to generation had believed. They added that they would rather be with their ancestors, even in hell, than choose the Way of Salvation and be separated from them. At another meeting, in order to get rid of the fact that the Devatas were most immoral, revengeful, deceitful, and wicked beings, one of the principal antagonists admitted, in presence of all, that the divinities were not necessary to salvation. We urged that this declaration should be accepted and acted upon by all Hindus.

A remarkable incident which occurred at a conference with Mohammedans is thus described:— and Mohammedans.

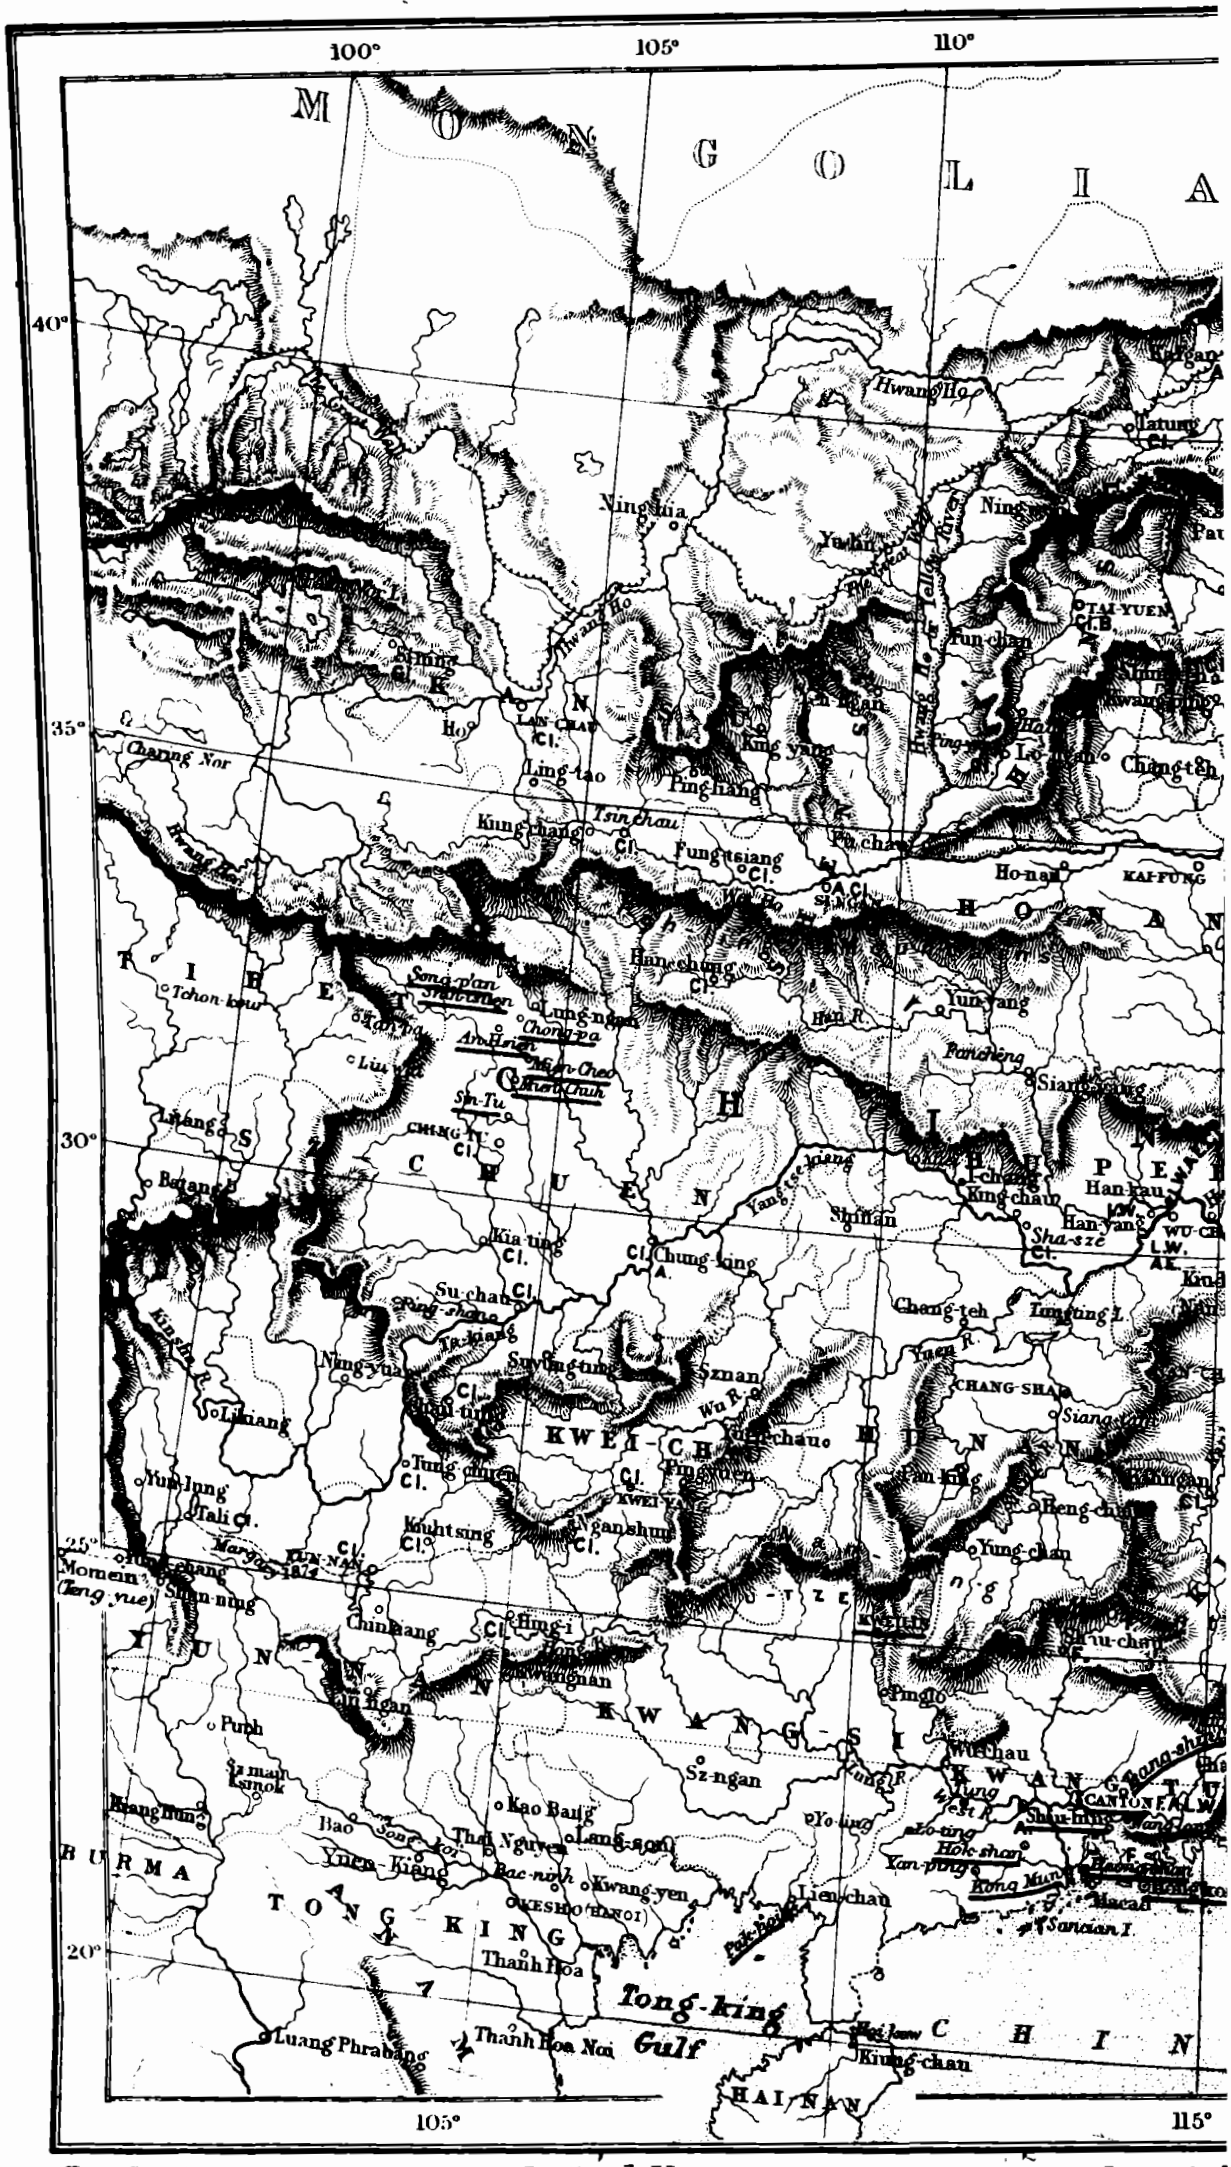
One of the more educated Miajis surprised every one present. He had attended our meetings on several occasions, and had once been one of our desperate antagonists. The Mussulmans looked upon him as one of their invincible champions, and we found it no easy work to silence him. But, being a learned and thoughtful man, he studied both sides of the controversy, and even borrowed books from us to read. On the above-mentioned occasion the conference room was crowded, and several very persistent and bold defenders of Islam had been opposing us for several hours; though again and again brought to see their error, they persisted in their attempt by bringing forward fresh and far-fetched arguments. All of a sudden the Miaji already mentioned rose up and challenged our opponents to prove by the Koran the statements they had advanced. He showed that if what they had affirmed were true, the Koran must tell lies; but since this could not be admitted by any Moslem, they must therefore be wrong. He quoted passage after passage of their book, and concluded by saying that according to the Divine teaching, revealed both in the Koran and the Injil, it was evident that the Messiah was the only true Saviour. "Listen," said he, "and tell me what this means: 'The Messiah Jesus, son of Mary, illustrious in this world and in the next.'" He added that Al Baijawi, the great commentator, said that this meant that Christ was such as being a "Prophet in this world, and an Intercessor in Heaven." The adverse party could only reply to this with anger and curses. However, many became thoughtful. Some asked the Miaji how long it was since he had found out that Christ was the Saviour. He told them to search the Koran and they would see for themselves that Mohammed could not save them, and that the only one that could do so was Christ. We were so thankful that God had opened this man's mind to understand this great truth. He is a person of much influence, and is the leader of a jama'at, or congregation. If we could lay hold of him and teach him properly, he might lead many of his co-religionists into the Way of Salvation.

A Mohammedan professor desires to become an evangelist.

There were at least two instances of Mohammedans being convinced of the truth of Christianity, the one of a Professor of Arabic and Hindustani, who desired to be trained as an evangelist, and the other of a young man, who was so beaten and persecuted by the Moslems that he was obliged to flee to another part of the island and lie in concealment. Twenty-three adults were baptized, including a man who had received a fair education in the Government school, an old Telugu man, and an aged Mohammedan couple. The woman died shortly after her baptism, trusting entirely in the merits of the Saviour.



Pastorates.

The wife and child of a native pastor carried off by the plague.

Three of the six Pastorates were cared for by native clergy. The Rev. S. Susunkar, of the Port Louis Pastorate, lost both his wife and eldest son during the year, the plague carrying them off within a fortnight of one another. In the Northern Pastorate, under the Rev. J. Ernest, several of the converts and some of the children in the schools died of the plague, which interfered greatly with the evangelistic work on the sugar estates. Four adults were baptized. A woman who was among the number met with a good deal of persecution from her husband, but in spite of all his opposition, and the threats which he used, she persevered in her attendance at the Sunday services, continuing in prayer that his heart might be changed. Her intercessions were not in vain, for gradually the persecution relaxed, and on one occasion the husband even came to church. The Rev. I. F. Chorley, of the North Central Pastorate, reports eighteen adult baptisms and five hundred Christians in connexion with four churches. The Centenary Day was joyfully observed, and during the following week special meetings were held in various parts of the Pastorate. Creditable examination results were obtained in the schools, in one of which as many as 97 per cent. of the children succeeded in passing.

CHINA.

Pledge as to non-alienation of a large part of China.

The partition and dismemberment of the Chinese Empire which proceeded apace in 1898, and appeared likely to continue and even increase, suddenly came to a stop in the following year, and the effort made by the Italian Government to obtain the lease of a port in San-Mun Bay proved entirely abortive. Indeed, it has been pointed out that pledges have practically been given concerning the non-alienation of the maritime provinces, with the exception of Shan-Tung and Manchuria, and of six of those which are inland, while in three of the five remaining provinces important concessions have been made to English and Anglo-Italian syndicates which should serve to ensure for them the anxious solicitude of the Governments of the concessionaires.

Concessions of Chinese Government to a large degree apparently neutralized.

For a time it seemed as though the vis inertiæ of China had been overcome, but the experience of the year under review proved that the hopes which had been entertained in this matter were too sanguine. The possibility of neutralizing preliminary railway contracts by protracted subsequent negotiations, of reducing the effect of concessions so that they should yield a minimum of benefit to those in whose favour they were ostensibly made, and of repudiating in the provinces promises made in Peking, was grasped and acted upon by some of the anti-foreign party among the Chinese. The opening of the inland waters of the empire to steam navigation, which was nominally effected in 1898, was accompanied by so many restrictions that it proved of little benefit to commerce, for the exactions of native custom-houses and likin stations compelled merchants to adopt most circuitous routes for their goods. All efforts to bring these exactions under the control of reliable and responsible officials proved unavailing. Breaches of treaty are stated to have increased in frequency, and the rapacity of provincial mandarins to have shown no signs of restraint or diminution. Nevertheless, there were some signs giving promise of future progress. The official gentry displayed indications of an awakening to the necessity of at least acquainting themselves with the nature of foreign methods and ideals, and the more enlightened of the governors, such as Chang Chih-Tung, the Viceroy of Ho-Nan and Hu-Peh, manifested a certain readiness to welcome reforms provided they were compatible with the maintenance of the system of Confucian philosophy.

A few enlightened officials.

That the attitude of the Chinese authorities towards Western Powers and civilization is not without its influence on the work of carrying out the evangelization of the empire is evident from the changed experiences of Dr. Griffith John, of the London Missionary Society, on the occasion of his fifth visit to the Province of Hunan more accessible to evangelists.

Province of Hunan. Whereas in 1880 and 1883 he was treated with violence, and even in 1897 was ordered away by the local officials, he found in the autumn of 1899 that the authorities professed to be pleased at the prospect of the establishment of a mission in their midst, and he received many flattering attentions at the hands of a district magistrate who on the occasion of his previous visit had treated him with marked rudeness. The populace followed the lead of their rulers, and, influenced perhaps by the statement of the Viceroy that "the abominable rumours of the vile proceedings said to be carried on in Christian chapels, such as gouging out the pupil of the eye in order to make medicine, and so forth, are monstrous lies and altogether unworthy of credence," maintained a pacific demeanour, so that Dr. John wrote, "The people could not have behaved themselves better than they did. No stones were thrown after us, no opprobrious epithets were hurled at us, and no black looks were to be seen anywhere. We walked about in every direction, both inside and outside the city, and found the people perfectly quiet and friendly."

Secret societies.

On the other hand, there are considerable sections of the population which cannot be relied upon to imitate the attitude of the Government and its officials, whether that attitude be pro- or anti-foreign. Secret societies having political aims are found in various provinces of the empire, and these are frequently prone to assume a hostile aspect towards foreigners, both merchants and missionaries. The brutal murder, on December 31st, 1899, of the Rev. S. Brooks, a missionary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel, at Ping-yin, in the Province of Shan-Tung, by members of a seditious society known as the "Boxers," but whose self-chosen title is said to be "League of United Patriots," was a distressing example of the danger which these bodies constitute. The activity of the last-named Society became so threatening in the spring and summer of 1900 that the Great Powers have insisted on landing small bodies of marines to protect their respective ministries at the capital.

Murder of an S.P.G. missionary.

Political activity of Roman Catholic missionaries.

The anti-foreign and anti-Christian sentiment finds some palliation and excuse for its existence, alas! in the arbitrary acts of interference with native tribunals, and in the exercise of political influence to serve the interests of a religious propaganda, on the part of Roman Catholic Missions in various parts of China. A flagrant instance of the former was the subject of correspondence in the columns of the North China Daily News between Bishop Moule and Bishop Reynaud, the latter being Vicaire Apostolique and head of the Lazarist Mission in Cheh-Kiang. Bishop Moule wrote:—

> Last autumn Li Hsi-Ch'ang, a rice-factor living in a town on the borders of the Tai-P'ing and Huang-Yen districts, was conveying thence to the small seaport of Sung-Mên two boatloads of rice, valued at $300. On the way thither he was stopped by Wang Li-Yuen and other Roman Catholic adherents, who demanded $50 as excise, and detained the boats till he should pay it. He refused, and laid an information before the Tai-P'ing magistrate. A cross-action was commenced by the other accusing Li of intending to export the rice beyond seas. The magistrate gave it in favour of Li, to whom he ordered the property to be restored; directing his "runners" to see the sentence carried out. They were resisted by Wang, who in the end carried off the boats and their contents and handed them over to M. Lepers, French missionary priest at Hai-Mên. These transactions having come to the knowledge of the Rev. G. H. Jose, C.M.S., under whose ministry Li had become a convert, and who was then stationed at T'ai-Chou-Fu, he wrote to M. Lepers to ask if the account he had received of the action of Wang Li-Yuen and others, and of M. Lepers' acceptance of the plunder, was correct. M. Lepers' reply was to the effect that the facts were as stated; but that he had reason to suspect that some part of the rice had been taken from a member of his communion; that meantime he had sold the rice for $100, and was prepared to discuss with Mr. Jose the disposal of that sum, as well as of the boats and sacks, which were all in his possession, in case it should appear that his suspicions were well founded. The extraordinary nature of this avowal led Mr. Jose to lay the correspondence before Mr. Playfair, then H.B.M.'s Consul at Ningpo; who, after seeing the vouchers, including the magistrate's findings as well as the priest's avowal, deemed the case one in which the injured Chinese subject, Li Hsi-Ch'ang, might well hope to obtain justice in the Court of the French Consul-General.

Mr. Playfair, now Consul at Fuh-Chow, formerly at Ningpo, who was conversant with the whole case, after reading one of the letters of Bishop Reynaud, wrote as follows to Bishop Moule:—"The version given by Bishop Reynaud of the famous rice case is simply ludicrous. He states as undoubted facts allegations which have been disproved over and over again, and thoroughly disproved. Frankly, what seems to me the most scandalous part of the business is that, in spite of the gravity of the charge against M. Lepers, and the cogency of the proofs with which it was supported, it has been impossible to have the accusations even heard."

Official status obtained for Roman Catholic ecclesiastics;

It is in complete accord with the spirit which underlies such transactions as the one above adverted to, that it has been claimed in behalf of Roman Catholic missionaries labouring in China that a definite rank should be accorded to them, corresponding to that of the higher officials of the Government. A bishop, for example, is to rank with a viceroy, and a priest with a magistrate, &c. It was understood that the Chinese Government anticipated that the same privileges (if they can be so termed) would be claimed under the most favoured nation clause by Protestant missionaries from the various Western lands, and that it would have welcomed and gladly responded to applications for similar recognition. The Bishops of the Anglican Communion, however, who met at Shanghai, under the presidency of Bishop Moule, in October, 1899, unanimously agreed that it was not desirable to demand any such status, and the Protestant missionaries throughout the empire have, with almost equal unanimity, determined on a like course.

and declined by Protestant Bishops and missionaries.

SOUTH CHINA MISSION.

The great Empire of China was opened to missionary effort in 1844, when the Treaty of Nanking, which closed the first Chinese War, gave England the possession of Hong-Kong, and the right of residence at five leading ports; and more fully in 1858–60, by the Treaty of Tien-Tsin and Convention of Pekin. Hong-Kong was occupied in 1862, Pak-Hoi in 1886, Canton in 1898, and Kwei-Lin in 1899.

The Fuh-Kien Mission has a truly remarkable history. Fuh-Chow was occupied in 1850, and the first eleven years passed without a single convert appearing. Two out of five missionaries died during this interval, and two retired. The fifth died soon after gathering the first-fruits of his labours, leaving a new-comer, the Rev. J. R. (now Archdeacon) Wolfe, in charge. Up to 1864 the work was confined to Fuh-Chow city. In that year and the following, other large cities were occupied by native evangelists. In 1866 the first two or three converts from these were baptized. Fuh-Ning was occupied by European Missionaries in 1882; Ku-Cheng, 1887; Lo-Ngwong, 1889; Nang-Wa, 1889; Kien-Yang, 1891; Hing-Hwa and Kien-Ning, 1894; Ning-Taik, 1896; Keng-Tau, 1896; Ko-Sang-Che, 1896; Lieng-Kong, 1897.

China, south of lat. 28°, is under the episcopal jurisdiction of the Bishop of Victoria, Hong-Kong. The first Bishop, Dr. G. Smith, the third, Dr. Burdon, and the fourth, Dr. Hoare, were C.M.S. Missionaries; and the second, Dr. Alford, was an active friend of the Society at home.

Reinforcements.

THE Mission received the following reinforcements:—the Rev. John Baker Carpenter, B.A., Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and Islington College, Curate of St. Thomas', Birmingham, and brother of the Rev. J. N. Carpenter, of Allahabad; Mr. George Wilkinson, M.A., M.B., B.C., Emmanuel College, Cambridge; Mr. Percival John Laird, a Clapham student; Miss Annie McClelland, of the Highbury Training Home; Miss Julia Harriette Poulter, sister of Dr. Mabel Poulter of this Mission, who spent a few weeks at The Willows; and Miss Annie Kathleen Storr. All the above sailed for China in the autumn with the exception of Mr. Laird and Miss Poulter, who left England in January, 1900. In addition, the following ladies of the Female Education Society were added to the staff of the C.M.S., the figures against their names indicating the years in which they joined the former Society: Miss Margaret Johnstone, 1874; Miss Jessy Bushell, 1883; Miss Lucy Agnes Eyre, 1888; Miss Clara Jane Lambert, 1889; Miss Helena Selina Fletcher, 1892; and Miss Anna Maria Baker, 1894.

The Rev. H. M. Eyton Jones has resigned his connexion with the Society for family reasons; and the Rev. and Mrs. S. W. C. Howe in consequence, unhappily, of Mrs. Howe's breakdown in health.

The Secretaries of the Mission are the Rev. W. Banister, for the Provinces of Kwan-Tung and Kwang-Si; and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd, assisted by Mr. W. Muller, for the Province of Fuh-Kien.

I. PROVINCE OF KWAN-TUNG.

MISS A. M. JONES came home in May, 1899, leaving again for China in the following January; the Rev. and Mrs. C. Bennett

(the latter invalided) in January, 1900; Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Hill in March. The Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Beauchamp sailed for the Mission in November, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. Banister in February, 1900.

HONG-KONG.

Hong-Kong. The European missionaries stationed at HONG-KONG during the whole or part of the year were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hipwell, Miss A. K. Hamper, Miss A. M. Jones, and the following ladies, formerly of the F.E.S., but now on the staff of the Society: Miss L. A. Eyre, Miss H. S. Fletcher, Miss M. Johnstone, and Miss A. M. Baker.

The Centenary. A series of meetings in connexion with the Centenary of the Society were held from June 10th to 14th, 1899, the speakers at which were the Bishop of Victoria, the Rev. C. Bennett, and the Rev. Ll. Lloyd. There was a large and attentive audience at the opening meeting for Native Christians on Saturday, June 10th, and on the following day, besides other services, a united service for Native Christians of all Protestant Missions was held in the Cathedral, at which over 600 converts were present. On Monday, the 12th, by the kind permission of his Excellency the Governor and Lady Blake, a Drawing-room Meeting was held in Government House. There was an attendance of about seventy. His Excellency presided, and in his opening remarks expressed his deep sympathy with the cause of Christian Missions, of which he had been for some time a student, and strongly maintained that statistics are not reliable as a final test of missionary success; the work being spiritual, its influence is deeper and reaches further than can be tabulated. The closing meeting took place in the City Hall on the Wednesday, and was presided over by the Right Hon. W. M. Goodman, Acting-Chief Justice, who said that he was in entire sympathy with the work of C.M.S. and other Christian Missions. As a permanent outcome of these gatherings a local Church Missionary Association was formed, which before the end of the year had a membership of eighty persons, exclusive of missionaries.

Baptisms. The Rev. Fong Yat-Sau, who was in charge of the Congregation, reports the baptism of fifty-seven adults. There were happily signs of increasing evangelistic zeal on the part of the young men, and Mr. Hipwell instances a member of his weekly Bible-class who expressed an earnest desire to devote himself to the work of making known the tidings of salvation. Much interest in educational work was displayed by the Government of the Colony, who made grants-in-aid to nearly 100 Mission schools, twenty-two of which, with an average daily attendance of almost 1,000 children, belonged to the Society. The lads at the Anglo-Chinese Day-school for Boys, who are educated entirely in English, saving that the Scripture lesson is always given in the vernacular, numbered about 150. There were seventy-three girls in the Christian Girls' Boarding-school, under Miss Johnstone, at the beginning of 1900, and forty-five in the Boarding-school, of which Miss Hamper was in charge. The Evangelistic Work in the city was most encouraging, for many inquirers came forward, and several were baptized. Visits were also paid to Kow-Loon, on the mainland. This, with an adjoining area of 376 square miles, containing 423 villages, with a population of just over 80,000, has been ceded to Great Britain. Nine persons were baptized in December in the city of Kow-Loon, where Mr. and Mrs. Hipwell took up their residence in March, 1900.

CANTON.

Five missionaries resided at CANTON during the year: the Rev. and Mrs. C. Bennett, the Rev. G. A. Bunbury, Miss R. Bachlor, of the New South Wales C.M. Association, and Miss A. Smith, of the Victoria C.M. Association. Most of them, however, were engrossed with language study. An important and well-attended meeting in connexion with the Centenary was held on April 25th, 1899, under the presidency of H.B.M.'s Consul, Mr. R. W. Mansfield. The chairman spoke in high terms of several of the senior missionaries of the C.M.S. Fuh-Kien Mission whom he had personally known during the past twenty-five years—Bishop Burdon, Bishop Hoare, Archdeacon Wolfe, and the Rev. W. Banister—and, alluding to the inquiry which he had been called upon officially to institute after the massacre at Hwa-Sang in 1895, he paid a grateful tribute to the assistance afforded by Mr. Banister's "sound good sense and thorough knowledge of the language" in the course of that inquiry. Amongst the other speakers were Dr. Graves, of the Baptist Mission, the Rev. C. D. Cousins, of the London Missionary Society, and Dr. Boyes, of the American Presbyterian Board of Missions, the last mentioned of whom affirmed that Americans, though grown to manhood, did not forget their ancestors, and took a pride in England's Queen, in England's strong Government, in England's justice, and in England's Church, "for," he added, "the Church of England is England's glory, and the brightest of the glories of that Church is the Church Missionary Society."

Centenary meeting at Canton.

Towards the end of the year Mr. Bunbury was placed in charge of the Preparandi Class. He describes the students, seven in number, as earnest and warm-hearted, though not very advanced either intellectually or spiritually. The Women's Boarding-school was carried on for some time and in it two women were led to Christ, but the failure of Mrs. Bennett's health, which compelled her return to England with her husband, rendered it necessary to discontinue that institution. Considerable encouragement was afforded by the work in the city, for several baptisms took place, ten men were confirmed by the Bishop in December, and a little congregation of twenty Christians was gathered together. Amongst those baptized was one of the literati, an acting mandarin, whose attention was arrested as he was passing the Mission-house one day by the name of the Society, which was written over the door in Chinese. He had heard the truth some years before, but though then interested had been afraid to confess Christ, but the inscription led him to call on Mr. Bennett; his subsequent conversion caused a great sensation, since he was well known in Chinese official circles.

A mandarin attracted by the name of the C.M.S.

Fifteen converts were baptized at Kong-Mun, and a young man from the district, who was received into the visible Church in 1897, was sent to be trained as an evangelist. An occurrence happened which showed the steadfastness of one of the converts:—

A convert beaten to death by his parents.

A young man, twenty-seven years of age, was beaten to death by his father and mother because he refused as a Christian to have anything to do with the gambling carried on in the house, and "thus did not bring in enough money." Before the mandarin the woman pleaded guilty to the charge, but urged as an excuse that the son was "unfilial," in other words, refused to obey her when commanded to gamble. In other respects he was acknowledged to be a good son. To his fellow-Christians he was known as an inoffensive and consistent Christian, and his death caused much sorrow, not to say alarm at what might follow in other families when it became known that the mandarin was powerless to punish, and that under Chinese law the parents had perfect liberty to put their children to death if they disobeyed them, however wrong or absurd the command might be.

The most important of all the country stations is Heung-Shan, a district city on a branch of the West River, where there is a congregation of fifty Christians. Twelve candidates, all of them more than twenty-four years of age, were confirmed, and at least one notable baptism took place, of which Mr. Bennett wrote:—

A village headman baptized.

On May 14th a party of five might have been seen wending their way down to the river on their way to the service at Heung-Shan. One of these was the headman of the village of Hang Me, seventy-eight years of age, but showing little the weakness of old age. On that day he was to lose for ever the influence he had possessed so long as arbiter in every dispute, the father of his clan; no longer would he share in the family portion in the ancestral banquet. He was on his way to be baptized in the Christian chapel at Heung-Shan. As he passed the "ancestral hall" of the township, he saw the placards urging the people to kill him and the other Christians in the place, but he kept on his way unheeding. One sad thought might make him hesitate: his wife, the partner of many years, was not with him. She bitterly resented the step he was taking. At Heung-Shan, five miles down the river, a hearty reception awaited the little party. All knew the danger the old man and those with him incurred, but their hearts were cheered with the remembrance of answered prayer, and because the aged elder of the village, who had so long resisted the truth and the entreaties of his son, was now willing to confess Christ in baptism. What would become of the little party on their return home? Earnest prayer was offered up that the powers of evil might be restrained. The petitions were answered, and the converts were allowed to return in safety, owing to some of the anti-Christian party not being willing to adopt extreme measures at once, and in the meanwhile, through the intervention of the Consul acting on the mandarin, soldiers were sent to keep the peace. This step, however, did not put a stop to the persecution, or the loss of all ancestral rights.

Twelve adults were received into the visible Church at Hok-Shan, thirty miles north-west of Kong-Mun, and several of the literati in the city appeared to believe in Christ, but lacked the requisite courage to be baptized, while at one place in the Hang-Shing district there was some disturbance originated by the Heathen, but happily quelled by the timely intervention of the soldiers sent by the mandarin. The work at Cheung-Po, another place in the same district, was set on foot by a schoolmaster, who while spending his holidays in the village taught the Natives about Christianity. When Mr. Bennett visited it in the spring of 1899 he found four men well instructed and eager to be baptized, one of whom, an old man, well read in the Chinese classics, remarked, "We may not know much doctrine, but we do believe on Jesus, and desire only to serve Him." Mr. Bennett writes of one of these men :—

Grievous persecution of converts.

He was informed on his return to his native village that he could no longer have a share in the family inheritance, consisting of rice-fields. He patiently submitted to the loss of the spring crop, but in the autumn, on his attempting to take his share, he was set upon by twelve men and beaten to death. His only son also was seized, thrown into a dung-pit, but subsequently taken out when all but suffocated, and removed to some place unknown to his relatives.

Altogether twenty-three persons were baptized in the Hang-Shing district, the majority of whom were adults. The work at Heung-Shan, Kong-Mun, and Hok-Shan has been placed under the care of the Rev. E. J. Barnett, Secretary of the Victoria C.M. Association, who is in China for the study of the language with a view to superintending the work amongst the Chinese in the Melbourne Diocese, and who offered his services to the Committee for the year 1900.

SHIU-HING.

Shiu-Hing.

Shiu-Hing was occupied for the first time by a European missionary of the Society when the Rev. and Mrs. A. Iliff took up their abode there in the course of the year under review. The work was of course on a small scale, but the people were friendly, and inquirers numerous. Many visits were paid to Mr. Iliff by men of high social position, and he mentions that in one military yamen there were several influential Chinese who, led thereto by a Christian clerk, earnestly studied the Christian doctrine, some out of mere curiosity, but others with a view to embracing it.

PAK-HOI.

Besides Bishop Burdon, the following resided at PAK-HOI: Dr. and Mrs. E. G. Horder, Dr. and Mrs. L. G. Hill, Miss A. A. Bolton, and Miss E. L. Havers, and the staff was reinforced by the arrival in the autumn of Miss A. K. Storr. Much of the time of Miss Bolton and Miss Havers was occupied with language study. Pak-Hoi.

Great patience was called for in connexion with the visiting which was carried on by the ladies, for the people manifested no desire to hear of the true God, and appeared quite satisfied to live and die without any knowledge of the destiny of their souls. All forms of missionary effort were affected by the outbreak of the plague, which made its appearance in March, 1899, and assumed serious proportions in the following month. Dr. Hill's teacher and Dr. Horder's cook both succumbed to the disease, and Dr. Hill writes:—

Outbreak of the plague.

> One feature of the epidemic was its great fatality; nearly every one attacked died of it, some who were apparently well at night were dead before morning. In the main street several shops were closed, as the owners had died, and there was no one left to carry on the business. In one shop opposite our town preaching-hall, five out of seven of the family perished within a week. Coffins were not to be bought, as they could not be made fast enough by the living; the consequence was, bodies were buried un-coffined, and the dogs came and scratched them up. It was not uncommon to see a plague-stricken person dragged from the house and put under a hedge to perish, and some beggars given a few cash to tend him till death, and then bury him. These beggars, before performing the last office, will take the infected clothes and sell them, thus perpetuating the disease.

It would naturally be expected that the prevalence of sickness would increase the number of patients at the Hospital and dispensary, but as a matter of fact the reverse was the case, for the people feared to come for treatment for ordinary maladies lest they should contract a worse disease. The total number of in-patients was 391, and more than 16,000 visits of out-patients were recorded. A new ward for the accommodation of the women was put up at the Leper Asylum, many of the inmates of which showed by their questions that they really searched the Scriptures, and six of them were baptized by Bishop Burdon in July, 1899.

New out-station.

The chief feature of the evangelistic work was the opening of an out-station at Ko-Tak, a place about three miles from Pak-Hoi, where a house was dedicated for Christian work by Bishop Burdon as a lasting memorial of the Centenary of the Society. It was used as a dispensary and preaching-hall, Dr. Hill going over twice a week to see the sick, and being accompanied by some of the ladies who worked among the women. From two to three thousand visits of out-patients were recorded there, and the medical treatment soon wrought a change in the attitude of the people, who at first regarded the missionaries as political agents with far from friendly intentions.

II. PROVINCE OF KWANG-SI.

KUEI-LIN.

Kuei-Lin. As mentioned in last year's Report, the Rev. and Mrs. L. Byrde lived for a few months at the beginning of 1899 in Wu-Chau, the third city in China in point of size, and the second in commercial importance, and attempted while there to acquire a knowledge of Mandarin. In May, 1899, they started for Kuei-Lin, which is in the province of Kwang-Si, and near the southern boundary of Hunan, the objective of Mr. Byrde's endeavours. Although Kuei-Lin is not more than 200 or 300 miles from Wu-Chau up the Cassia River, yet the journey occupied no less than thirty-seven days, owing to the constant succession of rapids up which the boat had to be hauled by means of a capstan and cable.

Kuei-Lin, which is the capital of the province of Kwang-Si, has a population of 200,000, and a wall about seven miles in circumference, while the distance from the north to the south gate is over two miles. For four months no house could be obtained, and the missionaries were therefore compelled to live on their boat, which they ordered to be moored at a distance from the shore in order to escape from the intolerable curiosity of the townspeople. At length, in October, premises were taken and occupied, the front part of which was converted into a temporary chapel and guest room. On the Sunday after they took possession of the house a placard attacking Christianity and threatening to turn out the missionaries was posted close to it, and in the same night stones were thrown. In order to quiet matters Mr. Byrde waited on the official responsible for order in the city, and eventually persuaded him to issue a proclamation to the people, enjoining them to treat the missionaries with proper respect. The exhibition of this proclamation caused numbers of people to call and inquire further of the doctrine, and many copies of the Gospels were sold. While living on the boat a fair amount of medical work was accomplished by Mrs. Byrde, and the gratitude of the people was manifested by two of them absolutely refusing to accept any payment for some stools which they had made to order.

III. PROVINCE OF FUH-KIEN.

The Rev. J. Martin and Miss E. S. Goldie returned to England in May, 1899; the Misses J. C. and J. E. Clarke in July; and Miss J. Bushell in February, 1900. Mr. T. B. Woods was married in January, 1900, to Miss Henrietta Agnes Baker, of the C.E.Z.M.S.; and the Rev. T. de C. Studdert to Miss R. Clemson, of this Mission, in February.

Ordinations.

On April 13th, 1899, the Right Rev. the Bishop of Victoria admitted the Revs. S. J. Nightingale and W. C. White to priests' orders, and on Sunday, November 12, in the College Chapel, Fuh-Chow, the Revs. Lau Taik-Ong, Yek Twang-Mi, Ting Chung-Seng, and Li Sie-Mi to priests' orders, and Mr. Wong Hung-Ong to deacon's orders. The last-named after leaving school was trained as a medical man by Dr. Van Someren Taylor, and for several years practised in Fuh-Chow and Hok-Chiang. In the latter place he acted as a voluntary helper on the Sundays, taking services and helping the church in every way he could. It is said that if he had remained a practising physician his income would have been at least three times as much as he receives from the Mission. He is married to a daughter of the late Rev. Wong Kiu-Taik.

Provincial Church Council.

The meetings of the Fuh-Kien Provincial Church Council were held in November, commencing on the 11th with a missionary prayer-meeting, at which interesting accounts of the work of some of the leading stations were given by the pastors and several of the catechists and delegates. The next day, Sunday, Bishop Hoare held an ordination, as mentioned above. The Council meetings closed on the following Sunday with the administration of the Holy Communion and Morning and Evening Service. Archdeacon Wolfe says of these gatherings :—

> To have any adequate idea of the spirit of enthusiasm which prevailed during the whole time of these meetings, one must have been present to witness and take part in them. It is really wonderful, and nothing less than a miracle of God's grace, the thoughts which these once ignorant and idolatrous, but now Christian, Chinese give utterance to in these meetings: on hearing them one cannot for a single moment doubt but that they are taught by the Spirit of God, and that He is working in this Fuh-Kien Mission. A poor ignorant Chinese labourer stands up in a large meeting and startles you with a speech full of spiritual thoughts worthy of your learned professor of theology at home, the difference being that these thoughts are expressed with greater simplicity and warmth by these Christian Chinese than by your learned theologians !

Taught by the Holy Spirit.

Two of the devastating typhoons which so often sweep over China occurred in August. The first struck the coast exactly at Fuh-Chow, but though the property of the Society suffered, the missionaries happily escaped harm. The plague was prevalent during the summer, and increased in virulence during the autumn.

FUH-CHOW.

Nan-Tai

The city of FUH-CHOW lies in a wide plain on the north side of the River Min, and is an hour's walk direct inland from the bank. Opposite the city, in the centre of the river, is the island of Nan-Tai, joined by the Bridge of Ten Thousand Ages to the mainland, and on the island is the English settlement. The Society's educational institutions are situated at Nan-Tai, for the reason that permission to erect or maintain them in the native city has not been accorded.

The Centenary was celebrated at NAN-TAI by an early service at 8 a.m. on April 25th, when Bishop Hoare and Archdeacon Wolfe officiated, and all the C.M.S. and C.E.Z.M.S. missionaries in Nan-Tai and Fuh-Chow, and some American missionaries also, were communicants. Later in the morning the Bishop preached at a special service. In the afternoon there was a large meeting of Native Christians in the College Chapel, when the Bishop spoke by interpretation, and the Rev. C. Hartwell, of the American Board's Mission, the Rev. M. Wilcox, and Archdeacon Wolfe were the other speakers. In the evening the Bishop presided over a meeting, the other speakers being the Rev. C. Hartwell, the Rev. N. Plumb, of the American Methodist Mission, and Archdeacon Wolfe.

Theological College.

The Theological College is under the temporary superintendence of the Rev. F. E. Bland, with the Rev. W. S. Walsh as his colleague. The latter, who was transferred from Fuh-Ning, was in some peril on his way to Fuh-Chow, for the boat in which he was travelling lost its rudder in the heavy seas, and for four hours was tossed about helplessly. The Rev. Ll. Lloyd also taught in the College, taking the twenty-three students in Genesis, Exodus, and the Epistle to the Romans; Mr. Bland instructed them in the Prayer-book and in Church doctrine; and other subjects they were taught by the native helpers. They gained experience in practical work by assisting in the services at various centres near the College, and by going forth in bands of three or four to preach in the neighbouring villages, while by means of the Y.M.C.A. and a new literary society they were helped in spiritual matters and in their general education. Five of the men left for a year's probationary work as lay readers. The students numbered thirty-two in March, 1900.

Schools.

From sixteen to twenty is the limit of age at the Boys' High School, which is the great source of supply of schoolmasters and medical students for the Mission. All the youths, thirty in number, passed a good examination in Chinese writing and reading, but they were less successful in Scripture. Five of them left in 1899 to take up various Mission posts, and six early in the following year. Every month a prayer-meeting for old boys was held, at which letters were read from the former students, thus keeping the boys in touch with outside work, and assuring those who had left of continued interest in them, for the letters were answered by the lads and a few lines added by Mr. Bland. The forty pupils of the Junior Boys' Boarding-school, under sixteen years of age, showed a "surprising earnestness in their work," which, however, did not prevent their keen enjoyment of games, although they did not take kindly to Association football. Encouraging testimony was received concerning a former pupil from a Chinaman, who told of a certain place where there was a congregation of thirty people, which met every Sunday for worship, although there was no catechist to instruct them. But he added that a boy from the school who lived close at hand constantly preached to and taught the people, and was said to be very intelligent and zealous. Mrs. Lloyd was in charge of the Bible-women's Training School, which had twenty members, and Miss J. Bushell (now at home) and Miss C. J. Lambert managed the Girls' Boarding-school. Some evangelistic work on the island of Nan-Tai was carried on in the six day-schools, as well as by the two catechists, the one in the north and the other in the centre of the island.

Fuh-Chow.

Archdeacon Wolfe is in charge of the work in the city of FUH-CHOW and its neighbourhood, and he draws a comparison between the condition of affairs in 1899, and that which prevailed in 1861, when he commenced his work in China:—

Changed attitude of the rulers.

> The change has been like life from the dead. The present attitude of the rulers and the people towards Christianity and Christian teachers, compared with what it was then, is indeed, generally speaking, marvellous. It is no longer a disgrace to profess Christianity; and, indeed, the religion of Jesus Christ, in the city and all over this part of the country, is lauded both by rulers and people for its pure, uncompromising morality, and its real professors are respected as they never have been before.

Services were conducted every Sunday morning and afternoon in four churches within the city, each of which had a fairly good congregation; the number of women attending was remarkable, and Miss A. M. Wolfe, who with Miss E. M. M. Brooks and Miss E. E. Massey reside in the city for work among women, reports that in one case at least the building became insufficient to accommodate them. The School for Christian Women, conducted by Miss Wolfe, which was opened in February, 1899, proved very successful. Its purpose was to give instruction to those who had been baptized, such as appeared suitable for Bible-women's work being sent on to the Bible-women's Training Home at Nan-Tai, after a two years' course in Miss Wolfe's institution. The school commenced with eleven women; one of these was obliged to leave on account of her health, but twelve others were admitted in September. Many of the women showed that they profited by the instruction which they received, and two sisters in particular are mentioned, both of them widows, who were most eager to learn. The younger of the two was very unhappy for a long time after her husband's death, once trying to commit suicide, and then contemplating becoming a Buddhist nun; happily she was deterred from taking that step by the words of a friend of her husband, a Christian, who said, "You will not find peace as a Buddhist. Why do you not become a Christian? You can find peace in no other way." Two new Teaching the Christian women.

Day-schools for girls were begun during the year, and together with that previously existing made good progress. A similar statement may be made concerning the Dispensary carried on by Miss Massey, which was attended by from twenty to fifty persons every day. All the women patients who wished to stay were permitted to do so, unless they suffered from leprosy or some infectious disease, since it was so much easier to influence them by a regular course of teaching. Miss Massey records an interesting case of a woman brought by her friends who said that she was possessed by the devil. She writes:—

Dispensary.

Cure of one said to be possessed.

She certainly looked very wild, and could not sit in a chair, so she was brought in like a baby. Her hair was hanging loose, and her head was thrown back. She was breathing in a most extraordinary way. I let her rest a while, and then asked her a few questions, which she answered sensibly. From that time she began to get well. After making her presentable, I gave her a dose of ammonium bromide, after which she slept for two hours, and was very much better. At bedtime I gave her another dose, and she slept all night. Her mother said it was the first sleep she had had for a very long time, and that she had been very violent and kept all the house awake. She went away on the 12th of the month quite well. She is now a true believer in God, and has unbound her feet, without such a course being suggested to her. Yesterday I took the Bible-woman with me to see her remove her idols. She burnt the paper ones. One piece, which had characters written on it, she called her ancestors. She gave me a pair of shoes belonging to an idol's mother, with the same idol's child, who is supposed to protect children.

Dr. G. Wilkinson has been assigned to Fuh-Chow, with the view to opening a hospital in the native city. Unhappily, he had a serious illness immediately on his arrival in January, 1900, contracted, it was believed, at Hong-Kong while en route. Evangelistic Work was prosecuted by the native catechists, and the members of the congregations who preached both during the day and in the evening, and by Miss Brooks, who at first helped in the Women's School, but afterwards devoted herself entirely to supervising the day-schools and to visiting. She writes:—

Welcome accorded to ladies in homes of the people.

We were greatly comforted by the number of invitations to "preach." Women from the surrounding houses begged us to "enter and sit down," but as they were so many, and the houses so small, they brought seats outside, and we sat and told the Gospel story to quite a large, attentive crowd. They said that no one had visited them before, but that they had heard something of the Truth from one of their number who had been to church. The reception we had, each time we went, showed us our going there was of God. Many invitations followed, and they asked for a school. We were able to rent a place and open a girls' school in the Chinese New Year. There were nineteen scholars at first, but from various causes two fell off; the rest have been coming regularly during the year. Each child means an entrance into a house! The crowds that came week by week as we visited the school made it necessary to plan out our time carefully, the Bible-woman taking the women who gathered for a class, while I taught or examined the children. In the meantime the invitations were so numerous that we had to ask the people to let the school teacher know beforehand, and then take them in order as the names were given. On one occasion five people were pulling my cloak at once, asking us to go with them. As they lived in different places, this was, of course, impossible. To know which to choose perplexed us at first, but finally we followed an old woman and invited as many as could to come to her house. This is one great advantage in visiting in China—you may ask as many people in to listen as you please. It is polite to do so.

Work among the boat population.

Mrs. E. Saunders and Miss E. Little laboured among the river population, which was quite distinct from that on the land, the people being bright and intelligent, very hard-working, and active. Many of the clumsy-looking boats, which were often propelled by girls, contained a large number of people, the small children generally having a string tied round their waists, with pieces of cord attached, in case they should fall overboard. The usual method adopted by Miss Little was to row to a place where a number of boats were together, and invite the women to come to her boat and listen to the doctrine. Having in this way got into touch with some of them, she tried to induce them to attend the little morning school which she opened, but her efforts in that direction were not very successful. Mrs. Saunders mentions a young man and a couple of women who were led to Christ, one of the latter after her conversion firmly resisting all inducements to bow down to idols.

Out-stations.

Two large counties, Mïng-Hieng and Au-Kwang, which have their administrative centre in the city, are under the charge of Archdeacon Wolfe. Very little missionary work has hitherto been done in the thousands of large and important towns and villages which they contain. Some success was met with at Ming Ang-Teng, where the work was recommenced after an interval of some years; and a new out-station was opened at the large town of Ting-Tau, with a congregation of sixty souls, nine of whom had been baptized. At Teng-Kie, whither the Gospel was carried from Ting-Tau, a congregation of one hundred people was gathered together, some twenty of whom asked for baptism. Pah-Tieng is spoken of as "one of the most deplorably wicked and corrupt places" in the county, but even there a few were plucked as brands from the burning. The places just mentioned are all in the county of Ming-Hieng. In that of Au-Kwang there were only two out-stations. Sing-Taing was one of the first places in Fuh-Kien to be occupied, but little success was experienced, and it was left for many years without a resident catechist, only receiving occasional visits from an agent living in Fuh-Chow. During the year under review there were signs of better things, for the little congregation begged for help in building a place of worship, towards the cost of which they themselves contributed $200. At Siong-To, the centre of a number of villages containing an "enormous population," a site was obtained for the erection of a Mission-house, but the gentry stirred up the common people, and being backed up by corrupt officials, succeeded in causing the cessation of the building operations.

The evangelization of the villages in the plain lying to the south-west of the city occupied Miss M. E. Molloy, of the Victoria C.M. Association, and Miss A. E. H. Burton. They resided for a fortnight or so at a time in one village, from that as a centre visiting the neighbouring places, and in the autumn they took up their abode at Du-Sing, where a site for a new Mission-house had been bought. After a month of happy work, violent opposition sprang up, the building of the house was stopped, and the missionaries were obliged to abandon the village and return to Fuh-Chow. The adult baptisms in the city and district numbered eighty-six, and at the end of the year there were 382 catechumens, of whom eighty-five were children.

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. consisted of ten European ladies, seven Bible-women, and fifteen native teachers.

LIENG-KONG.

Lieng-Kong.

Missionary work in the district of LIENG-KONG was superintended by the Rev. W. Light. The Rev. Ting Sing-Ang is the pastor of the congregation in the city of Lieng-Kong. There was a noticeable readiness on the part of the people to listen to the Gospel message, and at the various Church Council meetings petitions were often presented from different villages, praying that catechists might be sent. The Rev. Ll. Lloyd mentions the encouraging fact that these meetings were attended by the military officers in charge of the soldiers stationed in the city, one of whom had for some time been a regular attendant at the services. No serious opposition was experienced excepting at the out-station of Wong-Ngie, which was opened about two years ago, where there were some three hundred adherents. There the leading Heathen made a determined attack upon the converts, of which Mr. Light writes:—

Loss for Christ's sake.

One of our Christians, a well-to-do shopkeeper, had declined to subscribe to the heathen processions which always take place in the first month. The idols were carried round the streets, and when the procession came opposite his shop he was told to go out and pay his respects by bowing and firing off crackers, as is customary. He declined to do so, pleading that as a Christian he could not do it. He offered to give a subscription to any object other than one connected with idols. The Heathen seemed determined to make him yield, and when they saw he was firm, the leaders called for an attack upon his shop. His house was broken into; his children and wife had to fly; his belongings were stolen. Bills were posted about the streets of the village calling upon the Natives to assist in stamping out the doctrine. This state of things had continued for a month or so, when I paid a visit to the place to see if I and the native pastor, who went with me, could reason with the leaders of this movement against us. They declined to meet us. There was nothing to do except bring the matter before the Chinese high officials through H.B.M.'s Consul. This we did, with the result that our persecutors signed a bond to allow our Christians the same freedom which any other Native enjoys. They also posted up proclamations saying they had done wrong in trying to stamp out that which the Emperor had distinctly allowed. There is now peace there; but while this attack lasted it was very severe, and cost our Christians much, especially the shopkeeper whom I have mentioned, for his business, which was a large one, was at a standstill for nearly three months. Still, I am sure much good has been the result. Our people have been confirmed in the faith. They have just subscribed $500 to build a church.

DENG-DOI was occupied by Miss A. I. Oxley, Miss M. Searle, and Miss S. S. Newton, who found abundant occupation in the city itself and the surrounding villages. The new church, which was mentioned last year as being contemplated, approached completion, but only very slowly, and even such progress as was made was somewhat neutralized by a destructive typhoon. Several of the Christians were confirmed, but many of the women seemed satisfied with having been baptized, and manifested but little hunger and thirst after righteousness. The work among them was hindered by the lack of Bible-women, of whom there were only two, and it unhappily became necessary during the year to dismiss one of these as unsatisfactory. A forward movement in the direction of providing teachers was made by the opening of a Women's School in October with sixteen inmates. Miss Newton, who suffered at the commencement of 1899 from ill-health, was in charge of this, and speaks hopefully of those under her care. The women come for a three months' course of instruction and training. The School for the Blind, which was commenced in 1898, afforded much encouragement. Three of the inmates are thus described by Miss Oxley :—

School for the Blind.

Lue is a tall boy of nineteen; he was a beggar in Fuh-Chow, and Miss Barr, of the hospital, picked him up, and has cared for him ever since. He has lately gone out selling books and preaching. Yesterday I was down at the school, and the old woman from the next room came in, and Lue preached to her—wonderfully. I call him John the Baptist. The poor old woman could not find an excuse for not worshipping God; every one she gave he pulled down in a moment; and he pleaded with her.

Ning-Kai is a boy fifteen years old, an orphan. An old Bible-woman has been teaching him texts, &c. I am sure he is a true little Christian; he has such a clever face, so bright. He always comes to welcome me the moment he hears my footsteps, and he always accompanies me to the door on leaving and wishes me "Peace, and slowly, slowly walk." He is very quick, and already knows the alphabet; and, better still, can write it.

Cu-Cu is thirteen years old, and comes from Lo-Ngwong; his mother, a poor widow, is a Christian, and she could not bear the thought of her boy learning idol worship, as his uncle desires. I do not think he has been much outside his home; but he is diligent, and determined to learn. He knows a few letters. I said to him to-day, "You ought always to ask God to give you His Holy Spirit to help you before you begin your lessons." Presently I saw him jump down off his stool and stand silently for a few moments with his lips moving, and then he got up on his stool and began to read again, "B, two dots; C, three dots." Surely God hears prayers like that.

Four of the lads were baptized, and appeared to endeavour to lead godly, righteous, and sober lives. There was no diminution in the attractiveness of the Medical Work, and its usefulness from the spiritual point of view was shown in the case of a doctor and fortune-teller, who had his fortune-telling idol chopped in half and his charms burnt, and when people came to him to have their fortunes told said to them, "Now I worship the true God, and have nothing more to do with idols." This steadfastness on his part was the more remarkable since at that time he was in such distress as actually to be obliged to pawn his goods. The ladies divided the district between them, the city falling to the share of Miss Newton. The Natives were always ready to listen, and in some villages asked sensible questions, not a very common thing in China, and requested that they might soon be favoured with another visit. One woman who resided for a month with Miss Oxley in Deng-Doi, and there unbound her feet, on her return interested the people of her district in the Gospel, so that when the workers went there again there were more invitations to sit down and talk than it was possible to accept. At another place a woman and her husband took down and destroyed their idols; while in a third, where one of the day schools exists, a girl unbound her feet, and stood firm in spite of persecution from her heathen relations. Miss Oxley mentions in her Annual Letter a visit which she paid to one of the aboriginal villages with a population of one thousand people. At first no one took much notice of her, but at length she was invited into a house, where the Natives crowded round her, and listened so attentively that even after a stay of some hours it was difficult to get away. Miss Searle succeeded in reaching no less than forty villages in her part of the district. At two places the Christians subscribed their $500, and arrangements were accordingly made for the erection of churches. There was great progress at a small place called Buang-Sang. Miss Searle says of it:—

A fortune-teller converted.

Village people always ready to listen.

> The people, both men and women, are exceptionally intelligent, and always remind me of the Bereans of old, "in that they received the word with all readiness of mind," and with a simplicity of faith that unfortunately is a rarity in our district. I have worked this village three times this year, and always get such a warm, loving welcome, staying at the house of an old Christian man. In September I spent nearly a fortnight amongst them, and during this visit the native pastor went there, and it was a blessed privilege to see sixteen women and over a dozen children baptized into Christ's visible Church, and to feel they were genuine believers.

LO-NGWONG.

Lo-Ngwong.

The Rev. W. Light, who resides at Lo-Ngwong, reports that the city Congregations under the pastoral care of the Rev. Ling Sing-Mi subscribed enough for the support of a catechist, an example which he wishes was followed at the out-stations. An American lady, through the Missions to Lepers, supplied the means for the erection and support of a Home for the untainted children of lepers, which was built close to the Mission compound. There was at first some opposition on the part of the Christians to the children joining the congregation, but it only lasted for a short time, and before long it was noticed that those who had been loudest in their remonstrances often wended their way to the Home after the conclusion of the service so as to chat with the master and children. Home for Lepers' Children.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had four ladies, one Bible-woman, and four native teachers for work among the women around Lo-Ngwong.

NING-TAIK.

During the year under review the work in the district of NING-TAIK was supervised by the Rev. L. H. F. Star (now on his way home) from Fuh-Ning. The ladies resident in the city of Ning-Taik were: Miss M. D. Boileau, Miss M. E. Barber, Miss L. Bibb of the New South Wales C.M. Association, and Miss K. L. Nicholson of the Victoria C.M. Association. The condition of the Congregation, which was under the pastoral care of the native deacon, the Rev. Ho Seü-Hok, did not give unmixed satisfaction, for when it became necessary to dismiss a young man, a servant of one of the missionaries, for disgraceful conduct, a number of the Christians sought to shield him from blame, even going so far as to tell lies with a view to the attainment of that end. A sense of sin is said to have been completely lacking among the people, and duplicity to have abounded. It must, however, be remembered that many of the converts have great difficulty in attending the means of grace because of the distance of their homes from any place of public worship. Thus Miss Boileau tells of one woman, an inquirer, who had to walk six or seven miles over two very high passes in order to be present at a service, so that, owing presumably to her slow rate of locomotion, it took her five days out of seven to get to church and back again! Nineteen persons were confirmed by Bishop Hoare in April, 1899, and a Mission conducted by two teachers from the Ku-Cheng district was instrumental in bringing blessing to many. The Women's School was handed over to Miss Barber on her transfer from Keng-Tau in February, 1899, and contained twenty-five women, the full number for which there was accommodation. Three of those who passed out from the school became Bible-women, and a good report was received of them all. One is said to be able and earnest in preaching; another, whose name means "Beseech Grace," to be poor in this world's goods, but "rich towards God;" while the history of the third, a woman fifty-six years of age, is thus given:— Ning-Taik. Difficulties in way of attending means of grace.

She has been a Christian for eight or nine years, having formerly been a Vegetarian. She used to be most active in going round to the temples to offer incense, and recite, and worship, fulfilling her fast days with regularity. God Bible-women.

led her one day to go with some friends to see the church, and there she heard the Gospel from the late Rev. Ting Sing-Ki. She was interested and went again, and from that time began to go to service once a month, deceiving her relatives by saying she was going to a heathen temple, or to see some one sick. After a while a brother died and she went to take charge of his orphan children, and for a long time was unable to go to church. But she says that all that time she had a great longing in her heart for God and His people. Soon after we came here she came to see us, and great was her joy when we suggested she should come to school and learn to read. She had been baptized by the Rev. Ting Sing-Ki. During her two years in the school she exhibited a true Christian spirit, always ready to take a low place and help in little things, and she has a great influence with the other women. She is a slow learner, and can only now read the New Testament very slowly, but she preaches the Gospel simply and faithfully.

Those who were still in the school also afforded cause for thankfulness, proofs of the working of the Holy Spirit among them being afforded by increasing sensitiveness of conscience and hatred of sin. Eleven of the pupils were able to read both the Old and New Testaments, which was regarded as a good result of two years' instruction, especially considering that some of the women were by no means young. Miss Barber tells of one, called according to Chinese etiquette, "Old Grandmother," who came to the school at the age of sixty-one, and writes:—

"I know that Jesus is in my heart."

Her dear old face beams with joy as she listens to the truth concerning Jesus, and so very often I have been astonished at the knowledge she has of the things that belong unto her peace. The other day I asked this question on Rom. viii. 16, "Has the Holy Spirit made you to know that you are a child of God?" and she answered with a beaming face, "Yes, and I know that Jesus is in my heart." No one is more ready than this dear woman to speak of her Saviour's love.

The pupils of the Girls' School seemed to Miss Boileau to be more difficult to manage than English girls, because of the freedom from control to which they were accustomed in their own homes, but the regular teaching and training were not wanting in effect. The Mission already referred to was the means of the conversion of one of the scholars, a girl of seventeen, who declared to the missionary, "I am so happy, Kuniong; Jesus' peace is in my heart." Educational work was carried on in the district with assiduity, and the thirty-one Day-schools were apparently in a healthy condition. Some encouragement was received in connexion with the Evangelistic Work, not the least being that which came from finding the converts zealous in proclaiming to others the message which had proved a blessing to themselves. Some even of the more ignorant Christians were anxious to make the Gospel known, and indeed were ready to suffer for it, and Miss Barber mentions that one day when she was visiting in a village, a young man came into the house where she was, his Testament in his hand, and said that he too had been seeking the lost, adding, "It was such a pity that I was alone, for I had such a lot of hearers, and my voice got tired too soon." One specially interesting case is recorded. Miss Barber, writing in November, says :—

Yesterday a chair stopped before our door, and when I went to see who had arrived, I saw a poor deformed woman, a cripple of about thirty, with a text card, on which was written a prayer, and a small book from which we always teach beginners hanging in front of her dress; and in answer to my greeting she said, "I have come to learn about Jesus." Nothing else could she be got to say. I then discovered from our school matron that some weeks ago Miss Boileau and her Bible-woman were visiting in the village where this woman lived, and that she sent for them, hoping that the foreigner could heal her body. Of course Miss Boileau told her of the Great Physician, and pointed her to Him who could save her soul. Once after this she heard about Jesus, and her visit to us yesterday was her third opportunity. As I sat beside her, and heard her recite the Lord's Prayer and the Creed, and the prayer on the text card, I marvelled at her eagerness to understand the meaning of the characters she had learnt to know. So often these poor heathen people content themselves with the mere recitation of characters only. I told her about the importance of speaking to Jesus often, when she interrupted with, "But I am told that when Christians pray they must kneel, and I cannot kneel; if I put my head down and close my eyes, will that do?" Soon afterwards we all met together and prayed for her, and as we prayed she cried quietly to herself.

"I have come to learn about Jesus."

Two months later Miss Nicholson paid a visit to this woman who welcomed her warmly and spoke of the happiness which her new religion had brought her. But while there was, as has been said, much to cheer, there was also much to sadden. One day Miss Bibb, accompanied by the Bible-woman, Patience, went to see a young girl possessed with a devil. She says :—

After feeling our way up a dark staircase more like a ladder than anything else, we reached a very dirty loft, where the girl lived. It made me shudder to look at her, so hopeless and sad was her face. It was a very bad case; she had once before been possessed, and the devil had been cast out by the prayer and faith of Patience and others, but as soon as she was well she returned to her idols, and truly her last state is worse than the first. At the name of Jesus she sneered in a horrible way, and we really felt the presence of the Evil One.

A bad case.

But even more disheartening than such a case was the fact that it was impossible to do more than touch the fringe of Heathenism—a fact which constitutes an appeal for more workers to enter in at the many open doors.

FUH-NING (DUBLIN UNIVERSITY FUH-KIEN MISSION).

The staff of the Mission at FUH-NING during the year under review consisted of the Rev. L. H. F. Star, superintending missionary, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. S. Synge (the latter also having a medical degree), the Revs. Dr. M. Mackenzie and T. de C. Studdert, and the Misses G. M. Harmar, E. M. K. Thomas, and A. L. Greer. It also included for a time the Rev. W. S. Walsh (before his removal to Fuh-Chow) and Miss J. E. Clarke (now at home). Trouble was experienced in May, 1899, owing to the persecution case which was referred to in last year's Report (page 337). Just as in 1898, a band of men suddenly appeared from the same place to threaten the mandarins; some of the leaders had knives concealed about their persons, and the appearance of the mob was so threatening at the Prefect's yamen, that he had to retire in order to provide for his personal safety by obtaining some soldiers. The mandarins sent down some of the military to guard the buildings of the Mission, who, immediately they arrived, asked to hear "preaching," a wish which it is hardly necessary to say was soon gratified. Strong measures were taken to deal with the disturbance, and it was hoped in October that the case of persecution would soon be settled. In some respects the Congregation was satisfactory, for the singing at the services was good and hearty; the "reverence" and "evident intelligence" of the people were sufficient to make a favourable impression on Mr. Mackinnon from the British Consulate at Fuh-Chow, who paid a visit to the station; and the numbers were well maintained. But many of the Christians were such only in name, for Mr. Star writes of some of those who attended the church :—

Nominal Christians.

> They grow opium although they do not smoke it, and after service on Sunday morning go back to their work or their fields, and so fail to keep the Sabbath holy. In Fuh-Ang several have been kept back from baptism by me for two years or more because they refuse to close their shops on Sunday. The catechist tells me that of the six or eight "Christian" shop-keepers in Fuh-Ang city, not one closes his shop on Sunday. Gambling by "Christians" is at present also a great cause of sorrow to us; not only gambling, but gambling in which they invariably win, proving that they are professional tricksters. In the more idle times between harvests or the fishing seasons they make a living in this way. I am afraid, after some further trial, that a large number of names will have to be struck off the rolls at some of the Fuh-Ning stations.

A Special Mission conducted by native agents.

Such a state of affairs rendered desirable a Special Mission, which was conducted in May, 1899, by two native agents whom Mr. Star invited over from Ku-Cheng. At first the people, and especially the catechists, were a little inclined to resent being taught by their fellows, but the evident earnestness and spirituality of the evangelists soon put an end to this feeling, and the effort resulted in decided, and, it was hoped, permanent blessing. The native workers were helped, too, by the visit of the Bishop when he came for the purpose of holding confirmations, for he talked freely with them, and showed a personal interest in their work. The Boys' School, which was opened in 1898, fell through owing to the complete lack of desire for education; but the Girls' Boarding-school had a happier experience, for under Miss Clemson (now Mrs. Studdert) and Miss Greer, the latter of whom was struck with the quickness with which the children comprehended her halting attempts at Chinese, the numbers increased, general good feeling prevailed, and the elder girls showed much Christian earnestness. Miss Clemson wrote of one of them, who during the year was married to the catechist at Sang-Sua :—

She often preaches silent sermons by her gentle, sweet Christianity. She is marrying one of our nicest catechists at New Year time, so the school will miss her bright, helpful ways, but I know her influence will be felt for many a long day. When I paid her her first month's money as teacher, she sent it back, saying that "she had been beloved of God these many years, and He had given her so much chance and opportunity of learning of Him, that she would like to do this work for nothing save for love of Christ," and this just as she is busy getting things ready for her wedding. A teacher returns her salary

It was evident, too, that the girls regarded the Bible as something to be applied in their daily life, for when one of the missionaries laughingly said that the children used so much rice that the cash had run out, a girl took her by the hand, led her away, and getting the Chinese Testament pointed to a number of passages such as "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God . . . and all these things shall be added unto you." Besides caring for the school, Miss Clemson was responsible for two outside classes, one of them being held at the house of the rich native lady who was mentioned in last year's Report as having been cured of the opium habit. The numbers at this class varied from seven to eleven, and the lady herself applied for baptism. The Women's School was under Miss Harmar, and was attended by eighteen women, only five of whom had been baptized. They are spoken of as being bright and earnest, and one of them, a widow, who was a member of the class held in 1898, proved her sincerity by giving up of her own accord the inn which she kept, since it was not considered respectable for her to be engaged in that occupation. This school was a striking illustration of the value of Medical Work, for two-thirds of the women were originally brought into contact with the missionaries through it, one of the number being the wife of a literary man who came for his eyes to be cured, and learning of Christ, sent his wife to the school. Dr. Mary Synge was in charge of the Hospital for Women, which owing to the unhealthiness of the year had an exceptionally large number of patients, whose growing confidence was shown by the fact that they were more willing than of old to stay for a course of treatment. Care was taken to give Bible teaching to all who came, both women and men, pictures being most useful as a medium of instruction. The physical needs of the men were attended to by the Revs. Dr. Synge and Dr. Mackenzie. Several of those who were baptized first heard the Gospel at the hospital, to which they were attracted by the prospect of having the benefit of greater skill than that possessed by the native doctors, whose methods were illustrated by the case of a man who came to be treated for his nose. The plan adopted by the native Æsculapius had been to burn the patient's Hospitals.

body with a hot iron in nine different places, including the centre of his forehead and each wrist! One of the benefits of the Mission hospital is that it turns out from time to time a number of native practitioners trained under European supervision. Four students were under training at Fuh-Ning, and all gave satisfaction. There were several successful opium cures, the treatment being to keep the patients from the pipe, and thrice daily to give them a dose from a twelve-ounce bottle of opium mixture, the bottle always being kept full by constantly adding water. These cases were of special value as indicating to the people that the missionaries were not identified with the traffic in the drug, a matter which is of importance, since even an educated literary man mentioned as the chief thing which he knew about India that it was the country whence opium came.

Visiting the patients.

As far as was possible Miss Harmar followed up the medical work by visiting former patients in their homes. She was often accompanied by an elderly member of the Women's School who acted as honorary Bible-woman, and whose example roused her companions to emulation. Through their assistance an entry was gained into many of the yamens and better-class houses, amongst the people visited being the wife of the chief mandarin, the one next in rank to the Prefect. Sometimes the European workers were regarded with suspicion, for they were told that the Heathen feared to eat their cakes or drink their tea, because they believed that the missionaries were accustomed to take the eyes out of people and make cakes of them, and also boil them into the tea, with the result that those who partook of the refreshment believed the doctrine! The colporteurs met with much success in the selling of Christian books, thirty dollars being taken in sums of less than a farthing. The open-air services, too, were well attended.

Miss Thomas, who suffered for some months from ill-health, devoted herself to Evangelistic Work in the district, visiting the out-stations of the Fuh-Ning church. In May, 1899, Dr. Mary Synge went with her to Sang-Sua, a large fishing town, and saw a number of patients. At Swa-Siek there was a congregation of fifty souls, including eight baptized women. Some of the individual cases were of interest: one household in a neighbouring village was brought in partly through the efforts of the catechist's daughter (the girl already mentioned in connexion with the Boarding-school as married to the Sang-Sua catechist), whose message went straight to the heart of the mother sorrowing for the loss of a child. The family were greatly persecuted, but remained steadfast, and it is said that a beautiful Christian influence pervaded all its members. The work at Hwang-Kang, a new out-station opened during the year, owed its commencement to one of the villagers entering the service of the missionaries, and becoming a sincere Christian. On his return home he began to speak to his cousins, some of whom accepted Christ, and in their turn taught others, including the women. At last they succeeded in obtaining a catechist, and later on some of them were baptized. Persecution was rife in the Fuh-Ang district in which Miss Harmar itinerated, for Mr. Star writes:— Opposition at Fuh-Ang.

At Ka-Bang, a large town in the Fuh-Ang district, the leaders of an idol procession blew the tablet over the church door (with "Jesus' Holy Doctrine" on it) to pieces with gunpowder and slugs, while Miss Harmar and forty persons were holding the Sunday morning service inside. They afterwards tried to set fire to the church by putting paraffin oil on the door and lighting it with shavings. The idol procession was a special one, the idol having been brought from Ning-Taik, as there had been six deaths from plague in the town, which were attributed to the presence of Christians.

Nor was the opposition confined to the Heathen, for in a couple of towns "false Christian churches" were set up, one of them under the charge of a former unsatisfactory Mission schoolmaster. The object of the institution of these "churches" appeared to be to obtain protection in law cases; but the Heathen were unable to distinguish between the true and the false, and one of the churches was promptly burnt down by the mob. Early in the year under review the Rev. Dr. Mackenzie went to Fuh-Ding, a city of Buddhist priests, with a population of 30,000 within a radius of twenty-five miles. Previous efforts had been made to obtain a footing in the place, but in vain, although one or two men had been baptized; but Dr. Mackenzie was successful in securing a desirable piece of ground for a dispensary, which was placed in the charge of one of the native doctors. In the autumn he again paid a visit to the town, and was cheered to find that the work had progressed. There were several apparently genuine inquirers, including an underling in the yamen, who had been cured of opium-smoking, and whose conduct improved to such an extent that his master, the mandarin, declared that the doctrine must be good. In the course of his journeys, both to Fuh-Ding, and to the station of the China Inland Mission to the north, Dr. Mackenzie met with abundant evidence of the need of more workers, and in at least three places, two of them important and busy towns, there were groups of inquirers who urged that teachers might be sent to them, expressing their willingness to provide a place of worship and a house for the catechist should one be sent. Occupation of Fuh-Ding.

HOK-CHIANG.

The people living in the county of Hok-Chiang experienced many troubles during the year under review. The plague carried off large numbers of them, only 3 or 4 per cent. of those who were attacked recovering; a typhoon swept over the country, wrecking several of the churches; and at the end of 1899 famine stared many of the Natives in the face. Besides sharing in these troubles, the converts were called upon to bear some which were peculiar to themselves, for in some cases their houses were attacked and injured, their furniture stolen, and their cattle driven away. But in spite of all these things Archdeacon Wolfe, who superintended the work, says that progress was made even in numbers, and that the subscriptions to the pastoral fund in the district were larger than ever before. The usefulness of the thirty day-schools in the district, including the island of Hai-Tan, was impaired by the inefficiency of some of the teachers, but the Rev. W. S. Walsh, who examined nineteen of them in December, returned to Fuh-Chow "more fully convinced than before of the intense value of systematic teaching and educational work."

Progress in spite of persecution.

Hok-Chiang.

At the beginning of 1899 the native pastor in HOK-CHIANG city, with its population of 23,000, which included only twenty-six Christian families, was the Rev. Yek Siu-Mi, but during the year he changed places with the Rev. Lau Taik-Ong, of Fuh-Chow. In the autumn of 1899 Dr. Mabel C. Poulter and Miss A. L. Leybourn went to reside in the city, and opened a dispensary in the pastor's house, and saw patients every afternoon, excepting Saturday and Sunday. A good number of people came, to whom one of the native agents preached, afterwards seeking for opportunities for individual conversation.

Keng-Tau.

The workers at KENG-TAU were Miss F. E. Oatway, Miss I. Suttor, of the New South Wales C.M. Association, and Miss E. Mort, of the Victoria C.M. Association. The plague and the distress consequent on the failure of the crops led many families who abandoned their idols in 1898 to relapse into Heathenism, but some of the converts remained faithful in spite of the trials which they endured, and reaped the "peaceable fruits of righteousness," as they were "exercised" by their troubles. Miss Oatway conducted a Station Class for Women which had twelve members, who during the three months that the class was continued made good progress, not only in book learning, but also in habits and dispositions changed for the better. Three of the women afterwards joined the Women's School at Ko-Sang-Che. There was a surprising change of sentiment in the district concerning female education, and it was a matter for thankfulness that it was possible to some extent to take advantage of the changed feeling of the people by opening a Girls' Boarding-school. It was joined by fifteen girls, all the children of professing Christian parents, and some of them, as far as could be judged, earnest Christians themselves. Although for several months the plague was raging on every side, all the inmates of the school were mercifully preserved.

A new departure was made at Ko-Sang-Chē, where Miss M. E. Wolfe opened a Women's School in April, 1899, with eight pupils, none being received but such as had been baptized or were inquirers of some standing. The general idea of the educational work among the women was that those who had belonged to the Station Class at Keng-Tau, and were suitable, should be drafted on to the Women's School, and that after two years' instruction in that those who were anxious to become Bible-women, and appeared likely to be qualified for the work, should go to the Bible-women's School at Fuh-Chow, and there receive the further special training which they required. It was hoped that the women who did not appear to be altogether suitable for employment as Bible-women would nevertheless profit sufficiently by what they learnt in the Women's School to be enabled to teach in girls' day-schools in their own villages, and thus influence not only the children, but also, through them, many parents. When the second term came the number of women at the school rose to sixteen, others who were willing to join being refused owing to lack of room. A new building was in contemplation which would suffice when finished to accommodate twenty scholars, and being near to the house of the missionaries, would render the work more satisfactory. The Dispensary continued to be managed by Miss K. M. Andrews, and she had the advantage of the counsel of Dr. Mabel C. Poulter, who resided at Ko-Sang-Che for the greater part of the year. Five families were brought in as inquirers through the medical work, one being a large household containing twenty-eight persons. The eldest daughter-in-law attended the services regularly, and was anxious to unbind her feet, but that her husband would not allow. She never seemed to tire of listening to the Gospel message, and said that for fifteen years she had been wanting to become a Christian, meaning probably that she was dissatisfied with idolatry and felt that the Christian religion was better than what she had. The Medical Mission was helpful to Miss E. J. Harrison when she itinerated among the villages and islands of the district, for she was able to refer the sick people whom she met to the dispensary, and the kindness with which they were there treated was a practical recommendation of the Christian religion. About one hundred different villages were visited, in all of which there were either Christians or inquirers, a stay varying from a few hours to three or four days being made in each, and the converts being gathered into one house for teaching, or being visited in their own homes.

Advance was made on the island of Hai-Tan by the admission of the head catechist, Mr. Wong Hung-Ong, to deacon's orders, but the church in the principal town on the Island suffered through the typhoon, which completely took off the roof. Miss Wolfe and Miss Harrison visited the town in March, 1899, being the first European ladies to do so; after spending a day or two there they separated, Miss Harrison going to Kuang-Sang, where she found a church roll containing the names of forty men, but not of one woman, and to another village in which a disused pawnshop served as a place of worship. On another island there were no women among the few inquirers, and Miss Harrison was told that while they were willing to let their husbands and sons go to church, they thought that one out of each family was enough! Of the work on the island of Tong-Seu (see last year's Report, page 342) Miss Harrison writes:— and on that of Tong-Seu.

> The number of inquirers and members on the Church roll who attend services regularly is sixty-two, whereas last year there where about eight or nine men who seemed earnest. These inquirers have come in from a variety of motives—not ideal ones, perhaps. In many cases they wished for bodily healing and had spent all they had in idol worship, with no result. The teacher there is, so far as I know (one can never speak positively here), a very earnest man, really anxious for souls, never sparing himself. He has been teaching a boys' school as well as doing catechist's and evangelist's work. One good feature of the work is, that though there has been no Bible-woman living on the island, there are a good number of women inquirers and more than a dozen attend services. Last year there were no women. They gave me a most hearty welcome when I went in October. They did not speak our dialect, so the catechist had to translate for me when I questioned the women. Several of them could repeat the Lord's Prayer and Creed and one or two the Commandments also, and they had also learnt enough to answer a few simple questions. They had been taught, for the most part, by a boy of seventeen, one of the schoolboys. The catechist, being a young man, could not conveniently teach women, so this boy had acted as Bible-woman. He went with me from house to house and was most anxious his pupils should answer well. I hope he will be much used on that island. They hold three prayer-meetings a week in the tumbledown place they call the "church," and the members and inquirers pray and speak themselves: it made me very thankful to hear them.

The total number of adults baptized during the year in the county of Hok-Chiang was 111. Confirmations were held by the Bishop of Victoria in May, 1899, at four centres of the Ko-Sang-Che district, at which 125 women were presented, besides, presumably, a number of men.

HING-HWA.

Hing-Hwa.

In many respects there was real progress in the work at HING-HWA, where Dr. and Mrs. B. Van S. Taylor, Dr. A. T. Sampson, the Rev. S. J. Nightingale, and the Misses A. F. and F. A. Forge (both trained nurses) resided. A Women's Class was held in a small house which was erected during the year, the women coming for three or six months' instruction with a view either to baptism or to helping them to bear their witness for Christ. Eight women were taught by Mrs. Taylor, only one of whom had been baptized, but all the remaining seven expressed a desire for baptism, and four of them, together with three men, were received into the visible Church early in 1900. A remarkable gathering of Christian women took place in January, 1900, when seventy women from the district, as well as a number from the city, spent six days in conference. At the morning meetings addresses were given by the European ladies, the Natives themselves speaking at the afternoon gatherings. Three afternoons were devoted to a consideration of Scripture subjects, and three to discussions on heathen customs, such as infant betrothals, foot-binding and the like. As a practical result of the conference on the last-mentioned subject several of the members unbound their feet. At the evening meetings, which were open to all, accounts were given of the work in various parts of the district. Additional buildings were erected for use in connexion with the Hospital, which had 1,355 in-patients, an increase of 240 over the number in 1898. Several serious operations were performed, most of them being successful. Some of the patients who were brought for treatment suffered from disease so far advanced that the doctors had to decline to operate, and one woman is spoken of who came with a poisoned wound in her thumb. Inquiry showed that she had been in ill-health, and one day had fainted, and her husband had bitten her thumb, so as to revive her, and in that way caused the wound! Seventeen converts were gathered in during the year who were either directly or indirectly won by the medical work, and even greater success might have been attained but for the lack of catechists to labour among the patients. The four students who were being trained in medicine were encouraged to do what they could for the spiritual welfare of the people, but though they were eager to learn, and greatly improved in character, there was room for more earnestness in speaking of the Saviour. The district of Sieng-Iu was visited by Mr. Nightingale in company with the Rev. Ting Chung-Seng, the pastor, who was sent in response to the touching petition which was printed in last year's Report (page 343). Mr. Nightingale was impressed with the way in which the people looked up to the native pastor, and says that he himself soon learnt to share their respect for him. Many of the little scattered congregations were found to be in a healthy condition, and one old Christian of many years' standing is specially mentioned, a man who lived in a cave under a great rock, with just a little woodwork fitted at the openings so as to keep out tigers, &c., wretchedly poor, but happy and contented, and zealous for the spread of the Gospel.

KU-CHENG AND PING-NANG.

The European missionaries of the Society at KU-CHENG were the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. S. Boyd, of the Canada C.M. Association, Mr. T. B. Woods, and, until the end of September, Miss A. L. Leybourn. No account of the C.M.S. work has been received, beyond the statement that it was adversely affected by the riots at Kien-Ning, which caused the workers to retire temporarily to Fuh-Chow, and rendered it necessary to close some of the day-schools.

The C.E.Z.M.S. had seven European ladies eight Bible-women and twenty-seven native teachers in the city and district. Their house in Ku-Cheng was burnt to the ground in December, but happily no lives were lost, and the Girls' School, as well as the buildings in which the teachers and servants were accommodated, escaped. The work at the Girls' School, in which Miss Leybourn took part, was encouraging, for five of the elder children and the school cook were baptized on Easter Day, 1899.

KIEN-NING.

Kien-Ning.

Public attention was concentrated on KIEN-NING in June, 1899, owing to the occurrence of riots, which though happily unattended with any loss of life amongst the European missionaries, yet resulted in the murder of some of the converts, and gave cause for great anxiety lest there should be a repetition of the terrible massacre of August, 1895. In February, 1899, Dr. H. R. Pakenham went to live within the city of Kien-Ning, the first foreigner to do so, and carried on the Dispensary work. The circumstances which led to the expulsion from the city, for the sixth time, of the preachers of the Gospel, are thus described by Dr. J. Rigg:—

Malicious or ignorant rumours.

When I left Kien-ning for Fuh-Chow for a rest early in May, matters were pretty quiet. We had had unrest owing to rumours of salt-poisoning which had gone all over the province; then we also had the death of a woman patient in the hospital and the subsequent charges of mutilation of the body. The inquest held by the mandarin and the proclamation following it did not settle matters, as some person or party by word and placards charged the mandarin with hushing up the matter owing to our having given him a heavy bribe. That, however, settled down, until on May 26th a boy was found with his throat cut and one leg taken off and missing. This was in the daytime, and not far from the leper settlement, where we are known to frequently visit. The crime was at once in a burst of frenzy attributed to us, and the whole city got in a panic. For a day and a half the danger was extreme. It was, however, happily averted, as we then thought, by the action of the local officials, but, as I now believe, by the party agitating against us not being prepared to attack. Later on a Fuh-Chow man was arrested at Nang-Wa, and under torture confessed that he was an accomplice to the crime. He said he was our agent, but the mandarin threatened him with punishment unless he withdrew the statement. After that the people seemed to forget their idea of our being at the bottom of it, but from then right on to our expulsion of June 15th there were daily new stories, usually very circumstantial, but with no definite evidence, of murders, kidnappings, chloroformings by the roadside—in all directions in villages and suburbs about Kien-Ning. The people seemed to be going mad, and when I reached Kien-Ning on June 13th I did not like their looks. The day I arrived, on one side of the road from the west gate of the city to Seven Stars Bridge three men stood with a yellow paper flag stuck in the ground. One of them was lamenting over his missing brother, and looking at what he said was a man's eye. A crowd gathered, but beyond exciting the people nothing came of it, as some children brought the thing into ridicule by breaking up the supposed eye and showing it was a piece of drift-wood from the river.

It was thought desirable that the foreigners should leave the district for a month or two, so that the people might quiet down; accordingly the C.E.Z.M.S. ladies were summoned from the country villages in which they resided to Seven Stars, just outside the city, and arrangements were made for a hasty flight should one become necessary. On Wednesday, June 14th, the city was in a ferment, an accusation having been made against five men of having attempted to murder a boy in one of the villages; and early the following morning, news having arrived that an attack had been made on the Mission property, the retreat commenced. Dr. Rigg wrote:— Mission property attacked.

We waited on the river debating and hesitating between staying where we were, returning, or going past the city further down stream. We decided, and the decision saved our lives, on going further down stream, fearing that the river might be stopped. We did this in spite of hearing that it was not our city church that had been attacked, but the leper chapel. When anchored below the city we discussed returning at dusk, but our discussion was ended on seeing flames burst from the city in the situation of our church. As we dropped down stream, past the city, we foreigners hid in the bottom of the boat, while some of the Natives peered out. We were within 100 yards of a large crowd close to the city gate. The people seemed occupied with something going on, and later we learned with horror that it was the stoning to death of the dear old man, the Tung-Iu Christian, who had chosen to stay in the city church. In the presence of the mandarins (the Prefect and both Hiens) the mob had carried him out of the city and there smashed his skull with stones, and one man (we know who he is) had hacked him with a knife while he still breathed and then thrown his body into the river. Messengers came to us and warned us that it was known we had gone by boat, and a reward was being shouted in the streets for our capture. So we decided to make for Nang-Wa, only anchoring when the darkness prevented progress. A Christian stoned to death.

We reached Nang-Wa about seven o'clock, and it was one of the joys of my life to find that Miss Rodd and Miss Bryer had arrived there. We broke up Nang-Wa school, put the premises in charge of the authorities, and, after a full morning, got off to Yen-Ping, where I went to see the Taotai. There we learnt that two lepers (one the catechist, himself a leper) had been brutally murdered and thrown into a well, the leper church burnt, our city church entirely destroyed and all burnt, and that the fringe of the mob had followed the Prefect and two Hiens to Seven Stars Hospital, and in their presence and in spite of the soldiers (at that time increased to thirty or forty, or more), looted the hospital and our ladies' house. My house, being securely locked, was not touched, and the native quarters, being full of soldiers, escaped the looters. Mr. Lu, a literary man, who has been recently baptized, and who is the teacher of one of our boys' day-schools, was severely beaten, but rescued by friends. The same happened to Mr. Sie, Dr. Pakenham's teacher, who is a Christian of some years' standing. Many others were threatened, and some dare not return to the city. Some men who are not baptized Christians were very brave and helpful at serious personal risk and loss of goods. I believe some of these would have died rather than let us fall into the hands of the mob. A catechist murdered.

For some time a condition of unrest prevailed throughout the district, but in July Dr. Ngoi Tek-Ling volunteered to return to the hospital at Seven Stars Bridge, and three months later the Rev. W. C. White, of the Canada C.M. Association, paid a visit to the district and baptized twenty-one adults. Happily the authorities acted with promptitude, from the Chinese point of view, in bringing the murderers to trial, and after much discussion between the native officials and the British Consul a settlement was arrived at. To quote from Dr. Rigg's Annual Letter, written at the end of the year:—

Compensation and redress.

> Full money compensation has been paid for all losses and expenses, and our burnt church is to be rebuilt; the murderers are in prison in Fuh-Chow; the Kien-Ning gentry have been compelled to sign a humiliating agreement that in future they will not molest the Christian Church; a stone tablet on which the toleration clauses of the Tien-Tsin Treaty are inscribed is being prepared for erection in Kien-Ning city; a proclamation explaining the folly of the recent riots is being posted over all the seven hiens of the Kien-Ning prefecture; and last, and least in the Chinese eyes, the orphan boy of the murdered man is to be provided for. The prefect has, with great fairness, lent us a large house in the city to use until our own is rebuilt.

Notwithstanding the interruption to the work caused by these riots, very real and steady advance was noticeable, for the Rev. W. C. White reports that while in 1896 there were eleven baptisms in the district, in the following year eighteen, and in 1898 thirty-two, up to December 15th of the year under review fifty-five persons were baptized and eleven candidates were ready and waiting for the administration of the rite in question. At the end of the year the medical work at Seven Stars Bridge was slowly recovering from the effects of the disturbances, the city congregation was growing, and the Christians continued steadfast in spite of their trials. A Boys' Boarding-school was opened at Nang-Wa, which had sixteen names on its rolls; but the town was the least cheering of all in the Kien-Ning Prefecture, only one adult from it being baptized. Dr. Rigg and Mr. White made a tour early in 1899 in two of the four untouched counties of the Kien-Ning district. At one large town, named Dong-Dong, they found a few Christians, with whom was an old and rather blind man, who had become an inquirer through the medical work. He was afterwards brought into Kien-Ning to be taught, and was made caretaker of the church, and he it was who was murdered during the riots. Great discord prevailed among the converts at Uang-Tiang, and as a disciplinary measure their catechist was taken from them; happily this step had the desired effect, for the people made peace among themselves and ten candidates were baptized there in the autumn. An itinerating catechist was placed at Sang-Tau—a town "full of every form of vice," noted for the rudeness of its people to foreigners—and an old innkeeper and his son, the firstfruits of the place, were received into the visible Church in September. Mr. White says of them:—

Baptisms.

The first-fruits of a place of bad repute.

> They fitted up a large room in the inn for worship, and constantly and faithfully let their light shine in that citadel of the enemy. During the time of the riots, and even for months before and after, they patiently endured persecution. They were boycotted on all sides, slandered and maligned, and at one time the tiles were torn from the roof of their house by a mob, and they were told by the son of the chief magistrate—who was the ringleader—that if they dared to inform the Kien-Ning mandarin, he would have them assassinated. I shall never forget the companionship of the old man, who accompanied me to some new villages last March. More than once I heard him in the distance behind me singing and praying with a loud voice (he was very deaf) to his "Jesus Saviour." He had not the slightest ear for music, but to hear him sing his favourite hymn, as he walked along the woody path—

"Precious Name! Oh, how sweet!
Hope of earth and joy of heaven"—

it needed no words to tell one that he knew the deepest and truest music—the music of the soul.

An attempt was made to influence the people of Dih-Kau, a good-sized town eighteen miles from Nang-Wa, by temporarily stationing an agent at a small village four miles off. A few baptisms took place, and some interesting inquirers were met with, one of them, who faithfully endured much persecution from his relations, rejoicing in the title of "the red-nose church father"! In another village was an inquirer named A-Luoi, of a visit to whose house Mr. White writes:—

A solitary believer.

In a well-swept corner were hung the Ten Commandments and a picture scroll, and near it stood a solitary bench where we seated ourselves, and then A-Luoi told me his story. He was the only believer in the town, and for some years witnessed to the truth, warning every soul in the place and urging them to trust in the Saviour; but they laughed at him, calling him crazy, and he remained the only one to believe. Reaching above a rafter, he took down an old well-worn prayer and hymn-book, and told me how every Sunday and frequently on other days he came up to this little spot alone to worship God. We knelt together at the bench, and A-Luoi prayed, as he had no doubt prayed scores of times before, with tears and heart-burning sobs that "the good Lord would give grace and mercifully pity the people of that village who had spurned His love."

The prospect was very bright in the Yen-Ping Prefecture. Several were baptized in the city of that name, including the first women converts, and a leper from the asylum outside the walls. The work among those afflicted people was carried on by an old man, formerly a school teacher, who during the riots manifested a beautiful faith in God's protecting hand. The mob had gathered outside the hospital, which was carried on by the native doctor, Dr. Ngoi Ngiong-Gi, of whom Dr. Rigg speaks highly, and it seemed as though the building would soon be torn down. At this juncture the doctor, catechist, and other workers prepared to leave, and called to the old man to accompany them; but his answer was, "You are young men, while I am old and useless. You must all go, but I shall remain here. I am not afraid, for the hairs of my head are all numbered, and my Heavenly Father will protect me." His trust was not in vain, for the mob passed by without doing any damage. There was an extraordinary movement towards Christianity in two large towns about a day's journey from Yen-Ping. About the year 1897, some business men of one of these towns, while in Fuh-Chow, heard the Gospel through C.M.S. workers, and later on invited a Native Christian to go up and teach them. He went up on an evangelistic tour, all his expenses being paid by those who invited him, and the result was that a number joined themselves together and called themselves C.M.S. Christians. They asked to be recognized as such, but as the town was within the district of the American Board, they were told that the C.M.S. could not take up work there, and were strongly urged to connect themselves with that Mission. This, however, they refused to do, and subsequently sent a deputation to the Kien-Ning quarterly meeting to request that the work might be taken up by the Society. This, of course, was firmly declined. Altogether 182 men gave up their idols and enrolled themselves. There were 183, but it was decided by the others that one—a B.A.—because he was addicted to opium, should not be counted a worshipper, though he could attend services if he wished.

"C.M.S. Christians."

The staff of the C.E.Z.M.S. in the Kien-Ning district consisted of seven European ladies, two Bible-women, and one native teacher.

KIEN-YANG.

Kien-Yang.

The Rev. and Mrs. H. S. Phillips were still without any C.M.S. colleague at KIEN-YANG, and had to labour during the year in the presence of "a depth of suspicion, superstition and malice produced through vile calumnies, of whose full depth and power even the native workers had no adequate conception." The disturbances which prevailed at Kien-Ning reached to this place also, and for a time there was much distress at home through the report, which happily proved unfounded, that both Mr. and Mrs. Phillips had been murdered. The troubles began in much the same way as those already described: reports were diligently circulated that the missionaries had bought and eaten two little children, that they had murdered an old lady, Mrs. Cu, that they had tied up and cruelly treated another old lady, and that a new room which they were adding to their house was merely designed to cover a deep pit in which they might hide the remains of the children whom they ate! The situation developed in the usual manner by the posting of inflammatory placards, calling on the people to murder all the foreigners and Christians; but the mandarin acted with kindness and firmness, publicly inspecting the Mission premises, telling the people that the statements which had been made were altogether unfounded, and accommodating the missionaries in the yamen until the excitement had passed. There was one specially critical time, when Mrs. Cu was suddenly taken ill, with symptoms which suggested poisoning, for had she died, nothing, humanly speaking, could have saved the missionaries, but mercifully prayer was answered and she soon recovered. Some slight security against similar outbreaks in the future, or rather that the authorities would endeavour to protect the workers, was afforded by the Viceroy commending the mandarin, the chief military official, and the heads of the local corporation for their energetic measures, and conferring some small honorary rank upon them, thus showing that those in high places disapproved of the disturbances.

There was only one baptism during the year, that of the old woman mentioned in last year's Report (page 347), who for thirty years had been a chanter of prayers in the Buddhist temple; but there were some hopeful inquirers, one being a man, formerly an opium sot of the worst type, who was practically rescued by the young churchwarden of the congregation. Mr. Phillips was able to give some training to six students whom he had with him, and also accomplished some translation work for the benefit of the blind, some of whom were taught by his wife. One European missionary of the C.E.Z.M.S. resided at Kien-Yang.

MID CHINA MISSION.

China, north of lat. 28°, became a separate diocese, "North China," in 1872, Dr. Russell, of the C.M.S., being the first Bishop. In 1880, after his death, it was divided into two, North and Mid China, and Dr. G. E. Moule, of the C.M.S., became Bishop of the latter See. Shanghai was occupied by European missionaries in 1845; Ningpo, 1848; Hang-Chow, 1864; Shaou-Hing, 1870; T'ai-Chow, 1892; and Chu-Ki, 1894. In the earlier years of the Mission much success was, by the Divine blessing, achieved in the numerous towns and villages around Ningpo. Later, in 1877, the Gospel was introduced under striking circumstances into the Chu-Ki district from Hang-Chow, and again in 1886 into the district of T'ai-Chow from Ningpo. Many of the Christians in these districts have manifested exemplary Christian steadfastness and zeal, and seventeen of them have been ordained since 1863.

Mid China Synod.

THE second meeting of the Biennial Mid China Synod was held at Ningpo at the end of November under the presidency of Bishop Moule, and lasted for two days and a half. The chief business was the consideration of some of the Resolutions passed at the Conference of Bishops referred to in the opening notes on China (see page 361), which were prefaced with the declaration that they did not claim to be regarded as binding canons. Those laid before the Synod included regulations for Order and Discipline and for Marriage, and also a declaration concerning the best Chinese terms to denote the orders of the Ministry. They were all assented to after some discussion. Bishop Moule, who was absent from his home at Hang-Chow for more than a third of the year, also presided at the spring and autumn meetings of the C.M.S. Conference, which were held at Shanghai and Ningpo respectively.

Reinforcements.

The Mission was reinforced by the following:—Mr. Sydney Noel Babington, M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P., London, House Surgeon at St. Thomas' Hospital, and Mrs. Babington; Mr. Thomas Gaunt, B.A., Magdalene College, Cambridge; and Miss Minna Riddall. All the above sailed in the autumn.

Deaths of Rev. W. H. Collins,

A former member of the Mission, the Rev. W. H. Collins, died at York on February 22nd, 1900. In 1857 he went to Shanghai, but six years later he was transferred to Peking, and there he laboured until the Society withdrew from that city in 1880 on the establishment of the North China Bishopric, when he returned to England, and shortly afterwards became Rector of All Saints', York. He gave two sons to the service of the Society—the Rev. W. B. Collins, of the N.W. Provinces of India Mission, and the late Rev. J. S. Collins, of the South China Mission—and also one daughter to that of the C.E.Z.M.S.

Rev. E. P. Wheatley,

Another former labourer in the Mission, the Rev. E. P. Wheatley, died at the Cape on May 27th, 1899, after a protracted illness. He was a graduate of the Royal University of Ireland, and joined the Mission in 1888. His state of health obliged him to leave the Mission in 1894, and he spent the closing years of his life in South Africa.

Another death was that of the Rev. Sing Eng-Teh. Originally an artist and employed as such by the pioneers of the Mission, Messrs. Cobbold and Russell, he heard the Gospel from them, and was baptized in 1857. Eighteen years later he received deacon's orders from Bishop Russell, the first Native to be ordained in the Mission, and from that time until his death he was the pastor of Kwun-Hae-We, Ningpo. His sons sent the following account of his last moments to Bishop Moule :— and Rev. Sing Eng-Teh.

As he drew to his end he bade us read some places of Holy Scripture. And accordingly we read Revelation xxi., xxii., and also vii. When we had finished he proposed to receive the Holy Supper. As the bread and wine were being made ready, he departed with a smile on his face. After such a peaceful home-going our father is doubtless at rest in the Garden of Bliss; and we ought indeed to thank God's great grace which has released our father from the toils of this life, and caused him to enjoy the everlasting felicity of heaven.

All his children, nine in number, are Christians, seven of them being engaged in spiritual work in different capacities. Both the Bishop and Archdeacon A. E. Moule bear loving testimony to the Christian character of their departed friend and fellow-labourer.

During the year the resignations were accepted of the Rev. J. Bates on his acceptance of a home living after service in Mid China extending over a period of nearly thirty-three years; of the Rev. G. H. Jose, tendered with a view to taking a University degree and then re-offering to the Society; and of Miss J. C. Grant, obliged by family circumstances to retire.

The Rev. C. J. F. Symons is Acting-Secretary of the Mission during the absence of the Rev. A. Elwin in England.

I. PROVINCE OF KIANG-SU.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Walshe left England for Shanghai in November. Mr. Walshe received instructions to devote his time and energies to the work of preparing Christian literature in co-operation with the "Society for the Diffusion of Christian and General Knowledge among the Chinese," and with other Evangelical societies having the same end in view. The Rev. and Mrs. A. Elwin and Miss R. M. Elwin came home in April, 1900.

SHANGHAI.

The European staff of the Society at Shanghai consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. A. Elwin, the Rev. and Mrs. C. J. F. Symons, Mr. A. J. H. Moule, Mr. W. A. H. Moule, Miss M. J. Godson, Miss R. M. Elwin, and Miss H. Wood. The celebration of the Centenary was an occasion of much interest. On Sunday, April 9th, 1899, special sermons were preached in the Cathedral, both in the morning and evening, and a remarkable chil- Shanghai. Centenary celebrations.

dren's service was held in the afternoon. Several missionaries of other Societies were present, by invitation, at the regular Conference service and Communion on the following day, and on the 12th a meeting was held of which the Bishop writes:—

I had proposed to the Chaplain some months before that a meeting should be held in the Cathedral, such (in some respects) as we held in 1887, when my brother Bishops came together in convention. As the time drew nigh both he and Mr. Elwin suggested that I should be the only speaker. I had, however, other views, which correspondence and, finally, conversation somewhat recommended to them, and which I carried into effect by inviting Bishop Graves, of the American Church, and the venerable Dr. Muirhead, L.M.S., to give addresses on the occasion. They both accepted the invitation with cordiality, and acted upon it in a tone and manner that made me and my friends deeply thankful. I had drawn up a short service, modelled on one for St. Andrew's Day, already in use in the Church, but with a special thanksgiving and prayer written for the occasion; this was read by Mr. Hodges, after which, Mr. Elwin having made a statement regarding the local Association, the three addresses followed in order, with missionary hymns interspersed. Bishop Graves referred to the fact, to which I had drawn his attention, that some seventy odd years ago the American Bishops were encouraged to undertake foreign Missions chiefly by the hearty counsel of Mr. Pratt, and he then, in kindly terms, expressed his thankfulness for the relations of friendship and godly emulation which had existed in China for fifty and more years between English and American Church missionaries. Dr. Muirhead, some six years my senior, and for fifty years the friend of several C.M.S. missionaries in succession, having no robes, not even his doctor's gown, proposed to speak from the lectern. He yielded, however, to my ruling, and took his place in the cathedral pulpit, when he spoke with vigorous eloquence of the great missionary object and aim, and then of the achievements under God of the C.M.S., of its brotherly relations with Missions and missionaries of other denominations, and his own happy relations with all whom you have sent hither, instancing especially my dear brother, Archdeacon Moule. I trust and think that without infringement of Church principles, in a land where I doubt whether Acts of Uniformity run, something was gained for the "bond of peace" among those who "profess and call themselves Christians."

The Rev. Dr. Muirhead occupies the Cathedral pulpit.

The celebrations concluded with a gathering of pastors and missionaries in charge of native congregations, which was well attended in spite of the unfavourable weather.

The Congregation under the charge of the Rev. Dzing Kyi-Doh, which worships in the Cemetery chapel, was increased by the baptism of five adults, but it was not in all respects satisfactory, for some of the Christians lived carelessly in the midst of the terrible temptations which abound. The year 1899 was the most prosperous known in the history of the Anglo-Chinese Boys' School, of which Mr. W. A. H. Moule is Principal, for the average attendance, which was over seventy in 1898, was ten higher during the year under review, and one of the former pupils was third of the 120 candidates in the Customs Entrance Examination. Great care was taken with the Scripture teaching, in which Mr. Moule and his brother were assisted by the Rev. H. C. Hodges, the Dean of Shanghai, a brother of the Bishop of Travancore, who conducted two weekly Bible-classes. The lad whose baptism was mentioned in last year's Report appeared to have an influence for good in the school, and another of the pupils applied for baptism. During the year an "Old Boys' Society" was set on foot in order to keep in touch with those who left the school from the upper classes and found employment in Shanghai. The Day-school for Girls was but small in comparison with the Boys' School, but Miss Elwin, who managed it, was cheered by the earnestness of a former pupil, who was passed on to the boarding-school of the American Methodist Mission, and was desirous of being baptized. Mr. A. J. H. Moule continued his important Literary Work, and made good progress with the translation of the R.T.S. Commentary on the Old Testament, some volumes of which were completed and published, meeting with a ready sale. He also acted as joint editor of the Anglican Church Record, and Secretary of the Mid China Conference.

Literary Work.

No account of the Evangelistic Work under the superintendence of Mr. Symons has been received, but Mr. Elwin refers in his Annual Letter to the large number of Cantonese, some 40,000 in all, living in Shanghai, amongst whom no missionary society was labouring. One Cantonese woman is specially mentioned as being a most earnest Christian, and bringing several of her friends to the services. Among those whom she introduced to the missionaries was a woman who was born in Australia, whither her parents had gone in search of work, and there heard, though she did not embrace, the Gospel. Coming to Shanghai with the family to which she was attached as nurse, she asked in the public gardens one day whether any of the other nurses were Christians, and was directed to the woman to whom reference has been made. After some instruction she was baptized, the service being taken in English, since she seemed to be more familiar with that language than any other. The lady missionaries visited in the town, Miss Elwin going to more than two hundred houses, and sometimes having quite a large number of listeners as she spoke of salvation through Christ.

II. PROVINCE OF CHEH-KIANG.

The Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Coultas sailed for the Mission, viâ Canada, in September; Miss M. A. Wells left in October, and Miss I. S. Clarke in the following month. On the other hand the Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Jose and Miss E. F. Turner came home in May, 1899. The Rev. E. Thompson was married at Shanghai, on November 25th, to Miss Edith Chamberlain, and the Rev. A. J. Walker at Hong-Kong, on December 23rd, to Miss Edith Middleton.

NINGPO.

Ningpo. Besides the native clergy, the following European missionaries were stationed at NINGPO:—the Rev. and Mrs. W. S. Moule, the Revs. W. E. Godson, W. H. Elwin, and A. J. Walker, Dr. and Mrs. R. Smyth, and the Misses A. Maddison, E. Green, M. E. Turnbull, and I. Hughes (of the Victoria C.M. Association). They were joined at the end of the year by Miss M. A. Wells on her return from furlough, but, on the other hand, Mr. Godson was transferred to T'ai-Chow. Most of the European clergy, and also the Rev. Sing Tsae-Seng, rendered some assistance at the Training College, of which Mr. Moule is Principal and Mr. Walker, Vice-Principal. There were five candidates for the Theological Class, but two of them were declined, and two withdrew at the last moment, so that only one student was under instruction. In the junior department, where lads were trained to be schoolmasters and catechists, the numbers were more encouraging, for twenty-one applications for admission were received, half of which were entertained. The Conference of the Mission accepted three of the students as schoolmasters. Two of the fifty-four boys were called to their rest, as well as the old tutor, whose baptism was recorded in last year's Report (page 351), and who was confirmed during the year under review. Mr. Moule sends an interesting account of the last moments of the latter, gathered from information given by his friends. He says:—

Training College.

Death of an old tutor.

> When he felt the end near he wanted us sent for. But his relatives did not tell us, so he died alone. He gave directions that there should be none of the "devil's work" at his funeral, but that it should be Christian. He lay on his bed with the Bible in one hand and a hymn-book in the other. He had been singing hymns all the previous night—I wonder to what tunes!—but they were "pleasant to hear," said our heathen informant, and no doubt sweet to the singer's heart as "bearing the name" of Jesus. His relations stood round and asked whether there were not demons. "Yes," he said, "of course there are, but they have nothing whatever to do with me. I am God's man and Jesus' man; they have nothing to do with me, nor I with them." They asked him about God and Jesus. He lifted up his Bible and said, "God is here and Jesus is here," then lowered his hand and died. This is the account we heard. The relatives said, "Those foreigners are remarkable people to secure him such a peaceful end."

"I am God's man."

Pastorates The Pastorates were under the supervision of Mr. Moule, who expresses himself as convinced of the reality of the work among the Christians, some of whom manifested a high standard of spiritual life. Special mention is made of a woman, first married to a Christian, but after his death sold by an avaricious father to an indolent Heathen. Her conscientiousness was so great that on one occasion she abstained from Holy Communion because, in spite of her protest, her husband had been connected with gambling by carrying money to those who were engaged in it, and during the year she refused to come into the Women's School for training with a view to eventual employment as schoolmistress, much though she delighted in the prospect, giving as her reasons the work to be done in her own village, where there were but few Christians, and her unwillingness to leave her husband, whom she longed to win for Christ. There were two congregations in the City, the one meeting in Christ Church, and the other moving during the year into the church known in past Reports as Grace Church, which for some years had been used exclusively for preaching to the Heathen. These were under the charge of the Revs. Wông Yiu-Kwông and Mo Kw'un-Tü. Little progress was made in the Z-Ky'i Pastorate, under the Rev. 'Ô Kwông-Yiao, excepting at one place, and the San-Poh Pastorate suffered a great loss by the death, already referred to, of the Rev. Sing Eng-Teh, who was succeeded by the Rev. Song Vi-Sing. The Evangelistic Work was superintended by Mr. Moule and Mr. Godson, who had several catechists associated with them. Mr. Godson, who took up his residence at Kwun-Hae-We, was discouraged by the absence of brotherly love among his native colleagues, but reports that on the whole quiet but steady progress was made. A certain measure of opposition was met with, in one place an inquirer being attacked and rather severely handled, while in another great pressure was brought to bear on one of the Christians because he refused to perform the usual heathen burial rites when his father died, or to burn silver paper for the benefit of the departed spirit. Mr. Godson gives an interesting instance of faithfulness and liberality on the part of a recent convert named Kyuo-Seng :—

A steadfast convert.

His friends, who are Confucianists in theory and Buddhists in practice, strongly opposed his entering the "foreign Church." They did everything that lay in their power short of using violence to prevent him from doing so. It was all to no purpose, however, for he stood firm to his religious convictions. One afternoon, when out riding, his horse fell, and the accident was attributed to the anger of the gods against him for his neglect of them. On the outskirts of the town is a famous Buddhist temple, and close to it stands a nunnery. For misdemeanours this nunnery was closed nearly thirty years ago, and has since been in the hands of a caretaker, occasional services only being held in it. Kyuo-Seng is one of the chief proprietors of this nunnery, and determined to hand it over to the Christian Church. As soon as his intentions became known, friends crowded into his house with the idea of dissuading him from the committal of an act so rash, Buddhist priests being prominent amongst the objectors. The ancestral hall connected with Kyuo-Seng's family residence was burnt down during this time; his house, which was close by, escaped. During the conflagration, neighbours begged him to pray to the gods and present offerings. He steadily refused, however, to do so, and prayed to God instead. Immediately idle tales spread abroad to the effect that the god of fire was angry with Kyuo-Seng, but in remembrance of his past deeds of charity, had spared his dwelling-house. Some of the young literati composed ballads in which these events were described, and wandering minstrels sang them about the country. Kyuo-Seng, strengthened by the grace of God stood firm, and the opposition gradually died away.

A considerable ingathering took place at Soh-Ko-Bu, and indeed throughout the district there was a steady stream of inquirers and applicants for admission into the Church, sixty-nine adults being baptized during the year. Some of this success is to be attributed to the ten day-schools, the importance of which, Mr. Moule says, cannot be estimated too highly; and much was doubtless due to the influence of the Medical Work under Dr. Smyth. More than 7,000 attendances were registered at the Dispensary, and the in-patients numbered 310, about one-third of whom were women or children. Among those who came for treatment were several opium smokers, none of whom attempted to excuse their evil habit. The sad results of the indulgence in the drug are described by Dr. Smyth as follows:—

Effects of opium-smoking.

> The opium sot, like the drunkard, will deprive himself of food and clothing in order to satisfy his craving for the stimulant. He loses not only money and reputation, but also mental capacity and muscular power. His moral sensibility is sadly blunted, and if the habit be not checked in time he becomes a physical and moral wreck.
> It must be understood that the above remarks refer to the poorer Chinese, the class to which most of our patients belong. How far they apply to the richer classes our experience does not enable us to say. But a recent essay by the well-known Viceroy, Chang Chih-Tung, who includes wealthy and influential officials and gentry among the habitués he refers to, furnishes us with striking evidence on the subject from a native point of view. The writer declares that opium-smoking has spread like a plague through the provinces of the Empire "with frightful rapidity and heart-rending results." "The poison enfeebles the will, saps the strength of the body, and renders the consumer incapable of performing his regular duties. . . . The habit is generated by sloth. It reduces its miserable victim to poverty, barrenness, and senility. . . . Confirmed smokers must be let alone, as no power on earth can save them. . . . In the deadly drug we are self-steeped, seeking poverty, imbecility, destruction, and death."

There was little alteration in the method of carrying on evangelistic work among the patients, but the year was noteworthy for the institution of a dispensary at Moh-Ts-In, a village fifteen miles from Ningpo, and even more for the opening of the Gertrude Stanley Smyth Memorial Hospital for Women and Children, which contains one long ward of sixteen beds, and four small rooms, two of which are fitted up and reserved for private patients. Amongst those who were admitted as catechumens was a young fellow who was an inmate of the hospital, and with his mother, who nursed him, eagerly listened to the Gospel message. On their return to their home they endured much persecution, but their faith did not waver; the mother took down and destroyed her idols, and became a member of the Women's School, which was conducted by Mrs. W. S. Moule for twelve weeks in the spring and early summer, and was resumed later in the year. During the first of the terms nine women were under instruction, and six during the latter. Miss

Maddison took over from Miss Turnbull the charge of the Girls' Boarding-school on her return in March, 1899. More applications were received for admission than there were vacancies to be filled, and both the native teachers and the children afforded great satisfaction. Two of the girls asked for baptism, of one of whom Miss Turnbull says:—

> She was a good age when she came into the school, but her feet have been gradually unbound. She is now about sixteen, and when she went home at midsummer her stepmother wished to betroth her to a Heathen; the girl's father gave her her choice, however, and she was very decided in wishing to be a Christian and to come back to school. She was baptized in her own home, at Saen-Poh, during the New Year holidays.

Miss Turnbull was greatly cheered by the beautiful death of one of the children, who when near her end would not be satisfied until the words of Ephesians iii. 19 were read to her. It is impossible to describe in detail the various methods by which the general Work among Women was carried on. Numbers of classes, some for those who were Christians and others for the Heathen, were conducted; schools were maintained in different parts of the district, and the people were visited in their own homes. Itinerations in the district were made by Miss Green and Miss Turnbull, who were listened to by crowds of women, and were enabled to minister to many of the scattered converts as well as to speak to those who were not Christians.

T'AI-CHOW.

T'ai-Chow. The extension of the work in the T'AI-CHOW Prefecture resulted in the lengthening of the district occupied by the Society to 140 miles, the most southern out-station being within three days' journey of the most northern station of the C.M.S. in the Fuh-Kien Mission. The Rev. E. Thompson, who was the only European agent of the Society in this vast district until the Rev. W. E. Godson was transferred thither from Ningpo, speaks of the year as having been one of great anxiety owing to the trials caused by the action of the Roman Catholics, which has already been referred to on page 360.

The lack of sufficient native agents to occupy all the places which called for teachers constituted a serious hindrance to the work, and efforts to remove it were made by holding in August a class for men with a knowledge of the written character; fourteen accepted the invitation, and with the aid of the native pastors were instructed in Scripture, the Prayer-book, and other subjects. Steady progress was made at the Dispensary, which was under a native assistant from the Hang-Chow Hospital, as many as 1,897 attendances being registered, and two new boys' schools were opened in the district, but the absence of any woman worker rendered it necessary to close such girls' schools as existed. The mother church of the district at Da-Zih progressed satisfactorily, the building being filled with worshippers twice every Sunday, and at Do-Wong, in the Northern Pastorate, there was marked advance, a renewed spirit of inquiry being manifested. Nine men were baptized at Ts'u-Meng, in the Southern Pastorate (see last year's Report, page 355), one of whom caused disappointment, while another did good work as a colporteur in his own neighbourhood, "witnessing for Christ in his life, and showing a keen appreciation of Gospel truths." Using the place just mentioned as a centre, efforts were made to plant the Gospel in three cities, which were respectively ten, twenty, and twenty-five miles distant, and it was proposed to occupy the city of Song-Meng with a view to establishing permanent work on the island of Zih-Dong, presumably that which was mentioned in last year's Report. At Wæn-Ky'i, a man was found who had been baptized some five years previously, and who was striving to gather his neighbours together on Sundays for worship, and to lead them to the knowledge of the Saviour. One Sunday, while service was being held, a man of bad repute stole some of the farm produce belonging to this Christian, who showed exemplary patience in the negotiations which ensued, declining to go to the law courts, and eventually being satisfied with an apology from the aggressor, though it was unaccompanied by a restitution of the stolen property. In all some seventeen out-stations are occupied by catechists, and the total number of baptisms was 142. The weak point of the work was the absence of effort to reach the women. Only two Bible-women were employed, and Mr. Thompson pleads earnestly for more women workers.

Patient under wrongs.

SHAOU-HING.

Shaou-Hing.

Two of the missionaries at SHAOU-HING, Miss H. M. B. Clayton and Miss L. C. Pope (now Mrs. H. W. Moule), devoted most of their time to the effort to master the intricacies of the Chinese language, and were therefore unable to render more than incidental assistance in the work of the station, at which the Rev. A. Phelps (now at home) was in charge. Both of them refer to the changes which they witnessed in the faces of people as they listened for the first time to the message of redeeming love. The organizations for the benefit of the Native Christians were carried on as usual. Mrs. Phelps conducted the Women's Bible-class, and the local Branch of the Gleaners' Union assembled once a month, and made stockings for use at the Hang-Chow hospital. People flocked to the Dispensary, in connexion with which a medical evangelist was employed, and the schools for boys were full, but only a few children attended that for girls. There were many drawbacks in the Work among Women, which was managed by Miss E. Onyon, in the absence of Miss I. S. Clarke and Miss E. F. Turner on furlough. Chief among them was the fact that the great trade of the city is in paper money, which is made for other parts of the country besides the immediate neighbourhood. Beyond this trade and that of silk-winding there is no occupation for the women of the poorer classes, and the difficulty which they would experience in gaining a livelihood if they became Christians was a stumbling-block in the way of many. In order to remove this obstacle the ladies began to teach lace-making to some of those who appeared to be in earnest, one of them being both deaf and dumb. The little house built in the Mission compound for a Women's School proved useful, and two young girls stayed there for a month before the summer, one of whom was afterwards prepared for baptism. Visiting among the women of the better classes was diligently prosecuted, and some of them became inquirers; and the converse of this work, viz., receiving visitors, was the means of bringing the ladies into touch with a number of women, and Mr. Phelps with several men of good social position. An important step in connexion with the country work was taken by the opening of a new out-station at Ha-Pao, where large crowds came together to see Miss Onyon, when she visited the place in company with the Bible-woman. The Rev. Tsong Sieh-En, the native pastor, visited some of the out-stations, and was permitted to see some fruit of his labours. Three adults were baptized: one was senior pupil in the Mission school, and another the hat-maker who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 356). It was hoped that the latter would eventually be able from time to time to receive some of the Christian boys as apprentices.

Visiting homes of upper classes.

HANG-CHOW.

Death was busy among the Congregation at HANG-CHOW, which was under the care of the Rev. Sing Tsae-Ling, no fewer than thirteen members of the Church being called to their rest, but inasmuch as nine adults and ten children were baptized, there was not much alteration in the number of the Christians, some of whom showed signs of growth in grace. Eleven women joined the Station Class, which was held in November and December, and conducted by Miss Vaughan; the improvement in them which was witnessed when they were visited afterwards in their respective homes was ample justification for the trouble which was taken in giving them instruction in Christian truth. Miss D. C. Joynt supervised one of the Girls' Day-schools, and reports that the attendance doubled during the year, and that the mistress manifested a desire to win the children for Christ. Some of the girls were the children of heathen parents, and one of them had to be carried to the school, so tightly bound were her feet. The number of scholars at the English Boys' School was but small, but it was hoped that the influence of Mr. T. Gaunt, one of the year's recruits, who was assigned to the school, would soon result in an extension of its sphere of usefulness. The absence of Dr. D. D. Main on furlough compelled Dr. A. T. Kember to close the Convalescent Home, but the other branches of the important medical work were happily maintained, and the staff was reinforced at the end of the year by the arrival of Dr. S. N. Babington. The number of in-patients at the Hospital was about the same as usual, and the customary difficulties were met with in the management of the people, many of whom were anything but tractable. The Women's Hospital had quite the average number of patients, and the Leper Hospitals and the Opium Refuge continued their beneficent work. Twelve of the inmates of the Leper Hospitals were baptized.

Hospitals.

No report has been furnished by Miss A. M. Moule, Miss J. F. Moule, or Miss E. Goudge, who engaged in Work among Women in Hang-Chow city. Miss B. L. Frewer was engaged almost exclusively in language study, as also was the Rev. T. C. Goodchild, who, however, accompanied the Rev. G. W. Coultas when, soon after his return from England, he visited the Out-stations up the Hang-Chow River, where the work was carried on by Miss M. Vaughan, Miss L. H. Barnes, and Miss D. C. Joynt, under the superintendence of the Rev. H. W. Moule. Mr. Goodchild found among the Christians a few women who were descended from Confucius himself, and he was much impressed with the earnestness of some of the converts. The value of the Prayer-book as a means of teaching recent converts how to pray was illustrated by the fact that a missionary of the China Inland Mission, a Baptist, asked Mr. Goodchild to procure some copies for him, not for his own use, but in order that he might put them into the hands of some of the converts to show them the use and meaning of prayer. The school at Dan-De had to be closed owing to the lack of pupils, and the work there appeared to be at a standstill in spite of the residence at the place of Luke Chow, the well-known Chinese evangelist. He was the means of bringing in several inquirers at a neighbouring village, one of whom displayed much zeal in teaching his neighbours. One of the converts at Dan-De suffered greatly through the conduct of her husband, who several times endeavoured to sell his little daughters, and on one occasion made a little money by taking the children to different shops and compelling them to pray and read the Scriptures. Five women were baptized at Lin-P'u, and many others came forward as inquirers; and a similar report is given of Tsiang-Kya-Fan, though the school there was temporarily closed in consequence of the marriage and removal of the teacher. There were none but Christian children at the Nyien-U school, but the work amongst them was most cheering, and one of the girls being married to a Christian young man from Tsin-Tsao went with her husband to that place and became teacher of the new school which was opened there. Miss Vaughan says:—"She and her husband are showing a beautiful example of what married life can be. They have family prayers together every evening, she teaching her husband the characters he does not know, and lately God has answered prayer in leading the mother-in-law to kneel down with them." "Beautiful example of married life."

Some of the people in the villages of the vicinity were very wild and ignorant, and the missionaries had to be most discreet in their conduct, so as not to frighten them away.

The general advance in the work among the women up the river is shown by the statement made by Miss Vaughan, that whereas in April, 1895, there were only six baptized women in the district, of whom two were backsliders, and six inquirers, by the beginning of 1900 the Christian women numbered thirty-nine, while two others had left the district, and there were in addition eighteen inquirers, half of whom were definitely candidates for baptism.

CHU-KI.

Chu-Ki. But little account can be given of the work at CHU-KI, where the Rev. J. B. Ost (now at home) and the Rev. and Mrs. H. Barton were the European missionaries in residence, since Mr. Barton was unable to do much beyond study the language, and no report has been received from Mr. Ost. Towards the close of the year two persons were admitted as candidates for baptism—the one Mr. Barton's language-teacher, a man named Yiang, who made great advance spiritually, and the other the wife of one of the Christians, who bitterly opposed her husband at the time of his conversion, but was gradually won to the religion which he professed.

WEST CHINA MISSION.

The Province of Si-Chuan was occupied by a party under the Rev. J. H. Henburgh in 1892, but for more than a year it was impossible to rent houses in any place not already occupied by other Societies. In 1894 the cities of Chong-Pa, Sin-Tu, Mien-Chuh, Mien-Cheo, and An-Hsien received resident missionaries, Shih-Ts'uen-Hsien in 1895, and Wei-Cheng in 1899. The Rev. W. W. Cassels, a missionary of the China Inland Mission, was appointed, on the nomination of the C.M.S., Bishop in Western China, and was consecrated on October 18th, 1895.

THE turbulence which, as mentioned in last year's Report (page 318), prevailed in the Province of Si-Chuan in 1898, continued, though in a far less degree, during the year under review, for one of the stations of the China Inland Mission was attacked by a mob, and a missionary of the Friends' Mission was maltreated; but happily the northern part of the province was quiet on the whole. A Missionary Conference was held in Chung-King in January, 1899, and was attended by seventy-two Protestant missionaries. One practical result was the decision to issue a monthly publication called the West China Missionary News, for the circulation of information concerning all the Missions. It was also resolved to set apart Wednesday morning of each week as a time for prayer "for the whole work in West China, and for one another," either in private or at Mission gatherings. A committee was appointed with Bishop Cassels as chairman to consider the subject of co-operation and division of the field. A clear understanding was arrived at by which the north of the province, with a population of several millions, was assigned to the C.I.M. and the C.M.S. The area for which the Society is responsible comprises about 50,000 square miles, with fifteen walled cities and fifty large market towns, besides the seven stations which are now occupied; but for the administration of the sacraments, and for all other ministerial work there was in the field in April, 1899, only one man in priest's orders, and he has since been invalided home! Bishop Cassels wrote on this point in the month referred to:—

A Missionary Conference.

An urgent cry.

> Mining engineers, railway surveyors, Board of Trade Commissioners, and Custom House officials, to say nothing of travellers, are almost pouring into Western China just now. We hear, too, of gun-boats and new business enterprises being on their way up. Is there, then, to be no response to this urgent cry for a few clergy for Western China? Cannot even one man in Holy Orders be found? The country is opening up more and more. The anti-Christian rebellion has now been put down. The Western China Missionary Conference has definitely assented to a vast district larger than England being left for the work of our Church. Surely, then, there is an urgent call to do something more than we are doing.

The Committee were prevented by the lack of offers of service from men, and by the exigencies of other Missions, from doing more, in response to this urgent appeal, than send out two men and three women to reinforce the staff, viz.:—Mr. Albert Edwin Seward and Mr. Philip John Turner, both of Islington

College; and Miss Mercy Caroline Knight, Miss Lucy Mellodey, and Miss Alice Walmsley, all of the Society's Training Home at Highbury. These missionaries sailed for China in October. Mr. John George Beach, who has been working independently in the Mission since 1891, has been accepted as a missionary in local connexion.

But the gain to the Mission of these recruits has been to some extent counterbalanced by the loss of a valued worker through the death on July 19th, 1899, of Miss I. K. S. Acheson, who was trained at The Olives, and went out in 1896. The Rev. D. A. Callum writes thus of her last days on earth:— Death of Miss I. K. S. Acheson.

> She was taken ill in June, and went to An-Hsien for a change. She came back early in July, and shortly after she returned a Mrs. Chui, a Chinese lady whom Miss Acheson loved very much, and for whom she had laboured and prayed, died, and this affected Miss Acheson greatly; she mourned not only for a friend gone, but because she could not feel that that friend was "Safe in the arms of Jesus." This took a deal of the vitality out of Miss Acheson, and she had a relapse a few days afterwards. After six days' illness, she passed away into the Presence of her much-loved Master on July 19th. Miss Thompson, my wife, and I were with her when she died. It was so peaceful, such a quiet entering in to the Glory Land. Just one little sigh, and she was with the Lord Jesus, her eyes beheld "the King in His Glory." When the Christians got to know of her death, which they did in a very short time, they came into the chamber to look at their dear friend. They seemed to realize that she was with the Lord Jesus, for she looked so peaceful, and they in some measure restrained their grief.

Mr. A. A. Phillips is Secretary of the Mission; he and Mrs. Phillips sailed for China in October.

MIEN-CHEO.

The Rev. D. A. Callum, who was transferred from Sin-Tu at the close of 1898 to superintend the work at MIEN-CHEO, writes thankfully of the little congregation, saying that the services were uniformly well attended, and that the contributions of the people showed a marked increase, in consequence of the institution of a weekly instead of a monthly collection. Two churchwardens were appointed; the Centenary was observed by holding a special meeting, at which the address was given by the Rev. J. H. Horsburgh; and three women were confirmed by the Bishop, who paid two visits to the station. The names of fourteen inquirers were written down, among them being a farmer, a weaver, a mason, a doctor, a coolie, and several women, and there were many others who expressed a desire to "join the religion," but whose motives on investigation were found to be unworthy. At least two of the inquirers were the fruit of the Dispensary Work, which was carried on by Mr. Callum, who prescribed for about one thousand patients; other converts were brought in by means of the preaching room, where the native evangelist and churchwarden rendered valued help. The number of guests who visited the missionaries showed but little diminution, but the work among the scholars, which was mentioned in last year's Report (page 363) as so encouraging, was partially stopped by the action of the Dowager Empress, which led to a lessening of interest in Western science. Some of the literati, however, came from time to time to see Mr. Callum, including a son of one of the reformers who was put to death in 1898—a young man of twenty-three years of age, who had read a number of Christian books. The lantern continued to be useful, and was shown in three yamens and some private mansions. After the exhibition of it in the great yamen, the mandarin sent two of his servants with a present of a leg of beef, but Mr. Callum says:—

Lantern exhibitions in yamens

> After a little inquiry, I found that there had been sacrifices offered to the god of war that morning, and this was actually one of the choicest portions of the sacrificial animal, in fact, the mandarin's own portion, which he had sent on to us; it was a great honour and a great kindness, but we had to send it back, which I did with a polite note, telling his Honour that, while grateful for his kindness, we could not accept the beef, as our Holy Book forbade our eating anything that had been "sacrificed to idols." It was a good opportunity of witnessing for the true God, both before the mandarin and the Native Christians.

The Work among Women and Children was carried on by Mrs. Callum, Miss M. A. Thompson, and Miss R. F. Murray, as well as by the late Miss I. K. S. Acheson, and Miss E. D. Mertens, who was transferred to Mien-Cheo in the late autumn. The people manifested great friendliness and gladly received the visits of the ladies, and the efforts to reach the children met with considerable success. The Sunday-school under Miss Murray was attended by about fifty children, and the Bible-class for the elder boys afforded some encouragement.

Dr. W. Squibbs, after qualifying in the language, was engaged in itinerating. He visited Han-Cheu, Cheng-Fu (for medical aid during an attack of fever), and Song-Pan.

WEI-CHENG.

Wei-Cheng.

A new station.

A forward movement was made during the year by the occupation of WEI-CHENG, a town sixty-seven Chinese miles from Mien-Cheo, surrounded by ranges of hills, whither Miss R. Lloyd and Miss G. E. Wells proceeded in April, 1899, soon after their return from England. From the very beginning they were able to move freely among the people. Meetings for women and children were held on Sundays, and classes for boys and girls during the week, and the distribution of medicine attracted sometimes as many as fifty persons on one day. Visits were occasionally paid to the villages in the vicinity, the Christian cook selling books to the men, while the lady missionaries endeavoured to devote themselves exclusively to the women, but the curiosity of the men was so great that, in defiance of Chinese etiquette, they insisted on seeing the foreign ladies!

SIN-TU.

Sin-Tu. There was much to sadden the hearts of Mr. and Mrs. W. Andrews and Miss E. D. Mertens, who resided at SIN-TU, for an old woman named Shi was excommunicated by the Bishop for resorting to sorcery as a means of getting a livelihood, one of the inquirers who was thought to be a converted man proved to be unworthy, and three others fell away. But on the other hand there were a few cheering cases. Mrs. Uang and her husband, whose names are familiar to readers of former Reports, continued steadfast in the presence of some trials; a Mrs. Liu and her daughter, who lived in a district hostile to foreigners and which therefore could not be visited, appeared when at Sin-Tu to be bright and earnest Christians; and Mr. Li, a tailor, refrained from retaliating when his younger brother treated him with injustice. One woman who died during the year was, as far as could be judged, a real Christian though she had not been baptized. Miss Mertens says of her:—

The message spreads from mouth to mouth. She heard the Gospel for the first time the beginning of May last. She was told it by her son, himself an unconverted man. Mrs. Uang taught him John iii. 16 while he was wheeling her along in a barrow to a small village some few miles distant, where she and I went for the day. On his return home he told his mother what he had heard and taught her the verse. The following Sunday they both came to the morning service. Hers seemed a heart already prepared by the Lord, for she heard and believed. Her short Christian life was a very bright one, and we had looked forward to her help.

"Your Jesus will take care of you." At the commencement of the year some fears were entertained of the incursion of the rebels, and visiting was carried on daily in order to reassure the people, one of whom remarked to Mrs. Uang, "Your Jesus will take care of you, but we have no one to take care of us." The attendance at the preaching-hall was good when meetings for the Heathen were held, and on every hand there was a general readiness to listen to the Gospel, but the year was a time of sowing rather than of reaping. Mr. Andrews has been admitted by the Bishop as a lay-reader.

MIEN-CHUH.

Mien-Chuh. No improvement was visible at MIEN-CHUH, the largest town occupied in the West China Mission, for the number of baptized Christians was the same as in 1898, and some of them were anything but satisfactory. The only woman among them, Mrs. Wang, whose baptism was recorded last year, continually absented herself from the services, and towards the end of the year moved away from her old home, keeping her new abode a secret from the missionaries, though in December she came for a day, and seemed very bright. Another of the converts, a farmer, gave way to drink, and ceased his attendance at public worship. But Mr. Wang, the coolie who was confirmed in July, and another man who was employed at the Guest-hall, were zealous and consistent, the former in spite of much trial. The inquirers were few in number, and Mrs. U, who was mentioned in last year's Report (page 367), was in some respects disappointing, although she gave up work on Sundays in order to attend the services regularly. Miss M. C. Gillmor visited the people in their homes in company with a Bible-woman, who was baptized at one of the China Inland Mission stations, and also received women guests, some of whom came for simple medical treatment that they might be enabled to give up smoking opium. There were forty-seven cases of attempted opium suicide; the majority of these were not dealt with at the dispensary, but had medicine sent to them. Mr. W. H. Gill carried on the evangelistic work to the best of his ability. Some of his time was spent in seeing to the necessary repairs to the house at the foot of the mountains, ten miles from Mien-Chuh, which was presented to the Society by the missionaries as a Sanatorium in memory of the Centenary. The workers went there in July, 1899, and were able to preach the Gospel to many of the people of the neighbourhood. The undermanned condition of the Mission made it impossible for Mr. Gill to pay more than a couple of visits to Hsiao-Chuan, where he had large and attentive audiences.

A sanatorium—a Centenary gift.

AN-HSIEN.

An-Hsien. On July 6th, 1899, there occurred at AN-HSIEN what Bishop Cassels describes as the "first real break in the darkness," for then nine candidates for baptism were definitely enrolled as catechumens. Mr. W. Knipe gives some interesting particulars of them. One, Mr. Tuan, was engaged as language teacher for Mr. E. Hamilton and Miss I. S. D. Mitchell. For a long time Mr. Tuan showed no interest in the Gospel, but he gradually changed, though he hesitated until June, 1899, to bear witness to his faith before his fellow-countrymen. Another of the catechumens was the middleman through whom the renting of the first house was negotiated in An-Hsien, and who for his share in the business was put in chains; he professed after his release to believe in Christ, but there were no evidences of sincerity until 1898, when he began to leave off opium smoking and to attend the services regularly. His wife also asked for baptism, and his daughter, one of the girls whom Miss Mitchell taught, was amongst those enrolled as catechumens. Other converts were Catechumens.

Mr. Suh, a man engaged in selling foreign nails, and his wife, of whom Mr. Knipe writes:—

She has been our servant for nearly three years. At first she was not satisfactory, and we had to part with her for a while, taking her on again as need arose, sometimes as a needlewoman, sometimes as a nurse. At that time Mr. Suh did not come to worship, and at home Mrs. Suh worshipped idols. Last year a son was born, and they took extra precautions to ensure his living. The idols were worshipped with ardour, and vows made if only the child should be preserved alive. There was every prospect that their hopes would be realized, as the babe was fine and healthy; but on the third day it got cold and died suddenly, and their hopes were dashed to the ground. Then Mrs. Suh began to think about us and our babies. We did not worship idols, and our babies were fat and flourishing. What if God, whom she had heard us tell about, was after all the true God and her idols false? She talked the matter over with her husband, with the result that they tore down their idols and cast them into the big baskets of the man who gathers waste paper! This year she has been growing in grace very visibly, and now that another baby has been born, a girl this time, she has adopted our Western ideas about washing and nursing, and her baby is growing fast.

Idolatry and the rearing of children.

Besides the usual services, a class was held every Sunday for the instruction of the catechumens. The work among the children was carried on amid some difficulty arising from the irregularity of their attendance, but Mr. Hamilton had encouragement in connexion with a class for boys which he instituted in the autumn. A large number of women came to the Guest-hall at the time of the summer fair, and many were also reached through the visiting. Miss Mitchell received an invitation to go to a lady's house every week in order to teach her daughter, fourteen years of age. After a time the visits were discontinued because it was said that the father was angry at "the doctrine" being taught, but eventually it was found that his objection was only to his wife and daughter going to the missionary, and not to her visiting them. Accordingly the lessons were resumed, a little English being taught in order to please the father. Mr. T. Simmonds was at An-Hsien for a few weeks, assisting in the station work, and itinerating among the surrounding villages.

CHONG-PA.

Chong-Pa.

Few things better illustrate the need of more workers than the fact that two young missionaries, Mr. W. Kitley and Mr. A. Lawrence, both of whom were still engaged in learning the language, had to be left in charge of the work at CHONG-PA in January, 1899, when Mr. W. Andrews was transferred to Sin-Tu. As they became better acquainted with Chinese they gained a sad consciousness of the depravity of the Heathen, for Mr. Lawrence says:—

You hear little "tots" of five years of age rolling out, like their parents, "Curse you," and worse sayings. Confucianism makes a fine thin veneer of ceremonial; but it takes very little to break the crust and display the volcano of sinfulness below.

Bishop Cassels paid a visit to the station early in the year under review, and was successful after much negotiation in obtaining the Mission-house for a period of fifteen years. The workers were thankful to get rid of the landlord, who occupied part of the premises, for he was an opium-smoker and his wife was shameless; he had heard the Gospel, but hardened his heart against it, and died five days after his departure. Only a few visitors came to see the missionaries, but they had good audiences at the evening preachings in the Guest-hall which they began in the autumn, their native teacher, a man who made a decided stand for Christ, and endured much persecution in consequence, voluntarily assisting in delivering the message of Salvation. He and the cook and servant applied to have their names put down as catechumens, and were regularly instructed in Scripture and the Prayer-book, the latter being very useful in teaching them to express their petitions in prayer.

SHIH-TS'UEN.

Shih-Ts'uen.

The missionaries at SHIH-TS'UEN at the beginning of the year were the Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Hickman and Miss L. S. Digby, but Mr. and Mrs. Hickman left on furlough in August, and Miss M. A. Thompson was transferred to the station from Mien-Cheo. Two adults were baptized: the one, an old gateman, formerly a temple-keeper, whose brother also professed to believe; and the other the wife of a Christian farmer, a woman twenty-six years of age, who had lived a very bad life, but in whom a great change had taken place. There were several other inquirers, including Miss Digby's teacher, who feared openly to confess Christ because of the opposition of his elder brother, who, however, was reading the Bible, and two women, formerly strong Buddhists, who broke their vegetarian vow, and abandoned the worship of idols. Miss Digby had forty names on the roll of the Sunday-school, the average attendance being from twenty-five to thirty, most of them boys. Mr. T. Simmonds was at Shih-Ts'uen at the time of the annual fair, and had some encouraging experiences in preaching to the people who flocked in from the country. On one occasion the Buddhist priests freely lent the theatrical stage of the temple of the city god for a magic-lantern exhibition, and there, amid gross scenes of idolatry, pictures illustrating the life of our Lord were shown and explained to the assembled crowd.

JAPAN MISSION.

For 230 years, in consequence of the political intrigues of the Jesuit missionaries in the sixteenth century, Japan was absolutely closed to the outer world. In 1853 the long-sealed empire began to open to European influences, and since that time the country has made most extraordinary progress in the adoption of Western civilization. Still more recent is the toleration now fully accorded to Christian effort. In 1889 a new constitution, formed somewhat on the lines of that of our own land, was promulgated. At the first General Election under this constitution, held in 1890, fourteen Christians were elected to seats in the House of Representatives; and a Christian was subsequently appointed Speaker. In 1899 new treaties came into operation by which the country was thrown completely open to foreigners.

American missionaries arrived in 1859, but for several years they could do scarcely any direct evangelistic work. In 1869, just after the wonderful revolution which restored power to the Mikado, the first C.M.S. missionary landed at Nagasaki. He also could only use quiet and indirect methods of making known the Gospel, and the few converts vouchsafed to his labours were baptized secretly. Since 1874 the Mission has been gradually extended and strengthened. In HONDO, the Main Island, Osaka and Tokio were occupied in 1874; Gifu, 1890; Fukuyama and Matsuye, 1891; Hamada, 1895; Hiroshima and Toyohashi, 1896; and Nagoya, previously worked by the Wycliffe College, Toronto, Mission, became a C.M.S. station in 1896. In SHIKOKU, Tokushima was occupied in 1888. In KIU-SHIU, Nagasaki was occupied in 1869; Kumamoto and Fukuoka, 1888; Oita, 1894; Kagoshima, 1895; Nobeoka, 1897; Kokura and Loo-choo Islands, 1898. In HOKKAIDO, Hakodate was occupied in 1874; Kushiro, 1889; Sapporo, 1892; and Otaru, 1897.

Arrangements were made by Archbishop Tait for the establishment of an English Bishopric in Japan, and Archbishop Benson nominated the Rev. A. W. Poole, C.M.S. missionary in South India, to be the first Bishop. He was consecrated October 18th, 1883. But in the mysterious providence of God he was permitted to labour for a few months only; he died in July, 1885. He was succeeded by Bishop Edward Bickersteth, of the Cambridge Delhi Mission, son of the Bishop of Exeter. In 1893, the Committee undertook, on the invitation of Bishop Bickersteth, to support two new Bishops for the southern and northern Islands respectively. Accordingly, on March 4th, 1894, and on June 29th, 1896, the Rev. H. Evington and the Rev. P. K. Fyson, C.M.S. missionaries of twenty and twenty-two years' experience in this Mission, were consecrated, the former Bishop of Kiu-shiu, and the latter Bishop of Hokkaido. Soon afterwards Bishop Bickersteth agreed with Bishop McKim, of the American Episcopal Church, upon a division of the main island into the Dioceses of North and South Tokio, Kyoto, and Osaka. Bishop Awdry was appointed to the Diocese of Osaka in 1896, and transferred to South Tokio on the death of Bishop Bickersteth in 1897, Bishop Foss succeeding him at Osaka. Bishop Partridge, of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America was consecrated to the Diocese of Kyoto in 1900.

THE year 1899 will ever be memorable in the history of Japan as that in which the people were fully admitted into the comity of nations. The country was thrown open to foreigners, without any passport restrictions, consular jurisdiction was abolished, reciprocity was established in the matter of submission to the laws of the country between Japanese abroad and foreigners in Japan, and Christianity received official acknowledgment by the Government putting forth rules for the registration of clergy, catechists, preaching-places and churches. Some misgivings were entertained by the missionary body as to the effect of the treaties which came into force on July 17th on the work of Christian educational institutions, and their fears were not lessened by the promulgation of some Government regulations containing certain clauses which were interpreted by some as practically prohibiting all religious teaching. These regulations, however, did not meet with the approbation of all the Japanese, one leading native paper maintaining that Japan would be a loser by them because she would be regarded as a non-religious country, and in December a Bill was introduced into the Diet and became law by which all religions, both indigenous and foreign, were placed on precisely the same footing; Christians were relieved from all disabilities under which they laboured; and the lands and buildings used for Christian worship, or for propagating the Christian religion, were exempted from taxation equally with Buddhist temples. These concessions were accompanied by some restrictions, for it was enacted that meetings held by religious bodies should be notified to the police twenty-four hours in advance, with the exception of those held periodically and at fixed places, of which notice only needed to be given the first time.

Effects of new treaties coming into force.

Government regulations regarding education.

All religions placed on equal footing.

Synod of Nippon Sei-Ko-kwai.

The sixth General Synod of the Nippon Sei-Ko-kwai (Church of Japan) met on April 22nd, and sat for five days. Five Bishops, as the Upper House, and some sixty delegates of the clergy and laity, as the Lower House, represented the Missions from all parts of Japan. On the first day of the session, at the suggestion of five of the leading Japanese clergy, the Synod passed a Resolution testifying to the great loss the Church in Japan had suffered through the death of the late Bishop (Edward Bickersteth) of South Tokio.

Convention of C.M.S. workers.

The ninth Annual Convention (or "Summer School") for the C.M.S. Japanese workers of the three southern Missionary Jurisdictions—Tokio, Osaka, and Kiu-shiu—was held at Arima, near Osaka, during the six days, September 13th to 19th. The Bishops of the three Jurisdictions were present, and Bishop Evington and Bishop Foss spoke at some of the meetings. The evening consecration meetings were conducted by the Rev. B. F. Buxton.

Death of Archdeacon Warren.

The Japan Mission in general, and the work of the Society in the diocese of Osaka in particular, sustained a great loss through the death of Archdeacon Warren, which took place on June 8th, 1899, as mentioned in a foot-note in last year's Report. The accident which led to his home call is thus described by his son, the Rev. C. T. Warren:—

> It was on Friday, June 2nd, that my father and Mrs. Warren left Osaka for Fukuyama, where special preachings to non-Christians were to be held on the Sunday and three following days. Everything went well till the Tuesday, when my father, in the very best of spirits, went out with Mrs. Warren and Mr. R. O. Koyama to look over the house formerly occupied by the Rev. S. Swann. Mr. Koyama opened the door leading to the cellar, and whether it was that my dear father did not realize the nature of the staircase, or that the change from the bright light outside somewhat obscured his vision, we can never know, but without warning he fell down a distance of some eight or nine feet, bruising his head in doing so. He was at once assisted to his feet, and after resting for a short time, walked back to the house occupied by the C.M.S. ladies, complaining of severe pain in his head.

Mr. Warren first went to Hong-Kong, after a course of training at Islington College, in 1864, and laboured there for four years, afterwards serving in a home parish for a similar period. In 1873 he was appointed to the Japan Mission, being the first missionary of the Society to take up his residence in Osaka. He worked in the Mission until 1887, having in the meanwhile become Secretary, but then he was compelled to retire in consequence of the serious illness of his wife. When she was called to her rest he at once rejoined the Society, and was re-appointed Secretary for the Japan Mission, which office he held until the sub-division of the Mission into four jurisdictions in 1894, when he became Secretary for the Osaka Jurisdiction. The following is an extract from the Resolution passed by the Committee when the Archdeacon's death was reported :— Committee Minute.

The Archdeacon's familiarity with the language and modes of thought of the people, combined with his strong Christian character, enabled him, under God's blessing, to take a leading share in the formation of the Constitution of the Native Christian Church in Japan. He was wise and weighty in council, ready in sympathy, a decided Evangelical Churchman, keen in his evangelistic ardour, and for many years took a large and important share in the work of translation and revision. The Archdeacon gave three of his children to Mission work in Japan, who are left to labour still for the extension of Christ's Kingdom.

The recruits of the year were :—the Rev. Vincent Hammond Patrick, of Islington College, who was admitted to deacon's orders by the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Cathedral on Trinity Sunday, May 28th, 1899 ; Miss Louisa Adelaide Galgey ; and Miss Honoria Josephine Worthington. Mr. Patrick sailed for Japan in October, and the ladies in the following month. Two other missionaries were added to the staff of the Society whose names have for some years been familiar to careful readers of the Annual Report. Miss Mary Jane Oxlad went to Hong-Kong under the auspices of the Female Education Society in 1863, and in 1877 was transferred to Japan, where she worked for eight years in Osaka, and then from 1890 in Hakodate and Esashi. Miss Emily Bishop Boulton commenced her missionary career at Osaka in 1883. Reinforcements.

I. DIOCESE OF OSAKA.

Miss R. D. Howard sailed for the Mission in October, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. H. McC. E. Price, and Miss E. M. S. Huhold in November. The Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Warren came home (the former invalided) in June, 1899 ; Mr. F. E. Hamond on medical certificate in November; and Miss K. Tristram and Miss E. S. Fox in January, 1900.

The Rev. C. T. Warren was Acting-Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of Osaka after his father's death until the arrival of the Secretary, the Rev. H. McC. E. Price.

OSAKA.

Osaka. Such Annual Letters as have been received from the workers at OSAKA are full of encouragement, for the character of the converts appears on the whole to have been satisfactory, and there were considerable accessions to the Christian religion. The Congregation of Holy Trinity Church, under the Rev. B. H. Terasawa, carried out their resolution, which was mentioned in last year's Report, to become self-supporting; and at St. Peter's, where the Rev. T. Makioka was pastor, real and even great progress was made, especially in the women's work, which was carried on by Miss K. A. S. Tristram (now at home), with the aid of the Bible-woman, who was once a strong Buddhist, then a Shinto nun, and eventually found in Christ the rest she craved. At the close of 1898 some of the workers at St. Peter's agreed to pray daily that the number of Christians might be doubled during the year under review; the prayer was more than answered, for there were twenty-six adult members of the congregation when the agreement was made, and by December thirty were counted who, as far as man could judge, had been converted during 1899. Ten women and girls were baptized, all of whom had been instructed at the meeting for inquirers held at the Bible-woman's house. Two of them were old women, whose conversion was in large measure due to the prayers of their Christian relations, and Miss Tristram writes regarding two others:—

A Bible-woman formerly a Shinto nun.

> One is a bright young wife in a good position, who, from the first day she gave her heart to Christ, has seemed to grow so steadily and rapidly. I remember so well going to her one hot afternoon in July for her baptism preparation, and finding her in the midst of packing, preparatory to house moving the next day. Of course, I did not want to stay, but she insisted I should; and we had our lesson, which that day was the story of the Crucifixion, as told in St. John's Gospel. As we drew near the end, her tears began to fall, and she was followed by two girls who were being taught with her; there was no doubt that they were deeply touched by the simple story of our Saviour's love and death for them. Afterwards I showed them the fourth commandment, which they were to learn by heart for the next time, and was beginning to explain it, when she interrupted me with, "This afternoon has taught me what Sunday means. From early morning I had not had a moment's rest, packing and directing all the time, and had got quite tired out and cross. Now for an hour God has called me away to talk to Him and hear His voice, and it has quite rested me, and made my heart at rest too. That is what Sunday is meant to be in the week, is it not?"
> Another of those who have been baptized is a lame girl, who was so eager about the meetings, that when her parents moved two miles and a half off, she started at mid-day for the evening meeting, and spent six hours on the longest walk she had ever taken in her life, in the course of which she had three painful falls. She now has the rest of her family very much on her heart.

There were also several earnest inquirers, including a shoemaker, who was first interested by one of his apprentices, who in his turn was impressed by a sermon preached by the Rev. C. T. Warren. The man took down his shrine and idols, and proceeded to close the shop on Sunday, putting up a notice-board outside on which was announced in large characters the reason for the closing. This notice-board led to another person coming forward as an inquirer during the following week. The history of another of the catechumens, an old lady, is thus narrated :—

A notice-board outside a Christian's shop.

For ten years she has been a friend of the Bible-woman, who, in her own Shinto days, tried to turn her from the errors of Buddhism, and succeeded in so far as she got her to set up a Shinto shrine opposite her Buddhist one. Since then her great longing has been to win her to the joys found in Christ. For three years she has been listening, off and on, to the old, old story, now gladly, now shutting her heart, and we can hardly say yet how firm her faith is. After one of the meetings she said she dare not go on longer without this salvation, how could she enter into it; and then and there she confessed her sins and asked God to forgive and receive her, but did not seem able to believe that He had done so. She said afterwards that sometimes what she heard only got as far as her ears, sometimes it went to her head, but that night it had gone to her heart. Her husband is very strongly opposed to Christianity, but one day said to her that after all he did not think there was harm in it, and she was old and might please herself, and be baptized if she liked. She was very bright and eager, and all seemed to be going on well, when suddenly she absented herself from the meetings, and when asked the reason, said she must give all up, the Devil was too strong for her, and her future life must be with her husband, she could not go to heaven alone. Her expression was quite changed, and she seemed almost out of her mind. This continued for some weeks, and then, one day when we went to see her after a fall, which she believed to be a punishment for giving up her faith, but which had not seemed to soften her at all, a difference of opinion occurred between her and the Bible-woman about a trifling sum of money, and things seemed to get worse. On investigation afterwards it turned out that the Bible-woman's memory was at fault. She went to confess, and apologize for her mistake; and her humility in doing this, and the talk between them, which went far into the night, were the turning-point. The dear old woman said afterwards she had never been as lonely as she was during those weeks, and she knew it was because she had got away from Christ, and she would never do it again. She seemed full of joy at having come back.

An aged convert.

The Rev. S. M. Koba continued to care for the welfare of the people of St. Saviour's, and the Rev. Y. Matsui was pastor of Jonan Church, under the superintendence of the Rev. W. R. Gray. There were few baptisms, but at the close of the year eight catechumens and twelve inquirers were under regular instruction. The preachings to the Heathen were well attended, the people coming into the room and sitting down on the mats instead of standing outside as in former days, and the whole neighbourhood appeared to be more or less ready to listen to the Gospel. The women were visited by Miss E. S. Fox (now at home), who tells of an old lady who had been invited one day to "tea and pictures," and after hearing the explanations and the earnest pleading of the Bible-woman, offered the prayer, "O God, if Thou canst help such a one as I am, please save me, please save me!" Miss Fox says of the younger of her two Bible-women:—

An old lady's prayer.

A Bible-woman's zeal.

She is simply on fire with love for souls. Tears rush to her eyes as she tells of the message rejected, and her whole face beams with a wonderful light as she speaks of one and another who has "listened gladly." She said to me once, "We must go through much to bring in souls."

At the beginning of the year the Rev. N. Fukada was appointed to the Church of the Resurrection, but he was transferred to Hamada in the summer, his place being taken eventually by Mori San, one of the catechists. The situation of the church was not good for preaching, and all attempts to get up meetings for heathen women ended in failure, though a few adults were usually present at the gatherings for children. Nevertheless, two women were baptized on Easter Day, 1899, and there were several inquirers, the fruit mostly of visiting and of individual work. Miss Fox gives an interesting account of two of them:—

Women inquirers.

I had decided one evening to ask one of the Christians to let us have the fujin kwai (women's meeting) in her house. To my disappointment, no one appeared except the two inmates of the house, the Bible-woman, and myself and a bright young school-teacher, a friend of our hostess. So the "meeting" resolved itself into a personal talk, and the young teacher listened intently, throwing in now and then an intelligent question. I happened to have with me Miss Perry's Life of Our Lord, a favourite book with the Japanese. I lent her the copy, and she told me afterwards that she had read it almost at a sitting. We began from that day to pray for her. In the summer I heard that she was leaving the school to be married, and would be living near us in the west of the city. Just about that time our own infant-school teacher was leaving and we were inquiring for another. K-San gladly accepted the post, and was at once impressed with the atmosphere of the school. She was heard to remark that it must be nice to be a Christian; there was no horrid talk in this school, and every one seemed so happy. The other teachers, especially two of them, very earnest Christian girls, were a great help to her. One day one of them had a very "straight talk" with her, and at the close begged her to go home, get alone with God, and settle the great question between her soul and Him. She promised, but for some reason put off doing so, and was ashamed to meet the teacher the next day. On the following day, however, she did what she had promised, and when next she came to school went to her friend's room and told her that she had decided for Christ. I fancy she will have difficulty with her relations. Her mother-in-law is rather a bigoted old lady, though, as K-San says joyfully, she is getting more inclined to listen. K-San is now being prepared for baptism.

Another case which comes to my mind is that of a young married woman whom I met casually at an inquirer's house. I found that her husband had been baptized at the Doshisha, but had utterly lapsed and was openly opposed to Christianity. She came to several of our fujin kwais, and at one of them, after a talk about St. Paul before Felix, when the meeting was thrown open for prayer, I heard an unfamiliar voice confessing in broken sentences that she was like that Roman governor—she had heard four years before and had rejected the message—and pleading for forgiveness. We visited her often. She is a thoughtful, well-educated woman, and had some doubts and difficulties. The doctrine of the Atonement puzzled her at first, and another difficulty came about prayer. "If, as you say," she said one day, "you often talk to God, and pray about every little thing, isn't that rather troublesome for Him?" But, one after another, the doubts vanished. It was wonderful to see the light dawn. It was a little book containing the story of a remarkable Chinese Christian which was the means, under God, of bringing her to Himself and leading her to a decision. Though in ill-health, and naturally shrinking very much from publicity, she decided to be admitted as a catechumen with three other women whom the Lord had been leading in different ways to the same point of decision. But she did not appear, and I heard that her husband, on hearing of her wish, had become very angry, and refused his consent. She was terribly disappointed, and so were we. At present she is reading by herself, and being taught by the Bible-woman, living, I hope, a consistent life and witnessing a good confession before her husband.

A difficulty about prayer.

No report of the Divinity School has been received from the Rev. G. Chapman, but Mr. F. E. Hamond (now at home), who resided within the precincts of the school, and mixed a good deal with the students, mentions that two of them conducted Sunday-schools, and that others expressed their willingness to undertake similar work. They also helped in the open-air preaching, sometimes going a few miles out of Osaka, but as a rule speaking in the streets of that city. Four of the eight native teachers at the Boys' Boarding-school, under the Rev. W. R. Gray, were Christians, the head teacher being remarkable for his "gentleness and fearlessness for the right." The school, which happily was not interfered with by the Government, had a most successful year, the number of boys rising in October to one hundred, whereas the highest previous total was fifty-four. A few cases of insubordination occurred, and one lad was expelled for stealing; but with these exceptions the tone of the school was good. Some special meetings were conducted in September by Mr. Mitani, one of the Rev. B. F. Buxton's colleagues at Matsuye, with much blessing: four of the lads were received into the visible Church, the baptism of two others being deferred because they had not sufficient courage to confess Christ before their own relations, and five more were under instruction with a view to baptism. The weekly meetings of the school branch of the Y.M.C.A. at times had an attendance of thirty, and some of the boys helped in Sunday-school work. The new Government regulations necessitated but slight alteration in the curriculum of the Girls' Boarding-school, but considerable difficulty was experienced in connexion with the Infant School. Miss Tristram, who was in charge of the school, wrote:—

Boys' Boarding school.

Straight talks to boys by a Japanese agent.

The children attending it are supposed to be between the ages of six and ten, when education is compulsory in Japan. The regulations having declared that religion and education were and ought to be kept absolutely distinct, strictly enjoined that no religious teaching was to be allowed in such schools.

Education Office regulations.

There seemed no alternative but to close the school; but, as a last resource, we went to the Education Office in Osaka, stated plainly that the chief object of the school was to teach the Christian religion, and we must close it if that were not allowed, and openly allowed, but asking if we might not carry it on. To our astonishment, they told us that, so long as the Scripture teaching was given either before or after the regular school hours, and in rooms other than those belonging to the infants' school, we should not be interfered with. The Bible lesson always has been the first given in the day, and it is very easy to take the children into the adjoining room for it, so practically the school is going on as before.

Six of the girls "graduated" in either the Japanese or the English course in the spring, one becoming an assistant-teacher in the school, three going out as missionaries' helpers, and two returning, the one to a Christian and the other to a heathen home. There was no difficulty in filling up the places of those who left, and in the autumn term the number of children on the roll rose to one short of a hundred. Eight girls were confirmed in May, 1899, and five of the pupils were baptized during the year, three being the first of their families to accept Christ as their Saviour. One of the three was particularly earnest, and was followed by her younger sister, who also was baptized, while the mother was under preparation for that rite. Her father, too, a Government official, said that he too would become a Christian if only he had the time, but he was too busy; that excuse, however, was common among the men of Osaka, who regarded the teaching as good for women, but did not really want it for themselves. When Miss Tristram came home on furlough her place was taken by Miss Hamilton, an independent worker, who for some years has been closely associated with the missionaries of the Society, and has conducted Classes for Policemen with much success, thirty-seven of the men having been baptized, and twenty-seven received as catechumens. Work among Factory Hands, of whom there are 90,000 in the city, was carried on by Miss Holland, another independent worker, with the assistance of Mrs. Chapman and other ladies, nineteen factories being visited from time to time. Evangelistic Work was maintained by the Rev. C. T. Warren, Mr. F. E. Hamond, the Rev. T. Makioka, and others, who held special English classes on three evenings in each week, two out of the two and a half hours each evening being devoted to the study of English, and the Bible being read in English and explained in Japanese during the remaining half-hour. An entrance fee of two shillings was charged, and a tuition fee of one shilling per mensem, the number of members being sixty, and the average attendance forty. About Whitsuntide a series of special missions to non-Christians was held at the ten churches or preaching-rooms connected with the Society in Osaka. The meetings at Jonan Church were broken up by the Buddhists on the first two nights, but the building was filled to the limit of its capacity on the remaining five evenings by quiet and eager listeners, some of whom afterwards gave in their names as inquirers.

HIROSHIMA AND FUKUYAMA.

The workers at HIROSHIMA had the privilege of receiving a visit in the late autumn from Bishop Foss, who, with the assistance of two native agents, conducted Special Mission services for the Heathen on four successive nights, and held a number of other meetings as well. In his report of his visit, written in December, the Bishop refers to the intended opening of a room as a soldiers' club, but the Rev. J. Williams speaks in his Annual Letter of the attempt having indeed been made, but without success, for the authorities issued an order prohibiting the soldiers from going to the Rest, or to any Christian place of worship, or to the house of any missionary, and says that after the order was promulgated not even the baptized soldiers, who had previously been regular attendants, came to the services. It was possible, however, to reach some of the men, since Miss M. Sander and Miss M. P. V. Gregg were allowed to visit the military and naval hospitals. The women evidently appreciated the meetings for Christians and inquirers and the Dorcas meetings, and a large number of people called on the ladies at the time of the New Year. There were several inquirers, including some officers' wives, and three women were baptized.

Soldiers forbidden to visit missionaries.

Miss A. Roberts was still engaged at FUKUYAMA in grappling with the difficulties of the language, but she was able to render some assistance to Miss H. S. Jackson with the work among the factory girls, and the numerous classes which were regularly held. Fresh unity and earnestness among the Christians resulted from a series of special preachings by Bishop Foss, of a similar character to those which took place at Hiroshima. Many inquirers were met with, and the prejudice against Christianity entertained by the educated classes seemed to be lessening, several masters of the middle school coming to study with the missionaries, and some of the boys, at their own request, being instructed in the English primer, and receiving a weekly Japanese Bible lesson as well. Six adults were baptized during the year, two of whom had first come to Miss Jackson for English lessons. The Bishop held a confirmation at Tomotsu, where the catechist instituted a Mission Guild or Union with two grades; the one composed of those who paid five sen a month, and promised to pray for the Heathen every Sunday, and the other of those who paid no fees, but engaged in evangelistic work on the first day of the week. No resident worker could be placed at Fuchiu, where there were twelve converts and several inquirers. The little band of Christians on the island of Iwashijima (see last year's Report, page 382) were cheered by receiving a visit from the Bishop, and yet more by the arrival of some other converts, who, though not of the Episcopal Church, yet joined with them in worship and Bible-study.

HAMADA.

Hamada. The Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Warren (now at home) were stationed at HAMADA until the beginning of the summer of 1899, when they left for England. After their departure the Rev. C. T. Warren superintended the work, visiting the station from Osaka. The Rev. N. Fukada has been placed at Hamada. No report of the work has come to hand, excepting that the Bishop visited the district and confirmed six persons.

MATSUYE.

Matsuye. The work at MATSUYE was far more extensive than would be supposed seeing that the only workers of the Society stationed there were the Rev. B. F. Buxton and the Rev. P. T. Arato, for Mr. Buxton has associated with himself several European labourers, who though not on the staff of the C.M.S. yet work in close connexion with it. As soon as possible after his return from England, Mr. Buxton held a series of "holiness meetings" for the evangelists of the neighbourhood; there were manifest tokens of blessing, some of the workers being much exercised as to whether they fulfilled the conditions of discipleship mentioned in St. Luke xiv., and being enabled to give themselves fully to God. At the concluding gathering it came out incidentally that the wife of one of the workers had been so eager to attend the meetings that she had sold one of her dresses, since otherwise lack of funds would have prevented her from being present. A similar convention, lasting for five days, took place in the autumn, from ninety to one hundred of the Christians of the neighbourhood assembling at Matsuye. Forty-two adults were baptized, nearly all the cases being of deep interest.

A former drunkard at Sakai became a "standing monument of God's saving power," and at Mitoya the Christians were very zealous, one of them, a travelling ironmonger, always carrying Bibles with him, and selling them at less than cost price, himself bearing the loss. The Bishop spent nine days in the district, and confirmed twenty-four persons.

TOKUSHIMA.

Tokushima. The missionaries at TOKUSHIMA, the Rev. R. H. Consterdine and Miss E. Ritson, were joined in April, 1899, by Miss D. S. W. Willson, and at the end of the year by the Rev. H. Woodward, transferred from Toyohashi. One of the Christians was called to his rest, a leper named Tanaka Kisoda San (Kisoda, his personal name, meaning "all great joy"), whose life for many years was one of perpetual praise and thanksgiving. He was baptized in 1886 by the present Bishop of Kiu-Shiu, and five years later presented a site for a church, and also part of the money for its erection, in the village of Honjo, near to Tomioka, where he owned much property. On September 1st he surprised his wife by telling her that now a new month had come in he thought it was going to be the beginning of new life to him, he felt so well; and so it turned out, only in a much more joyous way than he had expected, for by the evening of the next day he had entered into the joy of everlasting life. Miss Willson conducted a class for girls of the higher circles of society, which had an average attendance of ten; the children as usual proved to be little missionaries, for the report given by one girl of what she had been taught led her old uncle to come to church so that he might hear more for himself. The eldest girl in the class was baptized on Christmas Day. The ladies received visitors at their home, and thus came in contact with many cases of interest, including that of a hospital nurse, separated from her husband and children owing to a dispute with her mother-in-law about some trifle, who was ultimately led to the Saviour by a sermon on the Brazen Serpent which she heard in church.

A joyous Christian leper.

Visiting was carried on by both the ladies, Miss Willson being accompanied by a girl from the Bishop Poole Memorial School, of whom she speaks in terms of high appreciation. Instances of providential guidance were of constant occurrence. On one occasion Miss Ritson missed her way, and got into the wrong ferry boat in crossing from one part of the town to another. Retracing her steps she embarked on another boat, and there entered into conversation with a woman who was throwing prayer-papers into the water. A few days later this woman was met in the course of the visiting, listened readily to the Gospel message, and afterwards, whenever Miss Ritson went to see her, she gathered together a few of her friends in order that they too might hear the glad tidings. Five women, including the girl already mentioned, were baptized in Tokushima, and five in the villages of the neighbourhood. Much encouragement was met with at Hiwasa, a village where a Christian policeman resided, who first heard the Gospel when engaged in the identification of some stolen goods: the lady from whose house the things had been taken was a Christian, and she seized the opportunity of telling the man of the good news.

TOKIO.

Isolation of workers.

It is difficult for those who are not personally acquainted with the Mission-field to comprehend how great is the isolation of the stations even in those parts which are best manned, but some comprehension of the state of affairs can be gained from the Annual Letter of the Rev. W. P. Buncombe, who writes:—

> The standing committee of the Mission consists of Mr. Robinson and myself, and we are a long day's railway journey apart, so that all consultation has to be done by letter, the circumstances being much as if two gentlemen, one living in London and the other in Plymouth, were a committee to superintend a Mission in London, with a few out-stations in Essex, and the other stations in Devon and Cornwall, with no stations at all between.

New church at Tokio.

The new church of St. Paul's, Tokio, was first used for Divine Service on January 8th, 1899, when five men and three women were baptized; a fortnight later it was dedicated (as mentioned in last year's Report) by Bishop Awdry, who held a confirmation in it in the following March, when nineteen candidates were presented by the native pastor, the Rev. M. Tomita. A convention for the deepening of the spiritual life was held in November, English meetings occupying the first three days, and gatherings for the Japanese the following four; all the English addresses were given by the Rev. B. F. Buxton. Other efforts to help the agents and converts were made, Miss K. M. Peacocke taking a New Testament lesson every morning with the workers living in her house, and a small Christian Hostel being opened in the autumn for students connected with the Government schools. The need of something of the sort was felt to be even more urgent than the opening of schools, since the lodging-houses in the city, though numerous, were bad, and the students, being subject to but little supervision, were exposed to great temptations. The experiment which was made in the autumn of 1898 of opening a Christian Home for Girls of the upper classes may be regarded as having been attended with success, for there were seven inmates during the greater part of the year, two of whom were baptized on Advent Sunday. Miss A. P. Carr, who with Miss M. Brownlow was over the Home, writes of the converts:—

Christian Hostels.

> One of them, a graduate of the Royal School, came to us before Easter, and soon asked if she might have extra Bible-teaching, as she longed to know of God and His salvation; so since then, with the exception of the summer holidays, I have given her almost daily systematic Bible-teaching, and during this time she has given clear proof of having been led on step by step to know Him whom to know is life eternal. Just one illustration that comes before me as I write. When in our talks we came to the text, "Blessed are the peacemakers,"

I noticed she seemed very thoughtful; next day, when I went to her as usual, she immediately told me that God had been speaking to her about that text, and showing her how she might do the will of God and act "peacemaker." She added that her father had given her a ring a short time ago which she greatly prized, but her step-mother and step-sister were jealous and angry at her having such a good present; she knew that if she sent this ring to her sister, and wrote explaining the reason, it would tend to peace, so that morning she posted off her treasured ring with a letter of explanation. This fact, then the sending of a Bible to her father, the anxiety to spread the glad tidings, the desire to keep the Fourth Commandment herself and assist those under her in doing so—a difficult matter for Japanese in heathen homes,—her earnest wish to confess Christ in baptism, her repeating, "I know Christ is my Saviour, I have no doubt, I know in my heart," and her life, were and are the witness that she has become "a child of God and an inheritor of the kingdom of heaven." On her return from her holidays she brought a request from her father not to mind study, but to make hearing and understanding the things of God her chief aim. The other inmate of our Home, who received baptism on the same day, was not quite the class of girl we wanted, but having room, we took her under special arrangements. She came unhappy and longing for rest, her face sad and so pathetic that we felt we could not refuse her request to come here; at first she thought the offer of salvation too great for one so unworthy, but finally, in simple faith she accepted it.

A "peace-maker."

The last-mentioned girl was cheered on the day that she was baptized by her brother, who for some time had been studying the Bible, telling her that he too had resolved to follow Christ. The eldest girl in the Home was disappointing, but one of the younger ones, though very reserved, was accustomed to gather her class-mates at the Royal School round her in recreation time, and tell them what she knew of Christianity. It is said that they all found the Bible much more interesting than play. On Miss Brownlow being transferred to the Osaka Jurisdiction, her place was taken by Miss H. J. Worthington, one of the recruits of the year. A large number of different Classes were held. One was for ladies, who were taught English and the Bible, eight of the ten who attended being teachers in one of the leading girls' schools in Tokio; another for nurses belonging to the various hospitals, the names of thirty of whom were on the list, among them that of one of the head nurses of the University Hospital; two others were for policemen; a fifth was attended by some students from the Higher Normal School, who asked for an additional Bible-lesson; and a sixth was for members of the Y.M.C.A. Two of the latter, besides several connected with the other classes, were admitted into the visible Church during the year, and another lad, who was obliged to leave Tokio for military service, was baptized elsewhere, and actively engaged in Christian work. The Work among Women was maintained by Miss O. Julius and the other ladies by means of meetings for non-Christians and also by visiting. Two women were baptized in December who were regular attendants at one of the meetings, one of whom had lost all her children and used to weep nearly all day, but found peace in the Saviour. In connexion with the visiting an interesting case of answered prayer is mentioned by Miss Carr, who says of one woman:—

Affected by the story of Christ's sufferings.

A day or two before our first meeting each other I had been praying to be brought into contact with some who were really searching after Christ, and one day when out with my Bible-woman, two of our boarders came with us as far as a shop, where we parted, they going to make purchases, we to visit a better class family some distance off. On getting back, the girls came to tell me that the woman serving in the shop saw us all and asked if I was a missionary; if so, would I teach her? She had just been to church twice, when living in the country, and did not understand, but longed to know more. This resulted in her coming three times a week; she just drank in the glad news like a little child, praying herself earnestly each time. I shall not easily forget, when we came to the suffering and death of our Saviour, the difficulty of explaining, because she cried so, sobbing that He should have done so much for her. She knew it was in her stead and yielded herself, accepting His forgiveness, having such a grasp of her exceeding sinfulness and His exceeding love. Her earnestness, the wonderful way in which the Holy Spirit taught her the deep truths of God, has strengthened my faith and made me marvel at the way in which God does teach those who seek Him with their whole heart.

General Evangelistic Work was vigorously prosecuted. A month's Special Mission in May, 1899, was attended with marked blessing, and was followed by "a continuous succession of interested listeners and inquirers;" the three preaching-places were well utilized, and altogether fifty-nine adults were baptized in the city. Nor was encouragement lacking in the district. At Yoka-ichiba, where until 1898 there were no Christians, seventeen persons were confirmed and the same number baptized, a great impression being made by the testimony to the saving power of Christ which was borne on her death-bed by the wife of the catechist. Preaching was carried on for forty days in succession by the Christians connected with the Society combined with those of the Methodist Mission; the converts raised most of the necessary funds for the effort among themselves, and performed the work with but little help from outside. The work at Ichikawa was principally amongst the soldiers. Three of these were baptized, and three other adults as well, including a woman stone-deaf and almost blind, who was influenced by a tract which was given to her after a meeting. Miss Peacocke writes of this woman:—

Converts conduct evangelistic preaching for forty days in succession.

Soldiers baptized.

A great change wrought by conversion.

For many years practically cut off from intercourse with her fellow-men, and being of a wild ungovernable nature, she used to give way to fits of uncontrollable temper, and being a strong, big woman, was the terror of the neighbourhood from the small children up to the police themselves. Now all that is changed, and in spite of some ups and downs there is no doubt but that she is glorifying God in her home, and every one marvels at the difference in her life, and at her loving care and thoughtfulness for others.

A former Shinto priest works as a coolie.

The Shinto priest who was mentioned in last year's Report as having been baptized at Choshi had to endure much persecution. When he became a Christian his income of about twenty yen a month vanished, and he was also divorced from his wife; but he obtained employment as head of a gang of coolies working on the railway, and endeavoured to teach his fellow-workmen about the true God. The Buddhist priest, whose baptism was also recorded last year, was a great contrast, for when he found that the Mission would not use him as an agent, he went about telling people that he had tried Christianity and found that it was no good. There was a sad case, too, in the district of Boshu, where after the death of an old doctor, a baptized Christian, who unhappily was given to drink, his wife, who also was a nominal Christian, sanctioned a second funeral service with Shinto rites. Two adults, however, were baptized in this district, and five at Choshi. Mr. Buncombe made an evangelistic tour in November in the Chiba Ken, or county, which has a population of 1,200,000 souls, amongst whom there is not a single resident European male missionary.

GIFU.

Gifu. The staff of the Society at GIFU consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. Hamilton, of the Canada C.M. Association, Miss M. L. Pasley, of the New Zealand C.M. Association, who left on furlough in July, and Miss A. L. Archer. The report given by Mr. Hamilton is distinctly more cheerful than that which he sent in 1898; and he attributes the improved state of the work to the prayers which were offered in response to the appeal which he then put forth, and now asks that thanksgiving may be rendered for the blessings which the petitions called down.

Blind School. There were twelve inmates of the Blind School; one of the pupils and two of the workers in the school were baptized on Christmas Day, all of them coming from non-Christian homes. Two English classes were carried on, the main object of them, of course, being to give instruction in the truths of the Bible, and the Sunday-school was continued, but did not seem to prosper. The work among the women was hindered by there only being one Bible-woman, but the wives of the catechists did what they could to supply the deficiency by helping both with the meetings and with visiting. Two women were baptized, and four others were admitted to the catechumenate at Kano.

An unexpected result of opposition. At the end of the year some opposition was experienced, the priests of a neighbouring Buddhist temple hiring professional roughs to make a disturbance and break up the work. The result was hardly what they desired or anticipated, for the authorities sent a policeman to keep order, and he was so interested in what he heard that he came regularly to the missionaries and asked that his wife might be taught as well as himself. A change took place in the Imao district, the barrenness of which was lamented last year, for three women were received into the visible Church, a man and a woman were admitted as catechumens, and the leading timber merchant, an inveterate saké drinker, commenced to attend the meetings, and reduced his daily allowance of drink from over half a gallon to less than a gill. A meeting for women was set on foot at Ojaki, but the work there was in its infancy. Miss E. C. Payne returned to the station on her arrival from England.

NAGOYA.

Nagoya. Comparatively slow progress was made at NAGOYA, where the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Robinson, the Rev. and Mrs. A. Lea, Miss E. Trent, and Miss M. M. Young, all of the Canada C.M. Association, were at work. Some individuals were gathered into the Church, it is true, but their number was but small when compared with the population, which in the Nagoya district alone amounted to nearly one million souls. But Mr. Lea rightly points out that something more than immediate result needs to be considered. He says :—

Leavening influence. A work is going on which will certainly bear abundant fruit before many years have passed. The work to which I refer is the leavening influence of a Christian literature and Christian evangelization—the work of bringing the masses to know what is meant by "God," "sin," "salvation," and kindred terms. We are working amongst a religious people who possess no religious principles, who are without any definite ideas of those things which we are accustomed to regard as the very essentials of religion. Therefore, while we seek out the individual we must not forget that we are taking part in a work of education which, under Divine blessing, will sooner or later bear abundant fruit.

A variety of causes combined to prevent anything like rapid advance. One was the antagonism which was aroused by a missionary taking legal steps to put a stop to the "time-honoured custom of selling—for that was what it amounted to—girls and young women for immoral purposes;" and another, the persecution to which they who confessed Christ among men were exposed. When any were likely to be baptized their relations almost invariably put every obstacle they could in the way, and a case is mentioned in which about a week and a half before her baptism a young woman received an urgent message from a relative living in Tokio to the effect that she must go there on business which had a close relation to her prospects in life. The letter was followed by several others, none of which stated the nature of the business, and eventually it appeared that the only reason for them was a desire to hinder the convert from being baptized.

The Congregation, under the pastoral care of the Rev. K. Kuroki, contributed almost double the amount given in any previous year. Although thirteen adults were baptized, the majority of whom were first brought into contact with the workers through the English classes, yet removals from the district prevented any marked increase in numbers. One of these, which was held in the suburb of Habashita, was attended by from sixty to seventy young men, chiefly middle-school students, bank clerks, and policemen; fourteen of them became catechumens, and half that number were received into the visible Church. A Gospel address was given each evening at the close of the English teaching, and though most of the students were at first indifferent, if not antagonistic, they gradually changed, and one by one purchased Bibles or New Testaments. Apparently there was a second night-school for boys, from former pupils of which Miss Young received a number of encouraging letters. One was from a young man who was baptized elsewhere, and whose father, a military officer, though not a Christian himself, appreciated the good which his new religion had done his son, and charged him never to go to any place on Sunday excepting to church! This was a delightful contrast to the action of the parents of three other students, who forbade their sons to enter a Christian place of worship or have any intercourse with Christian workers, the father of one young man going so far as to confiscate the only Japanese Bible which his son possessed. The future of these classes was a matter of doubt, since the desire to learn English declined materially when it was found that the influx of foreigners which was expected to follow the opening of the country did not take place. The attitude of the members of the English class for ladies was very similar to that adopted by the men, and there was also a similar happy change in it. Miss Trent tells of a young woman whose conversion was indirectly the result of the class, and adds:— English classes.

Her younger sister, who is a member, asked me to come and see them, saying, "My family would like you to visit us." I, of course, needed no second bidding, and gladly went. This visit proved to be the first of many very happy ones in that home, for that day I met this young woman, who at that time knew but very little of the one true God. She is the eldest daughter in this home—the widow of an officer—and, as I discovered afterwards, a really consciously thirsty soul; she just seemed to drink in every word, so that each new lesson became her own, and thus she acted upon what she learnt at once. So, very rapidly, she developed into a bright and happy Christian. It was such an enjoyable afternoon's work, teaching and leading these two sisters under the guidance of God's Holy Spirit. They both received baptism on Easter evening. It was indeed a happy time for all of us. I shall never forget the joy of that moment. It seemed especially so to the elder sister, the young widow, as, with a beaming face, she said, as soon as the service was over, "Oh, teacher, I never was so truly happy in my life before!" And her life ever since has been a real testimony to this, always so bright and joyous. A "thirsty soul."

The testing came soon after, when the subject of a second marriage came up. This caused not a little anxiety at first, but after reading together 2 Cor. vi. 14, and other passages, she said, so decidedly, "Then my mind is settled; they may do their worst. I cannot marry an unbeliever and disobey God." And she has so far kept to this resolution, by God's grace, standing firm, though her family have tried in vain to get her to yield. For some time past she has had the desire to become a helper in Christian work. We have prayed a great deal about this, and waited on God to know His will; for, as she has so often said, "I do want to follow God's will in everything. I have A testing time.

given my life and all things into His hand, so I believe He will guide me." Our prayers have been answered, and God has opened the way for her most unexpectedly. She goes very soon to help Miss Carr, in Tokio.

A kindergarten was begun on a small scale, the attendance being about eighteen, including three children of missionaries. The little ones grasped the Gospel much more readily than their seniors, whose minds were prejudiced by false teaching, and often carried home the message which they heard. Thus Miss Young writes :—

Kindergarten children at home.

One little girl said to her father at breakfast one morning, "Who do you think made this rice we are eating?" Her father replied, "The farmer, of course." She corrected him at once by telling him that the farmer got the ground ready and sowed the seed, but no one but the one True God could make it grow. This was told me in an admiring way by the child's mother, when she called to see me some time ago. Then the other day, as I was calling at the house of two of the children—a brother and sister—the grandmother told me that the children, during the holidays, each morning said the prayer and sang the hymn and songs just as they do in the kindergarten every day. I find a welcome in all the children's homes—most of them being of upper-class families; but I am not at all sure that I shall be allowed to give definite Christian teaching in all of them.

Advance was made in the Evangelistic Work by opening a third preaching-place in the centre of the city, after waiting in vain for some time for the permission of the Governor. The meetings in these Mission-rooms, though necessarily on a small scale, were more satisfactory, on the whole, than the larger gatherings in the theatres, which were attended with a good deal of tumult. There was little to encourage in the district of Habashita, which is described as a "veritable valley of dry bones," and at Ichinomiya some difficulty about a preaching-place was experienced, but there were a few promising inquirers in the neighbourhood. The Sunday-school at Tsushima was hopeful, and some special meetings in the theatre attracted large numbers of people and passed off quietly.

TOYOHASHI.

Toyohashi.

There is little to report concerning TOYOHASHI, where the Rev. H. Woodward laboured until the spring, when ill-health compelled him to leave. He was cheered before his departure by witnessing some signs of progress. A bank clerk and his wife, and also a student of the Middle School, were baptized, and some young men—one of them the son of a high official—displayed a certain measure of anxiety to become acquainted with the truth.

III. DIOCESE OF KIU-SHIU.

THE Committee have the advantage this year not only of an Annual Letter, kindly written by Bishop H. Evington, but also of a general review of the work in the Diocese of Kiu-Shiu, with its population of seven millions, drawn up by a Sub-Committee of the Diocesan Conference. In both these reports emphasis is laid on the need of reinforcements. At Saga, the great centre of the rice trade, and at Kurume and Karatsu, two daimio towns, there are openings of much promise which cannot be utilized owing to the lack of agents. During the year there were only four ordained missionaries and one layman at work, and the staff of ladies was most inadequate, since five left the field for furlough in the spring of 1899, and one was compelled by ill-health to retire in the autumn, the result being that the diocese had only five ladies at full work, and three who were occupied with the study of the language. A great deal of sickness prevailed amongst the native agents, and two of the first-grade catechists left to take up secular occupations. Bishop Evington says :— Need of more workers.

There is undoubtedly a great temptation to take posts in Government offices and places of business, when a man may obtain yen 40 per mensem, as against yen 25 as a catechist, and at the same time be free from other difficulties. Alas! in many instances, this finally leads to their deserting their faith, though, of course, not always so. In this connexion it is a growing conviction that our Japanese are lacking in a true sense of what is understood by responsibility. They are ready to leave work entrusted to them, with apparently little or no concern as to how it will be carried on, and without giving any notice as to what they are about to do.

And concerning women workers the Bishop adds :—

A great need, and one difficult to supply, is that of Bible-women. We are sadly deficient in this kind of help. It is absolutely impossible to allow young women to engage in extensive visiting alone without very careful supervision, both for their own sakes and for the work's sake; and the number of Christian women of sufficient age, with the education, leisure, and social position necessary for this kind of work, is very small. In Loo-Choo work amongst women must be done by women; in the better-class houses the women are rarely seen and never appear before male visitors. It is not polite, I am told, to inquire after the welfare of a man's wife.

The Native Church made some progress, and at several stations the efforts in the direction of self-support proved successful. The difficulties in the way of the attainment of this end were neither few nor insignificant, consisting, among others, of the steady rise in the price of many of the necessaries of life, the demand for labourers, and the migratory nature of the congregations.

Ordination.

The Rev. John T. Kó was admitted to priest's orders by the Right Rev. Bishop Evington.

Miss D. I. Hunter Brown was obliged by ill-health to leave for New Zealand in January, 1899; Miss E. A. P. Sells came home in April, Miss B. J. Allen (invalided) in July, and Miss E. M. Bernau in April, 1900; Miss M. E. Allworth returned invalided to Canada in November, 1899. On the other hand, the Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Bleby sailed for Japan in November.

The Rev. A. R. Fuller is Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of Kiu-Shiu.

NAGASAKI.

Nagasaki. There were many changes in the staff of the Mission at NAGASAKI. The Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Fuller and Mrs. Harvey were at the station throughout the year, but Miss C. L. Burnside was transferred to Fukuoka and Miss E. M. Bernau left in February to take up work at Kagoshima, only to return when in June Miss B. J. Allen was obliged to go to England. The Congregation at Holy Trinity Church, which was placed under the care of the Rev. J. T. Kó after his ordination as priest, increased their subscription towards the salary of their pastor, and efforts were made to form the converts at the Shindaiku Machi preaching-place into a separate congregation, instead of drafting them into that of Trinity Church. The Sunday-school, which for some time was held at the ladies' house, was moved to the church, and placed under the superintendence of one of the Native Christians, the fears which at one time were entertained that this change would affect the attendance happily proving to be unfounded. Mrs. Harvey, on her return from furlough in December, 1898, resumed the charge of the Girls' Home. Evangelistic Work was carried on by means of various classes, not without some signs of success. Mr. Fuller says of his English Class :—

> None of those who originally joined on my return from furlough last year have ceased to attend, and additions have been made, so that now the class numbers fourteen young men. Until a month ago I gave what was practically a Sunday afternoon lecture on the fundamentals of Christianity, seeking to meet objections which occur to the keen Japanese mind. The mode of teaching has been this: first I have spoken in simple English, and then, if there were not those present who could grasp my meaning sufficiently well to enable them to interpret it to those less advanced in a knowledge of English, I repeated the gist of my remarks in the Japanese tongue. Very often I have longed for the time when I might hear from them the suggestion that they were so far satisfied with the general arguments in favour of Christianity that they desired to read the Word of God itself. That longing has met with a response, for, without a hint from myself, about a month ago a request was made that we should together read the Bible. We are reading St. Mark's Gospel in English, and adopting the mode mentioned above in giving its explanation. In addition to the Sunday afternoon class I am holding one on Tuesday evenings, when we study together the Gospel of St. Luke. Some of the youths are showing a degree of earnestness which is impelling them to pursue a course which it has been my aim to lead them to adopt. I am not content with their coming to me, a foreigner, for all their instruction. Nothing less than their coming into direct contact with a teacher of their own nationality is, I think, satisfactory. I am much gratified to know that recently three of them have been seeking further teaching from the one who will, I hope, ultimately become their pastor.

Sunday afternoon lectures.

Visiting was persevered in, and Miss Bernau, with the assistance of a Bible-woman from Tokio, went to seventy-five houses, only sixteen of which were those of Christians. Several of the women appeared to be impressed: three desired to be admitted as catechumens, but were unable to obtain the consent of their husbands; and some of those who were Christians endeavoured to witness for Christ—one in particular is mentioned as having undertaken to visit among her heathen countrywomen. An interesting work commenced at Isahaya, an out-station, fifteen miles from Nagasaki, where two or three men became inquirers, although the place as a whole is strongly Buddhist, but in the town of Shimabara there was little to encourage. The converts there in the past have been chiefly young men, but last year only a few of these were to be seen, since most had made their way to some large town or city in the hope of improving their prospects. Mr. Fuller says that the merchant and shopkeeping classes are scarcely represented in the C.M.S. congregations. The hopefulness of the district of Shimabara, as contrasted with the town, which was spoken of in last year's Report, was still noticeable, and there were large gatherings at the lectures, which were illustrated by lantern views. The adult baptisms in the Mission numbered four, and several men were admitted as catechumens, including a teacher of English in a Government school.

KAGOSHIMA.

The Rev. F. W. Rowlands was in charge at KAGOSHIMA during the year under review, and had as his colleagues Miss H. S. Cockram (now at home) until February, 1899, Miss E. M. Bernau from February to June of that year, Miss E. M. Keen from March, 1899, onwards, and Miss A. H. Wright (engaged in language study) from June. The ladies were obliged at very short notice to vacate the house which they had occupied for more than three years, and, as it was impossible at once to find them other quarters, they took possession of the house which Mr. Rowlands used, he being kindly entertained by two of the missionaries of the American Reformed Church. This involved some hindrance to the work, and another and more serious disturbance was caused by the Bible-woman getting into trouble, and the consequent arising of a spirit of "unloving criticism" among the Christians. Kagoshima

The oldest member of the Congregation was called to his rest, a man seventy-seven years of age, who had been a Christian for sixteen years, and had "childlike faith." Miss Wright took charge of the Sunday-school in the ladies' house, and a new one was commenced at the home of one of the year's converts, and had an average attendance of thirty children. Mr. Rowlands found the holding of private conversations to be one of the most effective ways of carrying on Evangelistic Work, and had interesting talks with a number of people, eight of whom, he says, appeared to be real inquirers. One was a young fellow who at first came for the sake of learning English, but afterwards commenced to attend the church services, and one day remarked, "The more I study the Bible, the more I wish to study it." At length he declared that he believed that he was "born again," but shortly afterwards he left for Tokio, and was lost sight of. Of another Mr. Rowlands writes:—

We met first during my month's stay in the country last year. He is evidently an eager student and seems to work hard. He does not come to see me very often—about once a month perhaps—but he generally stays about two hours, and we have had some good talks over God's Word. On one occasion we were reading Romans iii. 10: "There is none righteous." "Do you believe that?" I said. "What is meant by a righteous man? Is it righteous towards men?" "No—righteous towards God." "Then are Christians righteous towards God?" In answer to this we read some of those passages which show that a man becomes righteous towards God simply by faith. "What kind of faith?" he asked. "Believing that Christ died instead of you." I tried to impress on him that this is the entrance to true blessing. We read the story of the Prodigal Son. He seemed much impressed, and said he would like at once to return to his Heavenly Father. I asked him if he would kneel down and tell God what he had now told me; but before doing so I tried to tell him what would be implied in becoming a Christian, i.e., obeying God's commands, and mentioned observance of Sunday. He replied that he quite intended to obey God, and after a while would certainly go to church on Sunday, but at present he could not, because he was working for an examination and must study on Sunday. When pressed, he said he supposed God's commands were more important than his examination, but from this point his manner changed. God was showing him that to become a Christian meant a surrendered will, and he was not prepared for that.

Counting the cost.

"Must he then give up all his ambitions, give up school, give up all idea of getting on? Was it never right to seek one's own profit? If he pleased God, would He help him to realize his ambitions?" and many other questions in the same strain. He went away saying that he would think about it carefully and come to talk about it again. He has a New Testament, and marked the passages we read. Since then he has been once or twice, but space will not allow of more details. All one can say is that he seems really to be weighing what appear to him to be the losses and gains.

"You have no idea how difficult it is for me to believe.

A third case was of a well-educated and refined gentleman, who said that he was searching after the truth, but could not believe in the existence of God, and added: "You have all your life been brought up to believe in it, but with us it is just the reverse. You have no idea how difficult it is for me to believe that there is a personal God." A fourth, a schoolmaster, believed that there is a God, but considered prayer to be a vain superstition; while a fifth, when asked whether he ever thought about his soul, replied, "We hardly ever think about such things." There were some disappointments among those who, as far as could be judged, embraced the truth, which served to demonstrate the importance of making the meaning and necessity of repentance very clear. Only two adults were baptized, the one being a man who for two years was taught by Miss Hunter

Brown and Miss Cockram, but had been kept from baptism by his relatives, and the other a woman, who with her three children was received into the visible Church at the beginning of November. Miss Keen says of the latter:—

A poor but earnest convert.

She is indeed one of the joys in our missionary work this year. A poor, tumble-down, one-roomed little cottage, a not over-earnest or over-industrious Christian husband, three little children to feed and clothe with scanty products earned from making umbrella-frames and bird-cages—this is her home history! In striking contrast to this poverty stands her soul history. I have not yet met in Japan a woman of simpler faith and joy. She is practical too. Out of our Christian women it is she who has lent her room for a children's meeting on Saturday afternoons, and recently, again, in the evening for a women's meeting; it is she who goes round and invites the neighbours to come, and after I have finished talking goes over it again in the Kagoshima dialect in case any of the older women have not understood. After the first meeting I thanked her for the use of her room, and she replied, "I didn't lend it to you, but to God; so you needn't thank me."

"Now we are Jesus' children."

Two or three days ago I was having the usual weekly Bible-lesson with her, and in telling me how happy she was about her children's baptism, she said, "They have got so gentle, and Hideshiko said the other day to the two younger ones, 'Now we are Jesus' children we mustn't sleep late in the mornings after we're called,' so they get up now as soon as I tell them, and I am sure God has blessed them!"

The Work among Women required much patience, for many who were willing to accept Christ as their Saviour were prevented by their relations from publicly confessing their faith by baptism. Miss Bernau in her Annual Letter gives two instances:—

Opposition of relatives.

One woman, a feeble cripple, had been listening to teaching for some months before I went to Kagoshima. Though her powers of comprehension were very limited, her simple childlike faith was most touching. She told me one day that she very much wished to be baptized. We advised her to confess this desire to her relations. She promised to do so, and arrangements were being made for her to be admitted as a catechumen during the next week, when we heard that she had been sent away into the country, and would not return to Kagoshima for some time. We afterwards discovered that the relations with whom she was then living were bitterly opposed to Christianity, and that she had been sent away to remove her out of the reach of Christian influence. Again, a young girl of seventeen, who had been coming for some time for English and Bible-study, also told me that she wished to become a Christian. However, she came to me the next day with tears in her eyes to say that her father would not hear of such a thing, and was so angry that he had decided to take her back with him to Tokio in two days' time. She gave me her address, and I gave her the addresses of the C.M.S. ladies in Tokio, and begged her to go and see them if she could. I had a long and interesting letter from her only last week, in which she says that she reads her Bible and prays every day.

Visiting the women.

English lessons for grown-up girls of the upper classes, followed by Bible lessons in Japanese, were taken by Miss Keen, who also conducted a meeting for non-Christian women, while the Bible-woman visited the people in their own homes. The names of some forty women were on the list of those visited; among them an old lady who sometimes seemed to be almost persuaded, but was held back by her unwillingness to part with some choice little bowls for the offerings to the household gods, and the mother of a backsliding Christian son, who made filial piety an excuse for not coming to church. Another of those visited was a lady who, when Miss Keen first went, seemed to imagine that a wild beast was at her door, but who gradually melted, and eventually herself called to see the missionary at her own house.

On the night of August 14th, Kagoshima suffered from a typhoon said to be the worst experienced for sixty years. Some idea of its severity may be gathered from the fact that over 16,000 houses were completely destroyed, 6,000 more half-ruined, over 1,000 fishing-boats wrecked, and 113 people killed and many injured. Mr. Rowlands himself had a narrow escape. The church happily was not damaged, and though the houses of some of the Christians were wrecked, no one was seriously injured. In one or two of the poorer districts scarcely a house remained standing.

Loo-Choo Islands.

The Rev. S. Ushijima was stationed at Nafa, the only port in the Loo-Choo Islands, where besides the Natives some 3,000 Japanese were resident. From Nafa he visited Shuri, the old capital, where a number of the Samurai reside, and another inland town at some distance. The work at these latter places was carried on among a people said to be almost devoid of religious sentiment. The number of Christians was increased, partly by the return of a backslider and the arrival of converts from other districts, and partly by the baptism by Mr. Rowlands of six adults and three children on Christmas Day. Both the Japanese and Loo-Chooans evinced a readiness to listen to the truth, and in December there were twenty inquirers, some of whom have since been baptized, either Loo-Chooans of the middle or upper classes or Japanese officials. The work was hindered by the lack of a Bible-woman, and disappointment was caused by a Native of the islands, who for two years had been trained at the Divinity School and afterwards studied under Mr. Fuller, engaging in secular work in Tokio.

FUKUOKA AND KOKURA.

"Much work but little progress" at Fukuoka.

"There is a great deal of hard earnest work, but there is very little progress," is a statement made in the report of a Canadian Society labouring in Japan, which the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson endorses, and he adds:—

> Like a ship whose engines are going full speed whilst the register indicates a long distance travelled, but the log shows that there is a "slip" which largely nullifies the expected gain, so it is in too many directions in our Missions generally. There is a constant lapsing or drifting away from our ranks. This fading away of the Christianity of individuals and families is one of the saddest features in the story of Missions in Japan. Whatever estimate be made of the total number of Protestant Christians in the country, there must be at least half as many more who, for a longer or shorter time, have professed themselves members of some Church and then fallen away. Many of these are children, who are lost to Church membership owing to the defection of their parents.

At the same time the retrospect is not altogether sad, for the last four years have witnessed an increase of sixty in the number of baptized Christians at Fukuoka, and of twenty-two in that of communicants. Opposition in one form or another was felt on all sides, and the Native Christians were called upon to suffer some persecution. Mr. Hutchinson gives the following instances:—

Social persecution.

A landlord, bitterly opposed to Christianity, has raised the rents of three houses inhabited by Christians or catechumens sixty per cent., whilst the heathen tenants of neighbouring houses are unmolested. An elderly lady is threatened that if she continues living as a Christian, her orphan grandchildren shall be deprived by the head of the family of educational advantages. A prison warder is so laughed at for thinking of becoming a Christian that he fears to take the decisive step. A convert, recently baptized, writes from the military depôt, which he has had to join, earnestly asking for our prayers that he may be kept faithful amid opposition, since all around him are unbelievers.

The names of forty-three heathen children were on the roll of the Sunday-school held at the house of the lady missionaries, which had an average attendance of fifteen; a smaller school existed in one of the suburbs, and meetings for children were held periodically in Fukuoka and a neighbouring village. The general Evangelistic Work was engaged in by various methods, amongst which must be mentioned the holding of classes, which in Fukuoka, as in other places in the Japanese Empire, is so distinctive a feature of the missionary enterprise. Mr. Hutchinson frequently had nineteen or twenty students at his English New Testament class, and was cheered by finding that a former member of it, a schoolmaster, was among those admitted as catechumens at Nagasaki. Another class was that for six officials of the police court. Work among Women was carried on by Miss F. M. Freeth, with whom Miss C. L. Burnside and Miss G. S. Stevenson were associated for the latter and former parts of the year respectively. One of the Bible-women was absent from the station for several months, called away to Corea by the sickness of her daughter, but the lack of trained workers was in some degree supplied by the zeal of many of the women converts, who realizing their responsibility as witnesses for Christ, endeavoured to bring their friends and neighbours to the knowledge of Him. That this was a stimulus both to prayer and Bible-study is proved by the remarks which some of the women made to Miss Freeth, for one said, "As soon as we begin to try to influence others, we find out how impossible it is for us to reach their souls, and that we must pray about them;" and another, who asked for help in the study of her Bible, observed, "We must know it ourselves before we can teach others." Some seventy non-Christian houses were regularly visited, and it was anticipated that on the return of the senior Bible-woman about fifty more would be open to the workers. Thirty-three persons, seventeen adults and sixteen children, were baptized, as compared with twenty-five in 1898. This number included a man, aged thirty-one, who used to be much opposed to the Gospel, but who on coming to Fukuoka found that several of his acquaintances had become Christians. Two of them made his conversion a subject of prayer, and laboured to teach him, with the result that he became an earnest believer. Another of the conversions is to be directly attributed to prayer, for Miss Freeth writes :—

A whole night devoted to prayer for a daughter's conversion.

In one family here the only member who was not a Christian was an elderly woman, who was a very strict Buddhist, and would not allow any one to speak to her about Christ. She had been ill for some years; and as her life was becoming more precarious every day, her old mother, who was very anxious about her, devoted the whole of one night to earnest prayer to God, asking Him to soften her daughter's hard heart. Early the next morning her daughter sent for her mother and told her that she realized how wrong she had been and felt her need of a Saviour, and wanted to hear about Jesus Christ. She only lived for ten days afterwards, but every day she eagerly drank in all they could tell her of her Saviour's love. Mr. Hutchinson baptized her, and she died fully trusting in Him against whom she had so long hardened her heart.

And of some converts baptized on the last Sunday in July, 1899, when eight adults and three children were received into the body of Christ's Church, it is stated :—

Converts.

The parents and grandmother of the children were largely influenced by Miwa San and his wife in becoming Christians. One lady is the wife of an officer in Formosa, who gave his consent in a letter to her being baptized, but has not yet sanctioned the baptism of their child. She and two aged women, sixty-four and sixty-six years respectively, are the results of the work of Miss Freeth and the Bible-woman. Yano San's recently-married wife is another, won by the godly conversation of her husband; and one more has become a Christian owing to her coming to live with Christian relatives.

The number of inquirers is not specified, but Mr. Hutchinson speaks of a certain prison official, the son of a catechumen, who had an attack of blood poisoning in the head, so that his life was despaired of by the doctors, and says :—

"The believers in Christ prayed for me."

He had never shown any interest in religion, but the Christians united in fervent prayer for him, and his life has been spared. Calling upon him last Monday, he told me that God had heard the prayers of His people. "Yes," said his mother, "it is just the prayers of the Christians that saved his life." He went to see one of the doctors who had pronounced his case hopeless. "Why," said the doctor, "you ought to be dead." "Quite so," said he, "but the believers in Christ prayed for me, and God heard and answered their prayers." He is now an earnest inquirer.

Nine candidates were confirmed at Oyamada, one of the out-stations: Miss Freeth and Miss Burnside stayed there for a few days in September, and were successful in getting into touch with the people, the attendance at the magic-lantern meetings being about 200. The history of the place, it will be remembered, is a sad one, for some years ago there were a number of Christians, a church, and a catechist, but many of the Christians fell away, and the church was blown down during a typhoon, and not rebuilt. At Kurume the congregation was increased by two families which removed from Fukuoka, and there were two catechumens.

To his other occupations Mr. Hutchinson added literary work, and during the summer saw through the press Japanese translations of Dale on the Atonement, Lightfoot on the Christian Ministry, The Gospel and another Gospel, and the Thirty-nine Articles, with Notes and References. Translations.

A rather dispiriting report of the work at KOKURA and in the immediate neighbourhood is furnished by the Rev. J. Hind. He himself was laid on one side for two months by a mild attack of typhoid fever, and there was much sickness among the native workers. The people, too, were hard to influence, and Mr. Hind says of them :— Kokura.

> They are mostly engrossed in trade—chiefly in coal. I think I am right in saying that, low as commercial morality is in Japanese trade generally, it is worst in the coal trade. Vast numbers may be described as unwilling to come to the light lest their deeds may be reproved. In Kokura this holds true to a certain extent; but there are also additional reasons. The place has a reputation of indifference to religion, which dates back many generations, and is consequently not merely an opposition to Christianity. It is a town far behind others in enlightenment, and many crude ideas about Christian methods (such as using human eyes for medicine, &c.) are still held by the poorer people. There is also more antagonism to foreigners than is found in some parts.

Mrs. Hind conducted a children's meeting every week, and looked forward anxiously to the advent of the two ladies appointed to the station, and of a probationer Bible-woman. For a time an English class for prison warders was carried on, but after the summer the men ceased to attend, so efforts were concentrated on reaching some of the 5,000 soldiers who had their headquarters at Kokura, and who on the completion of their three years of conscription service would be scattered all over the country. The important towns of Wakamatsu and Moji did not afford much encouragement, though the congregation in the former increased their contributions towards the support of their pastor. At one place in the Kotaki district a number of mining officials were inquiring about Christianity.

KUMAMOTO.

After the departure of Miss H. Riddell in the spring of 1899, the missionaries at KUMAMOTO were the Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Brandram, Miss G. Nott, and Miss A. H. Wright. The last-named removed to Kagoshima for language study in June, 1899, her place being taken by Miss G. S. Stevenson. The native pastor, the Rev. K. Nakamura, was called upon early in the year to suffer the loss of his wife, who is said to have been "a most beautiful and Kumamoto.

consistent character." Although there was no marked advance in the work, yet some progress was manifest. The Sunday morning service was well attended; the contributions of the Christians were larger than in 1898; the Daily Scripture Reading Union had a membership of over seventy; the usefulness of the Daily Prayer Union was increasingly felt; and the Sunday-schools, the one for Christian and the other for heathen children, went on steadily. There was a Young Men's Christian Association in each of the large city educational institutions, the members of which met every week for the study of the Bible at the house of one of the Christian masters. This was regarded as very remarkable, and Mr. Brandram says that a few years ago it would have seemed an impossibility. Two of the young men themselves commenced Bible-readings in families where otherwise but little use was made of the means of grace.

Y.M.C.A. in the city schools.

Manifold operations were connected with the Work among Women, and the missionaries sought by means of a Bible-class in their own house, Bible lessons in the homes of the people, lantern meetings, sewing meetings, and the like, to build up in their most holy faith those who were already Christians, and to win for Christ those who had not yet accepted Him as their Saviour. It was found to be harder to reach the women than the men; many of them appeared really interested, but yet there were no very definite results, although one young woman was admitted as a catechumen, and two others were most anxious to be enrolled. After the Treaty Revision many of the younger women displayed a desire to learn English, and accordingly a class was formed for their benefit, in the hope, of course, that by its means they might be influenced in spiritual matters.

The Leper Hospital had twenty-five in-patients when Miss Nott wrote her Annual Letter, eighteen of whom were Christians and three catechumens. Four of the lepers were confirmed in the course of the year, and five of them baptized, and it is said that their changed lives proved the reality of their faith.

Ten adults were baptized besides the lepers who have just been mentioned. One young man appeared to be particularly earnest, and spoke of his readiness to sacrifice his worldly prospects and give himself to God for the work of the ministry.

OITA AND NOBEOKA.

Oita.

The changes in the staff which characterized the other stations in the diocese of Kiu-Shiu were not unknown at OITA, the capital of a province containing a million souls, where Miss B. Nottidge was the only missionary to reside throughout the whole of 1899. The work was supervised by the Rev. J. B. Brandram, of Kumamoto, and Miss E. M. Keen and Miss M. E. Allworth, of the Canada C.M. Association, spent a few months in the town. In addition to the Sunday-school at the Mission-house, one was commenced at the preaching-place, and had an average attendance of from thirty to forty, while many passers-by who stayed to listen for a while were reached more or less effectually. Two members of the English class for girls were under instruction with a view to baptism, and three others asked for special teaching in order that they might be admitted as catechumens; much encouragement, too, was vouchsafed in connexion with a class for students which Miss Allworth conducted during the few months that health permitted her to remain in Japan. Considerable numbers of people gathered together at the open-air meetings both in the town and in the villages, and several of the converts rendered assistance in this branch of the work. A new out-station was opened at Taketo, a town between Kumamoto and Oita. When Mr. Brandram was there in the spring of 1899 he met a gentleman after one of the services who introduced himself as a Native of the place who had recently returned from America where he had embraced Christianity. His testimony is said to have been very helpful.

Nobeoka.

Nobeoka is one of the stations where the retrogade movement which has been felt all over Japan was painfully apparent. Mr. Brandram says:—

A hopeful beginning.

It was my lot to begin the work at Nobeoka. The scene comes vividly back to my mind. I rode past the very school at which Mr. Painter now teaches at dusk on a Saturday afternoon, in search of a Mr. Fujita, a convert of Mr. Lloyd's, who had so shown his faith in Christ as to have been instrumental in leading seven of the students at this school to place themselves under his instruction for baptism. The next day we met for worship, and after examination I baptized the seven young men. Soon a catechist was placed there, and for several years things went on very well, and some thirty Christians were baptized. I really hoped that we should have a strong Church there. Then the tide began to turn—Mr. Fujita left; others went to Tokio or Osaka; persecution began, and now of those left in Nobeoka only three show any signs of real faith. I do not think we baptized hastily, but whether we did or not, things are very sad indeed there now. Special difficulties have to be contended with. Nobeoka is a small town, and every one knows every one else, and the Christians' lives have not shown the excellency of Christianity.

Retrogression.

Mr. S. Painter, in his Annual Letter, fully bears out this melancholy report. The only people who attended the services regularly were a deaf old man, his blind wife, an old lady unable to read, and another lady, but two men living seven and ten miles away respectively came in occasionally for Holy Communion. Both of the catechumens mentioned in last year's Report (page 398) fell away; but one young man, an ex-student, after being instructed for some time, was admitted to the catechumenate by Mr. Brandram, and there were also three or four rather doubtful inquirers, who attended the services with regularity. Mr. Painter continued to teach English at Viscount

A very small congregation.

Naito's school, and through his connexion with it gained considerable influence in the town. The Viscount presented him with a handsome embroidered satin tablecover as a sign of his appreciation of his services. Some of the boys of the school came to the Mission-house for Bible-study, but the number doing so was smaller than in 1898. One of the masters, too, visited Mr. Painter, and sometimes attended the services; but though he endeavoured to influence his friends by talking to them about Christianity, home difficulties kept him from becoming a convert. The case of another master, whose parents were strong Buddhists, was very similar. A new house in one of the main thoroughfares was obtained as a preaching-place, but no results of the work there were seen, and the catechist, a young man who for two years had worked at Kumamoto, was in consequence rather dispirited. The hold which custom had over the people was very strong, and the festivals, such as those which are described in the following extract, were more to their taste than any teaching about the Saviour and His love. Mr. Painter writes:—

Honouring a deified ancestor.

Last month, the 300th anniversary of an old Daimio, a deified ancestor of Viscount Naito, was held. The Shinto ceremony was conducted with much style for a place like this, and occupied three hours, in pouring rain. The following day all the schools for miles round were marched in to do obeisance at his shrine. A handsome memorial stone and a pair of stone lanterns had been erected, while the whole place kept holiday for two days in his honour. Special dancing-parties from the town, among them some any but respectable characters, gave special performances, while two of the keepers of disreputable houses were appointed judges in the fencing competitions—so lightly is vice regarded here. As I write the festival of the town-god is being kept; his shrine has just been re-roofed with copper and otherwise set in order, at a cost, I am told, of at least 2,000 yen (£200). Revelry and feasting seem to form the chief part of this festival, and drunken men are in all the streets.

Mr. F. E. Hamond, of Osaka, had a narrow escape from drowning while on a visit to Mr. Painter, who was instrumental in saving his life.

IV. DIOCESE OF HOKKAIDO.

Progress of the work.

It is only twenty-five years since the Society began work in Yezo, the northern island of Japan, and the history of the operations in that portion of the Mission-field serves to emphasize the great importance of not being weary in well-doing. For the first fourteen years there was little visible fruit of the labours of the missionaries; then the tide came, and for the next few years progress was very rapid, till the Christians numbered one thousand; then for a time the increase was less marked, so that the number of Christians on the books in April, 1899, was not more than 1,595. It is interesting also to note that it was not until 1885 that the first Ainu was baptized;

four years later there were only three Ainu Christians, but in the year 1893 they numbered 368, and five years later still 830. The race, as is well known, has for some years been gradually dying out, and numbers at present only 16,000 souls, but the Japanese Government contemplates taking some steps for the protection of this interesting aboriginal people. Whether or no these steps result in the attainment of the desired object, there can be little doubt that the Ainu language will soon become a thing of the past, and will not be needed for religious instruction excepting in the case of old people. Although immigration into Yezo from other parts of the empire materially lessened during the year, yet it is said that the Japanese are rapidly settling in the Ainu villages, and taking up portions of the land, and it is to be trusted that some protection, which will include general education, may be vouchsafed by the authorities to the downtrodden remnant of the aboriginal population.

Ordination.

On September 24th, the Right Rev. Bishop Fyson admitted Mr. Matsutaro Ito to deacon's orders at Hakodate.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Nettleship sailed for Japan in October, 1899, and the Rev. D. M. Lang in January, 1900. Miss L. Payne came home in February, 1900.

The Rev. W. Andrews is Secretary of the C.M.S. work in the Diocese of Hokkaido.

HAKODATE.

Hakodate

In addition to the Bishop and Mrs. Fyson, there was a strong body of European missionaries resident at HAKODATE, a city of 70,000 souls, where the work was carried on during the year under review by the Rev. and Mrs. W. Andrews, Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Colborne, Miss A. M. Tapson, and Miss M. R. Jex-Blake. At the close of 1899 they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. C. Nettleship on their return from England.

Opening of a new church.

September 24th was a memorable day in the history of the Mission, for then a new church, capable of seating 300 persons, was opened. The church is the fifth to be built in Hakodate since the commencement of the work there in 1874. The first church was burned; the second was pulled down on account of some trouble connected with the land; the third was removed from its original site and enlarged; and the fourth, after ten years, was found to be too small. The Christians contributed forty pounds towards the erection of the new building; this is for them a considerable sum, seeing that many of the people are only earning £2 a month, and some only £1, and that they regularly contribute £30 per annum towards the salary of their pastor and other expenses. At the first service in the new church Ito San was ordained deacon, eight years to the day since his baptism in his native village. There were sixty-five communicants after the Ordination Service, and in the afternoon eight adults were baptized. Mr. Ito held Bible-readings for the Christians in their own homes on four days in each week, and a variety of other meetings took place regularly in the parish room in the basement of the church, which is capable of seating four hundred persons. The Bishop managed the Training Institute for Catechists, which had but a small number of students, only one new candidate being admitted during the year; and the Sunday-school was conducted by Miss Tapson amid some disappointment, owing to an unaccountable falling off in the attendance. There was much to cheer in connexion with the Centenary Girls' Home, which was built by a Christian carpenter for less than the sum originally named, and in a shorter time than that originally specified. Miss Tapson, who was assisted by Miss Jex-Blake, speaks appreciatively of the Matron, who first came to be helped, but soon proved herself to be a helper, and says of her:—

Girls' Home.

> She is one of the bravest little women I have ever met. With a keen capacity for suffering, she can hide her own grief, and enter into every one's interests. Her heart had suffered so much, the love of God soon entered in, and she was baptized at the opening of the new church with seven others. A little while before she was baptized her one fear was that she still loved her husband a little more than God.

The number of girls in training was seven: one, who is described as "of strong character and at first very self-willed," was at her own earnest desire prepared for baptism; another, was a young hospital nurse from the Otaru Church; and two others, aged fifteen and twenty respectively, were received at the special request of their non-Christian relations, who, for different reasons, were anxious about them. Twenty pupils were lost to the Girls' School by the regulations of the Educational Department, which was understood to prohibit the teaching of Christianity to children under ten years of age, but it was hoped that the stringency of the regulation would soon be relaxed. The Ainu Boys' School, with its twenty-five lads, which was supervised by Mr. Andrews in the absence of Mr. Nettleship, was encouraging, for there was a "steady advance in knowledge and in general good training, moral as well as spiritual." English Classes, formed with the design of reaching officials, such as clerks in the banks and the Custom House, were held four nights in the week, a fee of one dollar a month being charged, and had a regular attendance of about twenty.

The Medical Work was under Dr. Colborne, who has received a licence from the Japanese Government, which enables him to practise freely in any portion of the Emperor's dominions. He found that many of the people were living in the most miserable surroundings, and thus describes what he calls a "beggars' hotel":— A "beggars' hotel."

In these very cheap inns, where only shelter and firewood are provided by the inn-keeper, there congregate very poor people, beggars, and some lepers, &c. They keep themselves warm in the severe winter by picking out the glowing coals that fall in the wood fires, placing these inside boxes, and holding these boxes near their person. Outside these houses there are sometimes lean-to erections, constructed of mats and odds and ends of building material, in which herd together a still lower stratum.

The doctor visited some of these places from time to time, and received the thanks of the police for doing so. On one occasion he was accompanied by a policeman who lodged with the missionaries in order that he might learn about Christianity, permission to do this being accorded him by the authorities as a special favour. Dr. Colborne says that he was obliged to remonstrate with this man because he was so diligent in his study of the Bible that he did not give himself sufficient time for rest. There were many deeply interesting cases which showed that the Medical Mission was a valuable evangelistic agency, for during the year thirty people were baptized as a direct outcome of the work, and several who died without actually being received into the visible Church afforded good grounds for hope that they had really accepted salvation through Christ. A few only of these cases can be described here. Mrs. Colborne, who was closely associated with her husband in his labours, writes:— A policeman's interest in the Bible.

One young man from the higher classes, who with a few other friends came here twice a week to Dr. Colborne's Bible-class, only lived a fortnight after he decided for Christ, dying suddenly one night, just two days after his baptism, of some long-standing heart trouble. But during that short fortnight his shining, happy face spoke volumes to his friends and companions in the office. "We all were surprised," one of these said to us; "we were all wondering what it was?"

Another young man, who came here first last November to be told "the story of Christ," not for medicine, and who became also truly converted and anxious to work for his Master, asked if he might teach English to the lads in this district in our room below twice a week, so that they might hear the Gospel afterwards. A mile and a half twice a week, sometimes three times, over bad roads and often in bad weather he would come, hungry for a Bible lesson or to teach those lads, with no remuneration.

On a recent Sunday it was very interesting to hear a little group of the relatives of some who had been called away talk to each other about the way in which their Christian friends had died. "So happy, not a bit of fear or anxiety; only longing to go to God, and praying to the Lord Jesus to take them quickly; so different from the death Buddhists died," they said "to whom the future was all dark." Then one went on to describe the vision her mother had had of Jesus Christ. "Clear these things away from my bedside," the mother had said; "Jesus Christ is here, all in white; I can see Him quite plainly. He is holding my hand in His and drawing me up." In vain the patient was told there was no one there. She persisted that she could see Christ close by her, and the delighted smile on her face made the other occupants of that room feel that that unseen Presence was a reality. Impressed by peaceful death of Christians.

But we rejoice more in the lives of some of our converts than in their deaths, when we see the earnest, business-like way they go to work to win their friends and relatives to Christ. Night after night one of those lately confirmed visits a friend of his, his object being "somehow or other to 'find' him"—referring to a talk I had had lately with him on seeking and finding the lost sheep. The friend referred to has given up his former business, which was bad but very profitable, for another one which is good but unprofitable. He and his wife and a friend living with them are earnest inquirers, I might say believers, but the old woman of seventy-one, who rules the household, and is a terror to it, is a bigoted Buddhist, and they have not either of them the courage to oppose her. They, however, beseech me to talk to her specially, and when I do go there it is a sight to see them all sitting round the hibachi (stove), their faces staring beseechingly into hers, to see if any word of mine strikes home, and if there is any sign of relenting in her hard heart, or penitence for her sins. "Do please go in at the narrow gate; do please go in quickly," the young daughter-in-law pleads. "We want to walk in that road to life." Then follows silence, whilst the poor old woman moves uneasily about, as though a great struggle were going on within her, and at last some one sees her tears dropping slowly on the ground.

A lucrative business given up for Christ's sake.

Even a single proclamation of the message of Salvation seems in at least one instance to have been the means of blessing, for Dr. Colborne mentions a little girl in the last stages of consumption to whom he was called, and who after hearing once only of the Saviour said, "When I am dead you must not take me to the temple; I am going to God's happy country." Mrs. Colborne says of some of the inquirers:—

"I am going to God's happy country."

> Three are quite earnest and decided; one well-to-do young man, a printer, told me that he had been from nineteen years of age a very wicked, bad man, had to leave Tokio and come up to Hokkaido, but until he read the Gospel I gave him and listened to the teaching he never realized he was a sinner. "Those words in that book," he said, "hit me, and I knew in my heart I was a sinner." He prayed earnestly for forgiveness, and was quite happy afterwards.
>
> It was quite a sight to see another inquirer, a man, read the Gospel for the first time. I was reading with him St. Mark vi. about the storm. Not long ago we heard another young man say, when reading that, "I can't believe Christ did any such thing: I don't believe it." This one, whose heart was evidently prepared before, causing all the difference, said, bowing his head reverently, "He is God;" and at the close of the chapter, deeply moved and bowing again, raising the Gospel respectfully to his forehead, said, "I thank God for this."
>
> Another woman who came this morning was one I had taught a little some weeks ago. She had burnt all her idols and ancestral tablets, and taken that which contained them back to the temple, and wants to be a catechumen. "Why are you bringing these back here?" asked the Buddhist priest. "Because I don't believe in them now," she answered.

Idols burnt.

Some of the converts brought considerable suffering upon themselves by their earnestness in endeavouring to win others. One woman in particular, who had had her head injured with tongs, and some of her hair torn out by relatives whom she visited and told of the story which had brought such gladness to her own heart, remarked afterwards, "If this had happened before I was a Christian I should have been very angry, but as it was, I said nothing, but just prayed to God to help me." An in-patient department was added to the Medical Mission early in 1900.

Evangelistic Work was carried on by the eighteen native agents at the out-stations, with their four church buildings and twenty preaching-places. At Toshi-betsu the flood of 1898 was succeeded during the year under review by one equally disastrous, every family in the place suffering to a greater or less degree, and the pastor with his wife and children having to be rescued in a boat from the roof of their house. Since 1891 four villages have been occupied, each separated from the others by a distance of about fifty miles, and these now contain in all fifty-six Christians. A native worker has been placed in each village, and two churches and two schools for Ainu children have been erected.

Once while itinerating in the district near Otsu, Mr. Andrews held an informal service in a barn belonging to a Christian farmer, twenty-five miles from any Christian community. There was rush matting on the floor, the shelves and beams were loaded with farm produce, a gun stood in one corner, and potatoes, beans, and other vegetables on the floor, while a dog with his nose on the door-sill surveyed the scene. Amid these surroundings two adults and five children were baptized, and the owner of the barn remarked, "It is like the upper room in the Acts: let us have a Pentecostal blessing too." Of a man who was baptized at another of the out-stations, Mr. Andrews says:— "Like the upper room."

> He was first brought to think of Christianity when in affliction. In the spring of the year he fell from his horse and put his wrist out of joint. He said the pain was intense, and he suffered very much. This is what he told me of his experience then: "I saw then for the first time that Buddhism could not give me any relief in such a trouble. As I lay in bed, suffering very much pain, it occurred to me to pray. I did not know to whom to pray, but I thought I would pray to God, if there were one. After I had prayed to God for help there came to my mind what a Christian catechist had told me, that there was only one God. I then prayed again to this One God. I received a great deal of comfort and became very happy, but knew nothing about Christianity. When I got well all these happy feelings went away, but, fortunately, the catechist got hold of me and explained to me about Christianity, and now I am determined to be a Christian. I believe in Christ, and will be His faithful servant to the end."

One or two disappointments were experienced. The two boys mentioned in last year's Report as being near to decision for Christ (pages 401, 402) never came forward for baptism, and there was little encouragement in connexion with the efforts to reach the women. But enough has been said to amply justify the statement which is made that "the ploughing has been done, and there never have been before during the past eighteen years such good opportunities of reaching the people."

SAPPORO.

The staff of the Society at SAPPORO, where the Rev. J. Batchelor is the superintending missionary, was strengthened by the addition of Miss M. J. Oxlad, who was mentioned in last year's Report. The total number of names on the Church books was 1,119, and the number of baptisms 124, an increase of twenty-eight over the total of 1898. The Bishop paid two visits to the Sapporo.

station, the one in the spring and the other in the autumn; and confirmed forty candidates. The Winter School for Ainu Girls, which had previously been carried on in the house of the lady missionaries, was placed on a permanent footing and formed into a Home by the erection of a special building, and the appointment of a Japanese lady as matron and teacher. The Home was under the management of Miss A. M. Hughes, who assisted Miss Oxlad in the work of the Sunday-school, which had a good attendance, especially during the winter. Among the scholars were many children of heathen parents, through whose instrumentality admission was gained into a number of homes. The children displayed much eagerness to go to the church services, and were anxious to contribute to the missionary box. Some of them, too, manifested real earnestness in prayer. At the Ainu Rest House, help and medical treatment were given to 146 persons, and not a few were brought to Christ through the teaching which they there received. The Evening Classes for Young Men, instituted by Miss Laurence (now at home), were maintained with a heterogeneous collection of students, consisting of college students, middle-school boys, policemen, soldiers, telegraph clerks, school teachers, and gentlemen from the judicial and official classes. Work among Women was partially handicapped by the frequent illnesses of the Bible-woman, and the visiting was rendered difficult by the great distances which had to be covered in going to the homes of the people. Every Sunday afternoon a meeting for non-Christian women was held, and at the close of the year it appeared likely that several baptisms would result from this work. A new departure was the formation of a Branch of the Scripture Union, which is called in Japanese "Seisho no Tomo" (Friends of the Bible), for the benefit of girls over fifteen years of age who considered it beneath their dignity to attend the Sunday-school. The members numbered sixteen, nine of whom were Christians. With a view to influencing the workers connected with the large hospital and training institution for Probationary Nurses at Sapporo, Miss Hughes became a life member of the Red Cross Nursing Society. She was soon on friendly terms with the lady superintendent of one of the institutions named, who told her that she had been present at many death-beds, and that the fearlessness of death which had characterized those who knew Christ made her desire to become His disciple. This lady was baptized on Whit Sunday, 1899, and afterwards confirmed.

School for Ainu girls.

"Friends of the Bible."

Mr. Batchelor experienced some opposition from the people in his itinerating tours. The aggregate attendance at the Sunday-schools in the district was about 200, but a couple of the schools had to be temporarily closed in consequence of the prevalence of dysentery. Two of the Ainu Christians, a man and his wife, the former a backslider and great drunkard, joined the Roman Catholics during the year, but on the other hand a Japanese gentleman and his wife and two children left the Roman Church because of his objections to the Confessional and Mariolatry, and to the withholding of the Bible from the converts.

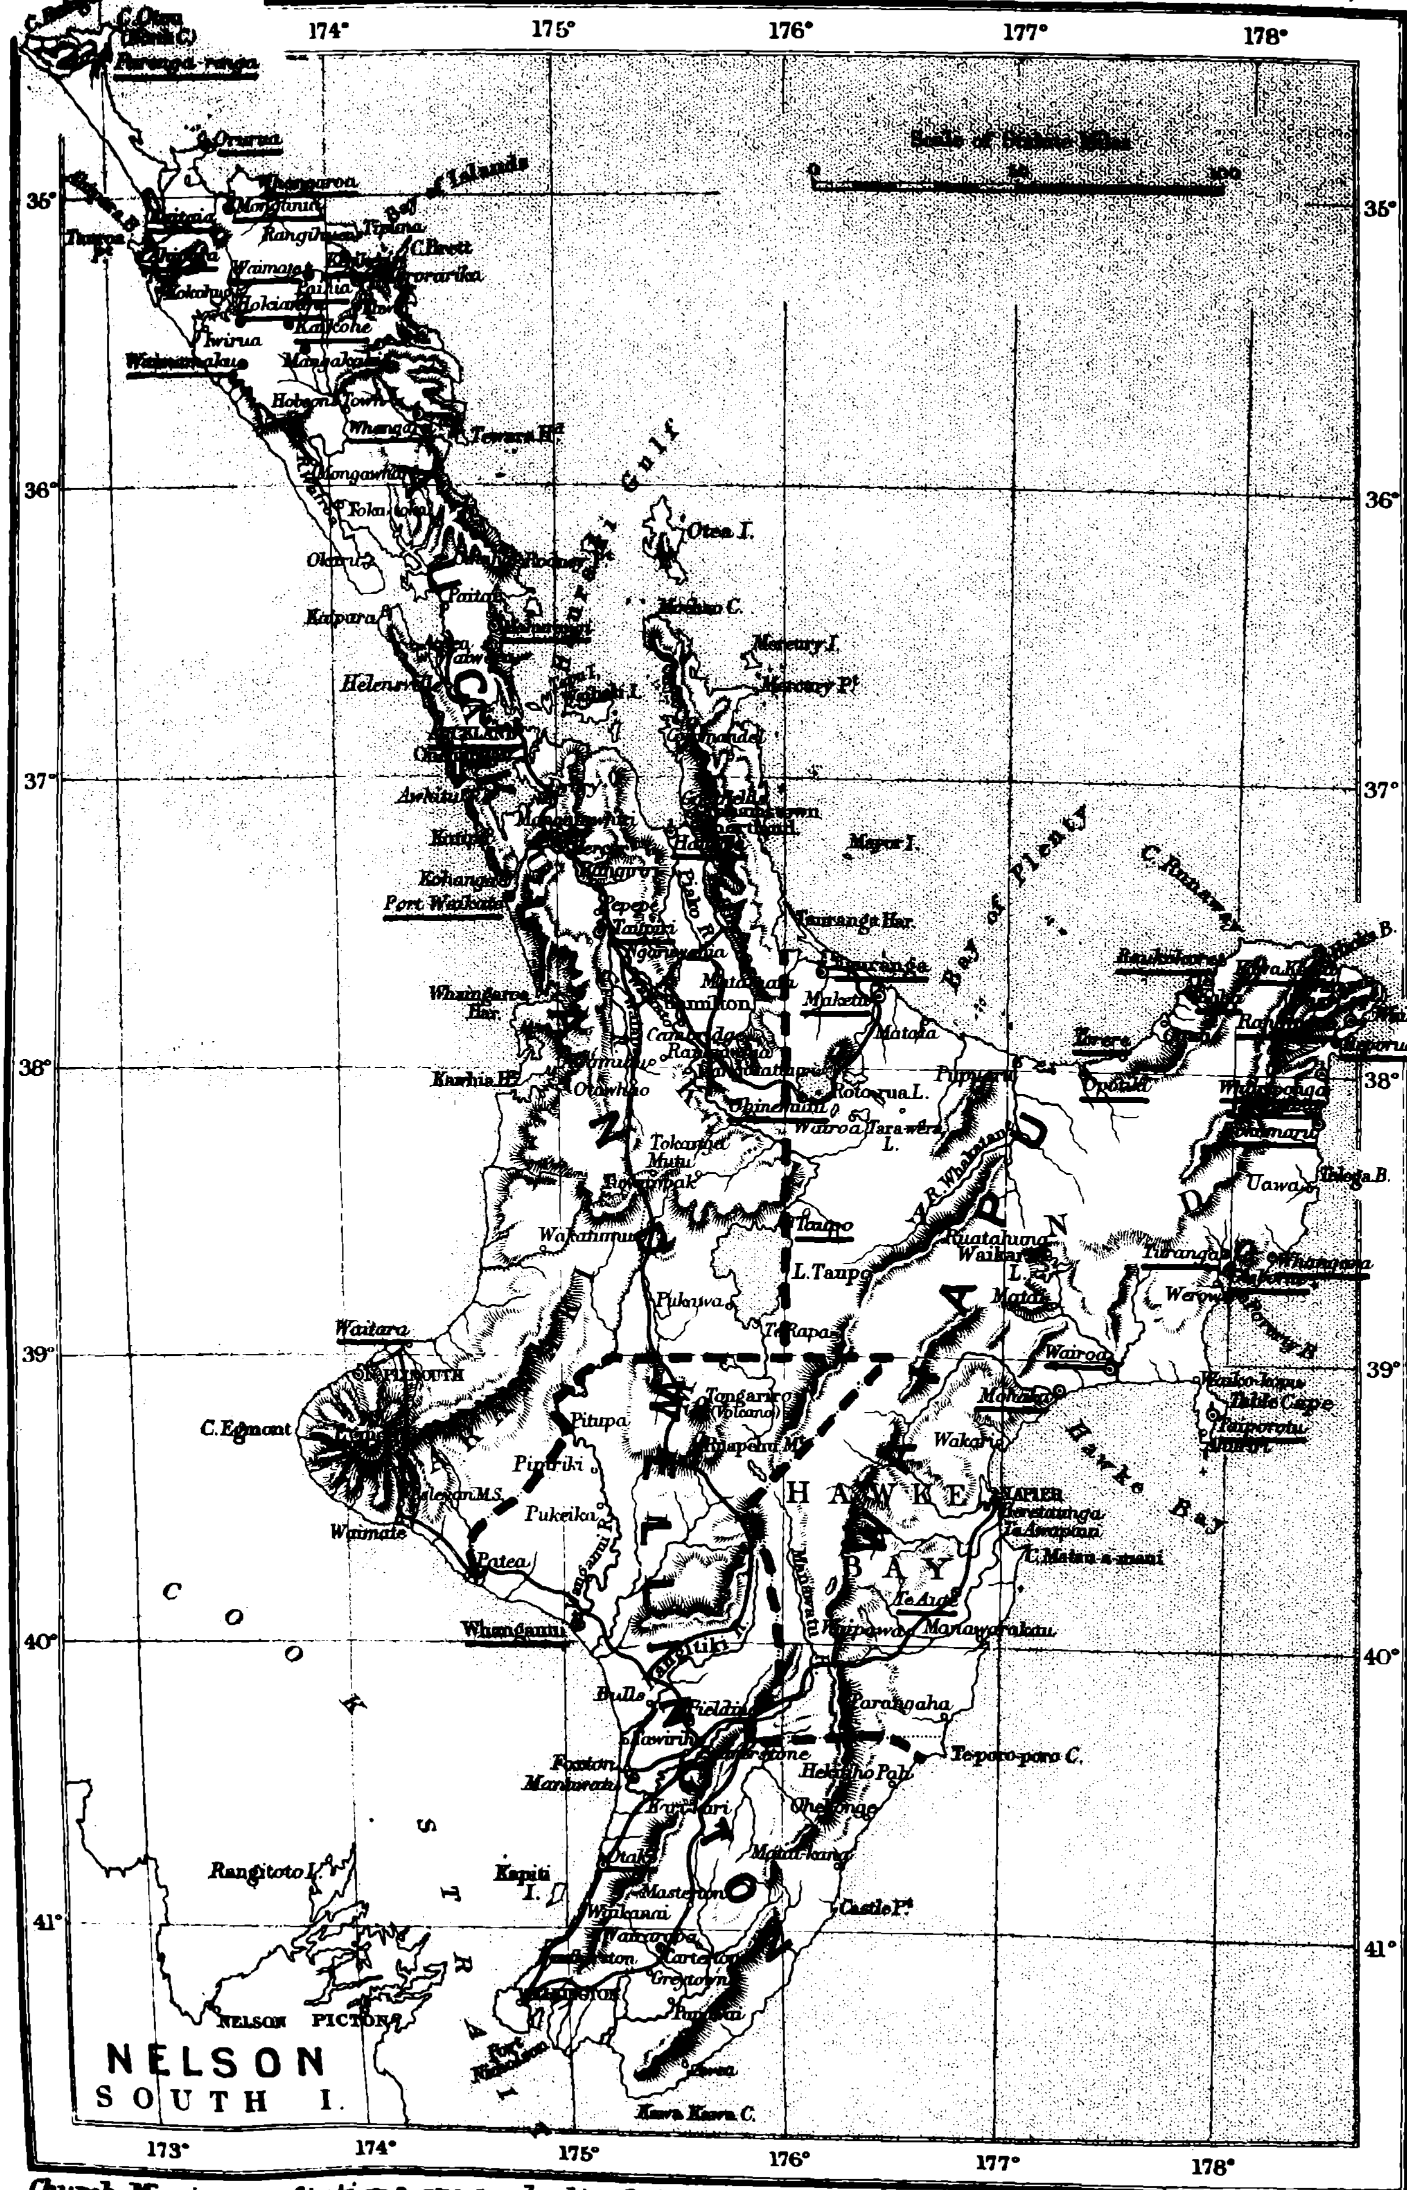
Miss E. M. Bryant, at Piratori, was enabled to win the confidence of the people by relieving in some measure the distress caused by the flood of 1898, and the consequent famine, and large numbers of boys and girls came together for the evening classes and the Sunday-school; indeed, at one time it was easier to reckon up those who did not come to the latter than those who did. The attendance, however, fell off during the last part of the year, for the chief of the officials who were sent when the post office was opened, and the schoolmaster as well, did all they could to hinder the work. The villages near Piratori were visited week by week, and cordial receptions were the rule. This was notably the case at Nina, a place which used to be very opposed to Christian teaching, and where once Miss Payne was refused admission to a house in which she wished to hold a meeting. The inhabitants, however, were influenced by some women who had been baptized at the Sapporo Ainu Rest House, and in June, 1899, twenty-four women and children were received into the visible Church from that one village. Piratori.

OTARU.

There was a considerable increase in the number of adherents at OTARU, where the Rev. and Mrs. G. C. Niven resided. Thirty adults were baptized during the year, more than double the number of 1898, some at each of the out-stations as well as at Otaru itself, and on every hand a marked readiness to listen to the Gospel was manifested. Mrs. Niven opened knitting classes, English classes, and two Sunday-schools, and a new out-station was occupied. In August the Rev. H. Woodward, of Toyohashi, Tokio, paid a visit to the island of Rishiri, off the north-west coast of Hokkaido, and a few other places, for the purpose of holding some special preachings. He was accompanied by the Otaru catechist, and on the whole spent an encouraging time. In one village a Buddhist priest came the morning after the preaching, confessing that he had no faith in his own religion, and asking to be taught more about Christianity; while in another village, where eleven open-air meetings had been held, several inquirers came forward. Otaru.

KUSHIRO.

The Rev. T. Ogawa, the native pastor at KUSHIRO, was laid aside from active work for three months by illness. He speaks Kushiro.



with great thankfulness of one Sunday-school in particular, that at Akkeshi, where six of the thirteen pupils were baptized with the full consent of their heathen parents. The Harutori school for Ainu boys and girls was well attended, excepting during the season for gathering an edible seaweed and during the herring fishery. Miss L. Payne (now at home) devoted such spare time as this school left her to evangelistic work, and with the aid of her three Bible-women visited a number of houses, and conducted meetings in various villages. The Rev. D. M. Lang returned to Kushiro on his arrival from England early in 1900.

NEW ZEALAND MISSION.

The Mission to the Maoris of New Zealand was the second of the Society's Missions in order of time. It was undertaken at the invitation of Samuel Marsden, Chaplain in New South Wales, who landed on the Northern Island, with the first three men—lay agents—sent out as pioneers, in 1814, and preached the first Christian sermon to the Natives on Christmas Day of that year. Other missionaries followed, whose lives, which were entirely in the power of a race of ferocious cannibals, were frequently in apparently imminent danger. For eleven years no results were seen. The first conversion took place in 1825, and no other Natives were baptized for five years. Then began the marvellous movement which resulted in almost the whole Maori nation being brought under Christian instruction and civilizing influences, and which led Bishop Selwyn, on his arrival in his new diocese in 1842, to write: "We see here a whole nation of pagans converted to the faith. . . . Where will you find, throughout the Christian world, more signal manifestations of the presence of the Spirit, or more living evidences of the Kingdom of Christ?"

In 1840 New Zealand was made a British Colony, and emigration on a large scale ensued. The vices as well as the benefits of civilization were introduced, and the inevitable conflict of races began. The continual disputes about the sale and possession of land led to prolonged and bitter wars, which shook the Native Church to its foundations. In 1864 arose the "Pai Marire" or "Hau-hau" superstition, a strange compound of Christianity and Heathenism, which spread rapidly among the Natives. It was a party of Hau-haus who so barbarously murdered the missionary Völkner on March 2nd, 1865.

In 1883 a C.M.S. Mission Board, comprising the Bishops of Auckland, Waiapu, and Wellington, and other members, was established to administer the Society's grants, which diminish annually, and will cease (subject to personal claims) in a few years.

Centenary celebrations.

Special services were held in some parishes of each of the dioceses of New Zealand during the Centenary week. It was suggested by the Committee of the New Zealand Church Missionary Association that all offertories might suitably be given to the Maori Mission as a thankoffering for the Society's work in New Zealand; the result being that the sum of £107 8*s*. 9*d*. was contributed for the special evangelistic work among the lapsed Natives. In the Diocese of Waiapu, however, it was decided to send the offertories direct to the Parent Society as a special thankoffering. These amounted to £45 given by Maoris and English.

Death of Mrs. McWilliam.

Mrs. McWilliam, the wife of the Rev. J. McWilliam, of Otaki, in the Diocese of Wellington, was called to her rest on May 4th, 1899, after a prolonged illness. Her loss was greatly felt in the Sunday-schools, in which she took much interest, and also by the sick and troubled, to whom she was accustomed to minister.

Reinforcements.

New workers were added to the staff in the persons of the Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Augustus Bennett. Mr. Bennett for two years had charge of the Maori Mission work in the Diocese of Nelson. The addition to the Society's list of Rev. Hector Alfred Hawkins has also been recorded.

The Rev. A. F. Williams is the Secretary of the Mission.

I. DIOCESE OF AUCKLAND.

Ordinations.

On October 18th the Bishop of Auckland admitted the Rev. Tiopira Paerata (of Paihia), the Rev. Timoti Kiriwi (of Waimate), and the Rev. Hare Maihi Ruarangi (of Mahurangi) to priests' orders.

The Ven. Archdeacon Clarke, in the useful account which he has again furnished of the Maori work in the Diocese of Auckland, reports that the Native Church Board of the southern portion of the diocese met in March, 1899, and that of the Northern portion in the following month, the only business of special importance being the nomination to the Bishop of two Maori lay representatives to serve on the Diocesan Synod. There was but little manifestation of the grace of giving, although the Primate issued a Pastoral Letter urging immediate action in view of the expiration of the grant from the Society in 1902, and Archdeacon Samuel Williams, of the Waiapu Diocese, offered, if the Natives and Europeans would raise £2,000 to augment the Native Pastorate Fund, to supplement that amount by a gift of £1,000. Another difficulty arose from the lack of ordained men to carry on the work. The places of the native clergy whose deaths were reported last year were still vacant at the end of 1899, and only three students from the Diocese of Auckland were in the Training College at Gisborne. On the other hand, there were several cheering signs. Nearly 250 persons were confirmed by the Primate on his visitation to the northern part of his diocese in the autumn, and the younger members of the congregations justified the sanguine expectations concerning them which were mentioned in last year's Report. A new church was built at Taita, Kaihu Valley, in the stead of that destroyed by fire, and the people at Harataunga, who formerly were Hau-haus, collected nearly £100 for the erection of a place of worship for themselves and the Europeans.

Influence of medicine men on the wane.

The influence of the Tohungas, or medicine men (see last year's Report, page 407), appeared to be on the wane, owing in part to the manifest determination of the Government to suppress their iniquitous practices. Two of the native clergy carried on the work amongst the lapsed Christians in Waikato, the people, by the order of the king, attending the services which they conducted; he, however, refused to permit the establishment of organized lay services. When a party of 160 of these people went on a visit to Southern Taranaki, the Rev. N. Tautau accompanied them as chaplain at the king's request, and the daily services which he held were well attended; but another native clergyman, who spent nearly a month with them, found that they absolutely declined to allow any religious gatherings to take place. The Rev. F. A. Bennett has been appointed to work in the Taranaki district.

II. DIOCESE OF WAIAPU.

A CONFERENCE of the C.M.S. missionaries was held at Napier in October, under the presidency of the Bishop of Waiapu. The Marriage Question and the Religious Instruction of the Young were among the subjects discussed. Conference at Napier.

The Rev. Areka Te Whareumu, of Te Horo, who was ordained in 1875, and the Rev. Eruera Kawhia, of Whareponga, have been called to their rest. The former was on the retired list, and the health of the latter had for some years caused grave anxiety, but he continued to do good work to the last, and was highly respected, not only by his own people, but also by all the European settlers on the east coast. The Rev. Rihara Rangamaro, of Tuparoa, has retired. Deaths of two native clergymen.

Nine ordinary students were in residence at the Training Institution, GISBORNE, which was under the Rev. H. W. Williams, besides the three deacons whose admission to priests' orders in the Diocese of Auckland has already been recorded, and who were inmates for a short time. The students of the year are said to have been rather below the average in the matter of general education, and for the first time since the institution was commenced there was no representative of the Te Aute College on the roll. The third Conference of the Te Aute Students' Association was held in December, 1898, among the Ngatiporon tribe. A number of the leading men attended, and the local Maoris asked for help in procuring the abolition of the liquor traffic in their district, and in getting the Bible read in purely native Government schools. Gisborne Training Institution.

The Rev. A. F. Williams, the Secretary of the Mission, concurs with Archdeacon Clarke in regarding the influence of the Tohungas as on the wane, excepting in one or two villages, and says that most of the people realize what Tohungaism really is, and keep away from the medicine men. He regards the state of affairs in the district as more satisfactory than for some time past, and attributes much of the improvement to the efforts of the Rev. M. K. Pukerua, who was diligent in prosecuting the work in the villages. A new church was opened in January, 1899, at Porangahau, where most of the Maoris were until recently followers of Te Kooti, and a Sunday class for young children was conducted there by the leading man. Six of the Natives were confirmed early in the year. Another church was in process of erection at Waipawa, to the cost of which, as of that just mentioned, the Maoris contributed liberally. In February, 1899, the Rev. A. F. Williams paid a visit to the Taupo district, and delivered thirty-one addresses. He proposed another trip to the same part in the autumn, but it had to be abandoned in consequence of the serious illness of his wife. New churches.

Opotiki. The work in the OPOTIKI district was under the Rev. G. Maunsell, who was obliged by the delicate health of Mrs. Maunsell and of his youngest daughter to contemplate removal to another station. He accordingly institutes a comparison between the state of the district in 1878, when he took charge of it, and in 1899, and writes:—

Improvement in twenty-one years. Twenty-one years ago I was almost the only worker in the Bay of Plenty, and at only one spot did I find our services kept up, and there it was by one faithful old man and a few companions. The only church was used by the Europeans, and there were no communicants. Now, I am grateful to say, there are three native clergy, two Endowment Funds have been raised, three churches have been built, there are fourteen lay readers, some 500 children have been baptized, and there are about 100 communicants, and something like £1,500 has been raised for various objects. Besides, Mr. Goodyear has replaced me at Tauranga, and has two deacons helping him, so that I should have six workers in active work with many assistants.

He speaks of the old people as showing a better spirit in response to the provision made for them by the Government, and as resolving to abandon drinking habits and to give up working on Sundays. Some of the principal settlements were visited by the Rev. E. Allanson as diocesan missioner, and he was favourably impressed at Whakatane by the reception which the Maoris gave him, which was in pleasant contrast to that which he received from the Europeans. In March an assembly was held with the object of raising money for the Ministers' Endowment Fund (see last year's Report, page 409). This was the first time that the local Natives and tribes to the eastward had met since the war of 1865–1870, when their encounters were of a hostile nature, and consequently the meeting partook somewhat of the character of a peace-making, with the usual though hardly consistent accompaniment of such occasions—a war dance! The pecuniary result of the gathering was £140, which was less than one-half the sum that Mr. Maunsell had expected to realize; but the most liberal tribe, the Ngatiporon, explained that they had recently made several collections, contributing about £1,000 in that way. During the year one of the murderers of the missionary Völkner died; he was the man who was charged with having put the rope round Mr. Völkner's neck, but he escaped when the other murderers were arrested, and was included in the general amnesty at the end of the war. He often attended the services, but there was some reason to doubt whether his repentance was genuine.

A peace-making between Maori tribes.

Death of one of Mr. Völkner's murderers.

Tauranga. The readiness of the Natives in the TAURANGA and neighbouring districts to attend religious services continued unabated, but the Rev. W. Goodyear recognized the danger of their being satisfied with a merely formal appreciation of Christianity—a danger to which the Maori is specially exposed. Death was busy among the people, one of those carried off being Mere Hamiora, or "Mary of Te Mu," as she was called by the tourists, of whom Mr. Goodyear writes :— Death of "Mary of Te Mu."

For the last thirty or forty years she has resided at Mateku with the Spencer family as a friend. Regularly as clockwork every Sunday morning and evening she might be seen wending her way to the church with her books. As soon as the service commenced, Mary's voice would be heard taking her part. All these years, Sunday after Sunday, she would repeat verbatim in her class the Collect, Epistle, and Gospel for the day. She was very decided in her actions and opinions. Any one transgressing or omitting to do that which ought to be done was sure to be rebuked by her. For downright honesty and straightforwardness it will be difficult to surpass her.

The very promising daughter of the Rev. Ratema Te Awa Rotuka, of Rotorua, whom Mr. Goodyear describes as "a very decided servant of the Master," was also among those who died. This place is a difficult sphere in consequence of the number of tourists who frequent it, and appear to take a delight in Sunday excursions.

III DIOCESE OF WELLINGTON.

The Bishop of Wellington admitted Mr. Horima Kereru Mokai to deacon's orders on December 31st, 1899. He has been appointed to work in the Whanganui district.

The year was uneventful in the Whanganui district, of which the Rev. A. O. Williams is in charge, but he thankfully reports a marked change for the better among the Te Whitiites, who were invariably kind and hospitable when he went to see them. Both on the Whanganui River and in the Rangitikei district the ill-health of the native clergy prejudiced the work, but at Wairarapa, which was without a resident clergyman, the services were well attended on the occasions of Mr. Williams' visits. Miss R. M. Blakiston, of the New Zealand C.M. Association, is stationed at Papawai. Whanganui.

The Rev. J. McWilliam, of the Otaki district, had the sorrow of losing his wife, after a lingering illness, in May, 1899. The inhabitants of Otaki, Maoris and Europeans, collected funds to erect a town clock to perpetuate her memory. He bewails the tendency on the part of the Natives to revert to their old faith in Maori priestcraft and the occult arts, while still professing to believe in the teaching of the Scriptures. He says:— Otaki.

The people have faith in the skill and knowledge of a European doctor for the treatment of certain complaints; but they consider their wisdom and medicine of no avail in dealing with what they call mate Maori (Maori diseases), because they believe these to be caused by witchcraft or by transgressing some law of the Maori priest (tohunga).

Belief in witchcraft still potent.

A case occurred here only a few weeks ago, showing that the belief in witchcraft has not died out, either with Maoris or English. At a place called Poroutawhao (one of my regular preaching-stations), several rather unexpected deaths took place; and as there had been some land disputes of years' standing between one section of the tribe and another, and as the deceased persons all belonged to one section, they concluded that the chiefman on the other side had killed them by witchcraft. So a large committee of elders from different neighbouring villages, including a Mr. McDonald, a neighbour of the accused, a Scotch Roman Catholic but evidently a firm believer in the black art, were called together to try the case. They sat for several consecutive days and nights and examined the accused and many witnesses most elaborately. He answered all their questions quite willingly, but denied all knowledge of witchcraft and of the causes of the deaths attributed to him. He is a half-caste, a Christian and a communicant; but this did not seem in any way to free him from the imputation. Several of the witnesses averred that he had been taught the mysteries of witchcraft by a tohunga in the north, and that he had a pipe in his possession which gave him the power of life and death. He again denied all this, and the court broke up, leaving the matter quite undecided and the belief in his power and guilt just as strong in the minds of his accusers as ever. Again, the tohunga has pronounced that the partaking of the Holy Communion is the chief cause of illness and death, and many communicants of many years' standing have believed his lying words and ceased to communicate.

At the same time there was reason to believe that the truths of Christianity had been sincerly accepted by some, and that they were striving with more or less steadfastness to lead consistent lives.

NORTH-WEST CANADA MISSIONS.

These are Missions to the remnants of the Red Indian tribes scattered over the vast country formerly known as the Hudson's Bay Territory, but now included in the Dominion of Canada. In 1822 the Rev. John West arrived at a trading settlement on the Red River, a little south of Lake Winnipeg, and began to gather the Indians round him. In 1840, Henry Budd, a native teacher, trained up by Mr. West from his boyhood, who afterwards became the first native clergyman, was sent forth from Red River to open a new station at Devon, 500 miles off. And now, from the United States border-line to the Arctic Ocean, and from Hudson's Bay to the Rocky Mountains, the praises of the Redeemer are sung by thousands of Indians, and in eleven different languages.

The Red River district is now the flourishing colonial Province of Manitoba, and a large part of the Society's work has developed into the settled ministrations of the Church in the Colony. One of the Society's churches has become the Cathedral of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, which was founded in 1849. That diocese, which has been highly privileged in its two first Bishops, Dr. Anderson (1849) and Dr. Machray (1865), was divided in 1872 into four parts, the three new dioceses being those of Moosonee, Athabasca, and Saskatchewan. To the two former Sees missionaries of the Society were appointed, the Rev. John Horden and the Rev. W. C. Bompas, and to the third an active co-worker in the country, Dr. McLean. Bishop McLean died in 1886, and was succeeded by Bishop Pinkham; Bishop Horden also died early in 1893, and was succeeded by Bishop Newnham, a missionary of the Society. In 1884, in pursuance of a scheme formed by the Provincial Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Rupert's Land, the Diocese of Athabasca was divided, Dr. Bompas taking the Northern half as Bishop of Mackenzie River, and the Rev. R. Young, C.M.S. missionary, being appointed to the Southern Division as Bishop of Athabasca. The Provincial Synod of 1890 sanctioned a division of the Mackenzie River Diocese, the territories to the west of the Rocky Mountains becoming the Diocese of Selkirk, and the region to the east retaining the name of Mackenzie River. Archdeacon Reeve, a missionary of the C.M.S., was consecrated Bishop of the latter diocese in 1891, Bishop Bompas again taking the remoter diocese, that of Selkirk. In 1884 the Diocese of Qu'Appelle was formed out of the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and Saskatchewan, and has been presided over successively by Bishops Anson (1884), Burn (1893), and Grisdale (1896). In 1887 the Diocese of Calgary was carved out of that of Saskatchewan, but has not yet received its own separate Diocesan.

The Society labours in all the above-named eight dioceses; but in that of Qu'Appelle the work is confined to one station, Touchwood Hills, opened in 1857. In RUPERT'S LAND DIOCESE the Society's work was commenced in the Red River district in 1823; Fort Alexander was occupied in 1864; and Rainy Lake district in 1874. In MOOSONEE DIOCESE, Moose Factory was occupied in 1851; York, 1854; Albany, 1855; East Main Coast, 1877; Churchill, 1886; Blacklead Island, 1894. In SASKATCHEWAN DIOCESE, Cumberland and Devon were occupied in 1840; Stanley, 1850; Sandy Lake (Asisipi), 1875; Battleford, 1876; Prince Albert, 1879; Grand Rapids, 1881; and Fort Pitt, 1888. In CALGARY DIOCESE, Fort McLeod was occupied in 1880; Blackfoot Crossing in 1883; Sarcee Reserve in 1886. In ATHABASCA DIOCESE, Fort Chipewyan was occupied in 1867; Fort Vermillion, 1876; Lesser Slave Lake, 1887; Upper Peace River, 1888. MACKENZIE RIVER DIOCESE, Fort Simpson, 1858; Fort Norman, 1871; Fort McPherson, 1874; Fort Resolution, 1875; Herschel Island, 1897. I. DIOCESES OF RUPERT'S LAND AND QU'APPELLE.

The Archbishop of Rupert's Land issues a Pastoral on the C.M.S. Centenary.

IN March, 1899, the Archbishop of Rupert's Land issued a Pastoral to the Clergy and Laity of his Diocese, urging them to join heartily in the celebration of the Centenary of the C.M.S., and calling attention in the following terms to the help which it had rendered to the Diocese:—

In early days the Society nursed our Church in this land, and bodies of Indian converts in many scattered Missions throughout our Dioceses are witnesses to its faith, love, and zeal. It is now spending nearly £100,000 in the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and British Columbia. It is reducing its grant to this Diocese, but it is still giving us over £10,000 yearly for our Indian Missions—a larger sum than we get from any other Society—and we must not forget that all classes in this land owe much to the early work of its missionaries, for it is in no small measure due to that work that the immigrants coming to this land, when it was at length opened for settlement, found such a law-abiding and intelligent community.

A cordial response was made to the appeal of the Archbishop. At Winnipeg, St. Andrew's, St. Peter's Indian Settlement, and elsewhere, gatherings were held, the speakers being, besides the Archbishop, the Bishops of Huron, Qu'Appelle, and Caledonia, and Archdeacon Kirkby, the latter travelling from his parish in the State of New York in order to take his share in the celebrations.

Archdeacon Phair (now at home) and the Rev. A. E. Cowley are joint secretaries of the C.M.S. work in the Dioceses of Rupert's Land and Qu'Appelle.

St. Peter's Indian Settlement.

The Mission at ST. PETER'S INDIAN SETTLEMENT under the Rev. J. G. Anderson involves no charge on the funds of the Society, and partakes of the nature of ordinary parochial work at home. The usual services were continued, and the Sunday and day-schools were carried on without intermission. Meetings of the Temperance Society were held during the greater part of the year, and the excellence of the attendances gave promise that in the future the "demon of drink" would be effectually exorcised. The Women's Auxiliary, which was fully organized and affiliated to the Diocesan Society in June, 1899, proved extremely useful; it had a membership of twenty, and weekly meetings were held at which the women worked mocassins, belts, &c., devoting their earnings to the fund for the tower of the church. A Junior Women's Auxiliary was set on foot early in 1900, and was joined by eighteen girls of ages varying from nine to thirteen. The sickness which was so widely prevalent during the year served to manifest the usefulness of the Dynevor Hospital.

Scanterbury.

The Rev. R. E. Coates, of SCANTERBURY, on the eve of leaving the Mission, draws a contrast between the condition of the place and of the people when he commenced his work there in 1892 and that which prevailed during the year under review. He writes concerning the past:—

How well I remember my first impressions of place and people! On the Sunday I watched the Indians coming to church. What a sorry-looking lot they were, ragged and poverty-stricken! That afternoon a number of young men gathered in a field near by, enjoying games and athletic sports.

A comparison after seven years.

This was the metawewin or "long tent" ground. Across the river, directly opposite, was a conjurer's tent. The houses were small log cabins, dirty, evil-smelling, uneven, poorly lighted. My first experience in a house was a month of torture and misery. The church was a rough log building, the interstices filled with mud. Inside, the walls were whitewashed, but the rain, beating through the crevices, made muddy streaks all round. The approach to the church was covered with water a foot deep for a long distance. Two poles were laid at the side to form a kind of side-walk. We generally used staves to help us keep our balance, but it was poor footing, and often shrieks of laughter would announce delight at some poor unfortunate's fall off the slippery logs into the water. The schoolhouse was a fairly good Government building, tenanted by the teacher and one Indian child when I called. There were no officers, with the exception of a sexton, who did not get quarter of his promised pay. The men did not trouble themselves much about work, but spent days in gambling.

Since then great changes have taken place. The two conjurers have been baptized, though one of them relapsed; some of the Heathen who appeared to be most strongly attached to their old religion have become regular communicants; others have listened attentively to the reading of the Bible, though they have been held back from the profession of Christianity by the opposition of the chief, who, however, shows signs of relenting; the wife-beating, which formerly was common, has ceased; gambling has become a thing of the past, so far as the Christians are concerned; couples living together unmarried have been united in the bands of wedlock; and the school children have made good progress in their studies. The material condition of the people, too, bears witness to the change which Christianity has made. Instead of the log building there is a pretty little church, all the building and carpentry work of which was done by the Indians; the Natives come to the services looking clean and bright, instead of in ragged coats and shabby dresses, and the transformation in their dwellings is equally marked. Three adults were baptized during the year, and on December 31st the Native Christians numbered 129.

Fort Alexander.

All the Indians at FORT ALEXANDER Reserve, where the Rev. E. Thomas, a native clergyman, was in charge, are Christians, rather more than half of the number being Protestants. There were twenty-seven children in the day-school, and fifteen of them attended the Sunday-school which was held during the summer. A good work was carried on at Black River by Mr. M. Sanderson, and one adult was baptized at Hole River, where Mr. J. Sinclair was schoolmaster and catechist.

Islington.

Some difficulty was experienced by Mr. J. S. Newton at ISLINGTON because the people resented the fact that no clergyman with a knowledge of their language had been sent to take charge of the work, the old chief in particular adopting an unfriendly attitude. In July many of the Natives left for Rat Portage to pick berries, leaving but a sparse population at the station until September, when the time for the treaty payments came round, soon after which they again left in search of fish and game. The services were regularly conducted in the Ojibway language, and some of the people endeavoured to lead consistent lives. The Councillor—an old man, brother of the chief—was prominent in this respect, using his influence to lead others along the right way. The day-school was naturally affected by the nomadic habits of the Indians; but even when allowance was made for these habits, the attendance of children could hardly be regarded as satisfactory.

Lac Seul. After an interval of twelve years LAC SEUL was privileged to receive an episcopal visit from Bishop Grisdale, who held a confirmation for the Archbishop of Rupert's Land at which forty-six candidates were presented, a few being unavoidably absent as it was the time of the wild rice harvest and some of the fields were two or three days' journey from the station. The Rev. T. H. Pritchard reports that the winter was exceptionally severe, the thermometer on several occasions registering 60° below zero, and that an epidemic of influenza again prevailed, carrying off twenty-five Indians, several of them the heads of large families, and all but one of them professing Christians. The Bishop confirmed thirteen persons at Frenchman's Head in addition to those at Lac Seul, and Mr. Pritchard paid a visit of a fortnight to the isolated out-station of Opuskang, where the heathen Indians were greatly opposed to the work.

Shoal River. The Rev. A. T. Norquay, the native clergyman at SHOAL RIVER, was encouraged by the attendance at the services, and by the fact that the indifference formerly manifested by the Heathen appeared to be passing away. They came to church more freely than in 1898, and some were inquirers, but were deterred from asking for baptism because they were told that they must have instruction before that rite could be administered, and they were afraid of being looked upon as children. Two young men and a young woman were, however, baptized, one of the men having previously been a scoffer at Christianity. Creditable advance was made in the work of educating the children, but the epidemics of influenza and measles rendered it necessary to close the school for a time. It was difficult for Mr. Norquay to minister as he would to the sick because of his lack of medicines, but he did all that was in his power; and, as he remarks, "Sympathy is a powerful drug in Christian materia medica." He mentions as a disadvantage the fact of there being no example of a farming community of white men at hand.

Long Sault. The headquarters of the Mission in the Rainy River District, which contains four Indian reserves, are at LONG SAULT, where the Rev. J. Johnston, supported by the Canada C.M. Association, is at work. The Indians in the district number 2,844, of whom more than two-thirds are still Heathen. The efforts to win them are beset with difficulties owing to the wide area over which they are scattered, since it extends for 325 miles from east to west, and 150 miles from north to south.

Fairford.

The Rev. G. Bruce, who was in charge of FAIRFORD, reports that the services and Sunday-school were regularly conducted, and that he paid monthly visits to each of the four Indian Reserves in his district. Two new school-houses were built during the year, which were used on Sundays as places of worship. Family prayers are held by a large number of Indians, but a good many of the Natives are still Heathen. Those who received baptism included four adults and a number of children; among the latter were the grandchildren of the head-councillor of one of the Reserves.

Jackhead

In the absence of any other worker, the Rev. James Settee, the retired Indian clergyman, supervised the work at JACKHEAD, in spite of his being in his ninetieth year. Five adults were baptized during the year, but the number of communicants was far smaller than it should be, and some of the Natives kept the children from being baptized. Mr. Settee noticed a great change in the people from the time when, seventy-six years before, he lived among them, but he was impressed with the need of a travelling missionary well acquainted with the language, and writes:—

"I am old, but ready to go and tell the old story."

> I am old, but I would not hesitate for one moment to visit those dying souls. My wife is ready to go with me to tell the old story of Jesus and His great salvation. All we would want is the prayers of God's people for us.

The Rev. W. Robertson is in charge of the Sioux Mission at OAK RIVER.

Touchwood Hills.

The only missionary of the Society in the diocese of Qu'Appelle is the Rev. E. H. Bassing, who is in charge of the TOUCHWOOD HILLS Itinerancy. He speaks of the work as being both bright and sad. Sad, because none of the people are professing Christians; and bright, because several of the Day Star Indians are drawing very near to the light, being willing listeners to the Gospel message, and always welcoming Mr. Bassing when he goes among them.

II. DIOCESE OF MOOSONEE.

IT has been decided by the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land to divide the Diocese of Moosonee, taking part of it, together with a portion of the Diocese of Rupert's Land, to form a new diocese to be called Keewatin, the name of the civil province with which it will almost coincide.

The Rev. E. J. Peck came home in November, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Walton in December. The former narrowly escaped shipwreck during the voyage, the Alert, a small brig, being driven about on the Scotch coast by a succession of violent gales. Mr. Peck writes:—

The Rev. E. J. Peck preserved from shipwreck.

> Large portions of the vessel's bulwarks were torn away, the fore-yard and much of the rigging gone, and to add to our perils the vessel commenced to leak badly on the port (i.e. left) side. Fortunately the bulk of cargo consisted of seal-oil, and over a hundred gallons of this was cast into the sea to still the raging billows. Certainly this oil, cast, so to speak, on the troubled waters, helped in no small measure to preserve us from destruction. On the morning of Sunday, the 12th (November), a small steamer came in sight, signals were made, and to our joy she soon came to our rescue. This vessel was finally able to tow us a distance of fifty miles in to Peterhead.

Archdeacon Lofthouse accompanies a Government expedition.

The Rev. J. Lofthouse, who has since been appointed Archdeacon, left England for the Mission in July, 1899. At the end of January, 1900, he joined an expedition sent by the Canadian Government to survey the country between Great Slave Lake and Baker Lake, his object being to reach with the Gospel the Eskimo and Indians of that vast and almost unknown district.

Moose Factory.

After May 31st, 1899, when Bishop Newnham left for other parts of his vast diocese, the Rev. E. Richards was in charge of MOOSE FACTORY, having the assistance of the Rev. R. Renison, who is supported by diocesan funds. During the summer the work was heavy, owing to the presence of large numbers of Indians, who liked to be visited in their tents and to pour out the story of their woes into the sympathizing ears of the missionaries. Daily services were conducted for their benefit, and the Indian day-school was maintained throughout the year, the English school being discontinued during the summer months. The Natives felt the stress of poverty, for food being scarce they were obliged to spend most of their time in procuring it, and therefore were not able to do much in the way of hunting the fur-bearing animals. Indeed, when the men went off on their hunting expeditions their families became largely dependent upon the Hudson's Bay Company for support.

Biscotasing.

BISCOTASING has been singularly exempt in the past from the sickness with which other stations have been visited, but towards the close of the year under review there was an outbreak of diphtheria, though happily not of a severe form. Two deaths took place at the station where the Rev. J. Sanders ministered to the people of his tribe, and four at one of the out-stations where food was very scarce. It was, however, anticipated that there would be plenty during the winter of 1899–1900, for the season was favourable for hunting operations. The work proceeded uneventfully both at Biscotasing and at the out-stations of Matawakumma Post, Brunswick Post, and Flying Post.

No report has been received of the work at RUPERT'S HOUSE, nor of that at FORT GEORGE. Of the latter, however, the Rev. W. G. Walton, who is at home, has in person reported to the Committee.

Archdeacon T. Vincent, in writing his Annual Letter, refers to his approaching retirement after forty years of service, and expresses his thankfulness for the encouragement afforded by the conduct of the Christians at ALBANY. He says that the meetings and services, usually sixteen and sometimes eighteen in a week, are well attended; that the people have a great love for the Word of God, of which many of them are earnest students; and that family prayers are the rule rather than the exception. The Sunday-school has the names of a large number of children on the roll, but some difficulty was experienced in connexion with the day-school, in consequence of the wandering habits of the Indians, caused in some measure by the gradual failure of the food supply of the country. Death was busy amongst the people during the year under review, many of them being carried off by influenza, but the Archdeacon bears testimony to "the constant, faithful, and complete trust which all who went to their rest and reward had in the Lord Jesus Christ." In the summer the Archdeacon visited the various places in the large district of which he had the oversight, being gratified by the evident tokens of earnestness even on the part of those who had but few religious privileges, and meeting with much hospitality from the officials of the Hudson's Bay Company, of whose kindness to him during his prolonged residence in the country he speaks in terms of high appreciation.

Trust of dying Indians.

At the commencement of the year under review the Rev. R. Faries was stationed at Fort Hope, where a new Church was opened on Easter Day, 1899, which it is said may well be termed "a gem in the backwoods." Influenza made great ravages among the Natives both in February and June, and some of the leading Christians were called to their rest. Of one of them Mr. Faries writes:—

A Christian woman's resignation.

> He was a young man, the religious leader of one of the parties, and a quiet, earnest, and faithful disciple of the Lord Jesus. He left a wife and three little children. I saw them later, and I was surprised to find that the young widow bore her bereavement with calm resignation. As a rule, Indian widows weep and bemoan their condition for months after their bereavement, and during that time they do nothing else. The young widow told me that she "had watched by the death-bed of her husband, and that she saw and heard more then to convince her of the truth of Christianity than ever she had seen and heard before; that her husband had bade her not to weep for him, for he was 'only going home.'" Besides, "the Holy Book" told her "not to sorrow as one without hope," and she firmly believed "that her husband was happy in the spirit world." This, I think, is a strong testimony to the peaceful and hopeful end of her husband, who was one of the finest characters among the Fort Hope Indians.

"A star among the Christians."

And of another he says:—"As he lived so he died, believing and trusting in the Saviour. He was one of the stars among the Christians, and his light will be sorely missed. No other Indian, within my knowledge, ever did more than he to glorify his Master and make Him known among his countrymen." It must not be supposed, however, that all the converts were satisfactory. In some of the camps which he visited Mr. Faries found that there was a species of "twilight Christianity," for the people still held in some degree to their old heathenish customs.

In July, 1899, Mr. Faries left the station and travelled by a route previously untrodden by a civilized traveller to his new sphere of work at York Factory. He refers in his Annual Letter to the trials and privations of the journey:—

> Many were the hindrances and difficulties which we had to contend against. Sickness among my men, when we were weak-handed, and made but slow progress; storms, when the lakes were too rough for us to venture on the water; numerous portages, some of which were five miles long, through soft muskegs (swamps), in which carriers sank up to the knee at every step; days of rain, when the weary travellers were only too glad to seek shelter and rest under their tents; the guide losing the road, and wandering north, east, west, and south to get back to the trail; perils by land and water; threatened with the danger of being consumed by forest-fires; tormented by myriads of mosquitoes, which with the intense heat were enough to drive a man crazy. Provisions, too, were scarce in consequence of our delay, and we had to live on small rations or else stop to hunt for food.

But he was not left entirely without companions, nor was he altogether destitute of encouragement. After travelling for five days he came across a camp of Fort Hope Indians, some of whom he baptized, and two of whom he married, and when he resumed his journey the people struck their camp and accompanied him for two days, in order that they might receive further instruction in the truths of Christianity. A week later he had a similar experience, and so great was the anxiety of one young man to hear more about Christ, that although he was so weak as hardly to be able to stand, yet he lay at the door of the missionary's tent all day so that he might receive as much teaching as possible. On his journey Mr. Faries passed through Trout Lake, where a native clergyman, the Rev. W. Dick, was in charge, and was impressed with the good work done by him, which had resulted by God's blessing in the transformation of a heathen into an at least nominally Christian community. The people at YORK FACTORY were delighted again to have a clergyman resident amongst them, but there were signs that the years during which they had been left without a pastor had been a time of falling away, for there were several cases of immorality, and habits of neglect of the things which concerned their peace had been formed. Mr. Faries set himself as soon as possible to remedy the state of affairs, conducting services and Sunday-school, as well as a day-school and a night school for the young men. He begs that he may be remembered in prayer as he labours on at his isolated post. The Bishop of Moosonee paid a short visit to York Factory in September, proceeding thence to CHURCHILL, where Mr. C. N. Chapman was in charge.

Blacklead Island.

The Rev. E. J. Peck, Mr. C. G. Sampson, and Mr. J. W. Bilby were together at BLACKLEAD ISLAND until October, when the first-named left for England. As in 1898 there was much suffering among the people owing to the lack of food, and frequent mention is made in the Annual Letters of the missionaries of the scarcity which resulted from the failure of the whaling efforts of the Eskimo. A soup kitchen was opened in October, 1898, with a view to relieving the distress in some measure, and though in the following month the capture of some seals furnished a supply of food, yet the privations continued more or less for several months, and in December, 1898, some twenty families were being fed daily. One party of hunters was belated fifty miles north of Blacklead Island; many of them were ill, they had no meat, and before they could start to sail for home they had to drag their boat for ten days over the ice and snow. Relief was sent to these men, but it arrived too late for some of them. The missionaries themselves were not altogether without anxiety about food, for the annual ship was three weeks late, and their supplies had dwindled down to one barrel and a half of flour and half a hundredweight of biscuits.

Scarcity of food.

The migratory habits of the people constituted a real difficulty in the way of instructing them. In January several families left for the north, news having reached them that seals were plentiful there, and their departure made a considerable difference in the attendance at the school and the services. But in spite of all hindrances signs were not lacking that the persistent preaching of the Gospel was making some impression, for the Sedna feast, which was described in last year's Report (page 421), was not held as usual, and little, if any, conjuring took place. It used to be customary for the conjurer or medicine man to be called in at any time of sickness or danger, and then he pretended to hold converse behind a screen with his familiar spirit, and communicated its orders to the audience, but Mr. Bilby says that although this conjuring was still carried on by the old people, it was only in secret, while the younger Eskimo declared that they did not believe in it.

From time to time lantern services were held and proved specially attractive, the slides being chiefly descriptive of the life of our Lord. The Gospels, which with portions of the Prayer-book, have been printed in Eskimo, were daily read to the people, who also studied them in their own homes, and frequently asked for an explanation of passages which they found it difficult to understand. It is not surprising that they should experience such difficulty, for some of the plants and animals mentioned in the Bible are of course entirely unknown to the Eskimo, a fact which has necessitated a somewhat free rendering of certain passages. Thus Mr. Peck says:—

> For the word "sheep" I used "the young fawn of the reindeer." "Tree" is another difficulty, because the people have never seen a tree, though they have an idea of what it is like from some Eskimo who have travelled south. I used a word meaning "that which stands upright," and explained it by showing them some blades of grass. For "wine" I put "the juice of the berry," because we have some berries which grow in the summer.

The children in the school made good progress, and four of the elder pupils at Christmas time repeated from memory the first fourteen verses of St. John's Gospel without making a single mistake. To them, and to others who distinguished themselves by their knowledge, or cleanliness, or regular attendance, prizes were given at the annual feast, when the Christmas tree—the branches of which consisted of two barrel-hoops covered with worsted of various colours, and decked with gifts sent out by the Missionary Leaves Association—afforded much pleasure to those who were fortunate enough to be present. The festivities of the missionaries themselves were of a less elaborate description, though they had their Christmas pudding, which was thawed for use after being frozen for some months!

Adherents.

The number of adult adherents is returned as ten, but none of the Natives had been received into the visible Church of Christ up to September, 1899. This, however, was partly due to the fact that a woman named Mary Ikheran, the most promising candidate for baptism, died in the autumn of 1898. When the work at Blacklead Island was commenced, she was one of the most degraded of the Heathen; but she soon became interested in the Gospel message, and quickly learned to read. She was a great help to the missionaries, and used her influence over her fellow-countrymen for good. After the death of Mr. Parker in 1896, she expressed a wish to be baptized, but she required further instruction, and was called to her eternal rest before the rite could be administered. Since there is no place on the island where a grave can be dug, the bodies of the dead have to be laid in boxes, &c., on the top of the rocks. Mr. Peck describing the funeral says:—

Death of a catechumen.

> The relatives of the deceased having selected a suitable spot, the corpse was then placed on an empty sledge, and several of the men hauled it along over the snow and rocks. During the early morning a snow-storm had been gathering, and shortly after we started it came upon us in all its fury, so in the midst of the blinding drift we had to struggle on. After a very short service at the grave—if I may call it such—we returned, battling again with the furious wind and driving snow.

Although a Christian service was conducted at the funeral, the husband of the deceased woman followed the superstitious custom of the Eskimo, according to which when any one dies in a tupik (a seal-skin tent with a bank of snow all round), or an iglovegak (a snow-house), the place has to be abandoned.

But it was not only on the island itself that the effort was made to proclaim the Good Tidings. From March 24th until April 7th, Mr. Peck was absent on an itinerating tour, in the course of which he visited a number of Eskimo encampments. The following extracts from his journal, the greater part of which was written in the dwellings of the people, sufficiently indicate the nature of his experiences:— Eskimo encampments.

March 25th.—Four hours' brisk drive with sledge and dogs brought us to an Eskimo encampment, situated near a rugged island called Omanakruk. Some of the little children, who had seen our sledge coming in the distance, ran out to meet us. After seeing the people here, passed on again over the frozen sea in a northerly direction. About 6 p.m. we reached a large Arctic village situated at a place called Noovoyet. After refreshment, which consisted of Arctic meat-balls, tea, and bread, I went to visit. I was received in a very cordial spirit, which cheered and encouraged me greatly. In laying the truths of the Gospel before our hearers I was wonderfully helped by the Holy Spirit, and some who scarcely seemed on former occasions to pay the least attention, appeared to be moved and impressed. An Arctic village.

26th (Sunday).—My time was divided between holding meetings (three during the day) in different houses and having personal dealing with individuals who needed special teaching, &c. As regards our experiences in this connexion, I find the people extremely slow to grasp the spiritual sides of the great subjects brought before them. We seem to be now in the position of those who break up the stony ground, and plant the good seed.

31st (Good Friday).—Having heard that some Eskimo were living on the ice in a northerly direction, I thought it well to go to them, and try and do something for their spiritual good. After passing through some very rough ice, which was piled up in great heaps, some of which were about ten feet high, we reached a larger expanse of smooth ice, over which our dogs trotted along at a brisk pace. Reached our friends in the evening, and then set to work visiting. There are altogether nine snow-houses at this place, which are inhabited by some fifty souls, young and old. Some of this party are very ignorant on account of their not having lived for any length of time at Blacklead Island. One old woman, in particular, seemed remarkably backward, and I spent some time teaching her concerning God and His works, pointing out that His handiwork is, as it were, obvious to our very senses. She responded readily to my remarks, but asked questions concerning God which, I must confess, I found difficult to answer. These poor creatures, living as it were, only a stage above the brute beasts, put a carnal meaning on almost everything one may tell them, and it is extremely difficult to make them understand the great spiritual aspects of God's character.

Mr. Sampson spent four months at the beginning of the year at Kikkerton, living in a snow-house, and holding regular services. The temperature at times was as low as 52° below zero. Sundry adventures were met with. On one occasion the dogs broke into the snow church—the window of which was made of photographic films, which had failed, sewn in a leathern frame and frozen in—and drank the oil in the lamps. On another the buildings collapsed owing to a rapid thaw. Mr. Sampson found the people very carnally-minded, volatile and fickle, Kikkerton.

without any depth of feeling, and absolutely unsentimental; but Mr. Peck on visiting the place was struck with the attention and orderly behaviour at the services, and says that the state of the Kikkerton Eskimo in 1899 was very different from what it was when they were first visited four years before.

Although the hearts of the workers have not been cheered by any baptisms, yet they have been encouraged by the knowledge that the influence of the Mission has spread. A woman named Pablo, who was taught at Blacklead Island, went some time since with her people along Davis Straits, taking her books with her and teaching others; and a party of the Natives, after spending the winter at the Mission Station, left in 1899 for Signia, a whaling station near Frobisher Bay, carrying with them the Gospels and hymn-books for their fellows. And in spite of the loneliness and hardships which have to be endured, Mr. Peck, twenty-three years of whose life have been spent for the Eskimo, states that he has never had such spiritual joy as in Cumberland Sound.

An Eskimo woman carries the Gospel to Davis Straits.

III. DIOCESES OF SASKATCHEWAN AND CALGARY.

Archdeacon and Mrs. J. W. Tims sailed for the Mission in August, 1899.

Archdeacon J. A. Mackay is the Secretary of the Society's work in the Diocese of Saskatchewan. No report has been received from him of Prince Albert, nor from the Rev. J. Badger, the native pastor at St. James', nor from the Rev. J. Taylor of Sandy Lake.

Stanley.

A misfortune overtook the Rev. R. McLennan at Stanley soon after Christmas Day, 1898, for the Mission-house was burnt down, and most of his books were involved in the destruction. Good health, however, was enjoyed at the station during the year under review, though one of the Christian Indians, "an active worker for Christ, and a noble example to all," was called to his rest. He held family prayers at eight o'clock in the morning of the day of his death, sang a hymn in Cree, and passed quietly away a couple of hours later. Mr. McLennan resided at Big Stone River from Christmas to Easter, and paid three visits to Pelican Narrows, eighty-seven miles from Stanley. The number of baptized Native Christians under his care was 728.

Death of an active Cree Christian.

The fact has often been emphasized that the number of baptized Christians at a station does not by any means represent the total results of the work accomplished, for such an estimate not only involves the inaccuracy which arises from the unavoidable defects of any attempt to tabulate spiritual results, but it also fails to take account of those converts who have entered into their rest. This is made clear by a glance at the figures which are given by the Rev. J. Hines, of DEVON, for Devon. while the number of baptized Native Christians is quoted at 1,400, it is said that since the commencement of the Mission in 1840 no fewer than 2,510 Indians have been baptized, without counting those received into the visible Church at the out-stations since 1890. Mr. Hines, who suffered considerably from rheumatism, mentions the disastrous floods which prevailed in some parts of his district, destroying a great part of the garden produce. Most of the Indians in the district are Christians, and the last polygamist was baptized during the year, himself asking that the rite might be administered as publicly as possible, and in that way giving proof that he was in earnest, for when the Indians are half-hearted in what they do they prefer secrecy. A notable case was that of an old man named Oosawusk, or Yellow Bear, who had been baptized fifty years before, but had relapsed into Heathenism. The death of his wife, a sincere Christian woman, in 1897, made a deep impression on him, and he then resolved to reform. Meeting Mr. Hines in the spring of 1899, he declared that he had been true to his resolutions, and requested to be admitted once more to the Holy Communion; but he was told that the rattle charm, some "bad medicine," and one or two other things which he possessed, must first be destroyed as a pledge of his sincerity. After a struggle he agreed to do what was required, and on Whit Sunday he cast away the relics of Heathenism, and was admitted to the Lord's Table. When the services of the day were over, some of the people met for a talk on spiritual matters, and old Yellow Bear is reported to have spoken as follows:—

An Indian's allegory.

You have all seen a little bird's nest; how nicely it is made, and how clean it is inside. Thus the care of the mother is shown for her young. Then you have seen the eggs, and finally the little birds. These little birds, when first hatched, lie motionless in the nest; they seem almost lifeless, as well as almost bare. By-and-by they gather strength, and their feathers take shape, and they are able to stand up in their nest and flap their wings. Then in due course their little wings are covered with beautiful feathers, some silver coloured and some gold, and they look very pretty. But why are these beautiful wings given to the little birds? Is it that they may lie still in their nest and adorn their own little home? No; they are given to them for a purpose, and that purpose is to enable them to fly about, and become useful in many ways. This is my parable.

Now to-day I am like those little helpless birds lying bare and motionless in their nest. My soul is like the nest. My heavenly Father made it for me, and it is therefore very good, and in His sight very valuable, otherwise He would have cast me away as unprofitable long ago, because I have been very bad. Now He has given me His Holy Spirit to dwell in my soul; at present it is only weak in me like the very little birds I have spoken about, but by-and-by, perhaps soon, it will grow strong in me, and I shall be able to go about and be of use. I desire to bear witness to the truth in those places where I have in days gone by joined in heathen ceremonies, and to let my new life shine like the beautiful feathers on the little birds' wings.

The out-stations were visited as there was opportunity, but much hardship was experienced during the journeys. The new church at Cedar Lake, where the Rev. C. J. Pritchard was stationed, was enlarged, but the work there and at Grand Rapids was hindered by the conduct of ungodly white men engaged in the fishing industry. Mr. Hines writes :—

Ungodly white men.

> These people have no regard for the Sabbath, and drink is very plentiful among them, and that Name which is above every name is often sounded by them, but not in prayer and praise, but by way of cursing. This is very confusing to the Indians, who are accustomed to use that Name with reverence only. There are only two Heathen now at Cedar Lake Mission, and in conversation with one of these last October, when I was in that part of my district for a fortnight, he said, "What a lie you tell the Indians about the white man's religion! I have just returned from the High Portage, where the white men are fishing in large numbers, and there does not seem to be a praying man among them. They work on Sundays as well as on any other day; they drink fire-water; they say and do all sorts of bad things. If the white man's religion is good, why does it not have a better effect upon these white men?" And he left me saying he would never be a praying man!

The work at Red Earth and Birch River was maintained by private contributions, the former being the only heathen station in the district. Sturgeon Lake and other places received visits from the Rev. J. R. Settee, who resided at Cumberland during the summer and at Pine Bluff in the winter.

No report has been received from the Revs. R. Inkster or D. D. Macdonald, who are stationed at BATTLEFORD.

Fort Pitt.

The Rev. J. R. Matheson describes the work at FORT PITT as "in a very cheering and prosperous condition." The medical branch, carried on by Mrs. Matheson, who is a fully-qualified doctor, proved a great blessing, two adults were baptized, and the only disappointment was the fact that nine of the pupils, the children of half-breed Romanists, were induced by the influence of the priests to leave the school. Collections were made at the station at the time of the Centenary, and Mr. Matheson, in forwarding the amount to the C.M. House, says :—

> I am sure that you will have had many infinitely larger offerings from some of your Missions and missionaries, but I do assure you that from none do you receive a more hearty and sincere God-speed, and none give a cent with a better heart, than we do; our only regret is that we cannot send ten times more to express our sympathy and love. In a postscript to his letter he refers to a note written in pencil from an Indian, which he encloses, giving from himself and family three dollars, and saying, "This is for our thanks. You know Indians are poor, but God is not poor, God has everything. I was very glad when I hear you speak to us about this thing.—I am, Joseph Quinney." Mr. Matheson explains that all the money these Indians get in a year is their treaty money, amounting to five dollars per head.

An Indian's Centenary thank-offering.

No report of the work at FORT MCLEOD has been received from the Rev. A. de B. Owen.

A novel course was taken by the Bishop of Calgary during the year in creating three honorary canonries, to be held by clergy within his diocese, whose function should be to promote the study of certain subjects committed to them, and to preach on those subjects in his pro-cathedral or elsewhere, as the Bishop should determine, at least once a year. One of the three canonries, appropriately called the canonry of St. Paul, is for the study of Foreign Missions. The Bishop appointed the Rev. H. W. G. Stocken, who was stationed at BLACKFOOT CROSSING, to be the first holder of this office. The Canon reports that a new church, erected in memory of Mrs. Stocken's parents, was consecrated at the close of 1899, and remarks with thankfulness upon the zeal of the older Christians in making the Gospel known to others. Regular services, it is true, were held by the catechists, two of whom became candidates for Holy Orders, and in company with other Christians of their Reserve undertook an evangelistic tour; but the bulk of the teaching was "round the fireside," for the Indian is very sociable and loves to converse with his friends for hours together. Nor were the children of the schools behind-hand in the good work, for one of the senior boys when in camp had a long conversation with an old man about Christianity, urging him to put himself under instruction; and a striking incident occurred in connexion with the Girls' Home, which is thus narrated :—

Blackfoot Crossing.

Teaching "round the fireside."

> A girl of about thirteen years, Fanny, remarked to her young companions one day after her baptism, "I don't like to think of my poor old grandmother dying without the knowledge of God; let us send for her and teach her ourselves." So they sent for her, and after the old woman had had a meal, the children took her into their playroom, and having seated her on the floor, gathered round her in a circle and taught her what they themselves knew of the salvation which is in Christ Jesus.

But while many of the converts thus gave evidence of their sincerity, a few others fell into sin, some of whom were happily restored. One in particular is mentioned who went to one of the heathen dances, and while there seized hold of the "tom-tom" and began to beat it saying, "Perhaps God will kill me for this." Several of the Heathen tried to dissuade him, but he persisted, and a few days afterwards became seriously ill. Happily he recovered after being taken to the hospital, and the sickness was the means of leading him to apparently sincere repentance. The work at the Hospital continued to increase under Dr. Turner, the honorary resident physician, who was assisted by Miss Booth and Miss Esam, all these being independent labourers: the in-patients numbered thirty-eight, and nearly five thousand visits of out-patients were recorded. The encouragement which was vouchsafed to the missionaries in 1898 continued and even increased during the year under review, for no less than thirty-one adults, seventeen of whom were men, were baptized. Canon Stocken gives the following account of two of them :—

A former medicine man baptized.

Wolf Collar is a man of close upon fifty years of age, a native chief, and a prominent medicine-man. Before his confirmation he gave up the whole of his heathen and medicine paraphernalia, saying that he was conscious that they represented nothing but evil, and that he was desirous not to be a half-hearted Christian. He wished God to cleanse his heart thoroughly and to keep it entirely. You will understand a little the reality of his conversion when I tell you that by giving up his heathen medicine practice he really sacrificed his wealth, for as a medicine-man he obtained from one to six ponies for a single case. Horses are the Indian's riches. We praise God for this. Nearly the whole of this dear man's family are now followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, and it is deeply interesting to see him working so hard learning to read. He is doing exceedingly well; Chief Little Axe remarked to me to-day, "Silas Wolf Collar is one of those whom the Holy Spirit teaches, so that his brains work quickly. He does not walk, he runs."

Samuel Leather is a much younger man, about thirty years of age. Once, less than two years ago, there was no man on the Reserve who was (in a way) less welcome in the Mission-house than Leather. He was both surly and impudent, and now, what a change! His beaming face and gentle manner make him most welcome, and a dear earnest fellow he is. He is at present living with Wolf Collar, and the two of them are working in every way they can to make known the "good news" to their friends. A few months ago Samuel met with a bad accident, and was brought to the hospital with compound fracture of the leg. He was with us for nearly six months, and in that time he learned to read in Blackfoot and to play the auto-harp. The time of his sickness was a time of much blessing to him. He ripened much in Christian experience.

The Mission at the South Camp, which was under the charge of the Rev. C. H. P. Owen, was hindered by the opposition of the Roman Catholics, but nevertheless some progress was apparent.

Sarcee Reserve.

Archdeacon J. W. Tims was warmly greeted on his return from England by the people of SARCEE RESERVE, where the work was carried on during his absence by the Rev. S. J. Stocken and the Rev. G. H. Hogbin, Principal of the Indian Industrial School near Calgary, while Canon H. W. G. Stocken twice visited the Mission and baptized some of the Natives. The Archdeacon, soon after his arrival, admitted into the visible Church an adult Indian and two of his daughters, who were scholars in St. Barnabas' Home. That institution had fifteen inmates, five of whom, presumably including the two girls just referred to, were baptized at their own request during the year. One of the children, during an illness which proved fatal, was instrumental in persuading her mother to think seriously about religion, and the woman was baptized before her daughter died. An effort was made with some success to induce the Indians to give in kind towards spiritual work. Ten adults were baptized at the Peigan Reserve, having heard the Gospel from one of their number who had visited Blackfoot Crossing. One man remarked, "We were blind, but you missionaries are to us as eyes. Now we see."

And another, formerly a polygamist, declared:—"I open my heart, I hide nothing, I have joined the war parties, I have killed men, I have been full of wickedness. Now I want to put it all away from me and serve the Son of God. I believe He died for me." Charms, drums, necklaces, and other relics of Heathenism were all given up by the converts, who begged for a missionary to teach them more about God, and offered to supply the logs in order that a church might be built in their village. The Archdeacon spent some time in translating parts of the Bible and Prayer-book into the syllabic character which has been adapted to the Blackfoot language, being assisted by a young Indian, who he hoped might eventually become a catechist.

Symbols of heathenism given up.

IV. DIOCESE OF ATHABASCA.

The Rev. Alfred S. White, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, has been added to the staff of workers in the Diocese of Athabasca, in local connexion.

Reinforcement.

The Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Warwick sailed for the Mission in May, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Lucas came home in August.

Bishop Young, who is obliged by the state of his health to contemplate resigning his See, has kindly furnished the Committee with a review of the work in his diocese, in which he lays stress upon the generous action of the British and Foreign Bible Society in undertaking to print and publish the whole Bible in the Cree syllabic characters. He also refers to the action of the Dominion Government in offering treaty to the Indians. Regarding the latter he says:—

The Dominion Government and the Indians.

> It will be followed by an increase of traders and other white men in the country. In the first instance, this will be attended with a good deal of concurrent evil. It will also tend to draw the Indians from their occupation as hunters and trappers, and unavoidably cause a considerable amount of unsettlement. On the other hand, it is a necessary step in the opening-out and development of the country. It anticipates the certain occupation of the country by miners, settlers, &c., with some amount of order and government. It will restrain the Indians from superstitious panics and bloodshed, too often the sad result of wetiyo fears. It will preserve them from the periodical starvations that have again and again decimated, if not worse, whole camps. It will eventuate in more settled habits of life, in their taking up farming, and receiving educational advantages for their children. The future of the Indian, under a just and kind Government, is not extinction; rather is it by degrees absorption—the addition of one element in the mixture of races that is going to make up the future population of Western Canada.

It should be stated that the Government when offering treaty give the people the option of "scrip" or "treaty," the former, which constitutes a title to so many acres of land, often being preferred by the Indians, since they are able at once to obtain cash from the traders in its stead.

Lesser Slave Lake.

Greatly to the disappointment of the Rev. G. Holmes, who was stationed at LESSER SLAVE LAKE, the majority of the Natives amongst whom he worked accepted "scrip," a fact which was likely seriously to prejudice the Indian Boarding-school, for only the "treaty" children have any claim on the Government grant, the loss of which consequently appeared probable. The institution was crowded throughout the year, some thirty boarders being accommodated, six of whom were supported by friends in England, and six or seven more by the help of clothing received through the Missionary Leaves Association and the Women's Auxiliary of Canada. The bright testimony of the senior boy in the Home, who died after a long and painful illness, spending every conscious moment of his last night on earth in prayer, served to brighten "the dark and discouraging picture which increasing drunkenness and immorality" had painted, practically the only other cheering incidents being the admission into the Church of ten recruits from Rome. Of one of these Mr. Holmes writes:—

"That is just what I want."

He is a poor man dying of consumption, to whom I have been ministering for several months. A short time ago he had a remarkable dream, in which he thought he was dying in darkness and despair, when there appeared before him a book, which was open; and while he was looking at it, he heard a voice saying to him, "Why don't you follow the book which is given to guide you." After listening to his story, I took out my Bible to read to him, and he at once said, "The book I saw was like the one you have brought." I had opened my Bible in a casual way, and when I looked, my eye fell upon Psalm xxxii., which I read to him. After reading it, and making a few comments, he said, "That is just what I want." As I was leaving he called me back, saying that he wanted me to hear his faith before I left, as it might be his last opportunity of telling me. "I want to tell you," said he, "in the presence of my wife and family, that I do not trust in any priest or bishop, or in any human being for forgiveness, but in Him alone who died to save me."

The supposed richness of the country in gold, and the increasing competition in the fur trade, led to the springing up of a small town about eight miles from the Mission, in which Mr. Holmes held a monthly service during the winter for the benefit of the English who were among the gold-seekers. He speaks of the terrible privations which men endured for the sake of the wealth which they hoped to obtain, large numbers of them perishing of scurvy, and asks, "When will men be equally zealous for Christ?" He himself did not escape hardship, and he gives a graphic account of his experience after a journey to Edmonton which he had been obliged to undertake:—

A journey in a temperature of 58 deg. below zero.

At the Landing I engaged a young half-breed, with his pony and flat sleigh, to accompany me to Lesser Slave Lake. By the time we had stacked on to the sleigh our own provisions, blankets and a few parcels, besides the pony's provender for a week, I saw that the prospect of my being able to ride was small. But the extreme cold made it necessary to walk and run, in order to keep up the circulation. We left the Landing with the thermometer 40° below zero, and it steadily descended to 58° below zero, about Dr. Nansen's lowest record.

The wind was blowing north-west down the river, consequently we had to face it; and, though clad in our heavy fur coats, we were frequently driven into the bush for shelter, each time to find our faces and fingers frozen. Our calculations were to reach the south end of Lesser Slave Lake in four days, and spend Sunday amongst the Indians there; but before the end of the second day our good track was almost filled up with drifting snow. The third day we were obliged to take to our snow-shoes; and at the end of the fourth day we found ourselves sixty miles from the Lake, with our supply of hay exhausted, and only one small loaf of bread left, besides a little beef and bacon. As we travelled on in the dark and stinging cold, trying to reach the mouth of Lesser Slave River, I lifted up my heart in prayer to God, asking that in His good providence we might meet some one who would be able to help us forward; though, humanly speaking, it seemed like praying for the impossible. In a small cabin near the mouth of Slave River, I remembered that on our way down a man had left a small amount of hay; but the difficulty was, in the dark, to find the cabin, which was standing high up on the bank amongst the thick trees. When we had reached the place, as we thought, we halted for a moment to take our bearings, and just at that moment I heard the joyful sound of dogs, and the welcome voice of a man. I ejaculated, "Thank God!" and called to my friend, asking him if he heard anything, to which he replied "No." However, about twenty minutes later, we were standing before a cheerful fire, which had just been made by two trappers, who like ourselves (but contrary to their custom) happened to be travelling late in order to reach the mouth of the river.

The only concern we now had was for our poor horse, having failed to find the cabin. But after telling our troubles to these two "angels"—as we regarded them—one of them said, "Well, I can lend you some hay for the night, until you find the cabin by daylight." I could hardly believe the man, until I saw the hay on his sleigh. It was a most unheard of thing to carry hay on a dog sleigh. These men had agreed to meet another traveller with hay for his horses, but who did not arrive until next morning. He proved to be a native trader from the Lake (another angel!) with a good supply of bread, which he kindly shared with us. Infidelity would say, "A remarkable series of coincidences," but to us it was a direct and immediate answer to prayer. That these men happened to reach that particular spot where we had decided to camp was indeed remarkable, but that they had brought hay, and that another from the opposite direction overtook us with bread to supply our personal needs, was something more than remarkable in the ordinary sense, it was providential.

Remarkable providences.

During the year news reached Lesser Slave Lake of a terrible occurrence which illustrates the depavity and superstition of Heathenism. At Sturgeon Lake, where were about three hundred Natives, without a resident missionary of any denomination, the Indians believed that the "Muche Manito" (Evil Spirit) entered their camp, for one man showed signs of being possessed with a craving for human flesh. As soon as the symptoms appeared, the "medicine men" and others resorted to their tom-toms and heathen incantations, which proved unsuccessful. Then the bravest and strongest men were chosen to kill the wetigo (cannibal), and the poor fellow was tortured to death by his own friends in a manner too horrible to describe. Directly the news was received at Lesser Slave Lake, the mounted police hurried to the scene, and were just in time to save one or two more, who were developing symptoms of cannibalism. The principal offenders were arrested and taken to Edmonton for trial. One of the prisoners died on the way, probably from fear. This proved a fortunate occurrence for the rest, since he, the dead man, was made the "scapegoat." The only evidence they could give was, that the dead man was the one to commit the crime. When to the superstitions of the Natives are added the vices of the white man, fostered by the advent of whisky smugglers, it can easily be understood that the work of the missionary is difficult indeed.

Sad instance of superstitious barbarity.

White Fish Lake.

Rather more encouragement was vouchsafed to the Rev. W. G. White at WHITE FISH LAKE during the year 1899 than in 1898, for the attendances both at the Sunday services and the Sunday-school improved, and he was able to open the new church on November 26th, the building being so crowded that the boys had to be seated on the ground. Mrs. White's knitting-class was a decided success, and it was proposed to commence a day-school early in the New Year. Some difficulty was caused by the treaty negotiations, for the people thought that the missionaries and the Government were in league to bring some evil upon them and their country; they absolutely refused to accept either scrip or treaty, but that was not regarded as an unmixed evil, since in the summer of 1900 only the latter would be offered to them. Mr. White paid a visit to Bear Lake, fifty or sixty miles from his station, and also to two families living at a distance by another sheet of water.

Wapuskaw.

The Rev. C. Weaver speaks of the teaching at WAPUSKAW as consisting of "line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, there a little," and of the people as having advanced in temporal affairs in consequence of treaty having been made with them, but not having made corresponding progress in spiritual matters. He maintained the Boarding-school for Indian children with much difficulty, for no aid was given by the Government, and the school being in the heart of the Indian country the transport of provisions and other necessaries was extremely expensive. Some trouble was caused by one of the Natives calling in the Roman Catholic priests to the adherents of the Mission in times of sickness. In December Mr. Weaver visited Big Lake, Bear Lake, and Trout Lake, meeting several bands of Indians, and was grieved by the old chief of one tribe refusing to pay any heed to the Gospel message, pleading as his excuse the fact that white men killed one another, and saying, "Praying-men come here and spend a few hours and tell us of the Gospel, but we cannot understand it in so short a time."

"We cannot understand in so short a time."

Shaftesbury.

The Mission at SHAFTESBURY, on the Smoky River, was originally set on foot with the idea that if the Natives were offered help and teaching in farming they would take up land in the immediate neighbourhood of the station, and so come under religious instruction; but these hopes were doomed to disappointment, for though a few Indian and half-breed families did gather round at first, their old roving habits soon asserted themselves. Some, however, were continually coming and going, and the Rev. D. Currie resided at the station and endeavoured to influence these migratory people. The work among the Beaver Indians at ST. JOHN'S was carried on by the Rev. H. Robinson, but was still in its initial stages. That "faithful and devoted missionary," to use Bishop Young's expression, the Rev. M. Scott, continued to reside at VERMILLION, and was joined there during the year by the Rev. A. S. White, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, but Mrs. Scott's ill-health made it only too probable that her husband would shortly be obliged to resign.

Chipewyan.

The Rev. A. J. Warwick, of CHIPEWYAN, says that Rome was first in that part of the Mission-field, and will probably always have a preponderating influence, but that the little Protestant community is well grounded in the Scriptures. The attendance at the services was distinctly encouraging, and the people made decided advance in the matter of contributing towards the expenses of the work. Mr. Warwick writes:—

> It has been the custom of the Hudson's Bay Company's official in charge of this post to supply the firewood for heating the church. But I felt it would be better if each family could be got to give a share of this, and therefore I gave notice in church that I should like to see each house contributing a certain proportion of wood, and not expecting the Hudson's Bay Company to do it all. The result was that by the next Sunday there was enough wood deposited in front of the church to last the year, and everybody seemed pleased to have been able to help.

Nor was the interest of the people confined to themselves, for they were taught about their responsibility concerning missionary work, and were reminded of what they owed to the British and Foreign Bible Society as well as to the C.M.S. The special collection made on behalf of these two Societies on Advent Sunday amounted to $55, a sum the more remarkable since the largest previous collection had been $35, nearly $30 of which came from one or two persons. This good result was due to the fact that Mr. Warwick preached preparatory sermons on the three Sundays before that on which the collection was made. A working party, instituted and conducted by Mrs. Warwick, who was for several years a nurse in the London Hospital, was successful, as were the Sunday-school and day-school, in the latter of which Miss Warwick rendered valued assistance. Several deaths occurred in the latter half of the year, and the people came to the missionaries with all sorts of requests, so that they were "the doctors, nurses, clothiers, and feeders of all in want!" No portion of the Scriptures has yet been printed in the Chipewyan language, but the Rev. J. R. Lucas (now at home) has accomplished some translation work in that tongue.

V. DIOCESE OF MACKENZIE RIVER.

ARCHDEACON R. McDonald sailed for the Mission in May, 1899.

In a helpful review of the work in his diocese, Bishop Reeve refers to the reported discovery of gold which led to the influx of so many miners as having proved "a fake," but expresses his hope that what the men had seen during their stay in the diocese would cause them to regard missionary work with different feelings from those which they in their ignorance had previously entertained. He quotes the unbiassed testimony of four different persons—two military officers, a doctor, and an ex-mayor—concerning the Mission and the character of the converts, adding that he omits from his Annual Letter much more which is too laudatory for repetition. The testimonies quoted are as follows:—

Testimony of travellers to reality of the work.

> "As an instance of how goods can be left unmolested anywhere, that is, cached, a quantity of flour was left along the river bank, where it must have been seen by dozens of Indians, and although it remained there eighteen months, it was not disturbed."
>
> "Mr. and Mrs. Marsh and assistants are doing a good work at this distant Mission of the Church [Hay River], and I tell you they deserve the sympathy of all Christian people in the work they are doing in this Mission among these poor, miserable Natives. Mr. Marsh has been six years amongst these people working hard; has a school and Mission where he cares for between ten and twenty native children, clothing, feeding, and teaching them. He has a fine garden, and is teaching the Natives many industrious habits; but, oh! what a sacrifice to live amongst those poor, degraded, low, filthy, indolent folk!"
>
> "There is a fine Mission here, with 120 communicants, so that you see through the good work done here [Fort McPherson] by these missionaries many of these wild men of the woods have been brought to a knowledge of the truth."
>
> "It has been my great pleasure not only to meet the Indians, but to attend their services; and though unacquainted with the language, I was struck to a marked extent by the impressiveness of the Indians and the great fervour with which the Indian preachers emphasized their discourses—a very sufficient proof of the good work carried out. . . . Of Mr. Stringer I cannot say too much. A more devout, God-fearing, and hard-working man I have hardly met, and those from St. Michael's who are here say that there the Eskimo, the whalers, and the officers of the revenue cutters are loud in his praises."

Fort Simpson.

Thirteen additional scholars were received at the Diocesan School at FORT SIMPSON, where the Bishop resided, but some difficulty about finances was experienced, since the small grant made by the Government in 1896 was still unpaid, and the work was also affected by the resignation because of ill-health of the matron, Miss Marsh, whose place was taken by Miss Tims. The Bishop paid a visit to HAY RIVER, where the Rev. T. J. Marsh was stationed, and also to FORT NORMAN. Ten persons were confirmed at the last-mentioned station.

Fort Wrigley.

It was mentioned in last year's Report that the outlook for the Rev. and Mrs. W. Spendlove, who were stationed at FORT WRIGLEY, was dark in consequence of the loss through an accident of the supplies for the year, but the missionaries rested on the promise of God, and were not put to shame, for Mr. Spendlove was able to write on January 6th, 1899:—

Lost supplies made good.

The Lord knew all about our need, and put it into the hearts of some unknown to us, who could not possibly have known of our loss, to send us some supplies which fortunately reached us before navigation closed. What a mercy! . . . Our lives are spared and our needs supplied! Several lives have been sacrificed during the past year on the line of travel through dangerous rapids and treacherous lakes; but a kind Providence has taken care of me and my dear wife, though we have passed over the same ground several times. . . . We are quite accustomed to being surrounded by ice and snow and to enduring intense cold, but the poverty of the Indians is hard for them to bear and for us to witness. In former years I have seen these poor creatures die of starvation, and I have nearly shared the same fate more than once.

Such accidents as that referred to are apparently not uncommon, for again in 1899 part of the year's supplies were lost, and the rest damaged. It is difficult for those who live in England to appreciate the loneliness of some of the missionaries in North-West Canada, but some idea of it may be gained from a consideration of the fact that Mrs. Spendlove has no white woman within 140 miles with whom she could converse. The isolation was however somewhat broken by the advent of whites in search of gold. Upwards of one thousand men, it is said, passed into the region, which previously was looked upon as reserve territory, several of whom lost their lives on the dangerous rapids or treacherous lakes, or through the intense cold. The endeavour to counteract the proselytizing efforts of the Roman Catholic priests met with success; the clothing sent out from home was carefully distributed amongst the poor; and the simple medical work was much appreciated by the people. One miner made an offering of $20 out of gratitude for his recovery from illness; and an Indian whose wife was restored to health gave a thankoffering which consisted of a whole moose. Seven children, almost naked, were collected from the mountains, and sent down to the Mission-school at Hay River, and ten adults were confirmed in June, amongst them being a man who was formerly one of the wildest of the Indians.

The people of Fort Macpherson accorded Archdeacon McDonald a warm reception on his return from England. Soon after his arrival he examined and presented for confirmation thirty-one persons who had been prepared during his absence by the Rev. C. E. Whitaker.

Herschel Island.

The Rev. and Mrs. I. O. Stringer met with some encouragement at Herschel Island, for their medical work was successful, in a time of much sickness, in winning the confidence of the people and causing their faith in the medicine-men to wane. But notwithstanding the care of the missionaries, who were kept busy day and night attending to the sick, five of the Natives died in three weeks. Since no ship came from San Francisco in the fall of the year, there was some failure of supplies, which caused a little difficulty in working the school, but the children made good progress, and it was evident that through the educational work influence over both young and old was being gained. As soon as the ice formed, Mr. Stringer made a trying journey to visit the Eskimo east of the Mackenzie River. He wrote in January, 1899:—

On a route before untraversed by white men.

I went further to the east than I have ever been before, and spent a short time in each of the six villages scattered along the coast. The trip was made inland over the lakes and highlands of the barren grounds, crossing the chain of lakes known on the chart as Eskimo Lake, which, by the way, is not one lake, but a chain of three large lakes and one small one. The water in these is salt, and they are really inland seas connected with the Arctic Ocean, and extending for a hundred miles or more to the south-west. It may appear (and perhaps is) quite novel to travel over lands where no white man has ever been. The novelty wears off very quickly, though, when one has to face the storms and isolation of those desolate wilds. I had as a guide a boy (the only one I could obtain from one of the villages) who was both deaf and stupid and somewhat lazy. We had, of course, to carry our wood from the sea coast or do without any. We had a cotton tent that had seen many winters' rough usage, and a small stove made out of an old stove-pipe. By means of these we were able to keep warm while the wood lasted. When on the return trip our wood gave out, and we had to travel in the face of a blinding snow-storm or freeze in the tent, and for part of the night we were hopelessly lost, and without any means of camping or getting ourselves warm except by running, the boy gave out entirely, and while he sat on the sledge I had to run before the dogs in the face of the storm without track or guide of any kind. By keeping right into the wind I judged we were not far astray. I was quite glad, when daybreak came, to find ourselves not far from the village.

He met with a kind reception from the chief and his party, and afterwards moved with them to the coast. The Eskimo entered heartily into the services, but so far as could be seen did not accept the message of salvation, and Mr. Stringer was left in doubt as to whether he should describe them as stony-ground or thorny-ground hearers.

VI. DIOCESE OF SELKIRK.

The Rev. and Mrs. B. Totty came home in August, 1899.

In a brief but interesting account of the work in the Diocese of Selkirk, Bishop Bompas, who has nearly completed thirty-five years of service in the Mission-field, mentions the fact that though he was unable to carry out his proposal to open a new station at Hotalingue River, yet he paid a visit to it in the course of the year, and Mr. Totty also passed through on his way home. Two Indians of that region who were under sentence of death for the murder of a white man were visited in prison, and baptized shortly before their execution. The total number of adult baptisms during the year was eleven.

The work at BUXTON, Forty Mile, was put under the Rev. J. Hawksley, in June, 1899. He made sundry improvements in the buildings of the Mission, and held services for the miners as well as for the Indians. Many of the latter were carried off by epidemic sicknesses which followed in the wake of the white immigrants. Buxton.

The Rev. and Mrs. B. Totty (now at home) resided at MOOSEHIDE, the Indian village in the neighbourhood of Dawson or Klondyke, until their return to England, when their place was taken by the Bishop, who thus voluntarily endured the trial of a prolonged separation from Mrs. Bompas in order that the work might not suffer. A new church was erected in the spring of 1899, and was sometimes quite filled by the Indians, some of whom were able to follow the reading of the New Testament. Several of them were confirmed later in the year, all elderly people, one of them having formerly been a medicine man. A Bible-class for women was regularly held, and the school carried on, but the attendance at the latter varied, being smaller in the summer than in the winter. Several adult baptisms took place, one being of a woman who suffered much cruel treatment at the hands of her husband. Moose-hide. A long separation for the work's sake.

The work at what is known as St. Andrew's Mission at SELKIRK, on Pelly River, suffered through the station being unavoidably abandoned for two years, and Archdeacon T. H. Canham found on his return that during his absence the Roman Catholic priests had been endeavouring to gain a hold over the Natives. He mentions that great changes have taken and are taking place in the conditions under which the work is prosecuted, for although Selkirk is distant 180 miles from Dawson, the stream of travellers passes through it. The Bishop writes that the land surrounding the C.M.S. Mission, and including the Mission, has been laid out in town lots, and partly sold by the Canadian Government, but an undertaking has been given that the missionaries shall not be disturbed, and it is hoped that a free title to the site of the buildings will be granted. Shortly before September the telegraph wire was erected connecting Selkirk with Skagway, and it was reported that before long the railway would reach the place. The increased facilities of communication resulted in the widening of the field, for it became possible to visit tribes of Indians who had previously been neglected. It was amid the difficulties consequent on these changes, enhanced by the meagreness of Bible translations, that the Archdeacon carried on his work. During the greater part of the year four services and a school were held on Sundays, and daily school during the week, and a steady increase was witnessed in the interest of the Selkirk.

Indians in these measures for the promotion of their highest welfare.

Fort Yukon.

The Rev. J. Hawksley reports in his Annual Letter on the work at FORT YUKON, a place in the United States Territory of Alaska, which is much frequented by Indians. Some of the Natives were in great distress from lack of food, one party of Indians engaged in hunting in the mountains about one hundred miles distant from Fort Yukon being reduced to great straits. They were met by some miners who reported their condition at the Fort, having first supplied them with such food as they could spare. Immediately the news was received a relief fund was organized, and two white men set off with a sledgeload of provisions, by means of which they were enabled to save most of the people. Every Sunday two services were held for the Indians and one for the white population, and the daily evening services were continued, with an average attendance of thirty-five. There was a marked improvement in the conduct of some of the younger converts, and one inveterate gambler was so struck with the lantern picture of Christ cleansing the Temple, that he resolved to give up his evil habits—a resolve which happily he carried into execution.

As Fort Yukon is situated in the United States territory, the work there has been handed over to a missionary of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America under the Bishop of Alaska.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MISSION.

In 1856 Captain Prevost, R.N., drew the Society's attention to the savage state of the Tsimshean Indians on the coast of British Columbia, and a young schoolmaster, Mr. W. Duncan, was sent out. A great blessing was vouchsafed to his labours; and in 1862 the Christian settlement of Metlakahtla was founded. In 1881, however, Mr. Duncan refused to work on the lines of the Church of England, and ceased to be a missionary of the Society, and an unhappy schism among the Native Christians resulted. But peace was in God's good providence ultimately restored, though at a heavy cost. Prolonged disputes about the land ensued between Mr. Duncan's Indians and the Government; and in the summer of 1887 Mr. Duncan removed with some hundreds of the Indians to a place seventy miles distant, within the United States territory of Alaska. Since the departure of the disaffected party the conduct of the loyal Indians has been so excellent that the Government Commissioners, sent in November, 1888, to report on the condition of these disturbed districts, stated that the Metlakahtla Church Indians were in happy contrast to all others, and were a credit to their instructors.

The Diocese of British Columbia was subdivided in 1879; and the Rev. W. Ridley, formerly a missionary of the Society in the Punjab, was appointed the first Bishop of Caledonia, the Northern Division. The C.M.S. Mission Stations, with the exception of that at Alert Bay, are situated in his diocese.

Kincolith was occupied in 1866; Massett, 1876; Alert Bay, 1878; Hazelton, 1880; Giatwangak, 1882; Aiyansh, 1883; Kitkatla, 1887; and Tahl Tan, 1898.

Reinforcements. Two new workers were added to the list of the Society's missionaries in British Columbia:—the Rev. Walter E. Collison, son of Archdeacon W. H. Collison, who was admitted by Bishop Ridley to deacon's orders on August 24th, and to priest's orders three days later, and was received into local connexion; and Miss Rebecca Loxton Edwards, of Highbury and The Olives. Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Corker sailed for the Mission in May, 1899, and the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Keen in the following month. On the other hand, Miss E. G. Beeching came home in July, 1899, and the Rev. A. E. Price and the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall in September.

The Rev. J. H. Keen undertook the duties of the Secretariat on the departure of the Rev. A. J. Hall.

Bishop Ridley visits Skagway. Bishop Ridley paid a visit in the summer to Skagway and Lake Atlin, of which an account was printed in the C.M. Intelligencer for November, 1899. Passing through Skagway—the place regarding which negotiations are in course between the British, Canadian, and American Governments—where he ministered to the Church residents, he made his way to Bennett, and on to Atlin City. He found there a number of Indians who appeared to be related to the Natives amongst whom the Rev. F. M. T. Palgrave was at work on the Stickine River, and endeavoured to gain some acquaintance with their language. He also conducted services for the whites, twenty-five of the miners receiving the Holy Communion. The Bishop came home in October, 1899, sailing again in April, 1900, for New York, where he attended the Œcumenical Missionary Conference, proceeding thence to Metlakahtla.

Conference of Missionaries. The Annual Conference of C.M.S. missionaries was held at Metlakahtla on May 22nd to 25th, 1899, Bishop Ridley presiding.

At the afternoon session on the 22nd, the Rev. A. J. Hall, of Alert Bay (now at home), read an instructive paper on "Industrial Schools for Indian Boys." On the 23rd, at the morning session, the Rev. J. B. McCullagh, of Aiyansh, gave a paper on the "Indian Potlatch," and at the afternoon session the subject of "Temperance" was discussed, the Rev. A. E. Price, of Giatwangak, reading the opening paper. The Conference suspended its sittings for the celebration of the Queen's birthday, but there was a meeting of the Finance Committee in the forenoon. At the morning session on the 25th Archdeacon Collison, of Kincolith, read a very interesting paper on the "Mistakes of the Past." The same afternoon a public missionary meeting was held, at which five missionaries and three Natives from the Naas gave short addresses. Each speaker had a story of his own to tell, but each story ended on the same note—the triumph of the Gospel. The Natives from the Naas were especially thankful over recent conversions. A special feature of the Conference was the early morning and evening devotional meeting. The address at the last meeting was delivered by the Bishop, who compared the work of the grace of God in the soul to the action of the dew in nature —"I will be as the dew unto Israel."

Metlakahtla.

The missionaries resident at METLAKAHTLA during the whole or part of the year were, besides the Bishop, Dr. and Mrs. V. Ardagh, Miss M. West, Miss A. J. Edwards, Miss A. J. Tyte, Miss R. M. Davies, Miss H. Jackson, and Miss B. Davies.

The Centenary was celebrated from April 9th to 12th by a series of special services and meetings, at one or two of which addresses were delivered by some of the Natives. The only noteworthy incident in connexion with the Congregation was the institution of a surpliced choir, a cherished scheme of the late Mrs. Ridley, the musical part of the services being placed in the charge of Miss A. J. Edwards. Dr. Ardagh assisted in preaching in the church and in conducting Bible-classes in Tsimshian, and also with the help of Mrs. Ardagh visited the people in their homes; but the work in the Hospital, in which Miss R. M. Davies, a trained nurse, was his colleague, was inconsiderable, for there were few in-patients, but 1,432 visits of out-patients were recorded. The Home for Indian Girls was under Miss West, and Miss Edwards was over the Day-school until June, 1899, when she was transferred to Alert Bay, the management of the children then being placed in the hands of Miss R. M. Davies. The medical workers laboured as usual at Claxton on the Skeena River in the summer, and the doctor conducted services at several salmon canneries.

Kitkatla.

All the people at KITKATLA, where the Rev. R. W. Gurd was in charge, are at least nominally Christians. They are spoken of as deficient in natural refinement, and the work among them is hindered by their roving habits, for in the month of February they always depart on hunting and fishing expeditions, and in April they go to Bonilla Island in search of fur seal. Mr. Gurd followed them to the island during the year under review, and conducted services in a large tent which had been made by the women. There was little variation in the station work. Besides the Sunday services sundry classes were held; the White Cross meeting for women was continued by Mrs. Gurd, and the Sunday and day-schools were regularly conducted. Dr. and Mrs. Ardagh paid a visit to Kitkatla in the autumn. One of the earliest of the converts was suddenly called to his rest on May 5th, a man of whom Mr. Gurd writes:—

Death of one who stood a friend in days of opposition.

> On the previous evening he called to see me, and seemed as bright as usual. I was told the next morning that Peter Bell had died suddenly in the night, and that no one knew anything about it. Tradition says he was the only man who stoutly opposed the burning of the church here some sixteen years ago. He begged them to desist; the raiders said that if he did not mind what he was saying they would burn him and the church together. He publicly expressed his willingness to be burnt rather than the church.

Hazelton. The chief event of the year at HAZELTON, on the Skeena River, where the Rev. J. Field was in charge, was the completion of the new church, which owed much, as far as the provision of the necessary funds was concerned, to the Missionary Leaves Association. Seven candidates were confirmed by Bishop Ridley in May, 1899, and eight adults were baptized during the year, one of them, however, hailing from Giatwangak. The services and classes were not quite so well attended as in 1898. The people seemed desirous of learning the Scriptures, and ordering their lives according to its precepts, but they were lacking in stability, and were prone to turn aside to any new thing that caught their fancy.

Giatwangak. After the departure of the Rev. A. E. Price for England the Mission at GIATWANGAK, a village about 150 miles from the mouth of the Skeena River, the name of which signifies "the people among the rabbits," was supervised by Mr. Field.

Kincolith. There was much to cheer at KINCOLITH, on the Naas River, where Archdeacon W. H. Collison is stationed. The old heathen custom of the potlatch, though not entirely extinct, was yet denuded of its more degrading accompaniments, and was little more than a great feast; the Sunday and day-schools were well attended; the Church Army band of evangelists completed their new hall and carried on vigorous work; and the erection of the new church was almost finished, the people agreeing at a public meeting in the autumn that the men should devote three weeks' labour to the building, and the women manifesting their anxiety to help by contributing and preparing food for the men. An interesting gathering was held to bid farewell to the son and daughter of the Archdeacon who were proceeding to the Mission on Queen Charlotte's Islands. The Archdeacon writes:—

When it was known that they were leaving, our Indians gathered in until the room and passages were crowded. I was enabled to give a short address from the same inspired Word which encouraged and helped me when we first proceeded to the Islands twenty-three years ago:—"I will go in the strength of the Lord God; I will make mention of Thy righteousness only." Earnest prayer followed, in which our Indian Christians joined. As our hearts were full we dare not trust our voices to sing, but, truly, we made melody in our hearts unto the Lord.

Sixteen adults were baptized during the year. One of them was an old lady, whose daughter had long striven to win her for Christ, but who was mainly influenced by one of the converts baptized in 1898; and another was Chief S'gaden, who for many years was the leader of the heathen party among the Nishgas, a man of unbounded pride, whose name was really used to conjure with by the medicine-men on the head-waters of the Naas and the Skeena. The story of his conversion is narrated as follows:—

A once proud chief baptized.

It was suggested that a prayer-meeting on the same lines and, as far as possible, at the same hour as that held in Salisbury Square every Thursday might bring down showers of blessing on the work, and prove of lasting benefit, dating from this Centenary Year. We accordingly inaugurated such a service. The attendance and interest manifested from the first have been most encouraging. After one such prayer-meeting the Christians held a conference to consider what they should do, and it was agreed that a number of them should visit the heathen camps, and especially one point, where a large number had assembled for a great potlatch. They left in very trying weather, and proceeded part of the way in canoes and then on the ice. On reaching the heathen camp, they were not only refused a hearing, but, what is most unusual among Indians, even common hospitality was denied them. Consequently they were compelled to retreat to a camp at some distance. They renewed their efforts on the following day, with the result that a chief who lapsed from Christianity many years ago followed them and apologized for the treatment they had received. At a meeting held afterwards this chief came out boldly and repented. When the rumour reached his heathen friends that he had repented and deserted them, one of them who was greatly attached to him followed him to ascertain if it were true. On meeting and explaining matters to one another a striking scene ensued. These two stalwart Indians embraced one another and shed tears. When he found utterance this heathen follower exclaimed, "Well, let it be so; I promised to follow you in everything, and I will not change my word. I too will forsake the old customs and follow in the new way. It is better to follow a living reality than to follow a corpse."

Thursday prayer-meeting.

Visit to heathen camp.

On the next visit of our Evangelistic Band to the heathen camp they decided to sever an unholy alliance made by some of our Christian chiefs with a number of the heathen chiefs some years since. At that time, after a feast, to which the Heathen had been invited, a rope was brought, and the Christian chiefs seized one end whilst the Heathen held the other, and a knot was tied, after which the Christians handed the Heathen a banner, on which was embroidered the word "Peace." This alliance the Christians now declared severed, and the banner was handed back by the heathen party. Much vituperation and angry denouncements were showered on the Christians for this. Notwithstanding this, several of the Heathen were led to see the propriety of the step, and declared their intention to abandon Heathenism. One of the leaders in the severing of this union was the nephew of S'gaden, who was seated in the centre of the heathen chiefs. This young man is a member of our Native Church Army band. S'gaden had been most attentive to the appeals which the evangelists had made to the Heathen. He remained silent whilst the Heathen were denouncing the Christians. When our Christians were leaving to return down the river on the ice, he quietly arose and informed them that he would accompany them. An influential party of Heathen followed him several miles to the first halting-place, where they begged of him to return with them and not to forsake them. When they had ceased speaking, he pointed to a high mountain standing on the opposite side of the river. "Do you see yonder mountain?" he asked. "If a land-slide commences and rushes down its breast, who could arrest its progress or turn it back again? Even so it is with me." It was sufficient. The heathen party left without another word, and S'gaden continued his journey with the Christians, and reached the Mission on the following day. The next Sunday, after morning service, he stood up before a crowded congregation of both Nishgas and Tsimshians and declared his decision to abandon Heathenism and to follow Christ. It was a touching and thrilling scene. Two Christian chiefs stood, one on either hand, one of them being the chief who, two years since, desired to be admitted to his right and title by a religious service rather than by the old style. Many were affected to tears as he declared how he had been moved to take this step. And as the whole congregation bowed in prayer and praise their feelings simultaneously burst forth with one voice in the inspired words, "I will arise, I will arise, and go to my Father."

A touching scene.

The conversion of S'gaden was a great joy to the veteran evangelist, Philip Latimer, the senior Christian among the Nishgas, who had often endeavoured to influence the chief and his tribe in past days, and who was called to his rest shortly after the former enemy of the Gospel had declared his allegiance to Christ.

Centenary Day at the Canneries.

Centenary Day was duly observed at the Cannery at Fishery Bay on the Naas River. The Mission church was decorated, and on either side was displayed in large coloured letters, executed by some of the Christian Indians, the text, "Go ye into all the world, &c.," and in the centre "1799—C.M.S.—1899." Tsimshians, Nishgas, and Gatikshians united in a service of thanksgiving, and this was followed by a conference which continued six hours, at which delegates from Metlakahtla, Fort Simpson, Alaska, Kincolith, Lake Gulzap, Aiyansh, and Giatwangak spoke. One who was present wrote:—"It was intensely interesting to hear the speakers relate how the Gospel had found them, and how they had been drawn out of darkness into light, life, and liberty in Christ."

Aiyansh.

The Rev. J. B. McCullagh of AIYANSH traces in his Annual Letter the various phases through which the work at his station has passed, and says:—

> At one time it may be said to have proceeded according to the law of "fits and starts"; again it has been of an undecided nature—ebbing and flowing; sometimes if we have held our ground we have been thankful; then, again, we have gone forward with a rush, and so on. But this year the characteristic feature of the work is different: the Indian mind, as far as it is represented by the adherents of this Mission, seems to have become set in the direction of steady and determined advance both socially and spiritually.

Two public Bible-readings were given daily, the one in the morning and the other in the evening, and it was evident that the efforts to instruct the people in the Word of God were bearing good fruit, for the life of faith appeared to take the place of the life of emotion in their hearts and lives. A good deal of time was occupied by the medical work, which, however, was not quite so engrossing as in previous years, and the task of teaching both the children and their seniors proceeded without intermission. Seven boys belonged to what is termed the "Semi-industrial School," and were taught type-setting and printing, in both of which they became experts. The September number of the Caledonia Interchange, a paper originally started in order that the missionaries might inform one another of the progress at their respective stations, a well-printed pamphlet of forty pages, was entirely "set up" by two of the boys, neither of whom was eleven years of age, and the lads, in addition, were engaged in printing the translation of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, which had been finally revised by Mr. McCullagh, who hoped in 1900 to have the other Gospels ready for the printer. A visit was paid to Gitlakdamiks, but the Indians of that name were hard to impress owing to their pride of race, each man being the son of a thousand kings in his own estimation, and resenting being spoken to as a sinner. The people of Gitwinksilqu were more responsive when Mr. McCullagh went to see them, and many of them attended the church at Aiyansh on Christmas Day.

Industrial Work.

At TAHL TAN, on the Stickine River, the Rev. F. M. T. Palgrave ministered to a tribe of some two hundred Indians, who only resided at the station for a few weeks in summer when they came for the salmon fishing, and for a couple of months in the winter when they celebrated their great annual feast. With the exception of a man and his wife, who were converted at the Presbyterian Mission at Wrangel, their usual home, and a few Roman Catholics, all the Indians are Heathen. Mr. Palgrave held two services on Sundays, and during the week conducted a school for some thirty children each morning, and in the evenings taught the Bible to a number of people who gathered together in the largest house in the village.

Tahl Tan.

The Rev. W. E. Collison, accompanied by his sister, proceeded to Queen Charlotte's Islands immediately after his ordination in August, in order to take charge of the station at MASSETT. The Haida Indians accorded a warm welcome to their new pastor, and Archdeacon Collison, who commenced the work on the Islands in 1877, contrasts the greeting which he then received with that accorded to his son. He mentions that the captain of the steamer in which he and Mrs. Collison travelled assured them that they were risking their lives, and begged that at all events Mrs. Collison and the children should refrain from landing.

Alert Bay. The staff of the Society at ALERT BAY, on Vancouver's Island, consisted of the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Hall (now at home) until August, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Corker, Dr. F. E. Webb of the Victoria C.M. Association, Miss E. G. Beeching (now at home) until June, 1899, Miss A. J. Edwards from that month, and Miss C. Carleton. The conditions under which the missionaries laboured have been well described by Dr. Webb, who was seriously ill at the end of the year. Writing in July, he said:—

> I am working amongst a few people, less than 1,000, who have, more or less, heard the outlines of the Gospel for twenty years and are opposed still to its reception, though having no religion of their own. It is most embarrassing, and the situation is a psychological study, or rather puzzle. I know of no case resembling it in modern missionary literature, unless the case of the Australian aboriginals, of whom the Indian is the northern counterpart in ignorance, indolence, and depravity. It seems to me the whole force of Satanic stubbornness is exerted through different channels to thwart the grace of God. But for the provincial law forbidding the supply of drink to any Indian under a very heavy penalty, they would not have survived the contact with the "white man" fifty years.

Hindrances to the Gospel's progress.

> This has been the difficulty, and is still the kernel of it, in outward form. The white trader with his Indian or half-caste wife sees, for some reason, an enemy in Missions, saw-mills, Mission stores, industries, &c., and through his wife's relations "poisons" the Indians' minds by misrepresentation, and prejudices the Government Departments by insinuations, till the missionary is regarded with distrust by the Natives and considered a nuisance—nothing less—by the Department for Indian Affairs. Another great hindrance to the conversion of these tribes is the absence of the family unit, and the existence of a system of community whose bondage is absolute. The young man is ready to marry: the young woman (fourteen years of age) is marriageable: what hinders? There is no home to build or furnish, there is abundant fish in the sea and berries in the woods for food; they want for nothing it would seem. But wait! This girl is a marketable article, she is worth so many blankets (their medium of barter); she must be bought; where does the young man get 500 to 1,000 blankets? He borrows ten here, ten there, and so on at 100 per cent. interest (!) and he is then bound hand and foot in one form of the potlatch, which means usury in its worst form. He will never be able to pay, unless the girl's father should have a better offer in a few months' time, when the girl is taken from her husband and sold a second time, sometimes a third or fourth. The father of the girl then pays the youth double the number of blankets, and trades away his daughter to the highest bidder. This is not an account of some few exceptional cases; this is the custom, the invariable regular system of marriage as it is and has been for years, and the Indian sees nothing disreputable in it, and the Government no need for interference!

Debasing marriage customs.

The usual services and meetings were conducted after Mr. Hall's departure by Mr. Corker, who also carried on the Industrial School, giving Bible lessons daily to each class. Miss Beeching at first, and afterwards Miss Carleton, superintended the Girls' Home, and the women's meetings were carried on as usual, but the whole of the work was greatly hindered by the potlatching to which reference has already been made. The Medical Work suffered from Dr. Webb's illness, but Mr. Corker carried it on to the best of his ability, and most of the nursing was done by Miss Edwards.

The report of the work of the Church Missionary Society which has been given has indicated clearly that, in the Mission-field as at home, there are diversities of gifts, diversities of ministrations, and diversities of workings, although the gifts are derived from the same Spirit, the ministrations are appointed by the same Lord, and the workings or results of the ministrations are bestowed by the same God, who allots apparent success and failure in the right proportion. All who take any part in the great work of evangelizing the world will share for themselves in the aspiration of Miss Carleton with which this Report may well close:—"I think that we here at Alert Bay have to realize more and more that doing little things faithfully is as much in the eyes of our Lord as the bigger things. Oh! to learn the lesson which He would teach us in these words:—'He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much.'"

Reports of Special Funds.

REPORT OF THE WILLIAM CHARLES JONES INDIA NATIVE CHURCH FUND.

THE interest of this Fund is available for assisting the Native Church Councils connected with the Church Missionary Society in India to employ more evangelistic labourers among the Heathen. Two important conditions are imposed regarding grants. It is necessary, before an application for a grant can be entertained, for a Native Council to show that the Christians whom it represents have actually engaged in aggressive evangelistic work through a Native Missionary Society, or that they are prepared so to do. It is necessary, also, that the Council be able to show that at least two-fifths of the cost of maintaining religious worship and pastoral work in its district has been raised from purely local sources; and that a definite sum has been contributed towards missionary work. The scheme also provides that the amount granted from the Fund to a Council shall not exceed the amount set apart by that Council for purely evangelistic purposes, or the amount raised by the Native Missionary Society in connexion with that Council.

Grants were made during 1898 to the following District Church Councils for the support of seventy-three evangelists:—
